Report Deford school break-in

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies are investigating a break-in and theft reported last week by Deford Elementary School officials.

School Principal Dorland Kuntz told deputies he discovered the Halloween night break-in Thursday morning. Upon arriving at the school, the principal said he found the door to his office open, and the door to a supply room and a file cabinet pried open.

Access inside the building was gained through a window near the northwest corner of the school, reports state.

Deputies, who noted the culprit passed up computer and audio visual equipment, said they believe the person or persons responsible wanted cash and knew where to look.

A total of $33 was reported missing, according to reports, which estimate damage to the building at some $425.

OTHER REPORTS

Cass City police handled 2 complaints involving larceny and malicious destruction of property over the past week.

Glenn and Mary Wixom, 6378 Fourth St., Cass City, told police vandals threw rocks at and broke 3 windows on the north side of their residence Friday evening. Damage is estimated at $100.

Also, James W. Wright, 4131 Krapf Rd., reported the larceny of 2 amber fog lights from his pickup truck. He stated the theft occurred Oct. 31 while the truck was parked at Charmont Lanes.

ON THE JOB — Hazen Guinther and Norman Gray (above, left to right) were among several Cass City VFW members pitching in last week to help complete renovation of their new post hall in preparation for an open house set for Sunday.

AUXILIARY MEMBERS have been doing their part to help clean and organize the new Cass City VFW post hall, located at 4533 Weaver St.

Nab 4 in Tuscola County drug bust

Police from 5 Thumb law enforcement agencies arrested 4 persons, including 3 from the Cass City area, Monday morning on drug-related charges stemming from a Thumb Narcotics Unit investigation.

A total of 12 officers from the drug unit, Tuscola County Sheriff's Department, Michigan State Police (Caro post), Caro Police Department and Cass City Police Department worked together to execute a total 6 felony warrants, according to a news release issued Monday afternoon by Tuscola County Prosecutor James R. Reed.

The charges—delivery of marijuana and delivery of LSD—carry maximum penalties ranging from 4 to 7 years in prison.

Those arrested and later arraigned in Tuscola County District Court are:

Eileen Marie Seltz, 33, 4300 Green Rd., Cass City; charged with delivery of marijuana. Bond set at $5,000 (personal recognizance).

Nelson Oscar Bolzman, 38, 4300 Green Rd., Cass City; charged with delivery of marijuana. Bond set at $5,000 (personal recognizance).

Lena Marie Remsing, 28, 4118 S. Seeger St., Cass City; charged with delivery of LSD. Bond set at $25,000 (personal recognizance).

Terry Leon Holcomb, 24, 646 Court St., Caro; charged with 3 counts of delivery of marijuana, second offense. Bond set at $5,000 per count (10 percent cash or surety).

"These arrests arise out of the on-going investigations and cooperation between members of the Thumb Narcotics Unit and other police agencies through Tuscola County," Reed stated in the release.

According to Det. Lt. Gordon Good, Thumb Narcotics Unit commander, officers began making the arrests at the suspects' residences at about 6:45 a.m. The operation culminated a 3-month investigation, he said, adding authorities anticipate making 2 additional arrests.

Both the Caro and Cass City police departments were actively involved in the initial investigation, Good said.

Monday's arrests were similar to a sweep operation conducted by the same agencies in the Caro and Cass City areas last February following a 4-month investigation.

In that operation, 14 officers combined efforts to arrest 6 Tuscola County residents on charges of delivery of marijuana and/or delivery of cocaine. Those arrested included a pair of brothers and a mother and daughter, all from the Cass City area.

Cass City police Chief Gene Wilson indicated he believes authorities are beginning to put a dent in the area drug problem. "In general," he commented, "I think it's (drug arrests) made an impression."

$30,000 invested

Vets complete building, plan open house Sunday

With more than 3 months of work and several thousand dollars behind them, members of VFW Post 3644, Cass City, are ready to show off their first permanent home since forming more than 6 years ago.

Area residents are invited to attend an open house from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday at the new post hall, located at 4533 Weaver St.

Light refreshments will be served and the post's "avenue of flags" will be set up at the west end of the village. The display consists of some 70 flags, each donated in memory of a local veteran.

Post members, who have worked feverishly to complete major renovations after purchasing their new post home over the summer, indicated they knew they had their work cut out for them after taking a look inside the structure.

"It looked like the inside of a coal mine, and just about as pleasant," post Quartermaster Jack Esau recalled, noting the building previously stood vacant for 5 or 6 years.

The structure was built in the 1950s and first served as a bowling alley, he said, adding it was later converted into a weekend flea market.

The building also served as a temporary meeting place for the Evangelical Free Church.

Since making the purchase, VFW members have invested many man hours and some $30,000 into the structure.

The work has included extensive remodeling as well as renovation of the electrical and plumbing systems. Workers also installed a sprinkler system, replaced 2 furnaces and rebuilt portions of the floor.

Other improvements also are planned. An outside paint job is slated for next year and members hope to eventually pave the parking lot.

According to Esau, a majority of the renovations have been funded with dollars from the post's building fund, started in 1986. A public appeal earlier this year drew another $3,000 in donations, he said.

The project cost was kept way down thanks to a skilled work force within the local VFW post's membership, including a half dozen carpenters, 3 electricians and others willing to donate their time and skills. The project was headed up by Frank McComb, the post's building chairman and a licensed carpenter.

Aside from serving as the new VFW headquarters, the renovated hall will host area Boy and Girl Scout meetings. The building will also be rented out for receptions, small auctions and shows, and other activities.

Esau commented that VFW members had planned to build a new post hall south of the village, but quickly seized the opportunity to buy the Weaver Street building.

For the past 4 years, the Cass City VFW membership has called a rented hall on East Main Street home. Prior to that, meetings of the post, formed in February 1984, were held in the basement of the Charmont.

"This is the best thing that ever happened to us," Esau remarked. "(The post hall) should be in town and it should be almost on Main Street."

Lamotte Auxiliary raises $160,000

Members of the Lamotte Ladies Auxiliary didn't write the book on fund raising, but chances are good they could have.

In 10 years, the auxiliary and its bingo committee have poured close to $160,000 into Lamotte Township, with the biggest chunk—about $140,000—going to help make the township's fire department among the best equipped for its size in the Thumb.

"You can't say enough about these women. They back the firemen all the way," Lamotte Township Fire Chief Bob Fields remarked.

Fields made the comment during an open house Sunday at the township fire hall, located just east of Hemans. The event was sponsored by the auxiliary and bingo committee.

Although gloomy skies and rain kept attendance down, the poor weather didn't dampen the enthusiasm of fire fighters and auxiliary members who gathered at the hall to meet those interested in taking a look at the township's fire equipment.

"We probably could have gotten some of this equipment (without the auxiliary's efforts), but it would have taken a much longer time," Fields said, adding the auxiliary's efforts have been greatly appreciated.

"Where do you start?" he continued. "Take $140,000 and it goes a long way to buying equipment."

Over the past decade, the auxiliary has spent close to $133,656 on fire department vehicles—$59,000 towards a $93,000 pumper, $49,333 for a tanker and $25,323 for a 4 by 4 pickup with a skid unit.

In addition, the group has purchased a variety of fire fighting equipment, including a K-12 saw and blade ($651), a case for the saw ($179), 7 pagers for firemen ($2,919) and a Scott air tank ($851).

The auxiliary has also spent close to $11,000 for bathroom remodeling and air conditioning and lights at the township hall, and $5,900 for appliances and other items for the hall. Another $1,550 has been donated; $350 to accident victim Rodney King, $700 to the Bea McDonald Elementary School, Marlette, for a bus base radio, and $500 to the Marlette and Cass City VFW posts.

The contributions have been made possible by what auxiliary members describe as friendly, well-run and well-attended Tuesday night bingo games, which began in June 1980, about 7 years after the auxiliary was formed.

"For being out in the country, it surprises us we do so well," Marion Fields, auxiliary treasurer and secretary of the bingo committee, remarked.

"All our players say it's because we have such a well-run bingo," Betty Walkowski, another auxiliary and bingo committee member, commented. "I know a lot of people say they like the friendliness."

Auxiliary President and bingo committee treasurer Doris Fishell agreed, adding, "I think we just have a good working crowd, and we always treat them (players) good."

Attendance on bingo nights averages 65 to 70 persons, with each night typically raising $400-plus.

"We just feel it's the easiest way to make $500," Walkowski remarked. She said it takes some work to run a good game, but added bingo offers a much better profit margin than other

Record crop of beets 98% harvested

Last week's warm, dry weather gave area farmers a huge assist and a spokesman for Michigan Sugar Company in Caro estimated that the crop is now about 98 percent harvested.

According to the company, farmers are producing record-size crops this year.

Beets are producing about 20.5 tons per acre, compared to an average yield of about 20 tons. Sugar content is also high. It is averaging about 17.5 per cent, almost as good as last year's average, which was a record 18.3 percent.

Sugar content in an average year is about 16.6 percent. First of 4 beet payments for the 1990 crop will be in December. Authorities say it is way too early to estimate how much the total payment will be.

Her veil of illusion was secured by a princess cap of lace and taffeta. She carried an array of white roses, pink mini-carnations, white spider mums, stephanotis, purple statice and baby's breath with a small cascade of springeri.

No hoops wanted

by Melva E. Guinther

There are a few places I really wouldn't want to live. Siberia and Iraq come to mind. And Garden City, N.J.

I've never been to any of those places, and my negative reaction is based solely on what I've read or heard about them.

Probably most readers would share my reluctance regarding Iraq and Siberia. But why Garden City?

If an article in one of the dailies is accurate, the ritzy residents of Garden City think that basketball hoops are eyesores and unworthy of their elegant neighborhood.

Members of the affluent community reportedly decided a couple of years ago to include basketball hoops under an old law banning "accessory structures" in the city.

They recently gave offending hoop owners 90 days to get rid of them. If they refused, they could face up to a $250-a-day fine.

You can understand where they're coming from. Really. Kids don't need those ugly hoops that clutter up the landscape. Why can't they just go out and rob gas stations or deal drugs like other kids?

Maybe I have a distorted view of what life's all about. I have never been affluent. But in my mind, houses and yards, and neighborhoods, are for the comfort and enjoyment of the people who live there.

I could never understand having delicate, expensive dishes that were not to be used, or plush white carpet that the family's forbidden to walk on. Or fancy, fragile furniture that's just for show.

After our only son went away to college in California, which seemed almost around the world at the time, the sound of a dribbling basketball took on a new significance and nostalgia for me, and the sight of kids playing basketball made me especially lonesome for him.

Whenever we drove through the countryside, I'd wistfully notice the houses with basketball hoops and hope that the people who lived there were enjoying the all too brief time they had with their kids.

If we ever have grandchildren, I want them to have fun when they come to Grandma's house. And that's what I hope they'll remember, not elegant furnishings that they were constantly shooed away from.

I want to enjoy them, not run around telling them "Don't touch!"

And as they grow older, if they enjoy playing basketball, I'll probably do my best to see that they have a basketball hoop to play with.

Like I said, I've never been affluent, so maybe I just don't understand.

But regardless of how much money they have, I question just how "rich" those Garden City residents really are.

There doesn't appear to be any competition in the cable television business in Cass City. Next month the cost for cable rentals from C-Tec Cable Systems of Michigan, Inc. will be raised 12 percent to $16.95 per month.

Twelve percent, of course, greatly exceeds the rate of inflation. Even that wouldn't be so bad if the increase came after a period of stable pricing.

But this jump in rates comes on the heels of a 13 percent rate hike in January, making the boost 25 percent in just 11 months.

GTE has issued a warning to phone subscribers about using 900 numbers. They are not free and can be quite expensive, depending on the service offered. GTE acts as the collection agent for clients and says it has a responsibility to collect these bills.

Anker in "fair" condition following Oct. 29 accident

A Cass City man remains hospitalized with burns following a fiery 2-vehicle accident early last week in Wells Township.

Donald L. Anker, 54, 5016 Cedar Run Rd., Cass City, was listed in "fair" condition at St. Mary's Medical Center Monday, a week after the accident occurred.

According to state police at the Caro post, Anker was eastbound on Rossman Road Oct. 29 when the logging truck he was driving was hit by a southbound car that failed to yield at the Plain Road intersection.

Following impact, the logging truck rolled on its side and the cab caught fire, troopers reported.

Anker was transported to the burn unit at St. Mary's by Flightcare Helicopter.

The driver of the car, Pamela T. Holmes, 29, 2550 Plain Rd., Caro, was treated and released from Caro Community Hospital. Troopers cited her for failing to yield in the 2:35 p.m. crash.

The Haire Net

By the time you read this, the chances are Tuesday's election is history. It got a little hot and heavy at the end as candidates for hotly disputed offices let out all the stops.

While the ads didn't lie, they did tend to portray the facts differently. Some folks believed that the way it was done, if not wrong, was at least in poor taste.

You won't find agreement here with them. Advertising is designed to influence, to present the picture the way you want the reader to think about it. Readers aren't dumb. We take into consideration the bias of the advertiser. That's why advertising is clearly marked, so we can know and evaluate what we read.

We also find nothing wrong in the Republicans banding together to try to push party members into office or for the Democrats doing the same. It's the essence of the 2-party system.

What we find a little annoying is the political parties spilling over into the non-partisan election. We find the Republicans lining up solidly for Duane Burgess, not, I suspect, because of his talents, but because of his party affiliation.

Before you ask, no, we aren't painting the Democrats as above such petty politics. You didn't find any Democrats on the list supporting Burgess.

I suppose it would be a Utopian world if the only endorsement a candidate for a theoretically non-partisan office would receive came from someone who honestly, sincerely believed that the person was the best possible one to serve on one of Michigan's court benches.

There was a time when an endorsement by the Republican Party was tantamount to election. In the 1950's there had never been a Democrat elected in Elkland Township or from Tuscola County.

That's all changed now and Kim Glaspie is the reflection of the trend. He was the first Democrat named from Cass City and the first of the party to be elected commissioner from District 2.

Looking at the endorsement received by Burgess, there are names there that carry weight.

But as pointed out earlier, even such names as Elsie Hicks, a proven vote getter and one of the most popular of Tuscola County clerks before she retired, loses much of its impact when you go down the list of endorsements and it becomes a list of the county's Republican stalwarts.

When this happens, it is no longer a non-partisan election.

But, then, I suppose it never was.

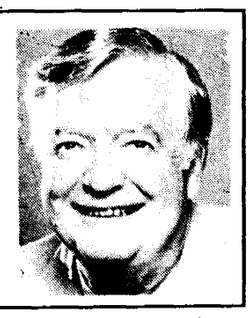
An old grandpoop again



By Jim Fitzgerald

Because of his name, when I first met Adam Smith, I told him that, according to published reports, his share of the over $3-trillion national debt was $12,000, not counting $2,500 for the S&L scandal. I thought he'd be interested because another Adam Smith, in Scotland in the 1700s, was a famous economist whose arithmetic is still studied today.

Today's Adam Smith wasn't interested. He gave me a groggy look and a burp, indicating he shares my interest in economics, which is dormant on either side of the decimal point. I decided that eventually I would call Adam by his middle name, which is Fitzgerald, but not right away. The old grandpoop could at least wait until Adam got out of the hospital before messing with the name chosen by his parents.

When we first talked, last Friday, Adam was 90 minutes old, 9 pounds, 7 ounces and 21 inches. His gender had just been officially verified by his 4-year-old sister, Tricia, who peeked under Adam's blanket and reported with a knowing grin: "Yup, he's a boy."

1981 — the good old days

Adam's other big sister, Emily, was also on the scene. In honor of Adam Smith the economist, it's dismaying to note that when Emily was born in 1981, her immediate share of the national debt was $4,694. It took only 9 years for we wise adults to increase our children's individual debt at birth by almost $10,000.

But don't worry. After a tremendously heroic struggle to stay on the government payroll, Congress just came up with a deficit-reduction plan that guarantees my new grandson won't be thrown into debtor's prison by the IRS until he's at least 10.

All progress isn't backward, however. When my mother was in the hospital delivering my younger sisters, the closest I got to them was to stand outside on the hospital lawn. When my wife had our children, I had to look at them through a maternity ward window. But before he was 2 hours old, while several cameras clicked and whirred up his defenseless nose, Adam Fitz Smith had been snuggled by 7 coo-cooing relatives crammed into the hospital recovery room.

Less than an hour later, we watched the happy scene over and over again on videotape. And Emily used her parents' computer to make a 10-foot banner with a picture of 2 open hands and "Welcome Home Adam and Mom" printed on it. Please don't ask me how she did it. I'm sick of admitting I'm dumber than a little kid.

Keeping track, relatively

I now have two grandsons — the day before Adam's birth, the other one, 16-year-old John Wescott, scored a touchdown for the Frankenmuth junior varsity team. I have 4 granddaughters, not 5, no matter what you might have heard. A coworker recently returned from a downtown luncheon function and said he'd sat next to my granddaughter and she said to say hello. That's ridiculous. None of my grandchildren are old enough for stuffy luncheons.

Without asking, I knew he'd sat next to my niece, Sheila Fitzgerald, a veteran employee of Michigan Bell. Sheila is the daughter of Terrible Jean, my much older sister, whose childbearing years ended during the Lincoln administration. Don't tell me that medical science has discovered a way for old women to have babies. Terrible Jean had her babies before the discovery of medical science.

To kiss up to her mother and ensure a top spot in the parental will, Sheila likes to tell people I'm old enough to be her mother's father. All I can say is Sheila's a chunk off the old old old blockhead. I'm sorry I can't say anything more clever than that, but I've been busy becoming a grandparent, which Terrible Jean isn't, so she can hug mine for $5 a hug.

Finally, after visiting her mother and brother, Emily was sobered to see a woman sobbing as she talked on a phone in the hospital lobby. Emily was reminded that maternity wards are generally the only always-happy spots in hospitals, and she and her family are very fortunate.

Nuts to the national treasury. With the addition of healthy Adam Fitz Smith, our family treasury is bursting with joy, and we are very grateful.

Congregation celebrates 125 years

Early history of Salem Church reviewed

When the Salem United Methodist Church was formed in 1865, its modest congregation met in a schoolhouse and listened to services in German.

In accordance with tradition, the men sat on one side of the room and women sat on the other side.

A lot has changed since then, but members of the Cass City church recently went back to that seating arrangement in honor of the congregation's 125th anniversary celebration.

The Oct. 27-28 observance also featured a harvest supper, services led by the Rev. Clare Patton, who recently retired as pastor of the church, and a history of the church presented by longtime member Audrey Katzenberger.

According to Katzenberger, who along with Kathy Tuckey researched the congregation's roots over the summer, the church was initially guided by the Rev. Stephen Henne, a pastor from a mission in Sebewaing.

With many German families moving into the area at the time, the church was called the German Methodist Church.

The first congregation met in what was the Walmsley Schoolhouse, located 1 1/2 miles north of Cass City, Katzenberger said, adding that on Sunday afternoons, they would gather at the John Strifflers, who had an organ, for singing practice.

In 1883 there were about 50 members, and a building fund was established.

A year later, "A white frame church was built on the present site," Katzenberger said. "The church faced the north and was heated by 2 wood-burning stoves."

She noted the church's Sunday School Class had been formed by that time (1882). A Ladies Aid was created in 1901 and the Missionary Society was started in 1911.

According to records, the Rev. G.J. Kirn, pastor from 1890 to 1893, was the first to preach in English at the church. He would preach in German at the Sunday morning service and in English during the evening service.

"Shortly after this, Sunday School was (taught) in English, except the older people's class, which was continued in German," Katzenberger said. "Between 1913 and 1916 very little German was used."

During those early years, Katzenberger noted there were sheds on the east side of the church to protect horses and rigs, the main transportation at the time.

"In 1914, they had to repair and enlarge the sheds. In the winter the men of the church cut and hauled logs on the ice-crusted river to the Vogel farm, then to the sawmill for the lumber for the sheds," she said. Katzenberger added the sheds were used until 1929, when they were sold and removed.

By 1914, the church had enough money to install a coal furnace, which replaced the wood burners.

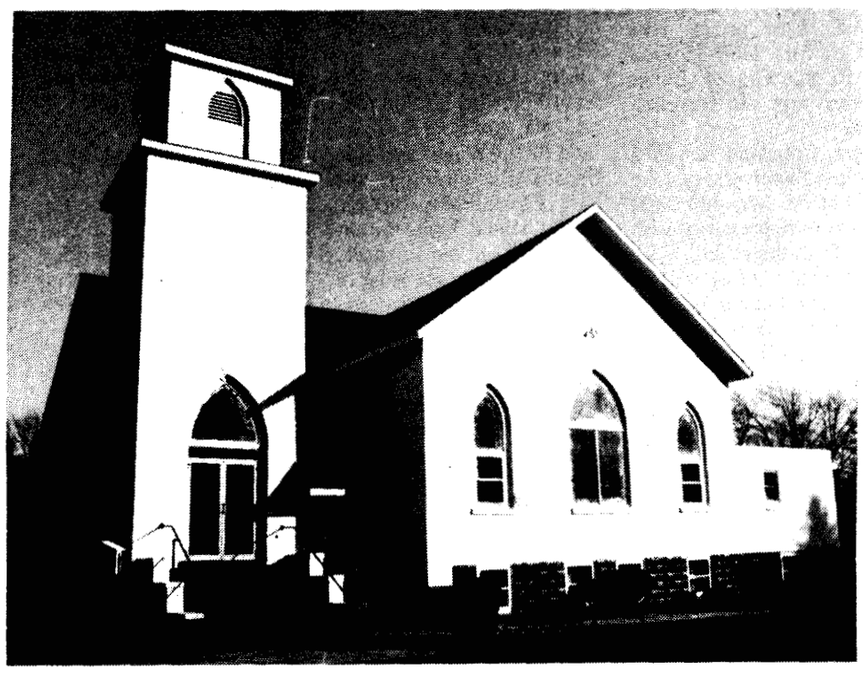
Five years later, Mr. and Mrs. Vogel donated lumber to remodel the church, which was raised and turned to face the west. In addition, a basement was finished under the structure, and new furniture and stained glass windows—the gifts of different organizations of the church and Pastor J.A. Schweitzer and his wife—were added.

Since then, the church building has undergone a number of changes, including various expansion projects, remodeling and improvements.

The name has also undergone some change. In 1946, the Evangelical Conference merged with the United Brethren denomination, thus creating the Salem Evangelical United Brethren Church.

More than 20 years later, in 1968, the church was merged with the United Methodist denomination and became the Salem United Methodist Church.

THIS PHOTO OF the Salem United Methodist Church building was taken early in the history of the church, established in 1865.



MORE THAN 130 persons attended special services recently that marked the 125th anniversary of Salem United Methodist Church (above). The Rev. Donald J. Daws currently is pastor of the Cass City congregation.

CONTRIBUTORS TO the Bach Festival cookbook, Nancy deBeaubien, left, and Arthur Holmberg, examine the new book with Karen Fischer, co-editor.

Varied recipes feature of Festival cookbook

Twelve years ago, the first Village Bach Festival concerts debuted in Cass City at Thanksgiving time. Area residents shared their homes while others coordinated, prepared and served meals for the performing musicians.

Since professional artists often travel and feast on fine cuisine, each year presented a challenge for the hostesses and food committees. Still, annual compliments and raves finally compelled the workers to combine their recipes with those of the performers.

Two years ago, Bach Festival Board members decided to get serious about this venture. "At the time, it seemed like the perfect souvenir for our upcoming 10th anniversary," explained Karen Fischer. Together with Jane Hittler, the team began to gather cooking secrets and recipes. In order to make the book truly a Village Bach Festival keepsake, they contacted former and present musicians, as well as those who have offered area assistance during Festival time through the years.

Many months later, the committee compiled the collection into Village Bach Festival Cooks.

"The recipes represent how America eats," commented Holly Althaver, founding co-chair of the Festival. "Since our musicians come from all over the country, they provided us with popular dishes from their areas. Specialty recipes from our local supporters have created a nice balance."

Currently, the book is available at several Cass City stores, the Rawson Memorial Library and Hills and Dales Hospital gift shop. Copies are $7.00 and can be mailed. All proceeds will go toward continued support of the Festival.

Murawski, Dorsch lead Owen-Gage past Port Hope

Career high efforts by Lisa Dorsch and Renee Murawski, who combined for 31 points, helped lead Owen-Gage past Port Hope, 52-38.

"Our inside offensive game came alive," stated a delighted Coach Dean Roller afterwards.

Roller will need another strong showing from his inside duo Tuesday if they hope to be victorious against Akron-Fairgrove in their season's home finale. The Vikings boast the area's 2 leading rebounders in Kim Butcher and Danelle Volk. Owen-Gage will finish their regular season Friday with winless Caseville.

Last Friday the visiting Bulldogs jumped out in front 17-9 as Port Hope had trouble scoring against a tenacious zone defense.

Roller credited high scoring guard Vicki Ricker, who sacrificed her 17 points per game average scoring, for much of his team's defensive success.

"Ricker did a fine job on Gaffke, holding her to 7 points (14 points below her season average) with our box and one defense."

However, foul trouble in the 2nd quarter allowed the Blue Stars to even the score by half-time at 25-all.

The 2nd half belonged to the Bulldogs' defense, who held Port Hope to just 13 points, 5 in the fourth quarter, the rest of the night.

Dorsch's 19 points were tops among the winners, while Ricker and Murawski split 24 tallies.

Tracey Emerick's 14 markers were best for the losers.

PECK CONTEST

On Tuesday Peck rode a 49-35 rebounding advantage to record their 2nd win of the season over Owen-Gage, 71-49.

A 16-point first half performance by sophomore Michelle Tkacz kept the 'Dogs close till the intermission, when they trailed 29-38.

Peck's all stater Shelly Ross threw in 9 quick points in the early going of the 3rd frame to remove any hopes of upset by the Bulldogs. Ross finished with 23 points to top all scorers.

Owen-Gage was led by Tkacz's 20-point performance, while teammate Ricker posted 15, including three 3-point baskets.

3 sentenced, one pleads Friday

An inmate who escaped from a community residential center in Caro July 17 was sentenced to prison Friday in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

The defendant, James H. Wright, 21, was ordered to serve 18 months to 5 years, according to court records, which state Wright pleaded guilty to the charge Oct. 26.

John M. Hill, 22, of Caro, was sentenced for his Sept. 28 plea of no contest to charges of malicious destruction of property over $100 and illegal entry.

On the first charge, Hill was sentenced to 3 years probation and one year in the county jail, with participation in the work site program, and ordered to pay a $200 fine, $400 in court costs plus attorneys fees, restitution and a $30 crime victim fee. He received an additional jail term of 90 days for the illegal entry conviction.

Both counts stem from a Sept. 15 incident involving Caro Community Hospital, 401 Hooper St., Caro, according to court records.

Also sentenced Friday was Mayville resident Raymond P. Glutch, 17, who pleaded no contest Sept. 24 to a charge of second degree Criminal Sexual Conduct.

Glutch was sentenced to 365 days in the county jail and 5 years probation, and ordered to pay a $30 crime victim fee, a $30 per month oversight fee, a $100 fine and $400 in court costs plus attorneys fees. Glutch also was ordered not to associate with any child under the age of 15 years.

Court records state the teen was charged with engaging in sexual contact with a child under the age of 13 years March 31 in Fremont Township.

In other proceedings Friday, a Port Huron man entered a plea of innocent during his arraignment on a charge of second degree child abuse.

A pretrial hearing is to be scheduled for the defendant, Scott Syzak, 23, who is accused of seriously injuring a 6-month-old child March 8, 1989, in Millington.

BULLDOG AIMEE MERCHANT gets a shot off over Peck's Tracey Gordon.

Slump time

Red Hawks fall to Caro, Lakers

It was not a week to be remembered for the Cass City Red Hawks basketball teams. The Hawks continued a late season slump that has seen the team bow to clubs that they defeated the first time around.

Cass City lost to Caro Friday, 46-42, a team beaten in the first round by 16 points. The team also lost to Lakers, 47-32, in a game much closer than the final score indicated.

Add to these losses a pair of defeats by the junior varsity, 40-28 to the Lakers and 41-39 to Caro, and it becomes the worst week of the season for Cass City.

The Hawks don't have much time to get back into a winning groove before the district tournament. Friday Cass City entertains North Branch. It's parents' night and the final regular season game of the year.

The Hawks did everything right against Caro except putting the ball in the hole. The Tigers used a full-court press all night and Jodi and Jandi Hillaker handled it well, only to have the team miss the easy lay-up.

It was especially frustrating for Cass City in the second quarter. The Hawks had charged out to a 17-10 first period lead on the strength of Jodi Hillaker's 3 field goals and 5 free throws by closely guarded Jandi Hillaker.

But in the next period Cass City was held to just a pair of free throws while Jeanne Mutton took control of the Tiger offense with 4 big buckets to push her team in front at the half, 22-19. In the first half the talented senior accounted for 14 of Caro's 22 points.

Cass City bounced back in the third quarter to tie the score but Caro took charge again in crunch time behind 3 more baskets by Mutton to ice the win.

Mutton led all scorers with 20 points. Jandi Hillaker netted 15 and Jodi Hillaker, 10, for Cass City.

LAKER GAME

Although the Hawks lost for the second time this season to the Lakers, Coach Marty Daniel was not disappointed with the team's performance. It was a well-played game, he said.

Cass City was down by only 4 points with 6 minutes left. We went to a "take a chance" offense and the Lakers took advantage of it to widen the margin at the end.

It was a defensive struggle all the way. At the end of the first quarter the score was tied, 10-all. At the intermission Cass City trailed by just a free throw, 16-15, and at the end of the third quarter the margin was just 4 points, 29-25.

Cass City's scoring was well divided, led by Jennie Storm with 8 points. The Lakers had 2 players in double figures, Holly Esch, 16, and Tammy Smith, 11.

Your neighbor says

On a scale of 10, Bush gets 5

Keeping in the spirit of the election races, we asked your neighbor, Fred Smith, to evaluate the efforts of President Bush to date.

On a scale ranging from one to 10, Smith, who owns and operates Huron Office Supply in downtown Cass City along with his wife Brenda, says, "I'd give him about a 5."

Smith moved to the area from Minnesota in September to open his business, which sells office equipment and related functions such as a copying service. He added, "I read where his popularity is decreasing after a fast start."

And if people voted Tuesday along with the local elections, would Mr. Bush get re-elected?

"I think if there was a good Democratic candidate he would win."

Part of the reason for President Bush's decreased popularity, according to the 39-year-old Cass City businessman, is his handling of the Middle East and national debt problems.

"I think he is screwing around too much in the Middle East and I am tiring of following (all the revisions) on the budget."

Continuing, the Pigeon resident said, "If he can pull out of the Middle East (without incident), his popularity will go back up."

The Smiths have 4 children, Kim, Jenny, Dwight and Nicole.

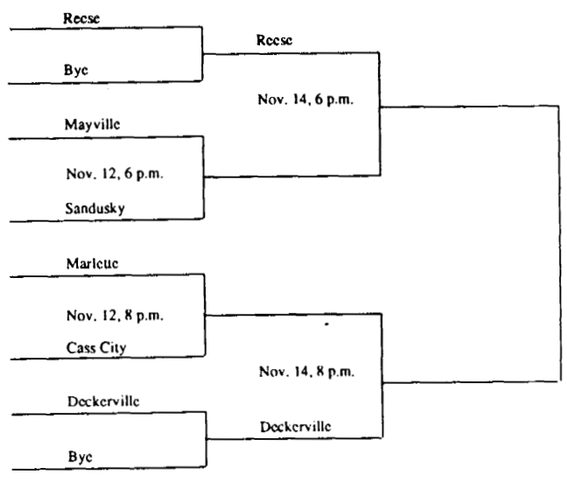
Tourney time

Cass City faces Marlette for 3rd time this season

The luck of the draw has placed the Cass City Red Hawks in what figures to be the most competitive bracket for the district tournament at Marlette that starts next week.

The Hawks will face Marlette Monday, with whom they split 2 games this season. If the team slips by the Red Raiders they meet the tourney favorite, undefeated Deckerville, Wednesday, Nov. 14. The Eagles drew a bye.

In the other bracket Sandusky, which has lost only to Deckerville in the regular season, will be favored over Mayville. The winner plays Reese, which drew a bye.



Bulldogs draw winless Caseville Tuesday at A-F

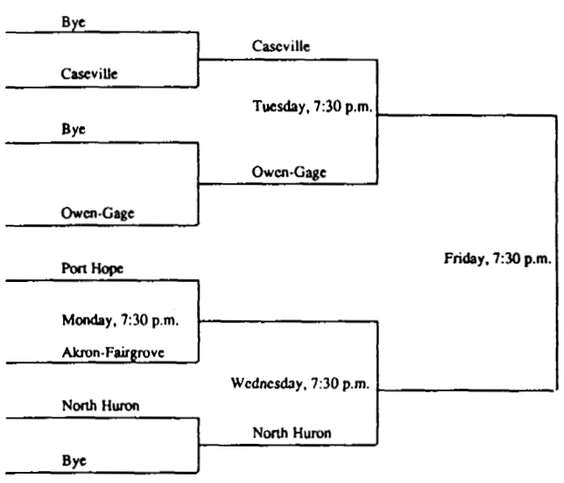
Coach Dean Roller received an early Christmas present Monday when the Class D district draw was announced for his Owen-Gage Bulldogs.

Barring a major upset, the 'Dogs should be able to vie for the district crown as they benefitted through a first round bye, then face winless Caseville Tuesday, with the winner advancing to Friday's championship tilt.

"If you can get it (the district championship) to boil down to one game, you never know", said a pleased Roller.

The bottom half of the district bracket includes NCTL teams Port Hope, North Huron and hosts Akron-Fairgrove. High scoring North Huron will be heavily favored to advance to regional competition.

All games are slated for 7:30 tip-off.



Owen-Gage seniors meet

Twenty-nine members of the Owen-Gage Senior Citizens club met at the parish hall of St. Agatha's Church in Gagetown Thursday for a potluck meal and business meeting.

The group noted its appreciation for the ladies of the Gagetown Methodist Church, who served a meal Oct. 18 to 44 members.

In other business, 7 blood pressure readings were taken, and get well cards were sent to Josephine Bartnik, who has a broken wrist, and to Stella Pisarek, who has a bad cold.

Door prizes went to Louis Ouvry and Gerry Carolan.

It was noted Iva Volz and Beatrice Jones are celebrating birthdays this month and Bob and Florence Schell are having their 23rd anniversary.

The club started taking membership fees for 1991. A motion was made to increase dues, but after some discussion the proposal was turned down.

A nominating committee of Iva Volz, Veneta Kling and Johanna Miklovich was appointed to pick a new president and vice president, which will be elected next month.

Karr benefit set Thursday at Gilligan's

A benefit dance and silent auction for area residents Dennis and Nancy Karr will be held Thursday from 7 to 11 p.m. at Gilligan's in Cass City.

Tickets can be purchased at the Hills and Dales General Hospital gift shop or emergency room, or at the door.

Dennis, who has been stricken with cancer, along with his wife and family, will be on hand to greet those who attend the event.

INSPECTING THE renovated basketball courts in Cass City recently were Lions Club members (left to right) Paul Chappel and Don Ball, village Manager Lou S. LaPonsie and Rotary Club members Gerald Houghton and Matt Prieskorn. The 2 clubs combined resources for the 2-month, $16,000 project, which included resurfacing and new poles, backboards and break-away rims. Planned future improvements include lights and a paint job.

Tuscola County law enforcement agencies reported a number of minor damage vehicle accidents—most of them involving deer—over the past week.

Mary Jane Voelker, 7815 Canboro Rd., Owendale, told troopers at the state police post in Caro she was westbound on Bay City-Forestville Rd. east of Ashmore Rd. at about 12:45 p.m. Sunday when she lost control on a mud covered section of roadway. Reports state her vehicle spun sideways and entered a ditch.

Another motorist, Marion R. O'Dell, 3570 E. Cass City Rd., Cass City, reported her vehicle's windshield was struck by a sugar beet Oct. 30.

Among the area residents who reported car-deer accidents, including the times, dates and places the mishaps occurred, were:

Scott D. McCool, 5002 Shay Lake Rd., Kingston, 6:45 p.m. Sunday on northbound Clothier Rd. south of Brief Rd. in Koylton Township.

Telephone operators hold reunion

It was a meeting of long-time associates Saturday, Oct. 27, at the VFW Hall in Cass City, reminiscing about a time and occupation that no longer exist. A job which spanned 40 years for the group of 20 former telephone operators for GTE.

The agenda was highlighted by the activities that are the hallmark of every reunion. Letters from operators unable to attend. A moment of silent prayer for operates who died, Sadie Fordyce, Ellen McCormick, Hazel McCarthy, Lenora Teller, Grant Van Winkle, Robert Stockwell, Harold Janson and Warren Erickson.

Committee members were concerned that all members may not have been contacted because of lack of records. Another reunion is planned in 2 years.

Asked what they believe is the key to their success, auxiliary members cited a very loyal following and cooperation among themselves.

They also lauded the township, which offers the auxiliary use of the hall free of charge, and pays for all the insurance on fire department vehicles.

The combined efforts have made the 18-member Lamotte Fire Department, established in September 1972, probably the best equipped department of its size in the area, the fire chief concluded.

"We can't say enough about them for what they've done for us," he repeated.

Cass City man faces sex charge

A Cass City man was arraigned on a charge of first degree Criminal Sexual Conduct early last week in Tuscola County District Court.

Bond for the defendant, Gary J. Musall, 46, 4480 Leach St., was set at $30,000. A preliminary exam was to have been held today (Wednesday).

According to court records, Musall is accused of engaging in sexual penetration with a child under the age of 13 years Oct. 27 in Cass City.

Also arraigned recently was a Clio resident charged with manufacturing marijuana Aug. 29 in Arbela Township.

A preliminary exam was slated for 1:30 p.m. Nov. 14 for the defendant, Fred E. Tune, 43, whose bond was set at $2,000.

Families laud program

Cass City's response to hospice care 'excellent'

Joyce McConkey's experience with the Marlette Community Hospice lasted for only a few days, but the Cass City woman hasn't forgotten what the program and its personnel meant during a very difficult time in her life.

Helpful, compassionate, quick to respond.

The hospice is these and more, according to McConkey, whose husband, Maynard, died last July.

She recalled that the hospice came into the picture during the last 5 days of her husband's life.

The program provided nursing and other medical care, which was only a phone call and minutes away, 24 hours a day, McConkey said, adding the hospice was also quick to arrange for delivery and set-up of a hospital bed. After her husband's death, hospice officials promptly arranged to take care of the bed and other equipment.

"The nurse was (Marlette Hospice Director) Helen Atkins, and her compassion and understanding and training. . .I can't say enough. It was just marvelous," she remarked.

Pat and Don Mills, also of Cass City, echoed McConkey's comments.

The couple are taking care of Pat's mother, Margaret Morris, 82, in their home with the help of the Marlette Hospice.

"They do everything—anything that you need," Pat said. "They call every week and see if there's anything you need, and your nurse is as close as her beeper."

Hospice personnel come in 3 times a week to bathe Mrs. Morris, check on her oxygen, answer questions, call to see how things are going and help in other ways.

Without the hospice, taking care of her at home wouldn't be possible, Pat remarked. "Physically, I couldn't handle the work."

"This is the only possibility of keeping her home," Don agreed, noting he feels better knowing Pat's mother is getting proper medical care by trained personnel.

BENEFIT

"I think it's for the benefit of the patient, and it's for our peace of mind that we're doing the right thing," he continued.

At the same time, Mrs. Morris—a very independent person by nature, according to her daughter—is surrounded by family and gets regular visits from a number of her grandchildren and great-grandchildren, which the Mills see as a very positive thing.

Mrs. Morris described the care she's getting as "wonderful" and remarked, "I like being here alright as long as I'm not a bother."

The Mills and McConkeys are among 6 area families who have been served by the Marlette Hospice since the organization began coordinating hospice services in Cass City with the cooperation of Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Under the cooperative agreement, reached last February, Marlette Hospice provides inpatient care locally, trains volunteers and arranges for a variety of home-based care services in the area.

CERTIFIED

The Marlette Hospice is the only licensed and certified program in the Thumb and was the first hospital-based rural program established in Michigan and the fifth such program established nationwide. The organization provides in-patient care at Hills and Dales General Hospital, Deckerville Community Hospital and Marlette Community Hospital, and offers home care services throughout Tuscola and Sanilac counties.

"We are seeing increasingly more patients each year," Atkins commented. "In fact, we had a 67 percent increase in the number of patients in 1989-90."

Response to the program in Cass City has been excellent, the hospice director said.

Ten area residents have completed the organization's 30-hour training program, and "the support we've had from the medical staff (at Hills and Dales) has been incredible. It has been really very good," she commented, adding the local pharmacies also have responded to meet the program's needs.

In general, Atkins pointed out, getting the medical community to support the hospice concept hasn't been easy.

DIFFICULT

"It's been difficult nationwide because it's a different way of treating the patient," she explained. "For doctors, it's a way of saying, `I can't cure you, but I can continue to care for you'."

Hospice care, geared towards persons who have 6 months or less to live, has traditionally been thought of as a means to help a person die with dignity.

But Atkins said the program is also about choices—where the patient wants to die, whether or not they want to remain pain-free, whether they want life support.

"Basically, the purpose is to allow terminally ill people to have a say on how they're going to live out the rest of their lives. It just allows a lot more independence for the patient and their family," she added.

Under federal legislation enacted in 1984, every person who has Medicare coverage is entitled to hospice care, according to Atkins, who said Medicare pays $69 per patient per day.

"We pay everything out of that $69 per day," she remarked. "We're very dependent on fund raisers and memorials."

SERVICES

Services provided by the hospice include availability of nursing care 24 hours a day, house calls by physicians, pharmaceuticals and medical equipment, volunteer training (it costs $200 to train one volunteer), 13 months of bereavement services, including counseling, and respite care, which involves temporary placement of a patient in a hospital to give the caregiver a break.

"The majority of our patients have some sort of insurance. If they don't, we take them anyway," Atkins said.

Cost is a big advantage for families who can take advantage of hospice care over some other options, such as nursing home care, but the benefits don't end at the bottom line.

"I think the toughest thing for people to realize is, that person is going to die whether hospice is there or not. It's just when hospice is there, it's a lot easier."

Atkins concluded, "We can't stop anybody from dying, but we can sure help to make it a little more comfortable."

Editor's note — In acknowledgement of the value of hospice programs and in recognition of health care professionals and volunteers who care for the terminally ill, the Congress of the United States and President Bush have proclaimed November as National Hospice Month.

Additional information about hospice care and the services available locally can be obtained by contacting Helen Atkins at (517) 635-7491.
