Woman raped in Cass City area

A RESCUE WORKER carries one of 5 victims in last week's gas explosion at an Ubly area residence to an awaiting ambulance. Three of the 5 persons injured remain hospitalzed at St. Mary's Medical Center in Saginaw.

Seek aid for cancer victim

Donations are being sought to help out an Ubly area couple who have devoted much of their lives to helping others.

The couple, Dennis and Nancy Karr, face overwhelming expenses related to Dennis' battle with cancer, according to Lorraine Nash, who is among those working to help raise funds for the Karrs.

Nash is patient accounting manager at Hills and Dales General Hospital, Cass City, where Nancy Karr, an emergency room ward secretary, has been employed for nearly 18 years.

emergency room desk. Nash said the efforts of hospital employees and family members are being geared towards helping to reduce some of the couple's financial burden related to travel and treatment as well as normal living expenses.

"The main thing is to help relieve the stress and provide emotional and financial support," she added.

$5,000 loss in nursery caused by rubbing deer

"Right now the couple is devastated by the seriousness of his illness," Nash remarked.

"We are planning for some fund raisers, one of which will be a walk-a-thon," she said, adding the 4-mile event will be held Oct. 27 starting at 10 a.m. at Cass City High School.

Persons interested in taking part are asked to secure their own pledges (a certain amount of money per mile), and register by calling the hospital at 872-2121. Pledge sheets can be picked up at the hospital gift shop or

Nash pointed out that the ordeal has drained the couple financially. They have no insurance and are not eligible for Medicaid because of Nancy's job. Ironically, the Karrs have spent a number of years helping others. Dennis has served as an emergency medical technician-specialist with the Bingham Township Ambulance Service, and has worked for the Marlette, Cass City-Mercy and Caro ambulance services. Nancy is an emergency medical technician who also works for the Bingham ambulance service.

Dennis, an Ubly area native, also has been active in Thumb area softball and basketball leagues as an umpire and referee. He also has coached little league. Both have been the kind of people who have always gone out of their way to do for others, Nash indicated, adding, "They've been doing things for people and now it's their turn" to be helped. Persons interested in making a donation or lending a hand can contact Nash at 872-2121 (ext. 281).

Program set to support servicemen

A ceremony designed to show support and recognition of local service people now involved in Operation Desert Shield will be held Saturday beginning at 10:30 a.m. at the village park, Main Street, Cass City. Family members of military personnel are asked to call Beryl Bliss at 872-3579 or Penny Rienas at 872-2792 to register names and addresses of persons in the service. A sign-up sheet will also be posted at Pizza Villa. Area residents are invited to attend the program.

Over the years the ever expanding deer herd in the Thumb has provided hunters and all those who get a charge out of one of nature's most beautiful animals great moments of fun and relaxation. The flip side of the coin is that they are also an increasing problem and economic hardship for farmers. Add to that list Oscar Brooks' nursery on Schwegler Road, just north of Milligan Road. His loss might be greater than those suffered by farmers.

The deer have caused damage estimated at $5,000 to seedling trees. The deer are killing the young trees which stand about head high by rubbing antlers on the tender tree trunks.

The trees are valued between $50 and $125 and already more than 50 are lost, Brooks estimated, and the damage continues nightly.

When he called on the Department of Natural Resources to inspect the damage 10 days ago, 40 trees were damaged. Since that time 10 more have been rubbed, some of them more than once.

Brooks pointed to several trees that he had painted to save, only to have the deer return and rub the painted area raw again.

The DNR has granted Brooks the right to shoot deer to protect the nursery but that hasn't helped. The deer visit at night to do the damage.

There is a little financial help from the DNR, which will pay Brooks the cost of the seed trees.

That's better than nothing, but still a long way short of assuaging the loss. Brooks gets nothing for the countless hours he spent preparing the trees for sale, which may be as much as 90 percent of their value.

Although the major loss is from the rubbing, the deer also get in their licks to the very young plants by eating the tender buds, effectively killing many while they are still potted.

The DNR suggested that an electric fence be installed to protect the nursery. Will Brooks do it? In a minute, if he were sure it would work. But there is no guarantee that the fence will keep the deer away and Brooks is caught in the middle. Right now all he can do is survey the damage daily, repair any trees that he feels might be salvaged and hope that the deer go away or are harvested by the hunters.

OSCAR BROOKS of Cass City shows one of the trees in his nursery damaged by rubbing deer.

Sarah Anne Sweeney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil D. Sweeney of Ubly, was united in marriage to Paul Allan McKee, son of Mr. and Mrs. George McKee of Lapeer, July 14. The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Peter Gaspeny at St. Columbkille Roman Catholic Church, Sheridan Corners, Ubly. Organist for the ceremony was Joanne Sweeney and she accompanied soloist Karen Powell in "Sunrise Sunset," "The Wedding Song," "On This Day" and others.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father, wearing an off-white gown of raw silk. The gown featured a sabrina neckline descending to a mid-length V in back which was detailed by a cape ruffle enhanced by hand cut lace embossed with pearls and iridescent sequins. The fitted bodice, tapering to a natural waistline, was also detailed with hand cut lace enhanced with shell pink pearls and sequins. The full, gathered skirt of raw silk fell in natural lines to a cathedral length train. The hemline of the gown and train were outlined in the same lace and sequins. To complement her gown, the bride chose a close fitted spray of raw silk flowers detailed with pearls as her headpiece to secure a

The annual report on car-deer accidents for 1989 was released this week. In the 3-county area, there were 2,232 accidents. Sanilac was the leader with 780, in which 28 were injured and one killed. Tuscola County had 730 accidents and 21 injuries and Huron County, 722 accidents with 34 persons injured.

Kent County reported the most accidents, 1,541 with 52 injuries, according to the Michigan Department of State Police, which compiled the report.

Today the deer herd in Michigan is estimated at 1.8 million, third highest in the nation.

Best one-line concerning the current tax-deficit came from Tom Wicker, columnist for the New York Times, on a TV show: The American people are not against paying higher taxes. What each is against is higher taxes for them.

The Heritage House in Chesaning has a reputation as one of the better restaurants in mid-Michigan, so naturally it was on our list of places to try. Unfortunately, we picked a day when the place was jammed because there was a festival in progress and we had to wander the streets for a half hour before we could be seated. Persons who like arts and crafts would have a ball, as there were 3 blocks of booths lining both sides of the street.

The restaurant is a converted historic house and there are 2 floors, plus the basement, which are used. Although there ordinarily is a luncheon and sandwich menu, the day we were there only full course meals were served.

We had one of the house specialties, stuffed pork loin roast. The chicken-noodle soup was outstanding, the salad satisfactory, not great.

The pork was excellent, as were Dorothy's rice and my potatoes au gratin. A bottle of imported beer and coffee completed the meal.

The place itself probably is one reason for its popularity. The ambience is a decided plus.

It's a place to go if you want something nice, but not cheap. Total cost with tip, $31.

After more than 20 years, it was back to the beginning for Postmaster Bill Zinnecker. He slung a mail bag over his shoulder and was spotted delivering the mail in Cass City's business district.

Just filling in for an ill employee, Bill said with a smile. (Confidentially, it appears that he enjoyed his day on the beat).

QUEEN E'S PLUNGING NECKLINE

According to People magazine, Queen Elizabeth of Britain travels with her own toilet seat. From what I've seen of the queen walking away, her toilet seat probably won't fit in her neck inside a lace slipcover," my friend Ralph said. "It is called the royal collar. This style was created by the palace seamstress hundreds of years ago, when Bette Davis was queen of England. The toilet-seat neckline was the first to be called plunging, a description applied to it by a handmaiden's son who was a plumber's helper.'

Ralph further noted that the queen always travels with a large entourage, including a Scotland Yard detective. "Local police take care of the queen's security when she's traveling. The Scotland Yard detective's job has more to do with protocol. At parties, he keeps people from speaking to her before she speaks to them. He makes sure people don't bore Queen Elizabeth, and he watches her closely for clues that she wants to go.' Clues?

"Yes. Like when she starts to loosen her collar."

The most recent episode came on a discussion about the budget on the MacNeil-Lehrer show last week.

before the election, meet me The Democrat talks on south of town. I've got a deal and on about aid to the poor, on the Cass River bridge for a tax on the rich and no cuts in services. She sticks it to you. her Republican adversary by talking about how the present tax structure hits the wage earner making $100,000 a year or less at 33 percent and the wage earner making more than that at 28 percent. What's wrong with that? Nothing. She's right, it is unfair and darn any person you meet will agree. It would make almost everyone feel better if that inequitable tax bubble were burst. Where it all hits the fan for me is when she says that taxing the rich will solve our deficit problem. She knows, or should know, that there's no way that taxing the rich, even if you took it all, will eliminate the deficit.

When it comes to paying, it will be the middle class that will foot the bill. You can't get it from the poor or enough of it from the rich.

Now the Republican was not about to be stuck with the "tax the poor and save the rich" tag, so he retreats into that tired old Republican vote getter. The way to solve this deficit, he says, is to cut the spending, not make new taxes. That's a sure vote getter. It elected a movie actor and then re-elected him, placing a mortgage on our future as the country slid further into debt.

President Bush is receiving the heat from his party and Mr. Average Citizen for saying that he would accept some sort of new tax to try and cut the huge national debi.

That's no surprise. Cynically, I always thought that when we were through read-he recalled.

It's been a few years since Clair Auslander drove a sturdy team of Belgians or Percherons in a horse pull, but his love of the sport is as strong as ever.

So are his memories of more than 50 years of working with horses.

The Shabbona native will take both with him this week when he travels to the state fairgrounds in Detroit to be shonored by the Michigan Dynamometer Association as "Horse Puller of the Year". The award will be presented Friday in conjunction with the 14th annual Michigan-Great Lakes-International Draft Horse Show and Pull, Oct. 18-21. The event, billed as the "largest and finest" show of its kind in the world, isn't new to Auslander, 78, who pulled in each of the show's first 4 years.

"It's a great sport. I've had a lot of good horses," he recently remarked at his Severance Road home, not far from the farm where he was born, raised and lived most of his life.

A retired logger and lifelong farmer, he started horse pulling in 1931, about 8 years after the sport was first introduced at the Ohio State Fair.

"I pulled at the first 4-H fair in Sandusky," he recalled, noting the county agent at the time had asked him to enter a team. "There were 3 teams there that day," he said. "We finished second." That's all it took to hook the veteran horseman, whose first contests involved a conventional horse pull in which a team of 2 horses pulls a weighted sled. Three years later at the 1934 Tuscola County Fair in Caro, he was introduced to horse pulling on a dynamometer, a device mounted on a truck that measures mechanical power. There isn't a lot of difference bein Detroit.

"At that time the top prize money was less than $100, where today the first prize is $450," Auslander remarked, adding he took home $35 or $40 for his fourth place finish, which "was real good money" back then. Over the years, Auslander, a member and former longtime board member and president of the Michigan Dynamometer Association. has spent many a weekend traveling with his wife, Virginia, to, and taking part in, horse pulls throughout Michigan and Canada. "Just (as long as) we got our work done, we went," he said.

The couple have traveled to most of the state's 87 county fairs and have gone to the state fair many times, but both have maintained close ties with their own county fair. Both have been very active in Sanilac 4-H programs for many years. Clair helps care for the fairgrounds and Virginia is a long-time member of the fair board.

The pair indicated they enjoy traveling and getting to know people from other areas, something they did a great deal of during the years Clair worked with horses and pulled in various events.

LITTLE CHANGE

Looking back, Auslander indicated the sport hasn't changed much over the vears. He pointed out that the

Aside from training and pulling, Auslander bought and sold horses regularly during the 1950s, 60s and 70s.

Belgians-2 young horses and an older one to train with-for $800 each. After training them, he sold the older horse for $800, got $1,200 for one of the younger ones and $4,500 for the other. Auslander sold the last of his horses nearly 5 years ago.

He misses them, but conceded it was getting to be too much work for him.

"We go to a lot of pulls yet," he said. "I guess it's just like watching a ball game-it was more fun when you were competing. But it's still fun to go and watch them."

Nov. 4 in Gagetown Park committee sets fund raiser

A kick-off fund-raiser has been scheduled for next month by the newly-formed Gagetown Community Park Committee, which was organized to address problems and solutions related to the Gagetown Community

Park. The fund-raiser will be held Nov. 4 from 4 to 8 p.m. at Sherwood on the Hill, Gagetown.

The featured entertainer will be former Gagetown resident Ruth Russell, better known as "Tootsie VanKelly," and her band, "The Grand River Trio." "Tootsie" has been appearing regularly at the Amway Grand Plaza Hotel in Grand Rapids for several years.

Tickets will be sold in advance and will be limited due to space. Reservations may be made by calling 665-2494.

The fund-raiser was among the items discussed at the committee's Sept. 18 meeting, according to committee chairman Crystal Mosack, who said members decided to spend the fall and winter months raising funds for use at the park in the spring.

The group's first meeting was held Aug. 28. Fourteen village residents attended the session, with selection of Mosack as chairman, Phyllis Root as secretary and Nel Wald as treasurer.

Mosack said 7 members of the committee attended the Best in years Pheasant increasing in Thumb

Area hunters should be pleased with the prospects for the upcoming pheasant and quail hunting seasons, Department of Natural Resources officials say.

"The forecast for pheasant hunting in Sanilac, Tuscola and Huron counties is better than the area has experienced in many years," Bud Jarvis, a wildlife biologist stationed at the Cass City DNR Field Office, remarked Friday.

"The season will not compare to the 40s and 50s, but hunting should compare to the mid 70s," he added.

The pheasant season opens Saturday and will conclude Nov. 11. The daily bag limit is 2 birds per day in Tuscola and Sanilac counties, but only one male pheasant per day in Huron County. The season bag limit is 8 pheasants.

Quail season, meanwhile, will get underway Oct. 28 and conclude Nov. 11 in Tuscola and Sanilac counties. There will be no quail hunt in Huron County this year.

The optimism related to this year's pheasant hunt may have something to do with the release of sichuan (Chinese) pheasants in the area in recent years, but Jarvis indicated increasing numbers are more the result of good weather and improved habitat conditions.

"I think it's mostly the weather. We've had 4, what I would consider, mild winters in a row," he commented. "The second thing is many farmers have put land in the (crop) set aside program."

DNR officials released 500 of the sichuan pheasants in 1986 and another 500 last year, according to Jarvis. who said the birds were released in state land north and west of Cass City, and in the Owendale area.

He pointed out that the DNR will be checking west of Cass City) Saturday and Sunday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. DNR personnel will also be in the field those days checking pheasants and distributing survey cards.

Hunters may check in pheasants at the Cass City office during regular office hours throughout the season.

"The purpose of the pheasant check is to evaluate the impact of the sichuan pheasant releases on the local population over the past few years," Jarvis explained.

Turning to the quail hunt, the wildlife biologist pointed out this will be only the second hunt allowed in the upper Thumb in several years.

Prior to last year, quail hunting had been closed for 15 years in Tuscola, Sanilac and Huron counties. The season was again closed this year in Huron County, based on the result of DNR run surveys.

Despite the closing, the prospects for success in the Thumb are promising, according to Jarvis, who noted southern portions of Tuscola and Sanilac counties should be as good as any place in the state in terms of quail numbers.

After advancing to the hosts' 6-yard line, the 'Dogs were penalized and consequently ran out of downs. Coach Besonen questioned the call.

"We were called for tilting the ball more than 45 degrees before the snap. I am not blaming the refereeing. I thought it was bad for both teams," says the Hall of Fame coach, who added it was the first time he had that call in over 20 years of coaching.

John Upthegrove accounted for the score when he hauled in a 60-yard George Kosinski pass. The drive covered 82 yards on 8 plays.

golf team finished second behind the Bad Axe Hatchets in the regional tourney held Saturday at Willow Hills in Sandusky and Cass City's Garen Barker, who shot 81, was meet medalist.

There were 14 teams entered and the top 3 teams qualified for the state finals scheduled Saturday at Royal Scot Golf Course in Lansing. Tee-off is at 10 a.m. The scores of the top 3 teams were: Bad Axe, 356; Cass City, 359, and Sandusky, 369.

The Cass City Red Hawk regionals also compete in the individual meet even if their team did not qualify. Three players tied for second in the individual meet. They were Todd Carder, Bad Axe, Steve Klaty, Sandusky, and Roger Major, Mayville, each with 84.

Scores were high because of the condition of the course. Although the meet was played in good weather, rain in the previous days made the course soft and eliminated roll.

Winter rules were in effect and players were allowed to pick and clean plugged balls.

Other scores posted by the Hawk team were: Chris Herringshaw, 92; Jeff Hockey, 98; Troy Osentoski, 91, and Bart Hall, 95.

JANDI HILLAKER BEAT THE BUZZER on this 3-point shot with a second left, to move Cass City to within a point of Ubly, but the visiting Bearcats still prevailed in the last half, 47-39. Guarding Hillaker is Renee Pionk.

The battle between the schools is for fifth place in the league. Lakers have already clinched at least a tie for the title with their key 30-14 win last week over Marlette.

> The Hatchets piled up an impressive edge in the statistics, but it was anybody's game until the winners scored a touchdown midway through the final period to go ahead by 14 points.

In the early going it appeared as if an upset was in the making. The Hawks drew first blood with 6:22 left in the first quarter as Brad Gray hit Troy Perry with a 33-yard touchdown strike. The run for extra point failed. Bad Axe got that one back a couple of minutes later, also via the air route in a play that covered 76 yards.

basketball team is in the midst of the most rugged portion of the 1990 basketball season and Coach Marty Daniel's charges would be doing very well if they could win 2 of these 5 games.

One thing is sure. Cass City will be decided underdogs in most of these contests. Already they have lost 2 of the 5 games against some of the strongest teams in the area.

Last week the Hawks bowed to Ubly on Tuesday, 47-39, and Thursday lost to Bad Axe in a Thumb B Association game, 49-39. Tuesday the Hawks were to have met North Branch, followed by Millington Thursday and Marlette, Tuesday, Oct. 23. Of special interest to Hawk fans will be the Marlette game. The Hawks bowed by a single point when the teams met in the first round at Marlette.

If Cass City can play with the defensive intensity shown against the Hatchets, chances are some good things will happen as the regular season winds down and schools prep for the district tournaments.

Daniel called it the best team defense the Hawks have played all year. It wasn't enough to win, as Bad Axe controlled the offensive boards to chalk up the victory. It looked as if Bad Axe had

The Cass City Red Hawk easy picking in the opening asketball team is in the quarter and a blow-out was coming up. Led by Jennie Gavitt, the Hatchets charged to a 14-4 lead.

But Jandi Hillaker wasn't going to let that happen. Despite being the focus of the Bad Axe defense, she poured in 8 points in the second period and Cass City moved back into contention at the half, trailing by just 4 points, 22-18. The Hawks continued to apply the pressure in the third period and going into the final quarter the game was tied, 33-all.

But from there on in it was all Bad Axe. Led by Lynette Grifka's 3-pointer and 4 free throws and 3 buckets by Jennifer Brining, the winners outscored the Hawks, 16-6.

Jandi Hillaker led all scorers with 19 points, while Gavitt and Heidi Reimann shared scoring honors for Bad Axe with 14 points each.

Touchdown strikes

Cass City made it 14-6 on an unusual play. Gray hit Perry with a short pass and Perry then tossed the ball to Tim Englehart, who went the remaining distance in a play that covered 29 yards. Gray then teamed with Perry for the extra points.

But after that it was all downhill for the Hawks. The team was hurt when Englehart suffered a leg iniury that sharply reduced his effectiveness and playing time.

The Hatchets tied the score at half-time as Bob Forsyth turned the left corner and went 38 yards. The extra point run was good. Bad Axe went ahead for the first time in the game with 3.28 left in the third quarter, scoring on a oneyard quarterback dive.

The clincher was added with 7:45 left in the game as Forsyth capped a drive with a 9-yard run. The extra points came on a run.

Despite his injury, Englehart piled up 135 yards rushing in 19 carries, a 7.1yard average. Greg Graham led the defense with 15 tackles, including 6 unassisted. Kevin Mika had one of his best games on defense with 13 tackles.

Parade units in wrong order

Dear Editor:

The village of Caro is to be complimented on having a fine Pumpkin Festival this year. It was fine weather, a real fine turnout of people. But as commander of the Caro VFW Post 4164, I feel I must point out 2 errors in the parade lineup.

First, after the county sheriff and police escort, the military units march in the first unit, not an intermingling of military units and fraternal organizations. These units are to be separated. Secondly, the host veterans post is to march behind the police escorts. The Caro VFW Post 4164

Donations still needed for food closet

Workers at the Cass City Community Food Closet are hoping area residents will do their part to help meet the never-ending challenge of keeping the emergency food program's shelves stocked. The need is nearly as great as ever, particularly with layoffs and other economic difficulties being faced by area families. Typically, the approach of cold weather and the holiday season also translate into an increased need. A year ago food closet officials saw supplies fall to their lowest levels since the program began in the early 1980s.

A plea for help brought needed donations and, today, officials say the situation is a bit brighter than it was then. However, they point out, the number of persons seeking help continues to increase.

"This year alone we've served 77 households, or 287 people, and we've added 28 new households, or 85 people," Carol LaPonsie remarked.

LaPonsie, along with Edsel and Fern Connell, are volunteer workers at the food closet.

Currently, she said, "we are low on food that comes from the community. We received a bundle of (surplus) commodities, but we're limited on how much we can give away."

That's where local contributions—canned fruits, vegetables and meats, paper products and other household items-come in, LaPonsie said. She noted a lack of an abundant supply of such items has forced program workers to cut down on the amount of food given away in order to stretch ex-

"It's a source of water for fighting rural fires, is what it said. "If you get a structure is,"Root said. "We can have fire that's fully involved, more water in less of a time especially a barn, you can span."

Caro Fireman Dick Damm agreed and added that having a readily available source of water near a fire will increase the chances of saving a burning structure. Damm and Caro Fire Chief Dave Mattlin have spearheaded the effort to install dry hydrants in the Thumb. 'This is going to save us a lot of time," Damm said. 'We're not going to have to run back to town to re-fill tankers.'

"I've seen so many homes lost because we ran out of water or didn't have other sources of water nearby,' Root, a veteran fire fighter of more than 38 years, commented. "This is a property

Vandals smash homes' windows

Vandals went on a brief rampage early Sunday morning in Cass City, breaking at least 3 windows at 3 houses in the village. According to Cass City police, the individuals responsible first hit the Albert and Judy Haas home at 4243 Seeger St.

The couple reported being awakened at about 1 a.m. by a crash, police said, adding a window at the residence was struck by a pumpkin taken from a nearby residence.

About 10 minutes later, a steel toy car was thrown at a window at the Glen Miracle residence, 6458 Garfield Ave., and 5 minutes later, a large plastic pipe was used to smash a window at the home of Leona Webb, 6406 Sixth St.

Police Chief Gene Wilson said one of 2 additional reports he received Monday may also be related. That report came from officials at Mayville and Caro depart-ments, he said.

All 3 are the result of a cooperative effort among the Elkland Township, Caro and Kingston departments, which pooled a combined $1.800 in DNR grants they've received this year to purchase the materials.

The departments, which have matched the grant money with in-kind labor, sought and received permission from landowners to use their ponds.

Root, Damm and Miller all remarked they would like to see more dry hydrants installed in other nearby rural areas.

"If you could get these 5 or 6 miles apart, you'd improve fire fighting a lot," Root said. "I can see so much potential for these things, and I think every fire chief in the county will agree."

Miller indicated he also sees a lot of potential for the hydrants, although area departments haven't had a lot of experience with them yet. "There may be some problems," he conceded, "but if you don't try these things, you'll never know. We're still better off than we were before."

CORKINS FITS the final section of PVC pipe onto the dry hydrant, from which area fire departments will vacuum water out of a nearby pond, through a pumper, into a waiting tanker.

Salvation Army plans military gift program remember Michigan residents who are serving overseas in the U.S. military will be conducted during the upcoming holiday season by the Salvation Army.

"The presence of so many Michigan men and women among U.S. Forces in the Persian Golf prompted us to launch this holiday gift effort," Lt. Colonel Clarence Harvey, commander of the Salvation Army for Eastern Michigan, said.

"But we want to make sure our state's active military personnel at every overseas location are remembered during the holidays."

Harvey said Michigan families are being asked to send to the Salvation Army names of loved ones who will be stationed overseas during the holidays.

School board adopts policy to end school bus light confusion in a fun way," says Emerson.

After each student finishes

a book and that month's

Board wrestled with the new use of lights on school buses, reviewed several procedures to be adopted as school policy and heard reports from teachers in a strictly routine meeting Monday night at the high school.

The board and Supt. Ken Micklash were concerned about the changes in the school bus law that allows drivers to use amber, not red, lights if desired to warn of stopping to load and unload children.

That has led to confusion and created a potentially dangerous condition, members of the board agreed, so Micklash was instructed to have drivers use amber lights to notify that the bus was about to stop and red lights when stopped. The new regulations will become official school policy at the next board meeting.

In addition, trustee Jim Turner disclosed that an attempt is underway to make the amber light, red light system uniform over the entire 3-county Thumbarea. Two other policy changes were presented and discussed and are virtually sure to be adopted at the next regular meeting. The policies concern procedures to carry out in severe weather, snow or blizzards and emergency situations.

There is no change from current methods in the proposals, but they will be a written record of the way the school has been, and will be, handling these problems. Another policy to be

The Cass City School adopted will be the way that communicable disease control will be handled. It again reflects current policy now in effect, but not an official part of the policy regulaboard of a home/school tions. reading program entitled "Reading Magic."

COMMUNITY MEETING

Because the first meeting in which school representatives and community civic and business leaders met last January proved productive, the board has scheduled a similar meeting Thursday, Nov. 8, at 7 p.m. in the high school library.

Last year some 15 persons from industry and business attended and aired concerns about the school system. It's likely that the concerns voiced then will be reviewed in this follow-up meeting.

ADULT EDUCATION

Elaine Howard, community education director, reported on the programs she directs. She told the board that 56 students are enrolled, providing 34.78 full-time equivalent students.

For each student the school receives a state aid grant. The grant is large enough to fund the entire program and, Micklash said, earns the district between $5,000 and $10,000 profit. Adult education in Cass City has always been more than self-sufficient.

In addition, there are 195 students in 13 classes earning credits from Saginaw Valley State University. There are about 155 in children's enrichment programs. Howard said that she expects about the same number to earn high school diplomas as in previous years.

Your neighbor says Raise federal taxes? No way

Enough is enough is the way Colleen Ford of Clifford feels about the current proposal to raise federal taxes. The people didn't make the deficit, she asserts, and they shouldn't be required to pay for it.

They get a big raise in salaries and want to charge it to us, she asserts. What they should do is take a cut in pay

We spent all our lives working and they want to take everything away. We have had our house paid for for 25 years and now the taxes keep increasing with nothing more coming in to pay them with.

Ford will have been retired a year this November after working for 18 years at Ruth's Restaurant in Marlette. Her husband, Edsel, was injured in service and requires constant use of an oxygen machine.

The couple has 4 children, all grown, and several grandchildren.

She was interviewed while entering Schneeberger's furniture store, where she was shopping for one of them, a yearold granddaughter, for whom she was seeking a baby's rocking chair.

Vassar man pleads guilty to Aug. 24 armed robbery

A 39-year-old Vassar man charged in the Aug. 24 armed robbery of a Little Caesars Pizza restaurant in Vassar entered a plea of guilty Friday in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

Sentencing for the defendant, Herbert W. Scharrer, was scheduled for Dec. 21. Bond was continued at $500,000 by the court, which ordered a pre-sentence investigation.

Another Vassar resident, Charles G. Crittenden, 30, also entered a plea of guilty Friday.

Crittenden is charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, third offense, June 14 in Vassar, court records state.

Sentencing is scheduled for Dec. 21. The court, which continued bond at $1,000, approved attorneys fees of $65 per hour and ordered the defendant to pay $50 per week towards his legal expenses.

In other proceedings Friday, a Caro man was sentenced to 5 years to 10 years in prison for his Aug. 24 plea of guilty to a charge of breaking and entering an unoccupied dwelling with intent to commit larceny. Richard R. Lawrie, 22, was charged with breaking into an office/retail building at 194 State St., Caro, May 8, records state.

Also receiving a prison term was inmate Robert H. Avery, who pleaded guilty Aug. 17 to escaping from the Tuscola County Jail July 30 while serving a term im-posed for a felony conviction.

Avery was ordered to serve one to 4 years in prison. The sentence is to run concurrent with a sentence Avery is already serving.

James A. Douglas, 33, Vassar, was sentenced to 3 years probation and one year in the county jail (6 months of which was suspended to the end of probation) for his Aug. 24 plea of guilty to a charge of attempted forgery. Douglas also was ordered to pay a $200 fine, court costs of $300, attorneys fees, tially admitted to Hills and Dales, but was transferred to St. Mary's Friday.

According to reports on the Oct. 9 incident, fire fighters were called to the home of Donna Bosley and Randy Bosley, 3701 Cass City Rd., at about 6:40 p.m.

Bingham Township Fire Department Capt. Les Teel said the explosion was ignited when someone at the residence attempted to light a gas stove.

Prior to the explosion. Randy Bosley apparently had shut off the stove gas line in order to work on the stove, according to Teel, who noted it appears that when he returned to the basement to turn the gas back on, he inadvertently turned on an uncapped gas line leading to a utility closet.

volved in the explosion, but damage to the residence was extensive.

Teel estimated damage at $35,000, but noted the figure may be higher because the building has been condemned as being unsafe and uninhabitable.

Fire fighters remained at the scene for about $2 \frac{1}{2}$ hours. Bingham Township firemen and ambulance personnel were assisted by Cass City-Mercy Ambulance personnel, the Elkland Township and Elmwood-Gagetown fire departments, and an investigator with the There was little fire in-state Fire Marshall's office. FRIDAY FIRE

> Tragedy struck a second time last week, when fire destroyed a trailer house located about 2 miles northwest of Shabbona Friday afternoon.

Richard Childers, who lived alone at the residence, escaped serious injury, but was transported by Cass City-Mercy Ambulance to the VA Hospital in Saginaw for treatment of smoke inhalation.

According to Elkland Township Fire Department Capt. Milt Connolly, firemen were called to the residence, 6465 Severance Rd.. at 12:44 p.m.

One neighbor reported he heard a loud bang and then rushed outside and saw smoke pouring out of the house. Another neighbor, Art Severance, was working nearby but reported he didn't hear a bang.

The structure could not be saved, according to Connolly, who estimated damage to the trailer at $5,000. Another $2,000 in contents was lost, he said.

Cause of the blaze, which remains under investigation, is undetermined at this time, he said.

Elkland firemen, who remained at the scene for about 2 hours, were assisted by the Kingston and Elmwood-Gagetown fire departments, which provided water tankers and manpower.

FIRE DESTROYED THIS trailer home about 2 miles northwest of Shabbona early Friday afternoon. The blaze, which remains under investigation, caused an estimated $7,000 in damage.

Issues left hanging by legislature

The Legislature broke for its election recess ignoring many of Governor James J.

Blanchard's top priorities, including gasoline station divorcement, property tax limits and auto insurance rate cuts. Also left in an incomplete state was the 1990-91 sudget, with vetoes in the Corrections budget not adlressed, a temporary judget authorization aproved for Social Services, nd approval of a capital utlay bill that commits the tate to $27 million more in rojects than was appropiated. The legislature's accomplishment lajor uring the abbreviated 3-eek September session as passage of polluters ay legislation, which went) the governor with final louse approval.

Two issues profoundly rapped in electoral camaigns - a 20 percent proprty tax cut identical to one roposed by petition and

Both Dodak and Engler agreed they did not push the Senate on the auto insurance rollback or the House on property tax relief knowing they could not get the votes in the other chamber. They did not want to haggle for 2 or 3 days to no avail. "We don't need more votes in the Senate to establish our position," Engler, the GOP candidate for governor, said of the tax issue. "The course I think is in the interest of property taxpayers is to submit this to the voters in November, and let this be one of the decisive issues of the campaign.'

Blanchard pressed the speaker to vote on the insurance and gasoline station legislation, but Dodak said, "I explained to him some of the problems we have.....being this close to the election. It's because we want to get the budget and get out of here." Dodak said insurance cuts remain a priority and will be done

sed by the House last year; the Senate had passed earlier this year a bill cutting property tax assessments by 20 percent, applied to school operating millages only. William Kandler, the legislative governor's liaison, said he was unhappy about the unfinished agenda. "We don't think they should leave without doing them," he said, referring to the gasoline station, property tax assessment limits, and insurance cuts. He said it indicates the Legislature was not serious about dealing with those is-Blanchard had sues. strongly urged action on bills prohibiting oil refineries from owning gasoline stations and permitting station owners to purchase supplies from any distributor, saying they would fight price gouging by big oil companies following rising tensions in the Middle East. percent cut backed by the Headlee petition. The agreement also angered those pushing for the deeper Headlee cut.

Sen. Gil DiNello (D-East Detroit) said property taxes are "the number one crisis in this state. In an election cycle, people will ask us what we did about property taxes and we will have to tell them it became a hot political potato so we did nothing." Bill McMaster, spokes-man for Headlee group, criticized the Republicans for agreeing to block a vote on the tax cut, saying 60 House members also would have voted for it before the election. "There's a tax revolt going on in Michigan and our elected officials in Lansing don't realize it," he said.

On the Senate side, 9 Democrats and 8 Republicans sponsored legislation (SJR Y) calling for a limited constitutional convention to develop school

Sen. John Kelly (D-Detroit) said the legislation sets up a process allowing resi-dents to vote on both proposals at the 1992 election.

Sen. John Cherry (D-Clio) said, "How the Legislature can recess for the fall election, without addressing property tax relief, is beyond my conception."

Management and Budget Director Shelby Solomon said a lot of business is being left unfinished, including the budget, but said, "I am confident we can find ways to deal with it." The budget was returned to the Legislature when the governor vetoed about half of the DSS budget, significant parts of corrections, and others because they were unrealistic

That would have caused funding to end Sept. 30 in several areas of the budget without the omnibus and Department of Social Services continuation budgets passed. "We had several things driving us, finishing the budget, Headlee ... " Engler said. "I would say it's been a more productive session than those in the past 4, 8 or 12 years because we passed polluters pay legislation.'

Some legislators said the failure to grapple with the budget problems is a preview of a worsening situa-tion. House Minority Leader Paul Hillegonds (R-Holland) said, "I think there is that possibility that the fall session and early next year we'll be overwhelmed by red ink. The
