1. Evergreen has a great many sentimental ties for me. I was a student in this school from 1957-1962, so I would hate to see it closed. But, I think our schools are a business, in addition to being an educational center and, like the farms, in order to keep solvent, must often be swallowed by the bigger ones. So, in all probability, it may be impossible to keep

Evergreen open.

2. I dislike seeing our kids denied a choice in life. If we do not present a selection of career-preparatory subjects, we are failing as providers. If we do not have the funds, we must ask the people.

3. I think we should continue to look for - and keep good teachers in our school system. Not necessarily the quantity of time served - but the quality of teaching should be the criteria. Our kids are our future. Accessibility among board members, teachers, parents and students is vital. One must be able to communicate honestly and comfortably.

I think I am able to deal with situations with a fair, open mind. As a parent and businessman, I am confident I can contribute to the wellbeing of the school system.

1. Do I favor closing the Evergreen School? I hear and understand the concerns of the Evergreen community and am sorry that the enrollment today is not what it once was. But, I also hear the concerns of all our school system and, as treasurer of the board, am aware of the costs involved with maintaining this system. Costs that include food services, transportation for staff and their time spent on the road and not in the classroom. Those concerns also relate to split level classes and the hope that all our children can receive the same teacher/student relationship. The weighing of all sides of this tough decision choice for the total school - it is time to face the issue and close Evergreen.

2. Your question concerning a tax increase to reinstate art and physical education. Absolutely not! These programs are currently being reinstated as best we can. Physical education is almost totally back to the previous levels and the board's feeling is that by freeing up some of the load and travel time of the staff to Evergreen that we can better utilize this time by offering a more expansive curriculum which would include broadening art. These plans are presently being formalized.

3. The direction the school should be traveling is one of quality and well rounded educational opportunities. This direction should always be to the future and answering the qualifications our young people need to keep them in step with modern technology. These qualities are not limited to just classroom learning, but to also offer values that go beyond and prepare the child for that step into adulthood and responsibilities! Goal-setting sessions by the board are constantly improving guidelines to keep our directions in sight. I feel that my experience on the board and also my involvement with teacher negotiations have prepared me to best serve my community in this posi-

High winds damage beets, cut power

by Kristine L. Renaud Staff Writer

Although high winds during the weekend caused relatively little damage to area power and phone lines, many farmers found themselves with extra work Monday morning.

Among them was Dick Donahue, who thought he was done planting sugar beets. Unfortunately, strong winds - - more than 50 miles per hour at times - - destroyed part of his crop.

Some sections of Donahue's sugar beet fields are on natural ridges, and the land there is higher with lighter soil, he said, and high winds blow the dirt and plants out of the ground.

Beet plants are tender when young, he explained. Blowing soil can cut through plants' stems and leaves, damaging or killing them.

Replanting will put winddamaged areas about 6 weeks behind the remaining plants, Donahue remarked. Normally, he said, he expects 40,000 pounds of produce per acre during the fall harvest. But replanted areas won't yield as much tonnage because those beets will be smaller.

Donahue was forced to reseed some of his sugar beet fields a few weeks ago after high winds struck the area. However, he thought he had a potentially good crop until this past weekend.

With the uncharacteristically cold weather and strong winds, this growing season has been unusual, he observed. However, Donahue isn't alone in this farming dilemma.

WIND DAMAGE

Generally, sugar beets, sovbeans and many above ground crops will sustain damage from high winds and blowing sand, according to Tuscola County Co-sugar beets are especially vulnerable because they are smaller, he added. "In some fields as much as one-third to one-half of the crops have been significantly damaged by the winds," Stein remarked. Replanted sugar beets were the hardest hit crop, he Wind damage was incurred "top to bottom, east to west" throughout the county, he said. The southwest part of the county perhaps was hardest hit because the soil there is lighter, Stein

"A lot of these fields have the potential for coming back," but the wounded crops will mature slower and could suffer frost damage later in the growing season, Stein said.

Huron County Agricul-

agreed, adding another problem is that blowing soil breaks open outer plant layers, allowing germs and bacteria in the wounds.

POWER OUTAGES

Sunday's strong winds created dust storm-like conditions on area roads and also caused power and telephone service interruptions lo-

Although more than 300,000 Michigan homes lost electricity, fewer than 500 Thumb Electric Cooperative Inc. customers were affected by the winds.

Service calls from Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties began coming in around 1 p.m. Sunday, according to David Fritz, member services and marketing manager. Cases were scattered - - individual calls tural Agent Jim LeCureux instead of large areas losing power, he said.

By 8 a.m. Monday, all of Thumb Electric's approximately 9,900 customers had power, he added.

Overall, "high winds caused very little damage in Tuscola County," Fritz said.

A Detroit Edison customer, Donahue lost power at 12:33 p.m. Sunday. Neighbors within 2 or 3 miles were also in the dark. Donahue expected to have his electricity back sometime late Monday afternoon.

Sunday's storm also knocked out many telephone lines. As of Monday afternoon, 23 Cass City residents didn't have phone service, said Frank Buck, GTE's state public affairs manager.

GTE planned to have all phone customers reconnected by Tuesday evening, Junk ordinance violations?

Novesta Township officials will investigate complaints regarding the township's junk ordinance following discussion at a monthly Township Board meeting Monday night.

Township Clerk Nursie Kloc said Supervisor Maynard Stine is going to check on 4 residences that may be in violation of the ordinance.

The township hasn't been flooded with calls, she indicated, "but we have had complaints."

In other business during the hour-long session, the board heard a report regarding a household hazardous waste meeting recently attended by Kloc and the township's deputy clerk.

Kloc said Pollard Disposal, Montrose, which sponsored the meeting, is proposing a program in which the company would pick up household hazardous and agricultural wastes twice a year within a 5-county area.

In order for the program to work, 80 percent of the townships involved would have to participate, with each household being assessed $5 annually, she said, adding the total estimated cost of the program is $80,000 to $120,000.

It ain't necessarily so these days.

It wasn't clear whether the latter was intended for the dogs as wedding participants or as wedding guests. Whichever, they were going to be dressed to the canines for the occasion.

This selection process is sponsored by the Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals and the Detroit Free Press, and has been ongoing for 8 years. Michigan's 945 high schools use a formula based upon a student's grade point average and ACT/SAT scores to nominate one student from each school.

Ten winners from the state's Class A, B, C, D schools and the city of Detroit are then chosen.

Micklash also has recently been awarded the Robert C. Byrd Scholar-ship, The University of Michigan Regents Alumni Scholarship, the Walbro Corporation Scholarship and the Julia Murray. Scholarship. He will be attending the University of Michigan to pursue a degree in Aerospace Engineering.

Popple is a true gambler. Okay, so you never heard of him. Unless, that is, you are a true baseball fan. Okay, make it baseball nut, or at least an avid reader of Sports Illustrated.

Van Popple is a high school baseball pitcher who is projected to be the number one draft choice in the United States.

With a 95-mile-per-hour fast ball and a sharp breaking curve, his games attract more major league scouts than fans. How good? Better than Nolan Ryan at the same age, according to veteran scouts who saw them both in high school.

It's possible that Van Popple will not be the first taken in the draft even though he's tops on every major league team's want or junior college player and, of course, better than any other high school senior.

Van Popple has indicated that he wants to attend college (University of Texas) rather than play professionally right away. If the team with the draft rights (Atlanta) doesn't sign him before he enrolls in the fall, it loses him and a number one draft pick is shot.

Their gamble is small compared to Van Popple's. He's betting that he will remain healthy pitching for Texas and later, perhaps, in the Olympics and then sign for a big bonus after graduation.

What he will be throwing into the pot if he does is probably a half million dollars or more. If he has an outstanding career in college and comes out healthy, he probably could command twice what he would get out of high school.

The gamble would be less if he were not a pitcher. The arm is everything and the abuse it takes throwing 200 innings a year has ruined more than one goldenarmed rookie.

On the plus side for a college education is that Van Popple is genuine college material, ranking in the top fifth of a 630-member class.

Van Popple's story is not a new one. Rick Leach, a major leaguer with Detroit and Toronto after his football career at the University of Michigan, turned down a bonus after graduation. Four years later he signed a minor league contract and the bonus bucks had slipped away.

If he waits, Popple's chances of earning that college diploma are a quantum leap better than if he attempts to do it and play professionally.

Van Popple says that he wants to go to college and he tells the pro scouts that up front. But he will listen to them when they come to

At 18 years old, all athletes feel indestructible and it's sure that Van Popple believes that nothing could keep him from achieving what has been predicted for

Play a peace game

By Jim Fitzgerald

The U.S. Army needs a few good fakers.

Actually, more than a few. A recent news article out of Washington said: "Next year, the Army plans to create a permanent fake Soviet army of up to 1,000 men outfitted with tanks and armored personnel carriers to roam the West German countryside and play war with U.S. soldiers.'

Play war. I'm always fascinated with the concept of war as a game that can be played. In 1982, after Britain sank an Argentine ship, killing more than 100 young men, a huge headline across the top of the front page of a London newspaper blared gleefully: "GOTCHA!"

And a British firm marketed a video game called "Obliterate." The flagship of the Argentine navy moved across the TV screen. and the player used a keyboard to determine the firing distance and launch a torpedo. A direct hit made the flagship explode and produced the message: "Congratulations, Horatio (Adm. Nelson) would be proud of you.'

The British are widely regarded as the world's most civilized people.

I hope you had a happy Memorial Day.

MOCKING A VANISHING FORCE

What with dreaded peace breaking out all over the world, you might question the U.S. Army's need for a fake Soviet army to play games with. What about Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee? While recently recommending that the U.S. cut its troops in Europe from the current 305,000 to as few as 75,000, Nunn said, "The Warsaw disappeared." And Defense Secretary Dick Cheney agreed: "I think most of us believe now likely to be able to present a significant military threat to Europe."

Pact as a fighting force has

But never mind that. According to my newspaper: "The Army is pushing ahead with a $248.9-million Combat Maneuver Training Center and turning 44,000 hilly and wooded acres at Hohenfels, West Germany, into a modern European battlefield. Work on the project began in 1987 and is to be completed by 1993. Army officials were unable to say how much of the money already has been spent." But does this war game have to cost taxpayers so damn much? There was mock combat at Hohenfels last year, between 2 U.S. forces. Neither was specially trained in Warsaw pact tactics, but what the heck? Is it really necessary to spend millions to create a fake Soviet army and equip it with actual Soviet equipment?

In the name of the peace dividend, how about more mime and less armor?

A CHEAPER ALTERNATE

No way, said Col. Samuel Floca, a spokesman for the Army's European command: "The skill of the OPFOR is an essential ingredient in the training program because you learn very little from going up against guys that are doing the same thing you're doing."

OPFOR is the military acronym for "opposing force." For some reason it reminds me of UPCHUCK.

But there is truth in the claim that you learn very little from doing the same thing the opposing force is doing. So do something different. Instead of playing a war game, play something a lot cheaper. For the Memorial Day just past, and for all those to come, play a peace game. Memorize this poem by Stephen Vincent Benet: Oh, where are you coming from soldier, gaunt soldier,

With weapons beyond any reach of my mind,

With weapons so deadly the world must grow older And die in its tracks, if it does not turn kind.

Ithough Patrick Kubiak was born healthy, the 15month-old has suffered most of his life.

One day, when Patrick was about 5 weeks old, he suddenly stopped breathing and had several seizures. His mother, Pearl Kubiak, said she took the infant to Hills and Dales General Hospital. Staff members, not sure what was wrong with Patrick, had him flown by helicopter to Flint Hurley Hospital where he spent 3 days in the pediatric intensive care unit, Pearl said. After that, Patrick was diagnosed as having a type of meningitis and moved to Detroit's Children's Hospital for almost 3 weeks of treatment.

Haemphilus influenza Type B meningitis (HIB) is a common bacterial infection of the brain. It caused Patrick to develop polycystic formations on the left side of his head, and hydrocephalus, or water on the brain.

Since he was 7 weeks old. Patrick has had 16 neurosurgeries at Detroit's Children's Hospital to correct the condition, according to his mother. Shunts, or bypass tubes, were implanted in his head and body during many of the surgeries, Pearl said. Spinal fluid, trapped in his head by scar tissue formations, is carried through the back of his neck and down his right side to the abdominal cavity where it is absorbed, explained Patrick's physician, general practitioner and surgeon Dr. No Yun. Cass City.

Unfortunately, the thin tubes occasionally become clogged or infected, requiring their removal and replacement, Yun noted. Kubiak said she knows when this is happening because Patrick hyperextends himself, cries more frequently and occasionally has sei-

Cass City police investigated a pair of malicious destruction of property complaints recently filed by 2 Cass City residents.

Doctors cannot remove the potentially lethal cysts on Patrick's brain, his father, Patrick Kubiak, added.

"If they took the cysts out it could kill Patrick, and if they leave them in it could kill him," Kubiak said. Several of the child's surgeries were to insert drainage tubes into the cysts, Pearl noted.

"He probably will continuously have surgeries, which sets him back," said Sarah Schoendorf, Patrick's home-bound teacher and a home programmer from Huron Intermediate School District.

The surgeries slow Patrick's mental and physical development and adversely affect his hearing, his father noted.

EVALUATIONS

Last summer Patrick was physically evaluated by specialists from the Huron County School District. The baby also was screened for mental and hearing disabilities, saw a school psychologist and an occupational therapist. They determined he was functioning at a below normal level and needed special help to learn basic motor, language and selfcare skills.

Schoendorf, a special education teacher for children ages 3 years and younger, started coming out to the Kubiak home twice weekly in October to work with Patrick. She tries to determine what he can see and hear, teaches him how to pick up his head and hold objects, and eventually will train Patrick to feed himself and use the bathroom. "I also work with mom and dad to teach them different things to stimulate his development," Schoendorf added.

At this time, Patrick functions at a level appropriate for a 3- to 5-month-old, Schoendorf said. He can't sit himself up, roll over, grip objects and doesn't consistently make eye contact, she

'He's responding more than he ever was," she remarked. Besides kicking his feet and learning how to sit up in specially designed chairs "he seems to laugh more on his own and he vocalizes a lot more now,' she noted.

Patrick benefits a great deal from this kind of homebound teaching and physical therapy, provided free of charge by Huron County Children's Special Health Care Services. Fortunately, most of Patrick's medical expenses are covered by his father's insurance through his job at RCS Engineered Products Co. in Gagetown.

emotional needs. "It's been hard on the kids and their daddy with Patrick and me gone" during his initial illness and multiple surgeries, Pearl noted. 'When I'm not here the girls get emotionally distressed. They get depressed."

The family's cramped living quarters only worsen their situation, she pointed out. At the time Patrick was born, the Kubiaks were planning to build 2 extra bedrooms onto their 12 x 60 foot mobile home. Plans have changed since Patrick's illness even though the extra space is needed now more than ever.

"He's going to get too big for that crib soon," Pearl noted, and the bedroom she shares with the baby isn't big enough for 2 regular beds.

"Every time we'd get when Pearl is at the hospital something paid off, he'd get sick and we'd have to travel to Detroit," making it hard to

UNEXPLAINED WEIGHT LOSS PUZZLES SCIENTISTS

FINLAND - The unexpected weight loss experienced by members of a test group has puzzled medical researchers at a leading Finnish university. Scientists were testing a naturally-occurring compound for its ability to lower blood cholesterol levels when, to their surprise, they found that every person who took the formula had lost a significant amount of weight.

The formula was then tested at another pressigious European university hospital. Again, all patients lost weight even though they did not change their eating habits. The report detailing this study, published in the British Journal of Nutrition, stated: "Body weight was significantly reduced even though the patients were specifically asked not to alter their dietary nabits." The formula was then tested

While it is still not entirely clear how the formula induces weight loss, some scientists believe this compound actually alters the way the body digests food: when taken before mealtime it bonds with food and suppresses calorie absorption presses calorie absorption.
Unabsorbed calories would pass through and out of the digestive system.

The formula is marketed in capsule form in the United States under the trade name Cal-Ban 3000. A firm located in Tampa, Florida has exclusive North American distribution rights to Cal-Ban 3000. A company spokesman reported that the formula is 100% natural and has been clinically tested for safety. Review of the customer files of this company tomer files of this company revealed the names of hundreds of people who have lost as much as 20, 40 or 80 or more pounds overall with Cal-Ban 3000. This appears to be a golden opportunity for people who are plagued by fat and cellulite that they can't seem to lose by conventional methods.

Cal-Ban 3000 is reasonably priced at $19.95 for a 3-week supply and $38.95 for a 6-week supply. Postage and handling is $3. VISA, M/C, AMEX and COD orders are accepted. To order call TOLL-FREE 1-800-537-3723 or purchase locally at Old Wood Drug, Inc., 6498 Main, Cass City, MI.

Mary Ann Abbe, 41, is completing her fifth year on the board. Employed as Diagnosis Related Groups coordinator at Hills and Dales General Hospital, the Gagetown area resident and her husband, Dave, have 2

Among the biggest issues facing the district, Abbe remarked, is school finance.

"It's going to be a lot of work," she said of maintaining financial stability, particularly as a small school system.

Mary Ann Abbe

Another upcoming challenge will be the successful negotiation of a new contract for teachers, who are asking for a significant salary increase.

Abbe, a 23-year district resident, indicated she's hoping for a peaceful settlement. Teachers should have a raise, she said, but it's uncertain what the school's financial situation will be, with predictions that the district won't be in-formula in the next school year.

"They (teachers) deserve more than what they get simply because of the challenge they have," she commented. "Do I think they deserve a raise? Yes. Can I say they're going to get what they want? No, I can't."

If elected, Abbe remarked she plans to continue building the rapport she's enjoyed with students. Listening to and acting on their concerns as a board member is an important personal goal, she

As school board treasurer for the past 16 years, Brinkman pointed out school finance is among his biggest concerns related to the district.

While he also cited ongoing curriculum improvement as an important issue, Brinkman said trying to keep Owen-Gage Schools "in the black" is a critical challenge, especially since it doesn't appear help is on the way from Lansing.

"This has been the second year that we've been in the black since I've been on the board," he said, adding he wants to keep it that way.

"We know that we've got to give them (teachers) a raise, but we're going to monitor that awful closé. They want double digit figures and I don't think we can afford that - - I know we can't afford that."

Jack Brinkman

Citing his experience on the board, Brinkman indicated he believes he can continue to contribute to the district as a trustee.

"I think we've got a good board and they (members) good together. There's always room for improvement, I know that, but I think I'm doing a good

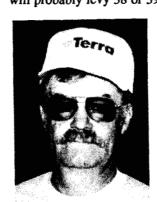

KRETZSCHMER

The third incumbent seeking re-election is current board President William Kretzschmer, who is completing his first 4-year term.

Kretzschmer, 49, is an Owendale farmer and lifelong district resident. He and his wife, Norma, have 3

Kretzschmer said he believes the biggest issue in the Owen-Gage District, as well as others across the state, will continue to be money, although financial stability at Owen-Gage has improved over the past 2 years.

"We're not going after 57, is a Cass City area Headlee, which is going to farmer. He and his wife, save the people 2 mills," he remarked, noting the district will probably levy 38 or 39

Kretzschmer said finances also will figure into teacher contract negotiations, although it isn't certain what raises might be approved. "I think they deserve one. I mean, everybody else gets one," he added.

Among Kretzschmer's goals over the next 4 years, if elected, will be to follow through with discussion related to construction of a bus garage. Citing expensive repair costs associated with keeping a bus fleet going, he indicated the proposal would save the district money.

Overall, the board has come a long way in recent years, he said, adding, "We can sit down and really communicate with each other."

KRETZSCHMER

Challenger Geraldine Kretzschmer, 39, has lived in the Owen-Gage District for 20 years. The owner of an independent insurance agency, she resides in Owendale with her husband, Charles. The couple have 3 children.

Kretzschmer, a district resident for 20 years, said she's a strong supporter of curriculum and promoting positive attitudes.

Geraldine Kretzschmer

"I think our students today have a very poor attitude," she remarked. "I think they lack positive feedback. I'd like to see that changed in the district."

As far as pay hikes for teachers, Kretzschmer said she isn't well informed about the specifics of current school budgeting, but "I'm certainly not closed minded to paying teachers a

She added, "I think that I've had a lot of exposure to the public - - I've worked with the public for the past 13 years, and I'm familiar with many different school systems."

Also running for the school board for the first time is lifelong Owen-Gage School District resident Vickie L. Merchant, 39, a K-8 counselor in the Deckerville Community School system. Merchant and her husband, Grant, reside in Gagetown. They have 3 children.

Your neighbor says

I try to conserve energy sometimes 20th anniversary of Earth Day, celebrated this past April 22, generated excitement and activity. It was a time for practicing means to avoid the premature destruction of our world. TV networks, newspapers and magazines ran special shows and articles, celebrities got involved and recycling was "in."

Although Earth Day has come and gone, saving and rebuilding the planet should remain a concern, with each citizen doing his or her own part to repair the damage.

According to an organization called the Earthworks Group, conservation is easily accomplished through simple, cost-effective measures requiring little change in lifestyle. The group suggests you take a little time to check the efficiency of your furnace and water heater, insulate, avoid wasting water and electricity and recycle. Your neighbor, Mark Rutkoski, is a Ferris State University student who tries to conserve energy at home in Cass City and participates in recycling activities at school. "At home I think I'm conscious of conserving energy," because his parents, Herb and Kay, are footing the electric and water bills, Rutkoski said. When FSU is in session, Rutkoski said he's often too busy to notice if he wastes energy in the house he shares with his Phi Delta Chi fraternity brothers. Because utility bills are split evenly between house residents, Rutkoski is not aware of his personal energy consumption, he noted. While at school, Rutkoski and his fraternity organize paper recycling drives for charity and help clean up the university's 22-acre nature preserve.

The Bad Axe nursing program is a licensed practical to registered nurse transition course offered through St. Clair County Community College in Port Huron.

The Bad Axe students and all Michigan nursing graduates, about 1,100 total, met in Lansing and took the standardized national licensure examination in late February. The results came back in late April.

For the third year running, all Bad Axe center students taking the exam passed it on the first attempt.

One Bad Axe graduate, Marcie Kostanko, currently is working as a registered nurse at Saginaw General Hospital.

Kostanko is originally from Texas and lived in Cass City for about 25 years before moving to Watrousville last September.

A 1964 graduate of Akron-Fairgrove High School, Kostanko completed Bad Axe's practical nursing program in 1984. She then worked at Hills and Dales General Hospital for about 4 years as an LPN.

Kostanko has 3 children, Dell, 24, Brent, 21, and Travis, 10.

Debby Morden, Snover native, also completed the nursing program and passed the licensing exam.

The daughter of Snover residents, Robert and Janice Morden, she graduated from Sandusky High School in 1976.

Before starting her current job at Bay Medical Center, Morden worked for McKenzie Hospital in Port Huron.

Although Morden said she enjoys nursing in the cardiac step-down ward, she hopes to move up to Bay Medical Center's coronary care unit.

Motivated students

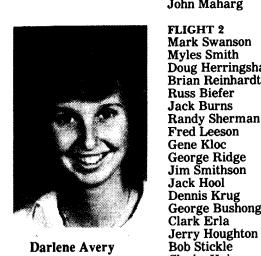

Cass City Intermediate School officials recently named the school's "motivated students" for the month of May.

They are fifth graders Shannon Todd, Dinelle Spencer and Matt Oesch, and sixth graders Robert Gengler, Mike Bolton, Andy Gray and Amanda Kieltyka.

A Cass City couple's Bill Kritzman granddaughter took third Newell Harris place in the discus event Jerry Toner while representing Nevada in the Great Southwest Regional meet, held May 26 at Paul Chappel Arizona State University, Don Ouvry Tempe, Ariz.

She is Darlene Avery, the daughter of Jon and Barb Avery of Las Vegas, Nev., and the granddaughter of Al and Helen Avery, Cass City.

Darlene Avery

Avery, a 16-year-old junior at Eldorado High School, Las Vegas, qualified for the regional meet after being named the Nevada state champion discus thrower. She threw a discus 124.6 feet in state competition. Her top throw during the regular season measured 136.3 feet.

Hawks roll to district softball title

The Cass City Red Hawk softball team rode into the regionals on the strong right arm of Beth Powell, and some key hitting and clutch fielding when it counted most.

> It was a glorious victory for the Hawks, who finished third in the Thumb B Association, and comes at a time when the school's athletic fortunes are at a low ebb. The district toga is the only one earned at the school this

Cass City was forced to come from behind to win both games. In the opener the Hawks jumped off to a lead in the second, when Powell cracked a line drive over the right fielder's head to score Shannon Sapien, who had walked.

The Hawks made it 2-0 in the third without benefit of a Vicky Robinson walked. Terri Gibson then hit a swinging bunt down the first base line and the throw to first was high and wide. By the time the right fielder chased the ball down, Robinson had scored from first.

That lead didn't last long.

The Redskins came charging back with a 3-run rally to go ahead. Suzanne Milchell opened with a walk. Michele Izworski hit a line drive to left field that got through the left fielder for a single and 3base error that scored 2 runs. Sue Rich singled and later scored as Laura Stolikeo also came up with a key base

The Hawks tied in their half of the fourth on a walk and a pair of Sandusky errors. Key play was a missed ball by the catcher, allowing Sapien a life after she had struck out.

Sandusky bounced back in front in the fifth when Tricia Hood opened with a single and came around on an error and infield out.

The Hawks won the game in their half of the fifth. Robinson walked, took second on a wild pitch and David Hobbs hit 2 home scored when Sue Papp's easy fly ball to first was dropped. Sherrie DeLong walked and Powell hit a long fly ball to center, which was dropped, and 2 more runs scored. Kim Morley then rapped a single to drive home Powell to conclude the 4-run winning rally.

> Cass City added a pair of insurance runs in the sixth, but they were just icing on the cake, as Powell mowed down the last 6 Redskins in order to wrap up the win.

The key to the win was the excellent defense of the Hawks. Sandusky out-hit the Hawks 7-4, but was charged with 6 errors. Hoard said that he was surprised at the anemic hitting of his charges. We hit well all year, he continued, but just couldn't do it Saturday. It wasn't the pitching, either, but a win is a win is a win, he smiled.

UBLY GAME

There is an axiom in baseball that says that the quality pitcher is the one that almost always closes out a big game in grand style.

If that's true, then Beth Powell is a quality pitcher.

Given the lead in both games, she shut the door tight on both Sandusky and Powell needed to be tough because Michelle Walsh hurled a very fine game for the losers. The difference was that the Bearcats had trouble catching the ball and that allowed the Hawks to come charging back from a 3-run deficit.

Ubly scored a run on a hit by Leslie Guigar opening the second and she came home on on a walk and an error. The Bearcats made it 3-0 in the third on a hit by Karen Franzel and a pair of walks to Renee Peruski and Becky Mazure.

Cass City got 2 of those back in the fourth with just one hit. Gibson and DeLong walked and Sapien rapped a triple between the outfielders to chase them home.

ONE OF THE reasons for the Hawk wins was excellent defense such as this play at first base when Jandi Hillaker went high in the air to take a throw to retire the Sandusky batter with a runner in scoring position.

Letters to the editor

4-H is caring, not buildings

4-H has received a lot of publicity in the newspaper, radio, and TV. It's not the kind of publicity I'd like to see 4-H in Tuscola County receive.

There is a difference of opinion over a building. How Dumb! For years, this has been a continuing problem. 4-H isn't buildings, it's KIDS and training leaders for tomorrow. There are many well known individuals who remember being 4-H members in their youth. They've gone on to be leaders in business, professions, and government today. That's what 4-H is, sharing and helping members grow and learn through whatever project they're working on, to become responsible citizens tomorrow.

I grew up in another county. I remember a problem there when I was a teen, over which town the 4-H Fair should be held. The adults argued back and forth but neither my leaders or parents pulled the members into it. Eventually the fair was moved. The important thing is that, I, as a teen, didn't care what they did and still don't. I really don't think the majority of the young people care one way or the other today either,

I remember my leaders who spent time and shared their lives with me. I remember a beef leader who came to my house to help with my steer that wouldn't lead. I remember a sewing leader who helped me hem a towel. I hated sewing but I liked that leader who cared and encouraged. I remember a leather leader who taught with care and patience to lace a purse.

I remember a very nice lady who chaperoned 3 or 4 of us girls to Detroit each winter to show our steers. A 4-Hagent who helped train a judging team, then took us to Lansing to a competition. Each of those people spent time and gave of themselves to help us.

I'm a 4-H leader today not because of projects, or buildings, or where the fair was held, but because of leaders and parents who cared and shared.

I'd like to encourage every leader to get to the June 11 meeting and vote for those leaders of tomorrow.

Sincerely, Rose Marie Buckmaster
