36 cents per month

Set costs for new 911 system

Tuscola County Sheriff Tom Kern this week revealed the cost that will be assessed when the county converts to the 911 phone system for emergency help. In addition, it was announced that Millington is already on line with the system because the exchange was originally included in the Genesee County system, Undersheriff Jim Fyvie, who coordinated the effort, said. A monthly cost per telephone in the county for the service has been determined and will be less than the original estimate of a maximum of 84 cents per telephone.

The charge will be 36 cents per month per phone, including set up costs of 15 cents per month for the first 5 years. After that the cost will be 21 cents, Fyvie said.

The second exchange to come on line is expected to be the Fostoria exchange (795), a division of the Millington system. It is expected to be operational by the end of this month.

Fyvie said that having part of the county on-line has a double benefit. It helps the citizens in that area, he points out, and also enables our operators to become acquainted with the system with a lower volume of calls.

That way, when the entire system becomes operative, dispatchers will be better trained to give assistance.

The entire county is expected to be on the system in late March 1993.

Walbro sales, profits up

L.E. Althaver, chairman, president and chief executive officer, Walbro Corporation, reported sales of $60,360,000 for the third quarter ended September 30 compared with $48,493,000 for the same period in 1991.

Net income for the quarter was $3,308,000 compared with $1,558,000 for the third quarter of 1991.

Fully diluted net income per share for the third quarter of 1992 was $.40, based on an average of 8,554,840 shares outstanding. This compares with fully diluted net income per share of $.28 for the third quarter of 1991, based on 6,410,123 fully diluted shares outstanding.

"Demand for Walbro's fuel system products remained strong in each of the company's major markets during the quarter, resulting in new third quarter highs for both sales and income," Althaver said in announcing the results.

"Shipments of Walbro's fuel pumps, fuel modules and fuel rails for automotive original equipment applications were quite high during the quarter, despite continuing slackness in auto sales and shutdowns of customer plants for vacations and new model changeovers," according to Althaver.

"Sales of diaphragm carburetors for small engine applications were high in the third quarter, as chain saw manufacturers boosted production to satisfy unusually high demand related to post-hurricane clean-up," he

Weight room remains locked

School adds alarm system in bus garage

In the quietest, quickest meeting in recent years, the Cass City School Board completed some routine business Monday night at the school and quit for the evening 45 minutes later.

The board did settle the issue of whether or not to open the weight room with an instructor in the weight room area. Trustee Danny Ulfig had asked at the September meeting if a way could be found to give students more access to the room. Supt. Ken Micklash read a letter concerning liability if a supervisor is not present that said that the school would be vulnerable if it allowed students to use the facility not supervised.

Principal Don Schelke said that he had surveyed the 3 other schools in the Blue Bay conference and all had a "locked door" policy.

The weight room is used daily in physical education and after school by the football team. It was pointed out that after the football season ends and wrestling starts, the room will be used even more.

Dorland Kuntz, director, reported the activities of the community education department. He told the board that there are 61 students enrolled in the high school completion program. The school will be paid for 37 full-time equivalent students, up slightly from last year. Many adult education students take courses part-time and the state will pay for the number of credits earned so that 61 students earn the amount 37 full-time students would be paid in state aid to the district.

Trustee Marilyn Peters asked if the increasing number of 16 or 17-year-olds taking the completion courses after dropping out of high school posed a problem when mixed with adults returning to the classroom after many years. Kuntz said that it did pose a problem and it is handled by informing the students that they conform to the class standards or are asked to leave.

MEETINGS SET

For the past several years, the school has hosted a meeting with members of the community. This year's session was set at the high school Thursday, Jan. 28.

The fall Tuscola School Board Association meeting will be held Wednesday, Nov. 4, starting at 6:30 p.m. at Unionville-Sebewaing Area High School.

The board set dates in November to meet in a round-table discussion with various employee groups at the school.

ALARM SYSTEM

The school purchased an alarm system for the bus garage. Two bids were received. Stanley Alarm System was low at a cost of $570. However, the system will be monitored by Ace Alarm System for $12 a month. Systems at 3 buildings are now monitored by Ace and the Middle School system, which was monitored by Stanley, will be switched to Ace, which is slightly cheaper and has the advantage of having one company responsible for all the buildings.

After the regular meeting, the board informally discussed school affairs. Trustee Fred Matthews questioned why school teachers' salaries were rising 5 percent while inflation was less than 3 percent. Micklash said that the school has to be in line with what other districts do and that boards have little power in negotiations.

Several members of the board voiced objections to the 2 tax reduction proposals, A and C, as being detrimental to schools.

Unique Cass City organization

Gavel Club celebrates 50 years of community service

If asked, chances are good a number of area residents wouldn't know what the Cass City Gavel Club is all about.

But it's likely most have enjoyed the fruits of the local service club's labors, whether it be a visit to the village recreational park, involvement in local scouting programs or participation in one of the club's special events.

Established in the early 1940s, the Gavel Club is still going strong, with plans to mark 50 years of service to the community this year.

According to lifetime Gavel Club member Ed Fritz, the club was established at a time when there were few such organizations and even fewer membership openings.

"Some of us fellows couldn't get into Rotary because it was one profession, one man, in those days," he said. "So, we got to meeting together and we decided to form this club."

"I enjoy it. It's something to do a couple times a month," he added. "As I got older, it was nice to be with the younger guys."

Community improvement has always been among the Gavel Club's objectives, but public speaking was the emphasis early on, according to member Don Schelke.

The Cass City Middle School principal is in the process of putting together a brochure outlining the history of the club, which meets twice a month, August through May, at the Charmont.

A look back into the club's minutes revealed formal debates played a big role in the early years. In fact, Schelke said, "When they first met before they put the bylaws in, they called it the speech club."

Fritz, a retired dentist, remembers that time. Spirited debates were followed by critiques of each speaker's presentation, he recalled.

VERY FORMAL

"Primarily, it was supposed to make us more adept at public speaking. That was one of our first aims," he said. "It was very formal."

"We still do that," Schelke pointed out, noting each member takes a turn at presenting a program at the club's bimonthly meetings.

"Another area that's really important in the Gavel Club is scouting. We are the financial backers of the Cub Scouts and Girl Scouts," he noted.

Perhaps the biggest project area for the club over the years has been Cass City Recreational Park. The Gavel Club's "playground project" back in the 1950s included building baseball and softball fields and "one of the best cinder tracks in the state," Schelke said.

"We had one of the first lighted football fields in the Thumb," Fritz commented. The club also built a press box and its replacement in 1987, as well as the concession stand, high jump area and dugouts on the baseball field.

In more recent years, the club has focused on maintaining and improving existing facilities. Projects have included a pledge of $15,000 towards Cass City's new state of the art track.

CREDIT SHARED

Schelke, who joined the Gavel Club in the late-1970s, said the Gavel Club has worked with the Rotary Club on a number of projects, including the original tennis courts.

"Obviously it was not just the Gavel Club," he said. "Those clubs (Rotary and Lions) deserve a lot of credit, too."

Other activities over the years have included erecting a servicemen's board in town during World War II, sending students to Interlochen and even offering student loans in the 1940s and 50s.

Raising dollars to pay for the various projects has taken many forms, from raffles to Christmas tree sales.

"In the early years, fund raising was done by such things as dances and box socials, (and) we made Christmas toys and sold them during the war," he said. "Another thing we did is sponsor theatrical presentations. We would raise money by bringing in plays and (at the same time) provide free matinees to students."

The club has also sponsored a popular ox roast and athletic contests, including the Gavel Club Relays, at one time "the" track meet in the Thumb. Today, Schelke said the club hosts one of the best golf tournaments in the area.

Can't beat the price at Fred Hicks' "zoo"

When it comes to personal-ity, deer are a lot like people.

Just ask Fred Hicks. "Some you'd do anything for, and some of them you can't wait to get rid of," the Deford area resident says.

Hicks ought to know; for the past 4 years he's spent a lot of time getting to know deer at his Crawford Road farm, where he breeds and raises North American whitetails.

This year he's added 4 purebred registered Rocky Mountain Elk to his wildlife collection, which includes about 35 deer, a dozen of which are tame.

"It started out as a onesy, twosy hobby, and it's just kind of gotten out of hand," he remarked.

An avid hunter who works as a salesman for Marshall Distributing in Cass City, Hicks said his interest in raising whitetails was sparked by a friend from Davison who was already into the hobby.

"I just decided it would be fun to have a few around," he added.

In order to keep deer, Hicks had to apply to the Department of Natural Resources for a special permit. The license requires breeders to keep deer in an enclosure, surrounded by a minimum 10-foot fence, that meets certain size specifications (so many square feet per deer). A permit is issued after the facility passes an inspection.

Hicks explained the reasoning behind licensing "is so that you obtain your breeding stock legally."

He and his friend have captured a number of deer from areas such as Selfridge Air National Guard Base in Mount Clemens and the Ford Proving Grounds in Dearborn, where whitetails jump fences and become a nuisance or present a risk to people or property.

Using all-terrain vehicles, the pair drive deer into a half-mile piece of netting, then load the animals into a trailer for transport. The state charges $250 for each deer taken.

ORIGINAL STOCK

"That's where we've gotten a lot of our original stock from," Hicks noted. "Then I've bought some from other breeders as well."

Prices vary, but a whitetail doe sells for about $400, while a "run of the mill" buck will cost $100 a point, according to the former dairy farmer, who indicated that figure is cheap compared to what one can expect to pay for a buck with a trophy rack of 10 or more typical points.

Elk are even more expensive, with a good cow running between $5,000 and $6,000.

Hicks tries to sell enough deer to pay for the animals' upkeep. Some does and fawns are sold to other breeders, and a few bucks go to hunting preserves.

With close to 400 deer breeders in Michigan, he commented, "It's definitely not a hobby that you'd look at as a money-maker."

"My goal... is to raise a better generation, genetically, of deer. I'm not out to see how many deer I can raise, but I want to have quality animals. It's a challenge trying to mate up the right deer to get the (traits) you want."

Depending on individual goals, breeders strive to build any of a number of characteristics into their herds. Hicks said he's working to increase the body and antler size of his bucks.

The hobby has been a lot of fun for the area resident and his wife, Carol, their kids, Brian, 15, and Kristy, 12, and his parents, Gerald and Elsie, who live next door.

RESPONSIBILITY

But raising deer is also a big responsibility.

Hicks said it's not a lot different than raising livestock. As with any other animal, breeders must pay attention to proper care; nutrition, medical attention when necessary and problems related to inbreeding.

And, he continued, "You've got to have a plan. You've got to manage them or else you'll be overrun with them."

Safety is another consideration. For example, a 3 or 4-year-old buck can't be trusted in the fall, Hicks pointed out.

"The tamer they are, the worse they are because they have no fear of you. They're unpredictable and real aggressive. They could get you in a world of hurt if you go in that pen and all of a sudden you have a 180-pound buck on top of you."

As a whole, "Deer are not awfully expensive to keep — it would cost around 50 cents a deer per day to feed them. But they have their problems, too, just like any other animal," Hicks remarked.

Still, he added, "I'm in it for the long haul. It's like anything else; if you're not prepared to take some losses, then stay out of it."

While Hicks continues to work towards an improved deer herd, his farm has practically become a tourist attraction.

"I started bottle feeding some fawns and bought some tame ones just so people could come and see them," he said, adding fawns are the big draw in the spring, while fall brings hunters in for a close look at the bucks.

Visitors range from Boy Scout troops to wildlife enthusiasts.

"There are 4 or 5 carloads of people every weekend. We could just about put parking meters out on the road," Hicks joked. "But we've encouraged people to come as long as they behave themselves."

"It isn't much of a zoo," he added, "but you can't beat the price."

Hatchets win BBC cross-country meet

Bad Axe took the Blue Bay Conference cross-country titles in both boys' and girls' competition at the league meet held Tuesday, Oct. 13, at Cass City.

The Hatchets finished with 30 points. Marlette was second with 44 points and Lakers, third with 2 points. Cass City finished last with 78 points.

The season's record for the teams were: Bad Axe, 12-0; Marlette, 7-5; Lakers, 4-8, and Cass City, 1-11.

Individual honors in the Blue Bay League meet Oct. 13 were taken by Bob Miller of Bad Axe with a time of 17:09.66 and by Sarah Krebs of the Lakers with a time of 20:37.49.

Cass City's Jennifer Romstad finished sixth with a time of 23:32.89 and Joe Luana, 11th, in 19:06.81, to pace Hawk runners.

The first 5 places in the boys' competition were: Miller, Chris Stoick, Marlette, 17:57.99; Jason Chappel, Marlette, 17:59.23; Chuck Van Erp, Bad Axe, 18:11.76; Shawn Diebel, Lakers, 18:34.61.

Cass City's boys' results were: Jay Daniel, 19:42.06; Ron Hudson, 19:54.18; Ryan King, 20:05.53; Ben Hobbs, 21:08.19; Ed Nizzola, 21:20.85; Jeremy Markel, 23:29.95.

The first 5 among the girls were: Krebs, Stacy Van Erp, 21:26.18, Lindsay Boynton, 23:17.75, Jodie Erard, 23:22.88, all of Bad Axe; Melanie Smith, Lakers, 23:32.47.

Cass City girls' results: Mandy Nizzola, 27:30.07; Jeanie Clor, 29:07.98, and Kristy Gnagey, 31:07.60.

THE BEST FINISH by a Cass City runner in the Blue Bay Conference cross-country league meet held in Cass City was by Jennifer Romstad, who finished 6th among the girls.

Charity stripe keys Red Hawk victory at Lakers, 53-48

Cass City's last realistic chance for a share of the Blue Bay League title is on the line Thursday when the Hawks travel to Marlette to face the Raiders, the only team to beat Cass City this year and they have done it twice.

The Hawks retained their outside chance of a share of the title with a hard earned win at Elkland-Pigeon-Bay Port Thursday, 53-48.

The victory was won on the four line, where Cass City did a complete turnaround from the week before against Marlette when they were 0-6. The team made a gaudy 15 of 18 against the Lakers.

Cass City used an early scoring spurge, led by Jenny Storm with 10 points and Jodi Schember with 6 points, to jump into a first quarter lead, 22-16, and then held on the rest of the way to register the team's third win of the year over the Lakers.

Despite the strong early start, it was far from easy. The Lakers bounded back with a 12-7 margin in the second quarter and at one time in the third period took the lead briefly, 33-29.

Cass City answered the challenge with some of the best defense of the game, to lead after three quarters, 43-34.

The Lakers' Kim Sturm did her best to propel her team to a win with a fine offense last period with 8 points, but it wasn't enough.

Although Cass City was held to just a 3-point hoop by Schember, accuracy from the free throw line kept Cass City in control. Kelli VanVliet, who coach Marty Daniel said played her best game since moving to the varsity, made 4 for 4 in clutch time to help ice the win.

Daniel also said that the all-around play of VanVliet, Karla Zinnecker, Heather Kelley and Amie White were keys to the win.

Cass City will need continued improved play from these team members as it appears as if Jennifer Freundt may be lost for the season. The senior co-captain has an injured knee that required arthroscopic surgery.

Schember, with 22 points, and Storm, with 15, led Cass City while Sturm netted 17 for the Lakers.

JV LOSES

The Cass City Junior Varsity lost a close game to the Lakers, 31-29. Coaches say that the team, which has been struggling, is playing better as the season progresses. The girls have been working hard on their skills, says the coach and it is starting to pay off. Lisa Wright, Lisa Burns, Leana Edwards, Jamie Caister and Cori Britt have shown improvement.

CASS CITY: Schember 6-2 (4-4) 22; VanVliet 1-0 (5-6) 7; Monroe 1-0 (0-0) 2; Storm 6-0 (3-4) 15; White 1-0 (0-0) 2; Zinnecker 1-0 (0-0) 2; LaRoche 0-0 (1-2) 1. TOTALS: 16-2 (15-18) 53. LAKERS: Osenoski 1-0 (0-0) 2; Bollenbacher 3-2 (0-0) 12; Smith 1-1 (0-0) 5; Sherwood 4-0 (0-0) 8; Sturm 6-0 (5-7) 17; Jaworski 2-0 (0-0) 4. Totals: 17-3 (5-7) 48.

Marlette next in final league game

Red Hawk ground attack leads way to win at Bad Axe Friday

It is certain now that the Cass City Red Hawks will end up second in the 4-team Blue Bay Conference behind the Lakers, which have clinched another title.

The Hawks play Marlette this Friday in the final conference game of the season and will be heavy favorites to top the Red Raiders for the second time this year.

The Hawks took a stranglehold on second place last Friday with a 22-6 decision at Bad Axe.

The Hawks scored early and late to take the game. It was all Cass City in the first period, but the Hatchets were tough down deep to thwart an excellent Cass City scoring opportunity.

Cass City marched steadily down the field for a first down on the Bad Axe 9-yard-line. But 4 running plays ended a yard and a half short of the goal.

The game was played in exceedingly windy, cold weather. Intermittent freezing rain made handling the ball difficult.

As a result, Cass City went to the air just twice all night.

The first time with gratifying results. The Hawks faced a third and long yardage on the Bad Axe 30 when Ben Schott tossed a perfect pass over the center to John Phillips, who took it on the 12 and raced into the end zone.

The Hawks converted the extra points on the second try. The Hatchets stopped the first attempt and were detected holding, and on the next try Jason Morgan smashed over.

The second pass attempted by Schott didn't fare as well. Trying to score again before the half as time was running out, Schott's pass was intercepted.

After that Coach Don Markel had his charges stay strictly on the ground.

Those 2 extra points assumed added importance in the third quarter as Bad Axe scored at the 6:57 mark when James Potestivo rammed over from a yard out. The extra point try kick was missed.

The Hawks made it 10 to 6 a little over 2 minutes later when the defensive line rose up to sack Josh Hicks in the end zone.

Cass City put the game out of reach with 6:41 left in the game when Brandon Toner went 13 yards to score. Jason Walther scored the final touchdown of the night when he capped a drive with a one-yard run from a yard out.

Morgan and Toner shared most of the ball carrying duties. Morgan averaged 4.9 yards per carry while netting 113 yards on 23 attempts. Toner averaged 3.1 yards with 55 yards in 18 attempts.

Greg LeValley, with 16 tackles, 4 unassisted, and Al Prosowski, with 12 tackles, 8 unassisted, were bulwarks on defense.

JV WINS

Cass City's Junior Varsity defeated the Bad Axe JV, 14-8, to up the season's record to 3 wins and 4 losses.

St. Agatha ladies meet

St. Agatha's Women's Society met Oct. 13 with 30 ladies attending.

Helen Stock, president, opened the meeting. Cry Mosack gave a report on the bowl-a-thon that took place at the Charmont. Scheduled is a soup supper Nov. 14, after the 4 p.m. mass.

The ladies are getting ready for the Christmas breakfast and raffle Dec. 13 at noon.

Bill allows hunters to help the hungry

Hunters can help the hungry again as a result of a bill sponsored by Senators John Pridnia (R-Hubbard Lake) and Chris Dingell (D-Trenon). The bill, which the legislature approved last year, allows wild game donations to charitable organizations. Last year's efforts raised 16,000 pounds of meat for soup kitchens, food pantries and Salvation Army centers. The Michigan Sportsmen Against Hunger, sponsored by Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC), the Salvation Army and Safari Club International, set 40,000 pounds of meat as this year's goal. "I'm glad to see the tradition is continued this year," Pridnia said. "It's great to see the Michigan Sportsmen Against Hunger have set their sights high. If each person who hunts donates just a portion of their game, they should do well and help feed the hungry in Michigan." The goal of the program is to feed Michigan's hungry with a healthy, available and economical food source. Hunters can donate venison, wild turkey, boar or any game meat to local Salvation Army centers across the state. In order to be accepted, the meat must be processed and packaged into either 2- or 5-pound parcels of ground meat. Some processors may donate their services if the whole animal is donated. For more information, call the Michigan Sportsmen Against Hunger Hotline at (313) 278-FOOD or the MUCC at (517) 371-1041.

CHRIS KISCHNICK
 Candidate for Register of Deeds
Answers the Questions of Tuscola County Voters
WHAT IS YOUR BACKGROUND?
 I graduated from Vassar High School in 1979. I married Dave Kischnick in 1980 and we now have two children, Wendy and Danny. I have worked at various jobs including cashier, baker, shop worker and quality control management. While I was working as quality control, I began my studies at Great Lakes Junior College. I enrolled in the Paralegal, legal Assistant curriculum. After I had been going to school for a few months, I then inquired about their work study program and was sent to the office of Attorney George Holmes for an interview. I began working for Mr. Holmes on a part-time basis while attending school. My duties included filing, dictation of legal pleadings and letters, answering the telephone, and doing various errands in town including filing and obtaining pleadings and documents at the courthouse. I began my legal training right here in Tuscola County. I then moved on to a full time position at my current job with the law firm of Learman, Peters, Sarow & McQuillan in Bay City. I graduated from Great Lakes in June, 1992, while working for this firm. I graduated Summa Cum Laude even though I worked forty hours each week and attended college almost continuously full time as well. This in turn taught me valuable time management skills. The firm is wishing me the best of luck in furthering my career as candidate for Register of Deeds, but has also expressed regret in the possibility of my leaving the firm. I believe my working background and legal training and experience qualify me to be your next Register of Deeds.

Bach benefit
Concert artists to perform in Cass City November 1
 William Preucil Jr., long-time friend and Concert Master of the Village Bach Festival, will perform a solo recital Sunday, Nov. 1, at 3:00 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church in Cass City. The recital will be followed by a buffet supper. Taking time from his busy schedule on the international music scene as first violinist of the Cleveland Quartet, one of the premier string quartets of our time, Preucil once again appears in benefit performance with his accompanist, Arthur Rowe. Last year's audience was delighted with the glories of the seventeenth century Stradivarius played by Preucil and the nuances of the grand piano accompaniment of Rowe. Longtime associates from Indiana University School of Music, the 2 musicians enjoy the personal kind of performance in a smaller hall, such as the Presbyterian Church. "We are deeply indebted to Bill Preucil for his generosity and dedication to the Festival and his willingness to once again assist us at this crucial time to raise money to keep the Festival alive," said Holly Althaver, founder and chairman. "Our audiences have enjoyed the genius of this gifted violinist from the first season in 1979. Now we have the opportunity to hear him as a virtuoso violinist, one known throughout the musical world." Preucil joined the Cleveland Quartet in 1990 as first violinist. Preucil, who previously served as concert master of the Atlanta Symphony for 7 years, has brought to the quartet a broad background in the chamber music repertoire and extensive experience as an active chamber musician and guest artist at leading American, European, and Asian chamber festivals. The quartet will embark on an Asian tour following the Thanksgiving holiday. The musical selections include works by Mendelssohn and Dvorak played by Preucil and Rowe and a piano solo work by Granados performed by Rowe. "If last year's recital was a prelude to this performance, the audience will be thrilled and breathless at the end of the program and standing for an ovation to both artists," said Althaver. Tickets for the recital and buffet are available by calling 517-872-2131, extension 269, or by mail to the Village Bach Festival, P.O. Box 27, Cass City, Mich. 48726. The Festival is made possible in part with the support of the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs.

Walbro reports profits, sales up
Continued from page one "The overall outlook for added. Shipment of float-feed carburetors for lawn and garden applications reflected the normal seasonal decline in the third quarter. However, shipments were strong compared with previous third quarters, and the float feed carburetor order bank is quite strong going into the fourth quarter," Althaver said. Walbro in the fourth quarter remains positive, Althaver noted. "We expect sales of fuel system products to remain on plan in all markets. However, the continued malaise affecting the U.S. economy does provide a cautionary note. Customers could cut back orders if there is unfavorable economic news in the coming months," he said.
McKee: 10

McKee, a janitor technician working out of the company's Cass City office, started his telephone career in 1980. McKee and his wife Elsie, reside in the Cass City area.

 in the Gavel Club

Continued from page one. A willingness to share the work is one of the reasons the club has continued to be a strong community booster, although the membership has had its ups and downs. Schelke said numbers prompted the group to consider dissolving in the mid-1970s, but those present voted in favor of keeping the club alive. Wallace remembers that meeting, held in his living room. "We've had our tough times just like the good times," he said. Today, with membership at full strength, Wallace added the club is very active and plans to stay that way by keeping busy. "As long as you keep having projects," he said, "it seems to work." Finding enough members to volunteer for various projects is never a problem, he continued, adding, "It's not (a situation) where 4 or 5 people do all the work." Dick Wallace, vice-president of Chemical Bank, Cass City, and a 34-year Gavel Club member, agreed. "There's never a problem with people not showing up," he said. "I guess that's why we've kept the membership low. I guess we wanted 25 or 26 working members as opposed to 100 members and 25 or 26 working."

Take proper care with medicines

Where do you store your medicines at home? When traveling, do you put all your pills in one container for convenience? The 3 most common mistakes in storing medicines are:

- Keeping your medications in the bathroom.
- Putting medications on windowsills.
- Putting medications in small unlabeled containers or mixing medicines together in one container when traveling.

According to Betty Patallo, Extension Home Economist for Tuscola County, improper storage can cause medicines to lose their strength, disintegrate or even become dangerous over time because of chemical changes.

The bathroom medicine cabinet is one of the worst places to store medicines because of the heat and moisture generated by the bath and shower.

As a general rule, according to Patallo, light, humidity and heat can speed the breakdown of medicines. Therefore, medicine should not be stored on windowsills, in the bathroom, in the glove compartment of the car, or near heat-producing appliances or surfaces, such as the oven or the top of the television set.

Here's what you can do to increase safety:

- Store medicines in a cool, dry and dark place. Unless otherwise specified, most medicines should be kept at temperatures between 50-68 degrees F. Do not store medicines in a refrigerator unless instructed to do so. Auxiliary labels tell you if refrigeration or other special storage is required.
- Keep medicines in their original, properly labeled containers. Medicines are dispensed in containers to protect them. For example, brown containers are used for medicines that can be absorbed by plastic. Keeping the labels intact ensures that you know which medicine is in which container and that, in an emergency, someone else can quickly identify your medicines.

- Keep medicine containers tightly closed. Caps on medicine containers are designed to protect against moisture.
- Store medicines out of the reach of children and pets. A major cause of accidental poisoning in young children is taking a parent's or grandparent's medicine.

"Having good information about your medicine and taking it as instructed are the best ways to avoid problems and receive the greatest benefits," concludes Patallo.

List women's special risk factors

October 1992 is Breast Cancer Awareness Month. One in 9 women will develop breast cancer in her lifetime. In 1992 it is estimated over 180,000 women in the United States will become victims of the number one cancer among women, breast cancer. 46,300 women are expected to die.

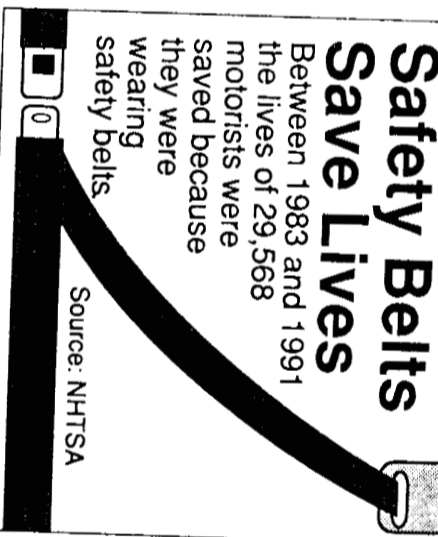

Who is at risk to develop breast cancer? Every woman is at risk but there are special risk factors for certain women.

As a woman gets older her risk for breast cancer increases. Three-quarters of all breast cancers occur in women over age 50 with 65 or over contributing nearly 50 percent of new cases. Risk is somewhat higher in women whose close female relatives - mothers or sisters - have had the disease. Also at a somewhat higher risk are women who have never had children or had their first child after age 30.

protection against breast cancer? Early detection and prompt treatment. The American Cancer Society recommends a 3 step early detection program:

1. Have regular mammograms beginning at age 40.
2. Have regular breast exams at least every 3 years and every year over 40.
3. Practice monthly breast self-exam. Ask your doctor or local health department to teach you the proper method. The American Cancer Society can also give you a how-to-do diagram.

Predict record number of births

How to cope with loss of a baby

1992 may very well become the year of the baby. It is believed that more women may become pregnant this year than in any other single year in American history. Due to the fact that women are having children much later in life, researchers believe that the baby boom generation, currently at "just the right age" to bear children, will create a baby boom of their own. This making 1992 a record year for pregnancies in the U.S.

This boom could also bring with it an increase in the already staggering number of miscarriages reported. In America today, miscarriage — the loss of a pregnancy before the middle of the second trimester (18 weeks) — occurs in about one out of every 3 pregnancies.

The emotional experience of conceiving a baby, and then the devastating effect when a miscarriage occurs is something that women and their partners share. Partners may show their feelings of worry or grief in different ways, some much more visible and verbal than others. The key to the different reactions is parental bonding to the unborn child. Individuals who grieve the most are those who had bonded with the baby and had already made a place for the child in their lives and hearts. It is important to remember that many couples who are grieving have not lost an embryo or fetus, they have lost a child.

Nancy Stuart, clinical nurse in labor and delivery at the University of North Carolina Hospitals, Chapel Hill, who has had broad experience in counseling couples after a miscarriage, gives some important tips to help grieving couples cope with their loss:

- Couples should be open and discuss what the loss means to one another. "I ask couples what happened and let them talk about what the miscarriage means to them," states Stuart. "I also talk to them about experiences they may have during their grieving — that each of them express their grief differently and that the mother may grieve more openly than the father."

- It is important for couples to remember and remind each other that something can be done about the problem. Medical experts are treating miscarriage more aggressively than ever by using state-of-the-art technology to uncover the causes. More importantly, pregnancy should be detected as early as possible. This greatly reduces the stress and anxiety a woman may experience wondering if she is pregnant, and allows her to immediately begin early pregnancy thinking and proper prenatal care.

- For friends and family of someone who has experienced a miscarriage, Stuart says the best thing for them to say to the woman involved is, "I am sorry to hear about the loss of your baby." This statement accurately acknowledges that the miscarriage is a death, and will go a long way in helping the couple confront and understand their grief.

- Couples should not be afraid to talk to others about their loss. A self-help resource group such as RE-SOLVE can provide support from others who have shared the experience. And, if intense mourning is prolonged, or an individual has become stuck in one phase of the grieving process — such as anger or denial — help from a mental health professional may be appropriate.

ARE DRUGS THE ONLY ANSWER?

In an age of sickness, disease and infection, medical science has a hard time keeping up with the pace. Man-made antibiotics are progressively losing their effectiveness year after year as strains of bacteria continually build up stronger immunities to the man-made drugs. This forces medical science back to square one in search of new antibiotics.

But wait, from nature and the beehives come a fantastic alternative to man-made drugs in the form of honeybee Propolis. Propolis is a resinous substance gathered by bees from the leaf buds and bark of trees. It is used by the bees to disinfect and maintain their hives.

Propolis has been successfully used in treating many types of bacterial infections including throat infections, coughs, sinus, flu and many others. It is also excellent in treating ulcers, acne, burns, wounds and slow-healing sores. What is so remarkable about Propolis is that it is non-toxic, has no side effects and bacteria does not build up an immunity to it.

Propolis is by no means the new kid on the block. In the fourth century B.C., Hippocrates (the Father of Medicine who modern-day doctors now take the oath after) used Propolis extensively in the treatment of sores and ulcers. Propolis is also mentioned in the Bible as man's medicine, as it is also mentioned in many other ancient writings. Propolis is continually proving itself as it is time and time again put to the test by medical science.

Propolis is rich in biologically active vitamins and high in B-complex vitamins and contains notable quantities of vitamin C, E and provitamin A. Propolis also contains amino acids and fats and is a source of trace minerals such as copper, iron, manganese and zinc. For a super anti-bacterial effect, Propolis has concentrated amounts of flavonoides.

When Propolis and Bee Pollen are consumed in a human body they build the immune system, causing the body to protect itself from infections and disease.

Sun, diet can affect the skin

Recent research has shown the following to be significant skin care issues:

1. Sun damage. Besides causing skin cancer, which is currently estimated to strike one in 6 Americans, the sun is also responsible for making skin look old before its time, states Skin & Sun News, a publication of the Skin Cancer Foundation.

Other skin experts add that people who are careful about sun protection throughout their lives will make it to their sixties — or beyond — without experiencing wrinkling or other "aging" effects on face and body skin. It's never too soon to start wearing a skin product or sunscreen with a high SPF factor year-round.

2. Skin dryness. Dry skin means one thing: Skin doesn't have enough moisture or water in it. And while the causes of dry skin are many and varied, including sun exposure, lack of humidity in the air, and aging, the cure is easy — using a moisturizing lotion appropriate for your skin type.

Surprisingly, the areas of skin which are the thickest (soles of feet, palms of hands and elbows) are most likely to crack and dry. Opt for a product that contains a high percentage of petrolatum — the single most dermatologist-recommended ingredient for dry skin care.

3. Your environment/pollution. Some dermatologists report an increase in skin woes such as atopic dermatitis and eczema in urban, more polluted areas.

But the environment created indoors can take its toll on skin as well. Air conditioning and indoor heating, both of which rob moisture from the air, can lead to dry, taut, itchy skin and aggravate already-existing skin problems.

Chlorofluorocarbons contribute to the depletion of the ozone high above the earth's surface. Because stratospheric ozone is the major protective barrier against the sun's damaging rays, a thinning of this layer means more radiation is reaching the earth's surface.

4. Nutrition. You are what you eat. Eating a well-balanced, nutritionally-sound diet doesn't guarantee a glowing, perfect complexion and the end to all your skin troubles. Just stop eating a good diet, though, and see how fast you notice the difference for the worse.

Severely dry skin can come from lack of dietary fat, protein or vitamin A.

Make a safety list Holiday season is dangerous time

Santa says: Now's the time to make a list and check it twice — a safety list, that is. Many home fires that occur during the holiday season can be prevented if you take the following safety precautions, say the experts at Underwriters Laboratories Inc. (UL).

• Keep light strings and other electrical decorations out of children's reach.

• Look for the UL Mark on light strings. Artificial trees should also carry the UL

Mark — that means samples have been tested for flammability.

• Check each light set for broken or cracked sockets, frayed or bare wires, and loose connections.

• Overloading circuits with too many decorative lights and/or light strings can cause fires.

• Check markings on light strings. Never use decorative lights outdoors marked "For Indoor use."

• Always turn off tree lights before leaving home or going to bed. A short circuit can cause a fire.

• To prevent overheating or damage, use only decorative lamp features packaged with each string. Use only manufacturer's specified fuses and lamps when old ones burn out.

• Make sure your tree is fresh when you buy it. If the needles are brown and break off easily, the tree is a greater fire risk. Keep your tree base holder filled with water at all times.

• Don't cut or damage wire insulation when installing decorative light strings.

• Throw away gift wrappings immediately. Don't burn them in the fireplace. They can ignite suddenly and cause a flash fire. Burning evergreens in a fireplace is also dangerous — they can cause flames to flare out of control and send sparks flying around a room.

• Equip your home with UL listed smoke detectors and an ABC-type fire extinguisher. They make good stocking stuffers.

Immediate Care for Injuries

Any injury, such as a strain, sprain, or contusion (bruise), should be treated with ice and elevation immediately and for at least 48 hours after the injury has occurred. This treatment helps to decrease any swelling that might develop and lessens the pain associated with the injury. Ice should be placed in a moist towel and applied to the area for no longer than 20 minutes at a time. This should be repeated every 1 to 2 hours depending upon the severity of the injury. Remember "RICE" when it comes to injury care:
R = Rest the injured part
I = Ice the injury
C = Compression (ace) wrap used to decrease the swelling. Wraps should be applied with moderate tension.
Circulation should be monitored while using the wraps.
E = Elevate the injured part

Running guidelines

Proper techniques help prevent injury

If you're among the many who are into running or jogging you could be risking injury if proper techniques aren't followed.

The National Chiropractors Association offers several tips for maintaining a safe season.

The guidelines include:
* Wear running shoes with ample heel padding. The lower back takes a pounding when running. Each heel hits the ground some 1,500 times during each mile that is run. As the heels strike, the pressure on the lower back increases an average of 3 times the body weight (450 pounds for a 150-pound person). Air-cushioned shoe inserts can act as shock absorbers.

* Run on surfaces that "give", such as grass, pathways and dirt roads. If you must run on a hard surface, wear a shoe that is constructed especially for that type of running.

* Alternate sides of the road. Running on one side continually may cause imbalance in the muscles of the low back because the grade of the road or pavement may slope at the edge. If a feeling of tightness is felt in the lower back, seek a level surface for running. If the feeling persists, stop and bend to the side - perhaps trying to touch the outside of your knee with your hand.

* Stretch at least 5 minutes before and 5 minutes after running. If you run infrequently, such as only on weekends, a longer period of stretching may be needed. Both the leg and lower back muscles should be included in the stretching exercises. Jogging in place for a few minutes is also recommended before the stretching exercises. The jogging helps prevent muscle injuries.

* Watch the mileage. Don't overdo - listen to what your body tells you. If back pain begins, cut back immediately.

* Avoid hills. Gravity pulls you on a down grade. The normal 3-foot stride becomes a 5-foot stride to compensate for the pull of gravity. Because of this, the body often leans backward in an effort to maintain balance. This can increase the curve of the lumbar spine and tighten the surrounding muscles.

Save fuel

Cook with newspapers

As Americans search for efficient ways to dispose of trash, experts have a suggestion - cook with newspapers.

Because throwing away old newspapers is environmentally harmful, one company has developed a more efficient disposal system. Safari Industries of Wichita, Kan., has introduced the Safari Qwik-Cook grill that is fueled by newspapers.

The environmentally safer grill can cook all popular barbecue foods, fueled by just 10-12 sheets of crumpled newspaper, according to the manufacturer. All that remains after cooking is a handful of ash.

Newspapers are a safe cooking fuel, according to the American Newspaper Publishers Association. Black newspaper ink is primarily a treated mineral oil compound, while colored inks are primarily clear, highly refined mineral oils, according to the association.

The Qwik-Cook grill also eliminates the need for environmentally hazardous lighter fluid. Statistics from the Barbecue Industry Association of Naperville, Ill., show that in 1989, 84.5 million charcoal grills and 745,000 tons of charcoal briquettes were sold to consumers. And although lighter fluid is the preferred method to fuel briquettes, the fluid emits a compound believed to contribute to the depletion of the earth's protective ozone layer.

Consumers seeking more information about cooking with newspapers can call Safari Industries toll-free at 1-800-475-1099.

Could be dangerous

Be careful with unproven arthritis cures

One in 10 people with arthritis has tried an unproven remedy to relieve the chronic pain, only to suffer sometimes harmful side effects, according to a government survey.

The survey conducted by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services also found that 58 percent of the respondents first learned of an unproven arthritis remedy from well-meaning family or friends.

"Many unproven remedies are not harmful, such as copper bracelets or acupuncture," said Arthur Grayzel, senior vice president for medical affairs for the Arthritis Foundation.

"But the effects of others are not known, such as bee venom, fish oil or certain diets. Still others we know can be harmful and should not be tried, such as snake venom, DMSO, megadoses of vitamins and drugs from other countries that may have hidden ingredients."

According to the Arthritis Foundation, suspect an unproven remedy if it claims to work for all types of arthritis; uses only case histories or testimonials as proof; cites only one study or a study without a control group; has no warnings about side effects.

"A major rule of thumb is to learn as much as possible about an arthritis remedy before trying it or even telling others about it," Grayzel said. "If you do decide to try an unproven treatment, talk to your doctor and continue your prescribed medical treatment."

For a free brochure about unproven arthritis remedies, contact your local Arthritis Foundation chapter or call toll-free the Arthritis Foundation Information Line at 1-800-283-7800.

30 million Americans suffer with back pain

When back pain hits, you have lots of company. More than 30 million Americans seek treatment for back pain every year. Back pain is second only to the common cold in work time lost and is the second largest worker's compensation cost in the United States.

No one is immune from the possibility of debilitating back pain. It can strike during a golf outing, working in the yard, or when bending to pick up a child.

Dr. Jack Wagner, professor in the Department of Human Anatomy and Medical Neurobiology at Texas A&M University College of Medicine, has researched back pain extensively.

He offers these tips to avoid back problems - or better deal with your back pain when it strikes:

• Always unlock and bend the knees when leaning far forward.

• Always unlock and bend the knees when lifting any object. As you raise the object, straighten the legs, let the pelvis rotate and then use lower back muscles to regain the last half of your return to an upright posture.

• Lift objects only when they are directly in front of you. Lifting while twisting seriously compounds the danger of injury.

• Keep objects being lifted as close to the body as possible.

• Plan all of your bending and lifting movement to be done cautiously and smoothly.

• Practice your correct bending and lifting movements until they become "automatic."

• Be wary of lifting and sudden movements when you are tired, angry or frustrated. When the brain is attempting to cope with stress, the skilled movements it normally controls with precision may be seriously impaired. This greatly increases the risk of muscle damage and resulting pain.

If you do suffer back pain, at least one visit to a health professional is warranted. The good news is that many commonly prescribed treatments such as hot packs and massage now can be experienced safely and comfortably at home.

Quiz tests knowledge of caffeine

Medical news these days is, at times, confusing. Ever so often, it's hard to keep straight what is, what is not, and what, if anything, is still thought to be good for us.

At the top of the list of confusing items is caffeine. It may well be the Rodney Dangerfield of drugs. For so long it has been thought to be so bad for us, that now it is accused of everything from cancer to heart disease. It gets no respect at all.

If you think you know something about caffeine, there's a little test. Answer true or false:

- 1) Decaffeinated coffee is good for your bones.
- 2) Coffee is good for asthmatics who have difficulty breathing.
- 3) Women who drink a lot of caffeine-containing beverages are more likely to suffer the symptoms associated with PMS.
- 4) Men who drink 5 or more cups of coffee a day are 3 times as likely to develop heart disease as those who drink none at all.
- 5) Caffeine may be used along with chemotherapy to increase the effectiveness of some cancer-fighting drugs.
- 6) Coffee is the most popular beverage in the United States.

7) If you have ulcers, switching to decaffeinated coffee is better for your digestive system.

8) Caffeine can help you lose weight.

9) Though it is included in many headache remedies, caffeine can actually cause severe headaches.

Caffeine is a naturally-occurring substance in coffee, tea, cocoa and kola nuts, and is a central nervous system stimulant. Since the U.S. Food and Drug Administration classifies it as a drug, caffeine could be considered the most popular drug in the world.

Consumption is over 120,000 tons per year worldwide. Of that, 54 percent comes from coffee beans, 43 percent from tea leaves, and 3 percent from cocoa products and a few other lesser-known sources.

We get our daily dose of caffeine in many ways. Besides tea, coffee and cocoa, where it occurs naturally, caffeine is added to medicines and soft drinks. As much as 85 percent of the soft drinks sold in the U.S.

contain caffeine, which is obtained from the decaffeination of coffee and tea.

The amount of caffeine present depends on a number of factors. For example, different brewing methods affect the amount of caffeine found in the average cup of coffee.

In drip brewing, though water passes over the ground coffee beans only once, most of the caffeine in the beans is released. In percolating, the water circulates continuously over the beans, releasing other flavoring agents but very little in the way of extra caffeine.

Because of that, coffee brewed by the drip method usually requires more beans to obtain the same amount of flavor as perked coffee, and thus usually contains more caffeine.

There are also different ways of decaffeinating coffee. The beans can be steamed and the caffeine extracted by a chemical solvent (usually methylene chloride), then steamed again to remove the solvent.

An alternative, and very popular way because it does not use a solvent and is said to taste better, is the water extraction method. Hot water is recycled through the coffee beans until 97 percent of the caffeine is removed. In either case, the beans are roasted after decaffeination, and then ground, often at the point of sale.

What happens when caffeine enters the body? Since it is highly water-soluble, and the human body is largely made up of water, caffeine makes its way to almost every part of the body.

It is not fat soluble, so it is not stored in body fat; however it does have an effect on almost every other part of the body. Whether for good or evil is still the subject of much research, controversy and discussion.

In his book "Caffeine, the most popular Stimulant," Richard Gilbert, Ph.D., says medical science really knows very little of the effect of caffeine on humans in normal doses.

"Apart from its effect on sleep, the clearest effect of regular doses of caffeine... Please turn to page 7.

Exercise with caution

Strong ankles help reduce sprains

The feet and ankles are the body's shock absorbers, a complex network of ligaments, cartilage and small bones strong enough to support the weight of the entire body, yet flexible enough for a ballerina to stand on pointe, a soccer player to kick a goal, or a child to jump rope.

Feet and ankles are subjected to constant abuse - jogging, dancing, step aerobics, the mad dash for the bus - so it's not surprising that injuries occur. Probably the most common injury is and flexible. "Increasing the strength in the front of the lower leg and stretching the muscles in the back of the calf help to make the ankles more stable," Driscoll says.

A light calf muscle positions the foot in a relative downward position, which makes the ankle less stable, he says.

When a person steps off a curb, for example, the foot is in a similar downward position, the ankle is not as stable as it could be, and is susceptible to sprain.

Fatigue increases the likelihood of injury. Over-tired muscles are more susceptible to strain. If you haven't played basketball all week, don't try to get a week's worth of exercise in one punishing marathon game, Driscoll says.

If you have questions about how to care for your feet and ankles, contact a local physical therapist for assistance in developing a program for rehabilitation or prevention of ankle sprains.

For information about physical therapists in your area, contact the Private Practice Section of the American Physical Therapy Association, 1101 17th St., N.W., Dept. NU, Washington, D.C., 20036, or phone 1-202-457-1115.

Ways to reduce accident injuries

Here are some simple things you and your family can do to reduce greatly your risk of being injured or killed in a car accident:

- When entering an automobile, see that all passengers fasten both their lap belts and shoulder harnesses.
- Don't forget to fasten your lap belt in cars where the shoulder harness is automatic. A lap belt should fit low and snug across the hips.
- Using a child safety seat made to accommodate children of all ages and sizes, with a good driving attitude. Buy or rent the appropriate sized seat for your child. The manufacturer's instructions of the road.
- Air bags reduce serious injury in frontal or head-on crashes by 4 percent. When buying a car, request both passenger- and driver-side air bags.
- Safety belts, shoulder harnesses and air bags are the basic tools for motor vehicle safety. However, it is important to combine these tools with a good driving attitude. Please use caution, drive defensively and obey all rules of the road.

Misconceptions about caffeine

Continued from page 6. aids. Gilbert says there is no evidence caffeine suppresses the appetite. "It does speed up the rate food is converted to energy," he reports. "Between meals, it causes fat to be transferred from deposits into the blood stream." Millions of people will attest to the fact that drinking coffee all day allows them to skip meals without feeling hunger pangs. There seems to be little doubt that a serious problem with caffeine exists for ulcer patients. Coffee increases acid secretion in the stomach, and at the same time, slows the emptying of the stomach. "People who already suffer from digestive upset are usually advised to give up caffeine-containing beverages," Gilbert says. "In fact, there is evidence that these people are more strongly affected by caffeine than are healthy people."

He cites a study which compared ulcer patients with healthy subjects. The ulcer patients had higher levels of stomach acid to begin with. When they took coffee, their acid levels rose higher than the healthy subjects, and stayed there much longer. Acid levels in the healthy subjects returned to normal after 90 minutes, while the ulcer patients' acid levels remained elevated 2 hours later. It is also reported that drinking decaffeinated coffee does not significantly change the acid levels produced by regular coffee, leading to speculation that other elements in coffee may be responsible. And, as a double-whammy, a common ulcer remedy called cimetidine (Tagamet) itself causes caffeine to stay in the body longer.

Indeed, caffeine at one time or another has been linked to birth defects, benign breast lumps, heart disease, phobias and cancer so after all that bad news, is there any good news? "Caffeine pushes the cells to divide before they have a chance to repair their DNA," according to a report cited in Discover Magazine. The mechanism is still unknown. Caffeine is also known to induce breathing in newborns with apnea, and to reduce the frequency of such episodes. So, now, the answers to the questions at the top of the page.

1) Yes, if you normally drink regular coffee. Prevention Magazine reports a study found that after 300 mg of caffeine, (the amount found in two-three cups of coffee), subjects excreted twice as much calcium as after drinking decaffeinated coffee. Since older people absorb less calcium from their diet, they may be more at risk.

2) Yes, according to another study reported in Prevention Magazine. The Tufts University study pointed out that the same result has been found in other studies.

3) Yes, sudden caffeine withdrawal can cause severe headaches. Victims get into a vicious circle by cutting off their caffeine intake, getting a headache, and then taking caffeine-containing medications, which cure the headache.

4) Yes. Sudden caffeine withdrawal can cause severe headaches. Victims get into a vicious circle by cutting off their caffeine intake, getting a headache, and then taking caffeine-containing medications, which cure the headache.

Stress, not menopause may cause depression

The anxiety and depression often blamed on menopause are most often caused by the stress of middle age. There is little evidence that menopause directly causes depression and anxiety; rather, it is part of mid-life - a time associated with change and many final and often troubling life events. During women's middle years, children claim their final independence and leave home, often leading to a sense of loss, say experts. For women with careers, mid-life can mean accepting the reality of not meeting career goals, and then setting new objectives. For those whose goals have been met, there's a need to reorder priorities and answer the question, "What now?" Death of a parent, or increased dependence of parents, are other events associated with middle age. Underlying the sorrow and, if it occurs, the extra physical and emotional care for elderly parents, is the facing of one's own death.

Menopause changes a woman's view of herself as a child bearer, and for many this is difficult. Menopause is the final statement on child-bearing, and hot flashes can be unwelcome and oft-repeated reminders that the changes of menopause are at hand.

Most menopausal symptoms are not severe and can be easily tolerated. Those providing care for women should take advantage of opportunities for patient education and counseling.

Studies show that 10 percent of menopausal women have no symptoms at all. Some 80 percent have hot flashes and other symptoms of a temporary nature, and 10 percent have severe symptoms.

The average onset of menopause is 50, the duration of hot flashes is usually 2-4 years, and there must be 12 consecutive months without a menstrual period for a woman to feel confident about not using contraception.

A MEMBER OF THE staff at Great Lakes Eye, Cheryl Lester, becomes a "patient" as Dr. Jeffrey D. Robinson demonstrates the use of the Yag laser, a $20,000 machine.

You can't buy glasses there Cass City clinic features latest eye care techniques

At Great Lakes Eye patients have access to over a quarter of a million dollars worth of sophisticated equipment, but they can't buy a pair of glasses at the clinic located at 4624 Hill Street in Cass City.

That's because the clinic manned by Dr. Jeffrey Robinson specializes in surgery and care for the eye including cataracts and glaucoma.

The clinic boasts of 2 laser machines, but Robinson is quick to point out that no one ever had a cataract removed by laser. That's done with the use of a tiny vibrating instrument that emits high frequency sound waves to dissolve cataracts in a process called phacemulsification.

After the cataract is removed a lens is inserted in the eye. There are 2 types of lenses that can be inserted and Robinson says that the one he uses is a fairly recent advancement and one not available from many ophthalmologists.

The lens is folded when placed in the eye. That enables us to do the surgery with an incision just 1/8 of an inch wide, he explained. That's important because the operation can be completed with no stitches as compared to the traditional procedure that requires a single stitch. It leads to more rapid healing and fewer post-operative restrictions.

In about one out of 3 cases there is a cloudy membrane after the surgery, Robinson continued, and it's here that our Yag laser comes into operation.

While the operation normally requires about 45 minutes to an hour, the entire procedure may take as long as 2 or 3 weeks after the initial examination. That's because of the tests at the hospital including a chest x-ray and blood work.

The lens is folded -- enabling us to do surgery with an incision just 1/8 inch wide.

The entire operation will cost in the neighborhood of $2,500 and the clinic accepts Medicare and Blue Cross.

Robinson makes his home in Frankenmuth because he works 3 days a week in Cass City and the remainder of the time in Saginaw. We do about 2 a week or so here and in Saginaw as many as 4 a day, Robinson says.

Robinson is a Michigan native. He grew up in Midland, graduated from Alma College and received his doctor's degree from Wayne State University in 1988. His residency was in general surgery and internal medicine. He spent 3 years at the Eye Institute in Milwaukee, a huge clinic, before accepting his present position.

He is married and he and his wife are the parents of a 3-year-old son.

THIS ARGON LASER is used to treat patients suffering from diabetes and cost some $35,000, Dr. Robinson says.
