

Great weather, large crowds at Festival

SWEET TREAT — One-year-old Abby McCallum of Cass City enjoyed sharing cotton candy with her mother, Beth, as much as eating it herself. Great weather for Cass City's annual July 4th Festival boosted sales of the sweet treat by the Elkland Township Firemen's Women's Auxiliary, which netted $325 for new fire fighting equipment.

Organizers of Cass City's 14th annual July 4 Festival couldn't have ordered better weather for the holiday weekend.

Mild temperatures and a breeze greeted thousands of people visiting the village during the 3-day independence celebration, which featured a variety of music, food and activities.

"I thought (Saturday) was a great day. I thought the whole weekend went well," commented Geraldine Prieskorn, one of the festival organizers.

The festivities were kicked off with a golf tournament and the Little Miss Pageant Thursday.

The golf tourney, held at Rolling Hills Golf Course, was a first for the festival and is expected to become an annual event.

The tourney drew 72 players, with the team of Dave Wojicki, Dan Reynolds, Chris Wurst and John Bibeninder, all of Pigeon, emerging the winners of a play-off held to decide a 3-way tie for first place. The event netted $560 to help offset festival expenses.

The Little Miss Pageant, meanwhile, saw a big increase in both the number of contestants and those attending the annual event.

An estimated 250 people watched as 28 girls — more than twice the number of contestants last year — competed for the crowns of Tiny Miss (age 3 through kindergarten) and Little Miss (grades 1-3).

Tara Ann Sherman, daughter of Allen and Susan Sherman, won the Tiny Miss title, with Whitney Braun, daughter of Joseph and Nancy Braun, finishing in second place, and Kelley Hutchins, daughter of Chuck and Lisa Hutchins, in third.

The first-place winners each received a $15 gift certificate, a crown and a trophy; second and third place winners received trophies, and each of the contestants received a ribbon.

Friday's activities included Cruise Night, which drew some 60 classic autos and a large crowd of spectators. Participants came from the area as well as throughout the Thumb and beyond, including Caro, Bay Port, Sandusky, and Pinconning.

The Cass City Jaycees' Spook House drew about 250 people, and another 200 showed up for an "Off-Main Street Dance," sponsored by the Jaycees and the Chamber of Commerce.

HIGHLIGHT

The annual parade proved to be a highlight, with more than 70 entries, according to parade coordinator Gary Jones.

Floats or entries receiving special recognition were: the Little Miss float, Harry Crandell Award; Bay Shore Camp entry, M.B. Auten Award; Hills and Dales General Hospital float, Belle Schwaderer award, and the Tendercare float, President's Award.

The parade featured area veterans as well as the Cass City High School Band, dozens of antique autos, horses and a handful of candidates seeking county, state and national offices.

The only thing missing was a scheduled flyover by F-16 jets from the Selfridge Air National Guard Base. Jones said he isn't certain why the jets failed to show.

Saturday afternoon's activities included a children's dog show, sponsored by the Thumb of Michigan Dog Fanciers Inc., and judged by Kevin Kevill of Elkton. Awards were presented to Jennifer Haynes, 12, and her poodle, "Chairly", of Cass City, for best costume; Angie Putnam, 11, and her sheltie, "Gunner," won "waggiest tail" and best trick honors; Jennifer Warock, 13, and her Bichons Frise, "Stanley", Saginaw, won the obstacle course and "dog and owner look alike" honors, and Calla Sattelberg, 9, and her collie, "Tarah", received the best groomed award.

Other winners announced in conjunction with the festival included 4 people who received prizes through a raffle drawing sponsored by the July 4 Committee. The winners were E.M. Otto of Cass City, Brian Sutter of Madison, Ohio, Jim Henderson of Ubyly, and Kathy Wright of Westland.

The event netted some $600, which will go towards festival expenses.

Stabbing leads to charge of murder for Paquette

A Hemans man was arraigned Monday afternoon on a charge of open murder in connection with the fatal stabbing of a Detroit area resident in Huron County's Caseville Township Friday.

Huron County District Court Judge Karl E. Kraus denied bond to Philip Joseph Paquette, 32.

A preliminary examination was scheduled for July 16 at 9 a.m. Open murder carries a maximum penalty of life in prison.

Huron County authorities identified the victim of Friday's stabbing as Michael Robert Gravelle, 18, of Sterling Heights.

Huron County Central Dispatch received a call reporting the stabbing at 11:13 p.m., according to a news release issued by Huron County Prosecutor Leslie Hagen, who stated the incident occurred at 8112 Port Austin Rd.

Michigan State Police responded to the call and discovered the victim, who was later pronounced dead at Scheurer Hospital in Pigeon.

Motive in the stabbing is still being investigated. However, Hagen said a party was underway at the time of the incident.

Authorities took Paquette into custody at the scene, according to reports, which state the suspected weapon has been recovered.

The stabbing remains under investigation by the Michigan State Police, with assistance from the Huron County Sheriff's Department, Caseville Police Department and Fairhaven Township Police Department.

Best values of year

Sidewalk sales July 15-18

The second big event of the summer months in Cass City will be coming your way July 15 through 18, hard on the heels of the gala July 4 Festival celebration. It is the annual sidewalk sales Wednesday through Saturday on Main Street.

The main stem will be bustling with activities. The Elmwood quilters are presenting their annual show at the cultural center. Rawson Memorial Library will hold a book sale and the Boy Scouts will be selling hot dogs and a drink of choice for just $1.00.

There will be many booths with arts and crafts and bake sales. Jan Moore will present a piano recital at Jordan College.

While these special events make the annual sale more exciting and fun, most shoppers look to the event for the many bargains that are offered. Summer merchandise is available during this sale, retailers say, at the lowest prices of the year.

The sale often includes new fall styles that are sharply reduced for sidewalk sales only.

The Chronicle's July 15 issue will blanket the area with a total circulation of 7,000 copies.

LITTLE MISS

The Little Miss crown went to Stacy Knoodle, daughter of Connie and Jim Knoodle. Heidi Vatter, daughter of Scott and Theresa Vatter, placed second, and Alyssa Wolschleger, daughter of Barry and Traci Wolschleger, placed third.

Construction starts July 17 on $3 million Detroit Edison plant

Detroit Edison has awarded a $3 million contract to Campbell/Manix, a Southfield-based firm, to construct the utility's North Area Energy Center in Cass City.

The planned facility is part of a broad program to improve customer service throughout the Thumb area.

Construction will begin in mid-July at an 18-acre site at Doerr Road and Division Street in the Cass City Industrial Park. When completed late this year, the new center will house more than 100 employees from 6 existing company facilities in the upper Thumb.

An official ground breaking ceremony has been scheduled for 10 a.m. July 17 at the North Area Energy Center site, located near the corner of Doerr Road and Division Street in the Cass City Industrial Park.

The North Area Energy Center will enable Detroit Edison to better coordinate service restoration efforts, new service installations and day-to-day customer business for Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola Counties.

The complex will include an Energy Information Center to provide customers with displays and information on energy-efficient electrical products and technology, and a full-service Detroit Edison customer office in addition to the 25 present bill-payment agencies in the 3-county area.

"We also intend to expand programs aimed at the special electricity needs of our farm customers," said Robert S. Howard, manager of the utility's Thumb Division.

In addition, Howard said Detroit Edison has budgeted $236 million over a 3-year period to improve customer service and system reliability throughout its Southeastern Michigan service area.

DETROIT EDISON HAS awarded a $3 million contract for construction of its new North Area Energy Center in Cass City. Work on the facility is expected to get underway later this month.

Village buys 7 acres, okays Cass City DDA

As expected, Cass City has joined the ranks of Thumb communities working to preserve and improve their business districts through creation of a Downtown Development Authority.

The Village Council last week adopted an ordinance creating a DDA.

The council also expanded Cass City's industrial park during a June 30 monthly meeting, approving the purchase of land south of town.

The DDA ordinance was unanimously approved following brief discussion. The vote came about 2 weeks after a public hearing on the proposal, which received a generally positive review from the nearly 30 people in attendance.

DDAs, created under Michigan's Public Act 197 of 1975, are non-profit development corporations designed to help revitalize downtown districts.

Specific improvements are proposed by a DDA board and can be funded in a number of ways, including a tax levy, with municipal approval, of up to 2 mills on property within the DDA boundaries.

Funding can also be raised through a Tax Increment Financing plan in which projected hikes in future tax revenues from increased assessed valuations within the DDA boundaries may be set aside for improvements. Grants and loans may also be available.

Concern about higher taxes and proposed DDA boundaries was voiced during last month's public hearing.

Village officials, who pointed out DDAs are already being utilized in Caro, Vassar and Millington, said no plans have been made yet regarding specific projects or funding methods, and that any future tax levy would have to first be presented at a public hearing and receive council approval.

As for the DDA boundaries, Pine Street resident Karen Fischer and Oak Street resident Dolly Tracy asked that they not be included in the district. Based on their locations, it was determined that only Fischer's property could be eliminated from the district.

The direction of Cass City's DDA will be shaped by a board consisting of the village president and 8 members appointed by the president. At least 5 members must have an interest in property in the district and at least one must be a resident of the district.

Board members are expected to be appointed at the council's July 28 regular meeting. Residents are welcome to submit nominations by calling the village office at 872-2911.

LAND PURCHASE

Turning to real estate matters, the council unanimously voted to spend $18,900 to purchase 7 acres from William D. Benkelman.

The property, located at the south end of the village — west of Seeger Street and south of Frank's Service station — is contiguous with

Testing a marriage

by Melva E. Guinther

Our daughter and son-in-law, Sandy and Andy, have been married only a year and a half and they're putting their marriage to the test.

Oh, they've dealt with and overcome potential obstacles before -- her cats, his bungee jumping and scuba diving. But this is the ultimate challenge. They're redecorating!

Sandy has observed firsthand the stress a project like this can put on a relationship, and she apparently feels theirs is strong enough to withstand the strain.

They've already survived the arduous scraping and painting of their front porch, but Oh Dear! Wallpapering is a whole different ball game.

Wallpapering tests the warp and wool of a marriage. It brings out emotional faculties you didn't know existed.

Even before you get to what veteran wallpaperers call "divorce corner," you learn things about a spouse during a wallpapering bout that you never knew before, and might wish you hadn't found out.

You soon discover which one is the speedy but reckless "Get it done quick and don't worry about the mess" individual. If she happens to be married to a "Do it slowly, by the book, and clean up as you go" person, they're on a collision course from the start.

One half of the twosome may like working as part of a team, while the other functions best doing his own thing his own way - alone. And only the couple who recognizes and accepts the difference can hope to survive intact.

When you get right down to it, that's true of just about every interpersonal relationship, isn't it -- the need to recognize that people are different and accept the fact?

But it's especially true in any dialogue between the sexes. Despite what some of the militant feminists may claim, there are basic, typical differences between men and women besides the obvious physical ones.

You have to wonder how many failed marriages might have made it if the parties involved had been aware of the emotional nuances of the other.

Trouble inevitably arises whenever we assume that the other person knows what we know, feels what we feel, and reacts as we would react under similar circumstances.

Every one of us is the product of his or her background and genetic makeup, which is never quite the same in any two individuals.

In the book, "Passages of Marriage" by Minirth, Newman and Hemfelt, the authors point out that while a bride and groom may have pulled up roots and left home, home never quite leaves them.

Whether they realize it or not, patterns from their childhood, training and family life influence to a great extent how they feel and react to various situations.

And that's true of individuals in any relationship.

In trying to explain to a young man once why someone with a different set of values acted as she did, I told him that God hadn't made everybody like him. He replied that he knew that, but he couldn't understand why.

He had mastered the fact that people are different, which is the first step toward true understanding, but fell short of accepting that difference, which is tolerance.

To wallpaper successfully, you have to have both.

"If It Fitz...."

Unflunked reputation

By Jim Fitzgerald

It was humiliating, a kick in the viscous. Last month I flunked a test. How could I flunk when I'm so smart I know the plural of viscous is viscera? I couldn't remember the last time an authority figure looked sternly into my face and announced I'd failed.

I never flunked tests in college because my G.I. Bill subsidy was good for four years only. If I flunked something, I'd have to attend an extra semester or more to earn my degree. That would mean paying my own tuition and room and board, except all my personal funds were tied up in non-refundable beer bottles. On the surface I was a typically frivolous student, but down deep -- viscerally -- I realized I had to graduate in four years or forever forfeit my opportunity to make $45 a week as a provably educated journalist rather than $75 as an ignorant factory worker.

Every time I read about a college athlete taking five or six years to complete his studies, I decry the injustice of jockstrap idolatry. If I'd been born with no neck, I might have stayed at Michigan State University long enough to avoid being accused of lying.

'YES, DO IT, PLEASE'

The charge was made in May, after I wrote that I graduated from MSU in 1951. Richard Reihmer of Detroit responded: "I was in the first graduating class of Michigan State University in 1955; you were in the 1951 graduating class of Michigan State College. I had the notion that you might be a bit pretentious, but with literally dozens of people reading your column, you should be more careful."

I knew that. So did all my readers, who are all literally my acquaintances to whom I not only deliver this newspaper free, I also read them my column while sitting on their backs. It was from me that they learned the little-known fact that Michigan State was automatically promoted from college to university in 1955 when the average weight of its middle linebackers reached 350.

Anyway, even if I graduated from MSU when it was called MAC -- Michigan Agricultural College -- I didn't flunk tests there. My memory of my elementary and high school education is hazy, probably because of wagon-train dust, but it could well be that I never flunked a test until June 26, 1992, in a Grosse Pointe gas station.

So it's no wonder I was viscerally embarrassed when the attendant said I flunked my emission test.

My 1984 Oldsmobile had never before flunked the auto exhaust test mandated by the Federal Clean Air Act. It has only 70,000 miles on it, and I regularly say "Yes, do it, please," to the deeply concerned, names-on-shirts men who say it needs a tune-up. Whatever that is.

I always drive to Grosse Pointe to be tested, rather than at my neighborhood downtown Detroit station, because I've been told by people who know that a car should be driven several miles just before the big test. Sort of like burning the midnight gas.

So what went wrong? The attendant shrugged and, adding to my humiliation, handed me a document headlined: "Failed Vehicle Instructions." The most telling instruction was that it would cost me up to $80 to improve enough to pass a second test. Plus the $10 I'd paid to flunk the test.

WORTH THE TRIP

Like changing classes the first week at MSU, I decided to change gas stations swiftly, before my photo was posted in service bays throughout the state.

It wasn't the money, it was the pride. Lately there's been much publicity nationwide about greedy auto mechanics selling hundreds of innocent customers parts and services they don't need. I was too proud to be screwed in an indiscriminate scam.

I drove to another station, in another county, and passed the $10 test. Total possible savings: $70.

People who know advise me it might be unfair to name the first gas station, because the drive to the second station could have improved my emissions. OK. But, deep down, I believe it was my stubborn intelligence that un-flunked my reputation.

Historical Society meets

The Historical Society met for a potluck dinner June 28 at the Cass City park.

After the meal, a business meeting was held. The society received permission from the city to plant another tree in place of the one that was cut down on Seeger Street near the Middle School.

The group decided not to meet every other month, but if someone comes up with a program of great interest, the members will be notified.

Anyone with suggestions for a program is asked to contact President Audrey Katzenberger (872-3049).

The society's officers are: Audrey Katzenberger, president; Jack Esau, treasurer; Fred Matthews, secretary, and Barbara Hutchinson, Velma Cleland and Charlotte LaPeer, directors.

Unforgettable

Area couple exchanges vows at the Cass Theatre

Since he was only going to be married once, Joe Leeson wanted a wedding that he and everyone else would remember, and he had it. For the first time ever in the Thumb and possibly in the rest of Michigan, a working theatre served as the wedding chapel.

It should be very easy for Leeson and his new wife, the former Jill Middaugh, to remember the Cass Theatre, where they exchanged vows. It should be just as easy to remember the date. Not many couples marry on the Fourth of July.

We hurried up our annual summer cleaning to be ready for this, Dick Hendrick, theatre owner, said. We went over the light blue paint on the walls and all of our decorating (usually handled during the fair week when the theater closes) was done in the evening just to be ready.

Friends and relatives attending reported that the theatre was spotless and the stage lights, combined with the balloons and flowers, made a distinctive, beautiful setting for the ceremony.

Getting into the spirit of the occasion, Hendrick used the theatre marquee to spell out congratulations to Joe and Jill. It was our present to the newlyweds, he said.

Magic Carpet Puppet Show slated July 8

All area children are invited to a Magic Carpet Puppet Show July 8 at 10 a.m., when Rawson Memorial Library, Cass City, will present "Sniffles' Circus" in the library meeting room.

The program, conducted by Patricia Sherman of Oscoda, focuses on a boy, a girl, a monkey and an elephant that work together to save Sniffles' small, trouble-ridden circus from the clutches of a mean animal trainer.

This special children's program is free and open to all children.

The Haire Net

Ask the next guy you meet down the street and chances are he will tell you that those "banana republics" in South America and in the Mideast are apt to revolt at the drop of a hat and disregard the laws of the land where they live. Different from us, he would say. Except for a few criminal types mostly in the big city, who are not stable, we are law abiding, enlightened people here in the United States.

You could make a case that our record of shooting presidents and other prominent Americans also doesn't represent mainstream America and other than that we wholeheartedly respect the law.

But the reaction to a couple of court rulings last week indicates that it just isn't so.

The first is the abortion issue, where the top court in the land has ruled that abortions with restrictions are legal. Almost as soon as the Supreme Court verdict was revealed advocates, for and against abortion, made plans to break the law.

Pro-choicers already have demonstrated against the verdict, breaking the law because the law didn't give them what they desired.

Anti-abortion foes have a long history of demonstrations (not always peaceful either) to protest abortions that are repugnant to them.

Closer to home, let's look at the court's ruling that says prayer in school is unlawful, that it violates the constitution and it doesn't matter if attendance is compulsory or voluntary.

Judging by the track record at Cass City Schools, it's likely that the board of education will vote to break the law when it comes to school prayer. When a related issue came up (distribution of Gideon Bibles), the board condoned the practice until challenged by the American Civil Liberties Union, which threatened to sue, forcing the board to comply with the law of the land.

Don't for a minute think that Cass City was alone on the Bible issue. More area schools allowed the gift of Bibles than those that didn't, until forced to abandon the illegal practice.

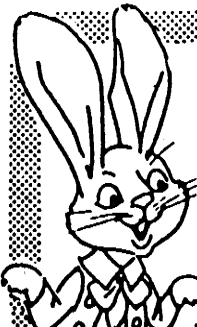

Because the Bibles were not allowed to be distributed at the school doesn't mean that the students were eventually deprived. It just made the Gideons' work a little harder. Harder, but legally, the way it should be.

I thought that Supt. Ken Micklash provided a thoughtful alternative, which was to hold the baccalaureate services on a site away from the school, not as a school-controlled or sanctioned event.

It's possible under such an arrangement that attendance will dwindle and the ceremony eventually be killed. It would be regrettable if it happened. I always felt that it was a nice part of the graduation ritual.

But if we want to teach respect for the law in our schools, we must start by showing respect ourselves. Do as I tell you, not as I do, never works.

A constitutional amendment authorizing it is the only way that prayer should be allowed in public schools. Until then prayer in public schools is against the law. Obey it.

Rabbit Tracks

by John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

Picture, if you will, this fellow. Obviously 50 pounds or so overweight. Laughing and talking and obviously having a good time in the group he was with. It was the perfect setting for the graffiti on his hat: "I licked anorexia."

It's nice to have talent. Laker sports star Reggie Ignash was signed to a professional baseball contract with the Cleveland Indians last week for a bonus and assurance that he will be able to go to college if he doesn't make it to the big show.

That shows dedication to the game of baseball by the 4-sport Laker star, right? Wrong. Ignash is quoted in the Pigeon paper as saying, "I wonder how good I could have been if I took the game more seriously when I was young."

Two firsts were registered in the last week. The water was too cold for swimming in Lake Charlevoix over the Fourth of July and the heat snapped on at the house one night last week.

Speaking of firsts, next year, for the first time after serving for 13 years as a Little League coach, Ken Micklash will not be on the sidelines. Funny, he didn't seem to be all broken up about it.

You'd lose your bet with us, said Mrs. Betty Russell. She was referring to an item in this trivia last week that lamented never visiting the southwest section of Michigan. We (husband Royce) do it all the time.

Sure, but how many of us have a daughter that lives in St. Joseph?

WHAT IS PARKINSON'S DISEASE

Parkinson's is a disease of a very small area of the brain called the substantia nigra. As this area gradually degenerates, the typical symptoms of Parkinson's develop.

The main problem in Parkinson's is the lack of a chemical, called dopamine, which is needed for the brain to function properly.

The two main symptoms of Parkinson's are a tremor and muscle rigidity. The tremor is present even at rest, which separates it from the many types of tremor which disappear at rest.

The tremor in the hands is rhythmical and gives the appearance of rolling an object in the fingers as opposed to the shakiness caused by excessive caffeine or anxiety.

Nearly everyone with Parkinson's develops muscle rigidity; the arms and legs are not supple and loose, but are tight and resist movement. Arthritis or bursitis are often blamed at first, but the rigidity doesn't improve with arthritis medicines.

This rigidity makes one's movements less fluid and graceful. A person will appear to have trouble beginning to walk as well as having trouble stopping. Other adjustments, such as turning corners or grasping an object, are difficult to do. This lack of coordination is likely to cause falls or other accidents.

The muscle rigidity also affects many other muscle groups. The person will appear to lack facial expression, have difficulty in swallowing, may have drooling, and speech is often slurred or indistinct.

Since there are medicines that treat Parkinson's, any early symptoms should be reported to your doctor.

Big boost

An economist recently told Congress that freeing world trade would boost the U.S. economy by an estimated $60 billion a year. Most of that extra cash would go to family farms and rural communities.

Letter to the editor

Tendercare job ok, says worker

Dear Mr. Bell

I am writing because I am tired of reading biased negative remarks regarding Tendercare. Maybe your community doesn't mean it, but this nursing home has always been looked down upon ever since I've worked here and the Chronicle's negative stories don't help.

Tendercare is a skilled facility who takes several critical patients the hospitals don't want any more because "their DRG's are up."

Also people who can't be cared for in a home environment. The work is hard, no ones work here is easy. We give good quality patient care. I challenge you to find better in an extended care facility. This week again you printed a totally biased story. I was on duty the day aides and others came in street clothes as a protest and what Mrs. Remsing neglected to tell you was the management stated "change your clothes to your uniform and you may come back."

The other shift that came in street clothes were called and asked to please appear in uniform. They met in the parking lot, waited until the start of shift, and walked in. They were also told they may return when uniforms were on. It is true Tendercare has some problems. Canadians run things differently and they are trying to make the U.S. company they have purchased, run the same way. Well, it can't. But they seem willing to compromise. Mrs. Remsing related only half truths - the half they know will incite ill will and then we, like sheep, follow along. Please in the future try to interview more than one person and try some positive strokes for the good job the aides and nurses do. We need moral support, not degradation.

I can't sign my name for the chance of union repercussion, but I am proud of my job and the work I do, and so are the aides and nurses.

I hope you print this front page as this is where article was - for the truth it is.

Thank you,

(Name withheld for obvious reasons.)

P.S. I am not management.

Huron women at college week

Several Huron County women attended the 1992 "College Week" in East Lansing, June 22-25.

The educational conference is held each year on the Michigan State University Campus. A Nutrition Conference was held June 23. A Special Option "I Have a Right to Decide; Preparing For Future Financial And Health Care Decisions" was attended June 24 by Barb Neuman, extension home economist from Huron County, and Diana Kausch, Owendale, vice president of the state MAEH.

Other local participants were Joyce MacMillan, Carol Polk, Maggie McQueen, Irma Lewis Holtrap, all of Bad Axe, and Betty Lou Krueger and Deb Booms of Harbor Beach.

Apply now for permits for 3 elk hunts

For the first time, the DNR has scheduled 2 September elk hunts - Sept. 9-15 and Sept. 17-24 - for Michigan's 1992 elk hunting season, with a third hunt scheduled for Dec. 8-15.

With the hunts beginning earlier in the fall, applications to include the September elk hunts must be postmarked by Aug. 1, earlier than in previous years. Those postmarked after that date, but by Sept. 15, will be applied to the December hunt only.

"This will be the ninth consecutive year of elk hunting in Michigan in recent history," DNR Director Roland Harnes said. "Since 1984, hunters have harvested 1,126 elk. The ability to maintain regulated hunting, as well as providing opportunities for people to see elk in the wild, is another indication of the outstanding success we have had in managing the population of this magnificent animal."

Application forms to apply for the elk hunt licenses may be purchased for a non-refundable $4 fee at more than 2,000 license dealers throughout Michigan beginning July 1.

Accompanying elk hunting guides will contain instructions for filling out the application forms. Only Michigan residents who will be 14 years of age or older before the first day of the hunt applied for will be eligible.

The DNR expects to receive more than 40,000 applications for the 270 elk licenses available this year - 173 for the taking of antlerless elk only, and 97 hunter's choice licenses for taking either antlered or antlerless elk.

As in past years, applicants may select 2 application options - bull-only or any-elk. All applicants, regardless of which option they select, will have an equal chance of obtaining a hunter's choice license. Applicants who apply for the bull-only option will not be considered for antlerless-only licenses.

A random drawing will be held to determine which applicants will be issued elk hunting licenses. Successful applicants will be mailed registered letters by Aug. 24, indicating the area where they may hunt and the type of license they will receive.

Successful applicants for the December hunt will be notified by Nov. 2.

Successful applicants are required to attend a special orientation session on the day before their hunt begins (Sept. 8 or 16, or Dec. 7), where they will receive instruction on elk biology, hunting regulations, hunting techniques and elk distribution.

Michigan's native elk disappeared from the state about 1875. Today's herd dates back to 1918, when 7 western elk were reintroduced in the state near Wolverine. The herd increased to the point where regulated hunting could be allowed in 1964 and 1965, and more recent hunts have been held annually since 1984.

Last January's estimate of the herd points to a population of about 1,200 and an expected fall herd of about 1,400.

Show hours will be 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday.

This year's Expo will feature daily field demonstrations on row crop cultivation. The trade show will display the latest in farm equipment, products, supplies and services. Both parking and admission are free.

Again this year, the Michigan Rural Safety Council will offer free blood pressure checks for those over 16 years of age. Last year, about one-third of those checked had above-normal readings. Hypertension is a silent killer and is not a visible disease. Everyone should have their blood pressure checked to detect possible high blood pressure readings.

For information about Ag Expo, contact the Tuscola, Huron or Sanilac County Extension office.

Your neighbor says
Enjoyed another
July 4 Festival

Judy Rocheleau of Cass City celebrated the Fourth of July this year the same way she has for the last 14 years. She presented the dog show at the Fourth of July Festival.

And, she says, I enjoyed it as much this year as I did when the first show was held. Saturday I met lots of folks I haven't seen in a long time.

It was a real good day and I really liked going through the crafts, she said.

Our show has changed a little through the years, Rocheleau responded, when asked how it was at the beginning and how it was this year.

We put the dogs through obstacle courses and have fly ball, she explained, and that's something we didn't do at first.

The Festival is just a real good, relaxing day for most folks, Rocheleau believes, but perhaps we don't stop long enough to consider that it is Independence Day that we are celebrating.

Judy and her husband, Robert, a milk hauler, have been Cass City residents for 25 years. They have 3 grown children and 7 grandchildren.

IPAT president

At its Biennial Convention July 1, the International Porcelain Artists and Teachers Association, Inc. (IPAT), elected Mary Ashcroft of Caro as its president.

The well-known porcelain artist and teacher will serve in her new capacity for 2 years, governing the 3,300-member organization whose regions include the United States, Canada, Mexico, Central America, South America, Puerto Rico, Denmark and Norway.

In addition to her daily work activities, Ashcroft will spend much of her time in the immediate future traveling to conventions and shows in these regions, promoting the ideals and goals of porcelain artists and fostering the exchange of new ideas and thoughts in the field.

Mary Ashcroft

Ashcroft is approaching her twentieth year in the painting and teaching arena, and recently opened a store in Caro to display her work and that of other local artists and artisans. She has traveled extensively throughout the United States and other parts of the world to exhibit her work and to share her talents with promising students of the art.

She has earned a score of awards for her expertise during the past 10 years, and has served as a member of numerous professional associations, including the Michigan Porcelain Artists, Professional Porcelain Artists, and the Michigan China Painting Teachers' Association. Her work has been seen on exhibition venues varying from Sturgis, Mich., to Mesa, Ariz.

In 3-vehicle mishapMinor injuries reported

A pair of area motorists sustained minor injuries in a 3-vehicle accident Friday morning about a mile and a half northeast of Caro, Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies reported.

The accident occurred at 10:37 a.m. at the intersection of East Caro Road (M-81) and Deckerville Road.

Theodore A. Powell, 62, Cass City, was driving west on Deckerville Road and attempted to make a left turn onto M-81 when another westbound vehicle, driven by Neil D. Graves, 66, of Pelham, Ala., shot through the intersection and struck his vehicle, according to witnesses.

Reports state the impact caused Powell to lose control and spin out into the path of a northeast bound car driven by Delores A. Bencheck, 55, of Gagetown. Graves told deputies the Powell vehicle had its right turn signal on and turned into him.

Both Powell and Bencheck were transported to Caro Community Hospital, where they were treated and then released.

Each of the drivers was wearing a seat belt at the time of the accident, according to deputies, who cited Graves for failing to yield.

4 face charges in district court

Four people were recently arraigned on separate felony charges in Tuscola County

Board mulls Dodge Road drainage

The Novesta Township Board will continue to look into drainage work done last year along Dodge Road following discussion Monday night.

The board doesn't believe the area is draining properly, according to township Clerk Nursie Kloc, who said Supervisor Maynard Stine will discuss the matter further with county road commission officials.

In other business during the 75-minute monthly meeting, the board okayed attendance at a workman's compensation seminar Aug. 5 in Bay City, and noted the township's Election Committee will meet today (Wednesday) to select election workers.

The committee is composed of Kloc, Stine and township Treasurer Ralph Zinnecker.

the village's industrial park. The purchase was recommended by Nat Tuttle, chairman of the council's Public Service's Committee.

Village President L.E. Althaver supported the proposal, which gives the village enough room to build a standard size road extending Division Street from the industrial park to Seeger Street.

"This really does a couple of good things," Althaver said. "It gives us real access to South Seeger, (and) it would allow us to tie in sewer and water to that whole section."

The purchase, along with other property acquired by the village in recent years, would also make available a 9- or 10-acre parcel for a new industry if the opportunity arises, he noted. "I think it's a unique opportunity. It's not going to get any cheaper."

Althaver said the land will be paid for with industrial park funds, which include revenue from the sale of property to Detroit Edison.

PUBLIC HEARING

In other business last week, the council:

*Established a public hearing on General Cable Company's application for an Industrial Facilities Exemption Certificate.

The hearing will be held in conjunction with the council's July 28 monthly meeting. The session is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

The application stems from General Cable's bid to receive a tax abatement of 50 percent for up to 12 years on $1,107,400 worth of equipment recently transferred to the Cass City plant.

The application represents the second phase of a 2-part process. The first was completed in May, when the council designated General Cable as an Industrial Development District.

If approved by the council later this month, the company's application will go to the State Tax Commission for final action.

*Voted to abandon an alley located east of Woodland Avenue, between Houghton and Third streets. The action was requested by residents whose property borders the alley.

*Noted the DNR has approved a bid from Simpson Excavation, Cass City, for development of the village's walking trail. Work on the project is expected to get underway as early as today (Wednesday).

Seek Tuscola bean queen candidates

An opportunity awaits for area young ladies to vie for the Tuscola County Bean Queen Crown for 1992, according to Dennis Stein, Tuscola County Extension director.

All contestants will receive a cash award, and the winner will receive a $500 savings bond and be eligible to win a $1,000 scholarship at the state contest.

"The Tuscola County Bean Queen Committee is seeking candidates and would like to expand the number of participants from the last few years. This would be an excellent opportunity for communities, businesses or groups to select a candidate from your area and submit her name to the committee," Stein said.

Entry forms are available at the Cooperative Extension Service office, 362 Green St., Caro, or at the County Farm Bureau office, 1023 E. Caro Rd., Caro.

The event will be held in connection with the Tuscola County Fair Thursday evening, July 23. The deadline for entering the contest is July 9, and the following Monday evening, contestants will be meeting with the judges for a dinner interview.

Rules for entering are as follows: 1) Must be unmarried and a farmer's daughter, who has grown beans within the past 5 years; 2) Age limitations, 17 to 25, inclusive (as of Sept. 1, the year of the contest); 3) County bean queens of previous years are not eligible;

4) Dress must be formal for the crowning pageant July 23 at 8 p.m. at the Tuscola County Fair.
