HARVEST TIME — Wheat yields generally are low this year in Tuscola, Sanilac and Huron counties and the crops of Uby area farmer Louis Walsh were no exception. Walsh said dry weather stunted grain development. He is pictured gathering wheat from his field near Cumber and Wheeler Roads.

Crops look good, not great; wheat yields under average

by Kristine L. Renaud
Staff Writer

Despite scattered problems with drought, heavy winds, insects and diseases, the agricultural situation in the tri-county area seems about average and slightly above that mark in some regions.

"For the most part I think things are looking pretty good," commented Martin Nagelkirk, Sanilac County's cooperative extension director and crop agent. In Huron County "Crops are looking pretty fair," according to agricultural agent Jim LeCureux.

Tuscola County's cooperative extension director Dennis Stein agreed that, overall, the season should result in normal crops. However, the dry spring, aphid infestation and diseases could prevent a high wheat yield in Tuscola County, Stein noted.

"I think all those things compiled together will have an effect on the wheat return."

Stormy weather and showers prevented harvesting from starting in Tuscola until last week. So far the grain yield appears below the norm, Stein said.

Sugar beet fields generally avoided insect and illness troubles, but Stein noted some beets suffered from wind damage early in the growing season and were replanted as many as 3 times. Only a small percentage of the entire crop was destroyed, he added and "It probably won't have an effect on the overall yield."

Beet harvesting starts late in September. Until then weather conditions could still improve or hinder the crop, Stein remarked, adding no major delays are foreseen.

Armyworms feasted on the county's cereal crops, primarily enjoying the oats. "They basically defoliate the plants by eating the leaves," he explained. "The worms clip the heads off the stalks. They are not harvestable then."

Stein said because the pests appeared late in the season, yield loss should prove fairly small.

LIVESTOCK WILL BENEFIT

Alfalfa fields overcame the odds and produced a bumper crop this year. "Hopefully it will help to make a better quality feed, which should result in more milk production," he remarked.

Dry beans are turning into another high-yield crop. Beans growing in this area, especially Tuscola and Huron counties, look good enough to influence prices on the national market, Stein predicted. Wheat and corn grown elsewhere in the Midwest are lowering country-wide prices in those markets.

"It's the national picture that's going to affect the corn market," LeCureux commented. "Prices are still higher than some of the lows we've seen over the years," Stein said.

Although Huron County's corn and bean fields look promising, LeCureux said wheat yields are down in some areas because of crop ailments, cool temperatures and insufficient moisture. Fortunately, farmers were able to deal with a few isolated cases of armyworms.

"Most of the armyworms were controlled by border spraying," LeCureux noted. In Sanilac County wheat harvesting is nearly complete and the bean and corn crops appear healthy, Nagelkirk said.

Due to several small grain and wheat diseases, primarily the barley yellow dwarf mosaic virus, the cereal crops incurred some damage, he remarked. Various fungi and armyworms also took their toll, but not to a severe extent.

Recent rainfall helped the plants but cool temperatures hindered their growth, he added. "We're really not that different from last year, but I still don't quite see the temperatures the crops would enjoy."

SET-BACKS HINDER CROPS

Although cereal crops such as wheat, barley and oats have survived and are ready for harvesting, other plants are still recovering from early set-backs. Cutting winds damaged sugar beet fields in some areas of Sanilac County, requiring 2 or 3 replantings and causing some economic loss. However, improving weather conditions helped revive the plants.

"I think the sugar beets are looking pretty good overall," Nagelkirk remarked. In addition to a favorable agricultural outlook, county livestock farmers have good reports as well. "They're telling me they've got more hay than they know what to do with, and that their corn looks better than ever," said Brian Troyer, Sanilac County dairy agent.

Individual area farmers generally concur with the county-wide findings in Please turn to back page.

Caroite faces rape charge

A Caro area man was arrested Friday in connection with the July 11 rape of a Caro woman in her home.

Troopers at the state police post in Caro said officers from the Caro and Bridgeport posts arrested Rickey Lee Hutcherson, 35, in Bridgeport at about 11:20 p.m.

Hutcherson was arraigned Saturday in Tuscola County District Court and is being held on $600,000 bond. A preliminary examination is set for Aug. 8.

Arrested on a 7-count warrant, the suspect is charged with first degree Criminal Sexual Conduct, breaking and entering, unlawfully driving away an automobile, assault with intent to rob while armed, and 3 counts of use of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

According to troopers, the victim had arrived home at about 1 p.m. July 11 when she was accosted by a male intruder who had entered the home prior to her arrival. After assaulting the woman, the intruder left the residence and fled the scene in the victim's vehicle.

The vehicle was later found abandoned in the parking lot of the Big Wheel Store just outside of Caro.

Troopers, who were assisted by Caro police, said a lead developed during their investigation led to Friday's arrest.

KAREN LENTON HOLDS one of her favorites among a doll collection estimated at some 200 pieces — the Tiny Tears doll she had as a little girl. The Uby area woman, whose family also collects tractors, toys and teddy bears, also restores and makes dolls. (Story page 5.)

Village to pay $2,000 to help pay brochure cost

A request to help pay the cost of a brochure featuring Cass City, and a proposal to pave an alley in the village were approved during a brief monthly Village Council meeting Monday night.

The request for funds—$2,000—was made by the village's Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsoring the project.

The 20-page brochure, which is entering the final stages of production, will showcase Cass City, featuring a number of pictures and emphasizing the quality of life available in the area.

In a letter to the council, chamber president Jeri Tordai explained that 10,000 copies of the brochure are being printed at a cost of $5,000, and that the expense

"is beyond the capability of the chamber budget."

Village President L.E. Althaver noted Hills and Dales General Hospital and service clubs, as well as the chamber, are sharing the cost.

Turning to the alley proposal, the council noted it has received a petition from residents asking that the alley behind their 4 Main Street lots, between Downing and Brooker streets, be paved.

The residents also suggested that they pay for the work initially and then be reimbursed by the village over a 3-year period, a payment method which has been used with similar projects in the past.

"If the property owners are willing to do it, I don't see any problem," Althaver remarked during discussion of the matter. "We're not talking about a lot of money. I would say, $3,000 max."

Due to the absence of village Manager Lou S. LaPonzie Monday night, the council referred the matter to its Streets and Parking Committee, and voted to authorize the committee to investigate and go ahead with the project.

In other business during the 30-minute regular session, the council approved plans to fence the football field and track facility, and voted to donate several hundred feet of fencing for the project.

The fence to be donated currently is located along Ale Street, council members noted, adding a section bordering the basketball courts will remain where it is.

Also Monday, the council: —Noted that 36.38 percent of village taxes have been collected to date, compared with 16.66 percent at the same time a year ago.

—Learned the village's second application for Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund Program monies has been denied. The funding was sought to purchase a water slide for the village pool.

—Approved a motion to send a letter of support for a recycling grant being sought by Tuscola County officials. If approved, the funding will be used for education and promotion of resource recovery.

$999 pliers?

By Jim Fitzgerald

It was recently revealed that the federal government paid $999 for a pair of pliers. So what I want to know is how come the FBI couldn't get a clearer picture of Mayor Marion Barry smoking crack, if that's what he was really doing. From where I sat, he could have been taking nose drops.

It wasn't surprising that the Barry hotel-room video was so lousy - poor lighting, blurred images, muffled dialogue, unimaginative directing, tacky set, amateurish camera technique, uninspired choreography. The same thumbs-down review was earned several years ago when the FBI taped some congressmen for the AB-SCAM Film Festival.

And remember the dreadful mess the government made of John DeLorean's image? DeLorean went into the project with an international reputation for being a wealthy, super-smart chief executive, always completely in charge. He came out looking like the second lead in a 1940 stag film, sitting on a cheap hotel couch, hoping humbly for a star dope dealer to save his farm from foreclosure.

FBI videotapes are always in black and white. That makes our federal government look cheap and ridiculous. My relatives tape boring cocktail parties in full color, for Lord's sake, and no one ever wants to look at them. The Barry tapes were shown on television to intrigued viewers all over the world. Do we have to wait 30 years for Ted Turner to colorize FBI tapes before we know what shade suit the mayor of Washington, D.C., wears to trysts?

Siskel and Ebert might suggest that the hidden-camera genre needs murky black and white to provide a realistic atmosphere for tapes of mayors who sneak around on their wives. I might suggest that pompous critics who always pronounce "genre" correctly should be smart enough to realize that anyone who can't cheat realistically in living color has no business running for public office.

To me, it appears obvious that FBI videotape productions are severely under-budgeted. But why? Pratt & Whitney, the jet-engine builder that sold those $999 pliers to the Air Force, defended the price by saying, "They're multipurpose - not only do they put the clips on but they take them off." Give me a break. Is there any tax-funded product or project more multipurpose than a videotape of an elected official breaking the law?

First, there's the entertainment purpose, especially during the summer when reruns and rejected sitcom pilots put everyone to sleep. It is fascinating for Joe Doe to see his congressman take money under the same Holiday Inn table that Joe has put his feet under.

Second, there's the job purpose. Hidden cameras require holes in hotel and motel walls. Skilled American laborers must be hired to drill those holes.

Third, there's the public reassurance purpose. Ever since Richard Nixon said he wasn't a crook, many of us have had doubts about our elected officials. Well-produced videotapes can reassure us we were right in the first place.

Those are only 3 reasons why the FBI videotaping budget should be greatly increased. If we can afford $999 for one lousy pair of pliers, we can certainly afford Warner Brothers-type spending for the sophisticated camera equipment and experienced people needed to produce high-quality, full-color tapes of top government officials getting in trouble in hotel rooms.

One tip: Rather than teach quality filmmaking to an FBI agent, it might be easier to teach sleazy entrapment to Steven Spielberg.

3 from area on dean's list

Three area residents have been named to the spring term dean's list at Northwood Institute, Midland.

They are junior Mark J. Him and senior Lisa A. Him, both the children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Him of Cass City, and sophomore Darin J. Gyomory, the son of Judy Gyomory of Deford and Jim Gyomory of Middlebury, Ind.

To achieve dean's list recognition, students must earn a 3.0 grade point average on a 4.0 scale.

GIVE ME THAT old-time religion — Last week Argyle, Decker and Shabbona United Methodist Churches sponsored a vacation Bible school titled "Bibletimes Marketplace." Tents were erected on the Shabbona church lawn to create homes and craft booths for an ancient Biblical village. About 65 children participated in the 4-day event. Pictured in the weaving tent are Argyle residents Tanya Janqow (left) and Bobbi Armstead.

The Haire Net

In the olden, golden days wives listened to their husbands. It was an admirable system.

I was reminded of that when Anita Loomis was in the office and casually remarked about the Chronicle's bookkeeping system.

She was noticing the piles of papers and books strewn around the office in hurricane fashion. All part of my wife's bookkeeping system. I hastened to tell Mrs. Loomis that she had touched a husband-wife nerve end. For a couple of years now I have been pushing for a switch to one of the computers we have in the office. Dorothy will have nothing to do with it.

Let me say that I don't expect the computer to be better or more accurate than the way that we have been doing it for 40 years. (Forty years, doesn't that tell you something?) In fact it may be less effective. The old formula still applies: garbage in, garbage out.

But what happens if you aren't available? I ask her. That's all it takes to start a violent temperature change. First it gets red hot around here, and then plunges into a deep, deep freeze.

Rational discussion like the kind you can have when discussing a business decision between co-workers (especially if they are men) goes out the window.

All of this was explained to Mrs. Loomis and she indicated that she knew just where my wife was coming from. There aren't any computers in dispute at the Loomis household as far as I know, but Don Loomis failed to pile up any points recently and in fact may have used up any that he had stockpiled.

It happened in a restaurant when the conversation switched to favorite meals. Everyone told what was best for him or her. Don Loomis piped up with this gem. When I want a favorite home-cooked meal I go to a restaurant.

Whew! I don't know what happened then, but I was in the fallout range when Anita came to the Chronicle.

Can you imagine?, she fumed. Here is a guy who never in his married life has eaten anything but home-made bread and rolls and he said he has to go to the restaurant.

Now any beleaguered husband can tell you that a remark like this was made in jest. It's just that wives don't take the time to understand little witiccisms like this.

Like Rex Harrison says in "My Fair Lady", why can't a woman be more like a man?

Crown Amusements Inc., the firm that provides the rides and concessions for the Tuscola County Fair and other similar events, has an agent well-known in the Thumb area. He is Red Morgan, a former coach at Akron-Fairgrove and Kingston. He was in the office on business and remarked that his firm could spice up the Cass City Festival.

Cass City has always shied away from this type entertainment, preferring to stick with home-generated activities.

There's a temptation to say that, depending on the cost, maybe carnival rides should be added to give the event a shot of adrenaline. They add something, especially for the kids, but they take something away, too. You lose a little of the one-on-one home town flavor when any group of pros comes in.

A Cass City woman, Kay Warner, is doing her bit in a campaign to recruit adults for girl scouting. Kay Warner, director for the Mid-Thumb Service Unit of the Mitten Bay Girl Scout Council, has taped a public service commercial that is slated to be aired in about 10 days on channel 5.

The TV spots are part of a media blitz that also includes radio and print media.

Indian relics featured at church museum

Indian artifacts will be featured at St. Mary's Church-Parisville museum the first Sundays in August and September.

Rocks carved and painted by Indians, stone and prehistoric axes, and similar items will add to the museum's usual display of antiques and Michigan relics.

Located in a 115-year-old building north of the church, the museum originally opened about 10 years ago, closed about 5 years after that and was reopened last summer, said curator Clemens Ulfig.

Many of the Indian articles displayed in the museum were found on the Ulfig farm, he said. Parishioners Bea Kubacki and Pat Vogel also donated historical relics and help run the church-owned museum, Ulfig noted.

From Memorial Day to Labor Day the museum is open the first Sunday of each month from noon to 4 p.m. On Aug. 5 and September 2 a special display of Indian relics will add to the museum's collection of antiques.

All are welcome to visit the museum, located at 4190 Parisville Road, Ruth, free of charge.

Your neighbor says

Exercise requires time and motivation

For more than a decade, many Americans have pursued healthier lifestyles. Increased aerobic activity, decreased fat intake and challenging forms of exercise such as rock climbing and kayaking seem to define life in the United States.

However, a majority of this country's citizens aren't enthused about sweating, excited by cholesterol-free foods or slaves to formalized fitness programs. Most people engage in moderate exercise and junk food consumption.

Your neighbor, Gagetown resident Cheryl Heckman, said she exercised regularly until she got married 2 years ago.

"I used to do aerobics everyday and more bike riding," she commented.

Heckman said she hasn't had time for a daily regimen since marrying Dale Heckman, a Walbro employee, and moving from Custer, Mi. to Caro then Cass City and recently to Gagetown.

A bookkeeper for Harris-Hampshire Insurance Agency in Cass City, Heckman said she and her husband get their exercise by enjoying spring and summer pastimes like golfing, biking, playing softball and occasionally canoeing or playing volleyball. In the winter they are less active, she noted.

Although Heckman said she buys low-fat and non-fat foods, lean meats and skim milk, there are times when she and Dale throw caution to the wind. "We frequent fast food restaurants, too," she admitted.

If she could find time in her schedule, Heckman said she'd start a regular exercise routine again. "I used to do 15 to 20 minutes of aerobics 4 or 5 days a week. I'd like to get back into that," she remarked. "The only problem is getting motivated and taking the time to do it."

Tuscola County SCD to get DNR pollution control grant

Rep. Dick Allen (R-Caro) and Sen. James A. Barcia (D-Bay City) announced that the Tuscola County Soil Conservation District has been selected to receive a $20,450 grant to control nonpoint sources of pollution to the Allen Drain.

Nonpoint sources of pollution are diffuse; they do not enter streams through pipes or other conveyances. Typically, they are related to storm events.

The grant is offered by the Surface Water Quality Division of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources using money available through the Federal Clean Water Act.

The grant will support planning activities in the Allen Drain Watershed to investigate pollution from intensive agricultural production. The Tuscola County Soil Conservation District will coordinate with the Cooperative Extension Service and the Tuscola County Drain Commissioner in the project.

Soil and water samples from similar watersheds have tested positive for pesticides and nutrients. Soil carried from the watershed by water or wind erosion contributes to the declining quality of water in Saginaw Bay.

"This planning effort will identify the soil conservation practices needed to reduce this pollution, their costs, and incentives needed to implement the plan," stated Allen and Barcia. "Staff of the Tuscola County Soil Conservation District will work closely with local landowners in this effort," they concluded.

AT LEFT and above are examples of the Lentons' antique tractor collection, which includes some 200 miniatures and 13 models of the real thing.

Wayne and Karen Lenton Ubly family's home a showcase of old dolls, toys and tractors

When it comes to visiting a garage sale or flea market, Karen Lenton has a simple philosophy — if she sees a pretty face, she considers making a purchase.

Judging by a recent visit to her Ubly area home, Lenton has seen quite a few pretty faces over the past 5 years.

That's how long she's been collecting dolls — nearly 200 at last count. Her collection ranges from the old — an estimated 50-year-old doll that belonged to her grandmother — to the new, including a special edition model of ageless Barbie.

Lenton's love of dolls of all sizes, shapes and styles can be seen in just about every room of the home she shares with husband Wayne, son John, 13, and daughter Diane, 19.

But it's also apparent she isn't the only collector in the family.

A pair of barn-shaped wooden showcases hanging on the wall of the kitchen contain several matchbox size antique tractors. A few feet away, in John's bedroom, several toy sized models are displayed, and outside, in a pair of barns, are more than a dozen models of the real thing.

"We collect tractors, we collect toys. I have a lot of toys from when I was little, and my husband does, too," Karen remarked, adding her daughter also is a collector — of teddy bears.

"I go to garage sales and a lot of flea markets," she continued. "We go to a lot of engine shows, tractor shows, just about every week. And where there's an engine show, there's a flea market."

TRADITION

Karen pointed to a camper parked outside her home and explained they pack it up and take off for various shows throughout the state. It's a summer tradition they've enjoyed for about 10 years.

Karen said the interest in tractors grew, in part, out of toys given to her son when he was small boy.

"As he got older and we got into this more, we just started collecting them for ourselves," she said.

The family's enthusiasm also was sparked when they attended their first tractor show and met others who share the same interest. "That led to another one and another one," Karen added.

While a number of the models were gifts to John and some were Wayne's as he was growing up, a number of the tractors have been picked up at shows, garage sales and flea markets.

Other tractors have been added to the collection by simply taking advantage of a good opportunity.

"I was delivering flowers one day and I went up to this door and on the porch was this little John Deere tractor, and it was broken," Karen recalled, adding she later asked if the toy was for sale and bought it.

FIXES THEM

Like the toys the couple collects, Karen indicated she handed the broken model to Wayne, who restores both the small and larger tractors as well as antique farm implements and gas engines. She smiled and added, "I find them, he fixes them."

Karen, who's on the board of directors of the Thumb 2-Cylinder Club, commented that she enjoys helping Wayne and John with their hobby.

Collecting the antique models for her, she said, is "just like dolls — I don't have a preference for any one kind; I like them all."

On the other hand, Karen remarked, "I guess I'm kind of on my own as far as the dolls are concerned."

"I have always liked dolls, even as a kid, and I had a lot."

Although she's collected for only a few years, she's managed to put together an impressive display that includes porcelain, rubber and cloth doll figures.

She and her husband have also refurbished an antique baby buggy that holds her grandmother's doll.

TINY TEARS

Among her favorite figures are a Tiny Tears doll she had as a little girl, a trio of porcelain Goldilocks, Shirley Temple and Heidi dolls she bought from a doll company, and a baby doll made in Spain that she picked up at a garage sale.

Karen, who purchased that doll for $1 and used her sewing skills to repair the figure, later saw an identical doll at a show in Indiana. The asking price was $105.

Karen pointed out that she purchases few new collectors' dolls from companies because of the expense involved — many of the companies' prices start at $50 per doll.

"There are some that run $1,000 to $1,200," she said, "but you won't see any here."

Still, Karen indicated she enjoys collecting without spending a fortune. And when she's not checking out a flea market or other sales, she's making dolls and other crafts.

"I guess they're just fun to show off and to talk to people about," she commented.

Karen noted that the dolls that catch her eye aren't necessarily valuable or antique.

"If they've got a pretty face (and) the price is right,

Races, ballot issues await Huron, Sanilac residents

Area voters in Huron and Sanilac counties will decide primary races for county commission seats and a circuit court judgeship, as well as a variety of special ballot issues in the Aug. 7 election.

HURON COUNTY

Five candidates, including 3 from Ubly, are vying for the Huron County Commission seat representing District 4, which includes Bingham Township.

The candidates are Democrat Alfred Grifka, Ubly, and Republicans Shirley C. Guza, Harbor Beach, William Nugent, Bad Axe, and Julia Heilig and Earl Longuski, both of Ubly.

The incumbent, Jean Talski, didn't seek re-election.

Another primary race will be decided in District one, which consists of 4 townships, including Brookfield. There, incumbent Bruce Kuhl, Bay Port, is being challenged by Gerald Elston of Unionville. Both are Republicans.

In District 2, which includes Grant and Sheridan townships, incumbent Republican R. Dale Wertz, Bay Port, is running unopposed. Two area townships will also decide millage renewal requests.

Bingham Township voters will be asked to approve a road millage of 2 mills for 5 years for construction and maintenance, and Sheridan Township voters will be asked to approve 2 mills for 2 years for road improvements and one mill for 2 years for fire and ambulance protection.

SANILAC COUNTY

In Sanilac County, area voters will cast ballots for county commission and circuit judge candidates, and on 2 countwide ballot issues.

Three candidates are seeking the county commission seat representing District 5, which includes Greenleaf, Evergreen, Lamotte and Argyle townships.

Seeking the post are Democrat Guenther Kellner of Forestville, Republican incumbent Brad Apsey, Deckerville, and former commissioner and challenger Eugene Foote, a Republican from Snover.

In addition, Evergreen Township voters will be asked to approve a millage renewal of one mill for 5 years to upgrade, widen and pave 5 miles of German Road, from Deckerville Road to Robinson Road.

On the non-partisan ballot 4 candidates are vying for the 24th Judicial Circuit judgeship. They are Sandusky attorneys J. Anthony Sykora, Joseph A. Greenleaf and Donald A. Teeple, and Sanilac County Prosecutor James V. Young.

Sanilac County voters also face county-wide proposals requesting renewal of five tenths of a mill for drug take force funding, and whether to allow bow and arrow hunting on Sundays.

Corn silage clinic slated

A special statewide corn silage clinic will be conducted Aug. 30 at the Colony House near Cass City. The theme of this event is "Corn Silage Success".

The morning session (9:30 a.m. - 12 noon) will involve 2 on-farm demonstrations. The first will feature the influence of variety on maturity and forage quality, how to use visual indicators to estimate dry matter and 3 rapid drying methods to predict dry matter.

At the second farm demonstration, MSU Extension specialists will address silo design, calibration of application equipment, packing/covering silage and safety techniques with silos.

The afternoon seminar (1:00 - 3:30) will include the pricing of corn silage in the field and the silo, silage additives and preservatives and the feeding of corn silage for dairy or beef production.

The clinic is sponsored by the Michigan Cooperative Extension Service.

More money expected

Schools welcome aid bill

Friday's signing of a new state aid school bill by Gov. James J. Blanchard was welcome news for a number of area school systems.

As reported in the Chronicle earlier this month, Cass City Schools is among the Michigan districts that will reap the benefits of the bill, with an expected state aid increase of 7.6 percent.

If all other factors that influence the amount of state aid received remain the same, the Cass City District would receive an estimated $369,712 more in the coming school year than it did in 1989-90.

The following is a rundown on how other area school systems expect to fare.

OWEN-GAGE

In the Owen-Gage School District, where officials expect to see a decline in enrollment, the new bill may mean the difference between staying in-formula and returning to out-of-formula status.

"It makes me more optimistic that we will be in-formula, (but) it's still going to be close," school Supt. Harley Kirby said, adding he believes the district could lose as many as 10 students and still be in-formula. "Again, it's a numbers game with us," he added.

Kirby declined to estimate, based on the new aid bill, how much more the district could receive in state aid if all other factors remained the same.

He remarked, however, that if Owen-Gage loses the number of students expected, the district will probably receive the same amount of aid—some $200,000—received in the last school year.

UBLY

Uby Community School officials estimate a school aid increase of about $174,000 with the new bill. The district received $335,459 in membership aid in the 1989-90 school year.

With an SEV of some $66.25 million, the increase is equal to more than 2 1/2 mills.

Mark Tenbusch, district business manager, indicated, however, that a millage rollback isn't likely, partly because school officials are anticipating a loss of $30,000 in the coming school year via a Headlee rollback.

KINGSTON

Dr. Jerry H. Laycock, Kingston Schools superintendent, said that the new state aid formula would result in an increase of about $185,000 to his district. That is about 17.4 percent over the amount received in 1989-90.

However, there is a string attached to the new allotment, Laycock said. State mandated requirements necessary to comply with to receive funds will amount to about $25 per pupil in extra costs.

Kingston has a budget of just under $3 million.

Silverwood man faces 7 charges after incident

A Silverwood man facing 7 charges is among several persons recently arraigned in Tuscola County District Court.

John S. Fessler, 25, Silverwood, faces charges of felonious assault (2 counts involving a shotgun), felony firearm, possession of a short-barreled shotgun, carrying a concealed weapon (2 counts involving a rifle and knife) and fleeing and eluding a police officer.

All the charges stem from an incident that occurred July 22 in Watertown Township, according to court records.

A preliminary examination in the case is set for 8:30 a.m. Aug. 3. Bond has been set at $25,000.

North Branch resident John S. Urchick, 19, has been charged with 2 counts of felonious assault and one count of illegal entry.

His preliminary exam was to have been held Tuesday. Bond was set at $1,000.

Court records state Urchick is accused of assaulting Sandra Urchick and Sharon Provost with a club, and illegally entering a Mayville residence July 21.

Mayville resident Donald E. Hurst, 21, was recently arraigned on charges of malicious destruction of police property, resisting and obstructing a police officer, operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, and driving with a restricting or suspended license.

A preliminary exam in the case will be held Aug. 8 at 8:30 a.m. Bond has been set at $100.

The charges stem from a July 14 incident in Watertown Township that involved Sgt. Glen Skrent, an officer with the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department, records state.

Brian K. Haley, 23, of St. Charles, faces a charge of malicious destruction of property over $100.

His preliminary exam is scheduled for 8:30 a.m. Aug. 8. Bond has been set at $1,000.

According to records, Haley is charged with damaging a 1989 Chevy Beretta belonging to Paula M. LeValley. The incident allegedly occurred July 28 in Cass City.

Millington resident Ronald C. Babcock, 19, is charged with larceny over $100 in connection with the May 28 theft of a 1989 Honda motorcycle in Arbel Township.

A preliminary exam in the case is slated for Aug. 3 at 8:30 a.m. Bond has been set at $15,000.

Also, Bret L. Marrow, 30, of Montrose, was recently arraigned on a charge of unlawfully driving away a motor vehicle.

His preliminary exam will be held Aug. 3 at 8:30 a.m. Bond has been set at $5,000.

The charges stem from the Feb. 23 theft of a 1969 John Deere front end loader in Bridgeport Township.

RONALD McDONALD visited Cass City Monday to cap off the Rawson Memorial Library's summer reading program. In June, about 200 children signed up for the "Batches of Books" program. Those who read at least 10 books between June and August were given a ticket to Ronald's show, held in Campbell Elementary School. More than 100 children and their parents attended the performance. Pictured is assistant librarian Doris Jones helping Ronald with a magic trick.

Solons seek way to insure more children

Involvement by the private sector, including individuals, small businesses, large corporations and charity operations, with the state providing tax credits as an incentive, could be a means of providing health insurance to the nearly 1.5 million persons in the state who do not have such coverage, the House Republican Task Force on Affordable Health Care for the Uninsured reported recently.

The Republican proposal for ways to provide medical care to the uninsured comes after the Legislature failed to incorporate Governor James J. Blanchard's $13.1 million Healthy Start program, providing care for young children from low-income households.

In a report containing 8 recommendations, task force co-chairs Nancy Crandall (R-Muskegon) and Michael Nye (R-Litchfield) said establishment in Michigan of a Blue Cross-Blue Shield program allowing for the "adoption" of a child in order to provide insurance could help many of the 245,000 youngsters now without protection.

A similar BCBS plan in Pennsylvania is now providing health care for some 17,000 children.

The "Caring for Kids" program, Nye said, would cost $200 to provide full benefits for one child, with the state providing an income or business tax credit on that amount of $9.20.

That, he said, is much cheaper than the public having to absorb the total cost of the health care.

"We might not see savings right now, but in the long run, we will start benefiting," Nye said. "If we can help people get insurance, it helps the state financially."

Legislators of both parties rejected the governor's Healthy Start Plan, saying the state could not afford to initiate such a potentially costly program.

While the Pennsylvania plan is currently being explored by BCBS in Michigan and was discussed by the Democratic Commission on Families earlier this year, Nye said the changes cannot be made without enabling legislation.

Though both Crandall and Nye agreed the task force recommendations will not provide care for everyone, they are intended to be "a step along the way."

"This is a way to reach some of those people. We're trying to be responsible with what we're recommending," Crandall said.

Other recommendations include requiring insurance carriers to offer policies for children and grandchildren, which Crandall said will benefit those whose families can afford it to provide the coverage, and allowing health coverage under a parent's policy to continue for full-time college students who are not dependents on that parent's tax return form.

Both of these measures, Nye said, would further reduce the total number of children who do not have coverage.

Several other recommendations, besides the "Caring for Kids" program, would allow tax credits, including credits for those businesses which provide a health insurance deductible assistance program, whereby companies pay less for insurance with a lower deductible, then use the difference for a pool of money within their own organization to assist their employees, and credits for those businesses which participate in a non-profit health insurance pool.

Further recommendations would establish incentives for physicians to provide charity care to the uninsured, including protection from civil liability, and the purchase of Medicaid health benefits by employed disabled adults, employed parents of disabled children, and unemployed injured workers and their families.

A final recommendation of the task force encourages insurance carriers to develop more diversified options, including "menu" coverage, whereby those wishing insurance could select individual protections and eliminate those which are not applicable to their situation.

The board has approved $17.8 million in awards for the 1989-90 Classrooms of Tomorrow Program which will provide computer equipment for classrooms this fall.

A total of 8,027 individual teacher applications representing 456 school districts will participate in the program.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction Donald L. Bemis said the awards are an outgrowth of the board's commitment to increasing the use of technology in the educational process.

The board had received a total of 24,063 individual teacher applications from

Little League All Stars win 2 tourneys

The Cass City Little League All Stars completed a successful traveling tournament schedule with 2 consecutive championship weekends. The 13-member team started the tournament trail at a double elimination event at Reese July 6-8. Losing their first game to Reese Number one Friday, they fought their way back through the losers' bracket with 3 wins over Sebewaing, Unionville and Mayville Saturday. Sunday they tallied the fourth straight win, this time against Essexville, only to lose to Reese Number one in the championship game to finish 2nd.

HARBOR BEACH TOURNEY

July 21 the Stars were at Harbor Beach for a one-day tournament. They opened with a 10-3 win over Bad Axe Number one. Trailing 3-0 in the fourth, they broke the game open with 8 runs. Next up was Pigeon which fell in an 11-0 shutout. The championship game against Uby was a wild affair. Uby jumped off to an early 5-1 lead in the first inning and extended it to 7-2 by the fourth. Cass City bats exploded in its half of the fourth. Twenty-one batters came to the plate and 18 crossed the plate. The final score was 23-7. Pitching chores for the weekend were handled by Chad Zawilinski and Kevin Storm, with a fine relief performance by Nathan Mastie in the first game win. Leading hitters for the weekend were Mastie and Corey Ulfig, each with 6 hits, Storm and Dan Sherman with 5, and Tom Dewey and Rob Gnagey with 4. Storm had a 3-run homer in the championship contest.

BAD AXE TOURNEY

July 27, 28 found the All Stars in Bad Axe. Again they brought home the championship. The first game was a very tight and well played 5-3 win over a tough Marlette team. That was followed by a 15-0 blowout of Harbor Beach. The game was called after 4 innings due to a 15-run mercy rule. A 9-run second inning broke this game open. Storm, Ulfig, Rob Gnagey and Tom Dewey all had big hits in the inning. The championship game was against Bad Axe Blue. The All Stars registered a convincing 17-3 win. Storm and Mastie each connected for home runs. Ulfig added a single, double and triple for Cass City. All the pitching duties were shared in each game by Zawilinski and Storm.

HEALTH TIPS Walk your way to better health

For centuries, people have taken strolls for pleasure and to get a little exercise into their lives. Today, we know that walking used as an aerobic exercise can do far more; it also provides remarkable physical and psychological benefits, including:

- strengthens heart and lungs
- increases high density lipoproteins (the "good" cholesterol)
- decreases blood pressure
- relieves stress

Walking becomes an aerobic exercise, according to Dr. Fred Severyn, associate medical director for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan (BCBSM), if it raises our heartbeat for at least 20 consecutive minutes, and if we walk at least 3 times a week.

The key to any successful exercise program is consistency, says Dr. Severyn. Similar to budgeting your money, you must budget your time so that walking -- or any other exercise -- is given a top priority in your schedule.

Another important element is to accept that fitness is a never-ending goal that sometimes takes years, depending on how out of shape you are when you begin.

"Too often people believe that with a concentrated effort they can become fit in a few short weeks, or even months," says Dr. Severyn. "But if we exercise harder than our bodies can accept, we're more likely to sustain injuries."

"And if we expect dramatic changes in stamina, or too great losses of weight or inches, we're more apt to lose interest because it doesn't happen quickly," says Dr. Severyn. "It's the gradual building of strength and fitness and the gradual weight losses and smaller measurements that are the most enduring, and they take patience and persistence in pursuing."

How to know whether you're walking too fast or too far, or not enough?

Learn how to take your pulse, either at the neck or inside your wrist, Dr. Severyn says. Use the formula below to determine what is the maximum heart beat you should reach during exercise, and the minimum.

Here's the formula. Subtract your age from 220. The maximum rate at which you should exercise is 85 percent of that figure. The minimum is 65 percent of that figure.

If you're 50 years of age, for example, subtract 50 from 220, or 170. Your maximum heart rate during exercise should be 85% x 170 = 144 beats per minute. The minimum is 65% x 170 = 110 beats per minute.

Take your pulse midway through exercising and again when you're finished exercising. Count the pulse for 6 seconds and multiply by 60, or count for 10 seconds and multiply by 6. In addition to learning whether you're exceeding your maximum or not getting up to the minimum, measuring the heartbeat also tells you whether you're increasing your fitness level.

Here's a less scientific way to determine if you're exercising at the proper rate. If you can't hold a conversation comfortably with someone, you're working too hard.

Or, if after exercise you are exhausted and the feeling of tiredness persists for hours, then you're exercising too hard. On the other hand, if you're not breathing any harder than you normally do, you're not giving your heart a sufficient workout.

You should feel pleasantly tired, but good after an effective exercise bout, says Dr. Severyn.

that participated included the University of Michigan (which finished first), Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Dartmouth College, Arizona State University, University of Maryland, Western Washington, and the University of Pennsylvania.

Residents of the Thumb area can view the Jordan College entry and talk with the driver and other participants from the Jordan College Energy Institute.

Witheys hold annual meet

The annual Withey family reunion was called to order July 15. Because of the weather situation this year, the reunion was moved from Howell City Park to the home of Art and Genneive Toop.

Sixty family members attended. Those coming the farthest were Connie Trace from Indiana, Tonya Heffebower from Chicago, Ill., and Fred and Nig Withey from Caseville. The young-est attending was 2-year-old Jim Heffebower, son of Daniel, and the oldest was Fred N. Withey.

The Withey reunion is named for Lillie Viola Withey, daughter of Joel D. Withey, who was a resident of Elkland Township for nearly 60 years. Lillie married John Wesley Heffebower and lived in Cass City during her childhood, and moved to Flint after her marriage.

The next reunion will be held in Brighton at Huron Meadows Park, the 3rd Sunday in July, with Joe and Sherry Goffra as host and hostess.

Tips for keeping farm operations injury free

by Dennis Stein
County Extension
Director

We live in America and the freedom to be your own manager is the rule for most Michigan farm and orchard operators. How many of you manage LOSS CONTROL from a human perspective?

Every 5 minutes someone in agriculture is injured seriously enough to require medical attention. Every day a child is killed while working or playing on the farm. Every day more than 4 adults are killed while doing ag-related jobs.

Has your farming operation been "injury free" this past year?

Have you calculated the cost of any injury to your business? To your family? Farm residents lose nearly $5 billion each year in accidents and fires. This includes medical expense, property damage and time lost. Future losses from lower productivity and the nagging medical costs of a permanent disability can cripple a family's financial stability and even lead to a loss of the farm.

You can manage for safety! Managers in most industries know that safety pays. Aside from human considerations, emphasizing safety results in considerable savings, including lower insurance costs. Farmers and ranchers are no exception....doing the job safely is doing it well.

Manage for safety on your farm by following these tips: 1. Make accident prevention a management goal. Develop a safety plan suited to your operation and your workers.

2. Keep informed about safety. Read and follow instructions in operator's manuals, product labels, warning decals, etc.

3. Inspect all equipment and facilities for hazards. Correct them, but also devise ways to avoid or live safely with fixed hazards.

4. Take needed precautions before starting the job, like checking that equipment is in good working order, shields are in place, and you are wearing appropriate personal protective equipment (safety shoes, goggles, respirator, etc.) for the job or conditions.

5. Do things right. Train employees and family workers to work safely and well.

6. Be physically and mentally prepared to cope with each day's activities. Know and respect your limitations. Stay fit and seek medical care for health problems.

7. Be prepared for accident, medical, fire and weather emergencies.

8. Take special precautions to protect children, the elderly, handicapped, and farm visitors. For example, don't let kids ride on farm machinery.

9. Strive to make your operation "injury free."

4 seek 6-year post

District judge candidates air views

The Chronicle recently asked each of the 4 candidates seeking election as district court judge in Tuscola County to respond to the following questions in preparation for the Aug. 7 Primary Election:

- 1) Among the biggest challenges facing district court is keeping up with a heavy volume of cases. How do you propose to improve or otherwise deal with this situation?
- 2) Assuming the caseload remains difficult, how would you approach the challenge of efficiently disposing of cases and at the same time treat each defendant as an individual?
- 3) Aside from education and practical experience, what can you bring to the bench that would make you an effective judge and the best overall candidate for the job?

Those seeking the office and 6-year term are:
*Incumbent Kim D. Glas-

pie, who was appointed to the post by Gov. James J. Blanchard in March following the retirement of longtime Judge Richard F. Kern, the county's first and only district court judge until Glaspie's appointment.

Previously, Glaspie, 34, maintained a private law practice in Cass City, where he and his family reside. He was a practicing attorney for nearly 10 years.

*Attorney John Bishop, 40, who has practiced law in Tuscola County for 7 years. He is a Vassar resident.

*Attorney Duane Burgess, 36, of Caro, a member of the law firm of Ransford, Crews & Burgess, P.C. He has been in private practice in Caro since 1979.

*David G. Myers, 38, of Caro, who has been in private practice in Caro for 6 years. He previously was employed in the Tuscola County Prosecutor's Office for 5 years.

The following are the candidates' responses:

Glaspie's responses:

1) I believe that the continued implementation of computerization in the court will help us deal with the ever increasing caseload. Already by June 1, 1990, the new case filings were ahead of 1989 in every area. In some cases the new filings are almost 3 months ahead of 1989. Although the court has no control over the number of cases filed, we can control the methods we employ to deal with that caseload and I am convinced that the steps already taken to computerize the court must be continued.

Another area where I can deal with the caseload is in the control of the Court's docket. We must give criminal cases first priority, but certain types of hearing days, arraignments, sentencing must be combined to free more available trial days for civil cases.

2) There are only so many hours in each day and whether you deal with 5 individuals or 50 individuals they all should be accorded the same rights and consideration. Therefore, any time saving steps that the court can employ will free time to accomplish this goal. One way to improve this is to make sure that all appropriate information is in the court's file so as to not cause undue delay during a proceeding. This function is one for the judge, his staff and the prosecuting attorney's staff. By keeping communication open between the offices and staffs, and by reviewing files prior to the actual court appearances, we can save valuable time to give individuals before the court.

3) My background in county government as a commissioner gives me the unique perspective of knowing the constraints and concerns that commissioners have when dealing with the court. So often I believe that the executive branch of county government and the judiciary experience misunderstandings because each view their roles differently. I have seen those roles from each side and that helps me deal with the court's budget, personnel and administration in a way that only one who has worn both hats can appreciate.

Additionally, I believe that I bring the proper temperament and personality to the bench necessary to deal with the demands of the position.

Bishop's responses:

1) Your first 2 questions appear to ask for statements which would require a pledge or promise of my conduct in office, if elected.

Canon 7 of the Michigan Code of Judicial Conduct specifically states, "A candidate, including an incumbent judge, for a judicial office: should not make pledges or promises of conduct in office other than the faithful and impartial performance of the duties of the office...." Therefore, I must decline to respond to such. I must add that if I answered them any other way it would indicate that I could not work within the parameters of the rules set for judicial candidates. If I could not work within these parameters, it may be that I could not work within the parameters of the laws, if elected.

3) In addition to education and practical experience, I have an edge on my opponents in diversity of general experience. I believe a judge should be able to relate with people of various social, educational, financial and cultural backgrounds to insure that each person is treated equally. Unlike the other candidates, who are younger than myself, I did not go immediately from high school to college to law school. Among other jobs, I have worked as a janitor, construction laborer, press operator, quality control, sewage plant operator, security guard, computer data entry person and farm manager. I feel that these diverse experiences will help give me the proper temperament for being a judge.

I know the problems of attorneys in private practice and how the backlog from the volume of cases affects their practices and their clients, and would therefore expect and accept the attorneys' cooperation and suggestions to resolve the problems.

2) The only way to efficiently dispose of cases is HARD WORK. The courtroom must be in operation from 9 to 5, 5 days a week. I have been in a busy law firm in private practice for 11 years and certainly know the meaning of long hours, long days and hard work.

Burgess' responses:

1) First, the district court must continue the computerization which was started before Judge Kern retired. The use of computers will allow for increased efficiency in scheduling, mailing of notices, record keeping, etc.

Michigan law provides that small claims hearings shall be done to lessen the time for the parties away from their employment, and I would suggest that evening hours be considered to address that legal mandate, and as a means to help with the caseload.

The civil caseload can be improved through the use of more pretrials scheduled by the court and conducted by the judge so as to facilitate possible settlements. This would alleviate the need for trials, or the setting of trials and having the parties settle their differences as the jury waits in the hall, as has often been the problem in the past.

If a criminal case is scheduled for trial, then possible plea negotiations must have been explored prior to the date of the trial, so as to avoid the unnecessary appearance of witnesses and jurors.

I know the problems of attorneys in private practice and how the backlog from the volume of cases affects their practices and their clients, and would therefore expect and accept the attorneys' cooperation and suggestions to resolve the problems.

2) The only way to efficiently dispose of cases is HARD WORK. The courtroom must be in operation from 9 to 5, 5 days a week. I have been in a busy law firm in private practice for 11 years and certainly know the meaning of long hours, long days and hard work.

However, cases can be moved efficiently with hard work, without denying anyone the respect they deserve. I know the anxieties and concerns of those who appear in a courtroom, many for their first time, and for many, their only contact with the criminal justice system. Every participant in the system, whether that be the police officer, victim, witness or defendant is entitled to be treated in a courteous manner. The judge's respect for the individuals is reflected then by the individual's respect for the system and the ultimate outcome.

3) Aside from a business administration degree in finance and a law degree from Wayne State University, and 11 years of experience, I can bring a great deal to the bench. Not only do I have 11 years' experience in district court, I have the combined experience of my partners with whom I've practiced for all those years, and that training by experienced partners is something that no other candidate can offer. I am the only candidate to have spent his entire career acting both as a prosecutor and defense attorney, which will allow for a balanced view and thus impartiality.

I'm certainly not a stranger to the courtroom, having worked for district court judges before being licensed as an attorney, and having spent considerable time in Judge Kern's courtroom and have handled nearly any and every type of case that would come before a district court judge.

Each of the candidates has integrity and honesty. However, in addition to those 2 essential requirements, I have a respect for the people involved, the patience to listen to both sides of the issue, and the administrative ability to keep the cases moving.

Myer's responses:

1) The first thing I would do as district judge to keep up with the heavy volume of cases is to work hard, work efficiently, and work often.

There have been over 1,800 new civil and criminal cases filed in Tuscola County District court so far this year alone. I plan to meet this challenge by implementing new district court procedures for alternative dispute resolution (settling cases without trial). These procedures would include mediation (by objective 3 lawyer panels) of civil cases, pre-trial conferences with the court in both civil and criminal cases, and active involvement of the court in promoting settlement between parties and their attorneys. Finally, if necessary, I will take advantage of my experience and good relationship with the 3 district court judges in Bay County to ask for assistance in reducing any Tuscola County backlog.

2) I have been a practicing attorney in Tuscola County for 11 years, and I believe the most challenging and fascinating part of my job lies in handling the legal problems of each individual case or client. I am a strong believer in the U.S. Constitution as the supreme law of the land and will make sure that the constitutional rights of all parties before my court are protected no matter how efficiently or swiftly a case is handled. I believe that the primary job of the district court judge is to resolve legal disputes (criminal or civil), and in doing that job I would first look for a pretrial settlement satisfactory to both parties. Secondly, barring pretrial settlement, my goal would be to assure a fair trial and fair result. Finally, no matter who wins or loses, I will not demean the parties or their attorneys and will seek to preserve the respect our system of justice deserves. As your district judge, I would pride myself on being able to treat everyone in my court with decency and respect.

3) I would bring 11 years of legal experience on both sides of the court (5 years in the Tuscola County Prosecutor's office and 6 years in Tuscola County private practice, including criminal defense) to the bench. Besides being the candidate with the most legal experience and the best balance of legal experience, I also believe that my ability to be fair, perceptive, prompt, and courteous would make me an effective judge. Commenting on my hard work in the prosecutor's office and on the campaign trail when I ran for Tuscola County Probate judge in 1982, the Tuscola County Advertiser said, "Myers will make a good judge." My experience and ability makes me the best overall candidate for this job, and I believe our next district judge should be elected on the basis of experience and ability and not politically appointed.

3 Republicans, 2 Democrats

5 from Cass City seek District 2 post

Three Republicans and a pair of Democrats will vie for their respective party's nomination in next week's Primary Election in the District 2 Tuscola County Board of Commissioners race.

Those seeking the 2-year term are:

*Republican Jack Brinkman, 57, a farmer and long-time treasurer of the Owen-Gage Board of Education. He recently was elected to serve as president of the board.

*Republican Edward C. Scollon, 54, a veterinarian and long-time Cass City Board of Education president.

*Republican Roy J. Tuckey, 49, an Elkland Township Board trustee who is self-employed as a farmer and works part-time for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

*Democrat Mary Lou Burns, 41, a paralegal and registered nurse employed for 18 years at Dr. H.T. Jonahue's office in Cass City.

*Democrat Richard Erla, 65, retired part-owner of Erla's Food Center and Packing Co., Cass City.

Each of the candidates recently agreed to answer a question posed by the Chronicle--"In what direction do you believe the county should be headed, how can you contribute and why are you the best candidate for the job?"

The following are their responses:

Mary Lou Burns

My business management experience in my past and recent employment has taught me to deal with budgeting and the financial concerns of employers. My education as a registered nurse involved decision making processes in problem solving and advocacy. My paralegal training and experience has made me aware of the functions of the judicial system.

As a former resident of Kingston and Novesta Townships and having worked in Elkland Township since 1966, I am familiar with the District #2 area and the needs of its citizens.

Because Tuscola County has been faced with periods of economic crisis, I have the training and experience necessary to evaluate the efficiency and effectiveness of the county's ability to deliver and/or make available services to its citizens. With the limited resources available, it is absolutely necessary that priorities be set by the Board regarding the delivery of services. I am committed to establishing those priorities in order to insure that the available resources are most efficiently utilized for the citizens of Tuscola County.

Without question, the most important function of government is to continue to improve the quality of life for its citizens. Obviously, health care needs, especially of its senior citizens, and to insure adequate protection of their property and personal safety are extremely important.

Of the many other services provided by County government, the development of priorities in the budgeting process will require a determination of the extent of the need for each service, the cost of the delivery of that service and what effect committing the necessary funds to deliver it adequately would have upon the county's ability to fund other competing programs.

Existing policies and/or practices need to be reviewed on a regular basis to insure that the reasons for implementing those policies remain valid and that the policy itself either saves money or insures effectiveness and efficiency. I would not be in favor of continuing policies just because "it has always been that way." A constant review of policies and scrutiny of their reason for existence are integral parts of a Commissioner's responsibility.

My business management experience has afforded me the opportunity to deal with employer/employee labor relations. I believe that the wages of any employee should be based upon responsibility, training, experience, and job performance.

I believe it is imperative that the Board and Judiciary maintain constant open lines of communication in order to operate without the necessity of confrontation which results in lawsuits and unnecessary expense to the taxpayers. Such open communication would help to assure that the Courts are operated in such a manner to deliver the benefits and protection of swift and efficient administration of justice to the citizens of Tuscola County.

Ed Scollon

As any unit of government, county commissioners need to be sensitive to the needs and wants of its constituents while using tax dollars in an advantageous and responsible manner. I believe our officials have strived to do this in the past. I would continue to work towards providing services in mental and public health, law enforcement, police protection, agriculture, child and family, environment and the court system. I would like to see our county become more involved with services for troubled families and children. Environmental issues such as solid waste disposal, clean water, and recycling are also of increasing interest to residents. Perhaps time, attention and money spent on preventative measures in these areas will save in the long run.

My 19-year term on the Cass City School Board, both as trustee and president, has given me experience with a wide variety of administrator decisions involving public policy making, long and short range planning, and personnel hiring. I have also personally been involved with 12 public employee contracts. As a result of this school board involvement, I have learned to respect the concept of conflict of interest. If elected, it is my intention to resign from my present elected office in order to avoid any potential conflict with the decision-making process. My 3 1/2-year tenure on the Tuscola County Health Department has familiarized me with county government. Since Jan. 1st of 1990 I have served as chairperson of this unit of government.

My wife and I have raised a family of 5 children in this county during the past 26 years and in my work as a veterinarian, I have contact with many people. I have tried to be a responsible citizen and give of my time and energies to the area. Though the commissioner's job is complex, I feel that I can offer an open-minded, reasonable and responsible approach to the problem solving and decision making tasks it involves.

Jack Brinkman

I believe that the main direction is for the board to keep TUSCOLA COUNTY a sound and growing community. One of my main concerns is to keep the road patrol on the road. I feel the present board has the county heading in the right direction, but if I were elected and would see an area of concern, I would not hesitate to inform the board and try to rectify the situation.

If elected, I could contribute my knowledge of negotiating to the board, since I have been negotiating for our school system for 16 years and am very familiar with the process.

The reasons why I feel I am the best candidate for the commissioner's position are my awareness of the current issues, my interest in bettering community affairs of our people, and my ability to have an open mind in matters concerning anyone or anything no matter in what area of my district it would be. I also would visit our townships at least once or twice a year to keep everyone in my district involved.

Roy Tuckey

Tuscola County is one of the major agricultural counties in the state and its many prominent local industries require its board of Commissioners to be equally foresighted and energetic.

Our county board needs to anticipate possible problems before they occur and be a forceful board that will follow through. A positive move recently by the board is the Tuscola County Solid Waste Management Plan and more recently its inquiry into possible local recycling and composting. This is an area that requires everyone's attention and if elected, I will give it my full support.

As a Commissioner, I would strive to increase communication into areas where it seems to be lacking. I would like to see more communication between the Commissioners and our courts, county employees and the township boards. I will be available to keep township governments informed on county problems that might affect them.

My past experience as a local business person and farmer has given me insight into the needs of Tuscola County. Having run a business for several years, I can deal with employer-employee relationships and I will be open-minded and fair in negotiations while keeping the burden of the taxpayer in mind.

I have knowledge of the construction industry which should prove helpful, and my years on the township board have taught me the workings of local government.

I would like to continue serving the people at the next level of government and promise to be just as available to the people as a commissioner as I was as a member of the township board. I have the time to devote to Tuscola County and will put its problems and obligations first.

Richard Erla

From my past business experience, civic, state and local achievements I feel that I could do a good job in County Government. Being retired with no other jobs I have the time to devote and represent the people of the 2nd District.

Being a Senior Citizen (retired) I feel taxes and county spending would be my number one priority, giving a great deal of thought to our Seniors on a fixed income.

Having had a number of people working for me while I was in business I feel that I could help out in county labor relations.

As the governing body I would like to see a good relationship with the County Courts.

Harvest time is accident time

Geraldine R. Smith of the Farm Safety Project challenges every farmer to make this grain harvest season "injury free."

The National Safety Council's farm accident surveys indicate that combines rank fourth in the total number of disabling injuries involving farm machinery. Although combines are used for considerably fewer hours each year than tractors, they have twice the number of reportable injuries per thousand units.

About 40 percent of all combine accidents occurred while the machine was harvesting. One-third happened while the machine was stopped and not running. Nearly one in five involved a stationary but running combine. Two-thirds of the accidents happened in the field, with the remainder occurring in driveways, machine sheds, lots and on roads.

CASS CITY RESIDENT Harland Lounsbury is shown baling straw in a wheat field at Dodge and Cass City roads. Barry Hedley, Unionville, owns the land. Hedley found himself in the same position as many area farmers; he said his wheat crop yielded less grain than he was expecting.

7 area students Jordan college grads

Jordan College's Thumb Area Campus announced that 7 area students participated in the commencement ceremony May 13. Among 300 winter and spring graduates were 21 from the Thumb.

Top graduate, Ubyly resident Ladonna Volmering, earned a 4.0 plus grade point average while pursuing an associate in applied science degree in accounting. Since January she has worked as a bookkeeper out of the home she shares with her husband, Dan, and their children, Andrew, 5, and Sara, 3.

Volmering, the daughter of Ruth residents Richard and Jane Maurer, graduated from Harbor Beach High School in 1978.

Sheree Markham, Cass City, also was an outstanding student. A 1979 graduate of Cass City High School, Markham earned an associate in applied science degree in legal secretarial and graduated cum laude with a 3.48 GPA.

The daughter of Lynwood and Jeanette Lapeer, Cass City, Sheree is married to Willard Markham Jr. She is employed by Home Interiors as a display and has no immediate plans to pursue a legal secretary position.

Owendale resident Lori Limberger received an A.A.S. degree in secretarial science. She is the daughter of Owendale residents Lewis and Carolyn Mandich and a 1980 graduate of Owen-Gage High School.

Limberger has worked for the Bad Axe accounting firm of Hyzer, Hill, Booms P.C. for about 2 years and plans to retain her secretarial position. She and her husband, Steven, have 3 children: Jason, 7, Nicole, 3, and Jamie, 8.

Beverly Melnick graduated from Jordan with an A.A.S. degree in business administration and a computer information minor. The daughter of Parisville natives Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Danielski, Melnick is a 1974 graduate of Ubyly High School.

Flannery and Sons auto dealership in Bad Axe employs Melnick as a bookkeeper. She and her children, Jeremy, 17, and Nathan, 11, live in Ubyly.

An associate in applied science degree in business administration was earned by Cass City resident Val Hudson. She also studied computer information.

Hudson is a 1975 Cass City High School graduate and the daughter of village residents Donald and Patricia Mills.

Currently she is interviewing for full-time work in the business field. She has 2 children, Ron, 14, and Amanda, 13.

Owendale resident Jane Gemmell graduated from Cass City's adult education program about 6 years ago and went on to Jordan College, where she earned an A.A.S. degree in business management.

At this time Gemmell does home shows for Princess House Crystal. In order to use her degree, she is looking to get into the business management field as well.

Gemmell has 3 children: Thomas, 24, Michelle, 22, and 18-year-old Meredith.

Linda Keller Martin, Decker, received an A.A.S. degree in business administration. Since graduation she has remarried and moved to Mount Pleasant. She couldn't be reached for further information.

Tuscola, Sanilac and Huron. "We've had better wheat. It's probably about an average crop this year," said Tuscola County resident Keith Goslin. He also planted navy beans, corn and sugar beets and owns a total of 1600 acres.

"It's a little drier here than most of the areas. We can use some moisture any time," he noted. Goslin is located 3 miles west of Gagetown on Bay City-Forestville Road.

In spite of his standard wheat harvest and struggling bean crop, Goslin is pleased with the sugar beet fields. Apparently the plants were in a good spot and heavy enough to avoid wind damage.

"We lucked out. We didn't have to replant any sugar beets."

Goslin said he thwarted insects, such as the leafhopper, from eating his beans by spraying from the start. At this time Goslin has completed the wheat harvest and is planning to gather beans in September, beets in October, then corn.

"I don't anticipate any problems. The stuff is looking pretty good," he remarked.

SEVERAL PROBLEM AREAS

On another farm west of Gagetown the agricultural picture wasn't as bright.

"I think the wheat and barley look a little bit below average," Alvin Seurnyck remarked. Those crops are coming in about 20 percent below the expected yield because of the spring drought, he said.

In addition to dry weather, a mold set into Seurnyck's barley and a new disease had an effect on the wheat. He couldn't identify the ailment and fungicides didn't control it, he noted.

"It's something we're going to have to deal with next year probably," he said. His corn crop also is struggling and may come in below average. "The corn is under stress right now in our area due to lack of rain," he explained. "I would say we're just a little bit under last year's outlook right now."

Along with wheat, barley and corn, Seurnyck also produces navy and soy beans—a total of 500 acres. On the flip side of his cereal crop and corn problems, Seurnyck's beans are growing well.
