Will not rebuild

Siding World gone for good

Siding World officials announced last week they won't be rebuilding the company's lumber facility in Cass City.

Fire leveled the main building at Croft-Clara Lumber/Siding World, 6141 W. Main St., Jan. 31. The structure housed the business' showroom, main warehouse and offices.

The company's decision not to rebuild was explained in a news release issued March 16.

"Once the cleanup process was complete, we began the procedure of looking into our options," said Robert Paquette, president of the Detroit-based firm. "Much time and consideration was given to gathering facts, estimates and details on all the avenues that were available to us."

"After detailed scrutiny of each option we have decided regretfully that we will not be rebuilding the Croft-Clara Lumber Company facility, and will be putting the property and remaining buildings up for sale," he said. "Hopefully they may be of interest to a lumber company looking to expand into the Thumb area."

The decision put 9 to 10 full-time Croft-Clara employees out of work.

Investigators were unable to determine the cause of the Jan. 31 fire. No specific dollar figure has been released on the loss, which is estimated at well over $100,000.

$32,000 drive set for playground

The Cass City PTA along with Campbell Elementary School officials will kick off a major fund raising campaign this week as part of a plan to finance purchase of all new playground equipment for the elementary school.

The campaign will officially get underway during Campbell Elementary's annual open house Thursday from 6 to 7:30 p.m.

"It's exciting. We're looking at a major project," Principal Dave Lovejoy said, adding information on the "Swings and Slides for Campbell Kids" project will be on display.

Parents, grandparents and other school supporters will be asked to "buy" and/or "sell" pieces of the new playground. Lovejoy explained the fund raising activity, sponsored by the PTA, consists of "selling" square foot plots for $10 each. Purchasers will receive a receipt (the donation is tax deductible) as well as an unofficial "deed."

The goal is to raise $10,000 by June 1.

"The project itself is more extensive than that, but in order to get what we want, we need this $10,000," Lovejoy said. He noted the total project cost is estimated at $32,000, but the playground equipment company is willing to install before all the funds have been raised.

Plans call for the purchase of a large deck playground system featuring a variety of slides, platforms, swings and climbing apparatuses. The equipment, which will be wheelchair accessible and meets Consumer Product Safety Code standards, will be installed over a one-foot bed of pea gravel and bordered by timbers. The gravel will be a big improvement compared to the existing dirt playground surface in terms of reducing the risk of injury in a fall, Lovejoy said.

The equipment is to be purchased from Engan-Tooley and Associates, the Michigan-based firm that installed bleachers at the

Leads active life

Deb Jordan controls diabetes

There's no shortage of scary thoughts when it comes to diabetes. Hardening of the arteries, heart attack and blindness are just a few of the complications, not to mention the risk of insulin reaction and diabetic coma.

It can be a frightening disease, but having it doesn't mean you can't enjoy a normal, productive life.

Just ask Deb Jordan.

The personable Cass City High School senior has lived with diabetes throughout much of her life, but considers herself an average teenager who enjoys going out with her friends and planning for the future.

"You can do anything you want to do. You just have to keep it under control," she says.

In a way, Jordan is lucky, according to the American Diabetes Association, which estimates 7 million Americans — 200,000 in Michigan — are unaware they have diabetes and, as a result, are at high risk.

"Because many people do not know the symptoms of diabetes, they may go undiagnosed for years," said Scott Jacober, D.O., president of the American Diabetes Association, Michigan Affiliate. "This lack of awareness is tragic because people often discover they have diabetes only after they are treated for one of the disease's very serious complications.

People at the highest risk of developing diabetes include anyone who is over 30 years of age, overweight, or has a family history of diabetes.

Common symptoms include increased urination, intense thirst, weight loss, poorly healing wounds, tiredness and exhaustion, and frequent infections. Another, less obvious sign, is an abnormally high level of glucose, or sugar, in the blood.

TYPE ONE

Jordan, the daughter of the Rev. Cliff and Linda Jordan, was diagnosed with diabetes after falling very ill at the age of 7.

She has Type I diabetes mellitus, also known as insulin-dependent or juvenile diabetes, a chronic condition in which the pancreas makes little or no insulin.

With a lack of insulin, the body has difficulty converting glucose into energy. Sugar levels increase in the blood and, over a long period of time, damage blood vessels.

Although there is no cure, Jordan controls her diabetes with insulin, meal planning and exercise.

"I started out practicing on oranges," she said of learning how to give herself daily insulin injections, a task her father took care of for the first few years.

While the insulin is key, a balanced diet is very important in maintaining the blood sugar level, she pointed out.

"A lot of it is what you eat, and it's not just food with sugar," she said. "You can eat pretty much everything, but you have to be careful how much you eat because (too much) will raise the sugar level."

Jordan smiled and confided it isn't always easy.

"When you're around your friends and they're eating certain things and you want to eat them too...but you can buy sugarless things that taste just as good."

CONSEQUENCES

The consequences of high blood sugar aren't pleasant, according to the 18-year-old.

"You start to drag and you don't feel like doing anything. Your body wants to quit," she explained. "You start feeling really sick because the sugar level is so high and it just gets worse and worse."

Likewise, a blood sugar level that drops too low causes insulin reaction. "As it gets lower, you start to shake. After a while you don't know what's going on. You can't remember," she said, adding she carries glucose tablets with her in the event that happens.

Even with a good balance of insulin, diet and exercise, diabetes can be unpredictable.

Jordan said sickness wreaks havoc with her blood sugar level, making a common cold or bout with the flu potentially more serious and hang on for longer than it normally would.

Stress also is a factor. In each of the past couple of years, during exam time, she's been hospitalized due to a high blood sugar level. Doctors have increased her insulin injections to 2 per day in an effort to meet the changing needs of her body. Emotionally, Jordan indicated she has her ups and downs.

"Sometimes it gets to the point to where you want to say forget it all, but you can't," she said. "You don't ever really get used to it. I think the hardest thing for me was explaining it to my friends."

"My parents are really supportive and my friends are just great, but when it comes to telling someone who really understands, it's kind of a problem."

PLEASED

Jordan's parents are pleased with the way their daughter has dealt with diabetes.

"It is kind of scary," Cliff acknowledged, adding it's been a learning experience. Please turn to back page.

Russians visit Cass City

"Americans - appreciate what you have"

Americans should appreciate what they have.

The sentiment was offered by Tanya Arhipova, an English teacher from Saint Petersburg, Russia, as she toured Cass City High School with 8 Russian students last Wednesday.

It was a message easily understood by anyone who had an opportunity to talk to Arhipova.

At home, people have things such as television sets and carpeting on the floor, "and we think we live well," she said. Arhipova indicated, however, the standard of living in Russia, the largest of the Commonwealth of Independent States with a population of 148 million, is a far cry from what she has observed in this country.

Arhipova, her husband and the couple's daughters, ages 6 and 10 years, live in a 2-room communal apartment. A third room is home to another tenant, and all of them share a single bathroom and kitchen.

Teachers and physicians are among the lowest paid professions in Russia. Garbage collectors earn more, according to Arhipova.

As a teacher, she earns 9,000 rubles — less than $13 — a month. Her husband earns perhaps 15,000 rubles a month as a meat cutter.

Food and clothing prices change almost daily and vary from store to store, but Arhipova estimated Russians currently pay 60 rubles for a liter (about 2 pints) of milk and 20 rubles for a loaf of bread. A liter of butter costs 1,200 rubles, a kilo (2.2 pounds) of meat is 400 to 600 rubles, a kilo of sausage costs 800 to 1,300 rubles and a kilo of chicken, 650 rubles.

Understandably, gardening is a must, according to Arhipova, who estimated a pair of boots will cost anywhere from 8,000 to 36,000 rubles.

Asked if her husband helps out with chores at home, she replied with a nod. "It's the only way. He works a lot and I work a lot," she said.

Arhipova's day starts at 5:30 a.m. with a 2-hour commute (by bus and train) to school with her daughters. The school, which houses students age 6 to 16 and has a grade 9-12 enrollment of some 1,750, is one of the best in the region, she said, adding the school has computers and offers classes in the arts.

There are other schools closer to home, Arhipova continued, but "I want to give them (daughters) the best education I can give them."

Lessons begin at 8:25 a.m. and conclude at 2:30 to 3 p.m. After returning home, Arhipova spends an hour or so preparing dinner and taking care of household chores such as washing clothes, which is done on scrub boards.

Some of the wealthier Russian families have washing machines, she said, but there are no dryers.

At 6 p.m., Arhipova begins 2 1/2 hours of private tutoring. Later, she prepares for the next day of school before retiring, usually at about 1 a.m. School preparations often mean a lot of copying. There are no copy machines, so when she administers a test to her 35 students, each test must be hand copied.

Arhipova pointed out she has 2 days off each week — Saturday and Sunday. "You should come here to understand how you should live," she remarked as she marveled at the local school facilities during last week's visit.

The tour was arranged by Mary Ann Reidinger, a Cass City High School alumni and sister of school board President Ben Hobart.

The Russians are being hosted by Rochester Adams High School as part of a month-long federal exchange program, according to Reidinger, a counselor at the Detroit area school who wanted to give the students and teacher a day in the Thumb.

"They're getting a chance to see how it is in a small town," Reidinger said.

The trip included tours of Erla's Food Center, area farms and Cass City's recreation facilities. The latter was particularly impressive to the Russian teacher, who expressed a desire for her students to see as much as possible.

She also indicated it would be good for American students to see Russia in the same way.

"People should appreciate what they have," she concluded.

by Melva E. Guinther

According to a recent research report, the average married couple spends 17 minutes a week talking with each other.

Seventeen minutes a week!!! That's 2.4 minutes a day! It seems like you'd use up that much time saying, "Please pass the salt", "Any mail today?" and "Did you lock the front door?", if that counts as conversation. At any rate, I have the solution to improving the situation, and it's as close as the average couple's fingertips. It's the television remote control.

Now don't get excited. I'm not suggesting that you give up TV entirely, only the commercials.

Most commercials assault the eardrums while insulting the intelligence anyway. If you're going to listen to a bunch of strangers with yeast infections, dandruff, gas, and an itch so private they only talk about it with their doctors, you might as well be talking to your spouse.

If you're quick with the mute button, you can spare yourself the commercial agony and free up far more than 17 minutes in a single evening.

It may take a little practice to carry the conversation over from one commercial to the next without losing your train of thought, but it can be done.

With practice, a real pro can stop at "Did you call..."

and pick up with "...the kids today?" at the next break. It's worth the effort.

One of the TV ads that drives me up a wall is the Big Boy commercial where the dopey guy does a lot of stupid things trying to please his stupid wife. I find it revolting.

A very few commercials are cute and entertaining, and some are definitely more realistic than others.

One of the least realistic is the one where the kid yells, "Mom, I spilled grape juice on the carpet!", to which the mother cheerfully calls back, "That's okay."

Now I don't care how blase a mother may be or how good her carpet cleaner is, a grape juice spill is going to elicit at least an "Oh dear!"

Having said that, let me hasten to add that an accidental spill does not warrant berating, much less beating, a child.

Children are more important than carpet, just as people are always more important than things.

Anybody who cares more about his possessions than the people in his life has a much bigger problem than carpet stains.

There's a song that says "Using things and loving people, that's the way it ought to be...not the other way around."

That might be a good topic for discussion with your spouse during tonight's commercials.

Gourmet dining-not

By Jim Fitzgerald

"If I ever guess right on how many crackers you want, I'll feel like I won the lottery," my wife said. I'd just finished eating Sunday dinner - a bowl of soup placed on my footstool handy for sloshing my feet. And saltine crackers. I was brought up in a home where Sunday dinner was always a beef or pork roast, leg of lamb or ham, with mashed potatoes, gravy and a vegetable, plus pie or cake for dessert. It was eaten off a big table in the dining room, with my father carving and my mother - who believed in bringing backseat driving in out of the weather - ordering him to cut thicker slices. Now, the big Sunday meal is breakfast, eaten after church service, in a restaurant, with me picking up the tab and my wife ordering me not to forget the tip. She serves "dinner" in the living room during a "60 Minutes" commercial, one-handed. Gourmet dining it's not, but I make it a practice to never mention my father's Oldsmobile - actually it was an Essex - or otherwise complain about life not being as rewarding as when I was a boy. However, in the serious interest of a sociological study of the differences between male and female, I am compelled to cite the matter of the cracker count.

I realize it can be politically incorrect to suggest men and women are radically dissimilar, other than anatomically. But give me a break. I'm not saying women don't deserve the same pay for the same work. What I'm saying is that recently there were 3 couples enjoying drinks and snacks in the home of Mary Lou, my barely younger sister. The women got up and left the living room, with my wife explaining, "We are going to go look at the shower curtain in the guest bathroom."

Why? Had a droplet picture of Jesus mysteriously appeared on the curtain, or some other ghostly transformation make it unusual enough to warrant viewing by visitors? Had Mary Lou put up velvet ropes to guide tourists to the curtain, but not close enough to touch? No, she said, it was just a regular shower curtain, but pretty. I said if we decided to stay all night, I would look forward to showering behind it. Mary Lou said I couldn't do that because the curtain would get wet. I said I thought shower curtains were supposed to get wet, and Mary Lou said no one could shower behind that shower curtain until she got a liner to protect the curtain from the shower.

You get the point. Three men would not walk together to a bathroom simply to look at a shower curtain, even one allergic to water. Likewise, no man would yearn to be able to predict how many crackers I would eat off my footstool on any given Sunday evening.

When my wife said she'd feel like she won the lottery if she correctly guessed how many crackers I would eat, she meant she didn't want to put uneaten stale crackers back in the cracker box. She complained that when she puts 6 crackers on my plate, I eat 5. And when she gives me 5, I eat 4. And so on. I have the utter gall to eat only what I want, instead of every cracker in sight.

It's the same way with bread for weeknight dinners, eaten in the dining area. She asks if I want bread, and I say I don't know, but put some on the table and I'll take a slice if I'm hungry enough. She grumbles and serves 2 slices of bread triple-wrapped in napkins.

The deal is she doesn't want served-but-uneaten crackers and bread to lose their freshness and later be served to a discerning guest, rather than a slob spouse. The simple answer, of course, is to put an entire loaf of bread on the table, in its original sealed wrapper, and an unopened box of crackers on the footstool.

My wife says she could never do that because it would be terrible etiquette. A man would never say that. A man would politely say please pass the milk, if you can lift 2 gallons.

At O-G schools

Roof work to begin soon

A major roof replacement program in the Owen-Gage School District will get underway early next month.

That was the word from school Supt. Harley Kirby during a special Board of Education meeting Thursday night at Owendale High School.

The meeting was called to approve a resolution authorizing issue and sale of $185,000 in school improvement bonds to fund the project, which will consist of replacement of the entire junior high/high school building roof and a portion of the elementary building roof in Gagetown.

The special bond issue was approved by voters in a special election earlier this month.

Kirby said the work is expected to begin during the week of April 5. The contractor will start with the roof over the high school cafeteria, move onto the elementary school and then complete the high school roof, he added.

In other business during the 30-minute session, the board approved a resolution calling for the annual school election, slated for Monday, June 14, in Gagetown.

Voters will fill 2 expiring school board terms now held by Tom Fritz and Mary Ann Abbe. Fritz recently announced he will not seek another term.

The board also commended the junior varsity and varsity volleyball teams, and the varsity basketball team for their successful seasons.

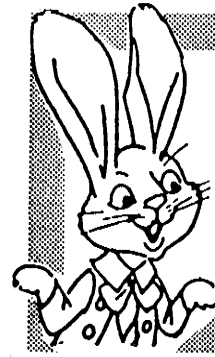

Kingston motorist hurt in Saturday accident

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

You have to have been around town for awhile to remember Ed Retherford. He is the son of Phil Retherford and the older brother of Ralph who runs Fort Store in Cass City.

A native of the community he was an athletic star at Cass City High School. His interest in athletics was only surpassed by his love for hunting and fishing. In his career he was able to stay associated with both at Alpena where he coached and became a charter boat captain.

All this is preamble to what sparked this item of trivia. Mailed to the office by Bill Ritter was a copy of this year's brochure from the Michigan Brown Trout Festival at Alpena July 17-25.

On the cover in full color is a picture of Ed Retherford holding 2 monster brown trout.

Heard from another former resident recently. Jim Wallace, older brother of Dick Wallace and a native of Cass City who now lives in Midland, sent me a post card stored away among his late mother's old photos.

It shows Cass City in 1908 in a picture shot from "the school house."

Strangely enough it cost more to mail the card in 1908 than it did 30 years or so later. The card carried a 2-cent stamp instead of the penny post card that was the standard for many years.

Over the years I have driven by many of the "Steak and Ale" restaurants that have been established in various communities. Last Tuesday at Plymouth I visited one for the first time.

There were 4 of us. Two had the prime rib special for $8.95 (8 ounces), one had the salad bar only and the fourth, a chicken dish.

The best feature of the meal was the the service. It was excellent, there when you needed it, away when you didn't.

The food was acceptable, not great. Total bill including 4 draft beers, $42, plus tip.

My rating on the one to 10 scale, a 5.

The Haire Net

At the table the talk swirled around the abrupt closing of Highland Appliance via the bankruptcy route.

It was pointed out that one area resident had purchased an appliance and paid for it, and when he went to get the goods, no soap.

The doors were locked, literally, on the appliance and, figuratively, on the money he paid. He couldn't get either.

Guys with appliances in for repair are in the same boat.

Now it's probable that eventually the situation will be resolved and all the customers will have endured is inconvenience. It's possible, but not 100 percent guaranteed.

Let me tell you why I have reservations. About 30 years or so ago now, the Chronicle purchased a paper cutter from a printer in Royal Oak. A friend of my former partner said to send him the cash and pick up the cutter in a week or so when he would be through with it. No sooner said than done.

Well, it dragged on for about 3 weeks and suddenly the guy went into bankruptcy.

I duly reported to the court that I had purchased the cutter and wanted to pick it up. Whoa!, said the court. The "friend" reported that the money he received was not for the cutter, but an advance payment for some printing I was going to have him do.

The story doesn't end here. The court ordered an auction of the equipment and I still needed a cutter. A used printing equipment company agreed to bid on the item for me.

Meanwhile, my partner who had no connection with the Chronicle outside of his financial interest, decided to go down and see about a cutter for his operation.

The upshot of the whole bizarre affair was that I, through my agent, and my partner ended up bidding against each other. I got the cutter finally, but it was only a small consolation to know that half of the money my partner's "friend" cost me came out of his pocket.

So you see why I say that the guy who paid in advance should get his money back, or the appliance he paid for, but it's not etched in stone.

Still he has a much better chance than all of the company's unsecured creditors. I've been that route, too.

Judging from my experiences I can predict that before it's over each unsecured creditor will be receiving a mass of documents, but not much else.

An oil stock that I purchased guaranteed that even if I didn't make any money after 7 years I was guaranteed to get my money back.

The question I failed to ask was, from whom? After 7 years my money was long gone and so was the company.

Some people never learn.

Caro HDC receives grant

The Caro-based Development Commission (HDC) has been awarded a grant from the Social Security Administration.

As part of the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) Outreach Demonstration Program, the grant allows HDC to identify individuals who are elderly, blind, or disabled, with low incomes and few possessions, in applying for SSI benefits.

The income a person has and the things owned must be below certain amounts. Other rules also apply.

The basic SSI benefit amount is $434 monthly for an individual and $652 for a couple. In Michigan, this amount may be higher. Those who work may also be eligible for SSI benefits.

The grant also gives HDC the opportunity to identify people who qualify for assistance with the payment of their Medicare premiums.

Individuals who feel they may qualify for these benefits, or who want more information about the SSI program, are encouraged to contact Carolyn Parker at 1-800-843-6394 (673-4121 in Caro).

Letters to the editor

Important local landmark

Save the octagon barn!

Dear Editor,

The historic octagon barn in Elkland Township desperately needs help to save it from demolition. This unique, beautiful barn is slowly deteriorating due to a lack of upkeep and will soon have major structural damage. The Department of Natural Resources now owns the real estate. They do not want to maintain the structures and will remove the barn.

The octagon barn would be a wonderful addition to the Cass City Park. The large size and design could lead to many uses for the entire community. During the winter the center could be flooded to form an ice rink. Concerts could be held inside with seating in the hay loft. The perimeter would provide a great place for exhibits such as antiques, cars, or even a farmers market. A petting zoo would also be possible. A professional barn mover and restorer estimated that dismantling, moving and reassembling the structure would cost $100,000.00. This figure could be reduced with donations of materials and labor. This is a large sum of money but considering the size and unique character of the barn it would be a good investment.

People from all over the world have made a special trip to Elkland Township to the barn. It would be a great asset to the community to promote tourism and also for the residents of Cass City.

Nearly everyone who has seen the barn agrees that it is worth preserving. Unless the community works together an important landmark may disappear forever. Please consider this worthy project and save an important part of the local area's history. The barn may be viewed on Richie Rd., north of Bay City-Forestville Rd., just east of Gageton.

Area service groups are needed to form a coalition to save the barn. For more information please call 872-2334.

Nobody is laughing at prank call

At 5 a.m. this Sunday my phone rang, it was my mother. She just called to see if I was safe and at home. I knew immediately something was wrong.

She told me she received a call at 3:00 a.m. from a young woman saying "Mom, please come and get me, I'm in jail. Believing it was me, she called her by my name several times in the conversation. Upset and half asleep she hurried and drove to Caro on snow covered roads in the early morning, only to find I wasn't there. She then had the police check the other area jails and any women brought in with a name similar to mine. Finding nothing, she returned home to get ready for work, she starts at 5:00 a.m.

After talking to me, finding I was okay, she asked me why someone would do this. I don't have any answers.

My mother is probably the nicest and most caring person I've ever known. She has raised 7 children, mostly by herself. She works hard and is well liked and respected.

A short time ago we found out she needed open-heart surgery. She came through it very well. As a family, we are lucky and grateful we still have her with us.

So if this was just a "prank call," it's not funny and nobody is laughing.

procedure, a written reprimand and a promise from the student that it would not happen again. No, my students don't hang out the windows and yes, they will occasionally move in their seats. They are kids. I maintain discipline but I don't run a marine camp, I'm not a D.I.

We, as drivers can do our jobs if the kids know that we have the backing from home. That's where it has to start. If it is as bad as the lady says, it would be chaos and you wouldn't be able to drive.

I have met many of my other parents and they are upset with the article. Do we need monitors? So it cost the school district more money and cameras so little Johnny knows he's being watched? I have a very good bunch of kids. Let me keep it that way.

THIS CAST OF Cass City High School students will perform "This is a Test," the first of 2, one-act comedies scheduled for Thursday and Friday starting at 7:30 p.m. at the high school.

Cass City all-school play

Students set to serve up comedy

Residents who attend this year's all-school play at Cass City High School will get a double dose of comedy.

Students will present a pair of one-act plays Thursday and Friday starting at 7:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria. Admission is $2.50 for students and $3 for adults.

The first of the 40-minute comedies, "This is a Test," is a student's worst nightmare brought to life.

Senior Laura Langenburg plays Janet, a student caught in the nightmare of taking a semester exam while her fellow students, played by junior Kelli Opal and sophomores Kim Barnes and Ian Guernsey, cheat, ask questions and create general chaos. The students are rounded out by the stereotypical brilliant athlete, played by junior Ryan King. The teacher, played by senior Julia Milligan, seems oblivious to all except Janet. Further humor is created by a chorus composed of juniors Mark Kubacki and Stephanie Mohr, and sophomore Whitney Osentoski. Even the pleasant aspects of the "dream" are marred by a too-perfect mother, senior Amy Osantowski. The second play is entitled "Cheating Cheaters" and features 2 characters, played by seniors Roxanne Rutkoski and Corie Churchill, who are pretending to be nuns in an effort to provide for themselves and their orphaned niece. Their scheme for earning a living is complicated by a crooked cop, junior Ryan King, and a medical student moonlighting as a cat burglar, played by senior Bill Johnson.

Unionville man in serious condition

A Unionville area resident whose pick-up truck left Bay City-Forestville Road and slammed into a tree last week remains hospitalized in the burn unit at St. Mary's Medical Center, Saginaw.

Larry Heinitz, 36, Unionville, was listed in serious condition Monday afternoon, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The accident occurred at about 6:20 a.m. March 16. Michigan State Police at the Caro post reported Heinitz was driving east on Bay City-Forestville Road just east of Gageton when he hit an icy spot and lost control, leaving the road and hitting a tree.

The engine compartment of Heinitz' pick-up truck caught fire upon impact, according to fire fighters at the scene, who said a nearby resident arrived shortly after the crash and worked to put the flames out.

Rescue units from the Elkland Township and Elmwood-Gageton fire departments extricated the driver from the wreckage.

He was transported to the hospital by FlightCare Helicopter, according to troopers, who were assisted at the scene by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

Not happy with lotto, assessments

There may be things that the State of Michigan is doing well, but running the lotto or uniformly assessing property are not among them, says Robert Popovich, 47, of Snover.

The state keeps changing the rules to benefit the state, not the player, Popovich points out. It used to be that picking 5 of 6 numbers right automatically qualified the player for a prize. Now it merely enables them to pick a bonus ball to win $50,000. The minimum bet is now doubled from $1 to $2.

Popovich doesn't like the new lotto, but he is much more upset about the way assessments for property are handled.

As a property owner in Evergreen and Novesta townships, he says that both of them are basing data on insufficient evidence. He has traced property transfers in both Evergreen and Novesta to build his case.

He has been fighting the assessors for 6 or 7 years now. You don't know how hard it is to get before the State Tax Tribunal, he says bitterly. He said that he now has a date this spring to plead his case.

Popovich has been a Snover resident for 11 years. He moved to the area from the suburban Detroit area. Married, he and his wife, Sandra, have 2 children, Jacob, 20, and Janell, 12.

He is a self-employed sign painter.

Police investigate theft

Cass City police are investigating a complaint involving the theft of a radar detector and 20 cassette tapes from a car.

The complaint was filed by Larry S. Turnbull Jr. of Cass City, who told police the theft occurred sometime after noon March 14 and before 3 p.m. March 17. Turnbull, who noted his vehicle was parked and unlocked, also reported a scratch on the driver's door. Damage was estimated at $50.

The stolen property is valued at $200, according to reports.

LOW FAT DIETS PROTECT AGAINST CANCER

There are a number of dietary changes we can make to lower our chances of getting certain types of cancer. One of these is lowering the fat in our diet.

Studies of countries that have low fat in their diet, indicate that they have less chance of getting cancer of the colon, breast, prostate and endometrium (the lining of the uterus). The average American eats about 40-45% of his calories as fat. This is roughly what a pizza or fast-food hamburger contains. By lowering one's fat intake to 30%, the chance of cancer appears to be cut by at least a third for the colon alone.

How can you decrease the fat in your diet? You should eat more foods with complex starches such as breads and cereals. It is also very good to eat fruits and vegetables.

You can use skim milk products rather than whole milk, skim the fat off soups before serving and use non-stick cookware.

Some cuts of meat that are relatively low in fats are sirloin tip, round steak, rump roast and chuck arm roast. It is also good to eat fish and chicken frequently.

It is better to bake, broil, or roast meats so the fat can drain off rather than frying and sauteing.

You should only slowly make changes in your diet towards healthier foods. Rapid changes seldom last. Experiment with new dishes and find ones you like--no one will stay on a diet that he doesn't enjoy.

Township annual meets set

Residents who have a gripe or praise about what's going on in their township will have an opportunity this weekend to voice their opinion to their elected local officials.

Most area townships will hold annual meetings Saturday afternoon. One exception is Elkland Township, where the annual session will be held April 12 following the Township Board's April monthly meeting. Times and places for the annual sessions are outlined in a chart accompanying this story.

Light attendance has prompted some townships to do away with the annual meeting altogether. But officials in those units which continue to meet each year encourage residents to attend and voice concerns or questions they might have.

Aside from a review of the past year's revenues and expenditures, township boards discuss proposed spending plans and other important issues such as road construction and repair.

The electorate's voting power at the annual meeting has diminished over the past several years, but residents still have the authority to accept or reject salary increases for elected officials, and the proposed purchase, transfer or sale of township property.

YOUR FEET

Dr. Judi Ecker D.P.M. -PODIATRIST-

FITNESS ACTIVITIES REQUIRE SPECIAL EQUIPMENT..SO DON'T FORGET YOUR FEET

The desire for a healthier body through exercise can place a grueling demand on your feet. Now, more and more "fitness seekers" are sporting a secret weapon-ORTHOTICS.

These special shoe inserts are manufactured in special laboratories and are designed to stabilize the feet and align the body properly during each step.

In a recent survey of 347 distance runners who had worn orthotics in athletic shoes to relieve knee, foot, ankle, shin and hip pain, 75% reported complete recovery or great improvement.

To determine whether you are a candidate for orthotics, look at your shoes: If the soles are worn unevenly or if the upper part of the shoe deteriorates quickly, your feet may be unstable.

If you're considering a higher fitness activity level, these customized shoe inserts may be just what the Doctor ordered.

For information regarding orthotics or any other foot or ankle problem, call the physicians at Northeastern Foot Clinic.

Lakers bow Prospects bright for 1993-94 hoop teams

Basketball in the Thumb ended Friday when the Lakers lost to Flint Hamady in overtime in the Class C regional finals at Cass City High School, 68-67. It was a game that kept spectators in the packed house on the edge of their seats all night.

The loss was especially hard for the Lakers who seemed to have the game won in the final seconds after trailing by a few points all night.

Probably the key play of the night came with 4 seconds left in the last quarter. The Lakers had scored to go in front by 2 points. Hamady took the ball out of bounds under the Laker basket and tossed it to midcourt. The player who caught the ball immediately called time out after placing the ball in his arms so his hands could signal for the time out. The referee immediately blew the whistle.

When play stopped the clock still showed 4 seconds left, not one second had elapsed.

When play resumed Hamady had time to take a quick shot which missed. But the winners got the rebound and put it in as the final whistle blew.

In the overtime Hamady forged in front on a 3-point bucket by Kenyada Dent. Jason Krohn then drove the length of the floor for a driving lay-up that bounced off the rim as the final horn sounded.

It appears as if next year the Blue Bay League will be hotly contested in its final year with 3 teams among the strongest in the area.

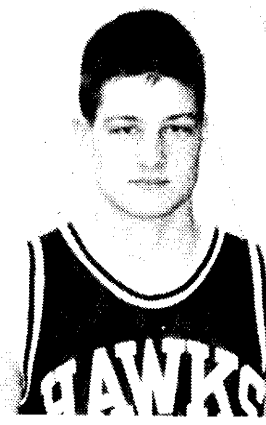

The Lakers lose 2 of their top players, Justin Maust and Jason Krohn, but have a strong cadre of juniors, plus the emergence of freshman Seth Maust as a genuine varsity player and possible future star to bolster the team.

Marlette has the makings of a very good team with players joining the varsity from the junior varsity which handed the Hawks' strong JV squad its most one-sided loss of the year.

Cass City loses 4 starters from this year's championship team, but has Paul Ulfig, who many regard as the league's top player and Steve Muska the first man off the bench returning.

In addition next year's juniors who will play key roles will be Scott Iwankovitsch, Jason Morgan, Kevin Storm and others.

Each year coaches like to say that the league will be balanced. That means, usually, there will not be any outstanding squads. Next year it will be balanced with 3 of the stronger squads of recent years.

Cass City essay winners announced

Three students from Cass City Intermediate School have been named local winners in the 24th annual America & Me Essay Contest, sponsored by Farm Bureau Insurance.

The 3 students, who earned the first, second and third place awards for their school, respectively, are Amanda Deering, Jessica Frederick and George Cole. All 3 received award certificates for their achievement. As the school's first place winner, Deering's name will also be engraved on a plaque for permanent display in the school.

Deering's essay now advances to the state level competition, from which the top 10 essays in Michigan will be selected. The top 10 statewide winners, who will be announced in May, will receive plaques and U.S. savings bonds valued from $500 to $1,000. In addition, the top 10 essayists will be honored at a banquet in Lansing and at a meeting with Michigan's top governmental leaders in late May.

A team of finalist judges that includes top governmental leaders will determine the statewide winners. Several thousand eighth grade students from almost 500 Michigan schools participated in the 1992-93 America & Me Essay Contest, which was conducted with the help of Farm Bureau Insurance agents across the state. The topic of the 1992-93 contest was "Why I Am Important To America."

Started in 1968 and open to all Michigan eighth grade students, the contest encourages Michigan youngsters to explore their roles in America's future.

Cass City band earns top rating

The Cass City High School band received a Division I rating at District Festival competition at Laker High School Saturday. This top honor is the first for the high school since 1983, and comes just 2 weeks after the same accomplishment for the middle school.

The band was given four "I"s and one "II" rating in 5 separate categories. Cass City was one of only 4 bands to receive a I in sight-reading at the festival, and Cass City and Vassar were the only 2 Class C bands to earn a final I rating for the day.

The high school band will go to State Band Festival competition Saturday, April 24. The location for this festival will be announced. Band Director Mindy Nash hopes parents and community members will attend and support the band. "The high school students deserve a lot of credit, not only for how they played but also for how well they represented Cass City while they were guests at Laker's."

CASS CITY students (left to right) Amanda Deering, Jessica Frederick and George Cole have been named local winners in the 24th annual America & Me Essay Contest.

Fire destroys $12,000 tractor at Severances

Elkland Township fire fighters responded to a pair of fire alarms March 16.

The first came at 11:51 a.m. and involved a chimney fire at the Antoinette Stachura residence, 1572 N. Crawford Rd. No damage estimate was available.

The second alarm sounded at 7:40 p.m. and sent fire fighters to the Lloyd Severance farm, 6003 Severance Rd., where a tractor was reported on fire.

The tractor was in a tool shed, according to Fire Chief Milt Connolly, who said family members were able to pull the machine out before the shed caught fire.

Connolly said it's believed an electrical short is the cause of the blaze. He added the tractor, valued at $12,000, was a total loss.

Giant corn

Crop scientists are taking a close look at giant size tropical corn. The corn stalks grow about 5 feet higher than conventional corn. These tropical hybrids need less fertilizer and the tightly wrapped husks discourage insect pests from getting inside to feast on the kernels.

National Poison Prevention Week

March 21-27, 1993

Don't Let Child's Play
Become A Dangerous Game--
Make Poison Prevention
Your Daily Aim!

This year alone an estimated 135,000 children under the age of five will become victims of accidental ingestion of harmful medications and household products.

But fortunately, there are many things you can do to help keep your "young explorer" from making a tragic discovery.

Isn't it worth taking the time to check for and correct these potentially risky situations around your home?

1. Keep household products and medicines out of sight and out of reach from curious hands. A locked cabinet or closet is your safest option.
2. Remember, children act fast. Never leave a cleaning product or medication in sight, even to answer the doorbell or phone.
3. Close all packaging tightly before storing. Insist on childproof packaging whenever possible.
4. Store cleaning products and medicines in a separate place, away from food. Keep all products in their original containers.
5. Children learn by imitation. Avoid taking medications in front of them or drinking from the bottle.
6. NEVER refer to medicine as "candy". It's easy to see how this deceptive play could lead to disaster.
7. Don't overlook your garage, attic and other storage areas for potentially hazardous situations.
8. Being prepared can save a life. Keep the telephone number of your doctor, hospital or local poison control center in a handy place. Learn what to do in case of accidental or suspected poisoning.

These important safety tips are brought to you by the concerned local businesses featured on this page.

All work displayed should be finished and made into a completed article and preferably not previously displayed in other library needlework shows.

This special program is sponsored by The Friends of the Library. More information is available by calling the library at 872-2856, or Marian Keating at 872-3393.

Deb Jordan family adjusts to diabetes for the family.

After Deb's diagnosis, he said, "We learned a lot. We got pamphlets and books and changed our diets. We did find out that the diabetic diet is expensive" because it requires a lot of fresh vegetables. "It's cheaper to eat the junk," he joked.

Over the years, Cliff continued, Deb has learned to manage her diabetes on her own.

"We've stayed right out of it the past year or so. She's got a good, good grasp of it," he commented. "It's been really fascinating to watch her develop and grow and do artificially what the body is supposed to do. She's handling it very well. We're real proud of her."

Like her peers, Deb is planning for her future, which includes attending classes at Delta College and possibly a career in elementary education. But she wonders how diabetes will affect some aspects of her future, such as marriage and children.

Still, she doesn't dwell on the negative. "You just have to really take good care of your body," she concluded.

"That's what counts."

"It's something I can't change, so you just keep on living."

Launch drive for playground equipment

"It's the best equipment on the market," remarked Lovejoy, who indicated the company's detail to safety is unmatched. In addition, he said, the system is built in such a way that other pieces could be added in the future if desired.

"We've looked into at least 4 companies and we liked what this one offered as far as features, safety and warranty," commented Joan Helwig, PTA chairperson.

Helwig pointed out a committee of teachers, PTA members, parents and administration officials has been planning and studying the project since last fall. "It's a joint effort," she said. "We're all working together on this."

"One thing we're trying to stress is that it's going to be a facility for the whole community," she added. "We're even hoping down the road to add some benches and maybe some picnic tables."

Funding for the playground equipment is expected to come from a number of sources.

Aside from the sales of the square foot playground plots, students have already raised $220 through popcorn sales. A 2-week "Pennies for the Playground" fund raiser was kicked off Monday and a candy sale next fall is expected to net a substantial amount — past sales have raised as much as $9,000 to $10,000.

In addition, the school district is expected to kick in some money, and Campbell Elementary has about $5,000 in a special projects fund, Lovejoy said.

"So it's a realistic goal," he added. "The timing's right, especially with the PTA" taking an active role. "Hopefully, with a cooperative effort, we can get this for the kids."

As for the existing playground equipment, most of which has been in place for 20 to 25 years — since the school was built — some pieces will be shifted to other locations and some pieces will be removed altogether due to age.

It's hoped the new playground equipment will be installed this year. "We'd like to have it in place for the kids next fall," Lovejoy said.
