Deer-car accidents increase

Deer continued to plague area drivers in increasing numbers as the fall harvest winds down, according to area law enforcement agencies, which reported no injuries and only minor damage in several mishaps over the past week.

Ronald Parrish, 1261 Cemetery Rd., Deford, struck a deer Saturday while driving west on M-46 east of Lobdell Road in Indianfields Township, Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies said. The mishap occurred at about 5:30 p.m.

Also Saturday, a vehicle driven by Cass City area resident Gregory B. Thompson, 5573 Robinson Rd., collided with a deer on M-81 east of Crawford Road in Elkland Township. Thomas was eastbound when the 6:25 p.m. accident occurred.

Marilyn O. Carpenter, 7724 Severance Rd., Deford, told deputies she was eastbound on Severance Road east of Crawford Road Thursday at about 4:35 p.m. when a deer leaped into the path of her vehicle.

STATE POLICE

Kingston resident Leroy Blackmer, 3385 River St., hit a deer Friday at about 7:15 a.m. while driving south on English Road north of Marlette Road in Koylton Township, troopers from the state police post in Caro Please turn to page 13.

Corn crop is super, banner harvest seen

For many Thumb farmers, the river is 130 to 140 bushharvest time in recent years els per acre. has meant trying to salvage a Better than average yields damaged or otherwise less than desirable crop. Seasons ruined by flood and drought have left many wondering how much more debt can be taken on in order to plant the following spring. For some, the question has been whether or not to plant at all.

As the fall of 1989 draws to a close, however, the Thumb farming community as a whole has reason to again feel optimistic.

In fact, agricultural agents are calling this year's harvest the best in recent years. "It's been a long time since we've had a harvest year this good," Eric Frahm, Tuscola County Cooperative Extension agent, remarked Thursday.

"It's just been incredible as far as the conditions they've (farmers) had to work in. I can't remember a year this good in probably at least 10 years.'

"We're coming along in good shape," he said of farmers' progress this fall. "I would say that basically all of the beans are done-95-plus percent. A lot of guys are getting a real good start on corn, and the beet harvest is more then three quarters of the way done." Corn is definitely a standout this year, Frahm indicated. "We're running a lot of 150, 160, even some fields hitting 170 bushels per acre," he explained. "It's not a record by any means, but it's definitely above average."

Frahm noted the average yield on good land north of

"We're quite a bit above average. There are a lot of people who are hitting 50 to 55 bushels," Frahm said. "The overall county average is 33 bushels." The agricultural agent noted that the all but finished dry bean harvest also went well, despite the effects of frost on late-planted fields. An estimated 15 to 20 percent of the county's total dry bean acreage was affected by frost to some degree, but better than average yields of 14 to 15 bags are being seen,

BEET CROP

Turning to the beet crop, Frahm said an average or slightly below average crop is expected in terms of yield, but that the sugar content is making up for the drop in

According to Kent Graf. agricultural manager at Michigan Sugar Company's Caro plant, this year's beet campaign was expected to be wrapped up early, with much of the harvesting finished over the weekend.

"We're expecting 18 tons per acre and right now the sugar content is running 18.1 percent," Graf ex-plained, noting the 5-year average is about 20 tons per acre, with an average sugar content of 16.5 percent.

"The tonnage is down a little bit, but the sugar content is up, and that's where the money is," he remarked. When it's all said and done, the Caro plant will have accepted an estimated 380,000 tons of beets, and the company's Sebewaing plant will have taken in more than 600,000 tons, Graf

"We've had real nice field conditions," he commented. "It's been the best (harvest) in about the past 6 years."

HURON COUNTY

Good news regarding this year's harvest also is being reported in Huron and Sanilac counties. Huron County Agricultural Agent Jim LeCureux remarked, "Overall, they're (crops) looking very good." 'We've taken off a number of corn plots and they're running 130 to 170 bushels," he said, adding 110 bushels per acre is considered an average yield.

He pointed out that the dry bean crop in Huron County didn't sustain the extent of frost that occurred in Tuscola County. Many farmers, 'said, "It was field to field. he added, are getting 15 bags per acre, compared to a normal yield of 12 to 14 bags. "This is a good year," he repeated. "All the crops are looking good this year, not just a few."

Sanilac County Cooperative Extension Director Martin Nagelkirk con-

"Overall it's going good," he commented. "We're well ahead of last year. We're ahead in terms of the corn, soybean and sugar beet har-

As of Thursday, Nagelkirk said Sanilac farmers were about 95 percent finished with the soybean harvest, while the corn harvest was 50 percent completed and the beets, 50 to 60 percent.

Nagelkirk said he's confident the county as a whole will easily keep up with an average corn yield of 105 to 110 bushels per acre, with many farmers getting well over 150 bushels.

Also expected is a 10 percent increase in soybean yields—up to 60 bushels, compared to an average of 40 bushels. "There are some disappointments, of course, but overall, soybeans did verv well," he noted. Nagelkirk predicted average or below average yields

O-G parents probe preschool closing

Apparent personality conflicts between Owen-Gage school officials and preschool Director Diane Warack dominated discussion Monday night at a public meeting called to discuss the recent temporary closing of the preschool.

The meeting, requested by a number of parents, was held 2 weeks after Warack shut down the program, citing harassment by school administrators.

For nearly 3 hours Monday night, Warack, school Supt. Harley Kirby, Board of Education members Ron Good, Jack Brinkman and Walter Swiastyn, and more than 35 others, many of them parents, discussed the issue. Warack opened the meeting with some background on the preschool, saying the administration 6 years ago wanted to put together a program that would benefit preschool-aged children.

"I feel we've successfully done (that) with the support of the school," she remarked, adding the program has since grown and is receiving state funding. The preschool, operated in a classroom at Owendale High School, currently consists of morning and afternoon sessions serving a total of 28 children. The program is funded through state grants, tuition ($25 per month per pupil) and an the school district.

Warack pointed out, however, that the administration has since changed, and with no written guidelines for the program, problems between herself and current administrators have surfaced over the past 2 years.

Warack cited 2 specific examples. She said she has been told she cannot touch the high school's copy machine. Instead, any copying for her program must be done by a school secretary and at a charge of 5 cents per Warack said she was of-fered a flat annual rate of $750 to use the machine, but said the district would be making a profit under that arrangement, "and that in- both incidents are the result sults me.'

The second example cited by Warack prompted the temporary shut-down of the program, which was scheduled to resume Tuesday.

Warack said she was recently told by high school Principal Ronald D'Aoust that Kirby had directed that she not use telephones at the school during school hours because the phones are there for use by junior high and high school personnel and students.

Later the same day, Warack said she needed to call a parent whose child had become ill. She said she asked a school staff member to make the call for her.

ACCUSATIONS

Warack said she believes of accusations, by an unknown person or persons, that she has misused the copier and phone. She said the conflict has raised questions in her mind such as where do school officials stand on the preschool, and will they begin to charge the program for other things, such as use of a classroom.

She stated that she wants some direction as to whether they want the program to be separate from the district or part of the district.

"The words, 'you're not part of the school', are being used a lot," she continued, noting that she had been under the impression that the program was to be operated as a partnership with the school district.

"I'm at a time when I'm lost. I feel hassled; I feel pushed, really pushed,"

Warack added. Kirby commented he directed D'Aoust to handle policy related to building administration, but remarked he never said Warack couldn't use the school phone in an emergency situ-

He later acknowledged he believes she has used the administration office phone excessively.

Regarding the charge for the copy machine, he said the $750 cost would cover 3 boxes of paper. He acknowledged that the preschool hasn't been charged in the past, but pointed out that he believes the program has come to a point where it can begin paying for such supplies.

Even if the opinion is finalized, however, the issue isn't likely to be resolved anytime soon.

The 3-member appeals board issued its opinion via a vote of 2-1 during a brief meeting last Wednesday night in front of an audience of some 30 persons.

Two of the board members, Louis Haase and Chairman Roxan Schell, indicated they're convinced the operation of a "work and learn" camp at Kingston Hills Camp is in violation of township zoning laws as charged by the Koylton Township Zoning Board. The third member, Connie Zoning Board Chairman opinion issued last week by Russell Mayer, who atthe Koylton Township Zon-tended the meeting, said the vote was requested by Marlette attorney Daniel E. Atkins, counsel for the appeals board. Each board member had previously deliberated the matter privately, according to Mayer, who noted the board didn't deliberate nor did members of the public make comments during last Wednesday's meeting.

The preliminary opinion comes 4 1/2 months after attorneys representing both the zoning board and the camp presented closing arguments following a lengthy hearing in front of the appeals board.

The hearing was scheduled in accordance with an order issued by Tuscola County

Circuit Court Judge Patrick R. Joslyn. That order gave township officials the authority to pursue township zoning procedures - - a hearing in front of appeals board - - before the case is considered in court. At issue in the zoning board's case is whether the use of Kingston Hills Camp as a year-round rehabilitation facility for juvenile delinquents represents an illegal expansion of the camp's non-conforming use status.

Zoning officials say the camp was "grandfathered" into the township's 1972 zoning ordinance as a boygirl summer recreational camp. Since then, they charge, camp owners Keith Leenhouts, Bill Leenhouts and James Conley have allowed other uses, including operation of the work and learn camp.

NO ROOM AT THE BIN - A bumper corn crop is the word this fall in the Thumb, including the Art Severance farm. Above, Randy Severance stands in one of 2 barns being used for corn storage (in addition to a 10,000-bushel bin) at the Decker area dairy farm. A yield increase of 25 bushels an acre prompted Severance to sell corn at harvest time this year for the first time.

The County Press is the country weekly where I worked until 1976. For its first 151 years, it was owned by a succession of smalltown printers and editors who attended cockfights, not meetings of a board of directors. As of Jan. 1, the owner of the County Press will be Capital Cities/ABC, the same corporate giant that owns radio station WJR and the Oakland Press in this area, and a long string of media properties across the nation.

It doesn't seem right. It's as though Len Ganeway got a lean shave and joined the Radio City Rockettes. The McCounty Press.

Len Ganeway is the pen name of Bob Myers, the final individual owner of the County Press. Around 10 years ago, after writing under his own name for 45 years, Myers changed his byline to "Len Ganeway, taff Geezer." But every reader knows Ganeway is really Myers because Ganeway regularly announces it in his column.

I was paid $45 a week to sell advertising, write sports and deliver newspapers to post offices and retail outlets. If you write for newspapers as long as I have, you'll win a few awards for the same reason a monkey will write a good novel if allowed to punch a typewriter long enough. I was content to leave my plaques at the County Press as long as it was owned by some bearded old character who puts nom de plume on his fried mush.

Capital Cities/ABC doesn't cut it. I've brought my awards home to remind me of 25 happy years spent working for more satisfaction than money at a fiercely rebel newspaper that just won't be the same with a drive-up window.

Here it is. The truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth as seen from the corner of Main and Oak Streets.

If you get the impression that the writer was a little awe-struck by the machinery he found while writing the open house story for SEM-Walbro Saturday, you read me right.

Okay, so I'm a klutz when it comes to machinery. You don't have to be a Bill Eberline (Walbro's shirt-sleeve mechanical genius) to appreciate what you see at the new plant.

It will be an added plus if you tour the plant and hap-pen to draw Miles Smith, automation and tool consultant, as a guide. Talk about a man that loves and takes pride in his work and the prototype is Smith. He can break it down so that even a klutz can dimly understand what it's all about.

There may have been better harvest seasons than the one now rapidly winding down, but not many. We can recall one year when the ground didn't freeze till around Christmas time and there was no snow at all.

That was really unusual. When you think about it, perhaps unusual is the wrong word. In Michigan the usual is something different every season.

There's talk on the state level of banning all leaf burning and requiring a compost pile to take care of the leaves. That's if you don't throw up your hands and just leave them where they fall.

Sounds like a very difficult proposition unless you happen to be gung-ho on gardening and have the space to do it. If it comes, it comes and probably won't be as bad as anticipated.

When burning in barrels was outlawed and garbage had to be collected and hauled to the front of the house it was not the pain that it figured to be. In fact most folks now like it better than the old system.

My complaint is the way costs are figured. The amount of trash for homeowners has no correlation to sent the Upper Thumb Board of Realtors. The gift is in appreciation

The water department at the Municipal Building has been a busy place recently after the water bills came out. The reason? The new water bills. The bill listed a penalty amount and then the amount of the bill. That got water users up in arms, figuring that they pay their bills, and the phone to the department got hot with screaming patrons.

The brouhaha could have been avoided if the bill would have said what it should have. The "penalty" was the amount that would be charged if the bill was not paid by the due date.

That's the same as it always was and it's sure that the workers at the Municipal Building wish it would have said

Most experts are forecasting a banner deer hunting season this fall with more deer than ever before. Duane Chippi, who has a deer camp on Deckerville Road, doesn't believe that the experts are right.

Automation keys SEM-Walbro plant

Walbro Corporation and SEM, a Swedish partner, are betting a lot of dollars that a modern automated plant can compete successfully against competition that uses low cost off-shore plants and less sophisticated equipment.

Thumb area residents will have the opportunity to see this new plant, located at 4260 Doerr Road, when tours are scheduled from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 11.

Miles Smith, automation and tool consultant, calls this robot-controlled plant the most modern, most automated plant in the world for producing ignition parts. There's nothing anywhere like it, he says excitedly, not even SEM in Sweden or at any of our competitors.

higher wages, the machinery makes us able to compete and offer jobs to local residents. No matter how little other companies pay while "island hopping" from one low wage area to another, they will be unable to produce as economically as we can, he bubbles.

And when he shows his modern plant to visitors,

Even though we pay bubbles is the right way to describe his enthusiasm. As the designer of the system, Smith is very happy to show its many features.

The key to the plant is the robot-controlled assembly line that transforms a circuit board and a plastic core into a modern ignition system ready for use in any small engine application.

Start with a machine that winds wire and stretches it to an exact tolerance so that it can be used in the system. It's computer assisted and so is the next machine. It winds wire of different dimensions, some as fine as a strand of hair, at speeds of 1,800 revolutions a minute.

Meanwhile, another machine is adding the proper wiring to the circuit boards.

Now the robots take over and the parts stream down the conveyor line. Pieces of wire prepared by the wire stretching machine, tightly wound and about half the size of a penny, are automatically fed and placed in position by the first of the

Then it travels to another station where a pair of robots operate in tandem. These machines take 4 units at a time, flux them, turn them around, solder them and place them on a rotary table. All of this takes just 5 sec-

After these procedures are finished, the units are checked for flaws (all automatically, of course) and if one is found defective, one of the truly amazing performances takes place. The second robot selects the faulty unit among the 4 that are in line and daintily picks it up while allowing the good units to proceed down the assembly line.

All in all, the various machines on the line perform 51 separate functions without being touched by

The only hand assembly work follows when a group of women stuff the units into the proper outside shells.

Now only prototypes are in production and 3 women do this work. When full scale production starts, it will be necessary to add to the work force for this phase of the work.

When the coils are placed in the outer shell, the units go to another room for processing. The key to the work here is a group of ovens that stretch the entire length of the building.

Here epoxy and resin are added and the heating and cooling to exact temperature and then the completed sys-standards conducted. When it's finished the epoxy-resin is hardened and unwanted moisture, which would short circuit the system, is eliminated. The units are in the various ovens for a total of 8 hours.

The units then go to the "crack out" press which removes all excess material and gives the unit a finished appearance.

After that, it's over to final assembly, where laminations are added that transfer the current. The final step is to the simulated flywheel, where current passes through for a final check, tems are packed for ship- from the Thumb area, a tra-

There's an international aspect to the operation. SEM is a Swedish company. Smith comes from England. The machines used were manufactured in Switzerland, Japan and the United

O-G holds on for one-point win over CPS

The Owen-Gage girls' bas-ketball team withstood a fierce late rally by the visiting Carsonville/Port Sanilac Tigers to record its 4th North Central Thumb League victory, 51-50.

Heading into the regular season's final week, Coach Dean Roller's cagers now should be able to establish a mini win streak, with district play scheduled to start Nov. 13 at Port Hope.

Owen-Gage's final 2 games, at Caseville and North Branch Wesleyan, are against squads the 'Dogs beat handily in their first meetings.

On Thursday the Tigers turned an apparent rout into a barn burner finish as they went to the charity stripe 22 times in the 2nd half.

Luckily for the Bulldogs, who held a 12-point lead late in the 3rd stanza, CPS connected on only 50% of those free throws.

Vicki Ricker paced the Bulldogs in the early going with 8 2nd quarters points that helped give the hosts a

However, the Bulldog defense stiffened and the 'Dogs sat on the ball for the final 40 seconds to record the win.

The Bulldogs displayed a balanced attack and were led by Michelle Tkacz, Lisa Dorsch and Ricker, who each netted 11 points. Dorsch also contributed 13 rebounds.

Besides Olds' game high 20 points, Kathleen Sullivan finished in double figures with 13.

Hawks take Caro, lose to Bad Axe

There's nothing like a little home environment to help along a team that is improving as the season progresses. The home court advantage was enough for Coach Marty Daniel's Cass City Red Hawk cage team to turn the tables on Caro Tuesday, Oct. 31, and register a 63-48 decision.

The win gave the Lady Hawks (5-12 for the season) a split in the 2 games played during the week. Cass City lost at Bad Axe Friday, 41-36.

Not only did the Hawks score a turnaround against Caro, the team registered its most productive night of the season with its 63 points.

It was a nip and tuck game most of the way. The Tigers jumped off to a slight lead, 17-14, in the first 8 minutes but that was the only quarter that the Hawks were outscored.

Sue Papp, who had a career night with 21 points, held the Hawks in the game in the first half with 6 points in the first quarter and 5 more in the second period. The Hawks needed the big production from Papp to counter the Tigers' Julie Sharp, who hit 4 field goals in the first period and 2 more in the second on her way to matching Papp's 21 points for the evening.

Starting the third period, Cass City led by a point and then extended the margin to 46-41 entering the fourth

In the final quarter Papp didn't score, but the slack was taken up by her teammates with balanced scoring as 4 players scored 3 points or more in the period.

BAD AXE GAME

The story of the loss to the Bad Axe Hatchets can be summed up easily. Poor shooting. The Hawks hit just 13 of 52 field goal attempts for 25 percent and 10 of 25 free throws for 40 per-

The Hatchets started the second period with a 9-point lead and added to it in the next quarter to go in front, 24-13, at the half.

Cass City bounced back in the third and fourth quarters but the first half margin was too much to overcome.

Papp, with 13 points, and Vickie Robinson, with 10, were high scorers for Cass City.

Jennie Gavitt and Miss, Cubitt, with 12 and 10 points, respectively, led the winners.

YOUR EYES Dr. Ronald R. Watson

BABY BLUES

Are you disappointed because your baby's blue eyes are turning brown? Don't be. Most babies are born with blue eyes because there is a lack of pigment at birth in the tissues of the iris, the colored part of the eye. When your baby is a few weeks old, the body begins to produce a pigment that can change the color of the baby's eyes. A small amount of pigment production will leave the baby's eyes blue. The production of more pigment causes the eyes to turn almost aqua. And, as the amount of pigment increases, the color of the eyes change to grey, then hazel and finally, for most babies, to brown.

Generally, the amount of pigment produced in the iris is related to the amount of pigment produced in other parts of the body. That is why there are more blue eyes among fair-skinned blondes and more brow darkereyes among skinned people.

Heredity plays a large actor in the color of your baby's eyes. Brown eyed babies are just as beautiful as blue eyed ones.

Alcohol container warning not needed

Beer, wine and liquor will soon have a little advice attached on each container.

The advice will be in the form of a warning, mandated by the Alcohol Beverage Labeling act, reading that women shouldn't drink during pregnancy and that consumption impairs a person's ability to drive or operate machinery. Already the messages, which are similar in style to those printed on cigarette packages, have started to appear on cans of Miller and Stroh beer products. And by Saturday, Nov. 18, all alcoholic beverages produced must bear the government warning.

Each side of the issue seems dissatisfied with the results. Those in favor of the warning say it isn't big enough. Those opposed say the message is an expensive way of telling drinkers what they already know.

Your neighbors, Cass City High School students Bill Spencer and Donovan Selby, feel the warnings aren't

"It (the warning) shouldn't pressure the person drinking either way. It's a matter of personal choice (to drink or not), says Spencer, who is a freshman at Cass City.

Selby, who is a sophomore, shared Spencer's sentiments, adding, "It didn't do much to stop people from smoking." The warnings, which will not affect advertising messages on alcohol, seem unfair to Selby. "They're basically the same thing (alcohol and cigarettes) so why should one be allowed to advertise and not the other?" conveyed the 16 year old.

Further, Spencer, who says English is his favorite subject, told us that beer commercials are some of his favorites. 'They're funny and I like the ones with the Clydesdale Karl F. Bause, 30, of Sterling Heights, was ordered to serve a year in jail, with participation in a residential treatment program and the worksite program, for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, third offense, Sept. 24 in Wells Township.

Court records state Bause, who pleaded guilty to the charge Sept. 15, also was sentenced to 5 years probation and ordered to pay fines and costs totalling $800 plus attorney fees, a $30 victim crime fee and a $30 per month oversight fee.

Vassar resident Lawrence E. Howse, 21, received a jail term of 90 days for his Oct. 16 plea of guilty to probation violation.

Probation was reinstated for Howse, who violated his probation by being convicted of impaired driving July 21, and failing to give a truthful report to his probation agent on or after April 6 regarding his arrest in Lapeer on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, according to records.

Also sentenced Friday was Robert S. Mossop, 19, of Sandusky, who pleaded guilty to probation viola-Mossop was sentenced to 90 days in a Special Incarceration Program and ordered to pay a $30 victim crime fee and a $30 per month oversight fee. He was remanded to the custody of the sheriff.

Records state Mossop violated probation Oct. 25. when he associated with an individual he knew had been convicted of a felony.

In other proceedings Friday, Caro resident Richard

Schank, 22, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of probation violation.

Sentencing is to be set for the defendant, who "failed to successfully complete the Special Alternative Incarceration program in that he failed to work diligently and productively and he failed to obey the rules of behavior established for the unit.'

Uphold Kingston Camp decision

USE NOT CHANGED

Camp officials, meanwhile, have argued that the intended use of the camp has not changed with the operation of the juvenile rehabilitation program.

The work and learn camp, • which opened amidst a storm of controversy in October, 1988, is home to up to 50 male juvenile delinquents, ages 14 to 17 years, who are first-time commitments by the state to the Department of Social Services. Only youths convicted of non-violent crimes are accepted into the program. During their stay at the camp, the youths undergo an intense, 6-month rehabilitation program that combines school and vocational training with outdoor wilderness experiences. The program is being operated by Pioneer Work and Learn Center under contract with the DSS. Wolverine Human Services, Detroit, is the primary contractor to Pioneer and oversees camp operations.

NEXT STEP

According to Atkins, the appeals board's next step is to draft a formal written decision and present it during another open meeting. "Hopefully, we can do it in a month," he said.

The attorney cautioned that last week's preliminary vote is not final and that the board "could do a total flipflop" before the next meet-

Assuming that doesn't happen, attorneys for the camp are expected to ask Judge Joslyn, who has retained jurisdiction in the case, to review the appeals board decision.

After that, an appeal could be filed with the state Court of Appeals and then, possibly, the Michigan Supreme find that the earlier position of the zoning board is confirmed by the board of appeals," he said.

Sykora noted that the method and validity of how the appeals board reaches its decision, not the zoning question itself, will be at issue when the case returns to Judge Joslyn.

"From this point on, it is just a question of procedural precision, and both sides went out of their way to justify compliance with the requirements," he added. Contacted Monday at his Detroit office, attorney Samuel E. McCargo, who is representing the camp, said he had not received any direct information regarding last week's meeting.

In any event, the fact that Judge Joslyn has retained jurisdiction in the case means there is a safeguard for the camp's interests, McCargo indicated, adding the court is "aware of the potential for abuse of the process and impartial decision making in this case."

The attorney pointed out that despite the conflict surrounding establishment of the work and learn program in Koylton Township over the past 18 months, "All of the great things the program was expected to (accomplish) have happened."

TUNE magazine in its 1990 for your own reflections: Investor's Guide.

"The shorter the maturity the less volatile the price, says this mighty magazine.

Since 30-year bonds are yielding roughly the same as one-year bills, the rewards for a riskier bet isn't there,' intones John Curran, one of 50-or-so writers in the FOR-TUNE stable.

It is nothing if not presumptuous for a simple country boy from Beulah, Mich., to argue with the experts of the big city.

When Jan Grant of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., called me disputatious recently, I explained it is a congenital trait, and I do it naturally without effort.

(Jennifer Birdsong still loves me, though, except when we play backgammon.)

Let's take FORTUNE's examples, run them through the Bond calculator and see what happens:

8% 9-year gov't bond due 12-1-98

Rate Cost now $100

PRICE 2 years from now: 12-91

Down 1%

106.6 8% 30-year bond due

12-1-19

Rate up 1%

$100 89.8

So the medium-term 9year bond, if rates go up 1% (to 9% yield), falls off 6.1 points - - or 6.1%. The long bonds at the same time fall 10.2 points.

If interest rates go down to 7% at our 1991 date, the medium-term bond goes up 6.6 points - - or 6.6%. But look at the 30-year bond at that date. It has climbed 12.2 points, about twice as much as the shorter bond.

So you would be 4 points better on the down side with short bonds, but nearly 6 points worse if bond prices went up. Vote yes for long

Pop. Growth Rates Annual Arizona & N.M. Indians

Non-Indians, U.S.

Note that we're using overall non-Indian growth rates for the U.S. Arizona, especially, is growing much faster than the national average, but already that growth is flattening.

The point is, the growth rate of the Indians is 2.3 x that of the national average for all Americans. That doesn't seem like much until you compound it for say 70 years. In that span, the non-Indians will double their present population.

The Indians, meanwhile have a 2.3 factor running, so the New Mexico Indian population (call it 280,000 now) will soar 5 x . 1,375,000. That is more than the total population of all races in New Mexico now.

The Indians will be a third of the projected total population (assuming average U.S. growth rate) of New Mexico by the year 2060.

The percentage of Indians climbs from 1% now to 341% in 70 years.

Unemployment rate of Indians in New Mexico is now 28%. Apply that factor to a projected one-third of the population, and it is boggling. In Arizona, Indian jobless rate is 45%. Population projections, I know very well, don't follow the neat patterns I have used. They could be wo. or better. If they're neither worse nor better they'll still be alarming. Bill Myers is a retired editor and investment

2 killed in train crash

Two persons were killed and 2 others injured last week when a semi truck and trailer collided with a CSX Transport train near the intersection of Hart and Simpson roads about 2 miles south of Richville.

The victims were identified as the truck driver, Fynes D. Shelby, 53, of Fostoria, and the train's engineer, Benjamin C. Dietzel Jr., 58, of Saginaw.

Two other CSX employees, Richard L. Berdt, 39, of Saginaw, and Emmett J. Sova Jr., 56, also of Saginaw, were taken to St. Luke's Hospital, Saginaw, where they were treated and then released. According to reports filed at the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department, Shelby was hauling some 25 tons of sugar beets northbound on Hart Road when he pulled into the path of the eastbound train, which consisted of 2 engines and 4 empty grain cars, and was struck at about 4:34 p.m Oct.

Deputies stated the railroad crossing is marked with a yield sign and railroad crossarms. After impact, the front engine of the train derailed, spilling some diesel fuel. The second engine and a grain car also left the tracks, and the semi truck and trailer came to rest in an adjace field.

The Reese Fire partment's Jaws of Life were used at the scene. Also assisting sheriff's deputies were Vassar and Richville firemen, Vassar Ambulance personnel and troopers from the state police post in Caro.
