Millions of dollars lost as rain washes away crops

by Marjory Raymer Staff Writer

Economic damage for Tuscola County stemming from 3 weeks of frequent rain has escalated far into the million dollar range, according to a local official.

Tuscola County Agricultural Agent Dennis Stein addressed the slippery slope of problems area farmers are facing due to the wet. weather. Until the rain stops, farmers only can guess at the total field loss, Stein said, but at this point significant losses already are obvious and totals reach into the "10s of millions of dollars.'

The local agent estimates that dry beans will absorb the most severe injury. At least 50 percent of the crop has been drastically affected by the overly wet soil.

But, Stein stressed that the rain has impacted all farmers and all crops. The soybean crop also is in severe danger. About 15-20 percent of that crop has been drastically affected. Corn, wheat and sugar beets are not safe either, he said.

"As a whole, because of the lateness in the season, farmers can't really replant or go with a different breed," Stein noted. "They're pretty much stuck with whatever they

Tuscola County's predicament seems to match that of Sanilac and Huron counties as well. Every .1 inch of rain now hurts farmers, who are already watching fields drown, said Sanilac County Ag Agent Martin Nagelkirk. "I was more optimistic 4 weeks ago when we were on the verge of a drought," he

Jim LeCureux, Huron County agricultural agent, said farmers desperately need several weeks of drier weather to maintain the already suffering yields.

Michigan State University Extension Agricultural Meteorologist Jeff Andresen said although some forecasts show possible rainfall for several weeks, he believes the weather pattern will keep the Thumb area safe from any serious rainfall through this week.

The Michigan Farm Bureau has taken notice of the peril many farmers face this season. A press release from the MFB stated that the organization is calling for an assessment of crop losses, so that an assistance program can be that simple statistics do not developed if needed.

"Farm Bureau will be closely monitoring the losses and working to make sure that affected farmers receive the support they deserve," MFB President Jack Laurie said in the release.

In Cass City, the waste water treatment plant measured the July rainfall as 3.11 inches as of Monday. Last year's moisture total for July stood at 3.02 inches.

always show the full extent of the damage. For example, during the past 3 weeks at least 6.40 inches of rain have fallen on the area.

Stein said the only problems that can be measured now are destroyed crops, either drowned or washed away. But more damage might develop in the future.

The inability to do field work has created an ideal environment for disease, with root rot a definite concation of herbicides and pesticides were ineffective because the nearly drought conditions couldn't activate the problem control mechanisms. Then, the abundance of rain washed them away and farmers have not been able to apply more fertilizers, pesticides and herbi-"Nature could do a lot to

Event-loaded Tuscola County Fair opens Sunday

From a demolition derby to carnival rides to a championship rodeo, the 113th annual Tuscola County Fair, set for July 17-24, promises to serve up fun for everyone.

The tradition of offering an old fashioned county fair continues this year, along with a variety of special attractions.

The fair will again feature a pay-one-price policy. A $6 ticket covers gate admission, unlimited rides, grandstand events and parking. As in the past, children under the age of one year get in free.

The fair will kick off Sunday with a host of 4-H events, including a dog show and an archery shoot, both at 1 p.m. The Tuscola County Bean Queen will be crowned at 6:30 p.m., followed by a 4-H talent show and crowning of the 4-H king and queen at 7 p.m.

Four-H horse and rabbit and poultry shows, slated for a.m., are among the featured events Monday. The first of 4 consecutive days of harness racing is also scheduled (1 p.m. each day), and a pickup and tractor pull will get underway at 7:30 p.m.

Tuesday is "Kids Day", with children 14 years old and younger admitted for $5 until 5 p.m.

The day will include the return of the popular Upper Peninsula comedy troupe, Da Yoopers, who will take to the stage at 8 p.m. Earlier in the day, 4-H swine, goat, horse and open dairy shows will be held, all starting at 9

A demolition derby headlines Wednesday's attractions. The event, set for 7:30 p.m., will follow the 4-H large livestock sweepstakes at 7 p.m. The day will begin with open horse and goat shows, a 4-H and open beef show and a 4-H and open sheep show, all starting at 9

Senior citizens will be admitted to the fair free on Thursday until 6 p.m. The day will include the annual 4-H and FFA small animal and livestock sales, set to begin at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., respectively. The draft horse cart class is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. in the show arena, followed at 6 p.m. by the draft horse multiple hitch show in front of the grandstand. The

Board seeks damages for bus, milk price fixing

The Cass City School Board reorganized, adopted policy changes and additions, joined a class action lawsuit and conducted routine business at its regular board meeting Monday night at the high school.

Elected president was James Turner, who replaced Allan Hartwick. Hartwick was named vice-president. Marilyn Peters was elected secretary, replacing Fred Matthews, and Beverley Auten was elected to her fourth term as secretary. New board member Randy Severance was sworn in.

Policy changes discussed at the June meeting were adopted. A change in the athletic policy now requires students to attend school a full day to be eligible to compete that evening, except during an emergency, which must be approved by a principal. The change was made because students have been leaving school for a half day when an event is carded in the evening.

Although the school is in 100 percent compliance with federal requirements for student immunization, the school policy now reads that every student must be immunized before entering school or have a valid waiver signed by parents because of health or religious reasons.

A sexual harassment policy was adopted that outlines the penalty for any type harassment and it includes suspension or dismissal from school.

MILLAGE ADOPTED

District taxpayers will be receiving the benefit of the reduction in school taxes that was passed with the increase in sales tax. Home owners and farmers will pay no local school tax next year. A 6-mill tax for schools will be collected by the state.

Business property owners and owners of second homes, other than the one they live in, will pay 18 mills. There is no debt millage as the last debt was paid off this year. Last year the total school tax was 31.4875.

JOIN LITIGATION

The board voted to join other schools in a class action suit against bus companies and milk distributors who were involved in a pricefixing charge by the govern-

The school is obligated to pay fees to the lawyers of up to $5,000. Estimates by the law firm of damages that may be available from McFadden Bus Co., from whom Cass City has purchased some 20 buses, are $500 to $1,000 per bus. The school has purchased milk from MacDonald Milk Co. in the period in question but no estimate of the possible damages is available.

SPECIAL MEETING

A special board meeting originally scheduled for July 25 was moved to Thursday, July 21, at the middle school at 7:30. It will include presentations about the proposed new middle school from the architect and planner and goals for the school

Sidewalk Sales

Bargains, activities galore ready for area shoppers

The biggest sale event of the summer starts Wednesday in Cass City when the community holds its annual sidewalk sales, July 13-16, under the auspices of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce. Stores will remain open to 5:30 p.m. each day except Friday, when bargain conscious shoppers will have until 8 p.m. to buy at prices up to one-half off.

There will be numerous specialty arts and crafts vendors, including experts in wood working and basket weaving, lining the sidewalks during the

Several food vendors, including the popular Cass City scouts booth at the corner of Main and Seeger with bargain hot dogs and soft drinks, will be featured. Homemade pies and cakes will be available from bake sale booths. Quilt making and quilt displays by the Elmwood

Quilters will be at the downtown Cultural Center and the group will hold a raffle. The Cass City pool will be open Friday afternoon from 1-5 p.m. for free swimming. One event originally planned has been cancelled. The "Pacesetter Relays" has been scuttled because of lack of entries. There will be an attempt to get the event started next summer.

Cass City Rawson Memorial Library will hold a book and white elephant sale.

Nizzola family does it all rebuilding vehicles

by Marjory Raymer Staff Writer

Owning the perfect dream car is a matter of work, dedication and coming of age for the Nizzola children. After the children of Edward and Sandy Nizzola turn 14, they can purchase their first car. Until they turn 16, they spend their extra time in the garage — rebuilding their purchase.

The oldest child, Ed, led the way with his Chevelle, Mandy followed with her Mustang and the family expects 13-year-old Melanie to follow in their footsteps. "The deal was," said the proud father, "I'll show them how and make sure they do it right."

And the family hasn't seen failure yet. Through both the children's vehicles, a 1940's truck and a tractor, the kids have had a hand in the restoration process. From changing brakes to unfreezing engines, the 3 have succeeded and looked for the next challenge.

After an honors graduation with Cass City High School's class of 1994, the only son started schooling at Northwestern College for a vocational auto diesel education last month with the support of his family and 3 scholarships.

This month, Mandy returned from a 2-week institute on mechanical engineering at Michigan Technological University. She competed at the county, regional and state levels to be accepted into the highly selective hands-on education, which selected 100 students from across the state. The senior at Cass City High School doesn't plan on ending her involvement with the trade there, however.

The 17 year old — who is active in student council, National Honor Society and every sport — hopes to either attend the Air Force Academy or MTU upon graduation. Her dream is to try her hand at jets, both flying and fixing. Her followup aspiration is to stick with mechanical engineering.

Seek homes for YFU students

Local families interested in hearing a new language, tasting another culture and seeing with their own eyes how easy it is to make new friends that will last a lifetime, are invited to learn more about hosting a Youth For Understanding (YFU) International Exchange student from one of more than 30 countries.

Each year, families in Cass City welcome YFU students into their homes. All kinds of families are selected to host YFU students: married couples with or without children, single parents, as well as families with teenagers. YFU host families provide room, board, guidance and the experience of what everyday life is like in America. Local YFU volunteers provide support for several families, schools and students in Cass City.

YFU was founded in 1951 as a private, non-profit, educational organization dedicated to international understanding and world peace. YFU carries out one of the world's oldest and most-respected international youth exchange programs.

Our kids have returned to their respective homes after our biannual family reunion, and our house and lives are gradually returning to a somewhat normal routine.

The highchair, diaper pail and cat litter boxes have been stored away, the leaf has been removed from the dining room table, and it's safe once again to leave a pen or scissors on the desk.

We don't have a large family by most standards — 2 children and their spouses, one grandchild and 2 grandcats — nevertheless, it swells the population of our household to more than 3 times the usual number.

But now they're gone, and we can walk through the house barefoot again without stepping on a Lion King, a xylophone or a flashlight (although we still find an occasional toy wedged between the cushions of the couch or stuffed in a shoe).

You'd think, now that orthem so much.

After all, we don't have to wait to get into the bathroom any more, and when we do, there are no little fists pounding on the door accompanied by shouts of 'Bom-pah" or "Ma-mah."

We rarely find catsup or iam smudges on our clothes, since there are no more sticky-fingered hugs.

The washer and dishwasher have returned to normal duty, and the supplies in the frig are dwindling down from 3 kinds of milk, assorted bottled water and several varieties of pop to the standard Diet Pepsi and 2%

Ah, but peace and quiet have been restored.

When we arrive home from work, the house is as we left

In all honesty, though, you can't help missing that delighted "Bom-pah" or "Mamah" as outstretched little arms hurry to greet you. Maybe it's something only a grandparent can feel, but there's a deep-down satisfaction in a small child's unfeigned joy at your pres-

The problem is that it seems so natural when our kids are home that it's easy to forget that it's a very temporary togetherness, that we have but a limited time to share with them. I have to keep reminding myself to savor the moments.

When you get right down to it, isn't that how we der has been restored, we'd should live all the time? We feel a lot happier than we do never really know how and that we wouldn't miss much time we have with those close to us.

It may be time for the Boy Scouts or a similar organization to get back into the collection of old newspapers. According to Applegate Insulation Manufacturing of Okemos, demand has boosted prices.

Organizations in Cass City routinely collected old papers until the bottom dropped out of the market and old paper brought $5 a ton or less.

Now old newspapers are worth at least $25 a ton and Applegate will furnish a truck for the purpose. Details are available with a free call to Applegate, 1-800-627-7536.

The booklet, 2001 Imagine the Possibilities, we quote here from time to time is now about 4 years old. Some of the brojections appear to be off the mark unless there is drastic change in the next 6 years.

Others are on the mark. One that appears right on: "Most encyclopedic works, and large heavily illustrated reference books will be more economical to produce and sell through electronic means such as videodisk." Cass City High School already has a disk that contains the complete encyclopedia. It will be added to the middle school and elementary school this year. After that, with machinery added to the school, the information will be available in each classroom, too.

ter, of course. I finally had the original engine taken out and a used gas engine in-

The diesel cars resulted in a class-action suit against GM and I received a letter saying that my claim was valid and I would receive cash for the faulty engine. I'm still waiting.

But I digress. The topic here is natural gas. It is cheaper today, 30 percent or more than gasoline. Judging by the way diesel fuel prices went after they appeared in more and more passenger cars, look for natural gas savings to be short-lived.

Diesel fuel was considerably cheaper than gas when I bought my diesel. But it didn't last long. By the time I junked the diesel, the cost of diesel fuel was MORE EXPENSIVE than regular gas. When no-lead gas first arrived on the scene, it cost more than regular gas. There may have been a reason other than the fact that demand was up, but how not adding lead to gas increased the price is hard to understand.

If the past is an indicator, be warned. Don't expect to make that mortgage payment with savings you anticipate using natural gas. In fact, it probably would be smart to figure that whatever fuel is costing you at the time you buy that natural gas powered engine, the fuel costs will be greater, not less, than expected.

"If It Fitz...."

Frightened executives could help kids out

There are a few things you should know.

Would a well-educated, successful businessman reject a top-level executive position with General Motors because he is afraid of a 13-year-old boy?

That's what I asked myself last week while eyeing the necktied photos and golden biographies of the age-45or-so men promoted to important new GM jobs. The question occurred because I'd also just read that GM objects to an alternative Detroit public school being relocated near GM headquarters in the New Center area.

The school is for students ages 13 to 17 who were elsewhere expelled for violent behavior, including gun-toting. Another New Center business, Albert Kahn Associates, shares GM's fear. In fact, the Kahn president threatens to move the architectural firm to the suburbs if the dangerous youngsters are allowed in the area.

No one, of course, denies these unfortunate kids need help. But help them in a less prestigious neighborhood, please. Someplace where there's less chance they'll shoot important executives and their valued assistants.

We often hear how crucial it is that troubled youngsters have mentors who know how and why to avoid trouble. It is especially important for fatherless boys to be exposed to the lasting rewards available to males who study instead of steal.

So, wouldn't it be grand if some of those top-level GM executives and their valued assistants looked out their office windows and decided, hey, with that alternative school so near, it would be easy to walk over once in a while and help those youngsters choose the right alternatives? A lot easier than driving in from the suburb where the Kahn executives

And it wouldn't be strictly a charitable enterprise. Better students graduate to better jobs and better pay. And, after all, if only important executives and their valued assistants bought cars, GM wouldn't have such a big, luxurious headquarters to protect from teenage mug-

On the other hand, in the interest of balanced news, please note the most ironical incident of the past school year. At Finney High School, a 15-year-old girl slashed another 15-year-old girl on the face with a utility knife. But the attack wasn't fatal, maybe because it occurred during a class teaching the peaceful resolution of conflicts. •Sticking with education, when Ohio State University head basketball coach Randy Ayers was caught breaking recruiting regulations, his NCAA punishment included being prohibited from leaving campus during July and September recruiting periods. Besides being grounded, Ayers probably can't watch TV.

 Several readers were unbelieving when I revealed that, until recently, I thought "Star Wars" and "Star Trek" were the same thing. To further demonstrate my abysmal ignorance, I didn't know the difference between the Gold Cup and World Cup until my 8-year-old granddaughter told me soccer balls aren't speedboats.

Tricia is a soccer player. After watching one of her games, I called her childish because she'd argued with a teammate over which of them should throw in the ball from out of bounds. A few days later, during a World Cup game, two U.S. teammates argued to the point of shoving.

I apologized to Tricia and awarded her a Tin Cup.

•A woman said when she told the state income tax office in Lansing she had a question concerning her tax refund, she was instructed to call an 800 number. So she did, and it was busy. Day after day. She complained to the governor's office, and was told to keep trying. Still busy. I dialed the number several times a day for a week. Always busy.

If anyone out there needs a tax refund bad enough to dial 1-800-487-7000 until it's answered, tell them I said

2 face felony charges

The following people were recently arraigned on felony charges in Tuscola County District Court:

•Matthew D. Martin, 25, Vassar, is charged with one count of second degree criminal sexual conduct allegedly involving a child under 13 years of age in the spring of 1991.

Bond in the case was set at $10,000 and a preliminary examination was scheduled for Friday at 9 a.m.

•Richard E. Busch, 31, Marlette, was arraigned on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon (knife) and carrying a concealed weapon July 5 in Dayton Township. Bond was set at $10,000 and a preliminary exam was slated for Friday morning.

I strongly suggest that the Parade Committee be more diligent in their future planning to avoid such a dangerous situation. The committee should also review whether such an activity is even appropriate for our parade. Finally, to those kids riding in the parade: I know you know how to ride responsibly. Do it! You should be wearing helmets every time you ride.

HEAT EXHAUSTION --GIVE FLUIDS

In the hot days of July and August, heat exhaustion becomes more likely for athletes and outdoor workers. Heat exhaustion results from a combination of elevated body temperature and dehydration; the fever is usually above 102 and excessive sweating may cause a 5-10 pound weight

The body normally compensates quite well for the changes in the weather, but if a person works too hard and for too long in the heat, heat exhaustion can occur. The symptoms include marked weakness, dizziness, excessive sweating, and occasionally vomiting.

A few years ago salt pills were recommended, but doctors now know that it is better to drink more fluids instead. Cold water is the best and is absorbed most quickly. Sports beverages generally have little to offer over water, and can slow absorption if they are too concentrated. As for salt, you will get plenty in your regular meals, but during very hot weather you may want to add a little extra to your Surprisingly, your thirst is not a very good indicator of how much you need to drink. Weighing yourself is a better way to make sure your body has returned to normal after strenuous work or exercise.

If you begin to get symptoms, stop whatever work or sports activity you are doing, get in the shade and cool off. If possible, drink cool water and sponge off with cool towels to the chest and neck.

The humidity is just as important as the heat. A good rule of thumb is to add the two numbers. If the temperature plus the humidity is over 140, be careful of excessive exertion; if over 160, be very careful.

Nutrition Part 3: Fats

Fats should make up less than 30% of your daily diet. Fats are divided into 3 groups: saturated, polyunsaturated and monounsaturated. All fats are actually a mix of the three types. The proportion is what's important.

Fats of animal origin and coconut oil, palm kernel oil, palm oil, and cocoa butter are all predominantly saturated fats. This includes the visible fat and fat rendered from cooking meat and poultry, butter, butter fat, and egg yolks. Saturated fats are the least desirable of all fats and should be limited to less than 10% of your diet.

Polyunsaturated fats are of plant origin. They include safflower, soybean, sunflower, corn and cottonseed oils. These help to reduce both the LDL ("bad") and HDL ("good") cholesterol.

Monounsaturated fats are also of plant origin. They include olive, canola, peanut, and avocado oils. These fats help to lower the LDL ("bad") cholesterol without lowering the HDL ("good") cholesterol.

Your neighbor says

Simpson innocent

The Los Angeles District Attorney's office has used the media inappropriately in the double murder case against O.J. Simpson, said one Cass City resident.

Dawn Brooks believes Simpson is innocent and that the prosecution is attempting to publicly frame him by leaking false reports of non-existent evidence. For instance the widely reported finding of a bloody ski mask at Simpson's home was denied by the prosecution during the preliminary hearing.

"I think they're trying to hang him," Brooks said. The mother of 3 girls thinks the case against Simpson will go to trial and the possibility exists for Simpson to be found guilty of murdering his ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and her friend, Ronald Goldman.

"If they really want to find him guilty they will," she said. "After all, it's Los Angeles."

Brooks has kept up on the latest developments in the ongoing Simpson saga by watching the courtroom action of television, she added. The woman who never really enjoyed football supports the move of many stations to broad; cast live from the Los Angeles court. It helps the public dean of Asbury Theological really see what is happening, she said.

Steelworker retirees air meet

Local Steelworkers of America Retirees (SOAR) held their July meeting at the Cass City VFW hall.

The meeting was opened with the pledge to the flag. Minutes from the previous meeting were read and the treasurer's report accepted.

Members discussed various items of legislation and were asked to write to their representatives in Washington, D.C.

Get-well cards were sent to Francis Harbec and Howard Hallock.

A potluck dinner was served.

Carol Gotham and Marge Zawilinski were the 50-50 winners, and the door prize went to Carl Englehardt. Bingo was played.

The group's next meeting is scheduled for Aug. 2 at the VFW hall.

Card of Thanks

THE FAMILY OF Bruno Zawilinski would like to thank everyone for the flowers, food and prayers offered to us during the illness and death of our father. A special thank you to Little's Funeral Home, Father Bala and the ladies at St. Pancratius for their lovely luncheon, and to VFW for their truly moving and patriotic graveside service. Also a special thank you to Aunt Margie and Uncle John Zawilinski for being with us our lives. We don't know how we could have gotten through them without your support. Judy, Bunny, Pete, Mick and Nancy and our 13-7-13-1 families.

THE FAM-ILY OF Kevin

Kevin's family, friends, neighbors, Cass City High School and class of 1991, Pastor Daryl Blank. A very special thank you for the beautiful flowers, cards, memorials and food that was brought to our home and food that was prepared for the meal at the Church of the Nazarene. A very special thank you for all the great people from Active Feed Co., where Kevin was employed.
