Police chase ends with Mt. Morris man's capture

A Mt. Morris man was ar- moved to block his exit, raigned on 9 felony charges according to the spokesman, after fleeing Michigan State Police troopers and then ramming their patrol car Friday night in Tuscola.

Bond for the defendant, Ronald E. Allen, 33, was set court proceedings, Donald at $250,000 in Tuscola County District Court. A preliminary examination is set for 9 a.m. Thursday.

Allen is charged with assaulting a police officer with a dangerous weapon (vehicle), resisting and obstructing a police officer, malicious destruction of police property, escaping lawful custody, fleeing a police officer, operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor (third offense), driving with a suspended or restricted license. malicious destruction of grass, and unlawful use of a license plate.

A spokesman at the state police post in Caro said the 9 p.m. incident stemmed from a trespassing complaint and previous spouse abuse complaints at a Van Cleve Road residence.

During their investigation, Troopers Oren Johnson and William MacNicol spotted a vehicle driven by Allen, who was wanted on a bench warrant for failure to appear on charges of assault and battery and obstructing a police officer.

A chase ensued, with troopers following Allen into a dead-end street. The suspect backed into a shallow ditch and the officers who said Allen then rammed the back of the patrol car. At that point he was subdued and placed under arrest.

In other recent district

A. Noaker, 31, of Caro, was arraigned on charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, third offense, driving with a suspended or restricted license and having no valid license plate.

The charges stem from a June 23 traffic stop in Indianfields Township, court records indicate.

Bond for Noaker was set at $5,000. His preliminary exam was to have been held Monday afternoon.

Supt. Kirby: financial crunch at Owen-Gage

Owen-Gage School Supt. Harley Kirby had 2 words for the Board of Education during a special budget meeting Monday night: don't spend.

In fact, the district is in for some serious belt tightening, Kirby indicated in presenting an amended 1991-92 budget and a reduced proposed spending plan for the 1992-93 school year.

School officials had to dip into the fund balance to balance the 1991-92 budget, and projections show that balance will be in the red by more than $70,000 at the end of 1992-93.

"We can get through this next year, but the following year is really going to be bad," Kirby warned, noting he's heard a cap may be placed on property value increases, or that there may be another freeze in assessments altogether.

he said, "we will not be here nue resulting from closure of

during the fiscal year that ended Tuesday exceeded revenues by $321,775. Revenues came in at $1,417,092 and expenditures totaled $1,739,000, reducing the fund balance from $518,184 to $196,409. The deficit was the result of both reduced income and unplanned spending, according to Kirby, who agreed with board members' comments that Owen-Gage isn't alone in facing money schools are getting into financial trouble, he remarked, adding, "That's what it's going to take to get the state to do something." Aside from not seeing any increase in taxes due to the statewide assessment freeze, Kirby said the Owen-Gage district lost nearly $6,000 in property tax reve-

> In addition, the district went from in-formula to outof-formula status by one student last year due to a change in the state aid formula. The amount of aid lost was less than $50,000, but it's still significant, he added.

Unplanned spending last year included roof repairs and the purchase of a school van and bus, and some computers at reduced prices.

Turning to the proposed 1992-93 spending plan, Kirby outlined expenditures of $1,688,200 and revenues totaling $1,420,139.

The superintendent said he believes the district will be in-formula in the coming year based on an enrollment of 315 students at the end of the 1991-92 school year, compared to 302 students at the beginning of the year.

board is going to have to look at ways to cut spending.

"I've cut back on the proposed budget by $27,300. That's some heavy paring," he said, "and we're still going to wind up $71,652 in the (red)."

Kirby said he reduced spending in several areas, including teaching supplies and textbooks, conferences and workshops, membership dues and rental equipment. He added there probably will be no field trips, and some cuts may be needed in the area of sports.

"What I'm saying is we can't afford to do. . .a lot of anything," he concluded.

In other business during the 70-minute session, the board scheduled another special meeting to open bids for $610,000 in tax anticipation notes.

More Fed. funds provide 300 new summer jobs

week announced Michigan will receive $24 million in new federal funds to provide summer jobs for economically disadvantaged youth ages 14-21.

The funding includes nearly $600,000 that will provide an additional 300 jobs in the Thumb.

"I have instructed state Labor Director Lowell Perry to do whatever is necessary to get this money into the hands of the local program people immediately, so they can meet the urgent need for productive summer employment for our young people," Engler said.

"This emergency funding will greatly increase our ability to employ many young men and women who want and need a job."

Engler estimated the new money will provide 16,000 additional summer jobs statewide.

Locally, the Thumb Area Employment and Training Consortium is expected to receive an extra $591,000. The consortium, which serves Tuscola, Huron, high," he added. "We've Sanilac and Lapeer counties, previously received $1,009,000 to fund 400 summer youth jobs this year.

The funding pays minirelated to youths working in jobs involving parks, villages, schools, museums,

According to consortium Executive Director Marvin Pichla, the new Thumb funding total of some $1.6 million "doesn't compare to when the Michigan Youth Corps was in effect, but this is still a nice return to a nice funding level.'

About $1.2 million was allocated last year for summer youth employment in the Thumb.

Referring to the extra funding, Pichla said it's unlikely that an additional 75 summer jobs in each of the area counties will have a major impact on unemployment figures. Still, he pointed out, the money will help to meet a seemingly endless demand for jobs.

"The need. . .is always

School boards may ignore court ruling

Area schools haven't yet had time to address last week's Supreme Court ruling barring public schools from sponsoring prayers at graduation ceremonies.

But officials in 2 districts indicated they would like to see their school boards take a "wait and see" approach to the ruling.
The 5-4 decision was handed down last Wednesday, 3 decades after the nation's highest court outlawed prayer in public school classrooms.

The ruling, which applies even when the prayers are nonsectarian and student attendance is voluntary, apparently spells the beginning of the end for baccalaureate ceremonies as well as invocations and benedictions at commencement exercises.

Cass City School Supt. Kenneth Micklash said Thursday he didn't know enough about the decision to make specific comments. has always held a baccalau- preme Court's ruling will be ate could be shifted to area sure we'll be addressing it as the community that supports However, the superinten- reate ceremony, wondered dent, who noted Cass City aloud how broadly the Su-sponsorship of baccalaure- In any event, he said, "I'm

Hobart said there has been some discussion in the past regarding doing away with the ceremony, but "it's always come down on the side of, we will continue" as long as it's something the community wants and appreci-

Hobart added he supports including prayers and a religious address at graduation ceremonies.

'As long as the prayer is just a God-oriented prayer, I can see nothing wrong with that. In fact, I think we should be doing that," he said. "But when you start promoting a (specific religious) philosophy, then I think you should not be doing that in a public school."

The question of ending sponsorship of the baccalaureate was discussed early this year in the Owen-Gage School District.

The school board reviewed a letter from the district's law firm emphasizing the importance of a public school disassociating itself from the baccalaureate service. However, the board's

Support

Group to focus on Parkinson's sufferers, families

A Parkinson's Disease support group will be starting in the Cass City area July

Parkinson's is a chronic progressive neurological disorder caused by a reduction of a chemical, dopamine, in the brain. Symptoms are: resting tremors, difficulty with fine movement, slowness and stiffness of muscle, difficulty with balance and walking, loss of volume of speech, tendency to shuffle when walking and handwriting difficulty.

The Parkinson's Support Group will meet the third Tuesday of the month at 1 p.m. in the basement meeting room at Hills and Dales Hospital, Cass City.

The object of the group is to enable the Parkinson's sufferer to live with his/her illness and improve the quality of their lives. This is accomplished by education and learning as much as possible about the disease in order to help family members understand what is happening to their loved one.

There is no cure, but with knowledge of symptoms, disease can be facilitated. Any questions concerning the area support group can be addressed to Nancy Cech at (517) 872-4053 or Jean Anthony at (517) 872-2121 medication, exercise and ext. 2266 at Hills and Dales.

Harriet Rayl presented the Jordan Days set July 15, 16 and 17

Jordan College is sponsoring its second annual "Jordan Days," set for July 15, 16 and 17 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day at the Jordan Campus in Cass City.

The purpose of this annual event is to "share the wealth of talent that exists right here in our own community," says Jerry White, campus dean. "We think showcasing local talent is an important part of the true community college spirit."

The scheduled events include arts and crafts exhibits, featuring local artists; "Lunch Time Musical Revue" featuring Jan Moore's Musical Stars of Tomorrow"; Barbie and Ken clothing exhibition; art class demonstrations, and a bake

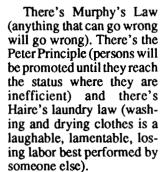

A special feature will be a Friday night concert featuring Ron Zdrojewski, held at Jordan from 7-8 p.m.

Local residents who would like to share their own talents or collections are welcome to participate.

"Jordan made a lot of new friends during last year's Jordan's Days," said White. "We are happy to have this informal opportunity to say thanks for the ongoing support this area has given to higher education.'

More information is available by calling the Jordan staff at 872-4394.

It's been a little over a year now since I began to be initiated into the mysteries of the laundry room. Before that my association with the laundry was restricted to finding out which drawer the clean clothes were placed in.

Did I know that colored clothing, especially reds, need to be washed separately from the rest? Of course not. Did I find out? Of course I did. Did I do it the hard way? Of course I did. I have a couple of pair of underwear briefs with the nicest shade of pink you ever saw, but it would be stretching it a bit to call them sexy. It's a pink more fitting to a senior citizen turned laundry man.

In my brief career I learned that doing the logical thing is not always the right thing

There's Murphy's Law when it comes to washing anything that can go wrong and drying. I figured if the shirt was dirty, wash it. So now I have several shirts with unique identifying marks. One with a light tan coffee stain, another with a dirty brown mark that once was bright red blood and another with a sort of rosy tinge that came from heaven knows what. Let me tell you that they are there to stay, too. Washing them makes them dirty forever, I learned.

Everyone likes sparkling fresh white T-shirts and underwear and bleaching is the way to do it. No one said that if the bleach is poured into the washer and hits the clothes directly instead of the wash water, a dirty yellow stain stays with whatever it hits forever or until you toss it away. Drying clothes has been relatively smooth sailing. There were a few bumps along the way. Once when I was in a hurry I shoved an all-cotton sports shirt in and jacked the heat up as high as it would go. It sure did dry quickly. It also came out about 2 sizes smaller than when it went in.

That's about it for my career in the laundry, except for the socks. Where do they go? Don't tell me it's impossible for 5 pair of socks to come in, all matched, and 4 1/2 pairs come out.

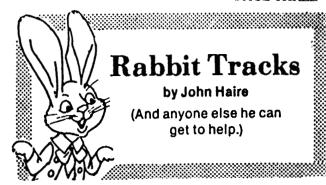

In my drawer today there are at least a dozen socks that don't match anything. I usual keep them for a couple of months and then give up and they go to the rag bag.

Sometimes I get a little desperate and if 2 mismatched socks have close to the same shade (navy blue and black, for instance) I stick them on anyway.

I also have a pair of grey socks that are now a pretty pink. They got lost in the red towels and wash rags when I stuffed them into the machine.

One thing that washing and drying clothing has taught me, a lesson that I won't soon forget.

It's to never, never learn how to do the ironing.

It's been told many times before, but it bears repeating. Travel is most dangerous on our rural roads right around

Last year over the July 4 holiday 19 persons were killed in 17 crashes, but none died from accidents on the state's freeways. Ten of those killed died in crashes on county or local roads, the remainder on non-freeway state roads.

Another year has passed and visiting the Holland Tulip Festival still remains on my list of things to do. Each year I figure before spring and summer have gone that a tour of the state from Holland south will be on the agenda. There are many interesting spots to see along the shore of Lake Michigan and the country between the lake and Kalamazoo, but for one reason or another that trip never materialized.

How about you? Have you visited Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, New Buffalo and other points of interest in southwestern Michigan lately? Bet you haven't.

Each spring, bands of conartists, often referred to as traveling criminals, enter Michigan in order to rip-off unsuspecting homeowners and small businesses. Driveway and parking lot paving and maintenance scams are a favorite for many of these travelers.

Most often, the criminals will call on a consumer and claim that they have some asphalt material left over from a job they have completed nearby. The consumer is offered special prices on this 'leftover material' if they "act now" and "pay later." This offer should be the first warning to the consumer that they may be the target of a paving rip-

The criminals may try to use the name of a reputable local contractor. Most often, they will have an out-oftown address. A little research will expose the fact that they have no valid permanent place of business. Their alleged phone number, many times, is simply that of an answering service.

Poor workmanship in asphalt paving is not always immediately apparent to a consumer. However, substandard construction practices result in a pavement that may begin to crumble after the first winter or sooner.

will last for many years and most reputable contractors will stand behind their work," said Becsey. "It's important to know who you are doing business with. If the great deal they are offering you today is not available tomorrow or next week, it's probably a scam."

Most reputable asphalt paving contractors will offer a price on a service that will be valid for a number of days. 'Today only sales' are a sign of a rip-off. The consumer should request local credit and bank references. MAPA recommends that consumers receive bids from at least 2 contractors before allowing any work to be done. Most importantly, the consumer should insist on a written contract specifying, in detail, the work to be performed.

Gearing up forum set at SVSU

"Gearing Up!," a forum dedicated to making manufacturers aware of improved processes. technologies, technical assistance and resources available from a variety of outside sources, will take place on the campus of Saginaw Valley State University Aug. 25-26.

During the 2 days, SVSU's Ryder Center will be converted to a showcase of exhibits, technical sessions and one-on-one problem solving opportunities. Representatives from the U.S. national laboratory system, state and federal agencies, public and private consortia, universities and many private sector resources will be available to work with attendees. Every manufacturer in Michigan and many from surrounding states will be invited to the event, expected to attract 2,000 to 3,000 people each day. Admission cost for the nonprofit event is $35 per person. Tickets may be ordered by calling 1-800-530-

The event is industry-driven and is being sponsored by a group of Michiganbased corporations, manufacturing associations and state and federal agencies.

The sponsors are planning the conference and are underwriting some of the upfront costs, according to Dave Andres, advanced purchasing manager at Saginaw Division of General Motors. Andres proposed the idea for the event after organizing a successful General Motors conference with 6 national laboratories last fall. Over 100 lab scientists met with Saginaw Division engineers to identify where collaborative projects could benefit General Motors and laboratories.

Saginaw Division now has 3 Collaborative Research and Development Agreements (CRĀDAs) and is involved in negotiations for several more pro-

THE GOSSAMER CORD by Philippa Carr (fiction). It's as if twins Dorabella and Violetta Denver are attached, even as adults, by a gossamer cord, so that even when Dorabella disappears after a swimming escapade, Violetta is not convinced her sister is dead. Violetta is, however, far too busy caring for her sister's newborn son, Tristan, consoling the desolate husband, Dermot, and sharing her fears with a handsome neighboring Cornish landowner to pursue her thoughts about her sister. Soon new suspicions must be dealt with when Dermot commits suicide and Tristan's life is threatened. Naturally, the intrepid Violetta resolves the

THE FIRST WIVES CLUB by Olivia Goldsmith (fiction). Three midlife women: friends Elise, Brenda and Annie, have been dumped for younger catch by their successful New York society husbands. Jolted by a mutual friend's suicide, the wives plot to exact sweet revenge on their exhusbands. How they do it is less interesting than their motivations. Fans of the Jackie Collins school of writing will relish this saga.

DAY THE RABBI RESIGNED by Harry Kemelman (mystery). When Victor Joyce, a local college professor vying for tenure, is the victim of a fatal car crash on an isolated highway, his death is initially dismissed as a drunken-driving incident. However, as the good Rabbi David Small plumbs the perplexing evidence, he uncovers a string of suspects with strong motives for murder. In addition, Rabbi Small struggles with a personal and professional crisis, resolving to resign his rabbinate in favor of pursuing a teaching career.

The number of different species of birds using a yard is a useful indicator of the quality of habitat an individual is providing, according to Van Vleck. Keeping a record of the birds visiting the yard over several years may offer evidence of the value of improvements to the habitat that have been made, such as planting for wildlife or providing a source of water or erecting nest boxes. In contrast, a shrinking bird list may demonstrate the effect of extensive development or changing agricultural practices around property.

Homeowners from both rural and residential areas are needed to participate in this survey. Property size can vary from the smallest yard to an entire farm.

Participants will be sent the 1992 forms to be returned at the end of the year. They will then receive 1993 forms and a summary of the 1992 survey. Recognition of those who have the greatest number of species for various size yards in each state will be included in the summary. THE ULTIMATE KITE BOOK by Paul Morgan (nonfiction). No longer will "go fly a kite" be considered a brushoff, after seeing the colorful results of the Morgans' compilation. Attracted to the sport through their young son, then building a kite manufacturing and retail business, they here introduce novices and instruct aficionados in the how-tos of flying, fighting, and fashioning kites. More pictures than words guide readers through the basics. Directions for 5 designs are all-inclusive, ensuring that even the most impatient can construct a kite.

MYSTICAL PATHS by Susan Howatch (fiction), Nicky Darrow is the son of Jon Darrow, a faithful, intense, and psychic young man growing up in the 1960s. About to be ordained into the Church of England in 1968, Nicholas decides to nurture his psychic gifts, but when his careless use of those gifts leads to a friend's attempted suicide, Nicholas must deal with his remorse.

THE LIVING by Annie Dillard (fiction). As the nineteenth century draws to a close, one town near Washington's Puget Sound is founded, settled, developed, and threatened. Its inhabitants - ranging from Lummi and Nooksack Indian fishermen and loggers; to miners, farmers, and shopkeepers; to eastern-born entrepreneurs - dream of making a new life in the treacherous Pacific Northwest. Their idiosyncrasies, aspirations, fears, loves, and weaknesses color this celebration of the human spirit.

Farm mail survey response excellent in Thumb counties

In February of this year, hundreds of farm families in Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties were asked to fill out yet another mail survey. Farmers were asked as many as 74 questions about health care in general and cancer in particular. Response to the survey done by MSU in cooperation with Michigan Farm Bureau and the Cooperative Extension Service was initially slow. Understandably, most families put the 10 to 15 page form in a "todo" file.

In March, MSU began a telephone campaign to increase survey returns. When the local telephone interviewers explained that the survey would be used in a project to aid the community, the response rate jumped to 65 percent. According to Karen Clark of the MSU Center for Survey Research, a 30 percent response is considered very good for a mail survey. The Farm Cancer Control Proiect far exceeded this.

"The excellent response doesn't surprise me at all. I have had tremendous because all have high cure community support from rates if found early.

the beginning," says Ken Rosenman, M.D., the Project's Principle Investigator. In February and March, Health Fairs were held to get participants' feedback and to provide assistance in filling out questionnaires. The Health Fairs also provided participants with the opportunity for free screening of their blood pressure, vision, hearing and choles-terol. Local hospitals --Schuerer, Hills and Dales General, Huron Memorial, Caro Community, Deckerville, McKenzie Memorial, and Marlette Community supported the fairs, along with the Huron-Sanilac-Tuscola Associated Health Department, minimizing costs to the Project. In the words of one hospital administrator, "It's something I want to do for the farmers.

Currently in its second phase, the Project hopes to decrease barriers to early detection of 3 types of cancer targeted in the survey. The 3 cancers are skin, lip, and breast cancer. These cancers were chosen

CHALLENGING

Looking back, she commented teaching has become an increasingly challenging job.

"Elementary teaching is more difficult than a lot of people think," she said, noting curriculum changes, tougher standards and a breakdown in the structure of the family are all contributing factors.

Still, she pointed out, many of the changes in teaching have been very positive.

Stickle cited an increased emphasis in hands-on learning as an example. The hands-on approach builds students' interest and helps keep them from getting bored, which is especially important with television competing at home, she "Elementary teachers are providing more small group work and the experience of working with a partner, thereby helping the students learn from each other," she continued. some visitors to the house, he said.

"And Santa Claus is going to make a special visit," he laughed. Palmateer explained that the event is intended to give people a taste of something different during the 14th annual festival.

"We figured it might be a good thing for young people especially," he said. "What do young kids have to do anymore? That's what I'd like to know.'

About 500 people are expected to visit the spook house. He recommends very young children be accompanied by adults. Admission is $1 for children age 12 and under and $2 for anyone over age 13. Funds raised by the event benefit the Cass City Jaycees and help pay for expenses of putting on the festival.

Palmateer added that the Jaycees are looking for new members, and anyone who wants more information about the group can contact him at 872-4666.

Minimize corn borer damage

pean corn borer (ECB) infestation may pose serious problems for this year's corn

To minimize damage by the ECB, farmers must scout their fields for the pest, says Doug Landis, MSU Extension entomologist. The fact that the ECB population can vary greatly from year to year and field to field increases the importance of scouting, he says.

The ECB lays eggs in masses on the undersides of corn leaves near the midveins. These eggs are white, scale-like, rounded and pinhead-sized. The eggs darken just before hatching.

farmers begin scouting when the first ECB larvae are sighted in their area or when corn is 16 to 22 inches in extended leaf height. Growers need to pay special attention to earlier (taller) fields because they are frequently more attractive to

Last year's severe Euro- the corn borer for first generation egg laying, he says.

The best method to determine the infestation level is to choose 5 random locations in each field and check 20 consecutive plants for damage.

Examine the whorl of the corn plant for white spots, 'shot-holes" or broken midribleaves. Count the number of plants that show these damage signs.

Select 2 damaged plants in each of the 5 locations and look for ECB larvae by grasping the top of the whorl and pulling it out of the plant and unrolling the leaves.

Newly hatched larvae are Landis recommends that about 1/16 inch long. They have smooth, whitish bodies, black heads, 6 small legs near the head and 5 pairs of fleshy legs near the rear end. When full grown, larvae are 3/4 to 1 inch long and vary in color from gray to creamy white with many prominent dark brown and black spots.

Count the number of live ECB larvae found per plant and record this number. (Use 3 for any plant that has 3 or more live borers - additional borers do not significantly increase damage, Landis notes.) For specific insecticide recommendations, Huron County residents can consult Jim Le-Cureux, Extension Agricultural Agent, or a crop consultant, and tell him/her how many of the 100 plants were damaged and how many live ECB larvae were found. If live ECB are not visible on the damaged plants, they have either tunneled into the stalks or died because of natural enemies.

Whorl feeding does not cause significant yield losses. ECB larvae boring into the stalks, however, can reduce per acre yields by 15 percent.

The ECB is often killed by natural enemies before it enters the cornstalk, so Landis recommends waiting until the ECB larvae have reached nearly 1/2 inch before applying an insecticide. Farmers have to be careful not to wait too long, however, because an insecticide application is ineffective after the larvae have entered the stalks. Refer to Extension bulletin E-327, "European Corn Borer: Development and Management," for Liquid or granular insecticides applied directly over the corn plants in a band achieve the highest rate of corn borer larvae control, Landis points out.

Blood donors needed by Red Cross

The July 4 holiday means fireworks, parades and softball games. But for those hospitalized with blood disorders, cancer patients and accident victims, this holiday may not be one to celebrate independence.

Many people rely on volunteer blood donations just to survive.

Due to the long holiday, people who normally donate will not be available, so American Red Cross officials are urging those who are planning their activities around the backyard to donate blood.

Thumb area residents can help by making a donation today (Wednesday) in Bad Axe, from 2 to 8 p.m. at Green Elementary School, or in Mayville, from 2 to 8 p.m. at the St. Joseph Catholic Hall.

Other upcoming area blood drives include one set for July 7 at Hills and Dales General Hospital, Cass City, from 1 to 7 p.m. Also, a drive will be held July 30 from noon to 7 p.m. at the Caro United Methodist Church, Caro.

"It's an easy process and generally takes an hour," said Willys F. Mueller Jr., medical director for the Red Cross' Wolverine Blood Region. "Don't wait until an emergency strikes you; donate blood now so it will be there for those who need it.

A Red Cross blood donor must be at least 17 years of age, weigh a minimum of 110 pounds and be in good health.

Rienstra is ready to be dunked to help band

With the approach of the 4th of July, the thoughts of many people are turning to how they'll celebrate the anniversary of their country's independence.

Cass City resident Dennis Rienstra plans to spend a large part of the 4th of July holiday helping the Cass City schools band program.

Saturday afternoon in the Cass City Recreation Park he'll be one of the people waiting to be dunked in the Cass City Band Boosters dunk tank. Rienstra, who is president of the band boosters, Mindy Nash, band director, and other volunteers will balance over a large tank of water waiting for someone to dunk them. The event will help raise money for the Cass City band program.

Rienstra plans to show up in a sports jacket and tie as a way of tempting people to take their best shot. "I hope the kids will come out," he said. When the Cass City native isn't waiting to get soaked, he said he, along with his family, plan to take in the sights and sounds associated with the 14th annual festival. He and his family just moved back to the area a year ago.

"We've never been here during the 4th of July Festival," he said. "We've read about it in the Chronicle. We've always wanted to come down."

He looks forward to seeing the Cass City High School marching band perform in the 11 a.m. parade in their new Rienstra currently works as a substitute teacher at schools in Tuscola County. He lives with his wife, Cheryl, and their three children, Amber, Sam and Reuben.

He said he really likes living in Cass City. "It's a nice clean town and the people are friendly."

230 attend Farm Safety Day Camp

A total of 140 youths and 90 parents participated in the 1992 Farm Safety Day Camp held June 9-11 at Bay Shore Camp in Sebewaing. The youngsters, ages 9-12, came from Sanilac, Huron and Tuscola Counties on one of the 3 days the Safety Day Camp was held (June 9, 10 and 11), reports Geraldine R. Smith, ag safety specialist, Huron County Health Department. The Farm Safety Day Camp was sponsored by the Huron County Health Department's "Farming Safely in the Thumb" program. The camp featured 15 safety stations covering various areas of concern such as "how to call for emergency services; tractor and farm machinery safety; electrical, fire, ATV and animal safety.

Each camper had an opportunity to use a fire extinguisher, learn about how an ambulance crew works and what firemen do. The youngsters also had the opportunity to tour the Flight Care helicopter from St. Mary's Hospital. Each youngster took home a special T-shirt, a safety packet, safety goggles, dust mask and ear plugs.

The parents attended a Parents' Session in the evening, where they were apprised of the safety concepts their children were taught during the day. They also heard a guest speaker from the Huron County Mental John Maharg Health Department share pointers on maintaining and Dennis Krug improving communications with youth.

The Farm Safety Day Camp received support from a host of Thumb organizations and businesses.

Dairy herds produce more milk

Dairy herds in Michigan produced 463 million pounds of milk during May, up 7 million pounds from a year ago, according to the Federal/State Michigan Agricultural Statistics Serv-

Milk per cow averaged 1,370 pounds, increasing 40 pounds from a year ago. The Michigan dairy herd was estimated at 338,000 head. 5,000 fewer than last May.

The preliminary value of milk sold averaged $12.80 per hundredweight (cwt.) in May, $1.40 more than last year and 4.20 more than April. Mid-month May slaughter cow prices averaged $49.10 per cwt., $2.70 less than the previous year. Dairy manufacturing plants in Michigan produced 1.6 million pounds of butter in April, 8 percent less than a year ago. Ice cream output totaled 2.3 million gallons, 6 percent less than April 1991.

Slate agronomic research meeting

The results of continuing agronomic research will be shown and discussed Aug. 27 at the Saginaw Valley Bean and Beet Research Farm near Saginaw, according to Jim LeCureux, Huron County Extension agricultural agent.

The program will begin at 1:30 p.m.

The farm is about a mile east of the intersection of M-52 and Swan Creek Road. The intersection is about 3 miles south of M-46 and 7 miles north of St. Charles. Among the research projects to be seen will be performance trials of dry beans, sugar beets and corn, insect control and herbicide management for sugar beets.

There will also be a review of cropping systems showing the effect of the previous crop on cropland planted to sugar beets

Letter to the editor

Organ donation: no greater gift

Publisher's note: This is obviously a form letter sent to media across the state. Ordinarily this type of letter is ignored. Because of its obvious benefit, not only to the writer, but to everyone, it is published.

I am writing this letter to request that your newspaper help in making the public aware of the urgent need for, and the shortage of organ donations.

I am a 48-year-old male, waiting for a heart transplant at the University of Michigan Hospital. My 16year-old daughter, Holly, has Cystic Fibrosis and is waiting for a lung trans-plant at the Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh. To further burden our family. our younger daughter also suffers from CF.

Tragically, most patients die before organs become available. The stress of knowing this, along with the illnesses, have taken their toll on our family, as well as other families going through similar experi-

We are not looking for sympathy, but rather empathy in helping us fight for our lives. The public needs to realize that we can only do so much in this fight and that we require their unselfish assistance in helping us with organ donations. Knowing that donors and relatives of those who may be possible donors face many emotional decisions when considering donation, we in turn empathize with them. However, in the darkest of personal sorrows,

what greater gift can be given than that of life? Knowing that their decision gave life to another person, hopefully will provide some comfort and consolation for their grief.

We trust that you will carry this message to your readers, "When one door closes another one opens". Please let them know that organ donation is the "open door" for their sakes and

Sincerely,

Donald J. Klacking

An introductory course in social work and social welfare will be offered as part of Saginaw Valley State University's curriculum this fall at Cass City High School.

Required of all social work majors, the course is designed to familiarize students with the duties, responsibilities and ethics of the social work profession through classroom discussion and volunteer work.

Presented Tuesdays, between 7 and 10 p.m., Sept. 1 through Dec. 15, the course offers assistance to students considering a social work career by developing an awareness of human behavior in the social environment through the examination of common human needs found in all groups of people.

David Hauxwell, MSW, will instruct the course (SOWK 215). Hauxwell is a staff member at Tuscola County Community Mental Health Center and has been an adjunct professor with the SVSU Department of Social Work for 3 years.

1993. The company expects to invest approximately $16 million in the facility within usual shapes to better utilize available space. Plastic tanks are also unaffected by harsh fuels such as methanol blends, which will come into use in the coming years as a result of clean air regulations.

However, ordinary plastic fuel tanks will not meet future evaporative emissions standards because they allow the permeation of hydrocarbons through the tank material itself.

The new Walbro tanks will utilize multi-layer construction that effectively eliminates permeation, providing all the benefits of plastic construction while meeting the new standards.

Retiring after 27 years

Postmaster Zinnecker: "'It's time to move on"

After more than 27 years, Bill Zinnecker has decided to call it quits.

Zinnecker, postmaster of the U.S. Post Office branch in Cass City, will retire at the end of July. At age 56, he said it's time to move on.

"I am looking forward to retiring," he said. "I have been here for a long time.

Although the position of postmaster primarily involves supervision of the branch and public relations responsibilities, he explained that because the Cass City office is small, things are different.

"In an office this size you do everything," he said.

His current staff complement consists of one parttime person employed on a temporary basis, 4 substitutes, 4 rural route carriers, 2 city route carriers and 4 clerks.

Although the U.S. Postal Service has changed a lot over the years, Zinnecker believes a lot of change has happened in just the last 2 years.

Currently, employees have to sort mail for carriers right at the branch, but by spring 1993 the Cass City office is slated to start receiving presorted mail. The Caro post office already receives its mail sorted.

"It will definitely affect jobs," he said, adding he hopes no one at the Cass City branch will be laid off because of it.

The amount of mail handled through the local branch also has increased.

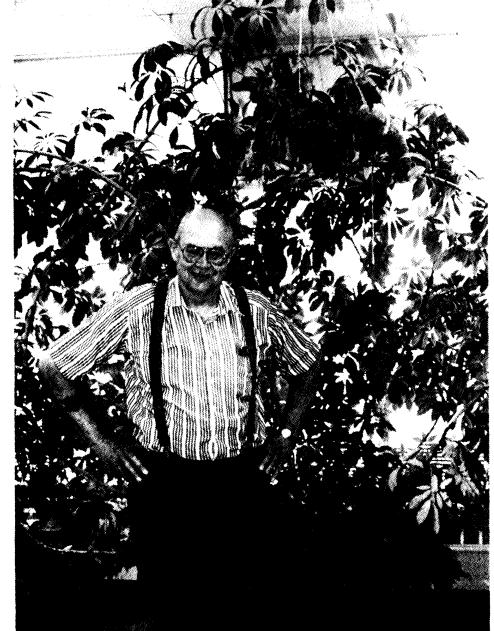

"I think we have a lot more mail," he said. "Things have especially increased in the last few years."

The branch currently handles about 2,500 deliveries daily within its 8-mile radius, Zinnecker said. He attributes the increase to higher volumes of business mailings.

Although he has no idea who his successor will be, he does have ideas about what he wants to do after he retires. He said he plans to travel with his wife, Shirley, who works at Walbro but is expected to retire this year. At this time their specific points of destination during their travels remain up in the

A GOOD HOME is what Bill Zinnecker wants to find for his green friend. Zinnecker retires as postmaster of the U.S. Post Office in Cass City at the end of July and would like to find a new owner for the plant which he's had since 1985. Although the plant was only about 18 inches tall when he first got it, now it reaches the ceiling and is several feet wide.

Farm labor force shrinking

By the year 2000, the Michigan farm labor work force is expected to have declined by about 20 and 24 percent.

In the report, "The Michigan Agricultural Labor Base," Allen E. Shapley, Michigan State University (MSU) Extension agricultural economist, says that the reduction in the number of full-time and seasonal workers will have the greatest impact on Michigan farms. This may result in any combination of the following results which includes: an increase in use of mechanization to complete farm work, a decrease in the number of farms involved with labor intensive products, or a decrease in the number of farms. Shapley believes that the demand for all of the farm worker groups is expected to decline because of an increase in labor efficiency and a decrease in the number of farms.

Other reasons for the expected decrease in the number of farm laborers are as

- - The expected reduction of unpaid family workers is a result of an increase in the Service (CES) and Lifelong number of alternative employment opportunities.

- - The reduction of fulltime workers is expected because the skill levels now being demanded of these workers make them competitive in non-agricultural businesses which usually pay better wages while working fewer hours.

- - The projected reduction of seasonal workers - - of which, migrant workers currently make up 75 percent of this group - - is due to an increase in the costs of employing these workers.

Recent labor legislation raising the minimum wage, requiring more restrictive migrant housing standards, stiffening safety standards and increasing the penalties for safety violations by 7fold has been the main reason for this increase.

Shapley suggests 2 ways to reduce the expected shortage of full-time and seasonal workers. He recommends a certification program for full-time workers that would be developed and operated by the Cooperative Extension

Education at MSU. To reduce the shortage of seasonal workers, Shapley suggests an integrated training and employment program that could be administered by the CES and the Michigan Employment Security

A possible agreement that would create a free trade market with Mexico may have a substantial impact on Michigan's farm labor work force, Shapley believes. Michigan could have a shortage of farm workers if the proposed free trade market between Mexico and the U.S. increases the demand for Michigan products or if Mexican agriculture becomes profitable enough to employ the migrant workers that are now working in

program for wheat

Secretary of Agriculture Edward Madigan recently announced a zero percent acreage reduction program for the 1993 wheat crop.

Set zero percent

acreage reduction

In order to obtain price support loan and deficiency payments with respect to the 1993 crop of wheat, producers on farms which have a wheat crop acreage base will cass City not be required to devote any acreage on the farm to approved conservation use.

This level was chosen from the statutory range of 0 to 15 percent "to ensure sufficient supplies of U.S. wheat for domestic and export needs," Madigan said.

'We want our farmers to recognize the commitment to exports behind the decision," he added. "We will continue to be a reliable supplier of wheat and we will sell that wheat into the world markets. We are committed to being competitive, using the Export Enhancement Program and all other export promotion authorities at our disposal."

Madigan also announced other provisions for the 1993 wheat programs:

- - The established target price as $4 per bushel, unchanged from 1992.

- - The price support and loan rate is $2.45 per bushel.

- A paid land diversion will not be implemented.

announced at a later date.

Tendercare residents preparing float No. 14

Residents of the Tendercare nursing home in Cass City are proof that people of all ages can enjoy making a float for Saturday's annual 4th of July parade.

About 15 residents helped put together Tendercare's 14th float entry in the parade, said Mary Vatter, activity director for 16 years.

This year's float commemorates the 500th anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, she said.

The main portion of the float is an actual boat attached to a trailer. Beginning in May, Tendercare residents started spending many hours working with tissue paper, glue and other materials which will cover the boat's body, Vatter said. The boat will have sails and several residents playing the parts of Columbus and his crew.

Past floats had themes such as voting, veterans, Michigan's 150th birthday and the circus, she said. Hard work building floats has paid off each year, because Tendercare floats have always received an award as one of the best floats in the parade, she said. "We've been very fortunate," Vatter said. "But the people deserve it because the people put a lot of time in on it."

Building the float is a way

Building the float is a way of getting Tendercare residents involved in a project they can take pride in, she the boat's body, Vatter said. explained, adding they are encouraged to participate.

"It's always a really big thrill," she added. "They're always really happy to take part in it.

"It gives them a chance to be part of the community again."

Residents say they enjoy working on the project. Martha Robinson, who has worked on past floats, said she really enjoys helping the project come together.

"(And) I like getting together with my friends," she added.

Working on the float, and often riding on them during the parade, is common for the resident, who spends many hours working on the

"It's something to do," Robinson explained. "It's better than going back to the room to look at 4 walls."

The initial idea for the theme of this year's float was brought to Vatter by Tendercare volunteer and the nursing home's residents council approved it. The boat for the float was donated by a Cass City area family, Vatter said. Only through the use of many illustrations of old ships was the group able to make the idea materialize, she added.

But the project might nobe possible without the help of Tendercare's many vol-

"Volunteers play a great part; a great, great part in this float."

When The Lights Go Out At The Park

When the last hot dog is eaten, the last event is over and Festival number 14 is history, let's remember why we celebrate.

We need to be reminded that freedom still prevails and our individual freedom is the envy of people everywhere.

A free press zealously guards that freedom. We strive to uphold that tradition every week by publishing the most concise, accurate and unbiased news of Cass City and the area.

Tell us if we don't.

representatives from a variety of local service organizations, including the Lions Club and Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3644.

Musical entries in the parade will include the Cass City High School marching band, which will perform in new uniforms, and the Sally Doerr Dance Troupe. Tendercare and the Little Miss Pageant are just two of the expected float entries.

And of course the parade will have its share of politicians, especially since this is an election year, Jones said.

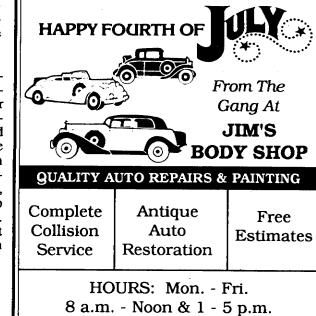

"One politician already called me and I expect a lot

Some participants in last year's parade will not return this year because of scheduling conflicts related to actually having the parade on the 4th of July, he said.

There is no cost to participate in the parade, and anyone who wants to enter should show up at the starting point at Brooker and Main streets. Other side streets connecting with Main Street will be barricaded during the procession, although police will set up detours around the route. The parade will conclude at the Cass City Recreation
