Village council approves slight cable TV rate cut

C-TEC Cable subscribers in Cass City will see a rate cut of 30 cents a month for basic cable television service following action at a monthly village council meeting Monday night.

As expected, the council approved a settlement negotiated between C-TEC and other cable companies, and a Grand Rapids law firm representing some 40 Michigan communities, including Cass City, which joined efforts last year to regulate basic cable rates.

The council voted unanimously in favor of the proposal following a brief public hearing.

Under the settlement, subscribers will see a reduction in rates of 30 cents per month, and they will receive a one-time refund of $3.60 in overcharges from September 1993 through August

In addition, rates will be frozen until April 1, 1995 (An approximate 80-cent increase scheduled for Oct. 1 will be postponed until April

Through August 1997, increases in C-TEC's regulated rates and Premium Customer Choice channels will be limited to inflation plus any FCC-authorized cost passthroughs.

Local cable customers currently pay a monthly fee of $21.95 for basic service and a second tier of channels that include CNN, ESPN, Nickelodeon and the Family Channel. The settlement reduces the total to $21.65. Village Manager Lou S. LaPonsie noted the village had the option of not accepting the negotiated settlement.

The village could have conrates; however, it could take up to 2 years for the FCC to sion even longer, LaPonsie explained. In the meantime, he said, C-TEC could con-

Police seek 3 men for accosting woman on M-81

Police are looking for 3 men, 2 of whom reportedly attempted to force a Caro woman to go with them just outside of Cass City last

Det. Sgt. Allan Ogg of the Michigan State Police post in Caro stated the victim, who is not being identified, told officers the incident occurred Wednesday at about 9:30

The woman had been at the bowling alley in Cass City and had gone for a walk, according to Ogg, who said she was walking westbound on M-81, just outside the village, when a car pulled off the road onto the shoulder behind her and 3 white males got out of the vehicle.

"Two of them approached her, made conversation and asked her to go with them to a party," Ogg said. At some point, he added, the 2 suspects grabbed the woman as if they were going to force her to go with them, but she broke free and ran back into Cass City.

The woman told police one of the suspects struck her on the side of her face, and her clothing was torn, but she was not seriously injured. Ogg noted that during the struggle, the victim dropped her purse, and when she went back to retrieve it, discovered $65 in cash missing.

Bolzman bound over Wednesday

A Cass City man charged in the murder of his wife was bound over to circuit court following a 3-day preliminary examination that concluded last Wednesday in Alcona County District

Nelson Oscar Bolzman, 42, is scheduled for arraignment Oct. 4 before Alcona County Circuit Judge John F. Kowalski.

Bolzman was arrested in early August following a lengthy investigation into the death of his wife, Eileen Bolzman, 37, whose body was found lying in a roadway in Alcona County's Curtis Township July 15.

Mrs. Bolzman reportedly was on a camping trip with her family at the time of the Bolzman has been denied bond. He remains lodged in the Alcona County Jail.

Police have composite sketches of 2 of the suspects. Ogg said the victim didn't get a good look at the third male, who stayed back next to the vehicle.

The victim described the other 2 as white males in their 20s. One of them is about 6 feet tall with a slim build and long, dark brown hair, and was wearing blue jeans and dark colored jacket; the other is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs about 180 pounds, with short, light brown or blond hair, and was wearing jeans, a T-shirt and a Detroit Tigers ball cap. Ogg, who was initially assisted by Cass City police, asks that anyone with information related to the incident contact him at 673-2156.

Dorman, 54, 1811 Decker Rd., Decker, ran a stop sign at the corner of Kingston and Bevens roads and was struck by a northbound vehicle driven by Garry L. Cox Jr., 23, 1502 Kingston Rd., Deford.

The impact of the crash caused Dorman's vehicle to rotate, throwing her through the window of the driver's side door, according to investigators, who said she landed in the southbound lane of Kingston Road.

Report theft at Cass City Middle School

Cass City police are investigating the reported theft of personal property from a teacher's locked cabinet at Cass City Middle School.

Teacher Nesa Orth told police she last saw her property July 31, and discovered several items missing Sept. 23.

Taken were an electric typewriter, one video tape, 3 stop watches, 2 Polaroid cameras, 4 rolls of film, a mini tape recorder and a 35mm camera, according to reports, which estimate the combined value of the items at $881.

Also recently, 3 tenants at the Cass City Apartment complex, 4224 Woodland Ave., reported hood ornaments were stolen from their vehicles during the evening hours of Sept. 18.

The victims and their vehicles are William Johnson, 1988 Chrysler; Dolly Jaye, a 1982 Pontiac, and Sybil Miller, 1984 Olds.

Reports estimate the value of the ornaments at $150.

Damage to a vehicle was reported last week by Anthony E. Dohring of Elkton, who told police someone scratched his black 1991 Chevrolet pickup truck sometime Thursday evening.

Dohring stated he believes the damage, estimated at $400, occurred while he attended a Cass City football game or later the same night at the Charmont restaurant.

Bow season opens Saturday

Plentiful deer damaging crops

Archery deer hunters planning to pursue a whitetail in the woods and fields of the Thumb can expect a season similar to last year's, although there may be a few more deer out there.

"If you believe all the landowners and farmers I've talked to, it seems there are more deer," commented Bud Jarvis, a wildlife biologist at the DNR's Cass City Field Office.

"The farmers seem to be experiencing more crop damage — we've had more complaints this year than in the last 2 or 3 years — and they think there are more deer out there."

Still, Jarvis pointed out, "Hunters are not going to see as many deer as they want to. But we're looking at a pretty healthy deer herd in farm country."

The archery deer season gets underway Saturday and will continue through Nov.

The regular firearm season is open Nov. 15-30, and the 10-day muzzleloading season begins Dec. 9 in the Lower Peninsula. Archers can return to the field Dec. 1 and hunt through Jan. 1.

Although the DNR is issuing fewer antlerless permits to hunters statewide this year, the number of permits issued in the 3 upper Thumb counties is up by about 10 percent in an effort to stem the tide of crop damage complaints.

Jarvis said he's received between 75 and 100 complaints from landowners and farmers

"I think I've issued 5 or 6 summer shooting permits compared to 2 last year," he added, noting all deer taken with such permits are given to low income families.

Overall, the outlook for the upcoming season is good in the Upper Peninsula and southern Lower. The forc-cast is less optimistic in the northern Lower Peninsula, where deer numbers aren't as high as the DNR would like. Jarvis said.

Statewide, there were both fewer hunters and fewer deer taken in 1993 compared to the year before.

An estimated 722,760 firearm hunters and 334,620 archery hunters bagged a total of 213,490 bucks and 117,490 antlerless deer last year. In 1992, there were 756,000 firearm hunters and 344,520 archery hunters, and the total whitetail take was 213,980 bucks and 151,640 antlerless deer.

The state's second biggest harvest ever — 434,340 whitetails - was recorded in 1991. Hunters bagged 432,690 deer in 1990, and the record was set in 1989, when 452,490 deer were harvested.

Jarvis noted a couple of minor changes have been made in the hunting regula-

BOW HUNTERS will get the first crack at the state's deer herd when the archery season gets underway Saturday. Hunters will see a few more whitetails in the Thumb this fall if the number of crop damage complaints is any indication.

When we reach middle age or slightly beyond, we become acutely aware of our mortal bodies and their limitations

We suddenly realize that we get but one with which to finish our pilgrimage on earth, and only a few replacement parts are available. So we exercise, check our cholesterol and try to eat right in an effort to keep it going a bit longer.

Until recently, though, it was thought that there wasn't much a person could do to improve the brain, that it was pretty much downhill after you reach adulthood.

But 90% of all we know about the brain has been learned in the last 15 years, according to Michael Gelb in his "Mind Mapping" program, and there is hope.

The human brain is estimated to be 100,400 times more complex than the entire global telephone network, and the number of possible thought patterns in the brain exceeds the number of atoms in the universe, according to researchers.

Nevertheless, Gelb says that in the 1960s it was estimated that the average person used only about 10% of the brain's potential; in the 70s and 80s the estimate fell to one percent; in the 90s, 1/10th of Either we're getting a lot dumber or the brain's potential is a lot greater than we thought.

Furthermore, they've discovered that the brain actually works a lot like a muscle. The more you use it, the better it works, and most people can actually have some control over how healthy and alert their brains will be as they grow older. An article by Daniel Golden in a recent issue of Life magazine also emphasized the new thinking among experts regarding the brain's ability to change, even into old age.

Arnold Schaibel, head of the Brain Research Institute at UCLA, is quoted as saying that "by continuing the learning process, we are challenging our brain and therefore building brain circuitry.'

Without getting into the neurons, dendrites and synapses involved, or the differing functions of the left and right hemispheres, the brain seems to thrive on stimulation, which forces it to develop new circuits and enhances its problem solving capacity.

What you need to do is get the mind actively involved in some area of thinking that's unfamiliar to you.

If you're good at and primarily interested in the arts, music, etc., (right-brain dominant) you need to challenge your brain by learning how to fix things, do logic puzzles, etc.

If you're left-brain dominant, more into language, math and practical subjects, taking up music, painting or sculpting will stimulate the gray cells.

Both Gelb and Schaibel stress the importance of using both hemispheres of the brain, and cite Einstein, Newton, daVinci and other geniuses who did.

What gets many of us stuck in brain ruts is being content with what we already know instead of exercising and challenging the brain with new information.

It's certainly worth the effort. After all, even half a brain is a terrible thing to WARTS: WHY THEY SHOULD NOT BE IGNORED...

Many of my patients are surprised to hear that these benign skin tumors are contagious and are caused by a virus!

Since these wart-causing viruses must live inside a cell in order to survive, they are usually picked up where people shed tiny skin cells which are infected with the virus. Public bathing facilities for example are commonly contaminated with this pesky virus.

Plantars warts are usually brown, soft and spongy with little black spots in the center. These spots are tiny blood vessels which act as the wart's feeding network. One may mistake it for a corn or callus. The surest way to determine a wart is to pinch it: the excruciating pain that follows after indicates it is a plantar Treatment varies from use of powerful acids, laser surgery or dry ice. The successful and safe treatments I have mentioned are available if you take your problem to a doctor. There is little chance you can treat yourself safely and effectively with over-the-counter remedies. Explain this to me if you can. Travelling home on I-75 between Grayling and West Branch, I was listening to the Lions-Patriots football game, switching stations between WJR and 910 out of Flint.

Suddenly, for no apparent reason, the Flint station started playing music and WJR was announcing current traffic conditions on Michigan's main highways.

After fiddling with the dial awhile, I caught the game on a station from the Tawas City area. It came in loud and clear all the way to the corner of Garfield and Doerr Road. When I turned the corner from Doerr Road, the game stopped and another station's music was playing.

I never did hear how the game came out. (Wasn't Hucky?)

15th Bay Shore auction generates record profit

Weather, bargains and good will combined to bring Bay Shore Camp a record breaking $26,000 profit at the camp's 15th Annual Benefit Auction, held Saturday, Sept.

Selling the hundreds of items donated by camp supporters took Great Lakes Auctioneer Dale Wertz more than 8 hours. Following opening prayer at 10 a.m., a candy bar donated by 12year-old camper Ross Sherman of Cass City went on the block. It sold for $78.

"Yes, it did go a bit high," commented Camp Director Lew Tibbits, "but I know the guy who bought it and understand why he paid that much. It had nothing to do with what kind of candy it was.'

The same buyer was also a contender for the Auction's prize winning pie of the day, a raspberry offering baked by Mrs. Joan Bush of Caseville. As bidding climbed toward the $500 mark, he reluctantly dropped out and let a Tuscola County businessman take home the coveted dessert for Second-place in the annual pie contest went to Mrs. Sylvia Oeschger of Sebewaing for her strawberry-rhubarb combination, which sold at a top bid of $275. An apple pie made by third-place winner John Elsesser of Reese sold for the same price. Wertz then sold individual pieces from duplicate pies made by each of the winning cooks. Total income from all 6 pies came to a record breaking $1450. Quilts, afghans and other

The persons who see issues as one dimensional and are sure their position is the right one, if not the only one, save themselves a lot of grief.

Most of us can't be that positive, that sure, that my way is the only way, or maybe even the right way.

A couple of situations that crossed the desk spell out the trouble that seeing both sides often brings.

The first is Proposal B that will be an amendment proposition on the November ballot. It asks voters to approve the end of the automatic right to appeal court cases without approval of the court. Supporters point out that it would save the state $3 million a year and significantly reduce overburdened courts. In 10 months there were 1,103 cases appealed and only 9 were reversed. It's possible that appeal would have been allowed in these cases.

But if judges know that they have the right to refuse an appeal of their sentences, where is the deterrent to an unjust sentence?

Do the abuses in the system justify taking a chance that a citizen should be tarred with an unjust verdict? When an individual's rights are curbed, we all lose. Victims of crimes deserve a quick settlement of cases and crowded dockets that keep them in suspense for years curb their rights. too. The second is the issue of flying the American flag in the condos in Cass City. At first glance it would seem that it's unpatriotic and picayunish to say that because of the association's bylaws, putting up a bracket on the outside of the building to fly the flag is prohibited.

But we are a nation ruled by laws and the law of the condo is clear, and if placing a bracket for a flag is overlooked, what can stop any owner from nailing whatever desired to the building?

The folks that I have met from the condos seem to be reasonable people and I'd bet that they will settle this dispute easily.

If the majority decide that there's no harm in placing a bracket to fly the flag, the bylaws will be amended to make it so.

To avid patriots who want to show their love and support of the country, the flag flying restrictions are absurd. Still it's sure that a lot of patriots don't equate flying the flag as necessary to indicate their regard for their country. It's another black and white question for some, but another gray issue for the maiority of us.

Story smells of discrimination

When you go shopping, does it make any difference whether you're black or white? After their experience Resistance Education at Oakland Mall, two white teenagers think the answer is

She immediately assured Penz and Belprez that she meant them no harm, but they suspected a scam when the woman said she needed $5 or $10 to buy antifreeze for her car.

I just kept walking. No one is going to con me.

But Penz and Belprez were more polite. Although doubtful, they listened as the woman pulled a pair of pants out of a bag. They appeared brand new, never worn, with no tags removed. The woman said she'd recently purchased them as a gift for her husband but now, for an unstated reason, wanted to return them for a refund. Obviously, the desired exchange became more important when her car began to steam and she discovered she didn't have enough money for antifreeze.

But, the woman said, Eddie Bauer had just refused her because she didn't have a receipt. She asked whether Belprez and Penz would take the pants into the store and try for better luck.

As Penz later told me, she and her friend were puzzled. She described the woman as neatly dressed and apparently sincere. If Eddie Bauer's policy was no refund without a receipt, why would she and Belprez have any more success than the woman had?

But, while the woman waited outside, Penz and Belprez gave it a try. They were given the purchase price — $38 — for the pants, with no trouble, no receipt. "When we gave the woman the money, she was so grateful she insisted that we keep most of it, because she only needed enough for the antifreeze," Penz said. "When we refused, she asked our names and said she'd name her first two children after Penz said the woman gave her name, but they later forgot it. The woman never mentioned racial discrimination, Penz said. She apparently took it for granted that two white teenagers would understand why they might be treated better than a black person.

Penz, who works part-time at a nearby shop, said she's noticed that some black people are employed in the Bauer store, but none were present that afternoon. She was dismayed at the apparent racial discrimination, Penz said, and that's why following the suggestion of one of her Sterling Heights High teachers — she con- not.

I'm not naive. Despite evidence to the contrary, I realize it still could have been a scam. The pants could have been shoplifted. The woman could have been confident that those nice kids would never accept a reward.

On the flip side of naivete, I've heard enough complaints from black people to realize they are often the victim of stereotyping. A store clerk, stung by one black person, treats all blacks like potential crooks. But all whites aren't stereotyped because of one white crimi-

If it were a scam, what made the black woman think it would work?

At Eddie Bauer corporate headquarters in Seattle, Public Information Manager Karen Peck said policy is that refunds are made without a receipt with very few exceptions, usually based on suspected fraud, and never based on race. Peck said she'd questioned all but one employee present that afternoon in the Oakland Mall Bauer store, and none could recall the incident described by the two teenagers.

Australian exchange student enjoying year here

Trudi Malthouse has come to love being a high school

And why not, the teen has had plenty of practice; she graduated from a private high school before coming to the area, she took part in commencement exercises with the Cass City High School Class of '93, and now she's member of the Class of

"I'm getting pretty good at it," the personable 17-yearold joked recently.

Malthouse, a Rotary Exchange student, arrived in Cass City last January from the land down under. She has since lived on a dairy farm and in the Gagetown area, and currently resides in Cass City with David and Betty Smith, her third and final host family.

In January, she'll return to her hometown of Perth, a city of 1.2 million people in Western Australia.

And while she looks forward to seeing her family and friends again, she says leaving won't be easy.

"I think I want to go home for about a month, see everybody and then say, I'm going back to America," Malthouse remarked, flashing a quick smile. "It'll be fun, going back with my American accent."

She recently talked about her experiences here since leaving Australia's 100-deof a plane at Tri-City Airport into minus-30 degree weather, wearing a skirt, long-sleeved shirt and san-

"I think when I get home it's going to be hard to adiust to summer. Winter's not something I'm used to," she acknowledged, adding Australian schools never have snow days. "We have heat days."

At home, Malthouse graduated from St. Brigid's, a private, all-girl school with 600 to 700 students.

MISSES UNIFORM

She said she's enjoyed attending Cass City High School, in part because it's easy to get to know everyone. Still, she misses wearing a uniform to school. "I hate getting up and deciding what I have to wear today.'

As for school work, Malthouse said her studies here haven't been too difficult compared to home, where the final 2 years of high school are more like attending college classes.

She indicated it was relatively easy to get settled in because American teenagers "just come up and talk to you. They don't judge you. "They love my accent," she added. "They love to make fun of me, but I like that,

Malthouse tried not to have gree heat, later stepping out any expectations when she Americans think only about prepared for her trip to this country, but admits Cass City was a surprise. "I had no idea that America had small towns," she said.

"I like that. I like the small town atmosphere. It's like everybody here is so friendly, and after a week, everybody knows who you are. It just seems like a nice little place on the outskirts of the world."

It's also very different. Malthouse pointed out one of her most difficult adjustments has been getting used to a society that seems "a lot more rushed and organized."

In Australia, she explained, there's no big hurry. "The attitude is, if it's too much hassle, forget it. No worries." It's a philosophy that carries into every aspect of life in the land down under, according to the exchange student, who loves football, but said high school athletics get a lot more attention here. She was surprised to learn there's an admission charge at school sport events. "At my school," she noted, "they'd have to pay you to come to a game."

NOT TOO SERIOUS

"As far as dating, we don't get that serious. If you see a guy with a girl, go back in 3 weeks and he'll probably be free," she continued, adding dates typically involve less travel back home. "We like to entertain more at home."

Despite living in a big city, Malthouse said Perth doesn't have stores that stay open 24 hours a day.

"All our shops close at 6 o'clock except Thursday, when they're open 'till 9." she said. "That probably explains why I spend more money here. A lot more money.'

On a more serious note, the teen briefly talked about America's involvement in Haiti.

There's an impression among some nations that themselves and their country, which isn't true, she said. And when the United State tries to help another nation, they are accused of trying to police the world. "I think that's really unfair because if America doesn't do something, nobody will."

Aside from gaining a new outlook on world affairs, Malthouse said her exchange experience has given her a new perspective on people, thanks to the Rotary program, which organizes activities, including travel, that enable exchange students from different countries to get to know one another.

The interaction has convinced her there's a common that goes far beyond culture and tradition. "Everybody feels the same inside; they're still human, they still can get hurt if you're rude to them."

"You can't come here and not be changed," she concluded. "This year's done a lot for me; how I look at the world, how I look at my own country. And how I look at America, definitely."

"It gives you a sense of patriotism in your own country - you just don't appreciate something until it's gone. It really makes you love your country." Malthouse grinned and added, "and your par-

"It's been fun. I wouldn't change a thing about it."

Your neighbor says

Time change still welcome

The semi-annual time change is scheduled the last of October, when clocks will be turned back one hour to Eastern Standard time.

The time change is welcomed by Don and Fay Craig today and was really appreciated by Don when he was a letter carrier in the Detroit area.

Back then, he recalled, before the time change, we often went to work in the dark and it was dark again when I got home. With the time change it was daylight when I went to work, at least.

It doesn't mean as much today, although both Don and his wife agree that it is nice to have the long daylight evenings in the summer.

The Craigs moved to Cass City from Eastport in May of 1993 and live in the condominiums. Craig is not a stranger in the Thumb area. He has a brother that lives in the Elkton area. Fay has no roots in the area, lived all her life in the Detroit area. However, she says she likes the small town atmosphere she found since coming to Cass City.

There are $\bar{2}$ daughters in the family, Linda and Sally.

PREVENTING

CONSTIPATION

Constipation is a common nuisance affecting millions of Americans. Preventing constipation is also important for medical reasons. Studies show that a person can significantly cut down on the risk of colon cancer, probably by the quicker elimination of any cancer-causing chemicals.

constipation. The first is by developing good bowel habits and a routine time to use the bathroom. Another simple measure is to increase the amount of water you drink.

Good dietary habits are especially important. By eating foods high in fiber, a person will help keep his body healthy in many ways. First, fiber makes the stool larger and softer and bowel movements will be more frequent.

Bulkier stools will also decrease the chance of developing diverticula which is a very common problem as a person grows older. Other advantages of fiber are that it will help lower the cholesterol, decrease the risk of colon cancer, and will cause a more steady rate of absorption of

If other measures are needed, there are a variety to choose from. Some medicines, such as milk of magnesia, help draw extra water into the gut to keep the stool softer. There are "stool-softeners" and lubricants, such as mineral oil.

Besonen's gridders mounted one of their better drives of the opening half on their next series.

The Bulldogs mounted 3 straight first downs on a long Tkacz scamper, a 20-yard pass completion to Mark Damm and a roughing the passer call that spotted the Bulldogs deep into Peck territory. The drive fizzled, however, when Radabaugh was intercepted in the Pirate end zone.

Peck was rewarded another scoring shot shortly after the interception.

After the Pirate offense was stopped on 3 consecutive running plays, the visitors were forced to punt. Owen-Gage was guaranteed good field position near midfield. However, the high and short Pirate punt touched a Bulldog defender and the visitors recovered for a first down near the midfield stripe.

Brinkman snuffed that Pirate scoring opportunity when he picked off an errant Chris Curry pass.

With 2:55 remaining till the intermission, Tetil put Owen-Gage on top with a 12-yard run that capped a 35-yard drive. John Richmond's kick for point after was blocked and the score entering the 3rd period remained 6-0.

Tetil, a hard hitting junior linebacker and halfback, gave the hosts some breathing room near the end of the 3rd period when he hauled in a Peck punt and raced up the visitors' sideline 35 yards for his 2nd touchdown of the evening. Richmond's kick for point after spotted the Tetil, who is sure to see some all-league recognition, led a slew of Bulldog players with 17 tackles (12 solo). Several Bulldogs helped the winners defensive cause with 7 tackles, including Damm, Chad Jahr and Phil Fahrner.

"We were very sluggish in the first half," said Roller afterwards

How far will we go to build the region's best Pediatric Intensive Care Unit?

As far as we have to.

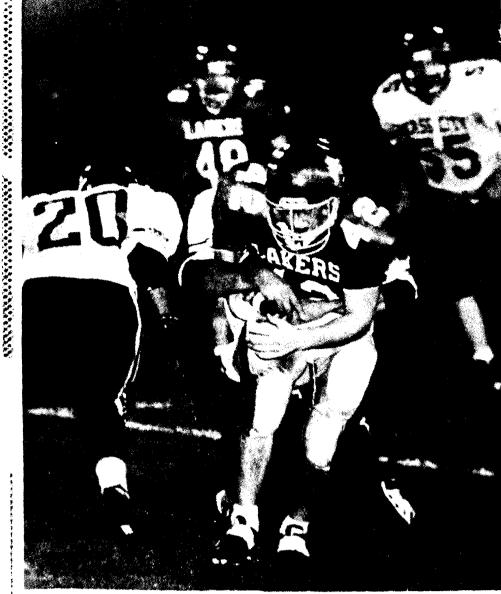

A few months ago we went to leading hospitals in Cincinnati, Boston, and Durham to find three outstanding pediatric specialists for the St. Luke's Pediatric Intensive Care Unit (PICU).

We found them. And we're pleased to announce that Dennis Cotcamp, M.D. (Children's Hospital Medical Center, Cincinnati, Ohio); Kristan M. Outwater, M.D. (New England Medical Center Hospitals, Boston, Massachusetts); and Hani Zreik, M.D. (Duke University Medical Center, Durham, North Carolina) have joined our PICU team.

These accomplished physicians bring their skills in respiratory care, anesthesiology and cardiology to a hospital already known for its commitment to the highest level of pediatric intensive care, a hospital pledged to go the distance to build the best.

Hawk golfers split non-league matches

The Cass City golf team non-conference matches last week with Deckerville and Sandusky and will return to league play tonight (Wednesday) when they host Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port. Friday, the Hawks will travel southwest to compete in the Vassar Invitational.

Wednesday, Sept. 21, the young Red Hawk team hosted Deckerville of the Thumb C American division and took 4 points, winning both match play and stroke play, 171-204.

"It's the same old story. We need our 4th and 5th players to step up some," said Coach Jeff Hartel this week. Freshman Chad Tate recorded medalist honors against the Eagles, posting a 37 on the par 35 track at Cass City's Rolling Hills Golf Course.

Following Tate were Chad Zawilinski (43), Dave Murphy (45), Ben Hobbs (46), Ryan Bennett (47) and Mike Peruski (48).

Monday, Sept. 19, Cass City traveled to Woodland Hills Golf Course, where they were defeated by the Sandusky Redskins in match play (-6) and stroke play Again Tate paced the Hawks with a steady round of 37 that was good for low round on the afternoon. However, Dave Murphy's score of 49 would be the only other Hawk score below 50.

Rounding out the scoring for the Hawks were: Peruski (52), Bennett and Zawilinski (53), Hobbs (62).

Lakers dash Hawks' hopes in league, tough Cros-Lex is next was the year that the Cass City Red Hawks would crack the stranglehold of Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port on the gridiron. Alas, it proved to be just a fantasy as the Lakers crushed the Hawks Friday, What's more, things don't look much brighter for this Friday when Cros-Lex comes to town. The Pioneers have a win over the Lakers and their only loss has been a one-point decision to Bay City All Saints.

Every loss is tough to take, but Friday's results against the Lakers were especially disappointing for Hawk fans in that the winners dominated the game from early in the first quarter and the Hawks couldn't get on the scoreboard until after the winners had charged in front, 22-0.

About the only consolation for Hawk fans was that the team didn't curl up and die when the outcome was all but certain

Hawk hoopsters at home-finally

Cass City will enjoy some home cooking for a change after playing 7 of its first 9 games on the road, including last week's games in which the Hawks earned a split by measuring Cros-Lex, 54-46, and bowing before potent Sandusky, 50-24.

The Hawks now enjoy a stretch of 7 straight games at home starting with Tuesday's game with Memphis and Saturday's game at 3 p.m. against Marlette.

The Hawks racked up their 4th win in 8 games Thursday with a close decision over Cros-Lex. In the first half the Hawks racked up 2 of their better offensive quarters of the season. In the first period, paced by Peyten Daniel's 7 points, the Hawks notched 15 points. In the second, balanced Cass City scoring netted 16 points.

Despite the offensive splurge, the teams played almost even as the Pioneers matched Cass City almost basket for basket and at the intermission trailed by a single point, 31-30.

The Hawks added to the margin in the third period, sparked by Cori Britt, who came off the bench to score 4 points and snare 6 rebounds late in the period and early in the fourth quarter.

Going into the final quarter, Cass City led by 5 points and added to its lead with the help of foul shots, converting 5 of 11.

Coach Marty Daniel said that the team played better for longer intervals to post the win. Peyten Daniel was the top Hawk scorer with 15, followed by Lisa Burns with 10. Farley was the top point producer, with 17, for Cros-

It is designed to help organizations procure government related contracts for local business.

Through phone calls and letters, Barcia urged the defense department to award the Thumb consortium the full amount of funding.

Couple chose to circumvent condo bylaws Dear Editor:

This letter is in response to last week's letter regarding the "illegal and unpatriotic conduct" by the Condominium Association Board of Directors. Mr. and Mrs. Long do not know any of the board members well enough to make such a slanderous statement. Mr. and Mrs. Long must not have realized that a member of the board was a career military person before moving here to enjoy his well deserved retirement.

What Mr. and Mrs. Long have conveniently omitted in their letter was that at closing for their condo, they were furnished with Northwood Lake Condominium disclosure documents which include condominium bylaws.

Mr. and Mrs. Long make reference to a specific bylaw that "no co-owner shall make alterations in exterior appearance or make structural modifications.'

Mr. and Mrs. Long should have stated the rest of the bylaw: "to his unit or make changes in any of the common elements, limited or general, without the EX-PRESS WRITTEN AP-PROVAL of the Board of Directors, including without limitation exterior painting or the erection of antennas, lights, aerials, awnings, doors, shutters, newspaper holders, mailboxes, basketball backboards or other exterior attachments or modi-

A request in writing to make any changes must be made before, not after, adding or preliminary exam is to be changing any of the common elements. Mr. and Mrs. Long are well aware of this procedure, proof being Mr. and Mrs. Long's request in writing to plant a tree on common ground and was approved by the board.

Condominium living requires acceptance of living in a controlled environment. The point of this is that when you choose to buy into a condo, you voluntarily agree to adhere to restrictions of choice known as bylaws. Article XI Section IV, item J of our bylaws makes it the duty of the Board of Directors to enforce the provisions of the condominium documents.

Mr. and Mrs. Long chose to circumvent the existing bylaws which 74 of the unit coowners choose to adhere to.

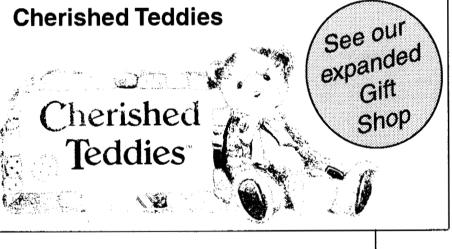

Mr. and Mrs. Long, please explain to the board, by doing their duty, how you can justify the accusation that they are doing something "illegal" and their conduct is "unpatriotic."

Sincerely,

John G. Cech 6107 Golfview Ln. Cass City, MI 48726 Co-owner & Board member school, city and nation. It was noted by Family Life

Small groups of teenagers have long gathered on their school campuses to pray. In 1990 the first organized "See You at the Pole Rally" (SYATP) established a legacy that continues to build upon the momentum of prayer. It has grown from a local gathering, to a national event, and this year to an international event. Teenagers gathered to pray that God will move back into their families, their schools, their cities and their land.

The vision of "See You at the Pole" continues because of students. It is student initiated, student organized and student led. Each year more 21, at 7 a.m. over 75 students and more teenagers are getting together who want to see God do a mighty work as they commit themselves, their friends, their school and the nation to Christ.

The effort is based on the local school campus, because this is where the battle for kids' minds and hearts is hardest fought and often lost. and it is where youth spend most of their time. Young people are often inundated with ungodly philosophy and values, according to spokespersons, and prayer is the essential first element of spiritual warfare.
