The home was being rented by Dennis Ross, who was at work when the fire broke out, according to Ross, who said the man's wife reportedly had been sleeping on the couch. Her name was not available.

"She, luckily, thank God, got out. She woke up to the sound of smoke detectors going off," he said, noting the woman was treated for smoke inhalation. "The smoke detectors saved this

Ross said the structure, owned by Gene and Louis Elif, Cass City, appeared to have been a mobile home with additions. The home was heated by a wood burning unit, but Ross said there was no way to determine where the fire started or the cause. "Because it was so far along, we really can't say."

Kingston fire fighters remained at the scene for about 3 1/2 hours. They were assisted by the Lamotte Township Fire Department, which sent a tanker and 8 men; Cass City firemen, who contributed 2 men and a tanker, and the Caro Fire Department, which sent its air compressor to the scene.

Woman killed

A Sanilac County woman died late Thursday morning when the vehicle she was riding in collided with a train in Minden Township.

Sanilac County Sheriff's deputies identified the victim

Investigators said a vehicle driven by Konrady's husband, Steven Konrady, 43, was westbound on Bay City-Forestville Road and was unable to stop for an Eastern Huron train that was traveling south. The vehicle collided with the front of the train engine. Belinda Konrady was pronounced dead at Huron Memorial Hospital, Bad Axe. Steven Konrady sought his own treatment for minor in-

Both occupants were wearing seat belts when the 11:45 a.m. accident occurred, according to deputies, who noted the train engineer and conductor were not injured.

Hospitals staffed, but R.N. shortage looms

Hills and Dales General Hospital has reached its goal of having a full complement of nearly 20 registered nurses on staff - no small feat considering the shortage of R.N.s that has medical centers nationwide scrambling.

Locally, success didn't come easily; it took an aggressive recruiting program that included offering a hefty signing bonus.

And the battle to hire and retain registered nurses is far from over, officials say.

"The statistics are showing that we're going to have a severe shortage for the next 10 years," said Dee McKrow, president and CEO of Hills and Dales General Hospital.

"R.N.s are going to become a premium. They've predicted this would be coming the last 3 or 4 years, and they're predicting we're only at the beginning of it (short-

"The problem," McKrow explained, "is that the R.N. population is aging, and we do not have people going into R.N. programs. The schools are having a really hard time recruiting stu-

And it's no wonder, according to the administrator, who pointed out that registered nurses spend 4 or 5 years earning their degree, then start their career by working long hours, holidays and weekends. "You start at the wages of an auto worker with a high school education, and you almost always have to start on midnights or afternoons before you go on first shift," she said.

"The other thing about R.N.s is, if no one is there to relieve them, they are required to stay (on duty). They have to pick up the overtime even though they don't want to. It's not a job you can walk away from without proper relief."

Which is most acutely felt at smaller hospitals with smaller nursing staffs, especially when nursing vacancies remain unfilled.

In late December/early January, McKrow said, Hills and Dales had 2 R.N.s resign and a third on sick leave, placing a burden on the remaining staff. The hospital's nurses did a fantastic job during a difficult period, she added, "but it was to the point where it was burning out our staff."

On top of the long hours and pay, which ranges from a typical starting wage of $16 per hour to $22 per hour at larger hospitals, McKrow said registered nurses seem to have been taken off their historical pedestal of being "angels of mercy" and placed in the position of being scapegoats.

The fact is, R.N.s take a lot of abuse, she continued. "They have to make everybody happy. They have to make the physicians happy, they have to make management happy and they have to make the patients and their families happy."

The dwindling ranks of nurses prompted Hills and Dales officials to implement a recruiting campaign offering $1,000 signing bonuses to R.N.s that were hired and remain at the hospital for at least 6 months. Current hospital employees, meanwhile, were offered a $500 reward if they recruited an R.N. The effort netted 2 new nurses.

At the same time, the hospital offers financial support for employed L.P.N.s who want to earn their R.N. degree. The support comes in the form of tuition reimbursement and loans, a portion of which is forgiven provided the nurse remains at Hills and Dales.

McKrow said the program encouraged 2 of the hospital's L.P.N.s to earn their R.N. degrees last year, however, one of them has since resigned to accept another job.

Pat Miller, president and CEO of Caro Community Hospital, knows the feeling. Miller said he's losing a nurse - recruited by the Caro hospital from the Detroit area — who has accepted a job with a hospital in Bay City or Saginaw that offered better wages.

"It's not a level playing field," he said of the competition for nurses among small and large hospitals, which can afford to pay higher wages and have the resources to better withstand significant Medicare reimbursement cuts brought on by the Balanced Budget Act. Still, Miller said Caro Com-

HILLS AND DALES General Hospital has managed to attain a full staff of registered nurses, thanks to aggressive recruiting and other programs, but retaining that staff is expected to be a challenge as the demand for R.N.s continues to exceed the supply. Tell your own library story Libraries are those invisible places in your community that have a great impact on your life. Sometimes we take such places for granted until we stop and think how having access to a library has contributed to the quality of our lives.

Perhaps using the library at one time or another has made a difference in your life. Maybe the library had the information you needed to start a business; you can recall how attending story hours when you were a child gave you a love of reading and contributed to your success; a librarian was able to give you the information you needed to research a company and land that job; or you recently became homebound and the library was able to send you materials so you wouldn't be cooped up in the house all winter.

There's something about winter that puts folks in a bad mood. A letter to the Canadian farm paper, Grainews, is a good example.

The writer concludes his letter by saying, "I will not utter a challenge for you to print this. If you do, thank you, and please withhold my name as I fear a police raid on my premises.

Hey, lighten up! If people went to jail for what they send to newspapers, I'd be scared to death.

Psychologists blame our winter blahs on the shortened day length or the cold, but I think taxes and government reports have something to do with it. In an effort to cheer folks up during this gloomy period, I'll pass along another item I noticed in Grainews a few years ago.

This came from Dr. Jeff Goodwin, who found it on the Internet. Dr. Goodwin was a Texas extension agent at the time, and has since moved to the University of Idaho.

The story suggests we can better understand government activities and different forms of governance if we compare them to farming. It goes like this:

3 or 5 is the question

Three or 5 is the question! Snowcoming is only a couple of weeks away, but there may be a change that will be taking place before the annual event.

The proposal that was made deals with the senior king and queen candidates. For everyone who is familiar with Snowcoming and Homecoming, there have always been 3 senior king and queen candidates. The proposal is that there will be 5 senior king candidates and 5 queen candidates.

The Student Council goes through a very democratic process. They first proposed the idea during their Jan. 21 meeting. They discussed the pros and cons of the situation and answered any questions the council may have had. The classes then have 2 weeks to discuss with their classmates if they feel it will be a good idea or not. They will then have a vote to see if the students want the proposal. "This (process) gives the students the opportunity to put into practice what they have learned about the constitution and the amendment process in civics and government classes," said Student Council Advisor Sean Zawilinski.

いることではついるとのできる

The pros for the amendment are that it will allow more of a variety of students to be picked for the special occasion.

The cons are that the speeches and such during half time will have to be shortened due to the time factor. Also just the fact that a tradition is being changed.

I think it is really nice because it is an honor to be on court. It will give more students that honor.

Out of all the students I talked to, most of them felt it would be a good idea.

Kristy Haag, a senior, said, "I think it will be better, it will give more people a chance, not just the 3 that always get it.' Rebecca Kruse, a sophopeople will get to be on court," said Nick Matt. Kim Morrish also agreed.

She stated, "I think it will be better, it will give more and different people the opportunity to be on court."

The Council will be voting in just a couple of days to see if they think it's a good idea or not. As it sounds, most people like the idea and would like to see it pass.

"No good deed goes unpunished"

What was board thinking?

I could hardly believe my eyes today when reading the report in the paper on last Monday's school board meeting. I have since spoken to a board member about it and feel compelled to air my opinion. I wish I had known about the issue to be presented before hand, as I would have surely attended. If you failed to read about it, this is what took place: Your school board upheld a reduction in grades for 2 young women in the high school because they exceeded the allowed days of absence. They accompanied their family on a trip down south for a week to do mission work for the poor. The reduction in grades is a punishment for unexcused absence from school.

Two years ago, I had a similar experience with the school policy that levies points against a student for unexcused absences. It was explained to me by Mr. Kuntz that it would be the SCHOOL that determined what was an acceptable excuse, not the parents! Our authority as parents is subiect to school policy. Silly me, I had always believed that I, as the parent, was the authority in my child's life. I then wrote a letter to the school board challenging the policy but was told later they were determined the policy would not change. Now here we are 2 years later and the policy has changed, but, in my opinion not for the better. Now the points levied for unexcused absences goes against a student's grade, not against discipline as before. I do agree that some rules and restrictions are necessary but I would contend that there should always be room for exceptions. So that brings us to the issue at hand. Last week your school board reduced the grades of 2 young women in the high school because they took a week off from school to take a trip

I can tell you with the exception of Danny Haag (who supported the young women in the face of the opposition) that I am disappointed in this board for their clear lack of understanding of the true principles of education. The education of character, and morality. Those are the lessons that parents all over the world struggle to teach their children so they can become responsible citizens, the kind you want living next to you and coming to your aid should you have difficulty. The schools are replacing the authority of the parents to teach their own children these basic principles. It has been said that some of today's parents are not involved in their children's lives. Does that mean that those of us who are should have our authority removed? The argument is made that abuse by some to repeatedly be excused is the reason for the strict policy. And that the school board does not want to open the door for more parental requests for exceptions to the policy. So the easier thing to do is refuse any exception.

Here are parents, doing with their children a decent Godly thing by way of Mission work, and your school board in their wisdom decides that serving humanity is not an acceptable enough reason to be absent from school for a few days beyond the allowed absences. Let me ask you, have your children ever missed a day of school for a school sponsored field trip to Detroit Tigers Stadium for a ball game, as mine have, or an athletic event as mine

I don't think so. In taking a hard line here as the board has done, they have lost a great opportunity to

Young people want to be heard, too

Dear Editor:

I feel that there is something missing in the United States today. In most pamphlets, books, articles, etc. you read that the children aren't showing enough respect for their parents and/or teachers. I believe that it is not only the children who are not showing respect. Most adults don't notice the exact words that they are saying. Sometimes they are so wrapped up in disciplining their children/students that they don't think about what the child is going through. This is especially true with young teenagers.

Most adults don't notice the stress that teens have to go through. There's homework, siblings, parents, and relationships in general, all of which are very stressful, and hard to deal with all at once. Of course, adults like it when a child listens to them, or says please and thank you, or doesn't interrupt. Yet children like these things too.

In the U.S. Constitution, it is written that all people have equal rights. Does that not include children? I think it does, and if I am right, children have the right to be heard. So the next time a child and a parent/teacher have a disagreement, maybe the parent/teacher should think to listen to what the child has to say, without interrupting them.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

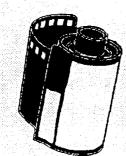

Leah Sherman 7th grade Cass City Middle School student

With laparoscopic surgery, Dr. Murray explained, the abdomen is filled with carbon dioxide, opening up the cavity to provide a better view for the surgeon. The surgeon then manipulates surgical instruments through a small incision, guided by images on a monitor that are provided by a tiny television camera attached to the laparoscope, which is also inserted into the abdomen.

Dr. Murray recalled he spoke to a medical recruiter a couple of years ago and asked him to keep his eye out for opportunities in the northern states. "When he told me about this one, I decided to come up and take a look at the area," he said.

At the same time, Dr. Murray noted, Hills and Dales is suited well to the types of surgery he performs. And, the staff has welcomed the new laparoscopic techniques he has brought to the local hospital. "They're all very enthusiastic," he said.

One thing many people might not know about Hills and Dales, he continued, is that the hospital occasionally sends its nurses to Saginaw to spend some time working/ observing in larger medical care facilities. "That was very interesting to learn," he said. "So, even though it's a small hospital, (Hills and Dales) is very progressive."

The hiring of Dr. Murray, who joins surgeon Dr. Hoon K. Jeung on staff, concluded a successful recruiting campaign by the hospital, according to Prill.

There was a need for another surgeon in the area," he said. "With the MRI (facility) and the dialysis center, we're getting more patients referred over here, and that is keeping Dr. Jeung and Dr. Murray adequately busy. The need was there.'

Road projects on tap

Reconstruction of sections of M-81 and M-53 are among the projects included in a 5-year road and bridge program announced last week by Gov. John Engler.

The state's second 5-year program calls for investment of a record $6.385 billion to repair and rebuild 6,625 miles of state highways and to rehabilitate 1,400 bridges across the state over the next 5 years. Among the projects is the long-awaited completion of the M-81 corridor between Cass City and Caro. Construction of M-81 from the east village limits of Caro to Dutcher Road - 4.86 miles is slated for 2000. Another 1.369 miles of the highway (State Street) will be resurfaced from Colling Road to M-24 in Caro in 2004.

More than 5 miles of M-53, meanwhile will receive a facelift in 2002, when construction will get underway from M-81 north to the Huron County line.

"Recent increases in transportation funding have allowed us to fix roads and bridges at a record pace in Michigan," Engler said. "Release of this plan proves that we remain committed to more long-term fixes and that we're fixing the worst roads and bridges first."

The Michigan Department of Transportation's (MDOT) 81-page 5-year road and bridge program outlines the state's investment strategies and includes a specific list of every major road and bridge improvement project scheduled for the state highway system between 2000 and

"We are making significant progress toward our overall goal to bring 9 out of 10 state roads and bridges to good condition by 2007," said Engler, who lauded MDOT for completing 93 percent of the road repair projects scheduled for 1999 and included in last year's original 5-year plan.

Teen enters guilty plea

The second of 2 Millington teens charged in the traffic death of a Millington boy has entered a plea of guilty to attempted vehicular manslaughter.

Joshua D. Long, 18, entered the plea last week in Tuscola County Circuit Court. A plea agreement in which the teen would serve no more than one year of jail time was taken under advisement by the court, which scheduled sentencing for March 3 at 8:30 a.m. Long's co-defendant, Mat-

The charges stem from the Sept. 27, 1998, death of Evan Paul Johnson, 12, who was riding his bicycle in a residential area near his home when he was struck by a car driven by Mays. The boy was then struck by a pickup truck driven by Long, according to investigators, who said the teens were racing and passing one another when the accident occurred.

In other circuit court proceedings last week:

Cass City earns comeback win

ference center, Craig Emmert, sidelined in a ankle cast, Coach Jim Green's cagers received a big boost from underclassmen Jeff Storm and Nate Brinkman Friday to register a comefrom-behind win over visiting Mayville in Greater Thumb West conference play.

Emmert, who sustained the injury to his right ankle during Tuesday's contest against Sandusky, is expected to be out of the lineup until next Friday, Feb. 11, when the Lakers are scheduled to visit Cass City. The Hawks will host Brown City Tuesday.

Trailing 46-41 entering the final period against the Wildcats, the hosts went on a 16-2 run to open the frame and secure the victory. The Hawks sealed the win by converting 11 of 14 free throws over the game's final 8 minutes.

Storm helped pick up the slack created by the absence of Emmert in the Hawk middle with a team high 9 rebounds. The sophomore also recorded 4 steals and passed for 5 assists in the GTW tilt.

Storm's biggest contribution, however, came on the defense end.

With about 4 minutes remaining on the clock, Storm stepped in front of charging Wildcat Joel Seger, which disqualified the guests' leading scoring with 14 points.

4-H plans Winterfest in February

If you're between 9 and 12 years of age, you may want to consider signing up for the 4-H Winterfest Program.

4-H Winterfest, a popular program designed for young people, is offered every other year, and will be offered this year Feb. 19 through Feb. 20.

The setting for 4-H Winterfest is the Hartley Outdoor Education Center, located just outside of St. Charles, (about an hour from Caro). Winterfest is open to 9-12 years old in counties in the East Central Region of Michigan, and Tuscola is one of those 13 counties.

Pre-registration deadline is Jan. 21. However, only 6 spots are being reserved for each county due to the limited sleeping area available at Hartley Outdoor Nature Center. Therefore early pre-registration is suggested, and is currently being taken at the Tuscola County MSU Extension Office in Caro.

A waiting list will be maintained if more that 6 pre-registrations are received. For more information about 4-H Winterfest, or to make your pre-registration, contact the Tuscola County MSU Extension Office at (517) 672-

Bulldogs bow in semis of Laker volleyball invite

Coach Judy Campbell's Owen-Gage spikers bowed Saturday during the semis of the annual Klinger-Dast Invitational volleyball tournament in Pigeon.

After advancing from their Gold Division pool play matches with a 6-2 mark, Owen-Gage's afternoon ended with hard fought losses to the host Lakers by the identical scores of 15-11. The Lakers went on to capture their own event with wins of 15-5 and 15-5 over Reese in the finals.

The Bulldogs had an easy time winning in their opening 2 pool play matches against Dryden and Bay City. The Bulldogs recorded wins of 15-2 and 15-5 over the Cardinals and 15-2 and 15-4 past the Saints.

The Bulldogs also swept North Branch Wesleyan in pool play, with wins of 15-5 and 15-8. Owen-Gage's only losses before the semis were recorded by Croswell-Lexington, who earned wins of 15-12 and 15-9.

Campbell's spikers, who were to have faced North Central Thumb League foe Akron-Fairgrove Monday, will take to the road again this Saturday to compete at the USA Invitational.

Junior Dee Fritz led the Bulldogs on the service line at the invitational with a team high 40 points. She received plenty of help from teammates Stephanie Lowry and Cassie Vargo, who posted 30 and 23 markers, respectively. The trio also combined for

The Red Hawk gymnastic team capped a highly successful week of competition Saturday at Vassar.

Coaches Cathy Kropewnicki and Heather Hulburt's squad received its 3rd team score of 118 points or more, the team qualifying regional standard, during the Vassar Invitational. The Hawks finished with 121.6 points at the invite, which followed a 127.65 point performance Monday in a triangular meet with Midland High and Midland Dow.

Several Hawk records fell at Midland. Foremost is the highest team score ever recorded in

Donate used cards

As you settle into the new year, stop by a Detroit Edison customer office to donate your 1999 photographic calendars and used holiday greeting cards so that the utility can collect these items for local school children to recycle into creative art projects. For 2 years, Detroit Edison employees have collected thousands of used holiday greeting cards to donate to the Keith Bovenschen School in Warren, where students with multiple handicaps recycle the used cards into new holiday cards for sale. Last November, during a day set aside to encourage Americans nationwide to recycle household items, Detroit Edison "Green Team" members sold 2,000 recycled holiday cards made by students at the school.

"Detroit Edison employees purchased one-third of the entire production of cards our students made," said Jan Milbrand, principal at Keith Bovenschen School. "The money that utility employees spent purchasing our cards provided funds for needed classroom items. The students work hard developing a number of skills from working on the project year round."

The calendars that Detroit Edison collects are donated to Arts & Scraps, a non-profit organization in Detroit that leads Southeastern Michigan school children in creating art projects with reusable scraps from local industries. School groups can take field trips to Arts & Scraps, and the students' work often is exhibited at recycling fairs and other public venues.

Collection boxes are located in the lobbies of Detroit Edison customer offices, including the North Area Energy Center at 4100 Doerr Rd., Cass City.

MSU-Extension Dairy Specialist Dr. Craig Thomas and MSU-Extension District Farm Management Specialist Dennis Stine will be conducting a special workshop for Thumb Area farmers entitled "Finding Your Farm's Profit Centers, Farm Financial Management in a Changing Environment."

The workshop is designed to help farmers identify their farm's financial strengths and weaknesses, gauge the long-term effect of low commodity prices on net worth, and help develop a multiyear business plan to address tomorrow's challenges.

This hands-on workshop is specifically designed for all agricultural producers: crop, dairy and livestock, who want to gain a full financial understanding of their business. The program also includes follow-up farm visits, during and after the workshop if desired by the producer, to insure that producers have accurate and confidential financial information.

The workshop will be held at the Detroit Edison Community Room in Cass City one-half mile south of M-81 and the Shell Gas Station, 4100 Doerr Rd., Thursdays, Feb. 10, 17 and 24, from 9:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m.

A fee will be charged to attend. To register call or write Dr. Craig Thomas, MSU Extension, 37 Austin St., Sandusky, 810-648-2515 (phone) or 810-648-3087

Starkey attends conference

Fairgrove farmer Richard Starkey was recently in Houston participating in the Michigan Farm Bureau Council of Presidents' Conference. The gathering of 40 Michigan county leaders was held in conjunction with the American Farm Bureau Federation annual convention, Jan. 9-13.

The presidents discussed issues affecting the agriculture industry and shared ways to effectively lead their county Farm Bureau organi-

American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF) President Dean Kleckner, an Iowa hog farmer, talked about national agriculture issues and encouraged the county Farm Bureau presidents to work with their legislators at the state and national level to help address economic problems facing agriculture.

An additional report of the World Trade Organization talks was presented by Audrae Erickson, AFBF director on international trade, policy and negotiations.

Starkey and other county Farm Bureau leaders also learned more about the status of the bovine tuberculosis outbreak in Michigan, with updates from Farm Bureau staff; Kevin Kirk, Michigan Department of Agriculture TB coordinator; Keith Creagh, deputy director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture, and Wildlife Biologist Beckie Humphries of the Department of Natural Resources.

County presidents learned about the additional whitetailed deer that have tested positive in Antrim and Mecosta counties, which could put Michigan's TBfree accredited status at risk.

Jim Fuerstenau, director of the Farmland and Community Alliance, gave insight to upcoming programs relating to farmland preservation, including a land use conference Feb. 28-29 in Lansing and a farmland preservation tour March 30 - April 3 in Pennsylvania, Maryland and New Jersey.

Michigan Farm Bureau also garnered national recognition, as president Jack Laurie, Cass City, was elected AFBF vice-president. Bob Stallman of the Texas Farm Bureau was voted AFBF president.

Michigan has 68 county Farm Bureau organizations, representing 169,202 member families.
