School enters uncharted water

with fire marshal inspection

cancv.

The Cass City School Board moved into uncharted waters at its regular monthly session at the high school Monday night.

The board agreed that Supt. Ken Micklash should have the State Fire Marshal inspect the middle school building and tell what needs to be done to bring the building up to code.

That decision could have a devastating effect on education in the community that in a worst case scenario could result in the closing of the building and split classes at the high school.

School authorities believe it won't come to that, but it could. Renovation of the school will cost more than the school can afford without a bond issue.

According to Micklash, a representative of the fire department called and said that the department does not conduct courtesy fire inspections. If it comes, it will be with the understanding that the school will comply with the recommendations to -oring the building up to code. Although a general assessment of this cost was given from the architect, the board wants the fire department to declare officially what needs to be done. They don't believe us, President Jim Turner said.

Since there is no doubt that renovation will cost more money than the school has, a bond issue will be needed. If the bond issue fails, the building then is subject to closing.

There was hesitancy on the part of the board to ask for the inspection, but they decided to forge ahead, despite having 3 bond issues turned down, because trustees were afraid of liability if they did nothing, given the condition of the building.

NEW PRINCIPAL

The board agreed to hiring Dr. William R. Snyder as principal for the Cass City Middle School. He has a long career in education and comes to Cass City from the East Middle School in Ypsilanti, where he served as principal. He was given a 2-year contract and the salary for the first year will be for $57,000, with 5 weeks' vacation in the summer.

The Cass City United Way Board of Directors Thursday announced a 1995 campaign goal of $20,000, a $1,000 increase over 1994

The annual campaign kicks off Sunday and will continue through Nov. 15.

"Last year we had $19,000 set and we thought $20,000 was an achievable figure," said Dawn Prieskorn, who is serving her first year as president of the Cass City United Way.

It's likely the goal will be met and then some, judging by a long tradition of generosity exhibited by Cass City area businesses, industry and residents.

Last year, a total of $29,312 was collected, topping the year's goal by a whopping $10,000. In 1993, the goal of $18,000 was also met and exceeded, with $23,789 collected.

Despite last year's over-tion of success may be attributed to a guarantee that a majority of the dollars collected locally benefit local groups

A full 85 percent of those funds stay in the community, with the remaining 15 percent allocated to the Tuscola County United Way to help fund other agencies and services that benefit residents in the Cass City area.

Last spring, the local United Way board distributed a record $25,000, representing most of the monies collected during the previous fall.

The funds were distributed to a host of area agencies, as well as victims of the Oklahoma City bombing, who received a gift of $1,000.

Allocations were made to Rawson Memorial Library, Cass City Boy and Girl Scouts, July 4 Festival, Cass Please turn to back page.

And it's not just squirrels. Another story, reported by Paul Tracy in the Manchester (N.H.) A police officer called to the scene tried to run over the belligerent beast, but when he got out of his cruiser, thinking he'd killed it, the woodchuck sprang up and attacked him. Sounds like a horror movie, doesn't it? He finally shot the animal. Hopefully, unlike the typical horror film, there won't be a "Woodehuck II."

And then there are the bees. Have you noticed how aggressive they've become? Another of Barry's stories came from an Associated Press release from Kennewick, Wash., and told about a TV reporter doing a story about beekeeping. A swarm of bees, apparently attracted by his hair spray, attacked him and stung him more than 30 times.

The beekeeper didn't help matters, although he tried. He covered the reporter's head with a protective hood but unfortunately, the hood was also full of bees.

It's enough to make a person nervous. If all these varmints ever join forces, we could be in real trouble.

Just when the annoyance of the detour on M-81 at the west limits of Caro ended with the repair of the road, another repair project that was to start Monday has been announced by the Michigan Department of Transportation.

It's on M-81 at the railroad tracks near Millwood Street, also in Caro. Traffic will be detoured, using Frank Street and M-24. The road will be resurfaced over the railroad crossing approaches on M-81.

The good news is that the project is to be completed by late October.

"If It Fitz .... "

Ubly, geese and sissy euphemisms

Because of something I Rossmoor over and not stopwrote in October, Paul DeJohn of Plymouth sent me a snapshot of a beautiful German riverboat, sailing on the Rhine. "The boat's theme, Fahrt mit Musik, seemed an appropriate setting for sightseeing following a out green cards. heavy luncheon of brats and wursts in a local Gasthaus," DeJohn explained.

And, from Cal Look of Royal Oak, there comes a snapshot of a plastic eagle taken in California. The connection between the two photos is one of substance, rather than sound, and will possibly become clear if you dare keep reading.

This all began when I quoted from a 1925 Edgar A. Guest poem about Ubly, a tiny town in Huron County. And it was commented that "Ubly" sounds like the release of gas in a bathtub.

Subsequently, encouraged by exceedingly intellectual readers, I was compelled to write that if it weren't for einfahrts and ausfahrts, a runner couldn't fartlek on and off the autobahn.

Which, translated from the German and Swedish, means the runner could speed up, slow down, and speed up again, a pacing procedure called fartleking. Einfahrts and ausfahrts are on and off ramps.

Obviously, if I'd heard from Paul DeJohn earlier, I also would have written that, in Germany, following a Gasthaus dinner, runners at sea can fartlek on deck mit musik.

Cass City Public Schools PROGRESS IN EDUCATION from the desk of Ken Micklash, Superintendent

The Michigan Department of Education has recognized Cass City High School for its highly successful Contextual (Applied) Communications Program. The staff at Cass City is extremely proud of being one of only 13 schools across the state to receive this honor. Five years ago the English Department consisting of Dennis Meck, Jane Reif and Nancy Folk began investigating curriculum that would better serve the needs of our students and community. They not only recognized the success of the College Preparation English program, but also recognized the need for a focus of educating students for the world of work; hence the beginning

The applied English program begins in 9th grade with Veronica Commire emphasizing that all students need a basic background in reading and writing skills as well as educational survival skills to be successful in high school. The 10th grade with Nancy Folk begins the division between college preparation and preparation for the world of work, with all students researching career and employability skills. The 11th grade with Jane Reif continues the focus of reading and writing skills, but adds what most employers say they want:

*employees equipped with the skills to handle tasks associated with specific jobs

*employees who can adapt to changing technologies, innovation and who can compete in a global market

Therefore the 11th grade begins an intensive focus toward communication skills, problem solving skills, self-management skills and teamwork skills that continues through the 12th grade with Dennis Meck

This curriculum has become enhanced with the school's successful Co-op program overseen by Wayne Dillon, the technology developments at the high school and the emerging School-to-Work project.

Other high schools receiving this recognition were:

of Applied English.

is also true for corporations. including the media giants, Gannett Co., owner of the Detroit News, and Knight-Ridder, Inc., owner of the Detroit Free Press.

One of the issues in the strike is featherbedding, paying for work that is no longer necessary because of technology or changing needs of the market place.

The companies are adamant in eliminating as much nonproductive work as possible while the unions are out to protect these jobs.

It's sure that featherbedding exists, as the papers are now produced with less manpower, although not with the printing professionalism that readers are accustomed to. In the last 2 weeks 2 of the papers have been delivered to my house with several pages unreadable.

Make-do work has long been associated with the printing union. Back in the with me and others who deplored the waste. It should be eliminated. The trouble is what happens if the nation's print shops and press rooms take advantage of all the production cost cutters. It's not likely that the reduced costs will translate into a better newspaper, and it's a lead pipe cinch that the savings will not reduce the cost to the reader.

Among its ownership of television stations, radio stations and newspapers, Knight-Ridder lists one in Philadelphia. In its last year the paper earned a profit of 10 percent.

Now the announced goal is to cut the staff and streamline the operation.

To have more bucks for a better paper or a reduction in the cost to the readers? Hardly.

The goal is to raise profits to 15 percent.

Leroy Magel

Leroy R. Magel, 55, of New Baltimore, formerly of Cass City, died Wednesday, Oct. 4, in his home.

He was born May 24, 1940 in Metamora to Roy M. and Erma (Schwerin) Magel. He farried Helen K. Hulburt May 23, 1959 in Cass City. Mr. Magel retired from the U.S. Air Force in 1979 after 20 years. He was a Master Sergeant and worked as a Jet Engine Mechanic. He was a veteran of the Vietnam war. Leroy graduated from the Bay DeNoc College in Escanaba with an Associates Degree in Water Technology. He worked as an Operator at the Wastewater Treatment plant in Romeo. He was a lifetime member of the Negaunee VFW Post #3165 and a former member of the Skandia Lions Club.

Leroy is survived by his wife, Helen; daughters, Kelly (Darrell) Pendergrass of Rochester Hills, and Jill lagel of Marquette; a sister, Leona (Ron) Felisky of Flint; a brother, Norman Magel of Decker; step-sisters, Phyllis (Eugene) Czapla of Plymouth, and Janice (Don) Smith of Decker; a stepbrother, John (Janice) Dunlap of Ramona, Calif., and many nieces and nephews. He was preceded in eath by his parents and sister, Jean Trisch.

Funeral services were held Saturday, Oct. 7, in the First Presbyterian Church of Cass City with the Rev. David Smith officiating.

Minor blazes have kept the Elkland Township Fire Department busy over the past few days. The alarms included a small fire Sunday afternoon at the Michigan Livestock Exchange east of Cass City. caused when a pig apparently bit through an electrical wire, shorting out the wire and roasting the pig. The costliest of the blazes occurred early Saturday morning at the Paul Schmatzer residence, 5130 Shabbona Rd., where a small barn was leveled by flames. The call came in at 1:06 a.m., according to Fire Chief Milt Connolly, who reported the structure was "on the ground when we got there. We just put out the cinders." Connolly estimated the loss at $7,500 for the barn and its contents. "He had some hand tools, an air compressor and some motorcycle parts and automobile parts," the chief said, adding the cause remains under investigation

Firemen were assisted by the Caro Fire Department, which sent a tanker to the scene. Fire fighters were called to respond to a dumpster fire Sunday at 9:30 a.m. at The Colony House, 8430 N. VanDyke Rd. There was no damage, Connolly said. Finally, the fire department responded to a fire Monday at 4:45 a.m. at the Ronald Wright residence, 5879

Bruce St., Deford. Connolly said floor boards on the residence's front porch had caught fire, but there was little damage. Cause of the blaze remains under investigation.

Top teams hand Hawks pair of losses

played 2 of the stronger teams in the area last week and the Hawks bowed to both of them, losing to visiting Imlay City, 54-35, and to undefeated Bay City All Saints, 61-53, in a Thumb C National League game.

The game against Imlay City was decided in the first four minutes.

Cass City opened the game with a basket and then the Spartans ran off 14 unanswered points before Coach Marty Daniel called time out to stop the onslaught.

In the rally Cass City was able to get only 2 shots, both missed, as the Imlay City press took the Hawks out of their game and caused numerous turnovers. Shelly Ulfig broke the spell with a rebound hoop after a missed shot.

Cass City bounced back briefly after that rally and played on nearly even terms the rest of the first half. The visitors removed all doubt about the game's outcome in the third quarter, as Cass City was only able to generate a basket by Ulfig and one of 5 free throws. Going into the final 8 minutes the visitors were in front, 46-25.

Imlay City was led by Milli Martiney with 19 points. Ulfig had 14 for Cass City.

ALL SAINTS GAME

All Saints showed why they have been devouring the competition this year as they handed the Hawks their 8th defeat in 10 outings.

The Hawks were playing without 3 seniors who were not available for the game and who were also to be gone for Tuesday's game with USA.

The seniors are eligible to play in Thursday's game with Harbor Beach if they desire to return.

In their absence, Ulfig did her best to make a winner out of the short-handed Hawks. The freshman center scored a career high 30 points and

The Cass City Red Hawks the total could have been higher, as she missed 6 of 18 free throws.

Ulfig's individual brilliance was not enough to counter the over-all strength of the potent Cougars.

The Hawks rallied in the second quarter to move back into contention against the 5th rated team in the state. With Ulfig scoring 13 points, Cass City was behind 36-21 at the intermission.

Briefly threatened, the Cougars showed why they are undefeated, outscoring the Hawks 15-10 in the third quarter and using balanced scoring to keep the lead in the final 8 minutes. All Saints was led by Kim Biskup's 10 points in the third quarter and the Cougars used balanced scoring to hold the lead in the final 8 minutes.

Coach Marty Daniel was pleased by the play of his charges, pointing to the play of freshmen Ulfig and Kara Mellendorf on the inside and the pinpoint passing of the against visiting Imlay City, but the Spartans had little trouble guards as the reason the Hawks were able to challenge All Saints and move to within 4 points of the lead late in the game. Throw out the first quarter and this is the best we have played this year, Daniel said.

team returns to Thumb C National competition Friday at Marlette. The Red Raiders are in the title hunt while Cass City is winless in the league.

As indicated by the final score, it was really no contest from the first time Cass City had the ball until the final whistle.

On the first play from scrimmage Matt Oesch went through right tackle, broke a tackle and went 63 yards to score.

Cass City's next touchdown came with 2 minutes left in the first quarter. Dan Sherman bounced through the center of the line and went 53 yards.

Two big runs by Oesch keyed the next Hawk touchdown drive that covered 60 yards. He ran for 19 yards and 16 yards and scored the touchdown from 3 yards out. Sam Spencer's kick was good for the extra point. A fine kick by Corey Ulfig that was good for 50 yards

Letters to the editor

Look at both sides Teachers, parents in same boat

Mr. Editor,

I am writing in response to a recent letter by Mr. Mike Byron on his comments about his feelings toward the new school issue. I am extremely appalled at the extreme narrow-mindedness of one Mr. Byron. He claims that educators only think about educating children and do not realize the "parent costs" of raising a child. Well Mr. Byron, not only is my mother a teacher in the Cass City Public School System, she is also a parent. She knows darn well the costs of raising children. She incurs these costs every single day of her life and she knows how hard it can be in today's world. I think if you did a little investigating you would come to the conclusion that most of the teachers in Cass City's system are in the same boat, that is most of them do have children also. Are you claiming that the people that educate your children are stupid and do not understand the real world? I sure hope not.

Of course money is a factor to all of the teachers. But not money for themselves, money for your children. Money funded to build a new teachers at all. It goes to the construction, contracting, etc. Maybe you did not realize that. A new school does not make the teachers one cent richer. The teachers want a new facility because they want the best for your children. Would you enjoy going to work every day in an old, run down, beat up building and have to sit in there all day? My guess is probably not. The reason you believe the level of a child's education has decreased is society, not the educators. More and more kids are now growing up in environments that are not conducive to the school does not go to the mind-set that education is of utmost importance.

> I agree with you that the community should "share the sacrifice." That is why all of the teachers are pushing for a new school. It is not just the teachers in that building, it is teachers in all buildings that want what is best for your children. They are all willing to dig a little deeper into their pocketbooks, why can't the rest of the community? I am pretty sure that if the proposal ever did pass, all the teachers will stick around town and take care of their they would take the "get out of Dodge" attitude.

If you think that teachers do not work overtime, you are truly misled! The teachers are at school well before your child gets there and after your child leaves. Most of them even take their work home with them frequently. How often do you take your work home with you? If you are so jealous of an educator's schedule, it is not difficult to go back to school and change your career.

On a closing note I would also like you, Mr. Byron, to #### share of the deal. I doubt if clarify with me why "children in other countries without the resources we have provided, are receiving a better education." That does not seem to make much sense to me and I consider myself a fairly well educated young man. I commend you for voicing your opinions, Mr. Byron, but I think you wrote vour letter in haste and did not take time to look at both sides of the fence to see what needs mowing.

Fuel tax increase should benefit ALL residents

Dear Editor

There has been a great deal of discussion on the need for a fuel tax and how to divide it. Governor Engler claims that County Road Commisnecessary for Michigan's on January 1, 1997. A total citizens and businesses. The increase of 9.5 cents.

Governor's proposal is for new money to EXPAND the The current distribution would remain with counties receiving 39.1%, cities re-ceiving 21.8% and MDOT state system and ignores the REDUCED MAINTEreceiving 39.1%. We would return, to MDOT, $174 million from the Build Michigan Program over six years and eliminate the Local Program Fund. This would generate an additional $42 million for MDOT's expansion projects over the next three years. Furthermore, $30 million was added to the Critical Bridge Fund for the 1,500 bridges that are in need of repair. We proposed an index based on inflation at no more than 1 cent per year beginning in 1998. This would generate an average increase of $327 million for MDOT and $330 million statewide for local roads. THIS PROPOSAL IS FIFTY/FIFTY!!

felt it unfair to raise taxpayer expectations, that a fuel tax increase would improve their roads, when it would not. If the fuel tax is to increase, it should benefit ALL of the people in Michigan. That is why we have a formula. Governors Williams, Romney, Milliken and Blanchard understood the economic importance of a sound transportation system. We hope Governor Engler will come to understand it too.

A lifetime of memories shaped Arlee Freiburger's outlook on life in his native town of Argyle, a tiny hamlet nestled near the center of Sanilac County's Argyle Township.

A desire to share those memories and more with others led him to put them down on paper.

At age 84, Freiburger recently wrote and published an 86-page history of the Argyle area.

The book covers 6 generations -- over 134 years since Jacob Seder and his family became the first to settle in Argyle. The work had its start a decade ago, according to Freiburger, who along with wife Olive, a retired teacher of 31 years, still lives in the centennial farm house in which both he and his father before him were born.

"Actually, about 10 years ago I started collecting, talking to old timers," he recently commented. "I had done a couple of family (history) books on my father's and mother's side of the family, and then I started to think about the town of Argyle," he said. "I just knew that you couldn't find much out about the town, so I thought it would be kind of nice if someone would do a complete story."

Freiburger, whose own grandparents left Canada to settle in the Argyle area in 1879, conducted extensive research, collecting old plat maps and gleaning information from courthouse records.

INTERESTING

The research proved interesting, he noted.

"The funny thing is, they (settlers) had settled in little cliques or communities in Canada when they came from the old countries, and they came here and settled in little neighborhoods. It was no easy task, as the early settlers "came by board and over land with ox team, over foot and wagon trails in the wilderness, to a plot of land, most bought for 25 cents an acre. They hewed out the farms, built log homes and barns, cut trees for lumber and burned the rest to make fields for crop. "They dug water wells, dug and burned out tree stumps to make room for planting grain for flour and food, and feed for livestock. Many made their own tools from hardwood - rakes, forks, wooden buckets and baskets to hold water and grain. Most all of them came here with ox drawn wagons, loaded high with supplies and tools. There was room only for the aged — mothers and babies to ride. Many walked barefoot."

Freiburger called the 2 decades following the 1876 plat map a time of rapid growth in Argyle Township. It also brought the Great Fire of 1881, and the township suffered extreme loss of human lives, buildings, crops and fire. His wife, Marie, was wasn't that our parents did it fire appeared.

"In fear of her life and family, she sent her oldest son, said Argyle was quite a bus-Paul Jr., 13, a mile west to tling community at one time. brother, George her Kroetsch, for help.

"The next day after the fire most, 3 garages and 2 of had died down, George Kroetsch, his sister, Marie Weitzel and children, Maggie, age 12, Mary, 8, Theresa, age 6, Julia, age 4, and baby Ambrose, 1 year and 7 months old, were found near the road corner, one mile east of Laing store. They had all huddled together and were burned and suffocated by the fire," Freiburger wrote.

"Strange to say, they may have survived had they stayed at the Weitzel home. Son Paul Jr. and Aunt Mary were safe at the George

Kroetsch home.

MEMORIES

In addition to history, Freiburger's book includes some of his own childhood memories, including attending one and 2-room school houses.

"What us older folk called entertainment in our day, would be pretty dull for the present generation. In our time, a night in town, maybe an ice cream cone, a free show, a dance or a small bag of candy, was a thrill," Freiburger wrote.

"We teenage boys spent long evening hours rolling old tires from behind Herdell's garage, along the sidewalk of McLaughlin's store and in front of the garage. Sometimes we would watch them dance and listen to the music.'

Freiburger pointed out free time was a precious commodity then.

"A lot of us farm kids didn't have that much time to play. We did our work -- our chores --- before school and after school," he said. "It Store, which was originally
