New village manager comes from Romulus

Cass City officials wrapped up their search for a new village manager Monday.

In an early morning special meeting, the Village Council voted unanimously to offer the post to Jane A. Downing, a seasoned public administration official from Romulus.

Village President L.E. Althaver recommended Downing following a comprehensive candidate search that drew more than 2 dozen applications from several states.

Althaver said Downing's experience in local government administration spans more than 20 years. Most recently, she served as assistant to the mayor in the city of Rochester Hills for 2 years. Before that, she was director of planning and community development for the city of Romulus for 3

Downing has also served as city manager in Durand and county coordinator in

O-G teachers sharing in district's financial surge

Education Monday proposed 98. a one-year contract extension for the district's 2 dozen certified teachers.

The decision came following a 40-minute executive session.

The proposal offers teachers a 2.8-percent salary increase in the 1998-99 school year. In addition, the board agreed to pay up to an 8-percent increase in insurance costs, or reopen negotiations should an increase exceed 8 percent.

The teachers, who have yet to act on the proposed extension, last month received a pay boost for the current school year thanks to a contract clause requiring the board to reopen negotiations should the district's fund balance exceed $450,000.

The teachers were slated to receive increases of 3.75 percent in each year of a 2-year pact approved in August 1996. However, recent negotiations resulted in a total

Likewise, the district's 20 $124,000. bus drivers, secretaries, cooks, custodians and other non-certified staff members received a 6-percent pay increase this year.

AUDIT REPORT

Evidence of the school district's much improved financial health was presented during the annual audit report given by Shay Lafferty of Laine, Appold & Co.

Lafferty gave the district's finances a clean bill of health, noting Owen-Gage has built up a fund balance of some $500,000 over the past 3 years — 4 times the district's fund balance in 1994. In the fiscal year that ended June 30, she said, the fund balance showed an increase of $69,000 over the previous year.

Lafferty said Owen-Gage's liabilities were up by ever, assets were also up, by Expenditures for the year were up slightly, primarily in the area of salaries, and total revenues were up by $19,500. Lafferty pointed out the district ended the year in the black, with revenue mained fairly consistent in topping expenditures by more than $17,000.

gram test scores. Starr explained math and reading assessments were or excellent performances of taken by students during the fall of 1996, and the results were compared with those from the fall of 1995. Big change, says postmaster

Automatic sorting on deck for post office

When Gary Drabek accepted the position of postmaster in Cass City nearly 4 years ago, he had the opportunity to hire another clerk for the local office.

Drabek declined because he figured talk of increasing automation by the postal service would become reality soon. He was right.

In July, the Cass City Post Office began receiving mail from Saginaw already sorted by route. But the carriers still had to sort the mail in the order of their deliveries before heading out on the road.

Typically, the office's 4 rural and 2 city carriers each sort 3 trays of mail. The trays contain 300 to 400 pieces of mail each, and the carriers sort at a rate of at least 18 pieces per minute.

Last week, 1,073 pieces of mail were sorted per hour at the Cass City Post Office.

Starting next week, however, letters will arrive presorted by address, in order of each carriers' route, thanks to automation equipment capable of sorting 34,000 pieces of mail an hour.

The bottom line, according to Drabek, is that carriers will have to sort only "flat" mail magazines, newspapers,

"This is going to be the biggest change I've seen in a small post office. It's going to save a lot of time," commented Drabek, who recently marked 30 years with the U.S. Postal Service.

Automation has been long in coming to smaller post offices, according to Drabek, who spent much of his career in West Branch, where he started as a part-time clerk and part-time city carrier in 1967. Over the years, he's handled just about every job in a small post office, from working the window to shoveling snow. In 1981, he was named superintendent of postal operations.

During the 3 years prior to coming to Cass City, he served as "officer in charge" in Houghton Lake, Freeland and Roscommon.

Drabek said the latest in automation - delivery point sequencing — will begin Tuesday, Oct. 21, at post offices in Reese, Caro, Sebewaing and Unionville, as well as Cass City. But the offices won't officially go on line until they record 3 consecutive days with a sorting accuracy of at least 98 per-

"I think we're going to hit close to 100 percent," Drabek said.

"It's going to be quite a system. The only time an address is going to be read by a person is when the carrier delivers" the mail.

Drabek explained the new automation is made possible by bar codes imprinted on letters and other pieces of

31 years later man who saved Beach's life gets Bronze Star

A campaign that spanned 31 years by Stan Beach, a former resident who graduated from Cass City High School in 1953, has finally been successfully concluded.

Beach was determined to have Marine Bruce Williams recognized for saving his life while he was a chaplain serving in Vietnam.

Navy Captain Beach was wounded in action, his left leg shattered. Williams came to Beach's aid and, disregarding orders to take cover, covered him with his armored jacket and flak jacket. Then he protected Beach's head with his own body. Williams was hit in the head and the pair were taken to the hospital by helicopter.

The men lost touch and by the time he found the right Bruce Williams (There were 3 men in the unit with the same name), the cutoff date for nominating people for medals and awards had passed.

About 2 years ago the nominations were reopened and letters to Senator John Glenn and Rep. Paul E. Gillmor earned their support and the Navy agreed to a ceremony recognizing Williams' hero-

HUNTERS WON'T be seeing many of these when the pheasant season gets underway next week. DNR officials say pheasant numbers are continuing to decline throughout the state.

Pheasants going, going almost gone—outlook dismal

Bud Jarvis has 2 words for hunters gearing up for Monday's pheasant season opener: good luck.

As was the case last year, the prospects are poor, according to Jarvis. Pheasant numbers are continuing to decline, he says, and there are no signs the trend will reverse itself any time soon. Even in the Thumb, where hunters have flocked to areas such as the Verona and Gagetown State Game areas — both known for some of the better pheasant hunting in the area — the outlook is

"I can't think of any good words. It's dismal," Jarvis said last week. "I don't know

DNR Wildlife biologist of a place where I would recommend for people to go. It's the poorest it's been for several years prior to '85.

"We did a few surveys this spring and the counts were down. We knew that, (but) reproduction apparently wasn't good.

Jarvis noted pheasant numbers have always run in 10to 15-year cycles. Unfortunately, it appears the area has hit rock bottom in the current cycle, which began around 1986 with a resurgence of the Thumb area pheasant population.

The number of birds continued to improve through the early 1990s, peaked, then began to fall. It's no coincidence the trend was accompanied by the Crop Reserve Program, which ran from 1986 through 1989. The program enabled farmers to enter into 10-year contracts in which they agreed to put acreage in permanent grass cover, creating

But now, Jarvis said, the program is being phased out, so some of the land that was signed up in 1986 has been taken out of permanent cover and put back into crop production.

Which doesn't bode well for the future of pheasant hunting in the Thumb. "Whether (the numbers) will recover or not, I don't know," Jarvis said. But as more and more farmers put CRP land back into production in the coming years, he added, "I don't look for any improvement, to tell you the truth."

As for this year, Jarvis said, there are a few pheasants out there, but hunters may very well outnumber birds. Pheasant season runs Oct.

10-20 in the Upper Peninsula and Oct. 20-Nov. 14 in the Lower Peninsula. The season reopens Dec. 1-15 in the south-central and southeastern portions of the state (not including the upper Thumb counties). Hunters are urged to check hunting regulations for boundaries.

Not jealous enough to do what is necessary to shape up, but envied nevertheless. But things are changing. In the group of Chinese visitors in Cass City last week, if you looked closely you could see a hint of the malady that afflicts millions of Americans.

Most of us would settle for the little excess weight that some of the visitors displayed.

It probably comes with a change in diet. The delegates said that along with the traditional diet of rice, they enjoyed meat dishes and, equally important, could afford them.

Last week marked the 10th anniversary for Ken Micklash as superintendent of Cass City Schools.

When he took over he had some pretty big shoes to fill. In the last half century there have been just 3 superintendents in the district.

Willis Campbell and Don Crouse were his predecessors and each left the school a little better than he found

Each adapted to problems unique to the years in charge. Campbell pushed the school to the top in agricultural related projects and subjects at a time when agriculture was the bell-cow pushing the Crouse's reign was marked by the surge of the union and tight economics and he left the school in excellent financial condition.

For awhile when Crouse headed the district, Micklash served on the school board. When he decided to retire, his hand-picked successor was Micklash.

It proved to be a wise choice. Crouse left the school in excellent financial condition with cost-per-pupil among the 5 lowest in the

It still is among the lowest and while some districts are in financial trouble, Cass City is rolling in dough. So much so that $100,000 can be taken from the general fund for capital improvements and at the end of the year still add to the contingency fund.

Micklash has steered the district through potentially rough water. High on the list is the closing of Evergreen School without a districtwrecking backlash. The erection of the new middle school building is another. Harder to measure but more has generated with the teachers and the community.

He excels in public relations and many of the advances in the system are a direct result of this talent.

The district also prospered because it had 3 administrators in a half century, avoiding a schism that comes when the school board, the community and the administration split over the way the top person operates. Cass City's transfers at the top were without rancor and the school didn't miss a beat in the change, keeping the school on course for the best education for the kids.

Citizen's tip leads to stolen elevator property

A citizen's tip led police to some stolen property in Sanilac County's Lamotte Township over the weekend.

Two suspects, both from Lamotte Township, were arrested late Monday afternoon and were to have been formally arraigned on several charges Tuesday.

Sanilac County Sheriff's deputies reported they received a call Saturday evening from a citizen who had located stolen property. Deputies identified the items as having been stolen from

Sanilac County elevators and

New books at the library

The Angel of Darkness by Caleb Carr: In this story, Dr. Laszlo Kreizler, a pioneer in forensic psychiatry and his friend's crime reporter John Schuyler Moore, Sara Howard, detective brothers Marcus and Lucas Isaacson, Cyrus Montrose and Stevie Taggert try to help the wife of a Spanish diplomat find her kidnapped infant daughter. There is danger in doing this because the United States and Spain are on the brink of war. The investigation leads the team to a shocking suspect: a woman who appears to the world to be a heroic nurse and loving mother, but who may in reality be a ruthless murderer of children.

Flood Tide by Clive Cussler: Dirk Pitt, legendary hero of Cussler's first nonfiction book, returns in "Flood Tide" to test his talents against a cunning man who made his vast fortune smuggling Chinese immigrants into many countries, including the United States. Pitt tracks the smuggler from Washington state to Louisiana, where he is building a huge shipping port in the middle of nowhere. The trail leads to the race to find the site of the mysterious sinking of the ship that Chiang Kai-shek filled with treasure when he left China in 1949. Pitt prepares for a final showdown and faces the most formidable foe he can imagine.

Gianna by Jessica Shaver (nonfiction): Gianna is the incredible true story of one girl's remarkable journey from abortion survivor to steadfast defender and lover of life. This book isn't about issues --- it is about a young woman's determination to make the most of her God-given opportunities. Gianna Jessen wants to spread a message of love, forgiveness and hope to young women who find themselves in the untenable position of being pregnant and not knowing whether to have an abortion or have the child.

Sarah Conley by Ellen Gilchrist: While an undergraduate at Vanderbilt, Sarah fell in love with a young man, but wound up marrying his brother — a tangled drama of missteps and misunderstood intentions that led to bad feelings and burned bridges. Thirty years later, divorced and living in New York, Sarah has become a highly regarded magazine editor and writer. Yet she has remained cut off from her home — until a call comes saying that her old college sweetheart is about to become a widower. The man who broke her heart by marrying someone else is suddenly free again. Sarah still loves this man, but as she leaves to do some work in Paris, she discovers that her second chance is not going to come to pass without difficulties.

Grief Recovery Group to meet at Caro library

A Grief Recovery Group is Dec. 16. again being offered free of charge to those who have lost their spouse or other loved one through death. Rose Mary Charmley, RN, BSN, will be the moderator. There will be 8 sessions that will present topics such as underwill be accepted. standing your feelings, role changes in your life, how to get through holidays and anniversaries, coping with stress and other helpful top-

The goals of the Grief Recovery Group are to provide understanding of the stages of grief and to hasten the healing of grief for those who have experienced a loss through death. Verbalizing of feelings in a small support group so that individuals may experience the acceptance from others has been proven effective in the healing process. It helps the individuals find meaning in their life, affirms self-worth, and encourages them to reach out to others in a time of distress.

The 8-week recovery series will be held weekly from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. at Caro Indianfields Library, 840 Frank St., Caro, beginning Oct. 28 and lasting through

To register for the group or for anyone who has any questions about the group, please call Rose Mary Charmley at 673-6485. Registration is encouraged as a maximum of 10 participants

Blocked punt ends Bulldogs' chances for first grid win

A costly miscue late in the countered the Warrior score game Friday prevented for the visitors. Tackle Jeff Owen-Gage from recording Maxson scored on a tipped their first gridiron win of the North Huron used a big 4th quarter specialty team play to help propel the hosts to a pair of final quarter scores that resulted in a 20-13 North Central Thumb League win.

"We played hard and we played with emotion," commented a pleased Head Coach Joe Candela despite the defeat. Emotion, according to Candela, was lacking in the Bulldogs' previous week's loss to Akron-Fairgrove.

The Bulldogs will return to Owendale this Friday in search of their maiden victory when they entertain Ecorse. Losers in 6 straight, Candela hopes his squad can get psyched for the non-conference affair.

"We haven't been blown out this year and I think that says something for this team," said rookie mentor Candela, adding, "You don't build a program in one year."

Mike Mausolf put North Huron in front at the intermission when he converted a Bulldog fumble into the game's only score in the maiden half with a one-yard

The Bulldog defense, which turned in an outstanding effort on the evening, pass from North Huron quarterback Tim Sobea and returned it 53 yards to pay dirt. Joel Bolzman added the point after kick to give Owen-Gage a 7-6 advantage heading into the final stanza.

The Bulldog defense would rise to the occasion once again when they got the ball back for the visitors midway through the final frame after denying North Huron at the one-yard line.

However, after back-toback 15 yard penalties spotted the ball near mid-field for Owen-Gage, the drive

That's where the Warriors' specialty team came up with the play of the game. A blocked punt set up Scott Toner's 5 yard touchdown run to give North Huron a 12-7 lead. Toner led all rushers with 147 yards on 29 carries. "The way our defense was playing, I thought we could punt the ball away and hold on for the win," said Candela. "We punted numerous times this year and that was the first one even close to getting blocked." North Huron added another marker on Sobea's 21 yar touchdown pass to Michael Bambach. Sobea ran for the 2-point conversion. Bulldog quarterback Derek Howard connected with Anthony Brinkman on a 35 yard pass play for the game's final score. On the night, Howard converted on 3 of 15 pass attempts that netted 72 yards. Bolzman led all Buli dog rushers with 66 yards on

In keeping with the spirit of Debussy's "Dances Sacred the Thanksgiving holiday, the Village Bach Festival, to be held in the communities of Caro and Cass City Nov. 25, 28, 29 and 30, will again include a number of noted musical families.

Since the inception of the Festival in 1979, members of the noted Preucil family from Iowa City, Iowa, have participated every year. In this year's series of concerts, 5 members of this acclaimed family will perform, 2 of them as featured soloists.

Anne Preucil Lewellen, harpist, will perform

Absorbent feathers

Scientists have also been working to make air filters, diaper absorbents and other non-woven pulp or paper products using keratin fiber from chicken feathers. Why? More than 2 billion pounds are produced annually, creating a solid waste disposal problem for poultry plants. Fiber-based products would open new markets that could raise the feathers' value.

The Penny Check-Off: A Great Investment for Michigan's Corn Producers

he penny per bushel corn check-off has been a wonderful investment for the Michigan corn grower. Who says so? Michigan corn growers!

Pooling our monies has meant that collectively we have been able to invest in the research efforts of some of the finest scientific minds in the country. Efforts have led to new product developments such as biodegradable plastics.

Developments like that not only benefit farmers, but society as well.

The penny check-off has also provided money for developing new strains of disease-resistant corn and new farming techniques that will further increase quality yields.

The Corn Marketing Program of Michigan, when everyone contributes just one penny, the results really add up.

O-G board offers contract extension

School Supt. Manuel Thies explained the Durant case has been settled with a court order directing the state to reimburse districts for statemandated but underfunded special education services. Owen-Gage's share of the award is expected to total $41,118.72, according to Thies, who said the related claims deal with other issues, primarily transportation •Voted in favor of increasing substitute teachers' pay from $55 to $60 per day.

•Denied 2 part-time bus drivers' requests for health insurance benefits.

 Approved a request from Thies to hire a part-time secretary (16 hours per week) for his office.

•Denied a request from Deborah A. Fisher to allow her son, a sixth grader, to attend school in the Cass City District.

•Accepted "with deep regret" the resignation of business teacher Kim Fish. The board learned Vicki Rohlman, currently employed in the Capac School District, has been hired to fill the vacancy.

•Hired Barb Adams as the new girls softball coach.

 Approved requests from the Owen-Gage Boosters Club to fund the painting of Bulldog murals at the elementary and junior-senior high buildings, and the installation of an outdoor basketball court at the elementary school.

•Adopted a Driver Education Parent Meeting policy in an effort to inform the parents of student drivers about the state's new graduated licensing procedure.

·Received the district's annual P.A. 25 report outlining information about the school system, staffing and a host of programs and educational activities.

duties in about 2 weeks. The search for a new village manager began shortly after veteran Village Manager Lou S. LaPonsie announced his decision to retire at the end of this year. LaPonsie has served in the position for 25

Village officials hired Michigan Municipal Leagu Consultant Gerstenacker to assist in the hiring process. Under his guidance, Althaver along with trustees Mike Weaver and Sandy Haley interviewed 5 finalists, then conducted second interviews with Downing and another candi-

The search initially netted 30 applications from Michi gan, Colorado, New York, Nebraska, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Florida, Washington and Puerto Rico.
