Planners nix proposed hunt club in Greenleaf

by Melissa B. Turmo
Staff Writer

Unless Rooster Ranch Hunt Club owner Kim Anthony takes further action, his plans to build a second pheasant hunting ranch in Greenleaf Township will not become reality.

After around 20 minutes of public discussion at a Wednesday meeting, the Greenleaf Township Planning Commission voted 3-1 to deny a conditional land use permit to Anthony.

Commission chairman Joe Braun opposed the motion which prohibits Anthony from turning a section of the Sanilac State Game Area 2 miles north of Cass City Road on Hadley Road into a scaled-down version of his Rooster Ranch Hunt Club.

The decision came after hours of discussion at a May 24 commission meeting, where many residents expressed concerns about lack of safety and noise generated by the ranch.

"We spend a lot of time outside all year round," township resident Marsha Spitz said Wednesday.

Anthony explained at both meetings he would continue to enforce high safety standards and wanted to allow his son to work in the family business and stay in the area.

"It doesn't fit in everywhere, and I took that into consideration," Anthony said, adding he looked for an area with fewer houses when deciding where to apply for a permit.

But no explanations or promises seemed to satisfy the residents attending Wednesday's meeting.

Near the end of the meeting, commissioner Don

Hanby asked the audience if they would be willing to negotiate conditions under which Anthony could open the second pheasant hunting farm.

No one offered any options, and the vote was taken.

"They had their minds set, and you have to go with the majority," Hanby said.

But Braun said Anthony should have been given a chance to negotiate and to decide whether he wanted to operate a second ranch under agreed upon restrictions.

"I feel it's OK to have a ranch there with a lot of conditions," he said.

As of Friday, Anthony had not decided whether he would appeal the decision or whether he would expand his Rooster Ranch Hunt Club on Germania Road.

The planning commission is composed of people with primarily residential interests, Anthony said, adding during the time he was applying for a conditional land use permit, he watched the commission routinely stop efforts to start new businesses.

"They're not taking business interests into consideration," he said.

Anthony has 30 days starting Wednesday to appeal the decision to an appeal board composed of Braun, Greenleaf Township board member Mark Battel and appointee Robert DeLong.

He said he also is considering expanding his hunt club to include shooting sporting clays through the summer.

"I have to make a living with my family," Anthony explained.

Cass City millage okayed

School board trustees named in light vote

Voters in the Kingston and Ubyly school districts elected new board members, and Cass City residents approved a vital millage renewal in Monday's annual school elections.

In Cass City, renewal of the 18-mill non-homestead tax in place under Proposal A passed by a margin of 244 votes, 375 to 131.

The 5-year levy, which affects only business and other non-homestead property, will generate about $600,000 in revenue annually for operations in the district.

Also Monday, voters re-elected incumbent trustees James Turner and Marilyn Peters, the only candidates seeking 2 available 4-year terms. Peters received 425 votes and Turner, 419 votes.

In all, 490 of the district's registered voters cast ballots for a turnout of nearly 30 percent.

In other area elections:

KINGSTON
Kingston voters chose Bernard Bishop over 3 other newcomers to fill a single open board seat vacated by incumbent Jim Green, who did not seek reelection.

Bishop received 177 votes, while John Borek Jr. garnered 49 votes, Thomas Hand received 27 votes and James Watros, 9 votes. Write-in candidate Douglas Kramer received one vote.

There was no millage question on the ballot.

A total of 264 votes were cast, representing about 13 percent of the district's registered voters.

OWEN-GAGE

It was a quiet night in the Owen-Gage district, where 51 voters — about 4.5 percent of the district's registered voters — turned out to reelect incumbent Trustee Rick Ziehm.

Ziehm, the lone candidate, received 51 votes. There was no millage question on the ballot.

UBLY

Likewise, there was no millage vote in the Ubyly Community Schools, but voters filled a pair of 4-year school board seats.

Elected to serve 4-year terms were newcomers Janice Sageman and Luann O'Berski, who received 251 votes and 200 votes, respectively. Another newcomer, Ronald Briolat, garnered 167 votes.

Incumbent trustees J. Kevin O'Connor and Harold Swartzentruber did not seek reelection.

A total of 340 residents went to the polls, representing 11 percent of the district's registered voters.

School repair program now in jeopardy

Next Monday's meeting of the Cass City School Board promises to be of more than usual interest because the board's plan for a pay-as-you-go repair of the middle school building is in jeopardy.

The problem is that it may be impossible to start repairs on the building unless all of the requirements to bring the building up to code are met. An architect was to confer with the State Fire Marshal's office and is expected to attend Monday's meeting to let the board know just where it stands.

A representative from the fire marshal's office was invited to attend the meeting but declined, saying that it did not want to get involved in local politics. Superintendent Ken Micklash is on vacation and was not available for comment.

The original first step in the middle school renovation plan was to have cost $138,850. It was to have provided for the closing of openings in corridor walls behind lockers, in classroom walls and behind casework, plus the installation of stairway enclosures for floor separation on all 3 levels.

The program was adopted by a 5-2 vote, with Beverley Auten and Joan Helwig voting against it.

Woman escapes in roll-over crash

A Clinton Township woman was treated for minor injuries after losing control of her vehicle and rolling it over in a water-filled ditch about 2 miles south of Cass City Friday night.

The driver, Danielle L. Rosenthal, 19, was northbound on Cemetery Road, just north of Kelly Road, when the 6:26 p.m. accident occurred.

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies reported Rosenthal drove off the northbound shoulder, then overcorrected, causing her vehicle to cross the road and veer off onto the south side, where it rolled over and came to rest in the ditch.

Rosenthal, who was wearing a seat belt, was transported by Cass City-Mercy Ambulance to Hills and Dales General Hospital, where she was treated and then released.

Deputies cited the motorist for careless driving.

Faith sending Cerneks to Tatarstan

Door open to evangelists in Russia now

A Cass City pastor and his family will leave the comfort of their Cass City home later this summer to obey a call to the mission field in a region where comfort, at least as they have come to know the word, is at a minimum.

In a matter of months, the Rev. Dean Cernek, pastor of the Evangelical Free Church, his wife, Kris, and the couple's children, Jacob, 8, Jennifer, 6, and Jesse, 4, will call Tatarstan, Russia, their home.

"This whole thing is overwhelming," Dean, 39, recently acknowledged of the decision to pack up and devote their lives to evangelizing in Russia.

"But I told my wife...we're so far over our heads, we might as well enjoy it," he said, adding the couple has decided to make obeying their call a priority, believing their faith will grow to match the challenge.

Kris agreed, although she admitted preparations for the move, including watching many of the couple's belongings being carried away last week by enthusiastic garage sale enthusiasts, have seemed like climbing one mountain after another.

She smiled, however, and said, "It will work out in the end."

Dean explained the couple began seriously thinking about the move last fall, when a couple and their 3 young children, who are already serving in Tatarstan, visited the local church.

"Through them we became acquainted with Tatarstan. The 2 things that struck me were the total lack of Christian leadership; they don't have a single leader with qualifications beyond what a Sunday school teacher would have here," Dean said. "We have more pastors in this city — Cass City — than in the whole republic of Tatarstan."

PERSONAL BURDEN

"The other thing was just a personal burden in seeing the need there and feeling the Lord just wanted us to go."

Dean said the other couple's visit "really caught Kris a little bit — that people were taking their families in mission work today." In the past, he noted, Kris was somewhat hesitant about entering the mission field.

"This time, she was ready, and her enthusiastic desire to be a part of this has been a real encouragement and a real part of why we're going."

Tatarstan is an autonomous region about the size of Michigan's Lower Peninsula with a population of some 3.5 million. The region is located some 400 miles east of Moscow, according to Dean, who said it's a 31-hour trip by train. The people, he added, are related to the Turks and are Muslims.

The living conditions are primitive, even for Russia, Dean continued, with few automobiles and few of the conveniences taken for granted in this country.

The Cerneks said they expect to live in one of the more urban areas where housing consists of small apartments, or flats, that offer electricity and running water.

"We'll drop 20 pounds, so we're told," Kris remarked, referring to the availability and variety of foods in Russia compared to what the couple is used to. She pointed out, however, that they will have financial resources that will enable them to get by. "We will certainly not starve."

Dean commented the family will depend on a flight to Europe in a medical emergency, as health care in Russia is poor at best.

In Russia, there are very well trained physicians, he explained, but there is little in the way of facilities, equipment and resources, including medication.

HARBORED FEARS

The Cerneks acknowledged they harbored some fears about the standard of living in Tatarstan, particularly considering the fact they are taking their young children with them.

"It was a concern," Kris said. "But when God calls — when he directs parents to do something like this — it's also something the children need."

She explained the children will miss out on some opportunities, but will gain others by living in Russia, including learning 2, perhaps 3 languages, and being more culturally adept.

"The opportunities, in the end, are going to be greater," added Kris, who plans to continue home schooling her children.

The Cerneks, who have served the local church for 3 years, will be resigning effective at the end of July. In August, they will move to Illinois to begin training to prepare for their new ministry.

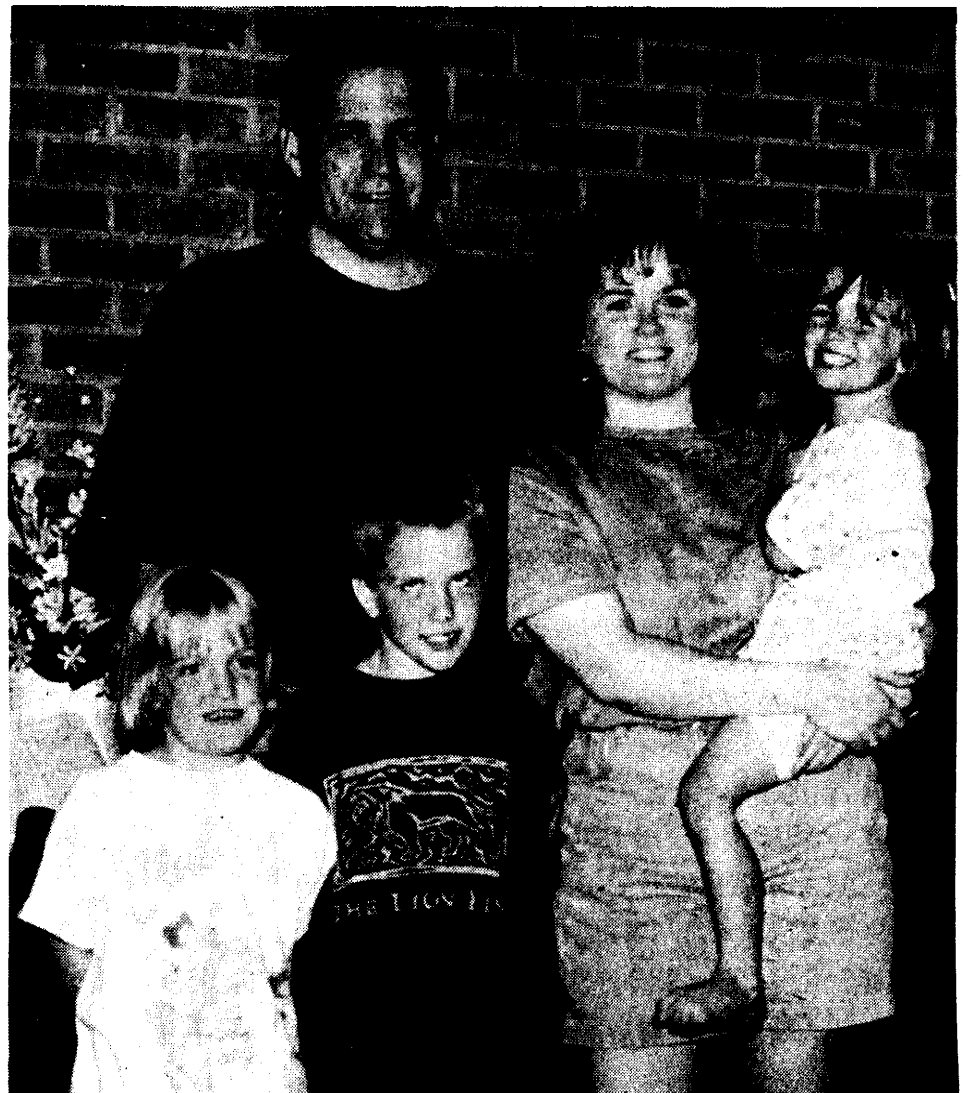

They will also continue to visit churches in an effort to raise funds to support their work.

"Our church has been very supportive of us, and we appreciate that tremendously," Dean commented, adding the local congregation has offered to continue the family's insurance and pay part-time wages.

The Cerneks will get their first close look at Russia in September, when they'll spend 2 weeks in Tatarstan, getting acquainted with the region.

"We're anticipating, by early spring or next summer, we'll be over there" permanently, Dean said. He explained he and his wife will be joining an Evangelical Free Church mission team

THE REV. DEAN and Kris Cernek, along with their children (from left) Jennifer, 6, Jacob, 8, and Jesse, 4, will be leaving Cass City later this summer to begin a new ministry in Russia, where they'll work with a mission team in Tatarstan.

Pet myths & facts

by Melva E. Guinther

One of the many catalogs delivered to our house came from "Drs. Foster & Smith, veterinarians." We could order just about anything we'd need...if we had a pet.

Nevertheless, a column in the catalog listing "Famous & Also False Myths About Dogs & Cats" caught my interest.

One of the myths is that dogs with dark colored tongues are mean. The veterinarians claim that the pigmentation of the tongue varies with the breed and has no bearing on the dog's disposition. They say the Chow's tongue is always black and they are not noted as being mean.

The doctors also debunk the idea that most pit bulls, Rotweillers, Dobermans or "most whatever's" are mean. They say that after 30 years of practice, they've found that aggression is usually brought on by environmental stimuli or training. Mean dogs usually are not born, but become that way because of their experiences, according to the doctors.

Another myth is that purebred dogs are more high strung or have more diseases than cross breeds. The doctors say the incidence of disease or being hyper is no different in either group.

Although we once had a St. Bernard that suffered a beer-induced hangover after running away from home and getting in with the wrong crowd, I never knew a dog that smoked. But the doctors report that it's a myth, that cigarettes, or any form of tobacco, clear a dog of worms. They don't.

Also on the subject of pets, from the book, "Imponderables", by David Feldman, come this question and answer.
Q: How can cats see in the dark?
A: They can't, although cats' pupils are very sensitive to ultraviolet light, enabling them to see things that humans can't. No animal possesses the ability to give light.

What they can do is reflect very faint light rays through an iridescent layer of cells around the optic nerve called the tapetum lucidum. When light is cast upon this membrane between the retina and the outer covering of the pupils, it is reflected back as if the cat's eyes were mirrors.

Feldman says that, compared to humans, cats are veritable Mr. Magoo during the day. Their slit pupils protect their retinas from the sun, not to mention giving them that mysterious, aloof air.

The slits are composed of 2 hoods like curtains that can be drawn to let the sunlight in, or closed to keep it out. When pulled together, as they often are during the day, a cat's vision is very narrow.

A few other tidbits of information of interest to pet fanciers:
* Dalmatian puppies are born completely white and get their spots later.

* White cats with 2 blue eyes are usually deaf.

* English bulldogs are usually bred by artificial insemination and the puppies taken by C-section.

* Almost all (99.9 percent) calico cats are female.

* Boxers and bulldogs have the highest incidence of skin cancer among dogs.

* The Manx cat has little or no tail (which should make it a bit less nervous than the average cat in a room full of rocking chairs).

A thank-you note from Corine Creguer was read.

bers were displayed.

Yvonne Burleson read an original poem about her dad and another, "What Makes a Puddle." Sometimes little items of trivia bring an unexpected response. Last week's item about Big Spring was one.

Floyd "Shorty" Luetke, retired Cass City businessman, called to say he spent vacations in the area. We took 10 days a year and always headed for the U.P., he explained. The spring was always great to see and I returned many times.

Ed Connell, Cass City, visited the spring the first time 57 years ago. He has a souvenir from that visit and it has Kitchi-iki-kipi carved on it. He returned in 1989 and says there are now none available like it.

Connell said that he purchased the spring replica as a present for his girl friend.

Must have worked, too. He married Fern in September 1939 and now they share the memento.

ED CONNELL displays a memento from Big Spring near Manistique.

Starting this week will be a series of messages sponsored by area businesses that point out some hard facts about the use of drugs, especially by pre-teens and teenagers.

Some of the facts presented in the series may be new. New or not, it's good to read about the dangers again and be sure the kids do too.

Here are a couple more items with local connections from the "Michigan Trivia" book.

What was the former name of Kingston? Answer: Newburg. The sound of water pouring over rocks in a local stream gave rise to the name of what Saint Clair County community? (Hint to golfers. Many from Cass City have played at the course with the same name.)

Answer: Rattle Run.

That's enough for now. Okay, maybe more than enough, but that's the way it goes on a quiet week on the trivia front.

CASS CITY MIDDLE SCHOOL students finished off the school year with honors assemblies Wednesday. Cemetery, dust control discussed Dust control and restrictions on decorations that may be placed on graves at the township cemetery were among the topics discussed during a monthly Novesta Township Board meeting last week.

Clerk Kathy Newell reported the township's roads have already been sprayed this year to control dust. However, the spray doesn't appear to have penetrated very well, and road dust remains a problem.

The board indicated it will contact the township's contractor, Bay Dust, to see what can be done to remedy the problem.

Turning to the cemetery, Newell said board members discussed possibly placing restrictions on the number of grave decorations allowed due to a problem with over-decorating by some family members.

Some graves are adorned with stone animals; others have 5 or 6 different artificial flower arrangements, making it difficult for the sexton to mow and trim, the clerk explained.

The matter was tabled pending further discussion.

In other business during the June 5 session, the board agreed to seek quotes to update the township's computer system. A memory expansion is needed, according to Newell, who noted all of the township's tax records are stored in the system.

Baseball is returning to the good old days. Sort of. Last week the owners passed several new regulations. One makes it impossible for hitters to step out of the box between pitches, shortens the break between half-innings and requires the first batter of each half inning to be introduced one minute and 15 seconds after the previous out.

These new rules will be in effect July 12 and a rule returning the strike zone to below the shoulders instead of above the waist will be tested in the next spring training period.

The reason for all this, of course, is the 25 percent decline in attendance in the major leagues following last year's strike.

It is an attempt to shorten the length of the games, which on average have been 33 minutes longer this year than they were in 1978.

Maybe in this hurry-up, instant gratification world this might help, but baseball's loss of fan appeal goes deeper than that.

First, there aren't enough people playing baseball these days and dad taking the kids to see a game isn't what it used to be. I couldn't help but think back to the days when the kids were little and we went to a doubleheader and each went into extra innings. It was too long for my wife, but the kids and the old man had a ball.

You won't find double-headers anymore, at least not as a regular thing. The fans probably think they are too long and it's sure that the players do.

Baseball just isn't that important to many young athletes today. Track, soccer, year-around basketball and football each take a share of the athletic spotlight of the young, much of it running all summer when baseball used to reign.

The popular explanation is that the strikes and the money issues and the greed of both players and owners have turned off the average fan.

It's probably true to a limited extent. The late Phil Retherford was fond of growing that no ball player was worth some of the inflated salaries handed out. It's crazy, he was fond of telling anyone who would listen.

Yet, that didn't keep Phil from the games in person or on the boob tube. The owners' dilemma is there aren't enough fans like Phil and me left.

The switching of players from team to team is often thought to be another deterrent for the fans.

Yet that happens in every professional sport and basketball and football teams continue to thrive and the stars jump from team to team on a blanket of dollars.

Better facilities for the fans will help, a result proven in Cleveland and Baltimore. Better appreciation of the fans by the players and management will also help.

But nothing will return baseball to the throne. It will need to work to remain part of the king's court.

The best cure for what's bugging Kansas Sen. Bob Dole could be David Alan Miller, Thomas Barrett and Ray Sturm.

That's what I thought while listening to music in Lapeer's White Junior High School last week and, two days later, while listening to more music in Detroit's Orchestra Hall.

In earnest search for votes for president, Sen. Dole recently called for less sex and violence on TV and in movies. Except when the lack of violence might hinder the sale of military-type assault weapons to dope dealers, and thus prevent the National Rifle Association from donating large gobbs of money to the political campaigns of suck-up candidates like Dole.

And except when the violent movie stars his conservative supporter, Arnold Schwarzenegger, who usually depicts killing as literally funny. Which is easy to do when your large muscles make you heroically immortal, even when the enemy outnumber you 2,000 to 1.

Dole's opposition is to movies such as "True Romance" and "Pulp Fiction", satirical films that a mature audience recognizes as amusing exaggerations that exploit violence to reveal its true consequences.

SOLUTION: GET THEM WHEN THEY'RE YOUNG

Only an idiot would deny there's too much gratuitous violence and sex in movies and on TV. But, also, only an idiot would deny that the people who produce the bloody trash are giving the public what it wants.

The solution is to grab the public when it's young and raise it to appreciate Aaron Copland as much as a sexually rabid rock star, a classical pianist more than a college quarterback, and a documentary on peace much more than Sylvester Stallone shooting someone's head off.

Copland composed the splendid music played by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in a concert for youngsters at Orchestra Hall last Saturday. The conductor was David Alan Miller, for this occasion known (and dressed) as Cowboy Dave. In his other life, Miller conducts the Albany Symphony Orchestra in New York.

The vocal soloist was baritone Thomas Barrett, a Virginia opera performer dressed in short pants to portray a young, stubborn rock fan — until he is converted in one hour by the marvelous DSO musicians.

A HERO WHO CAN'T DO IT ALL

The idea is to show kids that classical music doesn't have to be stuffy, it can be great fun. And it definitely was for a theater around half full of delighted children, including two of my granddaughters.

If only Orchestra Hall had been as packed as Joe Louis Arena was the next day for a hockey game, one of our most violent sports.

There were also many empty seats in White Junior High auditorium for a two-band concert starring seventh- and eighth-graders, with music teacher Ray Sturm conducting. Mostly relatives and close friends of the musicians attended, undoubtedly comprising a much smaller crowd than that at the nearest showing of the latest "Die Hard" movie excess of killing while smirking.

Mostly, I was there to applaud my favorite seventh-grade flute player, Emily, but I was glad to hang around for the full program. Like so many teachers, Sturm does a great job of coaxing the best out of his students.

I don't kid myself that visible leaders like Sturm, Miller and Barrett are going to gradually silence Sen. Dole's self-serving agonizing over movie and TV violence and sex. What the professionals need to upgrade entertainment and retire Stallone and Schwarzenegger, is much more aiding and abetting from parents.

It wouldn't be easy, but it would surely be more effective than electing Dole president.

Appoint Thomas area dairy agent

Michigan State University Extension recently announced a new dairy agent will be serving Sanilac and St. Clair counties.

Craig Thomas, a native of Indiana, assumed the duties of this position May 22.

He will be responsible for developing dairy education programs and providing dairy expertise for all dairy producers in the area. He will serve as an educator, information provider, a needs assessor and a resource for problem solving, and will also create an information network involving local dairy producers, allied industry personnel, MSU dairy specialists and other Extension dairy expertise agents.

Thomas indicated his program will focus on enhancing the profitability of all dairy farms regardless of their size or production technology. He said that a key will be for dairy producers to adopt accounting systems that can aid in identifying key areas where production costs can be controlled.

Thomas graduated in 1979 from Purdue University with a bachelor's degree in animal science. He received a master's degree in dairy science from Louisiana State University in 1981 and a doctorate in animal science and agricultural economics from the University of Florida in 1994.

Thomas has served as an extension dairy and livestock agent in Wisconsin from 1982-85, and an extension dairy farm advisor in California from 1986-88. Just prior to continuing his education at the University of Florida, he managed a 2,000-cow dairy farm in Bell, Fla.

During his doctoral education, Thomas conducted research concerning the economics of various milking parlor designs and operating strategies. At the time of his appointment he was a postdoctoral associate at the university working directly with Florida dairy farmers on a variety of economic and production issues.

Thomas will be headquartered at the Sanilac County MSU Extension office in Sandusky. The office phone number is 810-648-2515.

Resignations accepted

Parents concerned with absentee policy

The Owen-Gage Board of Education accepted the resignations of a veteran teacher and first-term board trustee, and heard concerns regarding the school's absenteeism policy during a monthly meeting Monday night.

The board accepted "with deep regret" the resignation of Harvey Billy after 34 years of service to the district. Billy, who is retiring, taught junior high math and science, and junior/senior high drafting.

Also accepted with regret was the resignation of board Trustee Lisa McIlvenna.

McIlvenna, who has served as pastor of the Gagetown and Owendale United Methodist churches, explained in a letter to the board that she has been appointed to another church in the Saginaw area.

School Supt. Manuel Thies said the board will appoint someone to serve in McIlvenna's place until the next annual school election.

Turning to the district's absenteeism policy, one parent commented that students are expected to learn how to behave as adults, and yet they aren't believed when they explain an absence. And, she added, school officials don't believe parents either.

Another parent asked about discrepancies regarding the attendance of her son, who has been marked absent from class one hour, present the next, and absent the next, all in one day.

Still another mother complained that when her daughter was ill, a hospital statement was not accepted as an excuse for all the days she was absent due to the illness, and she was told a doctor's note was needed. She said she can't afford a doctor's visit every time her daughter is ill just to obtain an excused absence.

Thies attempted to address some of the concerns. He explained absentee records are kept by the office staff and teachers. However, there are sometimes discrepancies when a teacher fails to fill out an absentee slip.

High school Principal Joanne Hopper told the board she wasn't aware there was a problem, but that she's confident teachers consistently fill out absentee slips, and that the record-keeping is thorough.

The concerns were also news to board members, including Trustee Rick Ziehm, who said he wished they had been brought up while school was still in session.

Hopper commented that teachers are not happy with the current absentee policy, which allows students to have 12 absences per semester for any reason. After that, the students must document an absence, such as with a doctor's note, or lose credit.

Too many absences affect teachers' ability to do their jobs, Hopper explained.

Thies indicated many students don't have a problem staying within the allowable number of absences. The policy, he pointed out, was set up to keep problem students in check.

"If we do not have a policy, then we have chaos," he added.

Hopper, who noted abuses of the policy by some students have been a problem this year, said Owen-Gage's existing policy is lenient compared to neighboring districts.

Board members agreed. "I think 12 days is more than enough," Trustee Mary Ann Abbe commented.

Hopper told the board the policy is being reviewed, and she invited parents to take part in the process by attending upcoming meetings.

Thies also urged concerned parents to provide some input when the topic is revisited, probably during the board's monthly meeting in August.

In other business Monday, the board:

- Approved a proposed 1995-96 staff development schedule presented by Hopper. The schedule includes 6 one-hour delay days in order to give staff members time to continue work on curriculum development.

- Adopted a formal resolution to borrow $42,056 from First of America Bank to purchase a new school bus.

- Learned the process of interviewing for a social studies teacher has begun. Hopper, who said the hiring is in response to Billy's retirement and realignment of the district's curriculum, told the board she has received 102 applications for the new job.

A BOW HUNTER (above) is among the prehistoric carvings that can be seen at the Sanilac Petroglyphs in Sanilac County. The area state park, located in Greenleaf Township, will remain open through Labor Day.

Petroglyphs open through Labor Day

The Sanilac Petroglyphs, operated by the Michigan Department of State's Bureau of Michigan History, opened for the 1995 season May 28.

Located south of Bad Axe off M-53 in Sanilac County, the Sanilac Petroglyphs are among the most important prehistoric sites in Michigan.

Around a sandstone outcropping, along the North Branch of the Cass River, are prehistoric carvings of water panther, a bow hunter and oddly shaped stick-figures. These petroglyphs (rock carvings) are estimated by archaeologists to have been created 300 to 1,000 years ago.

The site contains other rock carvings made during the last century by loggers who worked the nearby timber. Visitors who follow the hiking trail can see where a lumber camp was located in the late 19th century. Beavers have created an expansive dam along the trail as well as a very large beaver lodge.

A tour guide will be on duty through Labor Day, 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Bring along a picnic lunch and hiking shoes for an enjoyable day outdoors in Michigan's thumb region. Admission and parking is free.

Special events planned for the Sanilac Petroglyphs include:

June 17 - "Show Us Your Stuff." Bring in YOUR collection, 1-4 p.m., Dean Anderson, Michigan Historical Center Archaeologist.

July 16 - "The METIS I" 1-3 p.m. Al Pifer, Traverse City. Native American Music, Lore, Artifacts and stories (families).

Aug. 13 - "Romancing the Stone." 1-3 p.m. Presentation on Native American folklore.

Regular hours through Labor Day, Sept. 5, are 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; closed Monday and Tuesday; open Labor Day.

To reach the park, turn east off M-53 onto Bay City-Forrestville Road and drive 4 miles to Germania Road. Turn south on Germania Road and drive approximately one-half mile. The Petroglyphs parking lot is on the west side of the road. There are no modern services provided at this rustic site. For more information, call (517) 373-1979.

The Sanilac Petroglyphs are one of 9 field sites within the Michigan Historical Museum system operated by the Michigan Department of State's Bureau of Michigan History.

The Department of State is the official state agency responsible for preserving, protecting and interpreting Michigan history.

The Department's Bureau of Michigan History administers the Michigan Historical Museum system, the State Archives of Michigan, archaeology, historic preservation, and publications programs, including Michigan History Magazine. The Bureau is supported in its efforts by the Michigan Historical Commission, the Michigan Historical Center Foundation: the Friends of Michigan History, and the Docent Guild.

Your neighbor says

Hoped school tax renewal would pass

Long-time Cass City resident Dick Erla didn't plan on voting in Monday's school elections.

Although he hoped the 18-mill non-homestead tax renewal would pass, he said it doesn't really affect him as a homeowner.

The original owner of Erla's Food Center and Meat Packing said people owning more than one house should be able to afford the higher taxes. And hopefully, village businesses are successful enough to pay the millage, he added.

Erla, who moved to Cass City 42 years ago, will celebrate his 50th wedding anniversary with his wife Christine in January.

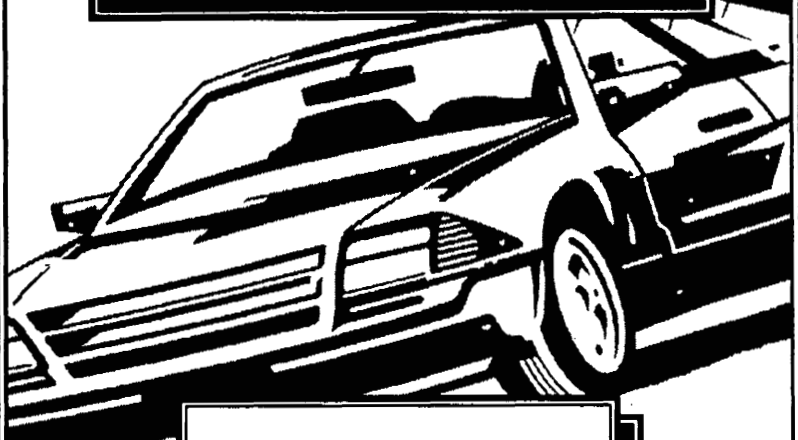

Many of his relatives work in the school system.

An ex-farmer and World War II veteran, Erla says he has enjoyed living in the village.

"There's no better place in the world than Cass City," he said.

Tough Waterford eliminates O-G

The Owen-Gage Bulldogs' softball season came to an end Saturday at Genesee High School when eventual regional champion Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes recorded a 6-0 win during a semifinal match up.

Coach Dean Roller's squad enters the record books with a 15-8 overall mark. "They (WLOL) are a talented team," said Roller afterwards. "And they've got an 8th grader coming up next year that throws harder than the 2 pitchers they have now."

The Lakers stranded a runner on third base in both the first and second innings before exploding for 5 tallies in the bottom of the third frame.

Two fielding errors in the stanza proved costly for Owen-Gage.

Kate Powers went the distance for the Dawgs and allowed only 6 hits while fanning 3 and walking 4.

"I was very pleased with Kate's performance. She says she's willing to work in the off season. I think she'll be very tough next year," said Roller.

Jessica Kirchner earned the win on the mound for the Lakers, tossing a 2-hitter that included 11 strikeouts and 6 walks.

Both Bulldog hits were provided by senior Angie Wildman, who doubled in the fourth and singled in the sixth inning.

The Lakers closed out the scoring in the fifth when they added one unearned marker. Stephanie Ryeson and Amanda Coleman led the winners at the plate with 2 doubles each.

Jeff Talaski of Lakers was named utility player.

Emmons completes basic training

Air Force Airman Gary N. Emmons has graduated from Air Force basic training.

During the 6 weeks of training the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

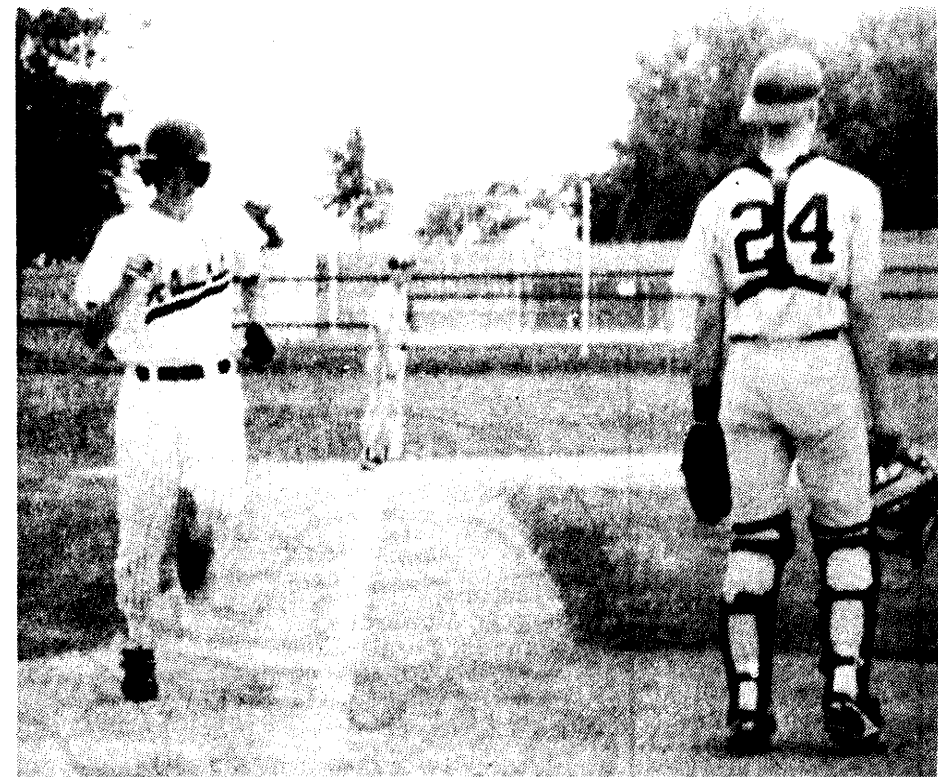

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Emmons is the son of Joe and Diane Howey of Gettysburg.

The airman is a 1994 graduate of Owendale-Gettysburg High School.

BRIAN GRAICHEN rapped a double between the outfielders to drive in 3 runs for Cass City against Mayville.

CHAD DIEGEL trots home with the third run of the inning against Mayville Saturday.

Hawks' upset bid over Mayville falls just short

Heavily favored Mayville received the scare of its life Saturday in the opening game of the regional tournament at Cass City, but used a big 5-run rally in the sixth inning to top Cass City, 7-6.

The Hawks had spurred to a 6-2 lead after 5 innings and things looked bright for the Hawks until the sixth inning explosion.

Here's how Cass City forged into the lead. In the opening inning Chad Zawilinski walked and, with 2 away, Jason Morgan singled through the hole between first and second, scoring Zawilinski from second.

Mayville scored a pair in the second with just one hit. It all started after the first 2 batters were retired. Cheney singled, Cobb and Matt Steele walked and 2 runs came home on an error on a hard ground ball to short by Travis Plain.

Cass City scored 3 in the fourth. Chris Hahn doubled to deep right center with one out. Matt Oesch worked starter Joel Terbush for a walk and Joe Fisher was brought in to relieve Terbush.

Chad Diegel laid down a perfect bunt and beat it out for a single to load the bases. Brian Graichen then lashed a double between the outfielders and cleared the bases.

Leading by 2 runs, the Hawks made it a 6-2 game in the next inning. Morgan opened with a single and Hempton walked. Mayville ace Chris Yen was brought in from shortstop. Kevin Storm greeted him with a single to score both runners. With Storm on third, first baseman Cobb made a stellar play. He took Hahn's pop fly with his back to the infield and whirled around to nail Storm trying to score after the catch.

That set the stage for the rally that won for Mayville. With one away, Mayville banged out 4 straight hits. A key hit was a dribbler to first in which Cobb beat Hempton to the bag.

With 2 runs in and the bases loaded, Fisher rapped a hard hit that went for a triple when it got by the Cass City outfield, to empty the sacks.

Chad Brant took over on the mound and with one out Storm lashed a double, but Brant, a fireballing hurler, with the tying run at second then struck out the next 2 batters to end it.

Hempton pitched a fine game for Cass City and almost was able to hurl the Hawks to a win against a team that had merited Cass City twice during the regular season.

CHAMPIONS

Mayville then went on to win the regional tourney with a 12-8 decision over Lake Fenton in the afternoon.

WINNERS OF THE Cass City Lions Club Invitational golf tourney, held Saturday at Rolling Hills Golf Course, are Elwyn Helwig and Dave Powers.

29 teams in Lions' tourney

Elwyn Helwig and Dave Powers recorded 5 birdies and 2 eagles on the final 9 holes Saturday at Rolling Hills Golf Course to capture first place honors at the annual Lions Club golf tournament.

The pair carded a winning total of 56 during the 2-man handicapped best ball tourney, which included 29 teams.

The team of John Maharg and Ken Tiseo, which posted the best score over the front 9 (26), finished second with a score of 58 on the par 70 track.

Finishing in 3rd place on the day were Charles Johnson and Dan Stanczyk, who ended up 11 under par for the afternoon.

Rounding out the top 6 scores were the teams of Jason McCallum and Mike Randall (59), Jerry Toner and Jack Hool (60), and Todd Glaza and Rick Hollis (60).

FREEDOM—That's what 2nd grader Angela Stoeckle says America means to her. Stoeckle's poetry reading prompted applause during an assembly celebrating America at Campbell Elementary School Wednesday.

WAVING RED, WHITE and blue streamers in beat with the music, Jessica Blades, Cole Mellendorf and Alison Emmert lead Campbell Elementary School 3rd graders in a round of "This is My Country." Students from each grade joined to sing a patriotic song during the Campbell Family All American Celebration Wednesday.

KINDERGARTENERS Zachary Hopper and Trey Helwig dump coins into the wheelbarrow that was to hold $526 raised by Campbell Elementary students to help Oklahoma City children. Marlene Erla, the first grade teacher who suggested asking for donations, was on hand to accept the penny-dominated results of her idea.

Letters to the editor

Drunk drivers give up right to privacy

Dear John,

This letter is in response to one of last week's Rabbit Tracks. I would like to make a comment on Clara Eberts' suggestion.

Clara suggested that drunk drivers get a different color license plate (presumably only until the offense has been "removed" from their record). You pointed out that it was doubtful that an invasion of privacy like this would be legal.

You may be correct, but the idea should be seriously considered. Aren't drunk drivers invading the privacy of the un-intoxicated public by driving on the same roads, putting other people's lives in their hands and hoping for the best? We should have some right to be warned which drivers may cause an accident, so that we could drive a little more defensively when we're near them. Maybe different colored plates for second time offenders would be justifiable.

It may very well legally be an invasion of privacy, but I believe that these offenders give up their right to privacy when they have jeopardized other people's safety and/or lives.

Respectfully, your daughter-in-law,
Karen Haire

Close Up trip benefits youths

To the Editor:

Democracy is not a spectator sport - for it to survive and flourish, we all must become involved. This is the message I heard from 1,237 high school students representing 117 Michigan high schools who recently participated in the Close Up Foundation government studies program in Washington, D.C.

For a full week the students had the opportunity to develop a better understanding of our democratic process. By observing Congressional proceedings, questioning journalists and meeting with government experts, the abstracts of history and the process of governing were transformed into concrete experiences. In addition, students were able to share their views with their peers from other areas of the country.

Participants returned home with a deeper awareness of their responsibilities as citizens and the realization that a single individual can make a difference. Their enthusiasm for involvement in the democratic process is to be admired.

Sincerely,

Hilary Culverwell
Michigan Outreach Coordinator

Publisher's note: Cass City sent several students to participate in the program.

PASTOR F. ROBERT TUCKER and his wife Linda open the Potter's House doors to welcome community members. The Tuckers say they are looking forward to working with area churches from their new church home located on 6th Street in Cass City.

At former Church of God

Tuckers begin "Potter's House" ministry locally

by Melissa B. Turmo
Staff Writer

Pastor F. Robert and Linda Tucker might still be looking for a house, but the couple is already celebrating something of a new home and a growing family.

The Tuckers say they are elated — and a bit surprised — with the support and reception they have received in their new ministry.

"If you want to know the truth, we thought it'd be just he and I for a while," Linda said.

But 10 people attended the first worship service of the second Potter's House Christian Fellowship, a full gospel Pentecostal church.

And while the Tuckers continue to live and work in the Lapeer area until they find a house in Cass City, this early start of a congregation has been working at the former site of the Cass City Church of God on 6th Street to prepare for an open house and special services that took place from Saturday to today.

Their activities have included making electrical improvements, hanging wallpaper and worshipping together.

But the support has not stopped there.

"We'd like to thank the whole community for their prayers," Pastor Tucker said.

Linda commented on the friendly, helpful and loving atmosphere she and her husband have encountered during their time in the village.

The Cass City Church of God congregation has been especially supportive during the transition, even bringing flowers to the Potter's House

June 4 opening service, Pastor Tucker expressed.

The church is the only branch of the 10-year-old Potter's House in Almont pastored by Juan Martinez and is not connected with other Potter's Houses across the country.

Its name comes from the Bible, Jeremiah 18:2, which states, "Arise and go down to the potter's house, and there I will cause thee to hear my words."

"We believe the Lord is the potter and we are the clay," Pastor Tucker explained.

SERVICES SET

The regular services, slated for 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sundays and 7 p.m. Thursdays, generally include singing, readings from the Bible, a sermon, and communion.

"We definitely praise the Lord," Linda said.

Each service is slightly different, and flexibility allows members of the congregation to choose favorite hymns to sing, Pastor Tucker explained, adding, "We leave the service up to the Lord."

Pastor Tucker's religious service includes children's ministry with the Assembly of God during the 1970s in New Jersey.

He has worshipped in the Almont church for 9 years, taking classes to receive his pastoral license and serving as an assistant pastor.

He said he felt a call to open a new ministry site, but the Tuckers' original plans for a new Potter's House in Crosswell fell through. So when the news came that the Cass City Church of God was selling their building, the decision was made to come to the village.

The Potter's House's introduction into Cass City came at an appropriate time, Linda said. The recent merger between the Salem and Trinity United Methodist Churches allowed them to enter the community, while keeping the same number of churches in the village.

"We came to add, not to subtract," Pastor Tucker offered. "We're here to help the works that are going on."

The purpose of the new church is not to break up existing congregations, but to give even more individuals a place to worship, he added.

"There's a lot of people out there still hunting, still looking... for a home."

Police investigate damage complaints

Cass City police investigated several property damage complaints in the village over the past week.

James Palmateer, 6292 W. Main St., Cass City, reported he parked his vehicle behind Cass City Floral, 6450 Main St., Friday at 9 p.m., and when he returned at about 2 a.m. discovered the rear window glass had been shattered.

Scott Ackerman, 6247 Pine St., told police he was working in the back of his bike shop Thursday with his helper, Steve Boldizar, when he saw 3 boys roller blading in front of the shop, and heard a crashing sound. He investigated and found 2 spindles from his front porch had been broken.

Police contacted the youths, one of whom admitted accidentally falling on the porch. His parents agreed to replace the spindles, reports state.

Terry Tuckey, 6248 Pine St., Cass City, contacted police June 7 to report the left rear window of a car he has displayed for sale at 6232 Main St. had been shattered.

Also June 7, Robert O'Dell, 7510 Hadley Rd., Cass City, reported he parked his truck behind the village hall parking lot, and when he returned, at lunch time found the driver's side window smashed.

Karen Autry, 6456 Third St., reported someone threw a golf ball at and broke a window at her residence June 4 at about 3 a.m. Damage was estimated at $50.

Also recently, police arrested Robert S. Haas, 26, 5477 Shabbona Rd., Decker, on suspicion of driving while his license was suspended. Police stopped a vehicle driven by Haas Saturday at 9:45 p.m. at Main and Weaver streets, according to reports.

America's Drug Problem Is Not As Big As You Think.

It can start as a dare. Or youthful curiosity. Or it may be a way to escape problems at home. Whatever the reasons, studies show that an alarming number of young children are trying drugs. Unfortunately, too many parents still do not believe that their kids are at risk. The truth is, it's never too early to start teaching your kids about the dangers of drugs. If you're not sure how to talk to them, call 1-800-624-0100 and ask for a free booklet called Growing Up Drug-Free - A Parent's Guide To Prevention. Call today, because if you don't take care of little problems, they can easily grow into big ones.
