Kingston Days festival returns

The end of August will mark the return of Kingston Days for the Kingston community.

While Kingston has had festivals off and on since 1982, Kingston Days has become an annual tradition the last few years. The festival runs Aug. 22-25 and will feature many different types of activities.

Kicking off the weekend will be the second annual Kingston Days Scholarship 5k fun walk and run. The run/walk will start at 6 p.m. Thursday. Participants are asked to meet at Wesleyan Church at 5:30 p.m. for a ride to the start.

Information and pre-registration forms are available at Independent Bank and Beagios of Kingston. Registration will also be accepted the night of the race beginning at 5 p.m.

The Little Miss Kingston pageant will follow the race at 7 p.m. in the Kingston Elementary School. The cutest baby contest results will be announced at 6:30 p.m. Thursday night in the elementary school.

A new addition to the festival is an amusement ride company, who will bring sumo wrestling, the velcro wall, the moon walk and other rides to the park, Friday and Saturday.

Kingston Days Depot Committee member Jan Peter said these additions will especially appeal to a younger crowd. "Kids love to do things like that."

Another first for the festival is a big top tent, which will be located on the tennis courts. Activities under the tent will kick off at 9 p.m. Friday with an open to the public dance.

Dancing will also be the featured activity under the tent Saturday night as the country dance group Northern Lights performs from 8 to 11 p.m.

Friday night will offer one of the most popular events of the weekend, cruise night. According to Peter, the event last year was the most widely attended, with more than 200 cars driving through town. Peter said she expects the same this year.

"If the weather is good, cruise night will be the best attended event."

The Piggly-Wiggly children's race will kick off an event filled Saturday at 9 a.m. in Memory Park. Toddlers through sixth graders are welcome to participate.

Children will also have the opportunity to wander through a petting zoo. Peter said this is the first time for the petting zoo at the festival, but it is a welcome addition. The zoo will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at Memory Park.

The pre-grand opening of the recently restored Kingston Depot will take place from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday. The opening will feature a historical photo display, a signature quilt and a wool demonstration. T-shirts and postcards depicting the famous 1911 train wreck will be on sale as well.

Taking a "Walk Through Time" will be possible throughout the 4 day event. A tour book will guide walkers past some of the village's historical houses and shops.

Other anticipated events are the "Cow Plop Drop", from 2 to 5 p.m. at Memory Park; the Thumb Area Draft Horse Association Demonstration. Please turn to back page.

New approach cuts caseload in Thumb

President Bill Clinton's announcement last week that he would sign a national welfare reform bill brought applause from legislators and the Michigan Family Independence Agency alike.

In agreeing to sign the legislation, the president made good on his 1992 campaign promise to "end welfare as we know it."

But major welfare reform has been underway in Michigan for the past 4 years, and state officials say the results have been nothing less than remarkable.

The national bill is expected to save some $55 billion over 6 years. It ends the federal guarantee of direct cash payments to the needy, limits assistance to 5 years and gives states the freedom to design their own relief programs requiring work for benefits rather than traditional welfare.

"My many constituents who are concerned about the wise use of their tax dollars scored a major victory...with the agreement on a welfare reform bill that guarantees help when needed, and protects children," said U.S. Congressman Jim Barcia (D-Bay City). "However, it cuts off abusers of the system who forget that welfare was always intended to be temporary."

"The House and Senate conferees who crafted the final version of this bill have taken a number of objections into consideration, made by groups concerned with the plight of children and the poor," Barcia added. "For instance, the earned income tax credit will be expanded, guaranteeing families who work full-time that they will not fall below the poverty level."

"Further, this legislation adds $4 billion for child care and prohibits states from opting out of the federal food stamp program."

VERY POSITIVE

In Michigan, the legislation will have a "very positive" effect on the welfare program and its clients, said Karen Smith, spokeswoman for the Michigan Family Independence Agency, formerly the Michigan Department of Social Services.

"There's quite a bit there (in the bill) that we've already implemented," she commented Friday. "But I think the thing that's very significant about this is it takes from the feds the authority to set the standards."

"Michigan is in its third phase of welfare reform, and this frees the way for us to do a number of things that Michigan wants to do to benefit our people."

Smith said the state has already made a great deal of progress in turning welfare around.

Since 1992, the year welfare reform began in Michigan, state officials have closed 95,000 cases involving families who "earned their way" off welfare roles by finding and keeping employment.

Today, the case load totals 174,000, the lowest since July 1973, and the figure continues to decline steadily. Smith said the case load has fallen in 27 consecutive months.

In addition, 37 percent of current welfare recipients are working as well as receiving some form of assistance, compared to a national average of 9 percent.

Smith indicated the numbers are equally impressive in Tuscola County. A chart showing the number of cases in which welfare recipients are working in Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties accompanies this story.

MORE CHANGES

As for the future, the national welfare bill will bring more changes in Michigan, including mandatory attendance of a joint orientation program, sponsored by the Michigan Works Program and the Michigan Family Independence Agency, for new clients applying for assistance.

Currently, new clients are automatically accepted if they are eligible, Smith explained.

In the near future, she said, clients will have to attend the orientation, then meet with an independent family worker who will tailor an individual program geared towards helping that person establish their own financial independence.

The shift towards looking at welfare as a temporary helping hand, rather than as a way of life, is nothing new for Michigan residents on assistance.

In 1992, the state began to reward, instead of punish, welfare recipients who work by increasing the amount of income they could earn before reducing their welfare benefits.

Recipients were "forgiven" the first $200 they earned per month, and 20 percent of what they earn above the first $200.

In the same year, another important reform measure—the social contract—was implemented. The contract asked welfare recipients to put in 20 hours each week doing community service, working, going to school or being involved in some other activity.

"That was a real change for people because for years, we haven't asked people to do anything," Smith said, adding today, more than 75 percent of the state's welfare recipients are fulfilling their social contracts.

Smith pointed out other technical policy changes have been implemented, including changing a federal rule that cut assistance to recipients who worked more than 100 hours per month, and simplifying eligibility guidelines for Aid to Dependent Children, food stamps and Medicaid.

MANDATORY

Two years ago, the state continued to build on its reform, making the social contract mandatory for those on assistance beyond one year. If they fail to cooperate after one year, their benefits are reduced by 25 percent. If another year passes and they still don't cooperate, their case is closed.

In the future, recipients who refuse to cooperate after receiving reduced benefits for 4 months will have their cases closed.

"We found people really were willing to cooperate, they were willing to do something in exchange for public assistance," commented Smith.

She said the state started with 2,800 cases in which the 25 percent reduction was implemented, and by the end of the year, only 167 cases had been closed.

Last May, the state implemented another incentive by offering cash, instead of food stamps, to welfare recipients who earn $350 or more per month for 3 months in a row.

In the future, Smith said state officials will target ways to enable welfare recipients to continue receiving Medicaid benefits and day care during the transition period that follows when they leave the welfare roll to work full-time.

Smith: Tattoo man grabs attention wherever he goes

by Rebecca Messer
Staff Writer

Not so long ago tattoos were taboo, something only sailors and drunks had. Times have changed. Now grandmas and teenagers have them.

Tattoos have even found their way into Cass City via Steve Smith. Smith, who has lived in Cass City since the sixth grade, got his first tattoo when he was 19 and now, almost 20 years later, he has hundreds covering his body.

Smith said he got his first tattoo "for the fun of it." It wasn't until a few years later, he said, that he started his collection.

There is a common theme to most of Smith's tattoos, cartoons. An avid cartoon watcher, Smith is also a cartoonist. Hence the reason for all the tattoos.

"There are millions of cartoon characters out there. I have hundreds of tattoos right now and I don't have any of the smaller Disney characters that make up the Disney movies," he explained.

Most of Smith's tattoos are on his arms. He has some on his legs, stomach, feet and back, as well.

Once started, Smith said, it is hard to stop.

"It gets really addictive. I don't smoke anymore, this takes its place. Sometimes you can't get enough ink."

Smith said he does receive a lot of attention when walking through a mall or down a street.

"I love going through the mall and having kids check me out and say, 'Oh Mom, look at all the cartoons on that guy.'"

ARTIST

In addition to getting tattoos, Smith is a tattoo artist in his spare time. Working in a shop in Saginaw, Smith calls himself an apprentice, because he has only been giving tattoos for 1 1/2 years.

Another reason Smith considers himself an apprentice is he won't do "anything satanic or against my religious beliefs" or certain body parts.

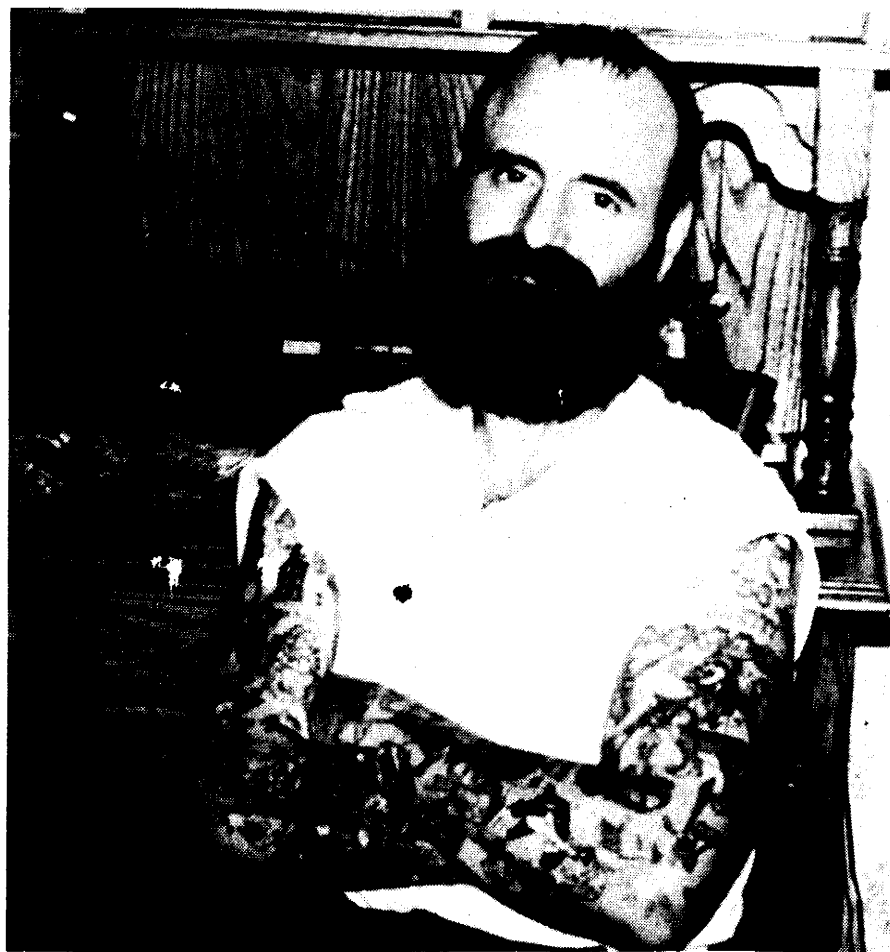

"I guess I won't do certain body parts because I'm not comfortable with it. If I'm not comfortable with touching them in a particular area and they're not comfortable with me touching them in that particular area, then everybody is nervous and the tattoo is not going to turn out as well as it could," said Smith, who has worked at Walbro for 20 years.

As far as giving tattoos, Smith said there are areas of the body that are more tender than others such as the tops of the feet, toes, fingers and the stomach. But he added, "It depends on the person. Everybody has different pain tolerances."

Usually, the first 5 minutes are the most painful, he said, "and people think 'Oh my God! What am I doing here?'" Then they get numb to the pain, even in the super painful spots.

The father of 12-year-old Megan does not recommend the toes or the fingers at all because, "they do not hold the ink very well." Smith also does not recommend 2 popular places for women, the bikini area and the chest. The bikini line is not a good spot, especially if the woman

A while back we featured a quiz on animal phrases commonly used in our colorful language. Since then, it occurred to me that another language obsession of Americans is food.

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

It's about 35 miles from where U.S.-27 joins I-75 south of Grayling to Gaylord, and it's part of the new testing of the state's increased speed limit to 70 miles per hour on selected portions of the freeway.

Just for fun, the cruise was set at 70 miles per hour to see what happened. As expected, cars zoomed past me in a never ending stream. While at the legal speed limit, I passed 2 vehicles, a large truck and a motor home dragging a car behind it.

The traffic that passed me had to be averaging close to 80 miles per hour.

Harbor Beach High School is offering soccer for both boys and girls this year. The sport is fast growing in the Thumb, spreading rapidly from the suburbs, where it's now firmly entrenched.

While we feel soccer is a great sport, there may be problems ahead for smaller schools. It's finding enough students to man the teams. Already in the fall there are football, girls' basketball, golf, cross-country and cheerleading.

Area class D schools have already abandoned football because of the numbers problem and if soccer drains more numbers away, it appears to me that inevitably one of these 2 sports will prevail at the expense of the other.

Chicago, San Francisco, New York are among cities highlighted in songs that became classics. Chances are most of you don't know that there was a song saluting Detroit that never made it to anywhere near the top of the popularity polls, even though it was sung by one of America's premier performers, Sammy Davis, Jr.

According to the "Michigan Trivia" book, the song was "Hello Detroit" and was recorded in 1984 in a Motown salute.

Vehicle stolen, burned

Huron County Sheriff's deputies recovered a car that was stolen over the weekend in Cass City.

According to Tuscola County Sheriff's Department investigators, the 1988 Mercury Cougar was reported stolen by its owner, Jason A. Morgan, 6437 Main St.

Morgan, who had last seen the vehicle at 11 p.m. Friday, told deputies the car was taken from the parking lot behind Pizza Villa.

Trimming the trees

In this summer heat, few people are thinking about the Christmas holidays. But Michigan's Christmas tree growers are. During the summertime, they're busy trimming their trees so they'll be in tip-top shape for the holiday season.

The Haire Net

Most of the athletes representing the United States in the Olympics are competing because they qualified with the best efforts in tryouts. That's the American way. Most of the time anyway.

Everyone competes and the best survives. That leads to heartbreak, of course. Outstanding performers have a bad day or a nagging injury and they drop by the wayside. Out of it all.

You can feel sorry for them. Years of training effort down the drain in a moment. That's the way it goes. Tough but fair.

The athletes that really get the shaft are those that are cut AFTER they post the best marks in training and then are left on the sidelines when the big show begins.

All of this was brought into focus when Carl Lewis won the gold medal in the long jump and started a campaign to be allowed to run a leg on the 400-meter relay team.

His campaign was eagerly endorsed by NBC for the "good of the sport." If he could win his 10th gold medal in the relay it would let Lewis break a tie and place him on a plateau not shared by any other.

Whether or not Lewis winning another gold would have the benefit to the sport in the years ahead that supporters claim is speculative. Extremely speculative. I'd hate to bet the family farm that it makes any significant difference.

What is sure is that in the short term, if he were on the relay team there would be a significant benefit to NBC and its advertisers.

If he were allowed to go for the gold, it's sure that more televisions would be tuned in for the spectacle, allowing for more sales of Coke, shoes and products of the remainder of the sponsors.

Keeping Lewis off the team was a topic that was the center of interviews and discussion right until the final decision was reached to keep him off the squad.

You can't say that Lewis was jobbed. He didn't earn a spot on the team.

The athlete that did get the short end of the stick was the runner who finished 4th in qualifying times, but was replaced by one who finished sixth.

The coach's rationale is that he wanted experience on the team and that's why he wanted a sixth place qualifier to replace one whose time was fourth best.

What that says is that you don't have to be the best to compete. Just have the eye of the coach.

By its very nature, decisions about a basketball or baseball player or any player on similar teams need to be subjective. That's not true in track. The numbers are there. You run faster or you don't.

And if you have the numbers, you should be competing when the show starts. It's the only fair way. The American way.

I guess I'll never be a "cat person". There's something about cats that gets under my skin, and these animals know it.

I was standing in a book store a few months ago when the owner's kitty decided my leg would make a good rubbing post. The cat rubbed against my leg in one direction. Then he turns around and rubs the other way.

Yellow hair was piling-up on my pant-leg and I was thinking, "If this cat would just rub around toward the front of my leg, I'll bet I could loft him right through the gardening section."

The kitty knew he was safe, though. He had been lounging around that store his entire life and was pretty sure he owned the place.

The thing that bothers me most about cats is their attitude. These animals go to great lengths to convince their owners they can't be taught anything.

That's one of the misconceptions about felines. They aren't dumb. They can be taught, but it takes determination.

I've found the best aid to training cats is a tennis racket. Anytime my cat gets to acting a'fool I just show him my tennis racket, and he straightens right up.

Another misconception about cats is that they are such clean animals. I don't know why sitting around licking yourself is considered clean, but that's the way some folks see it.

A third misunderstanding is that cats have 9 lives. That rumor was started years ago by people who couldn't tell a dead cat from a live one.

I fell into that trap myself some years back - when we owned a big, white tom cat who didn't stay home very well.

One spring I noticed a white spot in the neighbor's alfalfa field and figured Old Tom had gone to his big banjo in the sky. The cat had been missing for several days, so I didn't mention the spot in the field for fear of upsetting the kids.

The white spot laid in that field for weeks - until the hay was baled and summer faded into fall. The spot disappeared about September - just before Tom came walking into the barn, looking like he had survived a hard night, several months of sleep, and 2 cuttings of hay.

Last, but not least, there is a fourth misconception about cats that dissuades me from being a "cat person". I'm speaking of the common belief that cats lick their feet so much they should be kept in the house to protect them from pesticides and fertilizers.

Cat advocates say these creatures might walk through an area where chemicals have been recently applied, and then ingest those substances by licking their feet. That makes sense on the surface, but folks who have studied cats as I have will see the fallacy involved.

I've watched our cats for years and noticed they really don't lick their feet that much. I can't speak for other people's pets, but I think our cat could walk through toxic chemicals until the cows come home and it wouldn't bother him a bit.

If he sat in those materials, on the other hand, they would kill him for sure.

Garden therapy for the Zimmerman family

by Rebecca Messer
Staff Writer

FAMILY LOVE

Tucked behind a back corner of the house is a special place Reba Zimmerman likes to sit, relax and clear her mind.

It's her garden. She calls it the therapy garden.

"We call it the therapy garden because when my husband was diagnosed with cancer, it was a quiet place where we could relax and feel close to God."

During the past 15 years she and her family have slowly cultivated and groomed the garden to what it is now, a sprawling array of color with a stone path winding its way past ponds, waterfalls, lilies, hostas, marsh marigolds, ferns, grasses, bird baths, benches and many other colorful delights.

Zimmerman, who lives in Decker, said when she started she didn't have a plan, she was just trying to beautify a barren back yard. The garden began with a small pond that was later relocated to accommodate an addition to the house.

After relocating the pond, she added a flower bed to give the area a little more color.

The garden is not a project Zimmerman worked on alone. Throughout the years she has enlisted the help of her entire family. Her 6 children, Duane, Kathryn, Galen, Rosalie, Jeremy and Aaron, who range in age from 28 to 8, as well as her late husband, Weldon, helped with the creation.

"The garden became very important to our family during Weldon's illness and it was good for him. It gave him something to do that he enjoyed."

But she added, even though the garden is something the whole family enjoys, the whole family does not always enjoy working in the garden. "The kids helped but they didn't always like it. They would groan, 'Well, Mom, we already did move it 3 times,' when I said we need to move this plant."

Since she adds, subtracts, or moves things around, Zimmerman said the garden is different every year. Last year, for instance, she made sure there was an abundance of flowers for her oldest daughter's wedding.

"Preparing the garden for the wedding was a lot of work, but it was special," she stated.

Besides wanting to add color to the back yard, Zimmerman said she gardens because she has a passion for it and comes from a long line of garden lovers.

"I love to garden and I love flowers. My mom and grandmother also loved to garden."

Zimmerman said she "cheats a little" and gets some of her ideas from magazines or friends' gardens. "I love to look at other back yards. I get magazines and look at ideas and think, 'Oh, I can do that in my back yard.'"

LABOR OF LOVE

The garden is divided into 3 parts, the butterfly garden, the shade garden and the sunny garden. The shade garden has Zimmerman's favorite feature, the water garden, complete with 2 ponds, a waterfall, a bridge between the ponds, 6 fish and water lilies.

Another feature the family really enjoys is the butterfly garden, although this year they have not seen as many butterflies as in years past due to the loss of their butterfly bush. Zimmerman said the long winter and cold wet spring killed her bush.

"I wanted to get another one, but I couldn't find one. Everywhere I went they said, 'We don't have any because everybody lost their butterfly bushes.'"

In addition to butterflies, birds are popular inhabitants of the garden. Zimmerman said one morning she sat in her garden for 2 hours and during that time counted 32 different kinds of birds.

This year, however, there have not been as many birds because of a few cats that have decided to take residence in the area. Zimmerman said the cats have climbed up the bird houses to get the birds.

The cats are not only wreaking havoc with the birds, they are going after the fish, as well. The cats will sit next to the ponds and swipe at the fish, she said. "If I knew how to get rid of those cats I would."

One of the hardest parts of the garden to put together was the stone path that winds through the garden. Zimmerman said it took 40 pound bags of cement to lay a 2 foot square section of the path.

Zimmerman said she hasn't decided what she'll add or change in the garden for next year. As in the past, she will not make a plan, she will add what her heart tells her to plant.

REBA ZIMMERMAN relaxes in her therapy garden. Bits and pieces have been added to the garden during the past 15 years by her whole family.

Recover stolen property

Sanilac County Sheriff's deputies recovered stolen property over the weekend that was taken from break-ins by members of the "Wu Tang" gang in Deckerville, Sheriff Virgil Strickler said.

A fan and fire extinguisher were taken from the Deckerville Laundromat, located on Ella Street, and a stereo was taken during a break-in of a private residence on West Main Street in Deckerville.

"Sheriff's deputies are continuing their investigation into the crime spree by members of the gang," Strickler said, adding more arrests are expected as the investigation continues.

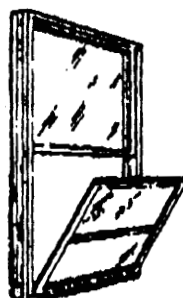

THE WATER GARDEN, featuring 2 ponds, water lilies and fish, is the family's favorite spot in the garden.

Two suffer minor injuries in separate auto crashes

A pair of Cass City residents suffered minor injuries in separate traffic crashes last week.

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies reported a one-vehicle accident Saturday on Crawford Road north of Deckerville Road in Novesta Township.

Sacha L. MacDonald, 18, 4300 West St., Cass City, was driving north on Crawford Road at about 10:45 p.m. when she lost control of her vehicle, which entered a ditch on the west side of the road, crossed the roadway and entered a ditch on the east side, then came back onto the road.

MacDonald was taken by private vehicle to Hills and Dales General Hospital, where she was treated for minor injuries. Deputies cited the driver for traveling at a speed too fast.

A day earlier, Ross A. Ford, 31, 4391 Seeger St., Cass

City, was hurt in an accident about one mile west of Cass City, near the intersection of M-81 and Koepfgen Road.

Troopers from the Michigan State Police post in Caro said Ford was westbound at 1:20 p.m. when he attempted to pass another vehicle. The other vehicle began to make a left turn, and in an attempt to avoid a collision, Ford lost control, rolling his car over once.

He was transported by Cass City MMR personnel to Hills and Dales General Hospital, where he was treated for his injuries.

Ford, who told deputies he did not see the other driver's turn signal, was cited for careless driving and having no proof of insurance.

Energy saving tips in hot weather

Summer weather means everyone wants to stay cool while keeping energy costs in check. Following some simple energy-saving tips from Detroit Edison can help you do both this summer.

Closing blinds, shades and draperies keeps the sun out and helps fans and air conditioners cool more efficiently. If you use a window fan, make sure draperies are secured for better air circulation and safety.

Set the thermostat for a central air conditioner at the highest comfortable setting. When leaving home for 5 or more hours, raise the thermostat setting 5 to 10 degrees. Just raising the temperature 2 degrees will reduce cooling costs by 5 percent.

Refrigerators work harder in warm weather to keep food cold. If you have an extra refrigerator in your garage, consider unplugging it or using it only when necessary. A refrigerator in an uncooled space uses more energy.

Insulation not only keeps cold winter winds outside but also prevents warm outside air from entering spaces you cool in the summer. Check weather-stripping and caulking around doors and windows and close storm windows and doors to keep hot air out and cold air in.

Regular maintenance will help air conditioners last longer and work better. Before doing any maintenance, remember to disconnect the electrical power. Keep the outside portion of air conditioners free of dust and debris, clean fan blades annually and clean or change air filters every 90 days during the cooling season. Seal any leaks in air ducts and basement registers.

When using a window air conditioner, close doors leading to uncooled parts of the home for better, more efficient cooling. Eliminate air leaks between the air conditioner and the window with foam insulation or weatherstripping.

If you use fans for cooling, blades should rotate clockwise in the summer months. Most ceiling fans have a switch that controls the direction of the blades. Use fans to draw cooler air inside during the night and circulate air during the day.

Control humidity in your home by doing chores that produce moisture -- like dish washing and laundry -- early in the morning or late in the evening.

On hot days, minimize the use of appliances that generate heat such as stoves and clothes dryers.

Detroit Edison encourages customers who foresee bill-payment problems to contact the utility at 1-800-477-4747. The utility will help customers make payment arrangements and may be able to direct low-income customers to sources of bill-payment assistance.

Coach Tom Oesch announced that mandatory football practice for Cass City students in grades 9-12 starts Monday, Aug. 12, at 6 p.m.

Physical cards must be turned in before candidates can practice. For further information, contact Oesch at 872-5369.

CASS CITY'S Jeremy Hulburt and Krista Connolly recently finished first and second, respectively, in the Augres River Run. Chemical Bank Thumb Area sponsored the pair in the 2-mile race, held July 27 in Augres.

List new 70 m.p.h. zones

State Transportation Director Robert Welke and State Police Director Colonel Michael A. Robinson last week unveiled the first Lansing area sign for the speed limit test zones.

The 5 test areas across the state will increase the maximum speed limit from 65 to 70 m.p.h. on 517 miles of interstate. All but 170 highway miles will rise from 55 to 65 m.p.h.

The new laws will impact travel in the following areas:

- * I-75 from Standish to Sault Ste. Marie
- * U.S. 131 from Grand Rapids to Cadillac
- * I-96 near Muskegon to Lansing
- * I-69 from the Indiana Border to Port Huron (except Flint)
- * I-94 from Mt. Clemens to Port Huron been speeding. And don't wait for your best friend to die before putting on your safety belt," Robinson said. "Be reminded that the ultimate responsibility to be a safe driver is yours."

Your neighbor says

More deer now

The deer population seems to be up. At least that is the opinion of one Cass City resident.

Casimir Bartnik says the deer population seems to be pretty plentiful, although some might disagree with him. "Some say there are too many, some say there are not enough."

Bartnik did say, however, "they are beginning to be overpopulated in some areas."

Bartnik listed 3 such spots. He said east of town by the river, west of town by McDonalds and north of M-81 near M-53 are prime areas to spot deer. "They can be as high as 100, maybe more in these areas."

Having a large deer population, Bartnik said, gives hunters more of an opportunity to bring something home. He added that he doesn't like to see deer killed and then left, especially when it comes to does.

"They waste a lot of meat. I don't approve of that."

He does, however, agree with the recent announcement by the Department of Natural Resources accepting applications to hunt antlerless deer in 1996. "As long as they don't go overboard," he cautioned.

There are bad parts to having a large deer population, Bartnik said, such as the damage they can do to crops.

But he added he has had no trouble with deer in his garden for either of the last 2 years.

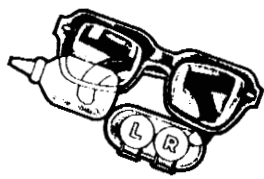

Michigan Department of Transportation officials and Michigan State Police (MSP) will conclude the 3-month study Dec. 15 to resolve traffic safety and engineering issues. Afterwards, they will make a decision whether the 70 m.p.h. will be a permanent fixture on Michigan highways.

Police officials emphasized the need for motorists to observe speed limit zones especially in construction, school zones, and at emergency scenes. Speeding in these areas will result in double fines.

"We all want good roads, so we have to be mindful of the men and women who deliver them," said Welke. "Safety is our primary goal."

MSP will enforce these new laws. They will be monitoring speed levels in a construction area, emergency scene and school zone.

"Don't wait for a police officer to tell you that you've

Plenty of room
Nicol playhouse perfect

Alyssa Nicol, 6, and her younger sister, Brittany, 4, are probably the envy of just about every youngster who happens to pass by the youngsters' Cemetery Road home.

The reason? The girls have their very own playhouse. But it's not just any playhouse. The 8-foot by 10-foot chalet-style structure is decorated with detailed wooden trim and features windows that can be opened and closed. Inside, the walls are paneled and drywall has been hung above. The mini-home has its own electric lighting, and can easily accommodate 3 or 4 adults.

The story behind the family project, completed last summer, still brings plenty of smiles to the faces of Jim and Jeanne Nicol, the girls' parents.

"We were on our way to Saginaw one day, and my wife — she finds these things for me to do," Jim said, grinning.

"No, he makes me go to the Home Depot with him," Jeanne interrupted with a smile.

"He loves to go look around lumber yards," she said of her husband, a roofer by trade. "I've always hated going to them, and this time, the plans were sitting there and I said, 'Do you think you could make that?'"

Jim's reply was "probably," and the rest is history.

"It took, oh, I'd say maybe 4 days at the most," he said of the actual construction.

"He really worked at it," Jeanne said, adding Jim would put in a 12- or 14-hour day on the job in Pontiac, then come home and work on the playhouse. His job turned out to be an asset to the project, as he was able to collect a fair amount of scrap wood from various construction sites.

Jim didn't stop after he completed construction based on the playhouse plans the couple purchased.

"He made it harder than it has to be. It has electricity and the windows open,"

Jeanne noted. She laughed and added, "I had to draw the line when he wanted to put cable in there."

As for trips to the Home Depot, Jeanne indicated she's confident her visits there will be few and far in between in the future.

"We haven't been back since" the playhouse was finished, she joked. "I don't think he'll be taking me back there anytime soon."

Predators manage pests

Natural predators are an important part of an integrated system of landscape and garden pest control. Ladybird beetles and praying mantises are highly promoted and even sold through gardening catalogs.

Some larger predators, however, are not only not appreciated or encouraged in their good work, but may actually be persecuted.

"Think about it," says Glenn Dudderar, Extension fisheries and wildlife specialist at Michigan State University, "Have you ever seen an ad for snakes or toads?"

Bats seem to be making a little headway, thanks to their well-known appetite for mosquitoes. Some catalogs offer bat houses, either ready-made or as kits, to lure bats into backyards.

You can encourage a toad to hang around your vegetable garden or flower bed by building what National Wildlife Magazine calls a "toad abode." Simply hollow out a shallow depression in the soil, line it with fine mulch or good topsoil, and upend an old clay flower pot over it. Take a chunk out of the side of the pot for an entryway. Especially if you've chosen a shaded, secluded spot, a toad is likely to take up residence.

The snakes that are likely to appear in lawns and gardens are equally harmless and beneficial, but fewer homeowners are as tolerant of snakes as toads, and fewer still welcome them, Dudderar observes.

Garter snakes, Michigan's most common snake and the one most likely to turn up in lawns and gardens, consume large numbers of slugs.

If you want to encourage the snakes to hang around the garden, try laying some old boards, flattened cardboard boxes or discarded carpet scraps off to one side to provide snake hiding places. Snakes passing through the yard should find the combination of food and shelter quite appealing.

Garter snakes eat insects, slugs and other invertebrates. Other types of common, harmless snakes, such as milk snakes, eat mice. Leaving the snakes alone to go about their business can make a significant difference in the magnitude of a rodent problem.

Some people are so fearful of snakes, of course, that they'd rather be overrun with mice or garden slugs than tolerate the presence of snakes.

W.I.C. enrollment up in Sanilac County

The Sanilac County Health Department announced that the W.I.C. program is continuing to increase its enrollment. At this time, over 1200 families are enrolled.

W.I.C. is a special supplemental food program sponsored by the Sanilac County Health Department and the Department of Agriculture, for women, infants and children.

To participants it provides health screening, nutrition education and monthly coupons for nutritious foods.

Women and children receive coupons for fresh milk, cheese, eggs, cereal, juice and beans or peanut butter. A new deluxe breast-feeding package for women also includes tuna and carrots. Infants receive formula, cereal and juice. With the price of infant formula increasing, WIC can save a family with an infant at least $60 per month.

Participation is limited to pregnant women, breast-feeding women, infants under one year and children under 5 years, who are Sanilac County residents. Pregnant women are encouraged to apply early in their pregnancy. Both low and middle income families may apply. For example, a family of 4 may have an income of $28,860 per year and be eligible to participate. Farm, unemployed and self-employed families are also encouraged to apply for participation.

Those who feel they may meet these requirements and are interested in supplementing their food budget, should call the W.I.C. office to set an appointment. The number is 810-648-4680.

Antlerless deer permit applications delayed

The Department of Natural Resources has traditionally opened the application period for antlerless deer licenses on Aug. 1. However, this year the start will be delayed until Aug. 10 so the DNR has time to complete necessary computer software changes for this program.

These changes will simplify the application process for some applicants and will provide more information for the customer on the receipt. These changes should not affect the sale of other licenses or applications.

The new computerized licensing system has been very successful in its first year of operation. These changes are part of an ongoing effort to make improvements to the system that will benefit the hunters and anglers, the license agents, and the DNR.

This delay should have minimal impact on applicants. Most applications are received by the DNR during the last 2 weeks of the application period. Of the 382,700 applications received last year, only 4,200 were made during the first 10 days of the program.

Even with a delay in the start of the application period, hunters will have more than 6 weeks to submit their application. The deadline for applications is Sept. 24.

Vegetables

Americans consume 435 pounds of vegetables per capita per year, of which 140 pounds are potatoes. Tomatoes take second place at 95 pounds per capita. Onions, peppers and garlic all are experiencing a relative boom in popularity, while cauliflower appears to be on a downturn.

Wheat yields below average

After coming off a slow wheat harvest last year, area farmers are experiencing more problems this year with a below normal harvest.

Dave Jankowski, an agriculturist with the Michigan Sugar Company, said, "Wheat yields for the most part are consistently below average."

Jankowski said the kernels are small, shrunken and infected with toxins. Eighty bushels per acre is considered a pretty good harvest, and most farmers are gathering way below that, he said.

In addition to the late spring, Jankowski said winter killed a lot of the wheat which left farmers fewer acres for planting.

Harvesting was slow going last year as well, when farmers were reporting yields between 50 and 80 bushels per acre.

Other crops such as corn and sugar beets are also expected to experience problems this fall.

The warm days this week will help the corn, Jankowski said, but the corn is still behind tasseling and silking. Because planting went into mid and late June, he said, much of the corn is still in danger of an early frost.

He anticipates heat units will be used on the crop from now until harvest.

Of all the crops, soybeans withstood the weather the best. "They are a tough crop," Jankowski said.

However, growth wise they are still 6 inches shorter than normal, but he added, "They like the heat and can catch up pretty well."

Sugar beets were severely damaged by the high waters and heavy rains in June, he said.

Even though the tops of the beets look good, the roots are not as developed as they should be, he said. The sugar beets were planted much later this year than normal.

Usually the beets are in the ground by mid-May and this year planting was not started until mid-May.

"The sugar beets are behind and it is not looking good," Jankowski stated, but added that he is optimistic that the harvest will end up being reasonable.

The good news for consumers is sugar prices have not seemed to increase, yet, he said.

CASS CITY TOT Alesha Rose Reed won the title of Miss Michigan Princess Petite Personality during the Miss Michigan American Princess Pageant, held June 29-30 in Troy.

Cass City tot 'Miss Personality'

She didn't win the crown, but Alesha Rose Reed had a grand time competing in the Miss Michigan American Princess Pageant, June 29-30 at the Northfield Hilton in Troy.

And she didn't come home empty handed. The energetic 3 1/2-year-old was selected from among 126 contestants, ages 3 to 6, to receive the title of Miss Michigan Princess Petite Personality.

The award — the most prestigious honor presented by the pageant staff — recognizes the contestant who is the most outgoing, energetic, well-behaved, well-mannered and helpful.

Alesha is the daughter of Alan and Lisa Reed of Cass City.

The couple decided to enter their daughter in the pageant after someone sent Alesha's name into pageant organizers as a potential contestant.

Lisa, who is employed as management information systems manager at Marshall's Distributing Inc., Cass City, explained she and her husband thought Alesha would enjoy taking part in a pageant, as she loves to sing and dance, and doesn't shy away from a crowd.

"It may seem silly to some people to involve a 3 1/2-year-old in something like this, but we thought, she's been through so much, why not go and do this and basically just let her have fun," Lisa commented prior to the pageant. "She loves getting dressed up and looking pretty."

Alesha, who underwent open heart surgery last November to correct a heart condition, was among 200 youngsters accepted by pageant officials from a field of 500 potential contestants.

The pageant's hectic schedule and long waits proved to be a bit trying at times, but Alesha enjoyed herself, according to Lisa.

"She had a lot of fun. She was invited to national competition in Florida, but we are declining to go because we want to give her another year," she said, adding Alesha has been invited to compete again next year.

"We (did) what we wanted to do," Lisa concluded. "We just wanted her to go and have a good time, and she did."

"We're very proud of her. Very proud of her."

Corn prices soar

June corn prices received by Michigan farmers topped the record set in May and continued to rise into July.

As of July 15, corn was set at $4.70 a bushel, 2 cents above the June price, according to the Federal/State Michigan Agricultural Statistics Service.

Mid-month soybean prices rebounded 37 cents in June, however, with harvest underway, wheat prices dropped 30 cents per bushel from June.

Mid-month calf prices decreased $7 and $25.50 per hundredweight (cwt), respectively, from the previous month and previous year. Steer/heifer prices rose $4.90 per cwt from June to $58 cwt.

Milk prices continued their rise to post a mid-month price of $15.10 per cwt, the highest price since February 1990.

IN LOVING memory of Harvey Bartle. You are not forgotten, Dad, nor will you ever be. As long as life and memories last, We will remember thee. With heavy hearts we recall the day,
When our Dad we loved so dear, was called away. The way you talked, the smile you wore, And the many things so dear, We loved about you while you lived.
Haven't gone with you from here. They are planted deep in memories garden, And watered daily with our tears.
To keep them ever fresh and vivid, Through all the coming years. Dad we love you, your family. 15-8-7-1

Steve Smith: Tattoo man does not intend to stop

has not had children yet, he said, because the weight gain of a pregnancy can ruin a tattoo. The chest poses a different set of problems.

Smith explained, to give a good tattoo the skin has to be taut. Otherwise the needle will bounce off the skin.

"Especially in some of the larger breasted women," he said, "it is hard to get the skin stretched and tight so the needle won't bounce off."

Smith said his favorite spot to give tattoos on either sex, but especially women, is just above the ankle bone, on either the inside or outside.

"For one, I am not nervous touching either side and the skin is usually pretty tight around the ankle."

One area Smith does not like to get tattoos is on his back because, "I can't see them. I have to look in the mirror to see them."

SAFETY

Smith said it drives him crazy when people come into the shop and do not know what they want or where they want the tattoo to go.

"This is something you are going to wear for the rest of your life. You should put some time and effort into making a decision."

Anything you see can be a tattoo, depending on the competency of the artist, he said.

"The best thing to do is find something that is you and you know you want. Go to the library, do some research and then take what you want to the shop."

Customers should be as concerned about safety and cleanliness as they are about what they are putting on their body, he cautioned. Customers should find out if the needles are autoclaved. Autoclaving is a high pressure cooker used to sterilize needles.

Smith stressed a customer should look at a shop and make sure it is clean in general and then look at specific things like, is the artist wearing gloves, how are the needles cleaned, is the artist changing needles from one customer to the next and is the equipment properly disinfected.

Everything from gloves to ink trays should be new after each customer, he said.

While there are no federal regulations governing the industry, Smith said he has heard talk of the states issuing licenses for tattoo artists. "Any reputable shop should not be afraid of state licensing."

As far as adding to his collection, Smith said he plans to keep getting more and more.

"As long as I don't cover up my hands, face or private areas, I'll keep on going. It's going to take a long time though. You don't realize how much skin you have until you start something like this."

Kingston plans for festival throughout the day at the park and the Methodist Church Country Social, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.

The weekend will come to an end Sunday with the VFW Breakfast from 6 a.m. to noon at the VFW Hall and the community church service at 11 a.m. under the big top tent in Memory Park. Pastor Lee of the Kingston United Methodist Church will be giving the service.

The Pig Roast Dinner will close out Kingston Days from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. Dinner will be served to the first 250. Tickets are $6 in advance and $7 at the door.

THE FIFTH ANNUAL all-class reunion Saturday at Colony House attracted 1,016 persons with representatives from every class from 1922 to 1986, with the exception of the class of 1924. The reunion was designed for Cass City High School graduates through the year 1986. A graduate from Hawaii came the farthest to attend. There were grads from California, Florida and many near-by states. Clockwise from upper left: Jeanne Auten. Second picture: John Tuckey, who gave the invocation, Bernice Tuckey, class of 27. Third picture: Isabelle Hendrick is seated at the right. Behind her standing is Norman Silvernail. The woman on the left is unidentified. Fourth picture: Florence McCoy, left, Linda Sokol, Mary Kerbyse. Inset lady unidentified. The class of 1922 was represented by Thelma (Luther) Crawford. Jack Esau, class of 1935, opened the meeting and among the guests were 13 former faculty members. Everyone connected with planning of the event was quick to point to the efforts of Helen Rayl, chairman, for the reunion's success.
