KOYLTON Township officials have won their zoning battle against Pioneer Work and Learn Center. The Michigan Supreme Court decided Monday it won't review an appeal of a ruling that would close the camp due to zoning violations.

Koylton Township wins

50 jobs lost as Supreme Court affirms camp closing

Koylton Township's case against Pioneer Work and Learn Center is expected to be back in court later this month. But this time, after 3 years of arguments, hearings and appeals, the question being asked will be when — not if — the work and learn program operating at Camp Kingston Hills will be shut down due to violation of township zoning laws. The Michigan Supreme Court ruled Monday afternoon that it will not hear an appeal of the case requested by Pioneer attorneys. The court also denied a request for a stay of proceedings against the camp. The decision allows attorneys representing the township to proceed with plans to seek enforcement of a ruling that would close the facility. Township attorney J. Anthony Sykora, Sandusky, said Monday he hopes to get the case back into Tuscola County circuit court Aug. 16. Sykora noted his motion seeking enforcement of Judge Patrick R. Joslyn's ruling against the camp was filed in May, days after the Michigan Court of Appeals unanimously affirmed all points of Joslyn's ruling. Specifically, the motion requests that Joslyn set a closing date and direct county authorities to supervise the closing and eviction of Pioneer employees and wards from Camp Kingston Hills. Attorneys are also asking the judge to find Pioneer and the camp's owners in contempt of court and order them to pay $200 per day ($100 each to the court and township) for every day the camp remains open past Monday, and to award legal costs to the township. Pioneer Work and Learn Center, which began in the fall of 1988, hosts a year-round rehabilitation program for male juvenile delinquents that have been made wards of the state. The experimental program, touted by Pioneer officials as having been highly effective, operates under contract with the Michigan Department of Social Services and is currently operating under a 9-month contract extension that will expire Sept. 30.

decision came as no big surprise to Associate Camp Director Bill Haines. He remarked that Pioneer officials had already "pretty much conceded defeat," but had hoped the appeal would give them time to seek zoning changes that would allow the work and learn program to continue operating. "Now, it's hard telling what's going to happen next," he said, adding camp officials have begun the process of seeking the appropriate zoning changes and made numerous attempts to reach an agreement out of court, but township officials have refused to negotiate while the case remained in litigation. "We're disappointed (with the Supreme Court decision), but we're hoping that a solution will be reached," he continued. "Our hope is that the community is now going to seek a solution." That solution would have to include repealing a 1988 township zoning ordinance amendment which limits certain facilities and camps in the township to no more than 10 people at any one time. The Pioneer program currently serves up to 40 youths at any one time during 6-month program sessions. As it stands, Camp Kingston Hills cannot revert back to a children's recreation summer camp, according to township Supervisor Terry Boyne, who indicated physical changes made at the facility since the Pioneer program opened mean the camp is no longer protected by a "grandfather" clause. Current township zoning does not allow for such facilities.

Jobs at stake. The closing of Pioneer Work and Learn Center would translate into the loss of about 50 jobs and thousands of dollars spent by the program in the community. An estimated $750,437 — 61 percent of camp salaries and fringe benefits — are paid to Tuscola County residents, according to officials, who say $170,000 to $225,000 was spent for goods and services within Tuscola County during a recent 12-month period. Of the total, 82 percent was spent within the Kingston community. In addition, camp youth count as 1 1/2 memberships in the state formula for funding of public schools, which Kingston Community Schools receive. Township officials maintain the loss of a local government's right to govern itself would be equally harmful to the local community as well as to other municipalities. "If we lost, everybody lost," commented Russell Mayer, who is chairman of the township Zoning Board. Mayer pointed out that maintaining the right to govern locally — not forcing Pioneer Work and Learn Center from Koylton Township — has been the goal all along. Still, he lamented, the lengthy zoning battle has left scars on the community. "The camp has driven a wedge between a lot of people," he said. "I think there's a lot of hard feelings; there are people who won't hardly speak to each other."

JOBS AT STAKE

District 3 commissioner

Board appoints Hess

Tuscola County Board of Commissioners appointed a Watroville area resident as a District 3 interim replacement. Four commissioners appointed Kenneth Hess, 5392 Hardy Road, to the vacancy created upon the July 7 death of Republican Commissioner Arnold Krumnauer Sr. An election is scheduled for Oct. 15 for the term which expires in December 1992. District 3 includes Juniata, Denmark, Gilford and Fairgrove townships. Nominating election petitions must be returned to the Tuscola County clerk's office by 4 p.m. Aug. 16. Hess said he planned to run for the position, regardless of the temporary appointment. "I was a Juniata township trustee for a number of years and I always enjoyed it," Hess said. "I am a firm believer in local government, because if we don't do it, the state and federal government will do it for us." Hess said helping the township balance its budget will be his primary concern after his first day of work, the Aug. 13 board meeting. "I consider that a commissioner's main job - to distribute the dollars to different areas." Hess said he has the strike of inexperience against him compared to Krumnauer's years of commission service. "I'll have to start from scratch, but I will ask a lot of questions of the other commissioners, attend the meetings regularly and talk to local citizens for their input," he said. Hess said he also will try to help farmers and small business owners as much as possible. "I'll do all I can to help promote our area. Those people are taking it on the chin with this recession." Hess and his wife, Trudy, have 8 children and 11 grandchildren. Kenneth retired from Vassar's Grede foundry in 1988 and farms with one of his sons.

All-school reunion

900 old grads gather to talk about old times

by Nancy Salla Staff Writer

About 900 people packed The Colony House Saturday night with tales of friendship and remembrances during the fourth All Class Reunion. Held every 5 years, this year's attendants represented almost every Cass City High School graduating class since 1923. Dinner was catered by The Colony House and music was provided by T-N-T. Joanne O'Dell and Beryl Bliss were the event's chairpersons. Seated at the head table were several 1920s graduates. Among them were 1923 class members Herbert Bartle, Thelma Luther Crawford, Ken McKenzie and Alice Ferguson Stewart. Graduates from the Class of 1924 included Louis Severance and Warren Wood. Several guests traveled great distances to attend the reunion. Helen Bolla Smith flew from Thousand Oaks, Calif., to see old friends. Known as "the town yodeler" because of her performances during school assemblies, the 1943 graduate said she moved to the west coast in 1948 after marrying airline pilot Robert Smith. Robert now deceased, Helen and her daughter, Christy Niklas, attended the All Class Reunion for the first time Saturday. "This is just fantastic - seeing all my old buddies again. Some of them really have not changed a bit, and others I barely recognize," Helen said.

The Hudson, Fla., resident said each passing year has made it more difficult to keep in touch with school mates and hometown friends. "Through the grapevine I've been able to keep up with who has passed away, but it sure is hard," said the retired 37-year veteran Mobil Oil truck driver. "The last reunion I attended was in 1970, just because I never heard about the gatherings until it was too late. This year I got an invitation and I made sure I came." Doerr said he fondly remembers his school days, when "playing sports was my main thought and I didn't have time for girls." The widower remarried in 1988 to a Canadian native named Lillian. "We're still newlyweds," Lillian laughed. As the son of a former Cass City businessman, Russell Hunt said he has witnessed the town's changes. "My father had a greenhouse just outside of town, but it's gone now," the 1932 graduate said. "I helped him with the work, and it was hard to see it go." Now living in Farmington Hills, Hunt taught school in New England for 38 years. After serving 4 years as a US Navy engineer, he taught junior and senior high at Baltimore's Hathaway Institute, an old-fashioned country school, complete with dirt floor. When asked what it felt like to go from student to teacher status, Hunt slightly chuckled. "Junior high students can sure come up with some things to make your blood circulate," he said. "But I can remember I had some real good teachers." Hunt, who said he has attended every All Class Reunion, and his wife, Alice, married in 1984.

GLORY DAYS

Former Cass City High School officials and teachers also attended the party. One such individual was Irvin Claseman, former high school basketball coach. A member of the state Basketball Coach's Hall of Fame, Claseman described his first experience with Cass City. At the invitation of the then-school principal in 1947, the Purdue University graduate drove his "beat-up old Chevy" into the Thumb, got lost in a rainstorm and finally made his destination behind schedule. "I stopped at the Cass Tavern for directions, and everyone immediately knew I was a stranger. They had an old crank telephone in the back, and I had to ask for help to run it." Claseman began during the 1947-48 school year and became head basketball coach in 1951. He left the area in 1962 for a position with Port Huron's schools. Although he and his wife of 46 years, Marilyn, have been away from the village for several years, Claseman said he still has strong ties to this community. "If I had to do it all over again, I wouldn't change a thing. The people of this community treat you like a king - Cass City will always be my home."

Novesta Township

Tax raise hearing set

Novesta Township officials have scheduled a Truth in Taxation hearing for next month. The hearing, slated during the Township Board's monthly meeting Monday night, will be held prior to the board's re-scheduled Sept. 3 meeting. The session will begin at 6:30 p.m., followed by the regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. The hearing will focus on a planned increase in the township's operating tax rate of .1974 mills, which would increase tax revenues by 13.58 percent, or about $2,748. In other business Monday, board members discussed planned improvements to Dodge Road which have been stalled by a disagreement between the township and the County Road Commission. Please turn to back page. Hearing set for 10.8% Elkland tax increase. A truth in taxation hearing is slated during the Elkland Township Board's regular meeting August 12. The regular meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. at the Elkland Township Hall, 6691 Church St., said Norma Wallace, township clerk. A proposed increase of .2299 mills in operating tax millage rate to be levied in 1991 is proposed. The proposed millage addition would raise operating revenues from ad valorem property taxes 10.8 percent over revenues generated by levies permitted without calling a hearing.

JOE DELONG controlled his Grand Champion dairy cow as helper David Bennett held the quart of milk which sold for $500. The 2-year-old "Happy" produced about 13.5 gallons of milk daily. Story, pictures pages 8 and 9.

Minor injury reported in one of several accidents

A Cass City man was treated and released Saturday after driving his moped into the side of a parked vehicle in the Caro area.

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies reported that the motorist, Robert J. Howell, 28, 4200 Little Rd., Cass City, was westbound on M-81 near Ellington Street at about 9:55 p.m. when he failed to obey the traffic control directions of a police officer and ran into the parked vehicle.

He was transported to Caro Community Hospital by Caro EMS personnel. No citation was issued following the incident.

No injuries were reported in a 2-vehicle mishap Sunday on M-46 east of Phillips Road in Kingston Township.

Reports state a vehicle driven by Maxine L. Rieck, 3469 Froede Rd., Kingston, attempted to make a U-turn and pulled out in front of a westbound vehicle driven by Susan J. Vandersypen, 2821 Clothier Rd., Kingston.

Both drivers were wearing seat belts, according to deputies, who issued no citation in the 3:45 p.m. accident.

Also escaping injury in a mishap was Jane M. Bachman, 4160 E. Deckerville Rd., Cass City, who lost control of her vehicle Friday evening on East Deckerville road near Plain Road in Ellington Township.

Bachman told deputies she was eastbound at about 9:05 p.m. when she crossed the road center line while looking down as she attempted to shift to another gear. The driver over-corrected and lost control, leaving the roadway and entering a ditch on the south side of the road.

Reports indicate she was wearing a seat belt.

Deputies are investigating a reckless driving complaint filed by a Cass City area couple July 28.

Ron and Margaret Yoe reported they and their children were southbound on Cemetery Road near Milligan Road that evening when they were run off the road by a northbound vehicle driving in the southbound lane.

Reports indicate deputies have a suspect in the incident, which remains under investigation.

Also recently, troopers at the state police post in Caro reported a minor 2-vehicle accident on Silvermail Road near English Road in Wells Township.

Reports indicate an eastbound vehicle driven by Edwin C. Fleming, 2850 Crawford Rd., Cass City, pulled out into the path of and was struck by a southbound vehicle driven by George Cox, 4775 Bevens Rd., Deford.

Both drivers were wearing seat belts, according to troopers, who cited Fleming for failing to yield in the 7:50 p.m. mishap.

Teachers attend art class at Kingston

Teachers and students from Tuscola County public school systems spent personal time learning different art mediums and how it can become a part of everyday life in the modern classroom.

The county received a state education "98" grant which funded the art institute and camp presented at Kingston High School, said Marilyn Biefer.

Nine attended the program from July 22- Aug. 1. About 35 students participated in the free project sessions July 31 and Aug. 1.

"It gave the teachers a chance to learn how to implement art into every curriculum class," said the Kingston High School art teacher.

Sponsored by Tuscola Intermediate School District Gifted and Talented program, the first through eighth-grade educators had to use the taped Artmakers and Return of the Artmakers series.

"We dealt mostly with discipline-based art which included papermaking, silk screening, texture, finger and watercolor painting and drawing," Biefer said.

In exchange for program enrollment, the teachers are now required to teach at local Super Saturday art classes. Teachers also received college credit from the program.

Wetlands law bugs Farm Bureau

Michigan Farm Bureau's top leadership went to Washington, D.C., this week to emphasize to members of Michigan's congressional delegation that the state's farmers are having serious problems with wetlands regulations.

Members of the group included Michigan Farm Bureau President Jack Laurie, Cass City; Vice-president Wayne Wood, Marlette, and Third Member Dick Leach, Saginaw. They encouraged co-sponsorship of H.R. 1330, and an identical bill in the Senate, S. 1462, which the farm leaders said would provide "a meaningful definition and a policy on wetlands which federal agencies that are now running roughshod on their own would have to follow."

Listed in "Who's Who"

"Who's Who Among High School Students" has recently announced that Rachel Sugden is nominated for honorary award recognition. The Cass City High School student will have her biography published in the special 25th silver anniversary edition of "Who's Who Among American Students 1991."

Rachel Sugden

Her biography also has appeared in the 1989 "All American Scholar"; 1990 "Who's Who Among American High School Students" and the 1990 "United States Achievement Academy-National Awards". Rachel is the daughter of Richard and Joyce Sugden of Cass City. Grandparents are Richard and Lois Sugden of Cass City, and Floyd and Agnes Thompson of Akron.

Area residents and businesses supported 4-H and Future Farmers of America youths Thursday at the Tuscola County Fair by purchasing over 300 livestock and small animals for more than $68,350.
Buyers came from as far away as Frankenmuth to bid on market livestock. The livestock auction consisted of 18 head of beef cattle, 120 hogs and 34 lambs. The sale earned more than $57,500, with beef claiming over $21,000, hogs $31,350 and lambs $4,800.
With 63 entries in 10 categories, the small stock animal sale increased this year to $10,908.50.
Cass City Livestock Club was a driving force in the sale, with more than 35 participating members. Besides claiming hefty paychecks, the youths also took home top honors and awards.

Livestock member Bill Little won Reserve Championship for his 1285 pound market steer. North Branch resident Dick Coulter bought the animal for $1,670.50 at $1.30 per pound. Little also won awards for Senior Champion Showmanship and Best Showmanship Overall. He also sold 2 255-pound hogs to The Shopper's Guide for $267.75 and Mayville Wood Products for $331.50.
Joe and Paul DeLong, sons of Robert and Laurie DeLong, were rewarded for their knowledge of dairy cows. Joe's cow "Happy" won Grand Champion by yielding about 13.5 gallons of milk a day, while Paul's "Paige" claimed Reserve Champion for giving 14 gallons daily. Decker's Vita-Plus Feeds purchased a quart of the champ's milk for $500 and Ken and Laura McRae of McRae Farms bought a quart of the runner-up's milk for $400.
Josh Little took Grand Champion Individual honors for his 230 pound hog. State Savings Bank of Caro paid Josh $2.80 per pound, for $644 total.
Gagetown resident Michael Merchant won Overall Showmanship in the lamb division. His 110 pound animal sold for $1 to Luke's Market, Sebawaing. Michael's sister, Aimee Merchant, claimed Grand Champion Homegrown and earned $128.25, $1.35 per pound, from Charles Tuckey.
The 3 children of George and Robin Russell won many awards. Amy won bragging rights with her 135-pound Grand Champion market lamb, purchased by Beagios Pizza. Amy also won Beginner's Showmanship award. Marie captured the Reserve Championship pen slot, selling 2 138-pound lambs, one to Erla's Food Center and Packing for $1.35 per pound and one to Michigan Livestock for $1 per pound. Keith claimed first place for Junior Showmanship, selling his 95 pound lamb at 95 cents per pound to Weber Lumber and Millwork of Vassar.

Ben Zimba, son of Deford residents Jesse and Sally Zimba, won Reserve Champion for his market fryers pen. Terra fertilizer company bought the 3 animals for $110.
Siblings Jeremy and Kurt Russell claimed the top 2 positions in the market duck category. Jeremy sold his Grand Champions to LaFave Steel Supply for $125, and Kurt received $100 for his Reserve Champions from LaFave Steel Hydraulic Division.
Top feeder calf awards went to Cass City Livestock members. Lisa Deering won Grand Champion with her 560 pound animal, selling it to Kingston State Bank for $1.70 per pound. Kris Repshinska placed Reserve Champion with a 490 pound animal, which was bought by Rasmussen Transport, Sebawaing.

AUCTION BUYERS
Although it was standing-room-only in the auction barn, a few market bidders overwhelmingly purchased the 4-H and FFA animals.
One such business is Kingston State Bank. The bank bought about $5,617 worth of animals. It purchased 3 grand champion category winners, including market roaster pen from Deford Drifters Club member Maranda Hathaway, $130; veal calf from Milk & Honey member Keith Muska, 230 pounds at $2.25 per pound; feeder calf from Cass City Livestock member Lisa Deering, 560 pounds at $1.70 per pound.
Kingston Bank also bought a feeder calf for $500, 2 rabbits for $80 total, a market duck pen for $110, a 70 pound market wether for $1.30 per pound, 2 market beef cattle for $2,688 total and 2 hogs for $549 total.
Mayville State Bank was also a hot buyer for 4-H and FFA livestock. It purchased over $3,682.25 worth of animals, including the reserve champion market roaster pen for $110, 4 other roaster pens for $280 total, a duck pen for $90, reserve champion market goose from Road Runners Club member June Lucius for $100, 6 lambs for $580.50, and 12 hogs for more than $2,476.75.

Michigan Livestock representatives attended the auction. The yard bought about $1,329 worth of animals.
Several Cass City patrons supported the youngsters' agricultural endeavors. Three outstanding bidders included Thumb National Bank, Erla's Food Center & Packing and resident Charles Tuckey.
Thumb National Bank spent close to $900 in the auctions. Purchased animals included a $50 market fryer pen, $75 market goose, $100 lamb, and 3 hogs for $657.50.
Erla's showed their support by spending at least $3,449 on 2 market beef for 97 cents and $1.10 per pound; 2 hogs for $1.05 and $1.20 per pound, and 2 lambs for $1.35 and $1.50 per pound.
Local resident Charles Tuckey was making both personal bids and on behalf of Anderson, Tuckey, Bernhardt & Co. Tuckey paid about $1,183 in bids and purchased 4 hogs and 2 lambs.

AMY RUSSELL HIT the jackpot during her second year of 4-H. Russell had the Grand Champion market lamb, and received $3 per pound for the 135 pound animal from Beagios Pizzeria. She also won Beginning Showmanship for her work with lambs.

Seniors meet at St. Agatha

Forty-one members of the Owen-Gage Senior Citizens met Aug. 1 for potluck dinner at St. Agatha's Parish Hall. Florence Schell led the dinner prayer.
Eleven blood pressures were taken.
President Mabel Ondrajka opened the meeting with the Lord's Prayer and pledge to the flag.
Get-well cards were sent to Louise Ashmore and Veneta Kling.
The president read a letter from Jennie Deneen, who has moved to her daughter's home in St. Clair Shores. Florence Schell will finish her term of office as secretary till the end of the year. Lloyd Finkbeiner told a humorous joke taken from The Reader's Digest. Happy Birthday was sung to 2 members who have birthdays in August.
Two couples' anniversaries were acknowledged, Mr. and Mrs. Amasa Anthes, 51, and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Szidik, 50.
Door prizes were won by Irene Doerr and Mike Pisarek.
After the meeting, bingo was played.

BROTHERS JEREMY AND KURT Russell claimed Grand Champion and Reserve Champion market ducks, respectively. Both Cass City Livestock members, Jeremy received $125 from LaFave Steel Supply for his pen, while Kurt got $100 from LaFave Steel Hydraulic Division.

THIS 230 POUND hog beat out 119 other pigs for the Grand Champion Individual slot. His first year of showing market animals, owner Josh Little proudly sold the animal at $2.80 per pound to State Savings Bank of Caro.

It is our policy to have all items advertised in this circular in stock during the sale period. However, because this circular is printed approximately 90 days prior to the sale date, there could be an unforeseen delay, or in some cases, non-shipment of an item. We regret any inconvenience it may cause. If an advertised item is unavailable during the sale period, we will, to the best of our ability, offer a substitute item of comparable value with an equal savings over the regular price. We do reserve the right to limit the quantity on some items and special prices are in effect only during the sale period while quantities last.
