One of 6 county kids lives in poverty

The rate of child poverty in Tuscola County has soared nearly 58 percent since 1980, according to a new study that shows 16.8 percent of the county's 15,826 children, or one in 6, is poor.

In comparison, about one in 5 children lives in poverty statewide, an increase of nearly 37 percent over the past decade.

The study, released last week by the Kids Count in Michigan project, shows many Michigan children are at risk as a result of poverty, family dissolution, poor health care, violence and other problems.

The study is being called a report card on the status of children. The grades were mixed in Tuscola County, which experienced a 119 percent jump in the rate of child deaths (56.6 per 100,000 population), an 11.4 percent increase in the rate of low birth-weight babies (62 per 1,000), a 2 percent hike in the rate of child abuse and neglect victims (9 per 1,000), and an increase of .7 of a percent in violent teenage deaths (81.7 per 100,000).

At the same time, the county saw infant mortality drop by 15.5 percent to 9.5 per 1,000, the high school drop out rate fell by 22.3 percent, and there were fewer juvenile arrests and births to teens.

Statewide, the only improvements found among 13 core indicators studied were reductions in infant mortality, child death and juvenile arrest rates, said Pat Sorenson, project director.

KEY FINDINGS

Among the report's key findings are:

*One in 4 K-12 students requires nutritional support through the free or reduced price lunch program.

*One in 10 of the state's public school students suffers physical, emotional or learning impairments serious enough to be eligible for special education services.

*One of every 100 Michigan children is a victim of abuse or neglect, and nearly one of every 200 kids is placed outside the home as a result of abuse, neglect or delinquency.

*The state's high school dropout rate jumped 15 percent.

*Teen violent deaths — deaths from accidents, homicides and suicides — increased 28 percent since 1980, with urban counties showing a significant increase in teenage homicides.

Sorenson said the most alarming finding was the increase in the number of kids living in poverty — 18.2 percent (440,082 children) compared to 13.2 percent (361,353) in 1980. A majority of the children are white, and many come from the state's more rural areas.

NO SURPRISE

The news didn't surprise Tuscola County DSS Director Tom Dillon.

"I believe that," he commented Thursday. "Certainly our case loads would reflect that."

"We've been on the cusp of a very high unemployment situation for several years," Dillon said, adding the rate was as high as 21 percent in the early 1980s. "And really, for the last 10 years, we have had very few quarters where we've been under 10 percent unemployment. That's a significant problem in our area."

The tougher times are due in part to the area's status as a bedroom community to the auto industry and related manufacturing jobs, he noted.

"Another significant factor, certainly, is a breakdown in the family," Dillon pointed out.

"Families make up about 5 1/2 to 6 percent of the rate of children in poverty. When you look at the single (parent) household, you're looking at 60 percent of the children in poverty."

According to the study more than 15 percent of children in Tuscola County — one in 6 — live in single parent families whose average income totals only $14,785. In contrast, married couple families earn an average of $39,420.

SINGLE MOMS

The situation is tougher for single mothers, Dillon said, in part because their earning opportunities often are limited, and many aren't receiving child support due them. "We do well in Tuscola County in relation to other counties... but you're still only getting a small percentage of child support," he added.

Difficult economic times for many can be seen in the statistics, which show a 91.4 percent rate increase in the number of county children receiving food stamps (2,784), and a 7 percent rate jump in the number receiving free and reduced lunches (2,827).

Talented artists return for 14th Bach Festival

Musicians in the 1990's find themselves traveling long distances carrying their instruments, their music, and their performance attire. One of the delights of the Cass City Village Bach Festival is that the musicians and soloists regard this particular time as a homecoming to a place where they work hard but are welcomed by their hosts and their audiences as a family, home for Thanksgiving.

Taking time from concerts, classes with students, their own studies and practice schedules are 37 musicians who are often on their way to major opera and concert stages, and who have already accomplished great success. They bring to the Village Bach Festival a wealth of talent and considerable reputation.

Don Jaeger, Conductor and Artistic Director of the Village Bach Festival, journeyed to Bulgaria in June of 1992 to conduct an all American music festival. Audiences in that formerly communist country had not heard serious American music in over 40 years. In the spring of 1993, Jaeger will conduct a series of concerts in Istanbul, Turkey.

In 1992 William Preucil Jr., first violin of the Cleveland Quartet, has performed in New York, London, Tokyo, Seoul, Hong Kong, Seattle, San Francisco, Moscow, Vienna, and Paris just to name a few. He is particularly proud of the Mainly Mozart Festival held in San Diego each year. Among other Cass City musicians who play in the Mozart Festival are Gwen Starker Preucil, Jeanne Preucil Rose, Steve Rose, and Barry Stees.

Returning to the Bach Festival is Norman Paul, Professor of Music at the University of Wisconsin and first violinist of the Pro Arte Quartet, a position he has held since 1967. Two other members of the Pro Arte Quartet are members of the Village Bach Festival this year, Jae-Kyung Kim, second violin, and Sally Chisholm, viola.

Marilyn Mason, who is the organist of the University of Michigan and chairs the Organ Department, was the first woman to play in Westminster Abbey, and was named the organist of the year in 1988 by the National Guild of Organists in New York City. She has traveled to Europe 20 times to play and to research both historic organs and organ music.

Penelope Jensen, soprano, made her debut in Carnegie Hall in April of 1992, having been asked by Robert Shaw to sing Messiah in celebration of the first performance of Handel's work 250 years ago in Dublin. Priscilla Peebles, mezzo soprano, returns bringing new experiences from the Carmel, California Bach Festival in the summer of 1992. Steve Morscheck, bass baritone, joins the Chicago Lyric Opera in January of 1993.

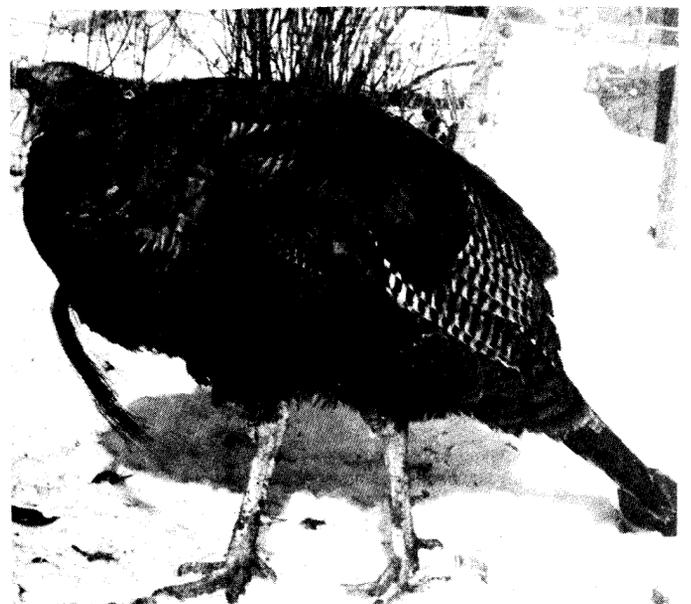

"The quality of the musical instruments these professional musicians use is one of the reasons for the appealing sound of this orchestra," says Don Jaeger, conductor. "And 2 rare instruments are of particular interest, the Stradivarius violin of William Preucil Jr. and the Amati violin, of Norman Paul. Both instruments were made in Italy in the 18th century by master violin makers and are highly appreciated for their beauty of sound."

Tickets for the Friday, Saturday and Sunday concerts are available. For ticket information or reservations call the box office at 517-872-5400 from 1-5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

This lucky turkey will live to gobble another day

LUCKY TOM — While many of his fellow feathered friends will be featured attraction on area dinner tables Thursday, this turkey will survive yet another Thanksgiving. Named "Mr. T," he is the pet of Luis and Lila Arroyo, Cass City.

Community event

Thanksgiving dinner is available to all

Fellowship and turkey with all the trimmings are on the menu for the 7th annual Community Thanksgiving Dinner in Cass City.

The feast, sponsored by area churches and civic groups, will be served at 1 p.m. Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, at the St. Pancratius Catholic Church, 4292 S. Seeger St.

There is no charge, and reservations aren't necessary.

Takeout dinners will be available to those physically unable to attend. Organizers ask that those interested in receiving takeout make reservations by contacting their local church, or by calling 872-4168 or 872-5114.

The annual community gathering has grown in popularity, drawing an average of some 150 people in recent years — about double the participation seen in the first year. Nearly 200 dinners were served in 1991.

Organizers say the event isn't intended to break family traditions, but rather to offer residents, particularly those who don't have Thanksgiving Day plans, an opportunity to celebrate together as a community.

Lost lore

by Melva E. Guinther

People who know about these things are concerned that folklore, songs and culture are not being passed along, in today's mobile society, to the younger generations and could, as a result, die out.

It may be true. Remembering some of the songs we learned as kids makes me question how great that loss would be.

This untitled, as far as I know unpublished, classic is one that came to mind. It was passed down in our family and I'm doing my dubious part by repeating it here for posterity.

I'll tell you the story of a burglar man who started to rob a house.

He crept in through a window as quietly as a mouse.

He thought of all the money he'd get as under the bed he lay.

At nine o'clock he saw a sight that made his hair turn gray.

At nine o'clock an old maid came in. "How tired I am," she said,

And thinking everything was all right, she forgot to look under the bed.

She took out her teeth and her old glass eye and the hair from the top of her head.

The burglar man had 21 fits as he crawled from under the bed.

The old maid didn't holler at all, but stood there meek as a lamb.

She said, "My prayers are answered! At last I've found me a man!

"I've searched for 41 years or more. You're the only chance I'll get.

"I'll buckle myself to you, old boy. I'll marry you, you bet!"

From out of a drawer a revolver she took, and unto the burglar man said, "Young man, if you don't marry me, I'll blow off the top of your head!"

He looked at her teeth and her old glass eye, and he saw no place to scoot.

Then he looked at the old maid standing there, and said, "For gosh sake, woman, shoot!"

It would be a shame, too, if the many verses to "It Ain't Gonna Rain No More" were lost to our successors. Dad used to sing them as he bounced whoever was the baby at the time with a "pony ride" on his foot. Some of the verses were:

A black and white animal out in the woods.

I said, "Isn't that little cat pritty?"

I walked right over to pick it up.

But it wasn't that kind of a kitty.

Bull frog sittin' on a lily pad.

Lookin' up at the sky.

The lily pad broke and the frog fell in.

Got water all in his eye.

Peanut sittin' on a railroad track.

Its heart was all aflutter.

A train came rollin' 'round the bend,

Toot, toot, — peanut butter.

I had a little dog and his name was Jack,

And I wish they'd bring him back.

He chased the big pigs over the fence,

And the little ones through the crack.

I went to see my sweetie.

She met me at the door,

With her shoes and stockings in her hand

And her feet all over the floor.

Doubtful distinctions department: Michigan has been hardest hit by the gypsy moth of any midwestern state. Nation-wide, the United States Department of Agriculture Forest Service representatives say, 3.2 million acres were defoliated in 1992.

I can't tell you her name, but the world's greatest salesperson has to be the young lady that sold me girl scout cookies this year. When I added my name to the list it was more than a foot long and there was only room for about 2 more names on that big scout order form.

The super saleswoman must have been all of 5 years old.

It's common to hear horror stories about snafus in the mail delivery, so how about one that shows that sometimes the mail is delivered efficiently and quickly. Very quickly.

Dan Toner of Cass City reports that he placed a merchandise order to a firm in East Lansing by phone Thursday morning shortly after 9 a.m. It arrived the next day between 9:30 and 10 a.m.

Sharon Mika, resource recovery educator for Tuscola County, says that Americans receive almost 4 million tons of "junk mail" every year and that 44 percent of that mail is never opened or read.

Mika says that "Save the Earth" postcards are available from the Michigan State University Extension office, 362 Green Street, Caro, to send to companies to stop unwanted mail and to Direct Market Association to keep your name from being sold to other companies.

Announce 10% corn acreage reduction

The 1993 feed grain program calls for a 10 percent reduction in crop acres compared to a 5 percent reduction in 1992, according to Dave Claerhout, executive director of the Tuscola County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

He said prospects for a large 1992 corn crop has boosted stock estimates prompting the higher acreage reduction requirement for 1993 corn. The reduction requirement for barley, oats, and wheat are zero percent.

Participating producers will be eligible for federal target price protection of $2.75 per bushel for corn, $2.36 for barley, and $1.45 per bushel for oats. Price support loan rates per bushel are: corn, $1.72; barley, $1.40; oats, 88 cents, and rye, $1.46. The loan rates and target prices are unchanged from 1992.

Claerhout said other provisions of the 1993 feed grain program will be announced as soon as they become available.

All ASCS programs and services are offered on a nondiscriminatory basis without regard to race, color, national origin, religion, sex, age, marital status, disability.

The Haire Net

You'd think that what to eat on Thanksgiving would be almost a foregone conclusion after all these years. Turkey, dressing and all the trimmings, eat until you drop and forget about it.

The eat until you drop bit the family has no trouble with, no trouble at all. Old pros, no less.

It's not how much we eat, but what we eat that's the problem. For me a prime rib is better, others opt for a fancy flavored ham, while turkey has its supporters.

One year the issue just couldn't be settled and we ended up with all 3. It was excessive, it was foolish.... it was delicious.

That happened a good many years ago and we don't do that anymore. Two of the 3, yes. If I get tuched out at Thanksgiving, I score at Christmas.

That is most Christmases. One year the elder daughter decided that we would have a special treat.

I think she called it Mongolian Pot or something equally exotic. What it turned out to be was little pieces of meat and fish that were cooked at the table on braziers.

We sat around that table waiting for little pieces to be served and waited and waited.

No one said much, until I announced that this was the last Mongolian Pot dinner in the household. Everyone started to laugh and to this day when overeating and diets are mentioned the inside joke is, are we having Mongolian Pot dinner again?

While my wife was there, there never was any question. The Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners would be held at our house. That's changed now and sometimes the family comes to my house, sometimes not.

One year it was suggested that Christmas should be moved to the cottage, close to the ski slopes. That was quickly vetoed and never mentioned again.

Lots of folks celebrate Thanksgiving by eating out. Different strokes for different folks. That's never been a family option. As a family, we probably eat out more than most, but it's never been considered on Thanksgiving and Christmas.

These 2 holidays are used to bring the families together, a brief respite from the everyday activities that keep us occupied.

A time to rejoice over our good fortune, commiserate over our misfortunes and to strengthen our family ties.

That's Thanksgiving for me. Great, even if they forget to serve the prime rib.

"If It Fitz...."

Clicker calamity

By Jim Fitzgerald

It makes me grumpy when old-fashioned Mother Nature and my wife get together to interfere with modern technological progress. That's why I snarl when I click the remote control and the TV doesn't change programs.

My wife said I've lately been getting grumpy too easily, a sure sign of increasingly decrepit old age. I said everybody else in the world puts flat picture books on coffee tables, so why the hell can't she do the same thing.

The problems is that my wife feels she must "reward" her houseplants. Honest to God, that's the word she uses in explaining why my clicker sometimes clicks futilely.

Stick with me, this tale of anguish will soon make sense, sort of.

which would be brave, but what if I stumbled and fell? It is inexcusably foolhardy to put valuable leadership assets in jeopardy unnecessarily, as potentially wasteful as stationing General Schwarzkopf in a front-line trench.

The 3 clickers are located strategically on the bare surface of the small table on the right side of my chair, 3 abreast, always in the same order — cable box, TV, VCR, from left to right — so I can press the keys without looking at them. The touch system, as in typewriting.

This system, naturally, requires that the clickers never be picked up or otherwise moved. But when my wife puts a damned rewarded plant on the coffee table, I lose control. My eyes can see the TV screen, but my fingers are powerless. The flora blocks my electronic access to Radio City Music Hall.

Oh, I can hold a clicker high over my head and point it down while almost standing up. Or I can clutch a clicker unfamiliarly in my left hand and stretch my body awkwardly over my chair's left armrest, waving wildly and knocking over a lamp.

FLORA GETS IN THE AIRWAVES

In our home, most of the flora is usually confined to the sparsely populated family room (we have no family or other fauna in residence). But occasionally, when a plant responds extra-robustly to her nurturing: "I rewarded it by moving in into the living room where the people are," she says. She really says that.

She puts the thriving plant on the coffee table, which is midway between my chair and a huge piece of furniture that looks like an old-fashioned wardrobe but is actually a modern "entertainment center," containing a television set, VCR and cable box. The operation of this entertainment center is solely my huge responsibility, and I carry it gravely, like Radio City Music Hall.

The skillful use of 3 separate and distinct remote clickers is required, unless I want to risk standing up and walking across the room,

TALK TO PLANTS, VCR AT THE SAME TIME

Sometimes those desperate gyrations enable me to circumvent the rewarded flora. But where's the dignity?

Where's the great satisfaction that comes from being able to silence a commercial without once looking up from my newspaper? (I put down my paper for only 2 programs, "60 Minutes" and "I'll Fly Away.")

I recently read that 80 percent of the people can't program their VCR. Well, I can. I can set that baby so it will turn on at 3:30 a.m. Tuesday to tape an old "WKRP in Cincinnati," turn off at 4 a.m. and turn on again 3 days later at 10 p.m. to tape "I'll Fly Away."

(And when I return home and discover "I'll Fly Away" was abruptly switched to 8 p.m. I want to reward a plant by smashing it against the head of an NBC executive. Talk about grumpy.)

Onward and Upward. If I replace my clickers with a talker, I'll have to holler like Tarzan and swing toward Radio City Music Hall on a rewarded vine.

Laurie airs concern, questions

The president of the Michigan Farm Bureau congratulated President-elect Bill Clinton on his election victory, but noted that farmers are interested in how the new administration plans to address a number of challenges facing the agricultural industry.

Tuscola County farmer Jack Laurie said that the U.S. needs growth-oriented policies not only for agriculture but the entire economy. "I'm concerned that there was a lot of talk during Gov. Clinton's campaign about increasing taxes and expanding regulations," Laurie said. "That's not the way to produce a growing economy."

Clinton's campaign image as a new Democrat, he will come into office owing a lot of favors to traditional Democratic constituencies. His goal of controlling the deficit undoubtedly will collide with the liberal social programs devised by the new Congress. Does he have the backbone to stand up to the demands of big-spending congressmen?" asked Laurie.

The Farm Bureau leader also said Michigan farmers await Gov. Clinton's specific views on issues like completion of free trade agreements, the shape of the 1995 Farm Bill, environmental challenges to farm practices, protection of private property rights and wetlands delineation.

ENDOMETRIOSIS CAUSES ABDOMINAL PAIN

Endometriosis is a bit of an unusual disease—cells from inside the uterus growing elsewhere in the abdomen. It is relatively common in the child-bearing years, but can be difficult to diagnose.

The symptoms it causes are commonly attributed to normal menstrual pains and cramps; usually the symptoms are worse just before and during early menstruation. It can cause menstrual-like cramps, low back pain, and other abdominal pains which may even relate to the bladder or colon. There is also occasionally spotting between periods.

The cause of endometriosis is not entirely known, but it is likely that some of the cells lining the uterus are forced back through the tubes into the abdomen. Here, they can become implanted and form small nodular growths on the tubes, ovaries, and other organs. These growths can become very inflamed and painful and the inflammation tends to cause the surfaces to adhere, so adhesions may occur in severe cases.

These changes can result in infertility, as the normal ovary function is altered and the tubes may become scarred and blocked. If the symptoms are bad enough, the diagnosis can best be made by laparoscopy (band-aid surgery) and the lesions can then be cauterized. If the disease is not very severe, it is usually treated with pain pills and often birth control pills to suppress the growth of the nodules.

The treatment is usually fairly successful and most women can conceive after treatment. Only rarely is further surgery or treatment with stronger hormone pills needed. This is one of a series of articles brought to you in the interest of better health by

Condo residents pitch in to repair Christmas display

The elements were unkind to Cass City's Story Time display last year, but the papier mache figures and nursery rhyme scenes are looking good as new thanks to the efforts of a group of Northwood Lake Condominium residents.

The display will be set up in the village park Dec. 12 starting at about 9 a.m. Anyone willing to lend a hand with the set-up is welcome.

Jim Bolton, co-chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee in charge of the project, said maintenance of the display figures was taken over this year by the condo residents.

"We had quite a bit of damage last year because we had a heavy wind on the set-up day," he said. "They've (given) the time and effort to paint and repair them."

"We had 2 set up days last year, one day we set up and the next day we re-set up," joked Dick Teno, a condo owner, chamber member and co-chairman of the display set-up committee.

According to Teno, the condo residents were more than glad to help out.

"I knew (the figures) were damaged and they were looking for someone to help repair them," he said. "I just brought it up one day" at a meeting of condo residents.

Volunteering, aside from Teno, were Pat and Bud Smith, Ed Bednarczyk, Syd Meek, Don Chisholm, Ted and Marie Togger, and Harvey and Jean Whitsett.

"A lot of these people up here have artistic talent," Teno remarked, adding among the group is a retiree cabinet maker, a pair of skilled wood workers and a talented artist.

The group worked on the project for 6 to 8 weeks over the summer, meeting twice a week. The volunteers repaired and repainted the nursery rhyme figures and Story Time letters, then applied a coat of varnish to help protect them from the weather.

"Everybody showed up and they put a lot of hours in," Teno said, "but it was fun."

DON AND JEAN Reid display some of the hand crafted gemstone and silver jewelry they've made at their Grant Township farm.

Grant Township couple

Reids turn 'diamonds in the rough' into treasures

Don and Jean Reid don't have degrees in gemology, but a visit with the area couple at their Grant Township farm quickly reveals they know what they're talking about when it comes to gemstones and rock.

It's also evident they enjoy talking about and showing off their collection.

The pair, who own and operate Reid's Lapidary, turn rough chunks of rock, gemstone, petrified wood and even shells into a wide variety of handcrafted gemstone and silver jewelry and crafts.

Their inventory includes rings, pendants, earrings, belt buckles, bolo ties, sun-catchers, wind chimes and clocks. The pieces feature cut and polished rubies, sapphires, emeralds, amethyst, topaz, tiger eye, opals, jade, onyx, cubic zirconium, Petoskey stone, jasper, agate, hematite and others.

The hobby is a cooperative effort, with Don using his skill and specialized saws and buffers to facet and polish precious and semi-precious gems. Jean's specialties, meanwhile, are silversmithing and identifying various stones.

"It's something I really enjoy because you can see what you have when you're done," she said of the hobby.

The variety of projects is limited only by imagination, she added. "You start getting into fossils and shells and all types of things."

Don agreed. "Everything you do is different."

The Reids, both avid rock collectors, got their start in the hobby in the mid-1970s. "In 1974, we sold our crows. We took a trip to Australia and we wanted to bring something back for our friends and family," Jean said. She explained she and Don were on a tour and picked up some jade in New Zealand. The gifts were well received, and that fall the Reids joined the Cass River Gem and Mineral Club.

Through the organization, they learned more about gemstones, and Jean took advantage of an opportunity to learn about silversmithing from a club member.

"It's no fun just collecting this stuff and not doing something with it," she noted.

A couple years later, the pair began enrichment classes at Flint's Mott Community College, where Don learned how to facet gemstones to enhance their beauty.

In the years that followed, the couple continued to experiment and learn as much as they could. "You learn from experience," Jean commented.

Depending on the project, a piece of jewelry can take as little as a few hours or as long as several days to complete, she said. Don added the hardness of a rock dictates how long polishing and cutting will take.

The materials used in the Reids' creations come from as close as their farm to as far away as across the globe. They purchase much of their rock and gemstones at wholesale prices while attending shows each year.

Some of the pieces are made as gifts, Jean said, adding, "Every year I make something different for my granddaughters."

The couple take orders and sell their wares at shows such as the Santa's Magic Wonderland, one of the area's largest craft bazaars, held each year at the Colony House.

"It doesn't make us any money," Jean commented. "I just charge enough so it pays for the materials."

The amount of time put into the hobby varies, according to the Reids, who farm 240 acres of navy beans and corn.

Don chuckled and added, "Retiring isn't in my vocabulary."

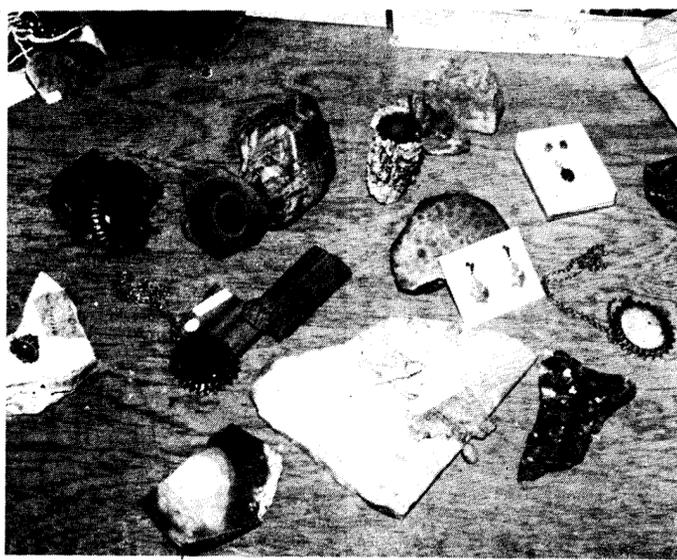

"We have so many interests, we can't get to them all," Jean said, smiling. "I guess we're going to have to work forever."

Mt. Morris man charged with assault

A Mt. Morris man was recently arraigned in Tuscola County District Court on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon and assault.

Billy H. Goss Jr., 29, is accused of assaulting Terry L. Schmitzer with a knife, and assaulting Crystal G. Davis Nov. 13 in Arbeta Township.

Bond for Goss was set at $4,000, and a preliminary examination in the case was to have been held Tuesday.

BEFORE AND AFTER — The Reids use special cutting saws and buffers to turn chunks of rock and gemstone into jewelry and crafts, which are sold at Thumb area craft bazaars and shows.

At Colony House

Thumb Ag Day Dec 11

Thumb Ag Day has been scheduled for Dec. 11 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Colony House, located on M-53 north of M-81 near Cass City.

This program has been an annual event of the Thumb area for many years. It attracts a wide variety of agribusinesses that service the agricultural industry from across the Thumb and provides an opportunity for some educational updates on some selective topics, said Dennis Stein, Tuscola County Extension director.

This year, a large number of exhibitors will be on hand for the day-long event and 2 special educational programs are scheduled.

In the morning, Dr. Larry Hamm, dairy marketing specialist, and Jim Hilker, commodity marketing specialist, both from Michigan State University, will give those in attendance a special update on information related to dairy and general crop and livestock commodities, with an outlook on prices, as well as current legislation and programs that will affect those commodities. In the afternoon, the program will feature a presentation by Lewis Baumgartner, the "World's Worst Farmer."

The Huron, Tuscola and Sanilac Cooperative Extension Service offices jointly sponsor this program and look forward to a large audience this year.

A small fee will be collected for lunch at the Colony House, however, program sessions are free to the public.

Sandusky's long range bombs torpedo Hawks in district

The Cass City Red Hawks showed the effects of 3 tough games in 5 days Wednesday as they bowed to the Sandusky Redskins in the district tourney at Reese, 47-41.

In a reversal of the script in 2 games against Marlette where the team fell behind early and then rallied, Cass City went ahead early and then bowed to the charging Redskins in the last period.

Cass City charged to an early lead behind Jodi LaRoche, who was loosely defended as Sandusky concentrated on Jodi Schember and Jenny Storm. Before Sandusky rectified that mistake, the Hawks got the sharp-shooting post player the ball and she responded with basket after basket.

In the first quarter when Cass City charged to a 16-7 lead, LaRoche was a one-woman scoring machine, scoring 14 of her team's 16 points, the spree broken only by a basket by Storm.

Sandusky showed signs of recovery in the second quarter, riding the talents of Lamara LeGault, who has to be the best freshman player in the Thumb and perhaps the best player, period.

The 2 teams battled almost on even terms in the second period. Storm and Schember carried the load in the low scoring period, Storm with a pair of buckets and Schember with a 3-pointer.

It was one of Schember's 2 field goals of the night as the junior guard experienced a scoring slump with shot after shot just missing, several times spinning around the rim before falling out.

And that was the difference in the game. While Cass City was missing from the outside, Sandusky started hitting. At the end of the quarter the Cass City lead had been whittled down to 5 points and in the first 2 minutes of the last period that lead had shrunk to 2 points, 34-32, as LeGault sank a basket and a free throw.

With 4:05 left, the Redskins tied the game at 39-all on a basket by LeGault and 2 outside bombs by Heather Shampo, one a 3-pointer.

The Redskins forged into the lead for the first time with 2:55 left. The teams then traded baskets, one by Storm and the other by Shelly Ziehm at the 1:55 mark. That was the last time that the Hawks would score and Sandusky ran out the clock with LeGault and Ziehm adding baskets against the pressing Hawks.

LaRoche and Storm shared scoring honors for Cass City with 12 points each. LeGault netted 18 for the winners. The loss ended another successful season. Cass City's season record was 18-3 and the girls were able to come from 2 games down and needing to win every remaining game, which they did, to gain a share of the Blue Bay League title.

The Hawks should be a force in the league next season. Four of the 5 players that started against Sandusky will be returning. Only Jenny Storm will have graduated.

There are 3 other seniors who played key roles during the season. They are Jennifer Fruendt, a starter before injured; Barb Kelley and Heather Kelly.

CASS CITY - J. Schember 1-1 (1-2) 6; K. VanVliet 2-0 (0-0) 4; D. Monroe, 2-0 (1-2) 5; J. Storm 5-0 (2-2) 12; J. LaRoche 6-0 (0-0) 12; B. Kelley 1-0 (0-0) 2.

TOTALS - 17-1 (4-6) 41.

SANDUSKY - H. Shampo 1-1 (1-2) 6; G. Hull 2-2 (2-3) 12; L. LeGault 8-0 (2-3) 18; S. Ziehm 1-0 (2-2) 4; H. Maier 0-0 (1-2) 1; K. Biniecki 3-0 (0-2) 6.

TOTALS: 15-3 (8-14) 47.

Fall to Ashley in regionals

Bulldogs roar in districts

The Owen-Gage Bulldogs ended a successful basketball campaign Monday when they were defeated in the opening game of regional play at Peck. Mentor Dean Roller's cagers were soundly defeated by a powerful Ashley squad, 52-32. The defeat puts the 'Dogs in the record books with a season's record of 20-3, the most wins ever by a Roller coached team.

Port Hope falls, 60-32

As expected, the Owen-Gage basketball team roared into the finals of the Class D district tournament at Caseville Tuesday with an easy win over Port Hope, 60-32.

The only sour note for the Bulldogs was that the team got in early foul trouble that kept the team from taking control early, Coach Dean Roller said.

Against a team with talent close to that of Owen-Gage, foul trouble could spell disaster when a loss ends the season.

Fortunately for Bulldog fans, Port Hope this year was not that team. The Blue Stars had already lost 2 regular season games.

Owen-Gage bounced out to an early first period lead and added to it in every quarter.

For one of the rare times in her illustrious career, Michelle Tkacz was held without a field goal in the first half. Closely checked, she was fouled frequently. That's something that teams should avoid, for in the first 2 periods she converted 5 of 6 from the charity stripe and then added 2 more in as many chances in the last half.

Picking up the scoring slack was Carli Salcido, who scored 11 of her game-high 19 points in the second and third quarters when there was still a little doubt left about the outcome.

Although the Bulldogs have had better offensive nights, Roller said that his charges played good, solid defense. The defense was led by Angie Wildman, who paced the team with 14 rebounds.

The Bulldogs led at the half, 28-19, and lengthened the lead to 14 points after 3 quarters. The flood gates opened in the final period and the Bulldogs pounded the losers, posting a 22-8 advantage.

OG-NH

OWEN-GAGE - L. Ondrajka 0-1 (0-0) 3; M. Tkacz 7-0 (6-13) 20; A. Wildman 4-0 (1-4) 9; C. Salcido 8-0 (4-5) 20; T. Muntz 2-0 (0-1) 4; J. Susalla 3-0 (0-0) 6. TOTALS - 24-1 (11-23) 62.

NORTH HURON - A. Fawcett 2-0 (0-0) 4; N. Symanski 6-1 (3-5) 18; A. Errer 1-0 (0-0) 2; K. Knoblock 2-4 (0-0) 16; J. Bziesky 2-0 (4-4) 8; A. Viers 1-0 (0-2) 2. TOTALS - 14-5 (7-14) 50.

O-G PORT HOPE

OWEN-GAGE - L. Ondrajka 5-0 (2-2) 12; M. Tkacz 4-0 (7-8) 15; A. Wildman 4-0 (0-0) 8; C. Salcido 9-0 (1-5) 19; T. Muntz 1-0 (0-0) 2; J. Susalla 2-0 (0-0) 4. TOTALS: 25-0 (10-15) 60.

If big games make big players, Carli Salcido must feel 7' tall following Friday's district championship game with North Huron.

The Bulldog senior, fresh off a game high 19 point performance in the district opener, rifled in 20 tallies to lead the 'Dogs to a 62-50 win and their 2nd straight district crown.

Leading 28-21 at the intermission, Salcido sparked a 16-7 third quarter run by the winners with 10 of her 16 second half points.

With Owen-Gage ahead 44-28 after a driving basket by Michelle Tkacz, North Huron's Kim Knoblock caught fire and nailed 3 unanswered triples to draw her team within 5 points, 44-39, entering the final stanza.

Waiver makes Federal funds available

EMPLOYEE OF THE MONTH

HILLS AND DALES
GENERAL HOSPITAL
872-2121

LYNETTE WITHERSPOON

Our employee of the month is Lynette Witherspoon. She has recently transferred into our Out-Patient Department. She was elected by her peers for always being cheerful, and willing to learn and help others. They say Lynette is always polite and courteous to patients. Lynette, we are proud to have you on our team.

Michigan has received a federal waiver to apply for federal funds to match private donations made to the Caring Program for Children, announced Richard E. Whitmer, president and CEO of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan.

"We're proud that the Caring Program for Children has been recognized by the Health Care Financing Administration as a program worthy of federal support," said Whitmer. "We'd like to thank the governor and his staff for their help in securing the waiver."

"It's important for everyone to meet the needs of uninsured children in our state," he added. "This is a matching grant; we're not going to get those dollars unless people step forward to make a contribution."

The Caring Program provides free preventive, outpatient health care coverage to lower-income, uninsured Michigan children.

The non-profit program is a unique partnership between Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan, the state of Michigan, the Michigan Health Care Education and Research Foundation and the federal Health Care Financing Administration.

Some 1,400 children have been enrolled in the program since it began last November. About 3,600 are on the program's waiting list.

The Blues donate administrative services to the Caring Program including claims processing, so every dollar raised goes directly to health care coverage for children. A contribution of $354 provides health care coverage to one child for one year.

The federal government will match an average 40 cents for each private dollar donated, up to a maximum match of approximately $6 million over 3 years.

Legislation creating the Caring Program was introduced by state Sen. John J. Schwarz, M.D. (R-Battle Creek); state Sen. Michael J. O'Brien (D-Detroit); state Rep. Michael E. Nye (R-Litchfield), and former state Rep. Teola P. Hunter (D-Detroit). Gov. John Engler signed the bills into law in July 1991.

Contributions in any amount may be mailed to the Caring Program for Children, Department B241, 600 E. Lafayette, Detroit, MI 48226. The donor information line is 1-800-543-7765.

Stable prices

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says consumers will enjoy stable food prices for the remainder of the year and that the average food price increase, based on the consumer price index, will be only one percent for the year.

Prices of meals eaten outside the home will rise only 2 percent for the year, the lowest increase since the mid-1960s.

5th annual Cass City area campaign underway

Organizers of the Cass City raffle. Tickets can be purchased from any Jayces' member or by contacting Joel Palmateer at 872-4666.

"Our goal, as always, is to provide gifts to every needy child on our list," Werschky commented. "Last year the response was good in spite of the economy and a substantial increase in the number of children served. We did have to scale down the value of gifts per child distributed, but every child did receive nice toys."

Other communities around the state were not so lucky. Some families were turned away from the program. Families expecting toys are asked to have an adult at home that day to accept donations. Area families in need can apply to the program through social services or at local churches, where forms are available.

Tuscola landowners enroll 6,000 acres in reserve program

An additional 85,836 acres of Michigan's USDA's district conservationist for Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) were accepted into USDA's recently completed sign-up for the program to reduce soil erosion and protect water quality.

"Office traffic, acreage offered for enrollment and 10 years on land accepted into the Conservation Reserve Program during and after the last sign-up greatly exceeded that of any earlier sign-up," said Dave Claer, executive director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in Tuscola County, where 69 landowners enrolled nearly 6,000 acres into the program. The previous high was less than 3,000 acres for any sign-up period.

Record enrollment is attributed to an extensive campaign to make Michigan land owners aware of the program and the June enrollment opportunity. All land in Michigan was eligible for program enrollment under the Act of 1990, is a program to remove highly erodible land from production and protect water quality. It is administered by USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. The program sign-up was conducted in June.

Court upholds sentence

The Michigan Court of Appeals has affirmed Circuit Court Judge Patrick R. Joslyn in the state of Michigan v. Wayne Allen Whitehead.

Whitehead had pleaded guilty to manslaughter charges against the defendant whose car was struck and killed by Whitehead's pickup truck while they were standing alongside a road. Judge Joslyn sentenced the defendant to 15 years imprisonment.

Whitehead appealed his sentence, claiming Judge Joslyn had erred in scoring his sentence under the sentencing guidelines.

After review of the record, the court of appeals stated that defendant's sentence is proportionate to the seriousness and circumstances surrounding the case and upheld the sentence imposed by Judge Joslyn.

A feast of good reading with new books at Rawson Memorial Library

VOODOO, LTD. by Ross Thomas (mystery). Something less than investigators and more than con men, Artie Woo and Quincy Durant are in the business of cleaning up other peoples' messes - for a very high price. This time they're hired for the seemingly simple task of finding 2 hypnotists who have disappeared in Malibu. Soon the intrepid pair, alone with their cohorts Overby, Stallings, and Georgia Blue, are tracking the murderer of a Hollywood producer, exposing multileveled fiscal shenanigans, and trying to decide which one of their merry band will double-cross the others.

SWEET AND SOUR by Andrew A. Rooney (non-fiction). Andy's curmudgeonly wit and determination to look at the most ordinary of life's oddities make much of his writing timeless. He writes about school reunions, the demise of a favorite old chair, kitchen gadgets, shoes, travel, and the words he'd really like to hear from the loser in a presidential election. He not only takes on politicians, manufacturers, hotel magnates, and presidents; in one column, he tackles an even higher power when he says, "Not wanting to be in any way disrespectful to anyone who had anything to do with the creation of ears...it seems to me ears might have been improved on considerably in appearance."

WHITE JAZZ by James Ellroy (fiction). Shrewd but spectacularly dirty Lieutenant Dave Klein - a contract killer, slumlord, extortionist, strikebreaker, attorney, and all-around brutal slimeball - is hung out as bait in a war between 2 even dirtier, more twisted, more unscrupulous superior officers. Early on, Klein realizes he's a pawn, but decides to see it through to "ducs paying time." But even as he's being used, he's free-lancing for Howard Hughes by tailing one of Hughes' stable of starlets, killing a federal witness for Mafiosi Sam Giancana, working for mobster Mickey Cohen, and matter-of-factly hiring his own hitmen to do his light work.

DONOVAN'S WIFE by Tom Wicker (fiction). Hero Milo Speed is (surprise!) a middle-aged political columnist; the title character is the love of his life, though they parted years ago. She's been married since before they met to Victor J. Donovan, a congressional staffer and later an unrepentant congressman who finally manages to catapult himself into the public eye - and an uphill race against a respected 2-term senator - by exposing a smug businessman as a sometime pornographer. The usual suspects keep the action moving: the imperious party honcho, 2 attack-ad masterminds, swarms of advance men and spin doctors, Washington lobbyists and local politicians, even a scruffy detective who was a G-man in the days of J. Edgar.

KING OF THE CORNER by Loren D. Estleman (fiction). This is part 3 of a trilogy about Detroit. It is set in the present day, during an uneasy experiment in minority rule. Doc Miller's pitching days have ended with the drug-related death of a girl at a party he was throwing. After doing hard time at the Jackson county jail, he's struggling. Then he finds his way to Maynard Ance, a bail bondsman who makes a swell living bending the rules - putting his money on the poor "scrouns" of the neighborhood and making it pay. Ance also has the connections to a militant black outfit, the M & Ms, whose members dwell in that troubled world between heroism and terrorist fervor. And when the cops let it be known that they would like the inside dope, Doc isn't in a position to refuse.

MURDER IN THE RED ROOM by Elliott Roosevelt (mystery). The story is set in early 1937, just as FDR is making his attempt to "enlarge" (critics called it "pack") the U.S. Supreme Court. Two days before the planned announcement of that campaign, a small-time hoodlum from Cleveland is murdered in the Red Room while the Roosevelts host guests - including 7 Supreme Court justices - in the State Dining Room next door. Mrs. Roosevelt joins Secret Service agent Stan Szczygiel and Washington, D.C., police lieutenant Ed Kennelly in scrutinizing the motley crew of suspects for this and a later murder: an Arkansas senator and his daughter, an Ohio congressman, 2 White House lawyers, a stripper (would you believe Stormy Skye?), and a high-priced call girl.

THE GREAT ONE: THE LIFE AND LEGEND OF JACKIE GLEASON by William A. Henry (non-fiction). The author delves behind the "carefully cherished myths" spread by Gleason himself, painting a bleak picture of the star's early deprivation in Brooklyn, which he says makes "The Honey-mooners" dismal tenement setting seem "Giddily romantic." Henry examines Gleason's larger-than-life gestures rather than displaying blind acceptance or admiration of them, and he expresses skepticism about some of Gleason's alleged talents (notably his purported musical skills). Gleason becomes a more complex and interesting figure thereby, one who demonstrated frequently erratic and self-destructive behavior and a consistent cruel streak toward virtually everyone around him. Regardless of his many, well-documented personal flaws, the Great One deserves a great biography, and now he finally has one that does him justice.

Clip and save for future reference

EDUCATION WITHOUT IMPACT: HOW OUR UNIVERSITIES FAIL THE YOUNG by George H. Douglas (non-fiction). Douglas, who teaches English at the University of Illinois, sees the battle over "the Canon" as a mere skirmish in a much more significant campaign to save U.S. colleges and universities from "the stiffening, the lethargies, of old age." "Failure to provide a liberal education, an education for citizenship," Douglas argues, "is the principal defect of our mammoth educational system;" most U.S. universities "are too big, too full of hustle and bustle, too busy doing society's work, to be the sort of place where a vital human transaction can take place" between students and their teachers. Focusing on elitist graduate education, esoteric research, and ever-narrower specialization while giving up the notion that the campus is a community in which young people can learn how to think and how to live as well as how to do, the academy has copped out on its most critical functions. A shift from the German to the British (Oxford-Cambridge) model of undergraduate education lies at the heart of Douglas' prescription to revitalize American colleges and universities.

RISE IN THE WEST: THE TRUE STORY OF AN "OKIE" FAMILY FROM THE GREAT DEPRESSION THROUGH THE REAGAN YEARS by Dan Morgan (non-fiction). As a young man, Dan Morgan was so struck by Steinbeck's Grapes of Wrath, he spent the summer of 1955 on the road sampling Okie life. Even after more than 2 decades of work as a journalist and author, he couldn't get the image of Depression-era, California-bound migrants out of his mind, so he focused on one particular, and remarkable, family, the Tathams. Oca and Ruby Tatham loaded 16 family members and adventurers onto a flatbed truck in 1934 and left dirt-poor Sequoyah County, Oklahoma, for crop-rich Southern California. While short on book learning, they were long on "resourceful pragmatism, physical strength, a flair for improvisation, and a belief in miracles. Members of the energetic and demonstrative Pentecostal church, the Tathams maintained a relationship with God that was personal and direct. Oca soon left the muscle-cramping work of orchards and fields for the challenge of trade, gradually parlaying potatoes and second-hand stores into grocery stores and real estate. The author follows the paths of 3 generations of Tathams, he examines Okie culture, the evolution of the Pentecostal church and California's economic growth, and the once tight-knit Okie community's slow dissolution. By the 1980's Tathams are driving Mercedes but also suffering the traumas and muddles of modern life.

IN MEMORY OF JUNIOR by Clyde Edgerton (fiction). Edgerton adeptly tells the story of how one far-off incident in the related Bales and McCord families of North Carolina has had lasting effect all the way down to the present. Back when her 2 boys were very little, Evelyn McCord ran off from her husband, Glenn Bales. The Bales' family hated her for it and hated her brother, Grove McCord, for defending her actions. Now, Grove is old and wants reconciliation; he wants to be buried back with his kith and kin in North Carolina. Reading this novel is like being newly married into a family and hearing about people and events in snippets and pieces as you get to know individuals better by sitting down and talking with them on Sundays and holidays.

Card of Thanks

A SPECIAL NOTE of thanks: Sometimes the sorrows and joys in life happen on the same day. Sometimes they happen at the same church. On Saturday, Nov. 21, Trinity United Methodist Church needed to do funeral dinners for the family of Shelley Gallagher Foy and for the family of Clayton Hartwick. At the church on the same day was the wedding of James Baker II and Stephanie LaRoche. Thanks to Fr. Paul Bala and the members of St. Pancratius Roman Catholic Church for allowing us to put on a funeral dinner at their parish center. Thanks to Rev. Ken Ray and the members of the Salem United Methodist church for opening their church for the other funeral dinner. Your Christian Love will be remembered. Sincerely, Trinity United Methodist Church. 13-11-25-1

Our 41st year serving Sanilac, Tuscola & Huron Counties

More children at risk in Huron, Sanilac counties, Kids Count study shows

Among upper Thumb counties, Tuscola County saw the biggest increase in the number of kids living in poverty over the past 10 years, but its neighbors to the north and east both have a larger percentage of poor children.

A little over 18.2 percent of Sanilac County's 11,293 children are living in poverty, an increase of about 36 percent since 1980, according to the Kids Count project.

In Huron County meanwhile, 17.7 percent of the county's 9,377 children are poor, an increase of nearly 21 percent.

The following are some of the other study findings released on both counties.

SANILAC

Over the past 10 years, Sanilac County experienced a 6.6 percent increase in the rate of low birthweight babies, a 10 percent jump in its infant mortality rate (11.6 per 1,000 population) and a 48.2 percent increase in child deaths (52 per 100,000), the study shows.

Special education enrollment has increased, as has the number of children receiving food stamps. The county also saw increases in the rate of juvenile arrests and teen violent deaths (126 percent to 150.9 per 100,000).

An improvement was seen in the rate of child abuse and neglect, which was down 42 percent (7.2 per 1,000). In addition, there were fewer high school dropouts and births to teens.

Sanilac County has total population of 39,928, a decrease of 861 people since 1980. The youth population also has dipped, from 12,684 to 11,293.

The county has an unemployment rate of 10.2 percent, and the average income of 2-parent families is $35,453. Nearly 16 percent of the county's children live in single parent families, which earn an average of only $15,792.

Some 72.3 percent of county residents over the age of 18 have high school diplomas.

HURON

Huron County experienced a one percent increase in the rate of low birthweight babies and a 12.7 percent hike in the rate of child deaths (36.2 per 100,000), and more children are receiving food stamps, 1,697 compared to 724.

But the rate of infant mortality fell by more than 34 percent (6.1 per 1,000), as did the rate of child abuse and neglect (down by 4.1 percent to 11.9 per 1,000). Also down were the number of high school dropouts and special education enrollments.

The county didn't fare as well in the rate of juvenile arrests (up 30.5 percent), births to teens (up 4.6 percent) and teen violent deaths (up 99.4 percent to 140.2 per 100,000).

Like many other counties, Huron saw its population drop since 1980, from 36,459 to 34,951. There are also fewer children, 9,377 compared to 10,997.

Huron County's 1990 unemployment rate was 10.1 percent. The average income of families with children was $35,526 for married couples and $12,324 for single parents. Nearly 14 percent of the county's children live in single parent families.

An estimated 68.9 percent of county residents over the age of 18 have high school diplomas.

Child poverty rate up 58% in Tuscola County

Loss of income and instability in the family, along with problems such as substance and child abuse, all affect area children, according to Dillon.

Tragically, one problem often leads to another.

"You don't want to say unemployment is the cause of child abuse, but it's a significant contributing factor," he said. "There is a serious problem, and in fact our complaint base for child abuse and neglect often rivals Bay County's."

While portions of the Kids Count report are discouraging, Dillon indicated he's optimistic the outlook can be improved.

CHANGE NEEDED

A change in philosophical approach is needed, he suggested, adding, "We need to address the causes rather than the symptoms at some point. The problem goes beyond getting someone a check."

Dillon said he believes the welfare reform package that went into effect Nov. 1 "is a good beginning."

Examples of the reform include a requirement that welfare recipients learn new skills, further their education, work or be involved in community service.

The package insures 2-parent families receiving assistance can stay together because they won't automatically lose all their benefits when one becomes employed. It also addresses child support collection issues and expands medical screening and services for children.

Dillon said he's seeing a number of good things in the county, including improvements in education, with children receiving help at an earlier age. Adult education and literacy programs have also taken off.

In addition, volunteer service programs such as Toys for Tots and Christmas baskets are getting a great deal of support.

"I have sensed churches have gotten more active in the last year or so, and that is a real critical factor in dealing with families," he continued.

Sorenson said the goal of Kids Count is to help communities as they attempt to evaluate and improve their investments in children and families.

"All sectors of the state will need to play a role in bringing about change—parents, teachers, community groups, business leaders and all levels of government," she concluded.

Dillon agreed. "It's not something we can ignore," he said. "Things are not getting better for children, they're getting worse in many ways."

For 9-month loans

Pledge grain as collateral

Producers with 1992 crop, farm-stored shelled corn that has been cracked, rolled, crimped or is of dry or wet low-test weight will now be able to pledge this grain as collateral for 9-month Commodity Credit Corporation recourse loans.

This will now give producers that normally would not be eligible to utilize the loan program because of harvesting practices, the opportunity to pledge their corn for a loan.

The general program provisions are as follows:

- The loan rate will be 70 percent of the county non-course loan rate.

- The entire measured quantity will be eligible for a loan.

- If the corn is stored in a structure that cannot be measured, inspected or sampled, the loan quantity shall be limited to 75 percent of the quantity certified by the producer.

- The program does not apply to any other variations of corn, such as silage.

The interest rate for the month of November is 3.125 percent. Producers should contact the Huron County

ASCS office at 269-9549 for further information regarding these loans.

New milk product

Researchers are developing a milk product for the military that can compete against the ever-present temptation of soft drinks. Ordinary, reconstituted, non-fat dry milk is not very popular with soldiers, so scientists are trying to come up with a powdered milk that mixes more easily with water and tastes better.

MSU: weather outlook poor for rest of year

The remainder of the year's not likely to provide favorable harvest conditions. Jeff Andresen, MSU Extension meteorologist, says the 90-day forecast calls for cooler and drier than normal conditions for Michigan and the rest of the upper Midwest.

"Given the jet stream pattern that we see now, we can probably expect a weak northwest to southeast air flow across the Great Lakes and New England," he says. "That should result in outbreaks of Arctic air, enough to keep temperatures below normal. And with that flow pattern, we probably will have less than normal precipitation."

It will be drier than usual because the air flow across Michigan will not be from the Gulf of Mexico, the region's major source of moisture.

That does not rule out the possibility of significant lake-effect snowfall in areas bordering Lake Michigan and Lake Superior. Andresen says confidence and agreement among forecasters are somewhat weak.

"I wouldn't say that the outlook is etched in stone, but I think that the odds for favorable harvest conditions are fairly long," Andresen says. "I think the best tactic is to get the crop out of the field now before further problems arise down the road."

The cool, dry forecast is somewhat of a mixed blessing for the crops that remain in the field," Andresen says. "I think any drier than normal conditions will be appreciated, but low temperatures, even with low humidity, will mean low or very small rates of drying for crops still in the field."

He says that, with the amount of moisture accumulated to date and the outlook, field losses may accelerate if crops are not harvested within the next few weeks.

The 90-day outlook is based on data from the National Weather Service. Andresen says confidence and agreement among forecasters are somewhat weak.

"I wouldn't say that the outlook is etched in stone, but I think that the odds for favorable harvest conditions are fairly long," Andresen says. "I think the best tactic is to get the crop out of the field now before further problems arise down the road."

Ronald Curtis in Navy exercise

Navy Petty Officer 1st Class Ronald J. Curtis, son of Janet C. Curtis of 6570 Elizabeth St., recently participated in UNITAS aboard the dock landing ship USS Portland, home ported in Little Creek, Va.

It was a multinational exercise that brings together ships, aircraft and ground forces of the U.S. Atlantic Fleet, Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Paraguay, Uruguay and Venezuela, under the command of the commander, South Atlantic Force.

Held since 1960, UNITAS involves a series of combined naval warfare exercises designed to improve the inter-operability of U.S. and South American forces at sea.

Curtis visited 19 port cities during the exercise.

The 1976 graduate of Kingston High School joined the navy in August 1977.

Your neighbor says Turkey for holiday

A key part of the Thanksgiving holiday for most families is the dinner. The time when members gather together to share food and hospitality.

That's the way it will be in our family, says Lisa Louder, 20, of Gagetown, whom the Chronicle interviewed at Rawson Memorial Library Friday. I'll be at the home of my folks, Marg and Terry Louder, in Cass City.

We'll have turkey, stuffing and all the trimmings, she smiled. All that good stuff. There will be most of the family members at the dinner, she adds, including my son, Kyle.

Louder now is marking time until next fall. She says that she plans to attend Delta College then, to become a physical therapist.

First-Aid for Burns

Cool water should be used on a burn that is not open or blistered. Rinse the burn under running cool water or submerge it in a bucket or bowl of cool water. The burn can then be bandaged with clean, dry, sterile gauze or it may be left open. If the skin is blistered or open, do not put water directly on it as this increases the danger of infection. The area may be covered with a clean, dry, sterile gauze or bandage. Never use ointment (or butter!) on a burn unless a medical professional directs you to do so.
