PIONEER WORK AND Learn Center's move to Vassar has had a definite economic impact on the Kingston School District and some businesses, including the IGA store in town. New owner Marty Plazinich (above) says the program used to spend $8,000 to $12,000 a month at the store.

Bogus phone caller operating in area

Cass City police are cautioning area residents to beware of an individual making phone calls, claiming to be a physician or psychologist and seeking the names of a potential baby sitter or counselor.

The individual made at least 6 calls Aug. 31, according to the Rev. Rick Sheppard, pastor of the Trinity United Methodist Church.

Calls were made to the Trinity and Salem UM Church parishes, the First Baptist Church, Hills and Dales General Hospital and 2 area residents, Sheppard said, adding the man told some he was looking for a baby sitter, and others he was seeking a young woman to counsel a 12-year-old girl new to the community.

He identified himself in different conversations as a Dr. Brogen, Dr. Drogen and Suspicious were raised on more than one occasion when the man made inappropriate sexual remarks, Sheppard said.

According to Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson, the caller began by phoning the hospital and asking for the names of area clergymen. He then started calling pastors in an effort to solicit names and phone numbers.

"To the best of my knowledge, nobody's gotten any call backs," Wilson said, adding, however, that area residents should be cautious.

If called, he advised, try to get a name, address and a telephone number, and then call the police—don't try to meet with the individual. "If it's obscene, just hang up." Parents of teenage girls are asked to be especially careful by asking for and checking out references.

Last year, an Elkton couple were charged and later convicted of charges stemming from a baby-sitting scheme in which 2 teens were sexually assaulted after being lured to the couple's home with the promise of baby-sitting jobs.

Sheppard said the latest series of phone calls may be nothing more than the work of a crank, but that he's concerned because the individual was very convincing and very good at soliciting names and numbers of others during the various conversations.

"At the least he's a weirdo on the phone," he commented. "I'd prefer to underreact, but today, you don't know."

Julia Heilig will not appeal vote count

Unsuccessful 84th District state representative candidate Julia Heilig, Ubyly, has decided not to follow through with an appeal of the vote recount from her Aug. 4 primary race against incumbent Dick Allen (R-Caro).

Heilig said Tuesday she made the decision after further considering an appeal and discussing the matter with legal counsel.

"A lot of things have happened, (but) I know the election inspectors have done a good job. They've worked hard," she commented, adding she appreciates all those who worked on the recount.

Heilig filed an appeal with the state Board of Canvassers following last week's recount, which resulted in no change in the election's outcome but revealed that 47 votes cast for Allen weren't originally counted in Tuscola County's Arbela Township.

Heilig originally lost to Allen by 90 votes, a margin that increased to 123 votes after the recount.

In Tuscola County, Allen originally was thought to have received 2,956 votes, but the total was increased to 3,003 due to the tabulating error. He lost one vote in the recount for a final tally of 3,002 votes, and Heilig gained one vote, receiving a total of 2,008 votes.

In Huron County, Heilig gained 8 votes in the recount, finishing with 4,156 votes, while Allen lost 5 votes, finishing with 3,284 votes.

2 hurt in crash Friday afternoon

Two people, including a Deford man, sustained minor injuries in a car-tractor collision Friday afternoon in southwestern Novesta Township.

Troopers at the state police post in Caro reported that Gilbert H. Freeman, 25, Deford, was driving a tractor on westbound Deckerville Road, west of Kingston Road, when he attempted to make a left turn and was struck from behind by a westbound car.

The driver of that vehicle was identified as Julie E. Crowton, 23, of Dryden.

Both she and Freeman were transported by Cass City-Mercy Ambulance to Hills and Dales General Hospital, Cass City, where they were treated and then released.

Crowton was speeding when the 1:45 p.m. accident occurred, according to troopers, who cited her for careless driving. She was wearing a seat belt, reports indicate.

Kingston feels loss Work and Learn Center to add 40 beds—in Vassar

Pioneer Work and Learn Center officials have won a state contract for 40 additional beds, but none of them will be located at Kingston Hills Camp.

In fact, despite having won the right to operate at the camp facility after a bitter, 3 1/2-year zoning battle, it appears the now Vassar-based rehabilitation program for male juvenile delinquents won't return to Koylton Township for some time, if ever.

The same is true for thousands of dollars generated by the Pioneer program, a loss some say is having a significant economic impact on the community.

Bill Haines, associate camp director for Pioneer Work and Learn Center, announced the new state contract Friday, saying the 40 beds will be located in a facility to be built adjacent to the new Pioneer center in Vassar. Pioneer, which currently serves 50 youths and employees 50, is in the process of purchasing 10 acres for the new buildings, he said.

Haines guessed the additional beds will mean 35 more full-time jobs and an investment of about $1 million in new construction. The agency has already spent some $1.5 million building its facility in Vassar.

Haines said the decision not to return to Kingston Hills Camp was based on continued opposition to the program by a handful of people in the township.

"We had to make a business decision that was in the best interest of the agency in the long term," he said. "The bottom line is it's still an uncertain environment over there."

"We wish we were there (Kingston)," Haines commented. "We're sad—we're sad that we weren't able to work things out in the community."

Haines wouldn't rule out the possibility of using Kingston Hills some time in the future.

LESS OPTIMISTIC

Koylton Township Trustee Doug Kramer, however, is less optimistic.

"It's like somebody dying; you might as well mourn over it and go on because it's not going to happen," he said. "I don't see any possibility of the program being here."

Kramer charged a few township residents have continued to "pound people in Lansing to death" in an effort to convince them that township officials who support the camp would be voted out of office.

It worked, he lamented, despite the fact that a majority of residents have supported Pioneer, as well as township officials who support the program, at the polls.

Pioneer officials ran a quality program that caused no crime problems in the community, and they followed through with promises to hire and shop locally as much as possible, he remarked. Now, he said, they're doing that in Vassar.

"I'm disappointed, but, hey, we gave it a good shot," Kramer added.

"We didn't lose; We have money in our school system that we would not have had, there are several people in Kingston who drive every day to Vassar to work and (we've) given . . . kids a second opportunity."

Kramer acknowledged, however, that Pioneer's move to Vassar in July has cost the community.

$250,000

Probably few officials would agree more than Kingston School Supt. Jerry

H. Laycock, who estimates the district received $250,000 to $300,000 a year in additional revenue due to the Pioneer operation.

"Certainly it's a severe loss," he said. "It cuts back on a number of our programs (and) we've laid off 5 of our teachers."

A percentage of youths participating in the Pioneer program are categorized as special education students, and all of them are court placed. As such, Kingston Schools received state aid and a half for each youth as well as a host of additional services and categorical funding.

Those monies benefitted all students, "but the camp generated the funds," Laycock pointed out.

BUSINESS

Some businesses also have felt a financial impact.

"Sure, it hurt us. (They were) doing $8,000 to $12,000 a month with us," said Marty Plazinich, who purchased the IGA Store in Kingston a month ago.

Although new to the business community, Plazinich is familiar with the Pioneer program and said he would like to see it return to Koylton Township.

"Most definitely, and not just from a business point of view," he added. "I think they have a super program. I think everybody ought to give these kids a chance."

Another Kingston merchant, John Barden of Barden's Hardware, agreed the Pioneer program had an economic impact on the community.

"We miss them. They were a very, very good customer," he remarked. "It's too bad for Kingston, but we just have to go on without it, that's all."

Others say they won't miss the camp.

Among them is former township zoning board member Russ Mayer, who led the zoning board's fight to shut down the camp due to zoning violations.

Mayer, who resigned after the Township Board voted to allow the camp to reopen, questions the extent of Pioneer's economic impact locally.

"Any economic gain by the camp being here, I think, has been offset by the loss of local support," he said, adding businesses lost customers by supporting the camp.

Hurricane forces Stomacks to return home to Thumb to stay

Hurricane "Andrew" may be fading from the news headlines, but memories of the fear and devastation spawned by this country's costliest natural disaster ever remain vivid for Angel and Brian Stomack.

Angel, a former Cass City resident, still fights back the tears every time she sees a news report depicting the massive destruction of south Florida, where she and her husband, Brian, and their children, Emily, 10, and Joshua, 14, have lived for the past 4 years.

"I don't think we're going to go back," the 1980 Cass City High School graduate remarked Friday at the home of her parents, Karen and Chuck Holm of Cass City. "We lost everything."

"There's nothing to go back to," agreed Brian, who's originally from Minden City.

Interestingly, the Stomacks lived near and know Steve and Anne Ballard, former Cass City residents who lived in Homestead and lost everything in the hurricane.

Brian and Angel said they and their children survived the hurricane in their rented duplex a couple miles north of Homestead, then remained there a week—without electricity and phone service and in fear of looters—before deciding to abandon the life they had made for themselves in Florida.

"The hurricane itself was very frightening," Angel said, "but then, when you look out and see everything you've worked for for 4 years is gone . . ."

"It's hard to describe the feeling," Brian commented. "There's no way to forget that, ever." Looking back, Angel and Brian said they made a very uninformed decision to stay and ride the storm out.

"People would say, 'Stay, you'll be fine,'" Angel recalled, noting she had never experienced a hurricane and couldn't comprehend a storm of Andrew's magnitude. "We decided, we're in the country and we'd be safe," she said. So, they prepared, filling every container they could find with water, and going to convenience stores to stock up on canned goods.

CROWDED

"The (grocery) stores were so crowded with people, that finally the police came," Brian said, adding that when 2 shoppers would exit the store, the police would allow 2 inside.

Brian said he also taped and blanketed windows at home to keep them from shattering, as well as boarding up windows at the feed store he managed.

Despite their preparations, including keeping a radio handy to track the hurricane, panic grew as the storm approached.

Brian recalled waking up at about 3:30 a.m. By that time the electricity was out. "The winds were probably 60 to 70 miles per hour by then, I would guess," he said.

"At about 4:30 the wind picked up and logs began hitting the roof," he continued. "At 5, it really hit."

As the wind continued to intensify, windows began to break, and the family moved to a small hallway, away from the glass. "We covered our heads with blankets, held each other and held on," Brian said.

It's true a hurricane sounds exactly like a freight train, he remarked. "The house shook so bad the tiles fell right off the bathroom walls. Our ears were popping because of the pressure in the house."

SECOND HALF

The winds eased as the eye of the hurricane passed overhead, but the second half of the storm was the worst, according to the couple.

At one point, Angel recalled, "He said, 'I think we're really going to die.'"

The Stomacks were shocked at what they saw afterwards. The house, built of cinder block and reinforced against strong winds, withstood the wind well, but their car was destroyed, as were their appliances, and their home was flooded. Uprooted trees and piles of rubble were strewn everywhere.

"I'll just never forget looking out that back window; just seeing the color of the sky and just everything Please turn to back page.

THUMB NATIVES Brian and Angel Stomack and their children, Emily, 10, and Joshua, 14 (not pictured), will try to make a fresh start in Michigan after surviving hurricane "Andrew," which forced them to abandon their Homestead, Fla., area home. "We're just thankful to be alive," remarked Angel, a 1980 Cass City High School graduate.

Notes from readers: Denise Sutherland called our attention to a typo in a recent reunion story. It said, "The ancestors of Clayton and Anna Crawford met Sunday at..."

Denise thought that would make for a rather spooky get-together. Did they hold a seance? It was, of course, the descendants that met, not the ancestors. That one got right by this proof reader. How many other readers caught it?

Nellie Anthes called to report an incident she thought worthy of recognition. Nellie walks with the aid of a cane and as she was leaving a local drug store, a young man she guessed was about 12 or 13 left ahead of her. He came back to hold the door open for her, then proceeded to help her into her car.

She didn't get the boy's name, but she was sure some mother must be very proud of him.

That's an upbeat anecdote that proves not all young people are inconsiderate slobs. If there's a down side, it's that it was sufficiently unusual to warrant reporting.

C-Tec Cable Systems of Michigan has continued its policy of raising rates at more than double the rate of inflation.

Oct. 1, basic cable charges will go from $19.95 a month to $21.95 a month. That's an increase of 10.02 percent.

In a survey, the company says that its charge of $21.95 is less than the state average of $22.49 per month. But it's more than is charged other users in the Thumb, which is $21.50 per month.

What's more, if you pay by check, be sure that your checking account is in balance. If you happen to bounce a check, the cost is $25, up from $10.

Among the girls playing basketball for Cass City High School these days, the in-thing is black shoes.

There's little doubt that these athletes figure that they have created a new style trend. Really neat.

I hate to be the one that rains on their parade, but.... all it really proves is that what goes around comes around, although sometimes it takes 50 years or so to make the circle.

Today's shoes may not be the same as those that were worn 50 years ago, but they look the same. They are probably better constructed. Certainly they are better advertised. How quickly they would find the trash heap if they were called tennis shoes as they were known in pre-historic times.

Right now you find few adults with black shoes. But athletic shoes are the normal garb for the parents of many of the members of the basketball team. White athletic shoes, not black.

That's the key, of course. If there is one constant among each passing generation, it's that it wants to be different from the preceding one. If the adults adopt black shoes, the kids will change colors. Believe it.

In the same category as shoes as a fashion statement are hair styles. Boys these days, more often than not, opt for butch cuts (or at least that's what we called them when they were the rage for perhaps 15 years following World War II).

I failed to see any trend in styles for the girls. Watching them play Tuesday, a variety of styles were evident, long, short and in between. You don't have to be much past middle age to remember when boys' hair stretched to shoulder length or beyond.

Boy! Did the stuff hit the fan then. Some schools banned athletes from teams because of hair length. Cass City did not, but there was much mumbling, grumbling and once in a while downright rage among adults who figured long hair was a hooligan's badge.

That finally cooled off and some of the younger and more adventurous adults started missing their regular appointments with the barber.

Because of modern mass communication, changes in styles are adopted more rapidly and maybe that's one reason that new styles cause less of a stir than they used to.

Anyway, you don't hear much about attending school in ragged jeans or students (who are able) sporting mustaches and beards. That's good, too. You can't judge a person by what he wears or how he looks, just how he acts.

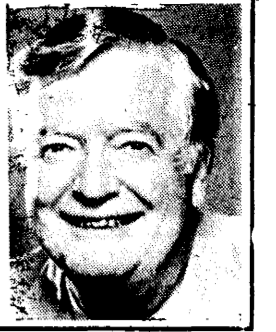

Within reason, of course. While I never thought much of the furor caused by style changes, no matter what they were, I drew the line when long hair was obviously dirty.

That's not stylish, just pig-gish.

"If It Fitz...."

Like a glint

By Jim Fitzgerald

What would President George Bush do if his grandson blinked at the wrong time, thus aborting the glint in his eye?

Would the president put his arm around the young man and say that, although he disagreed with his decision to blink, he would continue to love and support him, even if the grandson developed a tic.

Would Barbara Bush say the aborted glint was no one else's business, even if her grandson, instead of just blinking, went so far as to rub the glint away with his own hand?

These importantly facetious questions, of course, are based on medical evidence that thousands of sane, mature persons all over the world have traditionally looked at each other and said: "I knew you when you were only a glint in your father's eye."

As my valuable contribution to the never-ending abortion debate, I've written previously that some anti-abortionists are so extreme they make a guy feel guilty of murder for breaking a date. I said I expected pro-lifers to propose pro-glint legislation, claiming life begins at perception rather than conception.

I even suggested that the Operation Rescue zealots should throw their bodies between aroused males and attractive females, to prevent the wanton eye contact that could produce glints liable to be blinked.

NEVER MIND THE FACTS

I thought that was the zenith of absurdity until last year, when a Michigan judge said he would appoint a guardian for the embryo in any parental-choice case that he handled. If, as the law allowed, a 17-year-old girl seeking an abortion asked the judge for a waiver of the parental consent requirement, he would refuse because of the testimony of a scientist, given in a Tennessee case, that life begins at conception.

Never mind that, according to the highest court in the land, abortion is legal. Never mind that the girl may have been raped and impregnated by her father. Never mind the terrible trauma the unwanted birth could cause the teenager. For the judge, the most important legal factor was that adoptive parents be found for the embryo.

Excuse me, but in my zeal for excess absurdity, I couldn't help writing: "We don't want no Little Orphan Embryo 'round here. 'Arf, arf,' said Sandy."

Today's re-entry into the land of make-disbelief is prompted by the recent U.S. Department of Health and Human Services ruling that, beginning Sept. 23 at federally funded clinics only doctors can discuss abortion with pregnant women. It will be against the law for nurses to even mention the dreaded possibility of a woman controlling her own body.

Naturally, I can't help wondering what would happen if a sexy girl put a glint in the eye of the son of Dan and Marilyn Quayle? If a public health nurse advised young Quayle to rub the glint away, would an Army firing squad shoot the nurse at dawn?

Even though the vice-president expressed compassion for his son's urge to blink, would Marilyn Quayle insist that the glint be surgically removed and put on ice until it required diapering?

WORTH WORRYING ABOUT

As I've written before, my frivolous exaggerations don't mean I think there's anything funny about abortion. I worry about how close even the earliest abortion comes to killing a human being. But I also worry about how much of a woman is killed when the government forces her to have a baby she doesn't want.

Whatever, abortion is here to stay, legal or not, safe or risky, no matter how absurd the anti-choice ideologues get.

So let's everyone lighten up, like a glint.

Officers for 1993 are Chairman John McLarty, Yale; sharing games and treasurer duties, Susan Trzasko and Carol Fiedler, Port Huron, and secretary Deloris Willerton, Midland.

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

C-Tec Cable Systems of Michigan has continued its policy of raising rates at more than double the rate of inflation.

Oct. 1, basic cable charges will go from $19.95 a month to $21.95 a month. That's an increase of 10.02 percent.

In a survey, the company says that its charge of $21.95 is less than the state average of $22.49 per month. But it's more than is charged other users in the Thumb, which is $21.50 per month.

What's more, if you pay by check, be sure that your checking account is in balance. If you happen to bounce a check, the cost is $25, up from $10.

Walbro Corporation is one of 4 Thumb area firms to be honored for excellence in government contracting at a ceremony slated Sept. 11 at the Thumb Area Consortium/Community Growth Alliance in Marlette.

Others to be honored include Thumb Industries, Inc., of Bad Axe, M. C. Aerospace, Brown City plant, and Off-Shore Driving, Lapeer.

Fred Grasman, Michigan Department of Commerce, will present the honor roll awards at 11 a.m.

You don't like to gamble? Better not be a farmer. According to Jeff Andresen, MSU Extension agricultural meteorologist, there's a 50-50 chance that there will be a frost in the area by Sept. 22.

If the frost comes by the Sept. 22 date, much of the bean crop won't make it.

Visited Grandpa Tony's new outlet on Wilder Road recently. Happy to report that if your taste runs to Italian steak sandwiches like those served at the now closed original restaurant, this is as close as you'll come to them.

There have been several other Tony's outlets visited and, frankly, they just weren't the same as the original.

Idle note: You are a long-time resident if you can remember when "Tony's" sent a member of the family out to serve Italian dishes at a banquet at what was then the high school and is now the Middle School.

Most crops have been delayed by the cool summer, but the mum crop is an exception. Instead of 2 weeks late or so, the mums are 2 weeks early, Jim Bolton, veteran grower, reports.

For that reason, the mums that he donates to the Cass City Rotary Club will be in full bloom when they go on sale Saturday by the club.

The beautiful plants will sell for $3.50 each or 3 for $10. The money earned is used to finance local projects, including the student exchange and the new park track.

TEACHER CONNIE KLINKMAN admires her gift of gratitude received recently after retiring from the Cass City Pre-School program after 16 years of service.

Police investigate theft, vandalism in Cass City

Cass City police investigated incidents of theft and vandalism over the past week.

Stephen R. Wallace, 4693 N. Seeger St., Cass City, reported damage to his vehicle Sunday.

Wallace stated he parked the vehicle on West Street north of Main Street, and when he returned he discovered someone had used a sharp pointed object to scratch the paint in the left rear area of the vehicle.

Another Cass City resident, Mark Havens, 6354 Fourth St., told police someone stole several items from his pickup truck during the evening hours of Sept. 2.

Missing were a cellular phone and case valued at $332.80, a checkbook and 3 credit cards. In addition, Havens told police a 24-inch mountain bike was taken from his yard.

Theft was also reported by Tony A. Butler, 4752 Hill St., Cass City, who reported someone entered his apartment Sept. 1 and took several items from his bedroom closet.

Butler, who told police the individual responsible could have entered the apartment through an unlocked deck door, listed the missing property as a remote control car charger valued at $50, a stereo system valued at $75 and a 13-inch black and white television valued at $25.

S.O.A.R. retirees meet

Retirees of S.O.A.R. held a meeting Sept. 1 at the VFW Hall.

Mrs. Harold Heck chaired the meeting and introduced John Cooper of General Cable Co., who spoke on and explained the retirees' insurance package. A question and answer period followed.

On the sick list were Wana Hallack and Ann Klinkman. The 50-50 winners were Harold Heck and Mary Hendra. Mrs. Harold Heck has donated an afghan to the club for a raffle. A drawing will be held at the November or December meeting. Tickets are available from any member.

Bingo was played and a potluck lunch was served.

Next month's meeting will be Oct. 6, and the speaker will be Walter Salens from Caro. He will speak on liv-

By Jim Fitzgerald

What would President George Bush do if his grandson blinked at the wrong time, thus aborting the glint in his eye?

Would the president put his arm around the young man and say that, although he disagreed with his decision to blink, he would continue to love and support him, even if the grandson developed a tic.

Would Barbara Bush say the aborted glint was no one else's business, even if her grandson, instead of just blinking, went so far as to rub the glint away with his own hand?

These importantly facetious questions, of course, are based on medical evidence that thousands of sane, mature persons all over the world have traditionally looked at each other and said: "I knew you when you were only a glint in your father's eye."

As my valuable contribution to the never-ending abortion debate, I've written previously that some anti-abortionists are so extreme they make a guy feel guilty of murder for breaking a date. I said I expected proliferators to propose pro-glint legislation, claiming life begins at perception rather than conception.

I even suggested that the Operation Rescue zealots should throw their bodies between arousable males and attractive females, to prevent the wanton eye contact that could produce glints liable to be blinked.

NEVER MIND THE FACTS

I thought that was the zenith of absurdity until last year, when a Michigan judge said he would appoint a guardian for the embryo in any parental-choice case that he handled. If, as the law allowed, a 17-year-old girl seeking an abortion asked the judge for a waiver of the parental consent requirement, he would refuse because of the testimony of a scientist, given in a Tennessee case, that life begins at conception.

Never mind that, according to the highest court in the land, abortion is legal. Never mind that the girl may have been raped and impregnated by her father. Never mind the terrible trauma the unwanted birth could cause the teenager. For the judge, the most important legal factor was that adoptive parents be found for the embryo.

Excuse me, but in my zeal for excess absurdity, I couldn't help writing: "We don't want no Little Orphan Embryo 'round here. 'Arf, arf," said Sandy."

Today's re-entry into the land of make-disbelief is prompted by the recent U.S. Department of Health and Human Services ruling that, beginning Sept. 23 at federally funded clinics only doctors can discuss abortion with pregnant women. It will be against the law for nurses to even mention the dreaded possibility of a woman controlling her own body.

Naturally, I can't help wondering what would happen if a sexy girl put a glint in the eye of the son of Dan and Marilyn Quayle? If a public health nurse advised young Quayle to rub the glint away, would an Army firing squad shoot the nurse at dawn?

Even though the vice-president expressed compassion for his son's urge to blink, would Marilyn Quayle insist that the glint be surgically removed and put on ice until it required diapering?

WORTH WORRYING ABOUT

As I've written before, my frivolous exaggerations don't mean I think there's anything funny about abortion. I worry about how close even the earliest abortion comes to killing a human being. But I also worry about how much of a woman is killed when the government forces her to have a baby she doesn't want.

Whatever, abortion is here to stay, legal or not, safe or risky, no matter how absurd the anti-choice ideologues get.

So let's everyone lighten up, like a glint.

State of the art equipment eliminates need for projectionist at Cass Theatre

Folks of all ages pass under the brightly lit marquee into a cozy lobby where the mouthwatering scent of fresh popcorn fills their nostrils.

They're welcomed with a smile, and with ticket stubs and goodies in hand, they make their way down a carpeted aisle and into thickly cushioned seats, waiting for the single big screen to light up.

The scene has been repeated over and over for decades in Cass City.

And while the Cass Theatre has retained its distinctive, small town appearance and flavor over the years, today's features are shown on state of the art projection equipment.

"We've joined the '90s," owner Dick Hendrick remarked with a chuckle, referring to his recent investment in some $12,000 worth of equipment that has automated his projection room.

The new equipment consists of a xenon lighting system and a set of 3 large, circular film platters with the capacity to show up to 4 1/2 hours of film without changing a reel.

And without the need of having a projectionist on hand at all times.

Before, movies were shown on 2 projectors that utilized carbon lighting. "A man had to switch from one machine to the other every half hour" to show a film, which typically comes on 6 reels, Hendrick explained. In addition, he said, someone had to monitor the carbon lighting tubes, which require regular adjustments and have to be replaced often.

In contrast, the xenon lighting tube has a life of about 2,000 hours, and only one projector is needed because an entire double feature can be placed on one film platter for continuous showing.

BETTER QUALITY

"I think we're getting better quality because the xenon (lighting) doesn't fluctuate," Hendrick said. He explained the amount of lighting affects the focusing.

The new equipment has been in operation for about a week and a half, sooner than the local theatre owner had initially planned.

"We had been looking into it for the past couple of years," he said, adding he decided to make the investment sooner when a wholesale company, faced with slower than expected sales, made him an offer he couldn't refuse.

The equipment was reduced to $10,000 from $14,000 to $15,000, according to Hendrick, who said he spent another $480 for a special film splicer. He also had to purchase an extra xenon light tube, which run about $800 each, and the new equipment required installation of a bigger fan in the projection room.

Hendrick acknowledged there will be savings in not having to pay a full-time projectionist, but said that wasn't reason enough to switch machines.

GETTING OLD

"Our equipment was getting old," he said. "It was still working good, but it seemed every time you bought a part, it cost 3 times as much."

"I figure it's a longtime investment and you just hope you're going to make it."

Hendrick said getting parts for the older machines has gotten increasingly difficult or expensive or both. A good example are the old carbon lighting tubes, which have steadily increased in price as demand for them has dropped.

Hendrick, who pointed out more and more theatres are going to xenon light, said a 6-month supply of carbons currently costs about $800. Two years ago, the same supply cost $500.

The prices and equipment of today are a far cry from the rented portable projector and 16-millimeter films Hendrick started out with at age 14.

The area native broke into the theatre business back in the late 1940s. He would set up a portable drive-in in towns such as Argyle, Tyre, Cumber, Gageton and Cass City, and show free movies paid for with advertising purchased by area merchants.

Back then, there would be a 20 or 30-minute intermission, and local businesses would stay open during that period so people could pick up groceries or whatever, Hendrick recalled.

He spent 2 years in the service and then, in 1957, returned to Cass City, where he resumed showing films at what is now Bartnik's at the corner of M-81 and M-53. He also worked as clean-up man and projectionist at the Cass Theatre, which was then part of the Schuckert Theatre chain.

"This was the last theatre they owned," Hendrick recalled. "Mr. Schuckert kept this one till I was ready to take it over."

30 YEARS

Hendrick will celebrate 30 years as owner of the theatre next May.

Through the years, he and his wife, Elaine, have tried to offer the public quality entertainment and a pleasant surrounding.

"We base our business on a quiet, clean theatre," he said. "Every theatre can present a movie, but it's how you present them — that's what brings the people back."

Hendrick maintains the video industry isn't making movie theatres a thing of the past. "Videos haven't hurt the theatres," he added, "because people want to see the movies as they were meant to be on the big screen."

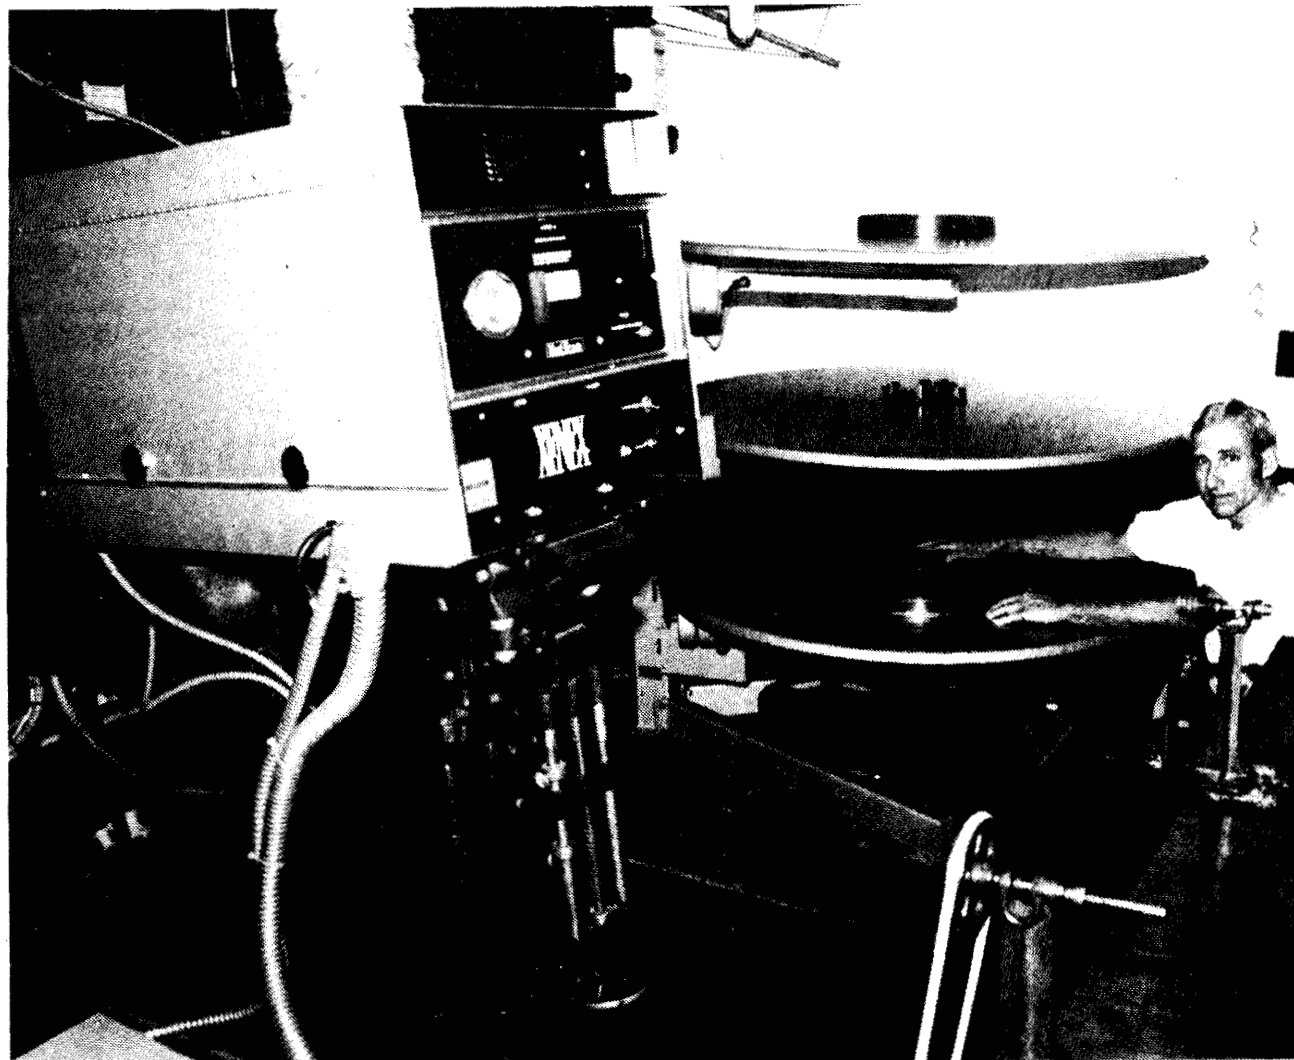

With that philosophy and equipment changes, including an improved speaker system planned at a cost of about $2,000, Hendrick is looking forward to many more years in the theatre business.

But he doesn't expect to become a wealthy man that way.

"Theatres in a small town — unless you own a chain — you're not going to make anything," he commented, adding the Cass Theatre would have been gone long ago if weren't for the full-time job he's held with GTE for nearly 35 years.

But then, it's clear Hendrick gets a great deal more than money out of his theatre.

"I make my living with the phone company," he said, "but this is my love."

AUTOMATION — EMPLOYING a full-time projectionist is a thing of the past for Cass Theatre owner Dick Hendrick, who recently installed a xenon lighting system and film platters capable of showing up to 4 1/2 hours of film automatically. The equipment shuts itself off in the event of a tear in the film or other problem.

THE CASS THEATRE has retained its small town appearance and flavor over the years, but today's features are shown on state of the art projection equipment.

Bulldogs slip by Eagles, 7-6

"It wasn't pretty, but we'll take it."
That's how Coach Arnie Besonen summed up his Bulldog gridders' opening performance Friday, a 7-6 win at Arenac Eastern.

period, halfback Matt Mandich, who led the Bulldogs with 76 yards rushing in 19 carries, capped an 8-play, 62-yard drive in the 2nd period when he scored on a 3-yard dive.
Teammate Brent Fritz

added what proved to be the game-winning point after attempt.

"We need to work on 3 things," says Besonen, "our punt game, blocking stunts and our pass game." The Bulldogs failed to attempt a pass against the Eagles.

Arenac got on the scoreboard late in the 3rd stanza, when Rich Anderson blocked a Mike Tkacz' punt on the one-yard line and recovered it for the hosts' only score.

With only 3 minutes remaining, the Bulldog defense held off the Eagles' final drive.

Arenac drove to the Bulldogs' 5-yard line, where they had 4 tries to punch the ball in, but the Bulldog defense proved equal to the test and recorded their first goal line stand of the early campaign.

Defensively, the 'Dogs were led by Jason Karr and Eric Susalla, who split 18 stops. Karr was credited with one quarterback sack.

Also contributing to the Bulldog defense effort was Mandich, who intercepted 2 passes and recorded 5 tackles.

O-G will travel to Carsonville Port-Sanilac Saturday, where they will be slight favorites against the NCTL Tigers, who boast a powerful backfield in returnees Steve Bopra and Scott Nichol.

vantage before Coach Roller cleared his bench.

Beside Susalla's 15 points, Tkacz and Lori Ondrajka finished in double digits for the winners, each netting a baker's dozen. Ondrajka also collected a team high 7 steals, while Angie Wildman, height notwithstanding, swiped 9 rebounds.

O-G girls mark 3rd win, but slow starts a concern

The Owen-Gage girls' basketball team won its home opener last Tuesday and kept their record unblemished at 3-0.

Despite trouncing visiting AuGres, 56-29, Coach Dean Roller expressed concern on his squad's continued trait of getting off to a slow start.

The Bulldogs didn't score until the 3:49 mark of the opening quarter and led by only 4 tallies heading into the 2nd stanza, 9-5.

"We have to break this pattern or eventually it will hurt us," says Roller.

Eventually will probably come Thursday when the 'Dogs travel to tangle with NCTL favorites Peck.

Jill Susalla, who had a game high 15 points, got the hosts on track in the 2nd period when she poured in 9 markers, to finish with 13 first half points. Susalla, and a stingy Bulldog defense, helped stretch the Bulldogs' lead to 30-11 at the intermission.

Held to only 3 points through the first 16 minutes, high scoring guard Michelle Tkacz put the game on ice for the hosts as she pumped in 10 3rd period points and gave the hosts a 46-16 ad-

Hearing scheduled

Some 200 corn producers have petitioned the Michigan Department of Agriculture, (MDA) requesting establishment of a Michigan Corn Marketing Program.

A hearing to discuss the issue has been set for Sept. 24 at 1:30 p.m. in the Michigan Library and Historical Center in Lansing. The hearing will allow for input on a draft of the "Michigan Corn Marketing Program" that has been developed by a MDA appointed Producer Committee.

For copies of the drafted, proposed program, individuals may request copies from: Michigan Department of Agriculture, Marketing and Market Development Division, P.O. Box 30017, Lansing 48909, or by calling (517) 373-1058.

"Producer involvement in marketing and promotion is very important if our growers are going to establish any value added options," says Dennis Stein, Tuscola County Extension director. Growers, today, are seeing the benefits of product promotion and identification of methods to add value in the market."

Those interested in making comments but cannot attend the hearing date, are encouraged to submit written testimony by Oct. 1 to the MDA to the attention of Katherine Fedder.

40 compete in Labor Day tourney

Roughly 40 golfers competed in the annual members tourney over the Labor Day weekend at Cass City's Rolling Hills Golf Course.

Divided into 3 flights, the top 2 individual scores from Saturday's and Sunday's combined 18-hole rounds advanced into Monday's match play finals.

In the championship flight, Jerry Toner defeated last year's club champion, Dale McIntosh, in 16 holes, while in the 1st flight, Scott in 15 holes. In the club's 2nd flight, Keith Adelberg bested Daryl Iwankovitch in 19 holes of match play.

McIntosh recorded the best 2-day total of 148 on the par 70 course.

Hawks overcome bad breaks to top Caro in grid opener

Laker test next!

Fresh from a satisfying victory over the Caro Tigers in the season's opener Friday at Cass City, the Cass City Red Hawks will find out this Friday if this year's football team is for real when it meets Laker High, the defending Blue Bay League champion and, in recent years, one of the premier teams in the state. The Lakers opened their season with a 17-8 win over Unionville-Sebewaing.

The Hawks defeated the Tigers, 20-18, and were forced to play over a pair of bad breaks to do it. A bad pass from center on the first series of downs gave the visitors a first down on the Cass City 10. Two plays took the ball to inside the one, when the Hawk defense stopped the attack cold and took over the ball. The Tigers got on the scoreboard early in the second quarter on a drive that started on the 50. A pass to Brian Rickwalt was good for 34 yards, and 3 plays later George Lopez went through the center of the Hawk line for 23 yards and a touchdown. A run for extra point failed.

Cass City tied it up with 7:32 left in the half on a 45-yard drive. Brandon Toner picked up 17 yards and, after a penalty, Jason Walther scampered for 11 more. Two plays later Walther broke through the line and went 30 yards to tie the score.

The Tigers forged back in front in the third quarter and it was a pass to Zack Hanson that was a key to keeping the drive alive. It came after the Tigers had been set back 15 yards on a clipping penalty and gave Caro a first on the 10. From there the Tigers scored in 3 plays, with Lopez going over from the 2. Cass City went in front for the first time with 9:42 left in the game. The drive started from about 70 yards out and the Hawks moved steadily down the field. Two passes covered much of the distance. Ben Schott hit John Phillips for 18 yards and Walther for 20 more for a first on the 13. Sophomore Jason Morgan rammed the center for 6 yards and an offside penalty moved it to the 3, from where Morgan slammed over for the score. The key extra points were scored on a pass to Phillips.

It looked as if Cass City was in control when a break let the Tigers surge back into the lead. Schott had dropped back to pass and was blindsided before he could throw. The fumble was picked up by Lopez, who went 24 yards untouched and put Caro in the lead with 4:44 left in the game.

The Hawks came charging back on some bruising runs by Morgan and a key 25-yard scamper by Toner for a first down on the 8. A penalty set the ball back to the 13, from where Morgan ran off tackle, broke 2 tackles to go the distance for the winning marker.

On defense John Gibson showed the way with 9 tackles, 6 unassisted. Walther ran for 58 yards in 4 attempts, a 14.5 average.

Hawks roll to wins in opening hoop games, prepare for Lakers

Jodi Schember whipped in her first 2 shots from the outside and Jenny "Thunder" Storm connected on a pair from inside and it was deja vu for the Cass City Hawks, defending Blue Bay League champions.

Mayville was the opening night victim of the Hawks and it was strictly no contest, as Coach Marty Daniel's charges waltzed to an easy 56-16 win at Cass City High School Tuesday, Sept. 1.

It was the first of 2 victories of the young season for the Hawks. Thursday night Cass City topped Deckerville, 54-42.

There's little doubt that Cass City has a strong team, but just how strong? Part of the answer will come Thursday when the team travels to Lakers, which was touted to be a serious competitor for the hoop crown in pre-season estimates.

was a laugher all the way and gave Daniel a chance to have his entire squad gain valuable playing time.

While Schember and Storm carried the scoring load in the opening quarter with 9 of the team's 11 points, the remainder of the team found the range in the next 3 periods and 8 of the 9 players on the squad shared in the scoring.

The key to the Hawk win was an aggressive defense that kept the Wildcats from easy shots and caused turnovers.

The Hawks bounded in front 11-2 at the end of the first 8 minutes and were in front 24-4 at the intermission. The visitors rallied a little in the third quarter and were outscored by only a 9-5 margin before Cass City scored 23 in the last period to end the one-sided game.

In the last period a couple of players up from last year's junior varsity indicated that they are ready to help the team this year. Jodi LaRoche notched 5 of 12 points in the last quarter and Karla Zinnecker, all 8 of her points in the final last quarter splurge. For the night, Storm was the leading scorer with 16.

DECKERVILLE

It was a laugher against Mayville but it was a different story at Deckerville and the Hawks were forced to come from behind to register a 54-42 decision.

Daniel said that a good inside-outside attack powered the team to victory. The team defense continued to improve, he said, against the Eagles, which have one of the quickest teams we will face all season.

An added plus is that the Hawks won and Schember failed to net a field goal, but handled the Deckerville press with ease. A night when Schember fails to convert any of 9 shots probably will never happen again this season. That last year's leading Hawk scorer will contribute to the offense is a given.

Adding water to beaten eggs, rather than milk, will make for a more tender omelet.

Cass City fell behind in the first quarter, 13-6 and 18-10, before fighting back to tie it at 18-all at the end of the period and LaRoche scored 8 of her 11 points.

Storm, with 7 points, and Darcie Monroe, with 5 points in the second quarter, paced Cass City to a narrow, 32-30, lead at the half.

TINNITUS--
"RINGING EARS"

Ring in the ears is a common symptom which can be very bothersome. It is usually due to hearing loss from aging or exposure to loud noises. Occasionally it can be due to more serious diseases such as nerve tumors, so it should be evaluated, especially if the ringing is mainly on one side. Other causes which can be easily treated are high blood pressure, anemia and side effects of medications.

The benign forms of hearing loss from aging and noise exposure cause a loss of hearing of the higher frequencies. The ringing is often made worse by tension, depression, illness or fatigue and it commonly is most annoying at night when the room is quiet and a person is trying to sleep. There are a number of things that can be done to decrease the ringing. The underlying problem cannot always be cured, but hearing aids can improve hearing and reduce the ringing.

When the room is quiet, "maskers" can produce enough background sound to hide the ringing. The masker is matched to the frequency and loudness of the ringing. These work quite well for the people who use them and many people find that the ringing is gone for several hours after using the device.

One of the newer treatments is biofeedback. By learning biofeedback maneuvers to relax the facial muscles some people can effectively control the ringing. While most cases are mild and do not require treatment, it is wise to have your doctor evaluate the symptoms for any serious causes of ringing.

Neither Bush nor Clinton

rate high with Nancy Lang

Nancy Lang, 70, pert, vivacious and looking much younger than her years, has been a member of the community for just 4 months following her purchase of one of the Northwood Lakes condos in Cass City.

Asked if she believed either candidate for president when they say that they would provide more services and cut the taxes of the middle class, she snorted, no, and what's more, I don't think much of either of them. (President George Bush or Gov. Bill Clinton.)

However, she feels that Bush is more likely to not add more taxes than Clinton. It is probably a natural reaction for Lang as she points out that she is a registered republican and sometimes votes a straight GOP ticket.

While she is disenchanted with politics, she is enchanted with her new home in the village. This is a lovely town, she points out, and the air is cleaner than it was in my home in California. I'm breathing better, she adds.

Lang is a widow with 2 children. She moved to Cass City because her son, Michael, 43, lives in Elkton where he is a teacher. She also has a daughter, Melanie Hampton, 41, who lives in California.

Sixty attend Fenner-Teskey reunion Aug. 29

About 60 relatives and friends of the Fenner-Teskey families met at the Wehrman Farm for the annual reunion, Aug. 29.

The oldest member present was Phebe Fenner Gehrls of Fairgrove. There were 3 new babies: Alan Herbert Marquardt, born March 28, 1992, the son of Art and Anne (Dipzinski) Marquardt; Molly Elizabeth Gehrls, born July 6, 1992, the daughter of Tom and Wanda Gehrls, and Justin Paul Ferguson, born Aug. 13, 1992, the son of Paul and Dawn Ferguson.

Art, Anne and Alan Marquardt from New Berlin, Wis., Wyo and Ruth Fenner from Wauseon, Ohio, Ele Baxter from Augusta, Mich., and Kristen Simon of Kalamazoo came the farthest.

Others came from Lake Orion, Rochester, Lapeer, Metamora, Dewitt, Essexville, Munger, Bay City, Kawkawlin, Uby, Gagetown, Caro, Akron, Fairgrove and Reese.

The Fenner family has been meeting in a reunion since 1902, while the Teskey family has been meeting since the 1930's. The families have met jointly since 1959.

This year the Wehrman family farm home was 100 years old. A decorated cake in the likeness of the house was served. This year also marks the 111th year for the family centennial farm as well as the 90th year for the barn.

The next reunion is scheduled for Aug. 28, 1993 at the Wehrman farm.

Pat Boldizar keys relief effort for victims of hurricane

A drive in Cass City to help the victims of "Andrew", the hurricane that devastated South Florida, proved last week that busy people can always find time in crowded schedules to lend a helping hand. It also provided more proof that Cass City and the surrounding area are full of caring, compassionate people.

drive was Pat Boldizar of Cass City who, in addition to attending Saginaw Valley with an extra heavy 18-credit schedule, is also a homemaker with 3 children, 2 at home.

The drive was organized, promoted and successfully concluded in about a day, Boldizar said.

It was held under the auspices of the Salvation

Army and that required a bit of doing that might have discouraged most persons. Boldizar first contacted the Red Cross with the plan and was informed that the organization had all the help it needed with the exception of cash.

She was informed that the Salvation Army might be able to help and Skip Overly, the director for the eastern half of the Lower Peninsula, agreed to the plan. Mike Weaver, Cass City, Thumb coordinator for the Army, was contacted. Boldizar got busy and the campaign was announced over channel 12 and all area radio stations.

The word got out quickly and 2 truck loads of clothing, pots and pans and other items were taken to the Boldizar garage and later picked up by Army trucks. The great thing about this, Boldizar pointed out, is that the items given were very good, no junk at all. Lots of donors evidently went out and purchased items especially for this campaign, she pointed out. All together there were perhaps 100 donors. Boldizar said that Holly Althaver and Geraldine Prieskorn were especially helpful. Members of the Novesta Church of Christ were great, she adds.

In addition to the merchandise the campaign netted a $20 cash donation by a resident who wanted to remain anonymous.

The gifts are expected to become part of a shipment going to Florida, Sept. 11, Boldizar said.

CASS CITY'S PAT BOLDIZAR spearheaded a drive that nearly filled a Salvation Army truck with aid, donated by area residents, for the victims of hurricane Andrew.

Work and Learn Center expanding agreed and added the camp's existence adversely affected property values in the township.

Papke, who lives about a half-mile south of the camp, and his neighbor, Walter Reid, both said they've tried to sell their homes, but that potential buyers walked away when they heard about the camp.

Both indicated they simply don't want to have Pioneer Work and Learn Center for a neighbor.

There remains a sizable opposition to the camp in the township, according to Mayer, who said victories for the camp at the polls have been the result of extensive voter recruitment.

"We still have a lot of people" against the camp, he added, "and the next election's going to tell us."

As for the future of Kingston Hills Camp, owner James Conley said he isn't at all sure what's going to happen.

The camp, he noted, "is closed right now and there's nothing on the docket." He explained the cost of defending the Pioneer program in Koylton Township has left the facility in debt.

Even so, Conley maintains he would have followed through with his promise to reimburse the township $70,000 in legal expenses had Pioneer returned to the township.

As it stands, he said, the township has lost that money along with 60 jobs and $20,000 a month spent by the camp in town, all because of a few people who couldn't be convinced that the program was an asset to the community, both economically and in its role as a model for the future of youth rehabilitation in Michigan.

"I always felt logic would come to pass," he said, "and the people of Vassar are glad it didn't."

Baptists start Awana program

Officials at the First Baptist Church in Cass City announced the start of this year's Awana children's program.

"Many children all across the community enjoy games, team competition, weekly prizes, Bible study and much more," said the Rev. Jim Howard, assistant pastor. "Since the resumption of these clubs in 1990, literally hundreds of children have enjoyed this exciting program."

The program's third year will begin Sept. 16 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Children ages 3 through the eighth grade are invited to attend and enjoy a club designed especially for them.

Those ages 3 to 5 will take part in Cubbies and children in grades K-2 will be Sparks. Third and fourth grade boys are Pals and the girls are Chums, while fifth and sixth grade girls are Guards and the boys are Pioneers. A new club started in 1991 and continuing this year for seventh and eighth grade guys and gals is the Junior Varsity.

Weekly Awana club meetings include an opening flag ceremony and a game time. Handbook time allows personal club leader-member interaction as the young people achieve in Bible study/memorization and crafts. Council time includes songs, announcements, awards and Bible lessons.

"The Awana clubs were a tremendous blessing in past years and we look forward to working with the young people of our community again this year," Howard said.

Additional information and transportation are available by contacting Howard at 872-3155.

New books at the library

SECOND SON by Stephen Stark (fiction). Son Jack says of his father Addie, "After everything that's happened between us, all the unswept broken glass of our relationship - it surprises me that either of us wants to be with the other. And yet we do. It's like a family game of chicken, without knives or cars or trains - love is the weapon, or trust, and we're the 2 cars that fly toward one another at breakneck speed." Jack's mother and older brother are recently deceased; this devastation adds strain - and makes their connection even more problematic than the normal, everyday misunderstandings and rivalry. They reach out desperately for relationships with the opposite sex, and only after trauma in that direction do Jack and his father reestablish their closeness.

PENNIES ON A DEAD WOMAN'S EYES by Marcia Muller (mystery). In 1956, the wife of a think-tank member was convicted of hacking a society girl to death and placing 2 rare lead coins on her eyelids. She pleaded innocent but was convicted, largely on the testimony of her 10-year-old daughter. More than 3 decades later, with the woman now free, Private Eye McCone is asked to reinvestigate the case and present any newfound evidence at a mock trial. What she finds is a lonely old woman frightened by crank phone calls and graffiti, a number of now-powerful men, and tales of casual sex, abortion, and multiple lovers.

COLONY by Anne Rivers Siddons (fiction). Muskrattish Maude Gascoigne, raised in the swamps, discovers the outer world on the fateful night her older brother brings home a Princeton buddy, Bostonian Peter Chambliss, to escort her to the traditional St. Cecilia's coming-out ball in Charleston. Instant and deep, her love for Peter catapults her into the highly structured world of the summing place called "Retreat." The saga of the 3 generations of Chamblisses ends in Maude's desperate struggle to protect and pass the legacy on to her granddaughter before the place is destroyed.

DID YOU KNOW...

As little as one gallon of gas can potentially contaminate up to 750,000 gallons of our drinking water.

FACT: Gas is not only a problem in water, but the lead released into the air from leaded gas and our cars account for 450,000 tons in our air.

DID YOU KNOW...

Up to 20% of the drivers use leaded gas for cars that specify unleaded gas only.

FACT: This not only ruins your car but renders anti-smog equipment ineffective, creating more pollution.

There are reasons for the plastic hoods on gas pumps. They prevent the escaping of dangerous vapors into our atmosphere. Gasoline also contains butane. This butane is a culprit in the creation of smog. The plastic hoods on gas pumps aid in forcing the hazardous fumes back into the tank. Much attention is required by the gas consumer in pumping his own gas. Push the nozzle all the way in with the hood completely covering the tank opening.

It is also important to know that removal of or tampering with any pollution controlling devices on your car is a federal offense and can cost you $2,500.

THIS MESSAGE HAS BEEN BROUGHT TO YOU BY AN ENVIRONMENTALLY CONSCIOUS MERCHANT...

"We use pollution controlling pump hoods on our gas pump nozzles."

being gone," Angel recalled. "There wasn't a leaf on a tree."

As time passed, those who remained in the neighborhood got together, trading food and helping each other out. One neighbor drove 13 hours round trip to buy ice, water and batteries, which he brought back and sold at cost to the others, Angel said.

"You had to stick together. It was like a camp," she explained, adding she became the camp cook.

LOOTERS

When night came, candles were the only light. Brian said he and his neighbors all carried guns to protect their homes from looters. "Every subdivision had great big signs: All looters will be shot — those that don't die will be prosecuted," he added.

After a couple days, the couple went in search of a store to buy some supplies. They also got a better look at the widespread damage. They found that both of their work places had been de-

Immunization clinic set

The Tuscola County Health Department will be holding a free, walk-in immunization clinic Sept. 23. The hours of the clinic are 8:30 to 11:15 a.m. and 12:30 to 3 p.m.

Please bring your child's immunization record with you. If an adult, other than the parent or legal guardian, will be bringing in your child, a health department consent form must be signed by the parent or legal guardian.

If you would like to attend on a different clinic date, please feel free to call 673-8114 to schedule an appointment.

The idea of staying became more intolerable by the day, Brian indicated, noting they had lost their jobs, there were no banks open — no way to buy food or ice — and there were no schools.

The days were very hot, and the stench of garbage "was like everyone in Miami opened up a refrigerator full of rotten food," Angel said.

So, the couple decided to call their parents. Angel's brother-in-law and stepfather drove down, rented a trailer and brought them back with what clothing they could salvage.

The family is staying at the home of Brian's parents, Clarence and Theresa Stomack, in Minden City. For now, finding employment is a top priority.

Although difficult, the couple indicated starting over will be easier than erasing the memories of hurricane "Andrew."

Angel still stares in disbelief when she recounts the past couple weeks. "It's unimaginable," she said. "It'll take years to forget, if you could ever really forget."

"We're just thankful to be alive."
