DNR ready to crack down on old building burning

The remains of old barns, sheds and other buildings that have seen better days are a common sight along many rural roads in the upper Thumb.

Getting rid of those structures might seem as simple as lighting a match, particularly with waste hauling and disposal costs skyrocketing. For many landowners, burning has become the cheapest solution.

But it's also illegal, and Department of Natural Resources officials say the problem is getting out of hand.

"We have a problem in the Thumb area," James J. Melin, forest fire officer with the DNR's Forest Management Division, remarked last week.

Melin said an increasing number of illegal structure fires and phone calls from concerned Thumb residents reporting those fires indicates that many people aren't aware of the laws.

One of the most common calls is that from a resident trying to get a permit to burn an old building on their property, Melin noted, adding they want to know why they can't burn when they saw their neighbor torch a structure on his property a few weeks earlier.

The fact is, that neighbor was burning illegally, risking surrounding property and, if reported, expenses related to extinguishing the blaze plus any fines involved if a ticket is issued, he explained.

"We want to start an education process," Melin said. "We just want people to be aware of the laws and some of the ramifications as far as pollutants."

Mary Charley, an engineer with the DNR's Air Quality Division, Saginaw Office, said the law regarding burning structures is stated simply under the Michigan Air Pollution Act, which controls all types of open burning, including that of demolition materials.

NOT AN OPTION

"You can't just torch a barn or even a dog house, for that matter," she said. "It's not an option to burn something you don't want."

Charley noted the only exception regarding burning structures is for the purpose of fire fighter training, and even then, the department involved must submit an application for approval by the DNR. Such training, she added, is not to be conducted for the purpose of building demolition.

Melin pointed out that many of the older structures being illegally burned were constructed with some forms of asbestos, tar shingles and other materials which, when burned, present a health risk.

Charley agreed. "There are just numerous organic compounds that are potentially toxic and (contain) potential carcinogens. It would be a disaster if we allowed it to happen."

Cedar shingles are another example of the risk involved, according to Melin, who recalled a fire several years ago in which the embers of the shingles from one barn fire carried a half mile and started another barn fire.

"Everybody says it won't get away, but those are famous last words," he added.

Under the law, demolition waste from buildings cannot be buried on private land, but owners can separate materials and burn wood in a wood stove. Concrete and stone can be buried at the site, but metals and other materials must be disposed of in a landfill.

Melin acknowledged that at an estimated $40 per cubic yard, the cost of hauling and disposing of demolition materials is cost prohibitive. At the same time, however, so is the cost of replacing someone else's property if a fire gets away, he indicated.

And, ignorance of the law is no excuse. Persons responsible for starting fires are liable for such damage, as well as the cost of a fire department run ($150 in Elkland Township), a DNR fire run (ranges from $35 to thousands of dollars, based on expenses) plus any fines imposed in court.

"We don't want to chastise anybody - that's not our job. We're here to help them if they have a problem," Melin pointed out, adding he

DNR seeks fines for pollution in Gagetown

Fines totalling more than $155 million are being sought from 2 companies that DNR officials say failed to properly handle hazardous wastes resulting in the contamination of groundwater at a Gagetown manufacturing plant.

Officials with the Tuscola County Prosecutor's Office have authorized warrants against the former Evans Engineered Products Co., Hallandale, Fla., and Evans Asset Holding Co., Hallandale, Fla., which was created to assume the assets of Evans Engineered Products when the firm filed for bankruptcy in 1985.

Each company faces 10 counts of hazardous waste violations covering a period between May 24, 1988, through March 31, 1989.

Each company faces a maximum $250,000 fine for each of the 311 days DNR officials claim hazardous wastes were improperly treated, disposed of and stored by company officials at the former Evans plant site.

DNR officials at the state office in Saginaw said groundwater at the Gagetown plant, 6581 Mill St., is contaminated with paint solvents. Sue Kaelber-Matlock, a geologist with the DNR's Environment Response Division, said the contamination was found in a shallow groundwater aquifer.

Kaelber-Matlock pointed out that Gagetown residents have no reason to fear for their health because their drinking water comes from a separate aquifer that supplies community water lines.

Larry Terlicki of the DNR's Law Enforcement Division said the chemicals in the ground water at the plant site are believed to have originated from at least several of about 70 55-gallon drums discovered by the DNR early last December while executing a criminal search warrant.

Ten of the drums were sampled, and each of those was found to contain hazardous waste, he said, adding the drums appeared to have been at the plant for years.

Terlicki noted that Evans officials were supposed to have had environmental problems at the plant cleared up within 6 months of the purchase of the company by RCS-Engineered Products Inc., a subsidiary of Railcar Specialties, Alsip, Ill., which purchased Evans in May 1988.

Evans officials, however, failed to make that progress, Terlicki continued.

Aside from clean-up, DNR officials want the defendant companies to finance a complete hydrogeological study to determine whether the pollution has reached deeper groundwater aquifers. A number of monitoring wells have been placed at the site, but the DNR wants several more installed.

Terlicki commented that all too often companies go bankrupt and leave environmental problems behind. The problem then falls on the state, which ends up paying for the clean-up.

"We're going to avoid that in this case, or we're certainly going to attempt to," he added.

Co-op is out, too

O-G board refuses preschool request

The director of a preschool program serving children in the Owen-Gage School District pushed the Board of Education Monday for action on a proposal she made last spring to merge her program with the school district.

Following brief discussion of the matter, however, the board refused to take any action at this time.

Preschool Director Diane Warack, who addressed the board towards the end of Monday's 4 1/4-hour monthly meeting, requested that the board take some action on the proposal she made 4 months ago.

In short, Warack indicated at that time that she would like the district to take over the preschool program and offer her a contract as the teacher.

Having operated a successful program on a year-to-year basis for 6 years, Warack told board members that she wants some direction from the board as well as job security if trustees believe the program has been an asset to the community.

She added that under her proposal, revenue secured for the program in grants and state aid would continue to fund the bulk of the program without additional cost to the district, which currently serves as the program's sponsoring agent.

But school Supt. Harley Kirby, who later recommended that the board table the issue, said other factors, including the cost of paying for insurance and retirement benefits for an additional teacher, also should be considered.

"In our situation we took it (preschool program) under our wing because we couldn't afford to start the program ourselves and hire a teacher," he said.

"I think we would have a lot of problems with the union," he added. "To start another program and hire another teacher... I think we would have problems."

Kirby explained that teachers have made concessions and some class offerings have been cut in recent years due to the district's budget crunch. He said he wouldn't feel comfortable about taking on the preschool program without first discussing the proposal with representatives of the teachers' union.

Board President William Kretzschmer agreed. "I think right now the board's between a rock and a stone," he said.

SCHOOL POLICIES

In other business Monday, the board acted on 2 policy questions related to student absences and a new option for eligible students who can receive an hour of "release time" in lieu of participation in a job cooperative program.

High school counselor and Principal Ronald D'Aoust asked the board for guidance regarding students who miss days of school because they are needed at home or help earn their family's income.

A recent incident involving a family that earns a portion of its living out of state was cited by D'Aoust, who noted one of the children involved missed the first 4 days of school.

The principal said he informed the student that the missed days would be counted as absences, but was later told by a board member, who had been contacted by the student's mother, that this type of absence has been "forgiven" in past years.

The board told D'Aoust that in the future such absences are to be counted, and the board will deal with cases in which students have accumulated excessive absences.

Turning to the co-op issue, D'Aoust told the board that he has refused to allow students to participate in a co-op program this year primarily because of concern over the school's liability and because similar experiences are available through the skill center.

He suggested that the board allow seniors who want co-op to opt for an hour of "release time," during the first or sixth hour, in which they could work at a job of their choosing.

"I just thought it would be fair in light that we don't have co-op here," he said, adding only seniors who are performing acceptably in school and who have an adequate number of classes to graduate would be eligible.

TRUTH IN TAXATION

Turning to finances, the board established the district's 1989-90 operational millage rate at 41 mills and scheduled a Truth in Taxation hearing for 8 p.m. Sept. 25 at Gagetown Elementary.

Without a Truth in Taxation hearing, school boards are required under the Headlee Amendment to roll back taxes if property values in their school districts rise faster than the inflation rate.

That's the case this year in the Owen-Gage District. Please turn to page 14.

3 injured in car crash

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies say they believe alcohol was involved in a one-vehicle crash just west of Cass City early Saturday morning that sent 3 area residents to the hospital.

Reports state Mickel O. Strickland, 35, 6667 Third St., Cass City, was driving west on Cass City Road east of Koepfgen Road at a high rate of speed when he lost control on the wet pavement at about 2:18 a.m.

The vehicle then slid sideways and left the roadway, sheared off a telephone pole and then broadsided a large business sign in front of the Elkland Professional Building, according to deputies, who stated the vehicle traveled another 50 feet before coming to a stop.

Strickland and 2 passengers, Sue James, 32, 6673 Shabbona Rd., Decker, and Lonnie J. Schember, 24, 3988 S. Lampton Rd., Deford, were transferred to Hills and Dales General Hospital by Cass City-Mercy Ambulance personnel.

Strickland and Schember were treated and released, and James was transferred to St. Mary's Medical Center, Saginaw, where she was listed in fair condition Monday morning, a hospital spokeswoman said.

None of the persons involved was wearing a seat belt, reports indicate.

Report theft from vehicles

Thefts from 3 vehicles late last week in Cass City are believed to have been perpetrated by the same person or persons.

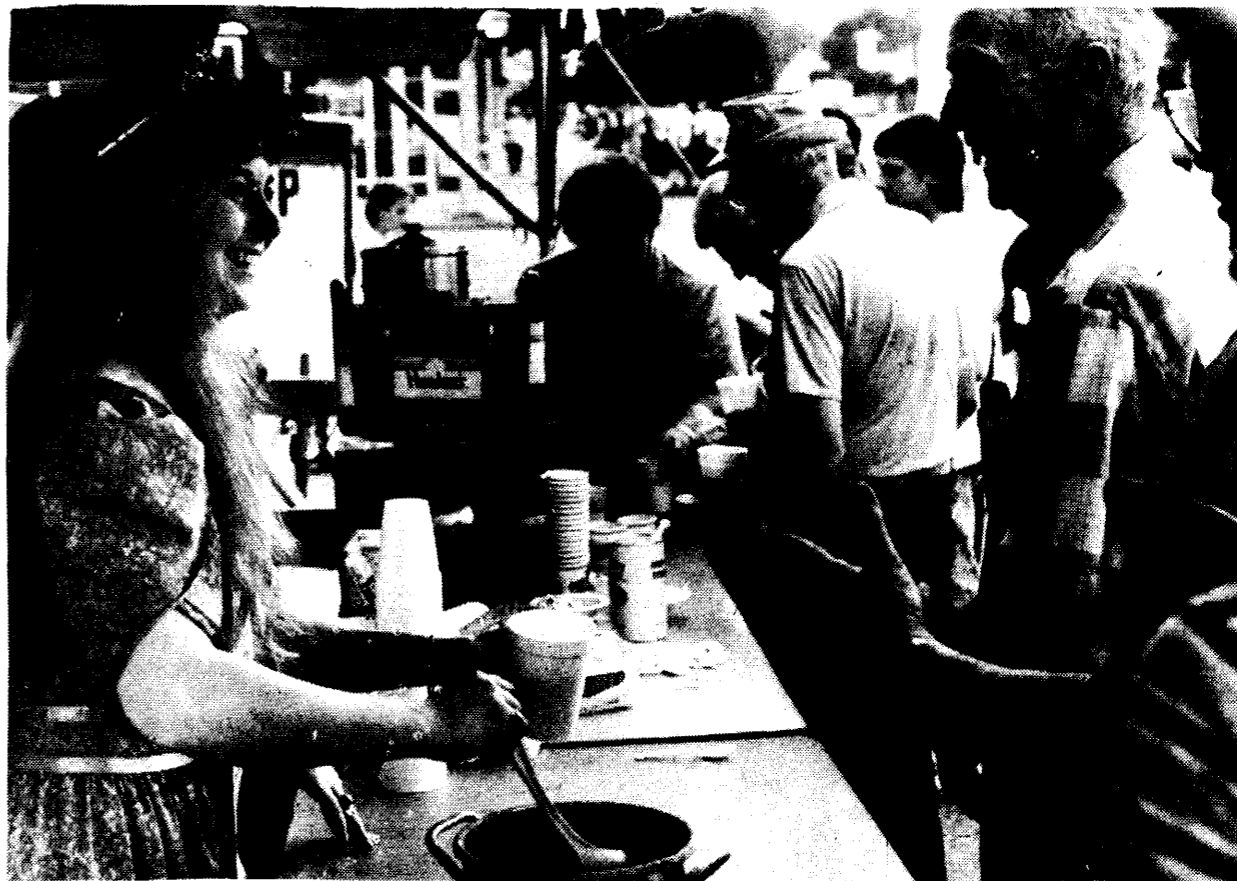

Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson, who is continuing an investigation of the thefts, stated 3 persons reported larcenies from their vehicles. All 3 incidents occurred late Thursday evening or early Friday morning. Joan Merchant, 6559 Seed St., told police someone took a radar detector from her car, while parked in the garage at her home, sometime between 10:30 p.m. Thursday and 7 a.m. Friday. The item is valued at $200.

Denise Janssen, 6461 Main St., was awakened at about 2:30 a.m. Friday by a neighbor, who told her someone was in her pickup truck, which was parked in a lot north of Main Street. A pair of binoculars was missing, she reported.

Also, Dwight Loeding, 6670 Huron St., told police he discovered that doors to his car and van, both parked in front of his home, were opened by someone who apparently stole a portfolio from one of the vehicles.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Arbitter

Long-time Decker residents Gordon and Elma (Custer) Arbitter celebrated their 60th anniversary last month.

More than 40 friends and relatives attended a party given in their honor by their grandson, Rollin Binkley and his wife, Marcy, at their Sterling Heights home Aug. 20.

Out of town guests included the couple's daughter, Helen Tacon of Las Vegas, Nev., and her daughter Andrea. Also attending were a nephew, Dale Myers and his wife, Maxine, of St. Petersburg, Fla.

The Arbitters were married Aug. 17, 1929, at the Burns Avenue Baptist Church in Detroit. They have resided in Decker since retiring in 1968.

They have 2 daughters, Mrs. Rollin Binkley (Bernice) of Hazel Park and Helen Tacon of Las Vegas; 3 grandchildren, Rollin Binkley, Rhonda Binkley and Andrea Tacon, and 2 great-grandchildren, Jennifer Binkley and Eric Binkley.

Flu shots available

The Tuscola County Board of Commissioners has approved the use of Senior Millage funds to pay for 1989 flu vaccinations for senior residents in the county.

The vaccine will be offered free to Tuscola County seniors. Adults under the age of 60 will be charged $5.

The county Health Department will hold flu clinics at 6 sites, including the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Cass City (Oct. 6 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.); the Human Development Commission, meal site, 429 Montague St., Caro (Sept. 25 from 9 to 11 a.m.) and the Health Department, 2266 W. Caro Rd., Caro (Oct. 24 from 1 to 3 p.m.).

Individuals 60 years of age or older, those adults (under 60) with chronic health problems, and high risk adults may receive the flu vaccine. Persons who are ill with fever are advised to wait until they are free of symptoms before receiving the vaccine.

All participants are asked to take a list of their current medications to the clinics.

Health officials suggest that persons eat before attending one of the clinics. Seniors are welcome to stay for lunch at the meal site.

Meal reservations and additional information related to the vaccines can be obtained by calling the Health Department at 673-8114.

There will be a dinner for her and her children at 1 p.m., followed by the open house for other relatives and friends from 2-5 p.m.

Mrs. Whitefoot was born Sept. 16, 1899, in Greenleaf Township.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Kroeker

The Evangelical Free Church in Gaylord was the scene of the June 17 wedding of Terri Lynn Leino and Timothy Scott Kroeker.

Rev. Jim Mathis of Gaylord and Rev. Eldred Kelley of Cass City performed the 3:30 p.m. ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Nancy Leino of Cass City and the late Roy Leino. The groom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Philip Kroeker of Upland, Ind.

Escorted down the aisle by her pastor, Rev. Eldred Kelley, the bride wore a satin gown with high bateau neckline, hand beaded bodice, long tapered pouff sleeves, basque waist with back bustle and cathedral train.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Kathy Leino of Cass City. Bridesmaids were April Kametz of Lebanon, Ohio, Angie Mullet of Shelbyville, Ind., and Kristin Maschke of Johannesburg, Mich.

The bridal attendants wore wine colored satin gowns with shirred sleeves and bustled trains.

Attending the groom were Brian Lydy of Marion, Ind., Kelly Kametz of Lebanon, Ohio, Warren Brown of Chicago, Ill., and Kivan Brown of Cadillac.

A reception, with 150

guests attending, was held in the Oak Room at the Sylvan Resort in Gaylord.

Instrumental music for the wedding and reception was provided by the groom's father on piano, his brother, Barry Kroeker, on oboe, brother, Greg Kroeker, on violin, and sister-in-law, Susan Kroeker, on flute.

The bride and groom and members of the wedding party entertained at the reception with a mixture of nostalgic songs and barber-shop music.

The bride is a recent graduate of Taylor University, Upland, Ind., and the groom is a lab technician in the cardiac unit at Indiana University, Indianapolis.

After a wedding trip to Michigan's Upper Peninsula, Mr. and Mrs. Kroeker are living in Indianapolis.

Her fiance, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Garety of Cass City, is a 1986 graduate of Cass City High School. He is currently a Charger Technician at Battery Powered Systems and a Remote Engineer at WMEE/WQHK Radio Stations in Fort Wayne, Ind. The wedding is set for May 12, 1990, at the Potawatomi Inn, Pokagon State Park in Angola, Ind.

Who makes the rules?

by Melva E. Guinther

I trust you've all put your white shoes away, not to be seen again until after Memorial Day, 1990.

Does anyone else ever wonder how and by whom these arbitrary rules are established? I mean, there's nothing in the constitution saying that anyone wearing white shoes after Labor Day and before Memorial Day should be censured. And I'm reasonably sure the edict didn't come down from Mt. Sinai. So who are the law givers that decide these things? And where do they get their power?

When did they meet and determine that a tip should be raised from 10% to 15% of the tab? We won't get into the questionable logic of paying certain persons extra for doing their jobs well while completely ignoring others, equally deserving but in a different line of work.

Even Miss Manners concedes that etiquette rules are a bit arbitrary. In a recent column she addressed the question thus: "Why do we drink out of glasses instead of troughs? Why do men have to wear pieces of cloth around their necks to be dressed up? Why should old people be treated with respect by the young when they may or may not be worthy of respect? "Why isn't it proper to wear the same clothes on the street that are considered perfectly proper and decent on the beach? Why do we say "How do you do?" when we're really not asking, and maybe don't care, how the person addressed is doing? Why is black the color of mourning and not pink? "Oh, because that's the way things are. Don't be tedious," was the classic Miss Manners reply.

She goes on to cite the advantages of having an established system so that we don't blunder blindly through life wondering what to do and misinterpreting each other's behavior.

She has a point, but shouldn't we, in a democracy, get to vote on the issues?

I'd at least like to know who my representative to Social Congress is.

From Bob, a "loyal fan in Ohio," comes this clipping, originally offered in "The Editorial Eye," published by Editorial Experts Inc.:

A fifth grader in Seattle gave this description in a homework paper:

"The human body is composed of three parts: the Branium, the Borax and the Abominable Cavity. The Branium contains the Brain. The Borax contains the lungs, liver and the living things. The Abominable Cavity contains the bowels, of which there are five, A, E, I, O, and U."

(No doubt everything that isn't a bowel is a constipation.)

I hope that kid doesn't aspire to be a surgeon.

Close call department. The building that burned last week on Mackinac Island was the same one which Katy Scollon, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ed Scollon, stayed in while working this summer. She left one week before the tragedy.

Behind the scenes, beautiful Mackinac Island leaves a lot to be desired, says Dr. Scollon. The rooms were really crummy and the students that worked there were charged $40 per week regardless of how many shared the rooms. There were 3 in Katy's room. Makes it difficult for the students to make much money in the short season.

In over 35 years watching high school football, Friday's game is the first that was ever delayed because of a storm. There were other games that probably should have been.

Football players in cleats make an ideal target for lightning.

Here's another from GTE'S prediction booklet, "2001". "As many as 80 percent of new entrants in the U.S. work force will be women, minorities and immigrants." My question. What will the men be doing?

Tennis is a great game to watch on television. You can take in all the action on both ends of the court. It beats football and baseball, where the action is too wide-spread to follow more than the action with the ball only.

Today's TV cameramen are so good that they can show the swing and follow the flight of the ball. What TV can't show you is the slopes of the greens, which is a vital part of the action.

Of course, it will never be possible to send via the airways the electricity and the feel for the game that comes with being there.

It's as certain as death and taxes. Whenever a controversy arises, rumors will fly thick and fast with no basis at all in fact.

The current squabble about the hiring of teachers, which was to be discussed Tuesday night, the day this paper hits the newsstands, is no exception. Definitely no exception.

One rumor that I have heard time and again is that the superintendent leaves the hiring of the teachers to the various principals and doesn't know who is hired before they walk into the classroom.

Who knows how something like that gets started? This, says Supt. Ken Micklash, is how the hiring is done (and was done to fill the vacancies that have caused the discussion).

All the applications are funneled to the superintendent's office and he selects 18 or more for further study. Then they are sent to the principal, who will work with the teacher for review. He picks out names he feels merit further study and then the superintendent and the principal confer.

Usually interviews are granted to 7 or 8 and references and backgrounds checked before a contract is offered. That's the way it was done this summer, Micklash said, but instead of interviewing 7 or 8 we talked with 18 candidates for each of the 2 positions filled.

I personally checked references and talked with people about the jobs that were filled this summer. That's the way we do it for every position at the school, he added, not just for teachers or administrative positions.

After we decide on the best candidate, says the superintendent, and offer a contract, the person is not hired until the contract is approved by the school board. It has the right to overrule if desired. (That never has been done, although it was suggested in the current controversy.)

Other questions floating around include the reason for hiring a teacher with a master's degree and pay the extra cost just to teach a lower grade and hiring teachers from out of the community when there are teachers qualified living in the area.

The administration's view is that they have selected the persons they feel are best qualified.

What they are really doing is what the school board hired them to do. Run the school in a manner which will provide the best possible education.

The school board has a job to do, setting policy and goals to be achieved, but there's no good reason for it to be involved in hiring a teacher.

The administration is, and should be, accountable to the board. If the board is not satisfied with the way the school is run, then a new supervisor is the answer.

No one even hints that this is the case today. In fact, just the opposite is true. The trained professionals have been doing the job. Let them continue to do it.

Student officers selected

Cass City Intermediate School students recently elected student council officers for the new school year.

They are Jason Walther, president, Mike Sherman, vice president, Aaron Hewitt, secretary, and Mark Rockwell, treasurer.

School counselor Richard B. Partlo will continue in his role as council advisor.

Health Fair for seniors announced

A Health Fair will be held for all Tuscola County Senior Citizens Sept. 27 at the Human Development Commission, 429 Montague Ave., Caro, from 1 to 4 p.m.

Services available will be free blood pressure, cholesterol screening, blood sugar levels (diabetic testing), literature on Senior Services, free refreshments and much more. These services are being sponsored by local agencies with the HDC as the service provider. There is no admission fee.

For any further information, or if an agency would like to sponsor a table, please contact Maureen Krueger at HDC, (517) 269-9901.

Seniors can stop by the Senior Center early Sept. 27 and join others for fun and a nutritious meal. Reservations, required by 9 a.m., are available by calling 673-4121 to reserve a meal.

Ugly band at Band Day

The Ugly High School Marching Band will be participating in the 35th Annual Band Day at Michigan State University Saturday.

Ugly will be among 25 bands selected throughout the state to participate.

The Michigan State Spartan Marching Band will perform at pregame and then play a selection called, "Day Tripper" which will feature the flags, rifles, pompoms and twirlers from all the bands.

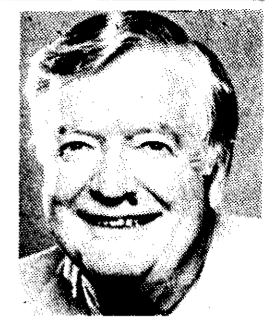

Halftime begins with the Miami of Ohio Band and ends with a mass band performance of "Bossa Corona," "Hey Baby!," and the "MSU Fight Song."

The kick-off against Miami of Ohio is at 1 p.m. and will be televised.

"If It Fitz..."

Bengal blues

By Jim Fitzgerald

When the Detroit Tigers got so lousy they were damaging Manager Sparky Anderson's health, he was allowed to leave them in mid-slump for a vacation in California. Dedicated Tiger fans deserve the same consideration, especially me.

I can't afford a California vacation, but that should be no problem. For many years it has been obvious to everyone, especially my wife, that my support is crucial to the Tigers' success. And the Tigers' success is crucial to the prosperity and self-esteem of Detroit and all of Michigan. A lot of important stuff depends on my ability to continue functioning as the Tigers' most avid booster.

So, in a generous display of civic-mindedness, the Detroit Auto Dealers Association is expected to raise $5 million to send me to California for 3 weeks.

The idea is that a rest in Malibu will restore my fighting bengal spirit. Sitting on the beach will help me forget that baseball announcer George Kell used to say the Tigers had the potential winning run on third base. But then he began saying the tying run was at bat, or in the waiting batter's circle, or in the dugout, or in the whirlpool bath.

It is only a matter of time before Kell begins saying the run that will bring the Tigers within 12 runs of a second-inning lead is on a bus coming from the Mud Hens ballpark in Toledo, and, if it reaches the Greyhound station in Detroit, with less than 2 out, its chance of making it to home plate depends more on Michigan Avenue traffic than a fly ball.

When that happens, I want to be in Malibu, not Detroit. And, after completely ignoring the Tigers for 3 weeks, I plan to return with restored resolve to persevere no matter what happens between the foul lines. I'm sure the Tigers won't play any better in September, but I'm also sure a California vacation will give me the strength needed to persuade my wife that I really don't care how many games the big bums blow in the last inning.

This season I've been using what my wife calls my "stupid, single game philosophy." She asks why I keep watching televised games when I know "they're going to lose again and never get out of last place." And I explain there is pure beauty in a single baseball game, and it doesn't matter who won yesterday, or who wins tomorrow. What matters is that the greatest game of all is being played one more time and I can enjoy it, the same way my father used to enjoy it, and my son and grandson now enjoy it, no matter which team is ahead after the final glorious out is made.

There have been problems with this philosophy. A couple of weeks ago, for one example, I stayed up until 2:30 a.m. watching the Tigers play extra innings on the West Coast. When they ultimately lost, something snapped. The long, hard season suddenly took its toll on me. I yowled and kicked my footstool and threw a book against the wall.

At breakfast, my wife said, "I certainly enjoyed being awakened by the sound of you enjoying a single baseball game, no matter who won. Did the neighbors phone the police to come share in your enjoyment?"

So I need a vacation from the Tigers, the same as Sparky. And it should be pointed out that I was rooting for them before Anderson was born. In the 1930s, when games started at 3 p.m., I listened on the radio and wrote down every play so I could reconstruct the game for my father when he got home from work. That's the kind of devotion that screams out for Malibu.

The next move is up to the Detroit Auto Dealers Association. I can understand why the association reneged on a pledge to raise $5 million to help save sports and music programs in Detroit schools this fall. Those programs aren't important. But the Tigers will play for years to come, and if my bengal spirit isn't soon restored, they may have to play without my support, thus endangering the prosperity and self-esteem of Detroit and Michigan.

In asking for their help, the car dealers must agree I've built a good case. And a voice told me, "If you build it, they will come through."

Although almighty, it wasn't my wife's voice.

Fluroquinolones: New Antibiotics

A new and potent group of oral antibiotics is being used to treat many conditions that previously required the use of antibiotics by intravenous injection. These exciting new infection-fighters are the fluroquinolones.

Two fluroquinolones, norfloxacin and ciprofloxacin, are currently available, by prescription, in the United States. Both are highly effective against "Gram negative" organisms.

Potent: Researchers believe that the fluroquinolones block the action of an enzyme that is crucial for the production of cells in certain bacteria. Fluroquinolones are effective against many of the organisms that cause urinary tract infections experienced by many nursing home and hospital patients. Because of their high potency against such organisms, some physicians reserve these antibiotics for cases that are complicated, recurrent or resistant to other oral antibiotics.

Cost Effective: The fluroquinolones are more expensive than most other oral antibiotics. However, the total cost of treating patients with fluroquinolones is less than having patients hospitalized and treated with intravenously administered antibiotics for one to two weeks.

Your neighbor says

Drug problem is everywhere

It's time to go to war according to President Bush. The war, fighting the nation's drug problem, has a proposed $7.9 billion price tag.

But if there is such a thing as having your cake and eating it too, this could be the case, as Mr. Bush claims this battle can be fought without raising taxes or adding to the budget deficit.

And although some, mainly Democrats, say the President's plan doesn't go far enough, it does break into unexplored territory.

For the first time the President has made armed forces available to foreign countries. Further, the President has targeted action at the casual drug user, calling for harsher penalties more like those imposed on dealers.

We asked your neighbor, Colling resident Donna Schember, her thoughts about the President's campaign to curb drug use in the United States.

"It's 20 years too late," said Schember, adding, "Anything that can help stop it (drug use), is worth the money."

Schember, who easily and admittedly "gets riled up on this topic," told us the best way to battle drugs is education.

"Start right in kindergarten, don't wait till the 5th or 6th grade," lamented Schember who has one son still in school, Raymond (Butch), who is a senior in Unionville.

Schember also feels that other problems, such as crime, AIDS and poverty, would also be reduced if the war on drugs could be won.

Schember also remarked that drugs aren't just a big city problem anymore. "They're everywhere," stated the mother of 7 and grandmother of 10.

Gets foster care license

Single area mother changes some minds at DSS office

LINDA DOWNING, above with son, Ryan, has re-opened the door to single parent foster care licensing through the Tuscola County Department of Social Services. Downing's home is among 5 DSS-licensed foster homes in Cass City. There are a total of about 43 in the county.

As a single parent, the odds were stacked against Linda Downing when she decided to seek a foster care license 3 years ago. But the Cass City woman's strong desire to open her heart and home to a child in need of a safe, healthy environment has changed some minds at the Tuscola County Department of Social Services.

Downing, whose first attempt to become licensed ended in rejections from 3 agencies, recently received her license in the mail, having re-opened the door to single foster care licensing through the DSS.

"I've been thinking about this a long, long time; thinking about it, praying about it," the Gagetown native remarked at her Pine Street home.

"I really feel bad for kids who are abused or neglected or treated wrong. I want to help them feel that they are loved because a lot of them feel like they're bad," she said. "I was so excited when (I received) the license."

According to Jacqueline Garcia, social services specialist with the DSS, Downing is the first person in recent years to be licensed by the Tuscola County DSS as a single foster parent.

The agency tried licensing single parents in the early 1980s, but with poor results, Garcia remarked.

"We developed a policy of (licensing) only 2-parent homes, but we are re-thinking that policy," she said. "I think that single parents have a place in foster parenting."

WITHOUT VIOLENCE

"We prefer the 2-parent home because that way, the child can see that mom and dad can have a disagreement without violence. But a single parent can provide the attention and support a child needs in certain situations," she explained.

Downing, who works at the Gagetown post office, agreed.

"I told her (Garcia) I can offer a better home to a child than some 2-parent homes. I know I can. I'm not the perfect parent, but I try my best," she commented.

She recalled returning to the DSS earlier this year in her second attempt to become licensed.

Garcia, Downing said, "was kind of hesitant at first. I said, 'please, please, just give me a chance.' I think she realized that I was sincere."

"I first started all the paperwork in April," Downing said of the application process, which takes 6 to 8 weeks and includes a thorough screening of all prospective foster parents.

Garcia said applicants should be prepared to undergo police background checks as well as be willing to submit medical statements and references. Two visits to the home are made and all members of the family are interviewed, she noted, adding foster parents undergo training and are evaluated periodically.

WAITING

After the license is approved, it's just a matter of waiting until a child becomes available.

But that's easier said than done, Downing pointed out. "Everyday I just wait and wait for the phone to ring," she said. "She's (Garcia) probably so sick of me calling her."

At the same time, there's a certain amount of uncertainty, particularly regarding the abuse or neglect, or both, a child has lived with. While Downing plans to do the same things with her foster son as she does with her own son, Ryan, 8, including sharing her faith in God, she isn't sure of what to expect.

"A lot of times you don't know a lot of things about them. I have no idea what this child is going to be like."

"I guess I'll handle it as it comes," she continued. "I guess the hardest part for me is that this is going to be a temporary situation," she said, adding she's also concerned how Ryan will adjust to having a new little brother.

CONCERN

Downing's concern is one of the things that makes her a good candidate as a foster parent, according to Garcia, whose job is to screen potential foster parents, license them and assist in and monitor placements.

"We look for people who are caring and have demonstrated skills in raising children; those who have time to devote to needy children, those who can work within our policies and procedures," she remarked. "They have to be good listeners and they have to pick up on a lot of things."

"I look for foster parents who really believe in the worth of every individual," Garcia continued. "One of the most important things a foster parent can do is teach a child that he is of value—to improve the child's self esteem."

"We service the abused child, the sexually abused child, the neglected child. These people have to be able to help that child pick up the pieces."

Garcia noted foster parents receive a room and board allowance, but money shouldn't be a motivating factor in deciding to become a foster parent.

"You can't get wealthy doing this because the children have so many needs," she said, adding, "She (Downing) appears to be very caring and competent in caring for children. She's highly motivated, sincere."

Downing concluded, "I want to offer a decent, healthy, safe environment where he doesn't have to be afraid that if he breaks something or does something wrong that I'm going to hit him or hurt him."

"I really, really enjoy being a mom, and if I can help just one child..."

Children with arthritis need encouragement

When the children return to classes in the fall, undoubtedly, the teachers will be ready and waiting for them with lesson plans in hand. However, there are some children who will need more than just regular lessons when school resumes. These are children who have arthritis, the most common form being Juvenile Rheumatoid Arthritis.

Oftentimes, children with arthritis have special needs which should be identified and understood by teachers and other school officials. According to Dawn Hafeli, director of the Metro Detroit Branch of the Arthritis Foundation, and herself a parent of a child with arthritis, teachers should understand that the effects of childhood arthritis are unpredictable.

"A child with arthritis may feel only minor pain one day, but the next day the pain could be so severe, the child may have difficulty moving," Ms. Hafeli says.

Since many children with arthritis experience joint stiffness, teachers can help their students by asking them to perform light duties during the day. For example, they could ask the child to help pass out or collect papers or allow him/her to move about unobtrusively during class every 30 minutes or so.

If the child has difficulty walking, excusing him/her from class early enough to allow him/her to get to the next class on time is helpful.

"On the other hand," Ms. Hafeli says, "It's important for teachers not to put too many limitations on children with arthritis. Children with arthritis should recognize that they are not physically able to do everything they may see their friends doing, however, they should be encouraged to believe in themselves and set goals. Many times, it's believing in oneself that can mean the difference between winning or losing."

Teachers should also recognize that children with arthritis need to follow an individualized treatment program. Most programs include:

Occupational/Physical Therapy - This includes exercises to help improve joint mobility and prevent or minimize disabilities. Sometimes the exercises need to be done during the school day.

Medication - The most common form of medication that is prescribed is aspirin in high doses. Medications are used to suppress and control joint inflammation and pain. The child's parents are responsible for informing teachers and administrators when medication needs to be taken.

Splints/Braces - These are worn, most often, during the night. However, there may be times when it will be necessary for the child to wear them during the day to help reduce pain, rest inflamed joints, keep them in the proper position and help prevent or correct deformities.

Surgery - Most children with arthritis never need surgery, however, some with severe arthritis need to undergo surgery to relieve pain, correct joint deformity or repair damaged joints.

Ms. Hafeli also points out that children with arthritis are entitled to a free public education, just as is any child, with or without disabilities. Public Law (PL) 94-142 requires that every child with special needs have an individual education plan (IEP) developed by school officials with input from parents and other specialists such as a pediatric rheumatologist. The IEP Ms. Hafeli says, will entitle the child to receive certain services such as special transportation, modified class schedules, extra time for tests and assistance with self-care.

The Arthritis Foundation has published a booklet with tips on helping students with arthritis. For a free copy, contact the Arthritis Foundation, Michigan Chapter, at 23999 Northwestern

Dagmar Brown in bridge walk

Dagmar Brown completed trek number 30 across the Mackinac Bridge on Labor Day in 61 minutes. Gov. Blanchard said there was a record crowd of 60,000 people. Dagmar shook the new Mrs. Blanchard's hand.

Dagmar is a retired licensed practical nurse from the Caro Regional Center, and a retired chief dental technician after 40 years in the U. S. Naval Reserve.

At present she is employed by the Hardee Food Systems of Cass City.

Sherri Horner to speak at women's meet

The Women's Christian Fellowship of Novesta Church of Christ will meet Monday evening, Sept. 18, at 7 p.m.

There will be a salad supper followed by a program. Sherri Horner will show pictures and tell of her work in Africa. She has been with the Peace Corps the past year.

All ladies are welcome.

Trash bills going up in Gagetown

Gagetown residents will pay 66 percent more for trash disposal starting next month.

The village council last week approved a rate hike request from Cove Sanitation Service, Bad Axe. Clerk Elery Sontag said the rate will increase from $11.25 per household per quarter to $18.75 per household.

In other business during the Sept. 4 monthly meeting, the council approved installation of a new red flashing signal at the village's main intersection.

Sontag noted the existing light was damaged by an unknown vehicle. He said the new light will cost $485 and a new control box, $362. It's uncertain how much the labor will cost, he added.

Turning to village taxes, Sontag announced that residents have been given a little more time to pay their taxes this year. The deadline has been extended from Aug. 30 to Oct. 1, he said.

Also, Sontag noted village officials will honor the memory of former long-time village employee John Tenczer, who recently died, in a brief ceremony during the council's Oct. 2 regular meeting.

FAMILY REUNION

The annual 47th Briolat family reunion was held Aug. 27 at the Ubyl Fox Hunters Hall with 147 members and 3 guests present.

The day started with a Mass for the living and deceased members of the Roman and Pauline Briolat families.

A potluck dinner was served at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Allen Krug of Detroit made and decorated a cake for the occasion.

The afternoon was spent playing cards, bag games and other games for younger children with prizes and awards given.

A meeting was conducted by the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Krug of Warren, with help from nieces and nephews. Mr. and Mrs. Ray Gibson of Detroit and others will host the 1990 reunion in August at the same place.

The youngest to attend was 4-week-old Heather Uhl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Uhl of Mt. Clemens, and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lennie Briolat. Those coming the farthest were Mrs. Greg Krug and sons of Texas.

Guests attended from Texas, Warren, Mt. Clemens, Detroit, Frankentmuth, Cass City, Ubyl, Bad Axe and the surrounding area.

One hurt in 3-vehicle accident

One motorist sustained minor injuries in a 3-vehicle accident Thursday on East Caro Road northeast of Gerou Road in Ellington Township.

State police at the Caro Post said Amy L. Hoffman, 3345 Ball Rd., Gageton, was driving northeast on East Caro Road at about 3:15 p.m. when she pulled out to pass a vehicle driven by Grant J. Hulburt, 7409 Daus Rd., Cass City, and was struck by Hulburt as he pulled out to pass a vehicle in front of him.

The impact sent Hoffman's vehicle into the third vehicle, driven by Charles C. O'Dell, 4323 Krapf Rd., Cass City.

O'Dell and Hulburt were not injured in the accident, according to reports, which state Hoffman sought her own treatment for minor injuries.

Police, who reported all 3 vehicles sustained minor damage, indicated Hulburt was the only driver wearing a seat belt.

Criminal Sexual Conduct entered by James L. Roskamp, 41, of Vassar, was refused by the court.

The case was continued to the next regular motion day, according to records, which state Roskamp is charged with engaging in sexual contact with a person, using force or coercion to accomplish the act. The incident allegedly occurred in January in Vassar Township.

In other proceedings, the court granted a request from Robert W. DeCoe, 45, of Mayville, who asked to withdraw his May 2 plea of nolo contendere (no contest) to a charge of resisting and obstructing a police officer.

The incident alleged, occurred July 23, 1988, and involved a state police trooper, records state.

Betting should not be allowed by a manager or player

John:
Re: Your piece on Pete Rose. Betting on his team to win could easily have an effect on the game of baseball.

With a bet on the Reds he could put in a pitcher he might not use until the following day's start to insure a victory, letting the bet override good judgement. He might send in a hitter with a bad shoulder that better judgement might suggest saving him for the long stretch when he's better. He could sandbag the first couple of games in a three game series, then send in the power to insure a win against better odds.

I'm sure, if you think about it, betting...on or against his team, should not be allowed by a manager or player.

Cass City police report one mishap

Cass City police reported one minor vehicle accident over the past week.

Reports state a vehicle driven by Dale A. Tabar, 4317 Brown Rd., Owendale, was eastbound on Main Street at 7:10 p.m. Friday when he attempted to turn left onto Ale and struck a westbound vehicle driven by Ruth A. Baker, 4657 Schwegler Rd., Cass City.

Both vehicles sustained minor damage, according to police, who cited Tabar for meetings set

"Soybean growers will have an opportunity to visit 2 separate soybean variety plot twilight meetings in Tuscola County," Bill Bortel, Tuscola County Extension Director, announced. Each of the twilight meetings will start at 7 p.m. The dates and locations are:

-- Wednesday, Sept. 13, Ralph Ruppert Farm. The plot is located 3-1/2 miles west of Akron on Akron Road.

-- Thursday, Sept. 14, Curt Fackler Farm. The plot is located south of Vassar on Buell Road, 1/2 mile north of Ormes Road.

"There are over 30 varieties at each variety plot to compare in the same field. There will also be representatives from the Soybean Association and seed companies present at each meeting," Bortel said.

failing to yield the right of way.

Sugar beet tour planned

Narrow row sugar beet production is a new technology that is being tried by a few farmers in the Thumb.

Lee Butts and Tim Howell, of Fairgrove, are 2 of the producers who have adopted narrow row production. Butts is also hosting a comparison plot of narrow rows and traditional wide rows for the Cooperative Extension Service.

There will be a twilight tour of the plot Sept. 19, at 7 p.m. The tour will begin at the field plot, located at the corner of Vassar and Hickey Roads, (2 miles west and 1/2 mile north of Fairgrove).

The tour will look at the potential yield and harvestability of the narrow rows and the planting, harvesting and cultivating equipment that has been modified for use in narrow rows.

WHO WEARS CONTACT LENSES?

Did you know that Lyndon Johnson was the first United States president to wear contact lenses? Presidents Carter and Reagan have worn them, too.

Contact lenses have always been the favorite choice of vision correction for celebrities and people in the public eye. They make people feel more attractive and, therefore, more confident.

Years ago, only people with simple prescriptions could wear contact lenses, but great improvements have made contact lenses a viable option for many more. Today they come in a wide assortment of shapes, materials, sizes and colors, and are designed for varying purposes.

Major innovations in recent years include the soft toric lens for people with astigmatism. This lens is designed to compensate for the irregularity of the cornea and still allow one to see clearly. There has been improvement in the new bifocal contact lenses, too, though monovision — the technique of fitting one eye for close vision and the other for distance — remains the most popular way to fit seniors who need both distance and near corrections.

Color contact lenses are proving popular with those who want to change the color of their eyes. And the person who hates the hygiene regime associated with wearing contact lenses can now consider the new soft disposable ones.

Meet set for farmers with loans from FmHA

A meeting is scheduled Sept. 27 for Saginaw and Tuscola County farmers with loans from the Farmers Home Administration to see how FmHA's computer program is used in considering loan servicing options such as rescheduling and write-downs, FmHA County Supervisor Henry L. Knier Jr. announced. The meeting will be at 1:00 p.m. at Dom Polski Hall, 1466 Mertz Rd., Caro. Knier said the meeting is particularly important for FmHA borrowers behind in their payments and those having difficulty with their loans. "We will go over all the options available to those borrowers and explain how to go about finding one that will keep them in operation," Knier said. "We will be putting emphasis on the debt and loan restructuring computer program that was developed for this purpose.

OES meeting scheduled

Echo Chapter #337 Order of Eastern Star will meet Wednesday, Sept. 13, at 8 o'clock. A memorial service will be given. The refreshment committee is Marjorie Karr, chairman, Beryl Otto, Marilyn Peters, Margaret Brown and Helen McGrath.

Burning: the law

Prohibitions on open burning have evolved because of a need to protect the health and welfare of the public, according to DNR officials, who cite 2 laws under the Public Acts of 1965.

They are the Air Pollution Control Act, Act 348, which covers all types of open burning, and the Forest Fire Law, Act 329, which authorizes controls over burning in areas adjacent to private and public forest lands.

In a nutshell, the laws prohibit open burning except under special permission for specific materials. No open burning is allowed in areas on or adjacent to forest lands, anytime the ground is not snow covered, without a permit.

There are exceptions under the heading of "domestic purposes" - camp fires, fires in an approved debris burner and farmers burning agriculture lands under production.

DNR officials caution, however, that persons burning under one of the exceptions may be guilty of a misdemeanor if their fire escapes.

The DNR's Forest Management Division and fire departments are limited to issuing permits for leaves, grass and brush. Anything else requires a permit from the Air Quality Division.

Officials note that acts do not supersede any other act or ordinance which further restricts or prohibits the setting of fires. In the village of Cass City, for example, open burning is prohibited.

Additional information may be obtained by calling the Cass City DNR Field Office at 872-4009, the Saginaw DNR Office at (517) 771-1731, or Elkland Township Fire Chief Dick Root at 872-2063.

Owen-Gage girls recover after slow start on home court

Coach Dean Roller's Owen-Gage girls' basketball squad began defense of their North Central Thumb League title last week by splitting a pair of home contests with Kingston and Port Hope.

In the Bulldogs' home debut, a game that Roller would like to erase from memory, Kingston topped the 'Dogs 60-56.

"Poor execution and very poor rebounding," cried the veteran mentor. Adding, "This was a very disappointing game. Our rebounding has to improve if we're going to do well (this season)."

Thursday the 'Dogs did just that, outrebounding a good Port Hope team to capture a 38-32 victory. The win keeps the Bulldogs' back-to-back title aspirations intact.

Owen-Gage's next contest, against North Huron, is slated for Thursday at home. "We finally played some defense," said Roller of his team's win over the Blue Stars.

And although it was the Bulldogs' team defense that gave the hosts a 19-15 lead at the half, it was a nearly solo effort from veteran Marla Goslin on the offensive end. The senior forward poured in 4 field goals in the early going, then added 2 more in the 2nd stanza to help sustain the Bulldog lead.

The Blue Stars played a little defense of their own to open the second half, putting the clamps on Goslin and holding the hosts to just 5 points while closing the gap to a single point heading into the final period.

The Bulldogs spurted out quickly in the final 8 minutes, thanks in part to 2 field goals by Goslin, then hit 6-8 free throws to preserve the victory.

Goslin led all scorers with 18 tallies. She was followed by Vicki Ricker, who tossed in 7 markers.

KINGSTON

Despite finishing the game with only 4 players, the Kingston Cardinals proved too much for the Bulldogs in their NCTL opener.

After staking the visitors to a 49-34 lead at the end of 3 quarters, the Bulldogs missed a golden opportunity to knock off one of the league favorites when Kingston's Amy Byers and Angela Wrouble both fouled out with over 3 minutes to play in the contest, leaving Kingston with only 4 players on the floor.

Further, starters Karen Plane and Bobbie Roberson had to play tentatively down the stretch as they each carried 4 fouls for most of the final stanza.

Holding a 15-point advantage in the 4th quarter, it appeared the Cardinals might turn the contest into a rout.

But with the Cardinals struggling with foul trouble,

Goslin started to take over, netting 9 fourth quarter points, including one behind the 3-point arc.

The hosts' final run, outscoring the Cardinals 21-15, was too little too late and the Cardinals escaped with victory.

Leading scorers for the Bulldogs were Goslin, Ricker and Angie Winchester, who posted 16, 14 and 12 points, respectively.

The Cardinals got an outstanding performance from sophomore Bobbie Roberson, who canned 18 points to lead the winners. She was followed by sophomore teammate Karen Plane's 13 points, and Wrouble and Rochelle Dereszynski, who both pitched in with 10.

Tuscola County picked to offer youth program

Young people from ages 9-15 will have the opportunity to experience a new program called "Spaces," John Wurm, 4-H youth agent for Tuscola County, recently announced.

Tuscola County 4-H was selected as one of 7 partner counties to pilot some of the materials throughout the state.

"The spaces materials are being developed from a $1.8 million grant to the Michigan 4-H program from the Kellogg Foundation. This program will allow people who have never been involved in 4-H to see a different side to 4-H," Wurm continued.

The program will have 3 components; Outer Space, Inner Space and, Shared Space. In the Outer Space materials youth will have the opportunity to discover ways in which science and technology influence their lives today and in the future. These activities can help kids discover the explorer,

First test

Bulldogs face North Huron after 21-0 victory Saturday

When the Owen-Gage Bulldogs meet the Kinde-North Huron Warriors, it will be an undefeated team pitted against a winless squad and it's natural to assume that the undefeated Bulldogs should have easy going when the teams meet Friday at Owen-Gage.

Not so, says veteran mentor Arnie Besonen, discussing the game following the easy win over North Branch Wesleyan Saturday, 21-0. North Huron has lost to 2 good teams.

We haven't been tested in our first 2 games, the coach points out, especially in the secondary. North Huron has speed in the backfield and should provide a test to our secondary that it hasn't faced before.

The Bulldogs were able to win at North Branch playing just straight conservative football.

Graham Besonen scored the first Bulldog marker when he ran 27 yards on a trap play to score in the first quarter. Brian 'Abbe converted the first of his 3 successful points after touchdown kicks to put Owen-Gage in front, 7-0.

The Bulldogs scored again in the second period as fleet Andre Damm took a pitch and ran around end for 11 yards.

Neither team scored in the third period and Owen-Gage added an unneeded final touchdown in the last period when Besonen capped a drive to go over from 3 yards out.

Besonen was the workhorse among the backs with 16 carries good for 141 yards. Damm carried the ball 7 times for 53 yards. Mike Knickerbocker led Wesleyan with 26 yards in 9 attempts.

The defensive line played well, Coach Besonen said, and John Haldane batted down 2 passes before the quarterback could get the ball away. Tom Halasz was credited with 10 tackles and Abbe had 7, to spearhead the defense.

Besonen said that the Bulldog line needs to come off the ball quicker in the tough games ahead when Owen-Gage gets into the thick of the North Central Thumb D Conference race.

Joslyn decision affirmed

The Court of Appeals affirmed Tuscola County Circuit Court Judge Patrick R. Joslyn's decisions in regards to the case of the People of the State of Michigan vs. Douglas Ray Kurmas Aug. 31.

Kurmas was convicted by a jury of felonious assault, of fleeing and eluding a police officer, resisting and obstructing a police officer and being a habitual criminal offender.

The Trial Court Judge sentenced him to 32 months to 8 years for felonious assault, 2 to 4 years for resisting and obstructing, and 6 months to 1 year for fleeing and eluding.

Kurmas appealed that his sentence was excessive and that there was insufficient evidence at trial. The Court of Appeals affirmed the trial court's decision and stated that the defendant's sentence did not shock the conscience of the court.

The people were represented at trial by former county prosecutor William Bond, and the defendant by Attorney Robert Betts.

Even par wins golf tourney

The 2nd annual Cass City-Gagetown Knights of Columbus golf tournament was held Aug. 20 at Rolling Hills Golf Course and 15 members participated in a 3-man scramble.

Playing in a light rain, the team of Dan Hitler, Lavern Rutkoski and Larry Rutkoski shot even par to win.

Cass City golf league champions crowned

Champions of the season-ending Cass City Golf League tournament and regular season champions were crowned Sunday at Scenic Country Club, Pigeon.

Winning the best ball, handicap tournament was the team of Jason McCallum and Tom Wallace with a score of 83.5. Just .2 of a stroke back was the team of Paul Chappel and Kim Glaspie.

In the regular season, winner of division one was Jerry Toner and of division 2, Randy Sherman. The co-winners played off for the championship flight title and it ended in a tie. They were declared co-champions and will share the first place prize.

In the first flight competition, Keith Adelberg, the winner in flight 3, defeated John Agar, 4th flight, for the title.

Hawk cagers still seek first win

Cass City Red Hawk cagers have found rough sledding in the opening 2 games of the season, losing a non-conference opener at Uby Tuesday, Sept. 5, 43-26, and the first Thumb B Association game of the year to Marlette Thursday, 56-47.

The bright spot in the 2 defeats for Hawk fans is that the team showed marked improvement in the second game of the season compared to the opener at Uby.

Coach Marty Daniel said that he was extremely disappointed in the team in the opener, especially against the Bearcats' press. We handled it as poorly as it possibly can be done, he said. I wouldn't have believed that anyone could press us that effectively.

Combine that with poor shooting from the outside, which Daniel has said will be one of the keys to the team's success this season, and all the ingredients of a one-sided defeat were in place.

Uby dominated the game behind the sharp shooting of Leslie Guigar, who scored 17 points, including 14 in the first half when the game was in doubt. Cass City's Jandi Hillaker, with 10 points, was the only Hawk in double figures. Uby led 26 to 12 at the intermission. The Bearcats committed just one foul, a feat almost unheard of in games today.

Uby dominated the boards, picking 30 off the glass, compared to 23 for Cass City, and hit 17 of 45 shots while the Hawks hit 13 in 45 attempts. Vicki Robinson was Cass City's top rebounder, with 7.

BETTER EFFORT
Although the Hawks lost to Marlette, Daniel said that the team showed marked improvement. If we can build on this performance and continue to improve offensively, we will find out just how good a team we can be.

Cass City's inability to hit from the free throw line was costly. The Hawks converted just 10 of 27 attempts while the Raiders were 22 of 33 from the line.

The 2 teams played a close first half as the lead changed hands 6 times before the Raiders pushed in front at the intermission, 21-

18. The third quarter proved fatal for Cass City. Led by Cathy Fromwiller with 6 points and Jill Atkins with 9, the Red Raiders outscored Cass City, 19-8, to salt away the game.

The Hawks rebounded in the final 8 minutes and got as close as 7 points behind a strong man-to-man pressing defense. The Raiders missed Fromwiller in the final quarter as she was forced from the game with 5 fouls.

Daniel said that Sue Papp, Jandi Hillaker, Beth Powell and Vicky Robinson played well. Papp, 13, Powell, 12, and Robinson, 11, were in double figures for Cass City, while Fromwiller, 18 points, and Atkins, 16, paced the winners.

Again, the Hawks were hampered by lack of rebounding and were outboarded 38-27. Marlette committed 29 turnovers, Cass City, 10.

JV RESULTS

The Hawk junior varsity split the first 2 games, defeating Marlette and losing to Uby.

Vassar game may tell if '89 Red Hawks for real

For at least a week, the Cass City Red Hawks own a share of the Thumb B Association lead following a convincing, 33-13, win Friday over the visiting Marlette Red Raiders.

The Hawks take to the road this Friday to play the Vassar Vulcans and the game is expected to sort out the talent in the league for 1989. The Vulcans, usually among the league elite in football, dropped a one-sided game to Millington, 34-0. Millington is the league's newest member and in pre-season forecasts was rated one of the stronger teams.

If the Hawks can get by the Vulcans, they could reasonably be regarded as challengers for the title this fall. Lakers, the defending champions, appear to be beatable and the league has the most balance of recent years.

The home opener with the Vulcans was played in the rain and a thunder storm delayed the game, but not until the Hawks had taken control of the game.

The rain didn't hamper the offense much, especially in the first quarter, when touchdowns fell like the rain that pelted the field. The Hawks took the ball on their 34 and on the second play from scrimmage Tim Englehart broke over his left side and dashed to the 2. He was caught from behind by Ryan Rivard, possibly the only back in the league that could have done it.

Rivard just postponed the inevitable as Englehart scored on the next play.

That lead didn't last long. Rivard took a punt on his own 40 and got outside the defense and raced along the sidelines for the marker. When the kick was good, Marlette led 7-6 and there still was more than half the first quarter left to play.

The scoring parade continued the next time Cass City got the ball. Scott Dillon ran over his own right side and went 76 yards. Jason Robertson passed to Scott Marshall for the extra points. This marker came with 6:41 left in the period.

Just before the first period ended, Englehart scored again, this time on a 17-yard run.

After the hectic first quarter, the scoring subsided as the field became wetter and the ball harder to handle. Englehart capped a drive by going 10 yards in the second quarter.

After that the offense failed to produce another touchdown for either team. The visitors scored near the end of the third quarter by recovering a fumble in the end zone. Englehart countered that one by intercepting a pass and going 40 yards in the dying moments of the game. The Hawks scored the extra point for the first time this season by kicking as Guilherme Tiezzi split the uprights.

Englehart averaged 15 yards a carry as he netted 150 yards in 15 tries. Dillon racked up 91 yards in 10 attempts.

The defense was led by Randy Johnson, who was credited with 15 tackles, including 5 that were unassisted. Englehart and Dillon also helped on defense with 9 tackles each. Chris Ventine also had 9 tackles.

Coach still unhappy with undefeated golf team

The Cass City Golf team won its final match of the year before play was to start in the Thumb B Association and, even though the team won, Coach Jim Fox was far from pleased with his team.

We need a real shaking up, said the dismayed coach. Perhaps we need tougher competition. Our play has been lethargic.

Cass City is 3-0 in pre-league matches, but the scores have not been as good as the coach would like to see. Tuesday, Sept. 5, the Hawks defeated Port Hope, 177 to 233, at Rolling Hills Golf Course.

Medalist for the Hawks was Chris Herringshaw, with 42. Herringshaw has played well this fall and has been one of Cass City's most consistent performers. Other scorers were: Garen Barker, Jeff Hockey and Dave House, each with 45. Fox was pleased with the score posted by House, who was getting a rare start with the varsity.

Brian Bucholtz led Port Hope with 49. Other scores posted by the visitors were: Andy Ingham, 55, Steve Daley, 51, and Bill Emerick, 78.

Taking stock

By Bill Myers

Sometimes I wonder if the Wall Street Journal is trying to be sensational. You know, like the publications at the check-out counters at the supermarkets.

Not long ago there was a story on page 1 of the "Money and Investing" section with a heading about call provisions for tax exemptions being a ticking time bomb.

Reporter was Alexandra Peers, and I'd guess she is a little new in the business.

Whatever, Alexandra in her scare story told how high-coupon municipals of a few years ago, say 1984, sported big coupons, such as 12 and 13%.

Shudder! Shudder! In a few years, say 10 years from date of issue, most of these bonds will be called, and the bondholders will get only par or a little more for them. People will suffer, the market will be in disarray, because the owners will have to buy replacements - and they won't find yields of 12% - and they'll be in disarray themselves.

Alexandra assumes, it appears, that people with these high coupons don't already know that today's market price will gradually shrink down to 100 or 102 or whatever the call price is. (It seldom is less than 100.)

What apparently the Journal's reporter doesn't know is that today's market price is based on the very calls that so alarm her. The price takes into account that the shrinkage in market value will be offset by the larger coupon you get in the meantime. The price estimate shown on your brokerage statement each month is based on these high coupon bonds being called at the first call date in the bond contract.

If they aren't called it will be because interest rates are higher than the call price, and the issuer can't replace them with bonds at a lower rate. Once in a while a small tax district will just overlook the advantage of calling bonds. If they goof, you're the winner.

Here's an actual example from the Aug. 28, 1989 Blue List of municipal bonds for sale that day:

Puerto Rico Elec. Authority, 9.125% due 7-1-95. Pre-refunded (money on hand to call them) at 103 on 7-1-95. Priced to yield 6.5%.

That priced-to-yield is to the call, when the holder will be paid 103 for his bonds. That figures to a dollar price of 114.607. Currently the return will be 7.96%. Pretty high, it seems to you? Not when you allow for the shrinkage of 114.607, the call price, down to 103. You'll be giving up 11.6 points for that premium amount of interest the next 6 years.

Now if the bonds sold on a 6.5% yield-to-maturity basis - that is, if their 9.25% coupon would last until 7-1-15, then the price would be $132.625. The longer lush years of 9.25% interest payments would be offset by your getting only par, or 100, when the bonds matured in 2015.

If a bond salesman quotes you a price on a bond selling over par, ask him what the yield to the first call date is. Forget what the big coupon is. Only thing that counts is what your average yield from the day you buy it to the day when it will likely be called away from you.

Pay no attention to what the current yield is. Disregard what the yield to maturity is (if price is over par) and focus on just one thing - the yield to the first call.

Meanwhile, Miss Alexandra Henny Penny, the sky is not falling.

Hospital medical insurance has become a positive mania in America. Skyrocketing costs frighten people, and in their panic, folks believe there is some magic in "insurance."

Blue Cross calls it by its right name: Prepaid medical/hospital costs. As the costs go up, so does the insurance. A policy is no free ticket. You simply pay in advance (plus a 5% overhead cost) for doctor and hospital bills that will hit you as an average person over the years.

If your employer pays them, or if you pay them, it doesn't make much difference. It comes out of your hide either way.

If you have Blue Cross, chances are you'll trot to the doctor oftener than you would if you paid the shot each time out of your pocket. And that's one reason why the premiums of Blue Cross and the other companies keep climbing.

One reason employers pay for Blue Cross, is that it's deductible, and if they gave you a raise instead, both you and the employer would pay Social Security on your bigger paycheck.

If the insurance is to cover health costs, then why not insurance to cover your automobile, and your homeowners policies? Collision and fire and other disasters heap on costs for you, too. And burglaries. And gold-mining scams. And frozen water pipes. And losses at the dog track. Every one a risk.

If we seek a risk-free society - and it seems that we do - the road is long and hard and steep.

A two-day-old gazelle can outrun a full-grown horse.

THE "BANJO KINGS & Queens" provided the entertainment Friday at the Chemical Bank parking lot, where a crowd devoured 1,000 to 1,200 bowls of bean soup and several loaves of bread.

ANOTHER FRIENDSHIP Festival tradition, hand churned butter, was again made possible thanks to the efforts of Lorn Hillaker (left) and Duane Chippi.

Monday night O-G board tables request

where an additional $14,917 in property tax revenue is expected because of an increase in the district's state equalized valuation of $586,544.

Kirby pointed out that levying the full 41 mills would not mean an increase in taxes, only an increase in the amount of revenue realized by the district because of increasing land values. Failure to levy the full amount, however, could mean a net loss to the district due to increases in operating costs over the past year, he said.

IN OTHER BUSINESS

Also Monday, the board:

*Met in an hour-long executive session with Carol Ellicott, who requested a closed session to discuss a complaint regarding another school employee(s).

Following the session, the board approved a motion to conduct an in-depth study related to establishing a seniority list for non-certified school employees.

*Met in a 30-minute executive session to discuss a grievance filed by a teacher against the district.

*Tabled a request from Cathy Zackie, who asked that the board allow her 2 children in grades 3 and 6 to attend Cass City Schools. Trustees stated they would like Zackie to make the request in person so that any questions board members might have can be answered before a decision is made.

*Approved salary increases of 1.65 percent in 1988-89 (retroactive) and 1989-90 for Gageton Elementary School Principal William Britt. The increases are the same as those received by some teachers and Kirby.

*Approved a resolution in conjunction with Section 21 of the State School Aid Act providing for the school to receive $34 per pupil in state aid because the district maintains certain class size and curriculum requirements.

*Approved selection of senior Brandy Salcido as "Student of the Month" for September.

*Approved a resolution supporting creation of a postage stamp commemorating the 50th anniversary of the yellow school bus.

Mutual Savings

in MET program

Again this year, Mutual Savings is a participating member for the Michigan Education Trust (MET), allowing parents, grandparents, and others to pre-purchase and guarantee a child's future college tuition. Mutual Savings will have applications for the MET program available from Oct. 2 through Oct. 6.

Applicants who submit a completed application and required fees during this period will have an opportunity to enroll their child in the program between Oct. 15 and Nov. 30.

Walbro declares dividend

The Board of Directors of Walbro Corporation has declared a third quarter dividend of 10 cents per share, payable Oct. 31, to stockholders of record Sept. 29. The dividend will be paid on approximately 4,289,436 shares outstanding.

The third quarter dividend of 10 cents per share represents a continuation of the higher dividend payment initiated in the third quarter of 1988.

Diabetes program scheduled

The Lower Thumb chapter of the American Diabetes Association will present a program Wednesday, Sept. 20, at 2:00 p.m. in the Marlette Hospital Auxiliary Room.

The speaker will be Mrs. Shirley Gebhardt, who donated a kidney to her son.
