Government TV on the air

TATV is now offering area cable subscribers MGTV. which shouldn't be confused with MTV.

In English: Thumb Area Television's (TATV) broadcasting lineup now includes Michigan Government Television, a cable television network that offers viewers a live look into Michigan's Senate and House chambers as well as a first-hand view of committee meetings, agency hearings, press conferences and other state government proceedings.

The broadcasts begin at 10 a.m. and continue through 2 p.m. each weekday on Chan-

The addition of MGTV, which made its debut on TATV in November, was the focus of a press conference held Thursday at the Regional Educational Media Center in Cass City.

On hand were representatives of REMC #10, which houses TAT, Harron Comwhich together formed a partnership to bring the government access channel to REMC #10 Director Tim von Hoff said Harron Communications continues to play a significant role in TATV by picking up the subscriber fees for Thumb area schools to receive MGTV.

von Hoff noted Harron Communications helped to develop TATV, which was established in 1994 as a consortium involving REMC #10 and school districts and intermediate school districts in Tuscola, Huron, and Sanilae counties.

County families earning their way off welfare

by Tom Montgomery Editor

The welfare caseload in Tuscola County has followed state trends in recent years, falling to the lowest level in more than 25 years.

The decline is due in part to state and federal welfare reform measures enacted a few years ago, according to Family Independence Agency officials, who say a booming state economy has also played a major role in enabling more and more families to earn their way off

Statewide, the number of Michigan families on welfare dropped to below 200,000 in June 1995. That number dipped to fewer than 100,000 families last year, with a total caseload of 99,600 families in November - the lowest level since January 1971.

In Tuscola County, there were 958 Family Independence Program (formerly Aid to Dependent Children) cases in September 1992, and very few of those clients had any earned income, said Tom Dillon, director of the Tuscola County Family Independence Agency.

"Now, as of September 1998, those cases have been reduced to 239, and 141 of those have some form of earned income," he said. fund welfare with block "That's a 79-percent reduction.

"I've been here for 26 years and the caseload hasn't been this low."

Dillon noted the vast majority of cases closed have been the result of families trading their Family Independence Program checks for pay-

"The number of cases removed for non-compliance (with rules requiring clients to seek employment or training) has been very low, which strengthens our opinion that most of the people really did want to work," he

"We still have a number of people on our caseload who have very low level skills they do not have great math or reading skills - so we probably are faced with a situation where we have some people who are difficult to serve."

Dillon credits the shrinking welfare caseload partly on welfare reform, including the "To Strengthen Michigan Families" initiative implemented in 1992. "There was welfare reform on the federal level as well," he said.

Dillon explained the federal government's decision to grants to the states allowed Michigan to experiment with new programs designed to encourage clients to seek employment.

Among the changes was elimination of a rule that disqualified people from receiving assistance if they worked

The number of men and women employed in the state increased by 10,000 last October, boosting the number of Michigan residents employed to a record 4.9 mil-more than 100 hours in a from an average of 5.3 permonth. Today, clients' welfare assistance is reduced in accordance with what they carn on the job, and the first $200 they carn is not counted. In addition, state officials have implemented other programs, including day-care assistance for low-income families.

Child care is a major issue for many families, said Dillon, who noted providing that kind of assistance is one reason welfare reform isn't cheap. In Tuscola County, for example, the number of day-care assistance cases is up 400 percent, he said. State Rep. Mike Green said money saved as people leave the welfare rolls is going back into the system to fund child care assistance as well as transportation and job training, "which is redoubling our efforts to provide wrap-around support for those on welfare.

State Sen, Joel Gougeon agreed. Legislators are continuing to look at new ways to break down the barriers that keep people from securing a job, he said, "and with each success, we're able to use more and more money per person."

STRONG ECONOMY

While reform has proven effective, Dillon said the availability of jobs in Michigan has also been a key factor. "I think that welfare reform legislation was a real positive step, but I think having a strong economy is what makes this work," he added. According to officials at the Michigan Jobs Commission-Employment Agency, the unemployment rate in Michigan has dropped to 3.6 percent, continuing a 5-year trend of unemployment levels below the national average.

cent in 1997.

Despite the positive numbers, many families apparently are still struggling.

Officials at the Human Development Commission report seeing an increase in requests for services, with the requests exceeding available funding.

"As area citizens shift from welfare to work, in many cases their work is not covering all of their living expenses," said Dale Perz, HDC communications director. "Also, because of the type of winter we've had, the requests for heating assistance and housing in general.

. .have been on the increase." Perz couldn't say whether there is a direct correlation between fewer people receiving welfare assistance and the increase in requests received by HDC, but he pointed out there is clearly a need in the Thumb.

Between Dec. 11, 1998 and Jan. 11, 1999, Perz said, HDC was unable to meet requests from 128 Tuscola County families. Fortyseven of those requests were for housing assistance and 81 were for utility payment assistance.

Another 66 requests from Huron County families were not met — 45 requests for utility payment help and 21 for house assistance.

Perz said the requests were not met because the funding for both areas has already been spent.

Area residents can make a difference for families in need of utility payment assistance by participating in HDC's ninth annual Walk For Warmth, scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 20.

Walk For Warmth is a voluntary effort on the part of area citizens who gather pledges and walk a pre-determined one-mile route. Please turn to back page.

No one injured in early morning fire

Well-maintained smoke alarms are credited with enabling members of a Tuscola County family to escape their smoke-filled home unharmed early Monday morn-

The fire was reported at 12:56 a.m.

Lillian Bishop along with her daughter and granddaughter fled the home Bishop rents in southwestern Wells Township after an extension cord shorted out, igniting a fire in an unoccupied bedroom at the rear of the one-story residence at 2347 Ross Rd., Caro Fire Chief Dave Mattlin said.

"The smoke detectors did wake the occupants up." he added. "The house was smoke-filled when they arose, (but) everyone got out, and they went next door and called the fire department." Mattlin estimated the damage at $25,000. He said the house, owned by Vivian Binder, was insured. It could have been much worse, the fire chief acknowledged. Mattlin said he can't emphasize enough the importance of installing smoke detectors and making sure the batteries are replaced regularly. "Right here is the proof in the pudding," he said, referring to Monday's fire.

Caro fire fighters remained at the scene for 90 minutes. They received assistance from the Kingston Fire Department.

Where Are They Now??

Each and every one of our graduating classes has been special. Each class exhibited unique characteristics. The "class of 1995" was especially exceptional. This was the year which produced 10 graduating valedictorians with perfect 4.00 grade point averages. It is now 4 years later, and I was interested to see what the 10 valedictorians were now doing. With the help of Mr. Dillon, who contacted the graduates or their families, the following information about this special group is being shared.

-All 10 are completing their bachelor's degree programs with 3.00 or higher G.P.A.s.

-Eight of the 10 have higher than 3.50 college G.P.A.s.

-Two students will be graduating this May from U. of M., one with a degree in business administration and finance, and the other in graphic design, who is in the top 3% of U. of M.'s graduating class.

-One will be graduating from Michigan Technological University with a major in mechanical engineering.

-Another 1995 graduate is completing an engineering program at Kettering University.

-Two students will be graduating from Central Michigan University. One is a magnacum-laude with a double major in marketing and logistics; the other, also magna-cumlaude with a B.S. degree in social work.

-One 1995 alum will be graduating summa-cum-laude from Saginaw Valley State University with a major in sociology and a minor in Spanish.

-Another is completing a 5 1/2-year degree program in pharmacy from Ferris State University.

One student is graduating in May from Alma College with a degree in biology.

The pressure from Michigan agriculture interests to ban deer feeding, at least in the Deer Management Unit 452, the 5-county area in northeastern Michigan, grows intense. That's because deer crowded together

That's a serious economic blow to all dairy and beef producers in the state.

One survey has shown that reducing the bait piles to a maximum of 5 gallons has been ineffective. Many dairy and beef producers would applaud a state-wide ban on feeding. I'm with them.

Maybe it's because as a non-hunter, I have a jaundiced view of shooting deer over a bait pile, but I never have been sold on it any more than killing a bear foraging at a dump and calling

Every hunting season there will be stories about communing with nature and the thrill of being in the woods as the ultimate reward for hunting.

Try and equate that with feeding deer year around and then shooting them after they have been trained to appear on schedule.

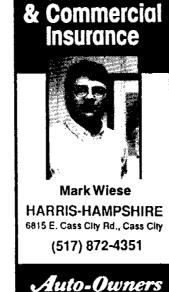

Hunting interests have no monopoly on artificially boosting game bags. Trout have been planted in Michigan streams year after year and anglers have stormed in on the wake of the planting truck to harvest them.

While not a hunter, I am a fisherman, and catching dumped trout is the fishing equivalent of shooting in dumps or over bait piles.

It's true, of course, that using bait piles or seeking out hatchery trout will increase the success ratio, especially for the novice.

There's really nothing hard about catching a hatcheryreared trout or a deer lured

To catch a wild trout or a deer without a bait pile takes knowledge and skill. More often than not the quarry is the winner. That's what makes it a sport.

It's a thrill to catch a wild trout on a beautiful Michigan stream even if they are released after catching to preserve the supply (which many do). Bagging a deer without artificial help must be equally as awarding.

If enjoying nature and the sport is the goal, not the meat on the table, banning bait piles seems the logical way

The back forty by Roger Pond

I guess I'll never understand economics. Each time there's a freeze in Florida the price of citrus at the grocery spikes up a few notches.

But when the hog market sinks to 15 cents-a-pound, the price of pork doesn't budge a dime. A farmer told me he watched a woman buy a ham for $18 last fall and thought to himself, "Another $18 would buy the whole hog if she got a live one."

I guess that's the price we pay for having our food cut, wrapped, and delivered in its most convenient form. Most folks wouldn't know what to do with a whole pig, anyway, especially if they had to haul it home in their car.

I've been down that road and so has my friend Vernon. Some years ago Vernon's daughter owned a pig for her 4-H project. One day he got word somebody had to get the pig to a scales and have it weighed that afternoon.

Vernon did what most of us would have done: He panicked. He left work early and headed out to the farm where his daughter kept the pig.

Nobody had a truck available on short notice, so Vernon decided his Chevy Blazer would have to do. Loading the pig was easy. Vernon just opened the back door, grabbed the pig in a bear hug, and hoisted him in.

He put some straw in the back, but the pig exuded a lot more odor than one might imagine. So Vernon rolled the front windows down to get some fresh air.

Everything went fine for awhile. Then, the pig decided he needed some air, too, and proceeded to crawl over the back seat.

Pretty soon the pig noticed no one was sitting on the passenger side in the front. You know how that is, there's no point riding in coach when you can upgrade to first class. So the pig moved up.

Vernon was too busy driving to do anything about the pig, and the smell was getting pretty thick. He figured the sooner he got the pig weighed and back to the farm the better.

Just as they reached the edge of town, the pig decided maybe he should crawl out the window. That's when Vernon realized things were getting out of hand. He got the pig in a headlock with his free arm and tried to reason with it. When he stopped at the first stop light, a car pulled up beside him. Vernon looked straight ahead, hoping he wouldn't see anyone he knew. By the time he got to the third light, his whole attitude had changed. Now he was looking for anyone he might know. He needed some help with this @#$ pig!

Finally Vernon got the pig weighed and back home. He thought that was the end of the story, but it wasn't.

Some of Vernon's friends got such a kick out of this unfortunate episode, they hired an artist to paint the whole scene on a store window downtown. Then everyone in town got to see how Vernon looked driving down the street with his arm around

What does all of this have to do with economics? I don't know, but it might help illustrate why it's still cheaper for most folks to get their pork chops at the gro-

Computer Klubhouse

If you are a computer dummy and you want to learn about computers, pay close attention. Cass City Middle School students are having the greatest opportunity to help our community while learning a lot about technology, and have fun doing it!

This after school program is called Computer Klubhouse. It is offered Mondays and Wednesdays from 3 to 5 p.m., Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6 to 8 p.m., and every other Saturday. Amy Schuette and her assistant, Trent Milligan, a high school junior, run this program. Daryl Iwankovitsch volunteers as well.

There are 29 core members involved in the Klubhouse. In order to obtain their positions, the kids had to apply, just as if it were a job. They had to submit an application and go through an interview.

I was shocked to see so many faces when I went into the lab. I didn't expect so many kids to be interested, but it seems to be a really fun and popular thing to do after school. There has been an average of 25 students attending the Klubhouse in the past two weeks.

These kids are fortunate to have such great equipment. They have the chance to work with digital cameras, graphics pads, digital video cameras, scanners and much, much more. The school received a grant to fund the Klubhouse. Only 8 other schools in Michigan received this grant. This year they gained 15 new computer stations through the grant to add to their 28 existing sta-

"I don't know what we'd do without those 28 stations." said Mrs. Schuette. Next year they will receive even more new equipment through the grant.

There are so many different concepts to learn about computers. With so many kids involved in the Klubhouse, each student can specialize in something different to keep

This specialization is also great when someone needs assistance with a problem. It's easy to find out where to go for help. If you need help running a program or want to learn how to run the Internet, the Klubhouse is a great place to go. There are so many knowledgeable helpers there to assist you.

FIRST ASSIGNMENT

The Klubhouse's first assignment from K.L.I.C.K. (Kids Learning in Computer Klubhouse) is to create a community history web page. They have a few things to get started. If you have anything to offer this group about the history of Cass City, contact Mrs. Schuette at the middle school. Eventually there will be a link on the Cass City home page to get to the history page.

A game specialist at the Klubhouse, Joseph Ruffing is in the eighth grade. His favorite subjects in school are science, math and computers. He likes to play a variety of games, his favorite being "Jet Fighter 3." When people come in for help on running different games, Joseph is the man to talk to. He's an expert.

In Lansing a few weeks ago 6 of the 29 core members had the chance to travel to Dwight Rich Middle School for a K.L.I.C.K. conference. They were able to meet with other students from all over Michigan who were involved in programs like the Computer Klubhouse. There was also a virtual presentation on

"It was like cutting the red tape for K.L.I.C.K.," said Cindy Henn, one of the core conference.

An eighth grader, Henn specializes in creating web pages and running Microsoft Works. She is helping in the creation of their own link for the Computer Klubhouse off the K.L.I.C.K. home page (www.click.org). Cindy said that Clyde Wells comes in to the Klubhouse for help pretty often. "It was so funny when I

POWER POINT

DeAnna Newby is a seventh grader who specializes in the Power Point program, DeAnna had to give a presentation at the K.L.I.C.K conference. Her favorite thing about the Computer Klubhouse is the super equipment, especially the scanners.

An all around great computer helper is fifth grader Amy Hennessey. She can help with anything from running varieties of programs to working the Internet. Amy gave a presentation on K.L.I.C.K and how it got started at the Knights of Columbus Auxiliary. Her favorite part of being a fifth grader is being able to enjoy the new Andy Veneziano says he is 'a computer helper outer dude." He is an eighth grader who enjoys math, science and computers. Andy spends most of his time at the Klubhouse fooling around with programs and finding out how they work. "I've also been creating a lot of games, not to be released, just for fun," said Andy. He said that he would have to learn more advanced computer languages to go farther than he has.

SPECIALTY

Erik Helwig has taken up MacIntosh as his specialty. It's a totally different system than what everyone else uses. "I like to have the opportunity to work on a computer that is not the same as the one I have at home," said Erik. He is currently working on his own personal web page. After he finishes that project, he will start to work on the Klubhouse web page.

Being a senior in high school, I know how much computers are needed in today's world. It's awesome to have an after school program like this that keeps kids doing something positive for their community as well as learning important skills for themselves. I wish that I was in their shoes and I had the opportunity to get a head

If you are interested in learning how to run computers but you need a little bit of help, the Computer Klubhouse sounds like the first place to go.

Sebewaing nets $50,000 grant for planning project

ecutive officer and department director of the Michigan Jobs Commission, announced Monday that a $50,000 planning grant has approved

The grant will be used for the Michigan Sugar Company Economic Development Planning Project.

Sebewaing Township.

The grant, funded through the Michigan Renaissance Fund, will be used for the following work activities: a) a review of all of the community infrastructure systems which could be impacted by the expansion, including water and sewer nceds; b) detailed plans for any needed infrastructure upgrades, and c) development of documents which may be used for the construction bidding process for any new infrastructure upgrades.

The project has the potential to result in the creation of 20 to 25 new full-time manufacturing positions.

"By assisting Sebewaing Township with funding to identify their infrastructure systems, they will be able to determine what, if any, upgrades are necessary to accommodate the expansion needs of the Michigan Sugar Company," Rothwell said. "Michigan Sugar Company is a producer of beet sugar, liquid sugar, pulp, and molasses. This project also has the potential to create new jobs in the community."

The Michigan Jobs Commission, which administers the Michigan Renaissance Fund, works in partnership with local communities and Michigan business to retain and expand job opportunities and improve Michigan's overall business climate.

Evergreen Township officials accepted a bid for construction of a new township hall and other improvements during a special meeting Thursday.

The bid, totalling $114,465, was submitted by Booms Construction Inc., Bad Axe, and was approved pending final review of the contract, township Clerk Arthur Severance reported.

IT'S A BIT EMPTY right now, but Campus Life Director Jeff Bader is hoping the community will help to furnish the new Bluewater Thumb Youth For Christ Center in Cass City, located in the former Little & Kranz Funeral Home building at 6850 W. Main St.

In former funeral home

YFC setting up shop in town

The stately white house at 6850 W. Main St. in Cass City has served as a residence and beauty parlor during its 90-plus year existence, but the building is best known as the old funeral

Jeff Bader would like to change all that.

Soon, he hopes, area residents will refer to the building as the new Cass City-Kingston Youth For Christ

That may take some doing, considering the structure served as a funeral home for more than 50 years before the current owners, Jim and Debra Kranz, moved to their new location just east of town last year.

Still, Bader, director of the Bluewater Youth for Christ's new Cass City-Kingston Campus Life program, is pleased to have a place to host activities and campus life gatherings for area teens. And he hopes area residents will help make that a reality by donating a stick of furni-

"I wanted a place for our kids...and this building suits our needs very well," Bader commented Friday as he continued the task of moving into the building.

'We've been using the Methodist church. They've been very gracious and we appreciate it, but every week it's been, carry everything in, carry everything out."

The funeral home offers not only a lot of space, but also barrier-free access.

Bader is renting the second floor as a residence and Youth For Christ is responsible for utility expenses, but the Kranzes are helping the program get off the ground by not charging rent for the lower 2 floors.

"The building and utilities are covered," Bader noted. "It's all the extra things --like chairs — that we're hoping for (donations). We had applied for a grant, but that's not looking like it's going to happen."

Bader's wish list includes couches, lamps, end tables, television, VCRs, video to raise enough money to purchase a sound system and for some other items, such as blinds, to do some redecorat-

Anyone who would like to contribute or volunteer can contact Bader at (517) 872-1530.

"I would love to have the community back this," said the Cass City High School graduate, who is approaching the project one step at a

At this point, he explained, the plans are to transform the ground floor into a meeting center for Club Extreme, a campus life program for students in grades 9-12. The group meets every Monday night starting at 7:24 p.m. ("That's a reminder of how often we should be living for God - 7 days a week, 24 hours a day," Bader noted). The meetings feature games, a time of singing and praise, a brief program and, of course, food.

Since the club was established about 6 months ago, attendance has averaged in the 20s, with a high of 42 youths at one meeting.

"Which is good considering we have conflicts with volleyball and wrestling, and at least one basketball team is practicing on that night,' Bader said. "We have a lot of the same kids week after week. I like that - that's been a real positive to me."

Aside from campus life activities, Bader said the new Youth For Christ center will offer area teens a place to hang out, play ping pong or other games, and enjoy each other's company for 2 or 3 hours after school. Again, the success of the program will depend in part on community support. Bader emphasized that teens need not be members of Youth For Christ to visit the planned activity center, which will be set up in the basement.

"We're not going to be down here handing out Bibles. I'm not going to call a 10-minute time-out to preach," he said. At the same time, all teens will be invited to participate in Youth For Christ activities.

Reaching Out!

Of course, there's still a lot of work to do. But Bader is optimistic, and he's certain the campus life program will continue to meet a very real need in the community, as well as to offer young people something constructive to do in a safe, friendly atmo-

"I feel very good about where we're headed. The building is a big plus and the kids think it's incredible," he said. "It seems like we're

Bulldogs bow in quarterfinal at Lakers

The Owen-Gage Bulldogs advanced from their pool Saturday at the 12-team Laker Invitational volleyball tournament before bowing to Bad Axe in a quarterfinal match.

Coach Judy Campbell's spikers compiled a 4-2 record during the tourney's round robin play in 2-game sets with Deckerville, Lakers and Sandusky

"We didn't play too bad," said Campbell. "We were outsized by all. I really need a couple of big girls.

The tournament should aid the Bulldogs this Thursday when they host Port Hope in North Central Thumb League action. Saturday, the Bulldog spikers will be in action at the USA Invitational tournament.

In Pigeon, the Bulldogs opened the day with a pair of extended games with Deckerville. Campbell's spikers got a 16-14 win in the initial game against the Eagles, but couldn't come up with the big plays in game 2 and bowed 17-15.

Owen-Gage then split games with the Lakers. The hosts blanked the Bulldogs 15-0 in game one, but they rebounded with a 15-11 victory in the 2 schools' final meeting.

The Bulldogs then advanced into the quarterfinals with a pair of easy wins over Sandusky by the scores of 15-4 and 15-13.

In the quarterfinals, Bad Axe ousted the Bulldogs with straight game wins of 15-5 and 15-4. The Hatchets were eliminated in the semifinals by Cros-Lex, who edged host Lakers in the finals for the tournament's top Coach Beth Howard's spikers were seated in arguably the tourney's toughest pool that included perennial powerhouse Bad Axe, Frankenmuth Unionville-Sebewaing Area schools (USA).

And although the young Hawks managed just one win in 6 tries in their pool, it allowed Howard's squad to emerge with the title in the event's consolation tournament. Cros-Lex captured the championship trophy with a come-from-behind win over the Lakers.

The Hawks proved to be trouble little Frankenmuth and Bad Axe in their opening 4 games. The Hawks suffered losses of 15-4, 15-7 to the Eagles and 15-4, 15-6 against the Hatchets.

Cass City was able to regroup in their final pool play match, reduce their ball handling mistakes, and earn a split with the Patriots. The Hawks narrowly defeated USA in the initial tilt, 18-16, and then dropped the finale by the score of 15-7.

Despite their 1-6 mark on the day, Howard's spikers were able to win the 4-team consolation tournament.

What pleased Howard most about winning the title was that Cass City defeated a pair of teams that have previously conquered the Hawks.

Howard's team will try to duplicate that effort this Thursday when they host Greater Thumb League con-

The Hawks opened the consolation tournament with a victory over USA. The Patriots, who defeated the Hawks during GTC play and earned a split just minutes before, were ousted by the Hawks in straight games by the scores of 15-8 and 15-5.

The Hawks then took revenge on Reese - who knocked off Sandusky in the semifinals - with wins of 17-15 and 15-9 to grab the title. Trailing 12-1 in the initial game of the finals, the Hawks used a 16-3 run to win game

Ironically, it was the Rockets who used a 14-0 run to defeat the Hawks just 2 days earlier during a tough 5game GTC meeting at Reese.

The scores in the match were 15-10, (8-15), 15-4, (5-15) and (11-15).

The Hawks jumped out to an 11-1 lead in the deciding 5th game before the Rockets shocked the Hawks with 10 unanswered points.

Carrie Wentworth led the Hawks in scoring at the GTC match with 12 points and a team high 5 ace serves. Cass City also received 9 service points each from Shelly Ulfig and Monica Dorland.

Pacing the Hawks on offense was freshman Sara Homakie with a team best 8 kills. Ulfig pitched in 6 kills in her first outing since fracturing her ankle in mid January. Ulfig also turned in 10 tips and 5 blocks.

Howard cited the play of senior Kara Mellendorf at the turned in a fine outing, collecting 5 blocks, 3 kills and 3 tips.

Cass City's cause was hammered by 28 ball handling errors which Howard claims was the team's biggest weakness on the night.

Hawks to contend for GTC title

Is Cass City a pretender or a contender for the Greater Thumb West hoop title this year? That question will be answered this week as the enter Hawks undisputedly is the testing portion of its schedule.

After playing at Brown City, the leader in the Greater Thumb East, the Hawks face the undefeated Lakers Friday on the road. The Matt LePage led league leaders have answered every challenge this season.

Coach Jeff Hartel would be pleased if his charges continue to pour in the 3-point shots as they did last Tucsday, rolling past visiting Yale,

The Hawks shot 47 percent (7 of 15) from 3-point range, with Jason Wright (2), Heath Zawilinski (3) and Dan Cuddie (2) sharing the load.

That opened up the middle for Craig Emmert, who responded with 24 points, including a perfect 6 for 6 from the charity stripe.

Cass City took charge of the game early and in the first 5 minutes of the game charged to a 12-2 lead, led by Zawilinski and Emmert with a pair of hoops each.

Cass City continued scoring almost at will and, with 4:38 left in the half, was in front

Hartel explained that 2 games are scheduled. "There's going to be a competitive game and old-timers

The onslaught continued in the second half. With 3 minutes left in the third period. the Hawks led 66-25 and the mercy rule where the clock continues to run unless a time out is called was in effect.

From that time on Cass City failed to score. Running the clock probably cut the time of play in the fourth quarter by half or more.

Hartel said, we played a good game against a team that we should beat. We will be challenged greatly the next few weeks, the coach said, looking ahead. I hope that the team is ready to finish out a strong season.

Emmert collected 9 offensive rebounds and had 9 for the night. Cuddie had a nice floor game, Hartel said, with 10 assists. Zawilinski netted 17 points.

Horrendous start cost Bulldogs win at Almont

Coach Leon Westover's Owen-Gage Bulldogs couldn't overcome a horrendous start Friday and fell to host Almont 66-54 during a non-conference STA crossover tilt.

The Raiders held their guests to solo field goals by Derek Howard and Chad Mellendorf during the game's opening 8 minutes and built a 20-5 margin entering the 2nd stanza.

"We had a terrible start," said Westoyer, "It was a rough (physical) game. You see that when you go up a class (Almont is a Class C school). Hopefully, it was an education for us."

Westover will see if his squad can benefit from Friday's outing when they start the 2nd half of their Gres. The Wolverines handed the Bulldogs a 55-54 loss to open the season back in December. Friday, Owen-Gage will return to North Central Thumb League action in Port Hope.

"We need to adjust points with 4:19 remaining.

quicker," said Westover, adding, "If we take anything from Friday's game, I hope it's the intensity level.'

The Raiders expanded their lead to 37-15 at the half behind solid team defense and the offensive efforts of senior Ryan Claridge, who finished the game with 12 points, a dozen rebounds and 7 assists.

"Claridge is a good athlete," says Westover. "He was an all-stater in football." Claridge is currently being courted by SVSU, UNLV and Illinois University on the gridiron field.

The Raiders' edge at the break could have been even larger, except for the Bulldogs' splendid showing at the foul stripe, where they connected on all 8 of their attempts in the 2nd frame. campaign Tuesday in Au However, Owen-Gage's lone field goal in the period belonged to Nick Warack, who finished with 8 points and a team best 14 rebounds.

The Bulldogs mounted a 2nd half rally that saw the guests draw to within 10

Owen-Gage continued to slice into the Raider lead and trailed 56-47 with just over a minute remaining, but would get no closer.

Sophomore Shane Mellendorf paced the Bulldogs' offense after the break, scoring all 7 of his tallies in the 3rd quarter, including one of the Bulldogs' 2 hoops from beyond the 3-point arc.

"I have to give the kids credit, they never quit," says Westover.

Westover was especially pleased with the work of his bench, who led the come-"Ray Salcido, Shane Mellendorf and Ryan Richard did a good job coming off the bench defensively. Westover used the trio on offense/defense substitutions as several of his key players were in foul trouble late in the game.

Howard led the Bulldogs with 11 points, one better than senior teammate Justin Anthes, who scored in double digits for the 2nd straight contest.

Raider Larry Matburg recorded game scoring honors with 15 points, while Josh Springer added 14 tallies.
