Classes cease at Evergreen despite protests

The death knell was sounded for the Evergreen Township School building Monday night by the Cass City School Board in its regular meeting at Cass City High School. The board voted, 6-1, not to hold classes in the building in the 1990-91 school year. Fred Matthews voted against the closing.

The board acted over the strident objections of several district residents from the Evergreen area.

They were spearheaded by the Donald Olsons, who claimed that the board was acting without all the facts and that there would be no savings, as their children would require a specially equipped vehicle to be bussed to school because of special health problems.

Denise Puterbaugh, another Evergreen resident, was sharply critical. She claimed that opponents to the closing were left out of the decision making process. You meet behind closed doors and then don't reveal what the situation is with the Keyworth heirs, she said.

The board met in a session closed to the press and the public for about a half hour, purportedly to discuss purchasing the school building from the heirs. When the regular meeting started again, Supt. Kenneth Micklash would only say that the heirs wanted the building to remain under the control of the school.

In a unique agreement, the building was donated to Evergreen Township for use as a school but reverted back to the owners in case the school closed.

Micklash indicated to the Evergreen dissidents that there would be a future meeting with the Keyworth heirs. Mrs. Puterbaugh asked that she and others with her view be allowed to attend. Permission was refused.

The meeting was attended by about 25 persons. All that expressed a view were against the proposal adopted by the board.

Before the vote, Micklash reported that his estimate of $35,000 for a bus garage was confirmed by 2 contractors. He said that he has not yet received an estimate for Please turn to back page.

THE EVERGREEN TOWNSHIP SCHOOL building was erected in 1955 and 12 classrooms were added in 1964. It has been a part of the Cass City district for some 20 years. Negotiations are in process to determine the fate of the building in which no classes will be held next year.

George B. Ellesin

Cass City man killed in crash

George B. Ellesin, 91, of Murray Road, Cass City, was killed Friday in a 2-car crash in Almer Township. He died at St. Luke's Hospital in Saginaw, where he was taken after being treated at Caro Community Hospital.

According to the report of the Michigan State Police at Caro, Ellesin rolled past a stop sign while driving east on Deckerville Road at Cleaver Road, where his car collided with a vehicle driven by Angela C. Skrent, 30, of Caro. She received minor injuries and was released from Caro Community Hospital after treatment. The accident occurred at about 4:30 p.m.

Ellesin was born Jan. 29, 1899, in Austria, coming to the United States as a child with his parents, and to the Tuscola area in about 1940 from Detroit. He married Francis M. Crowley Feb. 3, 1934, in Detroit.

He had been employed with the Michigan Employment Security Commission for about 31 years, retiring Feb. 1, 1969, as the manager of the Bay City office. He was past national president of the American Cancer Society and the past international president of the International Association of Personnel & Employment Service. Also for many years, he was a counsellor for the Senior Core of Retired Executives.

Surviving, besides his wife, are one son, G. Mark Ellesin of Cass City; 3 grandchildren; 5 nieces, and one nephew. Three brothers and one sister predeceased him.

Funeral services were scheduled Tuesday from Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Caro, with the Rev. Fr. Donald J. Eppembrock officiating, and burial in Ellington Township Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Huston & Ransford Funeral Home, Caro.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

There were also several minor accidents and 4 car-deer mishaps reported to the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department and the Cass City Police Department.

The car-deer accidents investigated by the sheriff's department were:

Eric J. Matusak, 18, of Unionville, on Schwegler Road Tuesday, June 5, at 9:40 p.m.

Paul R. Britt, 18, on M-81, a quarter of a mile east of Crawford Road.

Lorraine F. Musial, 46, Decker, on East Caro Road, near Deckerville Road, June 11, at 5:50 a.m.

Stanley F. Venema, 25, of Deford, on Severance Road near Warner Road Sunday at 5:30 a.m.

Serious injury was avoided in a one-car mishap Tuesday, June 12, at 9:57 p.m. According to the report filed at the sheriff's office, Duane Lee-guy Edwards, 6321 Severance Road, Cass City, lost control of his car while attempting to turn onto Cemetery Road from Deckerville Road. He ran over the stop sign on the corner when his car left the road.

Injury was avoided in a 2-car accident at the corner of Leach and Main Streets, Cass City, Thursday.

James L. McDonald, 7181 East Cass City Road, stopped to make a right turn onto Leach Street. He said that he moved into the passing lane on Leach to avoid a car double-parked.

$500,000 surplus

School financially healthy

The Cass City School Board adopted a revised budget for the current school year that will end June 30 and then passed the same budget for the 1990-91 school year at its regular meeting Monday at the school.

This year's budget will be close to the actual expenses of the district, Supt. Ken Micklash said, but the budget adopted for next year is an action required by state law.

When revenues are known, the budget will be revised to reflect current revenues and expenses. At that time most expenses will be increased, although the elimination of classes at Evergreen will cut some cost.

For the second straight year, the district will finish with a surplus, estimated at $316,273. Added to last year's balance, it leaves the district with over a half million dollars with which to start the new school year.

Local tax revenues increased $346,890 over the previous year and revenues from the state were sharply up, increasing from $1.773 million to $2.083 million, a hefty jump of $309,578 and about $90,000 more than forecast for the year. Micklash said that the increase over the budget forecast was due to special grants for special programs started by the state.

The current school year marked the first time that the school budget went over the $5 million mark, to $5.421 million.

A bright spot in the year's activities pointed out by Micklash was the school lunch program, that was switched from outside to school control. Savings allowed the program to earn a net profit of $33,211, of which $10,000 will be transferred to the general fund, which was carried as an obligation on the school books. The cost of running the athletic program increased only slightly, requiring a transfer of $62,000 from the general fund. That is for actual cash expenditures and does not include any of the cost of building maintenance. Salaries and wages cost $47,640 and referees, transportation and other costs came to $41,075.

The school's 2 bond issues for buildings were reviewed. It is expected that the debt for both issues will be retired within 5 years and no increase in the tax rate is expected to be needed.

Committee works to maintain free status for celebration

Twelve years ago when the first July 4 Festival was organized, a basic decision was reached to provide quality entertainment without any admission charge so that families could enjoy the day and not worry about the cost.

It's still that way today, although visitors and residents attending will get a lot more for no money than they did 12 years ago.

The reason is that this year the celebration is combined with an observance of Cass City's 125th birthday and families can enjoy 3 days instead of one.

One of the highlights of the first event was the parade at noon. It was well received then and since that time has become one of the highlight of the Festival.

Again this year the parade has been in the capable hands of Gary Jones, who reports that this year's parade may well be the largest and most diversified yet staged.

The parade is scheduled for Saturday, June 30, starting at 11 a.m. Before that time there will have been 3 days of events, starting with a program for older adults at 10 a.m. Monday. Details are elsewhere in this issue.

The highlight of the program is the Civil War battle reenactment Sunday at 2 p.m.

Most of the favorite events from previous years have been scheduled, including the popular fireworks Sunday at 10 p.m. that will officially end the celebration.

The fireworks have been one of the most popular presentations and one of the most expensive to stage. Annually there is serious debate about presenting them, because of the cost.

Cost of the event will sharply increase this year because of the expanded program due to the 125-year celebration.

To help defray this cost, volunteers have collected donations under the spotlight on Main Street and a raffle will be held. That's about the only way we will be able to meet our expenses, one committee person said.

It is expected that this year's birthday bash will draw record crowds if the weather cooperates. The expanded program, advance publicity from TV-5 and the switch from July 4 to the weekend before are quoted as the reason for the optimism. When the holiday is on a 3-day weekend, folks leave home and miss out on what the community offers.

In the 3 days nearly 50 different events are planned. Complete details of each event will be available in a special section in the June 27 issue of the Chronicle.

Cass City Police probe Cass City Floral theft

Cass City Police are investigating vandalism and a theft at separate Cass City businesses.

Cass City Floral, 6450 Main Street, was broken into sometime Friday night and about $100 was taken from the cash register. The theft was discovered by Becky hard, an employee, when she arrived at work Saturday morning.

Investigating officers reported that entrance was apparently through a small door in the rear of the building. Nothing else was taken, Joel and Carol Ingles, owners, reported.

A few coins were scattered near the rear of the building. Police have suspects which are under investigation.

Ralph Retherford, owner of Fort's Store, 6428 Main, reported Saturday that several letters from the front of his store had been taken.

Investigating officers later found the letters on top of Cass Theatre, the building adjacent to the store.

An employee of a Main Street store, Information Exchange, reported a theft of a wallet. Charlene Hundersmarch, 303 Bacon, Bad Axe, said her wallet was taken sometime Saturday.

FOR A GOOD CAUSE — Geraldine Prieskorn, chair of Cass City's festival committee, is pictured soliciting donations from motorists at the Main and Seeger Sts. intersection. Prieskorn and several Knights of Columbus members collected $565 Friday between 6:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. The money will fund the fireworks.

Couple exchanges vows at St. Mary's Church

Miss Julia Kay Gorkowski of Filion and James Edward Tyrrell of Ubyly were married Saturday, May 26, at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Kinde. The Rev. Rick Filary officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Eugene and Agnes Gorkowski of Filion and the groom is the son of John Tyrrell of Ubyly and Kathryn Tyrrell of Ubyly.

Joann Gorkowski of New Jersey, the bride's sister, was lector and Travis Peruski, nephew of the bride, was altar boy. The groom's godparents, Marge Bendall and Ed Tyrrell, were Eucharistic wine servers.

The unity candle was a wooden candelabra, made by the bride and engraved with the couple's names and wedding date. The side tapers, surrounded by beige and peach silk flowers, were lit by the parents before Mass.

As the bride and groom lit the lace-embossed center candle, the bride's cousin, Danny Jo Ignash, sang "Ave Maria" in Latin, accompanied on the organ by Janet Schornack.

Other music selections were "Like a Seal on your Heart", "Only a Shadow", "On Eagles' Wings" and "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring."

The bride approached the altar on the arm of her father, wearing a San Martin formal-length gown of white bridal satin, styled with a keyhole neckline, with Venice lace trim on the bodice and along the Gibson style sleeves. The embroidered hemline continued around the full cathedral train that featured large sheer cutouts. The tea-length veil, made by the bride's mother, consisted of Venice lace motifs with a scalloped lace edge. It was attached to a spray of flowers with string-of-pearl accents.

She carried a knee-length bouquet of all white silk roses, ferns and greenery. It was interlaced with puffs of netting, loops of crystal beads and was highlighted Matron of honor was Lori Osantoski of Owendale, sister of the bride. She wore a black and white gown with a bodice of black brocaded satin with stand-up collar and elbow-length sleeves. The front had white scalloped lace in a V-shape and was centered with a white lace medallion. The V-shaped waist was attached to a white ruffled peplum, finished off with white bridal satin.

Best man was Herb Volmering of Minden City.

Bridal couples were: Colleen Luczak, Kawkawlin, and Dean Sweeney, Ubyly; LaNee McGee, Mt. Pleasant, and John Rzyhak, Detroit; Tammy Majeski, Bad Axe, and Floyd Holdwick, Ruth, all friends of the bride and groom; JaNiece Hiller, Harbor Beach, and Skatch Peruski, Ubyly, cousin and nephew of the bride, and Brenda Tyrrell, Reese, and Tim Kubacki, Ubyly, sister and friend of the groom.

The bridesmaids all wore dresses identical to the matron of honor's and all were made by the bride's mother. They carried homemade, lighted wooden candle sconces with mirrored backgrounds. The votive cup was surrounded by white and peach flowers interlaced with satin loops and black flower accents. The sconces and flowers were done by the bride and her sisters.

Ushers were Tony Gorkowski of Colorado, brother of the bride, and Ron Hiller of Harbor Beach, cousin of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a handmade peach gown of bridal satin featuring a ruffled lace collar with a lace medallion, surrounded by V-shaped lace and a detachable 2-tiered ruffled peplum.

The groom's mother wore a light peach tea-length dress with a shirred neckline and belted waist and matching pant-length jacket. Both mothers wore silk corsages of mini carnations and sweetheart roses with hints of peach and blue.

Arriving at the Rapson Sportsman's Club in a decorated hay wagon, the bridal party greeted guests from Midland, Auburn, Kawkawlin, Saginaw, Georgia, Colorado, New Jersey, Arizona, Illinois, the Detroit area, Grand Rapids and Huron and Sanilac counties.

After a short trip to the Upper Peninsula, the couple lives near Ubyly. They plan a winter honeymoon to Colorado.

Meg's Peg
Rites gone wrong
by Melva E. Guinther

Ah, what is so rare as a day in June, the month of brides and weddings?

And what is so rare as the perfect ceremony that comes off exactly as the happy couple planned, without a hitch?

I don't mean to alarm prospective brides and grooms, but regardless of how long and carefully you plan the big event, things can, and often do, go wrong.

When I told some friends about the wedding guest who keeled over in the lobby just before our son's wedding, they related some wedding tales of which nightmares are made.

At our son's wedding, the incident only caused a slight delay while the paramedics were called and worked over the man before taking him to the hospital in an ambulance. However, given the usual pre-ceremony jitters, it seemed like an eternity. (He was well enough to make it back in time for the reception, fortunately.)

The worst scenario for a wedding, I suppose, would be having one of the principals not show up. I didn't talk to anyone who had suffered that humiliation.

One wedding was held up for an hour, however, waiting for the bridesmaid and ring bearer, whose car had broken down en route. (Can't you just see the guests who had grudgingly given up a golf game to attend?)

One of the most common wedding problems seems to be having someone in the bridal party pass out during the ceremony, and it seems to happen to men more often than women. (Is there some

Mrs. Irene Tracy attended a bridal shower for Abigail Fox in Lapeer Saturday in the home of Sally Johnson. She and Jay Carins will be married Aug. 18.

Friday, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Godbey of Livonia visited Mrs. Lyle Zapfe and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lash.

Mr. and Mrs. James Neal of Toledo, Ohio, visited Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Morell Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Laurie held their annual family Father's Day cookout Sunday.

Mrs. Laura Ball, Mr. and Mrs. Don Ball and sons of Cass City and Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Ball and son Grant of Reese attended the Crocker reunion Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Cook in Saginaw.

Dan Hyzer of Caseville spent last week with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Geiger.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Finkbeiner attended open house Saturday for a grandnephew, Guy Winters, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Winters. Also guests were Henrietta Finkbeiner and Al and Althea Kabak of Farmington Hills.

psychological significance to this?)

On one occasion, it was the groom. The unruffled priest carried on while the unconscious groom was carried out. He was returned and propped up in time to be pronounced man, as in man and wife.

Then there was the bride who didn't have a thing to wear.

I encountered her a few years ago in the UPS office, frantically trying to track down the gown that still hadn't arrived for her wedding the next day.

The late Fritz Neitzel, who photographed a lot of weddings, used to say, "The bride came down the aisle wearing a smile." Perhaps this was the one.

One perfectionistic bride had planned and executed every detail to assure there would be no slip ups. Nevertheless, when it was time to begin, the organist couldn't find the key to the organ.

After frantic searching to no avail, it was decided that she would have to play the piano instead, which worked out okay, but it altered the whole ceremony.

When the mother of another bride broke her foot just before the big day and had to go down the aisle in a wheelchair, the fathers of the couple had to take the mothers' places in lighting the candles.

If there's anything to be learned from all this, I guess it's that it pays to be flexible and maintain a sense of humor.

And that, by the way, is not a bad way to begin a marriage.

Rabbit Tracks

(And anyone else he can

Teachers' salaries are increasing faster than the rate of inflation, a report from the Michigan Association of School Boards says.

Salaries will increase an average of 5.8 percent next fall, based on data from 438 of the state's 524 K-12 districts and 48 of 57 intermediate school districts. That's without "step" increases for all teachers who have not reached the top of the pay scale for years of service.

Both the taxpayers and the teachers come up losers in payment for health care. Teachers (including Cass City) have been accepting deductibles, but the cost to school districts has increased despite the change in benefits, the report reveals.

Repeated calls to Rev. Harry Capps have been unsuccessful in talking with the former pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Cass City. Capps is leaving and, according to members of the congregation, is leaving the pulpit.

Over the years we've had several opportunities to hear Capps speak and always have been impressed with the way he organized his material.

We were even more impressed with his public speaking ability. After hearing him I always left with the feeling that he was among the very best.

Notes on the first trip north for the summer season. Maybe because it's too early for the tourist boom, it appeared relatively quiet over the weekend. There were vacancies in nearly every motel that we passed.

Folks in the north evidently feel that the lull, if there was one, is strictly temporary. Building is booming, including a very large shopping center in Gaylord and individual buildings sprouting like mushrooms almost everywhere.

Shaw moving to Spurgeon College

The Rev. R. Mark Shaw, son of Dick and Shirley Shaw of Cass City, has resigned his pastoral ministry in Waterloo, Iowa, to become the assistant to the president at Spurgeon Baptist Bible College, Mulberry, Fla.

Shaw has been working with the Rev. Timothy W. Teall, former pastor at First Baptist in Cass City, in the Waterloo ministry.

Teall has accepted the position of president of Spurgeon Baptist Bible College effective Sept. 1. Both the Teall and Shaw families will be moving over the summer months to assume their new responsibilities.

Spurgeon Baptist Bible College is a ministry training school offering 6 programs of instruction designed specifically for the preparation of people in pastoral and mission ministry. The college is an approved agency of the General Association of Regular Baptist Churches and associational fellowship of which the First Baptist

Bush participates in Global Shield '90

Sgt. Bradford L. Bush recently participated in the Strategic Air Command exercise, "Global Shield '90."

The exercise tested the readiness of SAC units around the world, as well as Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard units, to carry out orders which support United States national policy.

Bush, a fuel specialist at McConnell Air Force Base, Kan., with the 384th Supply Squadron, is the son of Dinah L. and Floyd E. Argo of Devine, Texas.

His wife, Elizabeth, is the daughter of Kenneth R. and Joan E. Pierce, 6039 State St., Kingston.

Both Teall and Shaw expressed their enthusiasm over the opportunity to train the coming generations of ministry personnel for local churches.

Because O'Neil and his family were helping Rose Bell with her trade, which is helping people. "A simply marvelous family," Bell said.

Bell has achieved a modicum of local celebrity as the founder, 28 years ago, and sole operator of United Neighbors, a group of volunteers that supplies food, clothing and other aid where it's needed. And, quite uniquely, the people receiving help are required to "pay" for it by helping United Neighbors help others.

I first wrote about Rose Bell in 1980, soon after the lifeless body of her 28-year-old son, Claude Bell, was found floating in the Detroit River. It might have been suicide. Because of a painful illness, Claude wasn't able to support his family the way he wanted to. Like his mother, he spent most of his time helping others, usually children.

"Claude was always taking youngsters to wherever they had to be to get help or jobs or schooling. He tried to show them how to live in the society they have to live in," the Rev. W. Herbert Glenn said at the time. He is pastor of the Clawson United Methodist Church, a supporter of United Neighbors. Recalling the summer

Work started in early summer and stretched to late November getting ready for the big event. It had to dwindle and die as it did. This year the community is rightfully excited by the prospect of TV-5 zeroing in on Cass City for a full week for its "Our Town" program.

Given good weather, the Festival is expected to draw big crowds to the community. With the celebration the weekend before the Fourth, it's likely that more folks will be at home and available.

Every visitor is a plus. Who knows what long-term benefit may come from exposure to what we have in the community.

But, if the Festival aim becomes the same as it was at the end of "Christmas Town", it won't be long before it meets the same fate.

The idea is take the good fortune of having the publicity of television, but keep it in perspective and go on from there.

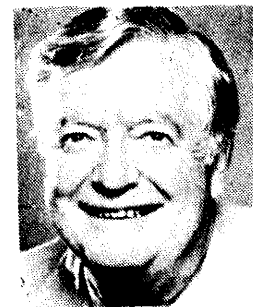

And every year more and more visitors crowded in and more and more reporters flocked to town, from Bay City, Saginaw and Detroit. And this was in the days before television had on-the-scene live reporting ability.

And with the publicity the focus changed. No longer was success measured by the enjoyment of the builders and friends and neighbors. Now it was who was getting the credit? Who was getting the most attention in the daily press and on television?

"If It Fitz..."

An ideal father

By Jim Fitzgerald

"He was the ideal father," Rose Bell said a few days before Father's Day. She was talking about Robert P. O'Neil, who died of lung cancer last Monday. He was only 53 years old.

With a kind laugh, Bell recalled the time O'Neil visited her home and she apologized because the place was a mess. "He said I should relax, if he ever saw my place when it wasn't a mess, he'd think he was in the wrong place."

I know Rose Bell. She is an elderly black woman who lives in Detroit's Jeffries Projects and her apartment is usually messy because it overflows with clothing, food baskets and other tools of her trade. I never met Dr. Robert O'Neil, but I know he was white, was the chairman of the University of Detroit's psychology department, and lived in Livonia.

QUITE A PAIR

There would seem to be some incongruity here. Why, during the past 20 years, was O'Neil a regular visitor at Bell's home? Why did he often bring along his wife, or mother, or some of his children?

Because O'Neil and his family were helping Rose Bell with her trade, which is helping people. "A simply marvelous family," Bell said.

Bell has achieved a modicum of local celebrity as the founder, 28 years ago, and sole operator of United Neighbors, a group of volunteers that supplies food, clothing and other aid where it's needed. And, quite uniquely, the people receiving help are required to "pay" for it by helping United Neighbors help others.

I first wrote about Rose Bell in 1980, soon after the lifeless body of her 28-year-old son, Claude Bell, was found floating in the Detroit River. It might have been suicide. Because of a painful illness, Claude wasn't able to support his family the way he wanted to. Like his mother, he spent most of his time helping others, usually children.

"Claude was always taking youngsters to wherever they had to be to get help or jobs or schooling. He tried to show them how to live in the society they have to live in," the Rev. W. Herbert Glenn said at the time. He is pastor of the Clawson United Methodist Church, a supporter of United Neighbors. Recalling the summer

Claude organized a summer program for about 30 youngsters, Glenn said: "He got them food, and tents to sleep in. He was like a first lieutenant. He taught them to say grace before meals and he taught them table manners."

After the drowning, Rose Bell speculated her son might have been escaping from a life of chronic unemployment. He wasn't paid for his work with children and "the system looks down on volunteers."

The system should look up at volunteers, especially such generous givers as Robert O'Neil. "He was always getting us food, clothing, toys, money. He thought of things; he gave good advice." His church, St. Priscilla Catholic Church of Livonia, collected things for United Neighbors.

"And Dr. O'Neil taught his children the meaning of poverty. He taught his kids to give," Bell said, noting she recently received a "second generation" donation from O'Neil's oldest son, now grown.

Pageant open for young ladies

A popular event started for last year's festival will take place again during the village's birthday celebration.

The Little Miss Pageant showcases some of the area's youngest ladies. Stated for June 28 at 7 p.m. in the Cass City High School cafeteria, the event isn't designed to promote competitiveness.

Girls are evaluated on their poise, appearance and ability to express themselves. Beauty and talent are not factors in this program, said coordinator Deanna Loomis.

The pageant is divided into 3 age categories: Tiny Miss, 3 and 4-year-olds and 5-year-olds who haven't started kindergarten; Little Miss, K-second grade and pre-third grade; Junior Miss, third and fourth graders and pre-fifth grade.

Registration is scheduled for June 21 at 7 p.m. in the Cass City High School speech room. Loomis will accept the first 20 registrants in each age division, 60 girls total. Participation isn't limited to Cass City residents.

Late registration and a rehearsal is slated for June 27 at 7 p.m. at Cass City High School.

For more information, call Loomis after 4:30 p.m. at 872-4221.

Round dancers

Senecals hooked on teaching

by Kristine L. Renaud
Staff Writer

Call Joe and Marianne Senecal square dancers and the pair will quickly refute that label.

Talented and stylish performers, the Cass City couple are dedicated to round dancing, a style invented by square dancers.

"Not a lot of people know about round dancing," Joe said. "But there's a lot to it. There's a lot going on."

Round dancing looks like a combination of square and ballroom dance techniques. Instead of requiring 4 couples to a square, couples perform steps with their partners while moving in a circle.

Dancers learn steps on various levels of difficulty, phases one through 6. Then the figures are combined depending on the song. Round dancers perform the same dances to the same records, and every couple in the circle moves in sync.

"A lot of the international ballroom figures have been incorporated into the round dances," Joe pointed out.

"Round dancing has really taken off because you do it as a couple," he added. The Senecals know of couples who enjoy the pastime so much they plan their time off work to coincide with round dance seminars, sort of like working vacations. The Senecals, originally from Detroit, started round dancing in 1967 when a member of their square dance club introduced them to it. They remained in the club for about 4 years then quit to raise their daughter, Diane, now married and living in Phoenix.

At the insistence of friends, the pair got back into dancing around 1977 and quickly developed their skills.

"The easy level got boring to us," Joe laughed, adding they soon moved into advanced classes. While living in Pittsburgh, from 1982 to 1984, the Senecals were members of a round dance club which pushed them to achieve higher difficulty levels.

"That's where we really developed our dancing a little more," Joe said.

TEACHING THEIR CRAFT

Shortly after moving to Cass City in 1984, the Senecals were given the opportunity to share their expertise with others, a chance they rejected at first.

While round dancing at Caro and Cass City square dances, the Senecals were approached and asked if they would consider teaching. They turned down that original offer because they didn't want to risk not having time to dance.

"Once you become a teacher, you don't have time to do any dancing yourself," Joe said.

However, in January 1985, Caro residents Fran and Norma Freville arranged for 11 couples to meet at the Senecal home for round dance lessons. Joe and Marianne soon were hooked on teaching.

One thing Joe particularly enjoys is helping men overcome the discomfort of learning to dance.

"All of a sudden you see them relaxing a little more, then their egos take over," he said. It's like the men are thinking, "I look good out here," Joe remarked.

"Women pick it up a lot easier," because generally they are more comfortable about dancing, Marianne added.

Even though the Senecals have taught for more than 5 years, they continue to take lessons and attend workshops to improve their techniques.

"If you don't keep up your own skills it's hard to teach," Marianne explained.

"When I'm teaching, I notice when I make a mistake the students make the same mistake," Joe added.

To hone their round dancing style and keep up with innovations, the Senecals belong to 3 organizations and subscribe to 6 publications.

CONTINUING EDUCATION

One group, Roundalab is an international round dance teaching club. Another organization, Michigan Round Dance Teachers Association, is one the Senecals were presidents of this past year. Universal Round Dance Council is the third club to which they belong.

"We also attend a lot of things," such as workshops and weekend-long seminars, Marianne pointed out.

At such dance clinics the Senecals learn new steps, practice execution and styling, and find out what dances are popular in the United States and abroad. "The more clinics you go to, the more national and international teachers you meet," Marianne said. They have met instructors from the Netherlands, New Zealand, Australia, Japan, West Germany, Alaska and other parts of the world.

Through the magazines and newsletters they receive, the Senecals keep up with the newest dances and discover which have made the "classics" list.

"Some dances have been around for years. Everyone still knows them and does them," Marianne said.

Round dancing is more technical now than a few years ago and that is why the Senecals try to stay in touch with trends, Joe explained. Although they learned to round dance from square dancers, many clubs are starting to hire separate round and square dance callers.

Marianne calls, referred to as cueing, round dances for the Lapeer Squarestompers, Romeo Country Cuzzins, Erie Squares in Port Huron and Wheelin' Dealers in Burton. As couples dance to round dance songs, Marianne tells them what figures to do and keeps them moving to the music's beat.

Cueing is necessary because "we don't expect the dancers to learn all the dances by memory," Marianne explained.

When Marianne isn't calling for other groups, the Senecals teach 3 nights a week in Burton, Port Huron and at home. The club that meets in their basement, the "Sen-E-Q's", formed from the original 11 couples who asked them to start teaching.

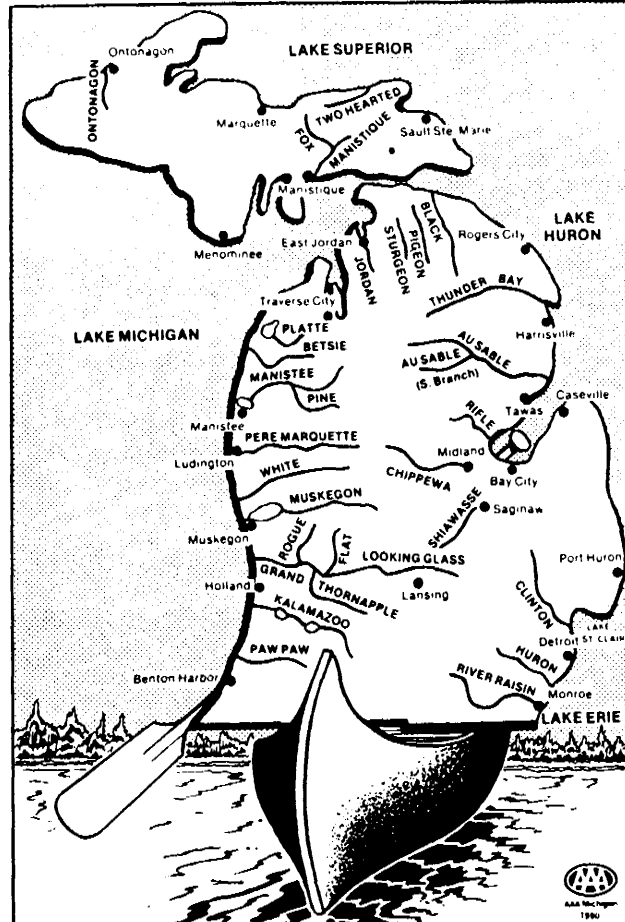

Currently, the couple has their house up for sale while Marianne works on obtaining a real estate license and Joe interviews for a new job. Even if they move out of this area, where they are established, the Senecals won't quit round dancing.

"I'm not going to give up my dancing," Marianne stated. "That's my enjoyment in life, to teach round dancing."

MICHIGAN'S POPULAR CANOEING RIVERS

Canoe rentals, public access and other services are available on most of the state's popular canoeing rivers listed. With more than 36,000 miles of rivers and streams, other Michigan rivers also provide canoeing opportunities for enthusiasts.

Marine Pfc. Steven C. Wright, son of Dalbert N. and Nancy J. Wright, 7298 E. Elmwood Rd., Cass City, recently reported for duty at Marine Corps Security Force Company, Naval Weapons Station, Charleston, S.C.

State boasts of 36,000 miles of canoe water

From a quiet paddle down a scenic river to a fast moving ride on the rapids, Michigan's 36,000 miles of inland waterways will lure thousands of canoeists this season, AAA Michigan reports.

In addition to canoes, many liveries also rent inner tubes to take advantage of growing interest in "tubing." Some liveries also provide kayaks and paddleboats.

"Canoe rental rates vary widely, ranging from $12 a day to as much as $18 an hour depending on the location," said Peter Erickson, AAA Michigan Club Services director. "But most liveries are holding prices to last year's levels."

Some liveries charge hourly rates of $3 to $18. Others reserve canoes for 2 1/2 hour blocks at costs between $14 and $20. Some charge daily rates of $12 to $30. Half-day, weekly and group discounts also may be available.

Rivers listed on the AAA Michigan 1990 Canoe Guide range from quiet water to fast moving with rapids. For more information about individual liveries, write to the Michigan Recreational Canoeing Association, P.O. Box 296, Montague, Mich. 49437. The association represents more than half of state liveries.

Most liveries open in April or May and remove canoes from the water in October or November. Reservations are recommended, especially during holidays and summer weekends.

Those heading out for a river paddle should wear tennis shoes and bring a dry change of clothing, suntan oil, hat and windbreaker. Leave expensive jewelry home and place wallets and keys in zippered or buttoned pockets.

To keep personal possessions dry, place items in garbage bags sealed separately and packed one inside the other. Attach bags to the canoe.

Alcohol affects balance and coordination and increases your willingness to take risks, so don't drink while canoeing. Canoeists should know how to swim and wear personal flotation devices approved by the U.S. Coast Guard.

L. Jamison selected for honor guard

A Cass City girl is among 52 Mitten Bay Girl Scouts and 7 adults selected to serve the State of Michigan as the Governor's Honor Guard at the Scout Service Camp on Mackinac Island Aug. 11-18.

She is Laura Jamison, daughter of Eugene and Pat Jamison, Cass City, who along with Rebecca Petersen and Heather Rundel, both of Caro, will represent Tuscola County.

The Scout Service Camp is the only location in the United States where Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts are integral to the operation of an historical site.

Each summer, thousands of visitors from all over the world visit Mackinac Island. As these visitors tour the historic Fort Mackinac and other sites, they are greeted by a Girl Scout's smile and friendly assistance.

Your neighbor says

Civil War reenactors spark Smith's interest

With the village celebrating its 125th birthday, Cass City's Fourth of July festival promises special attractions this time around.

Popular events from past years, the 3 on 3 basketball games, pool games for the kids, the parade, a flea market, arts and crafts and fireworks will return along with a few extras.

Civil War reenactors may prove to be the most outstanding addition to the festival. Authentic camps set up in the park, artillery demonstrations and a staged battle probably will draw record crowds.

Although this year's gala is noteworthy due to the village's anniversary, many residents have appreciated the last 12 festivals as well.

Your neighbor J.E. Smith said he has attended village festivals since before 1979, when they were organized in honor of July 4.

Some of Smith's favorite activities are the parade, basketball tournaments, mud volleyball and the Sally Doerr dancers, just because such events are fun to watch.

If asked by the festival committee to suggest improvements, Smith said "I perhaps would like to see a few more high school bands."

However, he said he understands the difficulties in reassembling bands after school lets out for the summer and families leave on vacations.

History is something about which Smith enjoys reading and he's looking forward to seeing the Civil War reenactors. As for the battle, "I'm interested in seeing how it comes out," he remarked.

Another member of the Smith household, son Robert, makes a point of attending the festival. An Upper Peninsula resident since 1981, Robert spends a week at his parents' Cass City home during the July 4 celebration. Smith thinks his son may have ulterior motives for returning every year. "I think he comes to enjoy his mother's home cooking."

Cost savings of generic drugs can be dramatic

Generic drugs enjoy widespread use, yet many consumers know little about them and have questions regarding their use.

"Generic drugs are effective. They are chemically the same as brand name drugs, but usually cost less - in some cases dramatically less - than brand name drugs," said Dr. Fred Sevryn, associate medical director for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan (BCBSM). "Generics have played an important role in health care over the last 3 decades," he added.

In 1988, sales of generic drugs nationwide were $3.4 billion, accounting for one third of all prescriptions filled.

To get Federal Drug Administration (FDA) approval, a generic drug must be the same as its brand name counterpart. It must contain the same amount of active ingredients, call for the same dosage, and be taken in the same manner, for example by mouth.

Manufacturers also are required to prove that the generic drug is bioequivalent to the original. Bioequivalency means that the generic drug is absorbed into the bloodstream at the same rate and to the same degree as the brand name drug.

Recent attention has been focused on generic drugs because the FDA is investigating allegations that a few manufacturers tried to speed up the drug approval process.

"What has come out of these incidents is an even more stringent application process for new generic drugs," said Dr. Sevryn. "The FDA is taking steps to make sure that generic drugs maintain the good track record they have had over the years."

The cost savings of generic drugs can be dramatic. For instance, a 2 week supply of the brand name antibiotic "doxycycline" can cost a pharmacy $55, while its generic equivalent costs $5. A similar supply of the brand name "cephalexin," also an antibiotic, can cost a pharmacy nearly $80, compared to $28 for its generic form.

Drug manufacturers apply to the FDA for approval to produce a generic drug after the patent on a brand name drug expires. Because the generic manufacturer does not have the advertising and development costs of the original producer of the brand name drug, generics usually can be sold for much less than brand name drugs.

On occasion, a physician may prefer a brand name drug for a certain patient. The physician indicates this by writing "D.A.W." on the prescription, or "Dispense As Written."

A recent sampling taken by the FDA of the top 30 generic drugs found only 1.1 percent lacked potency or didn't dissolve properly, approximately the same percentage found in brand name drugs. The 30 drugs tested represent approximately 75 percent of all new generic prescriptions.

Gardners need 3,000 man-hours to create Great Lakes fishing boat

In January, Todd Williams, of the Bay Port Fish Company, approached Weldall Welding's president, Gary Gardner, with a proposition. Would you be interested in building a 50' long, 16' wide, 100% aluminum fishing vessel?, he asked. Six months and 3,000 man hours later, the ship is ready to set sail.

The project is a classic example of how Weldall Welding, located south of Elkton, has converted itself from a hammer and tong shop into industry fabrication specialists.

It all started 27 years ago, when Ellis Gardner was working as a welder for Active Industry and decided to do a little moonlighting at home.

"Back then we did mostly agriculture repairs," says Gary, who holds a welding and design degree from Ferris State University.

As business grew and Ellis's free time diminished, he was forced to make a decision. Either close shop and work normal hours for Active Industries, or venture into business for himself.

"My father wanted to know if I would be interested in carrying on the business someday," remembers Gary, a high school student at the time.

Continuing, if I wouldn't have wanted to follow in my dad's footsteps, he would have returned to Active Industries, where his future was more safeguarded.

Today Weldall Welding employs over 10 people and topples $400,000 in gross sales annually.

Gary, currently working towards his mechanical engineering degree from Saginaw Valley State University, was a little bit more apprehensive about their latest endeavor than his father.

"When you've got so much time invested into a project that you've never done before, it's a gamble," says the 33-year-old Gardner.

The undertaking will account for a generous portion of Weldall Welding's sales this year.

"We have always enjoyed new challenges," remarked the father of 2. "We've been known to take on the jobs nobody else wants."

To construct the super structure, which weighs some 15,000 lbs., Gardner needed the expertise of 2 individuals.

Tim Graul, a Wisconsin architect, supplied the blueprints for the craft.

"Actually the blueprints just give you some general ideas to go by. Precise measurements and configuration were left up to us."

That's where 40 years of boat building experience by Bay Port's Fred Brown was required.

"Fred was hired as a consultant," according to Gardner, who had nothing but praise for the 70+-year-old Brown.

Brown will also oversee the installation of the craft's instrumentation and power supply, a 520 horsepower turbine diesel which will drive a single 32" propeller.

That should allow the ship to travel around 25 knots per hour and hold around 20,000 lbs. of fish. It will draft nearly 5' of water.

Gardner, who started welding at age 7, pointed out some of the advantages of the aluminum vessel.

"Their (Bay Port Fish Company's) biggest saving will be in maintenance. Aluminum won't rust and it's 1/3 lighter than steel."

Gardner senses his business is heading in the direction of "set product line" in the 90's.

"We're very thankful for the support local farmers have given us. Without them, we wouldn't exist, but our future will be in design."

Currently, Weldall Welding has a patented picnic table and plans are under way, with a Cass City native, to market a boat anchor.

Further, the company helped design Walbro's Fuels Test Center in Caro.

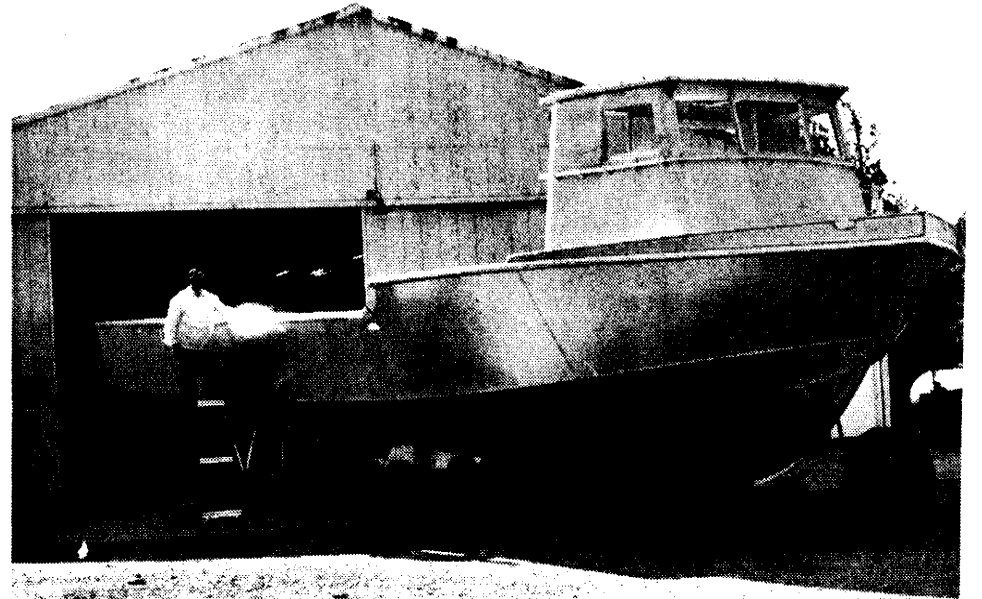

The lab, which is featured on many of Walbro's yearly reports, is a world class showpiece, used to monitor fuel pumps. Its design will be implemented in Walbro plants in France and Korea.

Gardner isn't sure if he'll ever build another ship, but is certain about one thing.

"It'll be a whole lot easier the second time around," he smiled.

THE 100% ALUMINUM VESSEL, 1/3 lighter than a comparable steel ship, is actually several pieces of aluminum welded together. Here a worker puts the finishing touches on the ship's deck.

READY TO go to work.

SMALL HOTEL

WILD AND WOOLY — "American Safari" was the theme of First Baptist Church's vacation Bible school. The program, conducted last week, featured the use of preserved animals and skins. Pictured are Pastor Jim Howard, a woodchuck and several delighted children.

Theme attracts kids to vacation Bible school

Inside a green canvas tent on the church lawn, Safari Sam related tales of wild animals and Bible characters. Outside, Curly the gorilla drew a crowd of children, some delighted and some fearful.

This was the wild scene at last week's First Baptist Church vacation Bible school. Safari Sam (alias:

assistant pastor Jim Howard) decided to call the program "American Safari" because of the theme's outlandishness.

"Youth pastors usually come up with crazy ideas," for vacation Bible study activities, he said.

In this day and age when it seems Bible schools might disappear, Howard said he was "surprised" and "shocked" at the number of children that registered.

"This year we've had record attendance," he remarked. About 170 children came for Tuesday's session and more than that were on hand Wednesday, which reflects an increase of over 35 kids per day, he noted.

Perhaps the use of authentic animal skins and real stuffed animals contributed to the school's success, Howard said.

Dale Doyen, a local taxidermist donated several hides, a bear head, an alligator, woodchuck, snakes and other preserved animals for "Safari Sam" to use during his lessons.

Howard makes comparisons between humans and other living creatures to illustrate the powers of strong faith, as well as teaching about popular Bible figures.

First Baptist's vacation Bible school was open June 11 to 15 from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. for area children.

Area escapes major Gypsy Moth infestation this year

by Kristine L. Renaud
Staff Writer

Gypsy moth caterpillars were sighted recently in Cass City, but the usually pesky critters aren't causing a lot of problems in this region.

Tuscola County's cooperative extension office has received a few reports of gypsy moth larvae infestation from the Cass City area, said director Dennis Stein. "I anticipate more people will be coming to the forefront as time goes on," he added.

Even if residents do start noticing gypsy moth larvae on their property, it's too late in the season to try and control the caterpillars.

"Any application of pesticides... is against our recommendations at this time," Stein said. Pesticides kill parasites and other natural gypsy moth predators, causing more harm than good.

Generally areas with high levels of infestation participate in a suppression program, started when the caterpillars are feeding.

Such control programs involve using an aerial applicator to distribute an environmentally-sound bacterial spray over infected areas. The spray remains on foliage for 7 to 10 days, during which time caterpillars eat the treated leaves. The bacteria reacts badly with the caterpillars' digestive systems and kills them.

Tuscola County is looking into the possibilities of starting a suppression program next spring because it appears the number of gypsy moths could increase.

"It'll be a significantly bigger problem next year than it was this year," Stein predicted. In Michigan, the hauling of lumber and firewood, on which the moths have laid their eggs, causes re-infestation of some areas and perpetual cycles in other regions, Stein remarked.

On the east coast the moths follow 7 to 10-year cycles, he explained. In the first 3 or 4 years the population grows, then crashes around the fourth or fifth year. A small number of moths exists for the next 3 or 4 years before increasing again.

In this part of the country the cycles aren't as regular because the moth eggs are moved from one area to another.

County residents interested in starting a Tuscola County suppression program are welcome to attend a meeting June 28 at 7 p.m. in the cooperative extension office. If the number of moth larvae will increase next year, as Stein predicted, caterpillar control may prove necessary.

Normally the caterpillars begin hatching at the end of April and in early May. Once hatched, each gypsy moth larva can eat one square foot of foliage in its lifetime, said Bay County gypsy moth program coordinator Alicia Wallace.

"If there's a very large population, they will eat every leaf on every tree," she noted.

The larvae prefer oak and hardwood leaves, Stein noted. After those leaves are gone, caterpillars will eat maple, ash and ornamental tree leaves as well as rose bushes and shrubs, he added.

At this point in the season they are mature, well-fed and almost ready to go into a cocoon stage, Stein said. Within the next few weeks the larva will prepare for its transformation by forming a hard case around its body.

Around July or August the moths will emerge from the pupae, mate and die. Egg sacs will appear as small, white patches on trees, cars, houses, lawn furniture, and other items left outside.

"You can physically scrape them off with a paint scraper or knife," but while this effort seems beneficial, it's actually futile, Stein said. Destroying the sacs in one's own yard doesn't affect the larger population.

Soon after gypsy moths make their egg sacs, small fly-like wasps lay their eggs in the sacs, killing the moth eggs. Stein said these wasps aren't harmful to humans and naturally help contain the gypsy moth population.

No artificial measures would aid in population containment or large-scale destruction at this time in the season, Stein said.

However, plans for suppressing the caterpillars next spring must begin soon, Wallace said. Counties have to identify potential spray areas by September and egg-mass surveys are done in October, November and December.

In addition, counties need to start generating funds not provided by the Michigan and the United States Departments of Agriculture, Wallace noted.

Tuscola County residents interested in a suppression program should attend the meeting June 28 or contact the cooperative extension office in Caro.

Dawn S. Deering, 4515 Leach Street, traveling east on Main Street was attempting to turn south onto Leach Street when the cars collided. Deering said that she moved over in an attempt to miss the McDonald vehicle and that she didn't see any double-parked car.

John Caudell Jr., 24, of Deford lost control of his car at 12:15 p.m. Thursday while driving on Kingston Road, a quarter of a mile north of Centerline Road.

He failed to get around a curve in the road and rolled over. He escaped with minor injuries.

Board closes Evergreen School converting the present garage into a classroom.

ROUTINE BUSINESS

Much of the rest of the agenda was routine business. Bob Kozan, who has been the acting Intermediate School maintenance supervisor and transportation director, was hired for the position.

*Lucille DeLong resigned as bus driver after 25 years.

*The board voted to start replacing typewriters at the request of Cheryl Kilbourn, high school business teacher. Many are 15 to 20 years old and the plan is to start replacing them so that none are over 10 years old.

This year 7 machines, at $375 each, will be purchased and the board will consider purchasing 8 more next year. That will replace the 15 machines in service that are 15 years or older. Total cost for 7 machines is $2,625.

*Two years ago the school started to equip buses with radios. Four more are needed next year to have units in each bus. The board okayed the purchase of 4 radios at $403 each and a total cost of $1,656.22.

*The resolution allowing the school to participate in Michigan High School Athletic Association events was approved.

*The next regular meeting of the board will be the second Monday of July instead of the third, so that the board can reorganize within the time allowed by law.

There will be a special meeting Monday, June 25, when the board will discuss goals.

*Dorland Kuntz, Evergreen principal, has been selected to attend a one and a half day session with top state department officials in Washington, D.C., and will leave Thursday.

The board and many of the visitors gave a round of applause for Dick Wallace, who served for 8 years on the board and was attending his last regular meeting.
