Two van thefts in as many days last week landed 4 Cass City students in hot water, including a 14-year-old boy who, police say, was the driver in both incidents.

Quick action by Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies Jim Jashinske, Jim Compo and Dave Bezenah resulted in the apprehension of 2 Deford teens within 3 hours of the first theft, reported Dec. 13. However, the van involved sustained extensive damage when the youths lost control of the vehicle and rolled it in a ditch northwest of Unionville. The 1990 Lumina van, owned by Jeri Tordai of Cass City, was taken from the IGA store in Cass City at about 10:30 a.m., according to deputies, who said Tordai's daughter had stopped at the store to make a delivery, and left the vehicle running.

The boys walked almost 3 miles to a Fuelgas store on M-25, where one of them called his grandmother and asked for a ride. The store owner, suspicious of the situation, called deputies, who arrived minutes later and apprehended the pair. The driver told deputies he wanted to get away from his parents, and the 13-year-old passenger stated he just went along for the ride. However, Jashinske said the younger boy had in his possession $110 in cash and a silver dollar, all taken from a purse left in the Tordai van. Deputies released the boys

The Cass City Village ($6,500). Council Monday adopted a proposed 1995 spending plan totalling $1.72 million, a decrease of some $82,400, or about 4.5 percent compared to 1994.

The new budget along with a revised 1994 budget were adopted following a brief public hearing.

Actual expenditures for the current fiscal year are estimated at $1.804 million. Revenues, meanwhile, are plant ages. set at $1.806 million, leaving a year-end fund balance of $542,000.

Village officials plan to use $46,300 of the surplus to balance the 1995 spending plan. Village President L.E. Althaver outlined the new budget, noting property tax revenue, set at $469,550, includes a modest increase of about $14,000 over 1994 based on property values and new construction. No millage increases are planned, he said.

On the expenditure side, Althaver pointed out the council has approved raises of 3.5 percent for all village employees.

Major purchases for the coming year include a replacement patrol car for the police department ($18,800), he added, and the cost of waste disposal will be down by some $17,500 with the ing Jordan's current debt. In discussing the village individual funds, Althaver costs would go up; I think it pointed out it appears the is also safe to say it would water and wastewater funds will be able to hold their own this year, meaning water and/ or sewer rate hikes won't be sought.

Deficits in the funds have been a problem in recent years, in part due to increased maintenance costs as the wastewater treatment

JORDAN UPDATE

In other business during the monthly meeting, the council discussed but took no action on a proposal to declare Jordan College in default of its lease agreement with the village.

Althaver last month proposed taking back the 14,000-square-foot Jordan building and forgiving the college's existing $77,000 debt. He recommended that Cass City continue making lease payments, use a portion of the building for badly needed village office space and rent the remainder to Jordan and other schools, businesses and/or governmental agencies.

The recommendation was based on the college's struggling finances and apparent inability to meet long-term

Ground was broken, Saturday, Dec. 10, by Herron Builders of Cass City to begin Marshall's 2-year planned expansion program. This phase will effectively double Marshall's customer service, administrative office area. The additional space is needed to allow for a continuing growth pattern that has established Marshall's as a leader in their field. This phase is expected to be completed in the spring of 1995. day.

Albert Sleeper would be proud if he were around to see the library that bears his name in the village of Ubly. Work has been all but completed on renovation and expansion of the Sleeper Public Library, which now houses a new senior citizen center. The project has been 2 years in the making and cost more than a half a million dollars.

Library officials are planning a grand opening soon, although a date hasn't been set yet.

"It's really been a community effort," Janice Schrader, a library board member, commented as she surveyed the renovated facility last week.

Sleeper Public Library is among the oldest buildings in the village. Originally Citizens Bank, it was constructed in 1907.

The library was created in May 1908, according to library board President Lillian Lowell, who explained Albert Sleeper, who later went on to become Michigan's governor, presented to the village the library in quarters above the bank. The gift included 2,500 volumes, heat, lights, equipment and a librarian's salary.

Schrader said the recent renovation work was made possible, in part, through the efforts of the Huron County Economic Development Corporation and its director, Carl Osentoski, who helped the board apply for a $500,000 Community Development Block Grant.

The application was successful, and the library board chipped in with a $25,000 match.

From there, Schrader said, "We formed a steering committee of local citizens and took over."

SENIOR CENTER

"They were looking for a community-based project, and one of the ideas that was generated was a senior citizen center," Osentoski said, noting seniors in the past have met at the township hall and other locations.

Osentoski, who lives in the community, pointed out Ubly's population includes a higher than average percent-Please turn to back page.

The Porters are a fairly typical American family - 2income, 3 kids, a dog and a cat. They live outside of town and keeping up with school activities, scout meetings, piano lessons, church events and work adds up a lot of miles on their '91 minivan and '94 sedan.

Granny, who had come for the holidays, had discovered early in her stay that it was best to keep out of the way during the chaotic period before the family left for work and school in the morning.

Lunch money had to be hunted up; permission slips, forgotten until the last minute, had to be signed, and schedules had to be juggled to accommodate each family member's accelerated busyness of the Christmas season.

This morning, sorting out the schedule was even more hectic than usual. Someone had to buy and wrap presents for the gift exchange at the company party that evening, pick one kid up from piano lesson and get another to scout caroling. Fortunately, Granny elimi-nated the problem of getting a sitter for the youngest.

Surveying the disaster area after they finally left, Granny could only heave a sigh. Coffee cups, half glasses of milk and partially eaten slices of toast were scattered on every available kitchen surface, along with the lunch box forgotten by the middle child.

Wet towels and discarded pajamas littered the bathroom and hallway.

Wrapping paper, ribbon, scissors and Scotch tape were strewn about the living room and cluttered the dining room table.

As she rinsed the dishes and noticed the snow that began to fall, Granny thought long-fury School was dismissed at noon and the kids tumbled noisily and happily out of the bus shortly thereafter.

By mid-afternoon the storm had been declared an honest to goodness activity-crippling blizzard and Mr. and Mrs. Porter headed for home early too.

During dinner, the first in recent memory when the family had all sat down at the table together, the electricity went out, cutting Tom Brokaw off in mid sentence. The silence was awesome.

No music blaring, no TV commercials. Even the telephone was still. It seemed as though the world had been wrapped in a giant white muffler.

As the family clustered holiday warmth later, Granny was again reminded of Christmases long ago. They laughed. They talked.

And they listened! They read the Christmas story from the Bible by candlelight and sang carols. By bedtime, the storm had subsided and it was generally agreed that the snow plow would probably have them out by tomorrow and things would return to normal.

But in the stillness of that night, as the sparkling white blanket covered the earth outside, Granny and the others were aware of a glow within the house that remained after the last candle had been snuffed out.

About 65 people gathered at St. John's Parish hall in Ubly Sunday for a "Tree of Re-membrance" holiday service.

The event was hosted by John Smigielski on behalf of Zinger-Smigielski Funeral Home of Ubly and Smigielski Funeral Home of Minden City.

The Christmas "Tree of Remembrance" was decorated with ornaments that 2397. had been personally inscribed and decorated by family members and friends. The special holiday program was held to recognize and pay tribute to the memory of Women air progressive celebration

The Owendale Women's Club held its second progressive Christmas celebration Dec.12.

The first stop was Barb McCallum's home, where the ladies were greeted by Christmas music on piano by her daughter Robin. Hors d'oeuvres and eggnog were served.

Janet Retford then welcomed the ladies to her home, where there were many handmade holiday decorations, including several birds. Delicious clam chowder was served.

The group journeyed on to the home of Linda Roe, where lighted candles greeted them at the entrance, and Christmas decor filled the home. Two salads were enjoyed with her.

Mary Lou Lorencz hosted the main course. Stuffed turkey roll, squash and a green bean bake were served with the help of Joyce Sheldon and Alice Ricker. Lorencz' home featured some unique ways to display candles.

The final leg of the evening ended at the home of Faith Fahrner, where the Christmas theme focused on her decorated family basement room with many homemade ornaments and a traditional tree, under which the names drawn previously were exchanged.

The January meeting will be at the home of Jeannette McDonald. The theme will be doll collecting, and a guest speaker is planned.

Infectious mononucleosis, or "mono", is an infection caused by a virus similar to herpes. It is well-known for the rather severe symptoms it causes in teen-agers and young adults.

It often starts out much like strep throat with a sore throat, swollen glands, and a fever. Severe tiredness usually becomes the predominant symptom and the person may be bed-ridden for days or even weeks.

About half the time the spleen enlarges along with the lymph glands of the neck. The enlarged spleen can rupture and bleed internally, especially if there is any trauma such as skiing falls. An enlarged spleen should be followed until it improves.

Occasionally the liver is involved with hepatitis-like symptoms, and the skin may show a rash. If antibiotics such as ampicillin are used, the rash is much more likely to develop.

Mono is spread through body fluids, especially oral secretions. Thus, the virus is usually spread through kissing or communal use of eating utensils, but mono is not particularly contagious. A person does not develop the infection unless the conditions are right. People who have had the illness frequently continue to excrete the virus for years, so exposure can occur at any time.

There is no specific treatment for mono. Antibiotics do not help but in more serious cases steroids may be used to alleviate the symptoms. Other important things to do are rest, use pain pills and throat lozenges, and treat the symptoms until the person feels better.

The odds must be astronomical against having a non-actor from Cass City appear in a motion picture.

Well, the town defied the odds not once but twice in the same year. Joe Merchant appeared in "Gettysburg." Now "The War", that starts Friday at the Cass Theatre, has another couple with Cass City roots in it. Becky and Brad Gohsman, formerly of Cass City who now live in Georgia, are among the extras in the show.

It was Bloomfield Township Officer Steve Bollan who pulled Betty over after her illegal turn. He was wearing a uniform and badge but driving an unmarked car, which worried Betty. She said she'd recently seen a TV report about citizens victimized by phony cops in fake uniforms.

So, cracking the car window just a bit, "I asked the officer to show me some further identification. He refused, pointing to his badge and saying that was enough. When I insisted, he seemed irritated."

A YEAR-OLD MISTAKE

Betty thinks that irritation may have prompted what she called her undeserved, "nasty" treatment. "The officer took my identification to his car and stayed there a long time. Then he came back and said I was under arrest. I couldn't believe it."

some people and come up with the following information: The service was fair, and the prices moderate to good. On the old scale, it scores a 2.

United Way tops '94 goal by $7,000

Generosity is alive and well in the Cass City area.

Cass City United Way officials last week announced donations in the 1994 campaign have topped $26,000, easily surpassing this year's goal of $19,000

Donations, as of Friday, totaled $26,284, according to United Way President Dale McIntosh, who said contributions continue to flow in following the annual campaign, which officially began Oct. 15 and concluded Nov. 15. A majority of the funds will be distributed to area organizations in the spring, but a portion has already been spent on the Cass City United Way's annual Christmas Basket program. McIntosh said United Way officials, with the help of volunteers from the Cass City High School Student Council, will distribute about 90 baskets to families in the community Thursday morning.

Big payoff in public investment

A new report from the University of California says there is substantial payoff from public investment in agriculture research and extension. One of the report's findings estimates the annual rate of return at about 20 percent. The authors of the study say increased farm productivity was largely due to improvements in technology, and better technology clearly results from public and private research and information dissemination.

New doctor welcomes return to rural setting

Dr. Ernest J. Sorini, M.D., isn't an old timer, but he can remember being treated by a doctor who made house calls in the rural area where he grew up.

Sorini, who will begin accepting patients in Cass City next month, is medical director for Family First Community Health Services, which will be located in Dr. Richard Hall's former office across from Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Sorini says he's looking forward to returning to a rural setting, having been born and raised in southwest Montana and personally experiencing the hardships encountered in rural, medically underserved areas.

"I like to regard myself as a simple country doctor because basically that's what I am," he commented.

Sorini, who is certified in emergency medicine, has been a Fellow of the American College of Emergency Physicians since 1982.

He earned his medical degree from the Medical College of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, Wis., and did his post graduate training in general surgery and neurosurgery. He has served as an emergency medicine staff physician at several hospitals in Salt Lake City, Utah; Ann Arbor and Detroit. He was the emergency medical director at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne from 1981 through 1993

Sorini has established and directed 4 urban primary care medical centers in the metropolitan Detroit area. As clinical director, he organized and supervised a comprehensive program utilizing physician assistants and nurse practitioners. He is also the medical director of RN Home Health Care, Ltd. This year, Sorini changed his medical practice focus to emphasize the development of health centers in areas facing a shortage of health professionals.

"This will be our first rural clinic," he said of Family First's move to Cass City. "It's going to be a family practice.'

Sorini emphasized Family First's devotion to fitting into the community. What that means, he explained, is recruiting people who want to work in a rural setting. "We try to get as perfect a match as possible," added. Sorini's physician assistant, Ken Was, is a good example. Was, who has worked with Family First in Westland for the past 8 years, has family ties to Cass City. Although Was is a licensed family medicine specialist, he also has an interest in pediatrics care.

Sorini said utilization of physician assistants and nurse practitioners is a vital part of Family First's approach to health care.

These professionals enable a practice to expand care because their ability to treat minor complaints such as throat infections and bronchitis, allows the doctor to focus on more serious prob-

Kingston stays undefeated with easy Owen-Gage win kept its record unblemished with an easy 83-61 win over visiting Owen-Gage Friday in North Central Thumb League action.

The Cardinals (3-0) used a 45-22 run during the contest's 2 middle quarters to keep the Bulldogs from recording their first win of the young campaign.

Coach Jim Brinkman's cagers will look for that win tonight (Tuesday) when they entertain North Huron. The Warriors, however, are considered one of the NCTL an opening night loss to Ubly Kingston used a balanced assault during the second stanza and captured a 42-23 advantage at the break. The hosts got a pair of hoops from 5 different players, including McLaughlin, who tossed in 11 of his team high 13 points during the opening half.

The Cardinals extended their lead to 60-33 heading into the final period as Tim Marquardt scored 9 of his baker's dozen during an 18-11 spurt.

Owen-Gage outscored Kingston 27-23 in the final frame, thanks in part to the outside shooting of Chad Jahr, who nailed 2 jumpers from behind the 3-point arc. Austin Brinkman, who went scoreless in the opening quarter, led the Bulldogs

Cass City wrestlers 8th at Marlette

Cass City Red Hawk wrestlers turned in disappointing performances last week at the Marlette Invitational Saturday and a triangular meet Wednesday.

At Marlette, Cass City finished eighth among 10 teams, scoring 50 points. Imlay City won with 153 1/ 2 points. Other results: Lapeer West, 140; Marlette, 120; Bad Axe, 117; Yale, 89 1/2; Mayville, 57; EPB Lakers, 55; Brown City, 45, and Almont, 36.

The Hawks earned just 3 medals. Best finish was by Bob Davis, 126 pounds, second. Don Pisha, 112 pounds, was third, and Chris Revis, 134 pounds, fourth. In the triangular meet, Bad Axe topped Cass City, 37-27, and Essexville-Garber rolled to a 63-9 victory.

Pure juice

The Michigan Department of Agriculture says that strict enforcement of tough apple cider standards in Michigan means that you can be confident that Michigan-made cider and apple juice is free of harmful E. coli bacteria. All of Michigan's 130 apple juice and cider processing facilities are inspected at least once per year to ensure compliance with stringent sanitary requirements.

55 degrees F, the likelihood of mold developing, insect growth occurring and/or grain sprouting increases substantially.

If the grain storage has an upward airflow system, use a good quality thermometer to check the grain temperature in several areas 6 inches below the surface of the grain. If the storage has a downward airflow system. hang the thermometer in the exhaust of the fan. Be sure to take the reading around the outside edge of the fan, not the center - - the motor of an axial fan will slightly heat the air flowing over it. The temperature change will be complete when the exhaust fan temperature is close to the outside air temperature. Cover the mouth of the aeration fan when it is not running to prevent a chimney-effect draft back through the grain. Insects that attack stored corn in Michigan are cold-blooded creatures that do not feed or reproduce as long as the temperature of the grain mass remains below 50 to 55 degrees F. Many of these insects are external feeders. It is difficult or next to impossible for them to penetrate the seed coat of sound grain. Most vulnerable to insect feeding, therefore, will be corn that was broken, cracked or extensively ground up during harvest, drying and handling, says Doug Landis, MSU Extension Entomologist.

Because the grain surface will reach temperatures above 50 degrees F long before the core of the grain reaches 50 degrees F, growers should monitor the temperature at the surface as well as at the core. Storage quality problems most often appear in the top 3 feet of the grain. When making an inspection:

* Look at how well the grain is supporting you - you should sink to your ankle - and look for moisture acwarm weather arrives.

In Michigan, the Indian meal moth is the most common pest of stored grain. A pheromone lure with a sticky trap can be suspended in the head space of the grain bin to detect the insect. Captured moths indicate that eggs have been laid on the grain surface. Growers should watch the surface closely and treat it with an insecticide if necessary.

Other insects that will attack stored corn include flour beetles, grain weevils and grain beetles. Grain can be monitored for these insects by using a plastic probe trap (about 20 inches long) buried vertically about 3 inches beneath the grain surface.

Five probe traps should be used per bin up to 20 feet in diameter. Place one trap in the center and the others halfway between the bin wall and the center. If insect traps are not available locally, growers can call Great Lakes IPM at 517-268-5693 or Pest Management Supply at 413-253-3747.

Letters to the editor

Seniors should support school building project

Mr. Haire:

It has been said that many senior adults in our school district are not in support of the pending school millage issue which will add to our elementary school and build a new middle school. The reason being given is basically the resulting increase in taxes. For those of us senior adults who will share in the tax assessment, should the issue be approved, and especially those who now oppose this issue, I would invite consideration of the following.

Dear Editor,

I read an article a few weeks ago about wanting to hear about good events.

David Mayer is a fifth grader at Cass City Middle School. In September he found a $10 bill in the hallway. The honest boy took it to Mrs. McIntosh, our school secretary. Months passed and

d. provides opportunity for adult education to enrich our mind, invest our time and talents, and meaningfully share with others with good minds in the process.

e. enables us to be responsible neighbors and to do our share, while others in their respective communities do theirs. Some children in other communities will later move into our community to provide our services and to be our care givers. It is our responsibility likewise to make it possible for our students to be their very best in their chosen vocations. Many of us have family in other communities whom, we hope, will be equally responsible toward their needs.

f. gives us pride and satisfaction as good citizens by mutually sharing common good of our community, both locally and globally.

3. Because children cannot advocate for themselves and can therefore often become victims to selfish interests and greed, denying them the basic life building experiences.

The middle school building, located one block from my home, gives me great concern as I am aware that:

1. It is not barrier free. This poses safety problems as well as accessibility problems.

2. Students are crammed into classrooms far too small for their numbers, which

4. Like myself, my car, and all physical things, there is a reasonable life productivity expectancy, which that building has surpassed due to the good care provided it. There always comes a time when wisdom dictates replacement over repair.

5. With each month that goes by the costs of repair and inevitable replacement of that building are going up, and long-term considerations add up in favor of a new facility now. Putting further repairs and modifications into that facility may seem cheaper today, but in the long run, will be much more costly, and, we will still have a building inadequate for its mission.

6. While we have excellent teachers in that facility, they are hampered in their capabilities and effectiveness by an outmoded facility. The present facility is not constructed to facilitate today's methods and educational technologies and therefore does not allow for the quality of education we need to provide. To continue with this facility is as though we were to require heart surgery in a hospital broom closet, equipped only for building maintenance, and to brag about it, as it costs so much less than an operating room properly equipped, and then condemn the doctors for their loss of patients.

7. Because of its type of construction, repairs and modifications will be very costly in relation to their actual benefits. These will be only a precursor to many more repairs and modifications in the near future as inevitable changes in need and laws materialize.

The Middle School has served us well. I would hope this might be said of us when we have come to the time in our life when we can no longer keep up and are there-

10 appear on charges in circuit court

The following people appeared Friday in Tuscola County Circuit Court on various felony charges:

•Bert L. McQueen, 28, Caro, was sentenced for pleas of guilty and no contest to 2 counts of second degree criminal sexual conduct

On the first count, McOueen was sentenced to one year in the county jail and ordered to pay $400 in courts costs and fines. He was remanded to the sheriff's department.

He was sentenced to 2 to 15 years in prison on the second count.

Court records state the charges stem from incidents involving a child under the age of 13 years and a child at least 13 years of age but under 16 years. The incidents took place Dec. 7, 1993, in Caro, and in June 1989 in Wells Township.

•Wayne A. Creason, 33, Caro, stood mute to charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, third offense, driving with a suspended license, possession of an open intoxicant in a motor vehicle Oct. 26 in Caro, and being an habitual offender.

A pre-trial hearing was ordered, bond was continued at $60,000 and Creason was remanded to the custody of the sheriff's department. Richard M. Stakalosa, 29, Caro, entered a plea of guilty to 2 counts of larceny over $100 and one count of breaking and entering a building with intent to commit larceny. The charges stem from the break-in of a shed in Indianfields Township June 24, 1993, and the theft of 2 generators in 1991 and 1992, court records state. A pre-sentence investigation was ordered in the case and bond was continued at a combined $30,000. Sentencing is to be set. •Tracey L. Badgley, 22, Paw Paw, was sentenced to 90 days in jail and one year of probation for a guilty plea to absconding with bond July 15, 1992, in Caro.

The defendant was also ornish the remaining dishes. The meeting adjourned and bingo and euchre were played. At the Dec. 15 meeting, members and guests gathered at St. Agatha's Parish Hall for the Christmas dinner. Table prayer was given by Beatrice Jones.

A short meeting was held after the Lord's Prayer and pledge to the flag were said. Guests were introduced by President Mallory: Richard and Maxine Haney, who later joined the club, and Judy and Mel Zimmer.

Door prizes were won by Luther Durham and Iva Volz. The secretary reported that Christmas cards were received from Jennie Deneen, Donovan Schell and Ruth Benedict. A thank you card from the family of Iva Peterson for the memorial gift was received, and a get well card was signed for Mary Thomas.

The meeting was adjourned and euchre played. Winners were: men's high, Les Beach; bation and 545 days in jail (6 months deferred to the end of probation), with work release, for his plea of guilty to operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, third offense, and operating a motor vehicle without insurance Sept. 16 in Tuscola Township. He was also ordered to pay \mathcal{V} $1,500 in costs and fines plus attorneys fees and a $30 victim crime fee. Oversight fees are to be determined. •Orville J. Overton, 47, Mayville, was sentenced to?

240 days in jail for a plea of no contest to felonious assault Sept. 9 in Fremont Township.

Overton was remanded to the custody of the sheriff's department.

•Mathew H. Malloy, 25, Caro, was sentenced to 360 a days in jail, with work read lease, for 2 convictions of larceny over $100 stemming from the theft of a pair of generators in 1991 and 1992 in Ellington Township. Malloy, who was remanded to the custody of the sheriff's' department, was also ordered to pay costs and fines totalling $800, a $30 victim crime fee and $1,080 in oversight fees. Restitution is to be determined.

•Alvin E. Thrasher, 36, Caro, was sentenced to one year of probation and 30° days in jail, with work release, for his plea of guilty to attempted delivery of marijuana Aug. 12 in Indianfields Township.

Thrasher was remanded to the custody of the sheriff's department and ordered to, pay $1,000 in costs and fines and a $40 victim crime fee. Oversight fees are to be determined. •Roy C. Palmerton, 44, Caro, was sentenced to one to 5 years incarceration for a plea of guilty to operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, third offense, Oct. 24 in Fremont Township.

He was remanded to the custody of the sheriff's department.

•Albert Reiber Jr., 45, Clio, pleaded guilty to possession with intent to deliver marijuana Aug. 29 in Arbela;

For millions of adults, the holidays are festive times, filled with tradition. Unfortunately, one of those traditions is getting drunk and driving an automobile.

"If you're planning a holiday party, at the office or at home, or if you go out to celebrate this New Year's Eve, use common sense and designate a driver who will stay sober and get you home in one piece," reminds Tuscola County Sheriff Tom Kern. Football games and a family gathering on New Year's Day may be part of many families' plans, but those age of older residents. 'We're a community of a lot of retirees, so we wanted to have a place for them to come and interact. That's what I think kind of made the project take off," he said. "The library's what makes it a nice marriage — it was a nice fit."

MAJOR RENOVATION and expansion at the Sleeper Public Library in Ubly has resulted in a modern, spacious library and new senior citizen center, while maintaining the architectural integrity of the exterior of the building, constructed in 1907.

In Village of Ubly

Library community effort

Schrader said some organized activities will be offered to seniors. "We have a few people who have volunteered to help organize some programs.

"Hopefully, it will be a place where (seniors) can come, sit down, have a cup of coffee and read the paper," she added. "Some of the senior ladies have shown an interest in a community quilt project," and there has been talk of organizing some bridge groups.

The senior center, which includes a reading area and meeting room with kitchen facilities, adjoins the library in a building that has housed different businesses, including a party store and a drug store.

Schrader said the library purchased the building, originally Armitage Harness Shop, in 1983, with plans to eventually expand the library. "We had used every bit of space we could in the library and we were not able to get out all the (materials) that we needed to get out," she added. Cramped quarters are a thing of the past, however, as the renovation added 1,200 square feet to the library. The facility now includes children's, young adult and adult reading areas, complete with computer work stations and plenty of shelf space. The renovation was extensive, Osentoski said. "They literally took the building. . . and gutted it," he explained. "We wanted to make sure everything was up to code and handicap accessible.'

While the work is nearly completed, fund raising efforts are still underway, according to library board member Nancy Elliott, who said the grant paid for construction only.

Library officials hope to raise a total of $35,000 to cover furnishings and additional library materials.

"We've received large donations from our Ubly Lioness, our Community Club and our TVO Auxiliary Club," Schrader said, adding individuals in the community have come through with some sizable gifts, as have the Friends of the Library, McDonald Food and Family Center and Dr. David and

Yvonne Fucinari. The Lambert and Lillian Jaroch family and the Francis and Opal Hund family are each sponsoring a room in the senior center. Schrader indicated all the contributions represent a good investment in the community. "I think we have a real nice rural library, and it's being used all the time," she said.

Interest and participation from many segments of the village is what made the renovation happen, Osentoski concluded.

"It has to be a community effort," he said. "We can propose all kinds of ideas and projects, but unless the community grabs a hold of it and runs with it, nothing's going to happen.'

Jordan College takeover on hold meets all building code requirements and is barrierfree throughout.

Citizen Jackie Freiburger asked if senior citizen grants could be sought to utilize a portion of the building to provide a place for area seniors to meet.

Althaver indicated it's likely. He said he's also aware of 2 other schools in the Thumb that are interested in renting space, and that various governmental agencies continue to express an interest in setting up offices in a centralized location in the Thumb.

Althaver suggested, and Trustee Elwyn Helwig agreed, that the net cost to the village may be insignificant after figuring in revenue from rental of space in the building.

IN OTHER BUSINESS

Also Monday, the council:

•Rescheduled its January meeting from Jan. 30 to Jan. 23 at 7 p.m., and voted to maintain the meeting schedules of the village Planning Commission (third Tuesday of each month) and the Downtown Development Authority (quarterly meetings on Tuesday mornings). The council decided to act next month on its regular meeting dates for 1995.

•Directed its Public Services Committee to look into the cost of constructing a third well to act as an additional back-up well in the village. The idea was suggested by committee Chairman Les Karr following extensive repairs to one of the existing wells, and discussion of what would happen if both wells went out at the same time.

The committee was also asked to investigate the cost of water softening equipment. Officials stopped softening village water a number of years ago, but Freiburger suggested that may have been a mistake. She cited problems with the plumbing in her and other residences in town.

•Noted police officers Donald Miller and Craig Havnes have each completed 4 hours of training in a traffic crash report (UD-10) retread workshop.

Seven trees of Christmas

The Seven Trees of Christmas

A Christmas memory for me is the year of the seven trees. My mom had left my dad in charge of picking out the Christmas tree. Well, the first tree he brought home was about 14 ft. tall. Since the top of it would've gone through the roof, that was the first obvious return.

Some of the others consisted of a tree that was so wide you couldn't even walk in the living room, another which all the needles had fallen off before we had even got it home, and the only other one I can remember is a tree that was too big to fit through the door. Our compromise for the years to come was an investment in the ar-

'Twas the Night Before Christmas

Twas the night before Christmas, I was all alone. The house sat in darkness except the television's glow. The stockings were hung by the chimney with care, in hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there. I sat all nestled, my blanket wrapped tight, prepared to be watching dull re-runs all night. Mom in her sweatsuit and dad in his jeans took my siblings to grandma's.

(She loves company.) When out on the lawn, there arose such a clatter, I sprang from the couch to see what was the matter. Away to the door, I crept like a thief, quietly opened the door as I shook like a leaf. When what, to my wondering eyes should appear, out an old, rusty car and a man with a beard. The little, old driver was lively and quick. I thought to myself, "Could this be St. Nick?" He slipped on the ice, and he looked quite absurd. As he stood up, he mumbled some words. I couldn't quite hear him. I don't know what he said. but he was getting a goose-

The real meaning of Christmas

The Real Meaning

Christmas is a time for giving, receiving and being thankful for what you have. It's also a time to get with your families and talk about old times. We all know the real meaning of Christmas, Jesus being born of a virgin Mary.

Some of us forget the real meaning, though. We get too caught up with all the parties, baking and shopping. We all love to get gifts, but before Christmas Eve, take time to sit down and think of the real meaning of Christmas.

This holiday season I think we all should remember the unfortunate in our community. When you get a chance, drop a new toy or even just $5 off at Howard's Heating (Toys for Tots headquarters). If you think about it, it will probably only take 10 minutes just to make Christmas a little merrier for a child in our area.

So, keep in mind the real meaning of Christmas and the less fortunate. Merry Christmas!

Christmas is a time for family. Families get together and celebrate Christ's birth. They show their love by exchanging gifts and telling the Christmas story. It is a time for family traditions such as decorating the tree, baking favorite recipes, and visiting relatives. It is also a nice time of relaxation. It is most importantly the time to celebrate Christ's birth.

Rejoice at Christmas

Christmas to me is not about all the gifts you can get and receive or how much money was spent. Christmas is a time of rejoicing, for that was the day that the "GREAT IAM" was born. It is also a time of spending time with your loved ones, the ones that taught you everything about caring and kindness and treating people with respect.
