Thieves damage Northwood course with stolen car

A nearly perfect Fourth of July celebration in Cass City was marred over the weekend when thieves stole a car and went on a rampage, damaging the Northwood Shores Golf Course just 2 weeks after the course was reopened by new owner Kevin Mulligan.

The incident was the fourth involving the theft of a motor vehicle in the village since the Memorial Day holiday weekend.

Cass City police were dispatched to Hospital Drive to investigate a reported reckless driver at 12:49 a.m. Saturday, according to reports, which state the officers informed Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies that the golf course, which is not located within the village limits, had been damaged.

Deputies said a witness who lives near the course had contacted Mulligan after he saw the suspect vehicle, a 1997 Olds Cutlass, driving on the golf course, damaging several greens and fairways.

Deputies noted there was damage to a fence at the entry point off of Hospital Drive. The suspects entered the course, driving over 3 greens, then turned and crossed a bridge and headed northwest, driving through a fence located near the number 3 hole. The suspect(s) then headed west and stopped in a field northwest of the course, where they abandoned the vehicle.

Police requested assistance from Officer Mike Anderson and his tracking dog from the Bad Axe Police Department, however, they were unable to locate the suspect(s).

Cass City police reported the vehicle belongs to Jimmie Perry, Cass City. He told officers that his vehicle must have been stolen. Information on the extent of damage to the vehicle was not available.

Mulligan, Cass City, initially estimated the golf course damage at roughly $5,000, but he later indicated the repairs will cost far less.

"The damage was very dramatic sounding and looking (at first)," he said, "but in reality, when cooler heads prevailed, it was minimal."

In fact, Mulligan said the million dollar hole-in-one contest he sponsored in conjunction with the Cass City annual GREAT DAY, great festival - Picture perfect weather and big crowds made for a memorable 22nd annual Cass City Freedom Festival over the weekend. Above, Tess Schulz, 2 1/2, enjoys the attention of a talented clown in the park. Schulz is the daughter of Johann and Traci Schulz of Snover.

Sunshine greeted thousands of people at the 22nd annual Cass City Freedom Festival Saturday.

In addition to the weather, a variety of musical acts made the grand parade on Saturday special. Jane Hittler, festival coordinator said. "We had tons and tons of compliments on the parade," she added. "I don't think we ever had so many compliments before."

Several floats were award winners. The President's Award went to Independent Bank's float. First Baptist Church was awarded "Most Patriotic." Cass City United Methodist Church won "Most Original" and the "Prettiest" float title went to Thumb National Bank.

Michigan Athletic and Rehabilitation Center's annual line-up of races Saturday differed this year from previous years. Organizers added an 8-kilometer run to the 5-kilometer run and walk. Greg Hanby, the event coordinator said all 3 races would likely be back next year. "I think that's a great package for a small town race," he said.

The races had their highest participation ever, with 64 runners and walkers, he added. The 8-K run had 18 participants, which is great for a race in its first year, Hanby said.

Andy Duemling and June Yaeger were the 8-K overall winners. Ryan Esterline and Kate Fall won the 5-K run. In the 5-K walk, Robert Morley and Janet Nicol placed first.

Several champions from the National Wrestling Alliance of Michigan and Tri-State Champions from Ohio battled over unified titles Saturday night. Doink the clown, a former member of the World Wrestling Federation, also was in a match.

The event attracted people of all ages. Hard-Time Gene Austin, promoter for both groups, said his organizations tend to do that. "We have a very family oriented show," he said.

There's a possibility the wrestlers may return to Cass City for another fundraiser in January, Austin said. He would bring another big name, such as Doink, then, he added.

The big finale of the festival, the fireworks show, was spectacular, Hittler said. "I felt the fireworks were the best we've had in 3 or 4 years," she said. The 32-minute-long display didn't have any long pauses for people to lose interest, she added.

Arts and Crafts opening Friday afternoon instead of Saturday went over well, Hittler said. Crafters usually come into town Friday evening anyway, and were happy to have something to do, she added. It's likely the show will be 2 days next year also, she said.

Northwood Shores Golf Course's hole-in-one contest had a smaller crowd than hoped for but still went well, Dee Ann Mulligan, owner of the course, said. Almost 100 people entered for a chance to win $1 million during the weekend and nearly 30 advanced to the qualifying round, Mulligan said. Rick Salcido came within 9 feet of the hole in the 2nd round and had a chance at the $1 million shot, but missed. He had to settle for $100, she said.

"Next year we anticipate putting on the same sort of event," Mulligan said. The final round may be moved to Sunday instead of Saturday to let people enjoy the events in the park and participate in the contest, she said. The course may even add a putting contest for kids and those who don't feel comfortable with their long game, she added.

Vassar woman missing

The Tuscola County Sheriff's Department is asking for area residents' assistance in locating a woman reported missing since Monday.

Undersheriff Jim Jashinske said the woman, 38-year-old Cynthia Lynn Cunningham, 4020 Saginaw Rd., was last seen wearing black pants and a red shirt. She left home Sunday at about 7:30 p.m. to go to work at the Soaring Eagle Casino in Mt. Pleasant.

Cunningham, who was driving a gold 1998 Pontiac Sunfire with the Michigan registration 8BMJ73, is described as 5 feet 7 inches tall. She weighs 170 pounds and has brown hair and hazel eyes.

Family members say Cunningham is very reliable and conscientious, according to Jashinske. "She communicates with her family and has not gone to work as scheduled."

Anyone with information is asked to contact the sheriff's department at (517) 673-8161 or Tuscola County Central Dispatch at 1-888-545-6911.

Crops look good, prices don't

by Lynn Heitkamp

Record setting precipitation in the month of May means good news to local growers, for the most part.

"We have broken the back of a long-term drought situation, no doubt about it," Jeff Andresen, Michigan State University agricultural meteorologist said.

In April and even early May, the long-term outlook predicted Michigan was in for a dry and warm summer, Andresen said. Soil moisture was at such low levels, plants would have quickly become stressed during a dry spell.

Now, soil moisture is much closer to normal levels. Some places in Michigan saw 300 percent of their normal precipitation levels during May, Andresen said.

"To get out of the deficit we were in, that was the kind of precipitation we needed," he added.

Martin Nagelkirk, Sanilac County MSU extension director agrees. The 1998 and 1999 growing seasons were warm and dry and the weather the past few months has gotten back to normal, he said.

"In a sense, we're kind of back to what we've experienced for the past decade," Nagelkirk added.

Mild drought conditions continue in some parts of northern Michigan and elsewhere in the Midwest, Andresen stated.

Although the substantial rainfalls in May and June were needed, they haven't come without a price.

In fact, some growers that were worried about drought earlier in the season now have the opposite problem. Heavy rain has caused delays in field work in several places. Growers are glad for rain, Nagelkirk said, but it makes it trickier to get work done.

"We're still doing very well," Nagelkirk added. The Thumb and Saginaw Valley are doing much better than Mid-Michigan and the western side of state, where rain was even heavier, he said.

These problems are worth putting up with, Andresen said. "In the long term, it has definitely changed the situation around for the better," he added.

Rain wasn't as big a problem locally as wind was, Angie Eichorn, MSU's Huron County extension director, said. Sugar beets and dry beans planted in sandy soils have been sandblasted when strong winds from rainstorms beat particles against them, she said.

Heavy rains have also meant that plants haven't had to dig deep root systems to find water. Eichorn added. That could mean their roots wouldn't have the capacity to search for deep underground water if they need to. "If, for some reason, we don't see rain in July and August, that may be a problem," she said.

The long range forecast is now uncertain, Andresen added. Forecasts show equal chances of above, normal and below temperatures and precipitation for the rest of the season.

CROP OUTLOOK

Some area growers have benefited from the weather, while others haven't, Teresa Crook, agronomist for Michigan Sugar, said.

Area sugar beet fields cover the whole spectrum from excellent to poor, and everywhere in between, she added.

Crook blames the weather. Some fields continue to be plagued by water and wind damage while others have had beautiful growing weather. It all depends on location, she said.

Ideal sugar beet growing weather is warm, not hot, with half to three-quarters inches of rain a week. That's enough to keep crops growing, but won't drown plants, Crook noted.

"There are definitely some very good fields out there," she said, but others aren't doing so well.

Cercospora leaf spot disease is continuing to be a worry for sugar beet growers and sugar companies, Eichorn said. The disease thrives in the humid warm air of late summer and affects sugar tonnage come harvest, she added. "That will be a big determining factor in the productivity of the sugar beet crop," she said.

Nagelkirk said soybeans also have some fields with problems. Neither sugar beets nor soybeans are going to have an excellent year, he said. "I'd grade them a 'B', which certainly keeps them on the honor roll, but I don't think they're going to get straight A's this season," he compared.

Prospects for wheat and corn look better, he said. At this point in the year, it is hard to predict how crops will be at harvest-time, however, he noted.

Growers have already been fooled once this season, Andresen said. Above normal temperatures in early spring put crops about a month ahead of normal growth by April. Below average temperatures in May and June have slowed plant growth down, though, and now crops are at a normal stage of development for this time of year, he said.

"We've lost time," he com-

Gas crunch Village, police biting the high price bullet

High gas prices have made more than a handful of area motorists wince at the pump this summer. The same is true for local governmental and police agencies, although both spend less per gallon because of their tax-exempt status.

In spite of the higher cost of doing business, Cass City officials say they are not facing a significant budget problem, and there are no plans to cut fuel consumption at this time.

Likewise, police agencies report they are not cutting down on road patrols or taking other similar steps to reduce fuel expenses.

"So far, it hasn't hurt our budget, but if this continues, we're probably going to have to look at a budget amendment," Cass City Village Manager Jane Downing said. She noted the village had spent just under $7,000 for fuel this year as of May 31. "We've spent 39.8 percent (of this year's fuel budget), which is very much in line with this point in the year."

A weekly survey conducted by AAA Michigan revealed residents were paying an average of $1.97 for self-serve regular going into the July 4 holiday. The price represented a 10.1-cent decrease from the week before, but average prices statewide were still 82.2 cents higher than they were heading into last year's July 4 holiday.

"We were paying under $1 a gallon at the end of last year," Downing said, referring to the tax-exempt price paid by the village.

Since then, prices have fluctuated, from a high of $1.14 in January to $1.25 by the end of February and $1.34 in early March. The price dipped to $1.18 by the end of March, remained relatively unchanged in April, then shot up to $1.36 at the end of May. Last week, the village paid $1.63.

Those increases are certain to show up in the village's police department budget, with officers on duty 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

"It's going to cost us something, but it hasn't made any difference in the amount of patrol we're doing," village Police Chief Gene Wilson said.

The number of patrol cars on the road varies, depending on the time of day, but Wilson always has 2 patrols on duty on Friday and Saturday nights. "My night shift burns a lot of gas, but the council wants them out there, moving around at night," he said.

Tuscola County Sheriff Tom Kern faces the same dilemma, although on a larger scale, with a typical 8-hour shift logging 150 to 200 miles.

"We're going to run out (of money in this year's fuel budget), so the commissioners are going to have to supplement that," he said.

Kern said the cost of fuel is an unknown factor each year because deputies can be called on to cover a lot of territory on any given night. "There's no way to really restrict traffic cars because they're pretty much running from one complaint to another."

Huron County Sheriff Mike Gage said he's encouraging his officers to do a little more stationary patrol, but he doesn't expect that to result in any major savings.

"Probably 70 percent of the complaints that we handle in a day are not traffic related; they're citizen complaints," he explained. "Basically, we're biting the bullet on most of this because the public still have to have police service."

Michigan State Police troopers are also conducting business as usual, although high gas prices exacerbated an existing budget crunch at the state level, according to First Lt. Doug Lautner, commander of the Caro post. "But they have managed to make some cuts in other areas to get that under control," he said. "At this point it hasn't affected our patrols at all."

Motherhood

by Melva E. Guinther

This article appeared on my desk from an unknown contributor who got it from a friend over the computer. We considered saving it for Mother's Day, but decided it was too good to keep.

We are sitting at lunch when my daughter casually mentions that she and her husband are thinking of "starting a family." "We're taking a survey," she says, half-joking. "Do you think I should have a baby?"

"It will change your life," I say, carefully keeping my tone neutral.

"I know," she says. "No more sleeping in on weekends, no more spontaneous vacations."

But that is not what I meant at all. I look at my daughter, trying to decide what to tell her. I want her to know what she will never learn in childbirth classes. I want to tell her that the physical wounds of child bearing will heal, but that becoming a mother will leave her with an emotional wound so raw that she will forever be vulnerable.

I consider warning her that she will never again read a newspaper without asking, "What if that had been MY child?" That every plane crash, every house fire will haunt her. That when she sees pictures of starving children, she will wonder if anything could be worse than watching your child die.

I look at her carefully manicured nails and stylish suit and think that no matter how sophisticated she is, becoming a mother will reduce her to the primitive level of a bear protecting her cub.

That an urgent call of "Mom!" will cause her to drop a soufflé or her best crystal without a moment's hesitation.

I feel I should warn her that no matter how many years she has invested in her career, she will be professionally derailed by motherhood.

She might arrange for childcare, but one day she will be going into an important business meeting and she will think of her baby's sweet smell. She will have to use every ounce of her discipline to keep from running home, just to make sure her baby is all right.

I want my daughter to know that everyday decisions will no longer be routine.

That a 5-year-old boy's desire to go to the men's room rather than the women's at McDonald's will become a major dilemma. That right there, in the midst of clattering trays and screaming children, issues of independence and gender identity will be weighed against the prospect that a child molester may be lurking in that restroom.

However decisive she may be at the office, she will second-guess herself constantly as a mother.

Looking at my attractive daughter, I want to assure her that eventually she will shed the pounds of pregnancy, but she will never feel the same about herself. That her life, now so important, will be of less value to her once she has a child. That she would give it up in a moment to save her offspring, but will also begin to hope for more years - not to accomplish her own dreams, but to watch her children accomplish theirs.

I want her to know that a Caesarean scar or shiny stretch marks will become badges of honor. My daughter's relationship with her husband will change, but not in the way she thinks. I wish she could understand how much more you can love a man who is careful to powder the baby or who never hesitates to play with his child. I think she should know that she will fall in love with him again for reasons she would now find very unromantic.

I wish my daughter could sense the bond she will feel with women throughout history who have tried to stop war, prejudice and drunk driving.

I hope she will understand why I can think rationally about most issues, but become temporarily insane when I discuss the threat of nuclear war to my children's future.

I want to describe to my daughter the exhilaration of seeing your child learn to ride a bike. I want to capture for her the belly laugh of a baby who is touching the soft fur of a dog or cat for the first time.

My daughter's quizzical look makes me realize that tears have formed in my eyes.

"You'll never regret it," I finally say. Then I reach across the table, squeeze my daughter's hand and offer a silent thank you for her, and for me, and for all of the mere mortal women who stumble their way into this most wonderful of callings.

This blessing....that of being a mother.

(And anyone else he can get to help.)

The wrestling show at the Festival proved to be more popular than it was when it was first staged here 2 years ago. More popular, but not profitable.

How could that be when Doug Hyatt estimates that 400 fans were at the show? There's an easy explanation, of the 400 watching just 121 paid. The remainder eased in without paying.

Say thanks, Hyatt asks, to the folks who went in the "front" door.

The visiting wrestlers went that extra mile to help out the Festival. In addition to his paid performance "Hard Time" Gene Austin volunteered for a stunt on the dunk chair with funds earmarked for the band program.

There were lots of well-known Cass Cityans who agreed to be targets including new Cass City Schools Band director Marc Palma.

Worth noting is that the school band performed, adding a touch of class to the parade, which is always a Festival highlight.

Next Monday is the deadline for voters to register for the August primary election. Residents can register at township clerks' offices or at any of the 178 Secretary of State branch offices or by completing a mail in voter registration form.

Persons who register to vote by mail must vote in person in the first election in which they participate unless they are 60 or older, temporarily residing overseas or disabled as defined by law.

LIFE LINE Screening will be coming to Cass City Monday to offer 3 primary health screenings to detect the risk of stroke and vascular disease.

Health screening scheduled

VFW Post #3644 in Cass City will offer area residents the opportunity to spend a few minutes doing something that could quite possibly save their lives.

Life Line Screening will be at the local FVW post Monday, July 10, to offer 3 primary health screenings to detect the risk of stroke and vascular disease. These tests include a Carotid Artery Screening Test, Abdominal Aortic Aneurysm (AAA) test, and an Ankle Brachial Index (ABI).

Life Line Screening will also offer a bone density screening for women which tests for the early detection of osteoporosis.

These fast, painless, and low cost tests use ultrasound technology and are conducted by a registered or registered eligible Ultrasound Technologist. A board certified physician reviews the results of each test to ensure accuracy of the results before the findings are mailed to each individual. Individuals whose screening suggests further evaluation are encouraged to seek appropriate follow-up care with their own physician.

Anyone interested in either the vascular or osteoporosis screenings must register at least 24 hours in advance. Please call 1-800-407-4557 to schedule an appointment for the tests. The tests are offered for $35 each, which compares to between $300 and $500 for similar diagnostic tests offered by hospitals and imaging centers.

Also available at the screening site will be free information on the identification and control of risk factors, how to recognize the warning signs and symptoms of stroke and other vascular diseases as well as helpful information regarding osteoporosis.

The Haire Net

Over the years I have created myriad number of house ads. House ads are ads created to sell the paper and its services. The ads include any number of attempts to sell our classified section. Many are designed to sell subscriptions and an equal or greater number used to call attention to our commercial printing department.

About the time of the July 4 Festival we have run and rerun the advertisement that has been and is my favorite. Space demands sidelined the ad last week. This is what it said.

"When the lights go out at the park. When the last hot dog is eaten, the last event is over and the Festival is history, let's remember why we celebrate. We need to be reminded that freedom still prevails and our individual freedom is the envy of people everywhere.

"A free press zealously guards that freedom. We strive to uphold that tradition every week by publishing the most concise, accurate and unbiased news of Cass City and the area"

In a small community following this creed is not easy. Over the years the paper has been sued 3 times for stories published. Each was dropped or dismissed because they were proven to be accurate. There have been times when stories have resulted in lost business as they offended persons in the business community. At the time it appeared to be poor business to publish stories sure to offend just because they affected the community.

Thankfully, it appears to be not only right, but also good business in the long term. Producing a paper that readers respect and have confidence in has enabled us to survive in a climate that has forced out of business 7 area papers, and reduced at least 2 others that are now merely a shell of what they were, about the time the Festival started 22 years ago.

I have always considered that the results are not only a

The back forty

by Roger Pond

A recent news report suggests folks who work at home should adopt a "who cares" attitude about background noise filtering into the office. The writer says callers don't care if we work at home as long as the noise isn't disruptive.

She quotes a man who used to lock the kids out of his office and forbid his wife from practicing her bassoon during business hours. Now he leaves the office door open and his wife does whatever she pleases.

This fellow has decided business callers don't worry about background noise as long as it doesn't interrupt their call.

That may be fine for him, but it wouldn't work for me. My callers would be shocked if I told them I'd have to call them back after my wife gets off her bassoon.

Anyone lucky enough to have an office in the house should be thankful for it. I used to work out of my barn and that wasn't any picnic, either.

My barn office was upstairs - above the sheep and the chickens. I don't know what callers thought, but the critters could get pretty unruly sometimes.

The kids had their 4-H lambs downstairs most of the summer, and these animals had a habit of injecting a "Baa!" into a conversation at the worst of times. A client would suggest an amount they would be willing to pay for my column, and the sheep would say, "Baa!"

We kept some chickens on the lower level, too. Many times I would pause during a telephone conversation to explain what was going on down there.

The hens would get to cackling, and I would say, "Sounds like the girls are having a time downstairs. Must be another birthday."

The big critters weren't the worst of it, either. My barn office was a haven for tree frogs and several kinds of insects.

I would pick up a phone book and find a dried frog under it, or turn on the computer and a bug would come walking out of the "B" drive. All of these creatures thought they knew more about writing than I did, and unfortunately they might have been right.

The worst thing about a barn office or a home office is the tendency to use it for things other than business. Things like cutting up venison, weighing fish on the postal scales, or shearing sheep.

The UPS people must have been surprised to walk into my office each fall and find me whacking away on the front half of a deer. They took it all in stride, though. UPS gives them special training on keeping a straight face.

I moved my office into the house years ago. Now I work in the basement, next to the bathroom.

The only background noise I worry about is my wife taking a shower. "And please don't flush the toilet!"

THERE WAS a nice mix of musical acts in Saturday's parade, including the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps (above), the Tittabawassee Fife and Drum Corps and the Cass City High School Marching Band.

NO ACCIDENT - Jaws of Life demonstrations at the Elkland Township Fire Department drew plenty of attention from festival goers as fire fighters used the life-saving mechanical equipment on a trio of junk cars.

THUMB NATIONAL Bank won the prettiest float prize for this creation. Independent Bank, First Baptist Church and Cass City United Methodist Church won awards.

Bills target violence

Gov. John Engler recently signed 2 domestic violence bills that went into effect immediately.

Public Act 112 of 2000 allows family courts in each county to provide domestic violence advocates to assist victims with personal protection orders. The advocate could be either an employee of the court or a contractor with a record of aiding domestic violence victims.

Public Act 111 of 2000 allows a person fearing domestic or other violence the right to have his or her name changed without the usual public notice of the proceeding. The victim would have to show the court the need for keeping the proceeding private, and anyone convicted of a crime would also have to prove that the name change is not an attempt to escape a criminal record.

Although there has been a growing public awareness about domestic violence and its consequences for family members and children, domestic violence continues at an alarming rate.

July 4 Festival in pictures

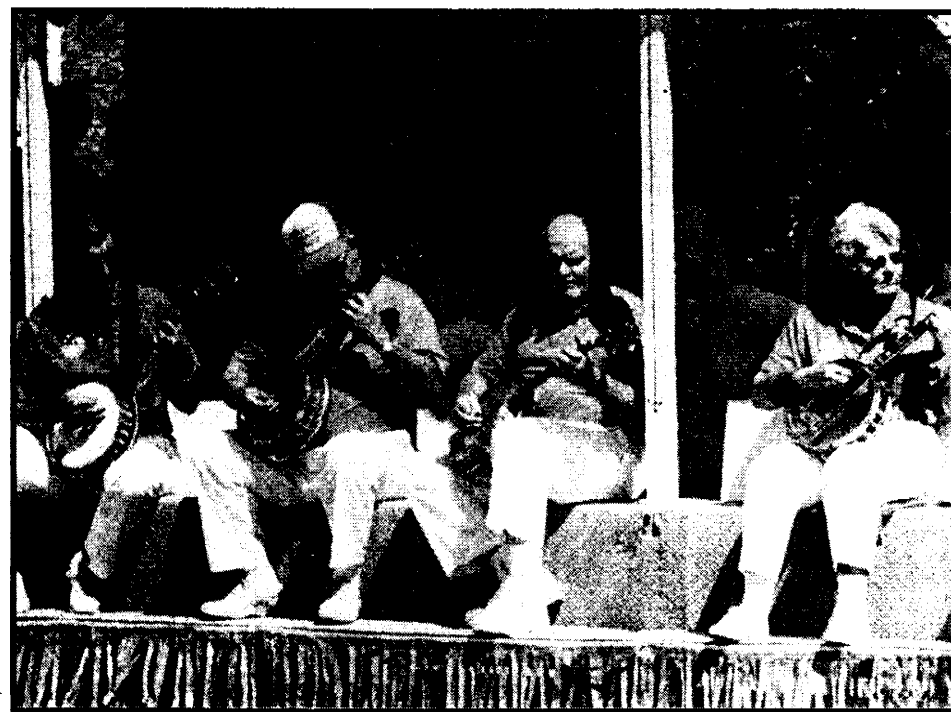

THE ANNUAL Fire in the Sky 3-on-3 basketball tournament, sponsored by the Cass City Rotary Club, remains popular, with dozens of male and female competitors participating in the festival event.

SANDRA ANDERSON of Great Lakes Search and Rescue K-9 Division encouraged arson-dog Falcon to locate a chemical scent. The dogs put on a demonstration of their sniffing skills in the park.

HOOPER, MASCOT for the Detroit Pistons, hammed it up in the parade and signed autographs in the gazebo afterwards. He also passed out CDs and Grant Hill posters.

THE FLINT Banjo Club was a new and welcome addition to the grand parade line-up.

Planting highlights released

Spring planting of Michigan crops started early under dry conditions but finished between frequent rainfalls, according to the Federal/State Michigan Agricultural Statistics Service. These acreage estimates were based primarily on surveys conducted the first 2 weeks of June.

Highlights of the 2000 Acreage Report include:

- Michigan corn farmers planted 2.20 million acres, the same as last year, but up

50,000 acres from the March Intentions report. Growers expect to harvest 1.95 million acres for grain, also the same as last year.

- Soybeans in Michigan were estimated at a record 2.2 million planted acres, up 250,000 acres from last year. Harvested acres are expected to total a record 2.19 million acres.

- Sugar beet producers in Michigan planted 187,000 acres, a decrease of 7,000 acres from 1999. Harvested acres were set at 185,000 acres.

- Winter wheat in Michigan was estimated at 530,000 planted acres.

- Michigan dry bean acres were placed at 320,000 acres, down 30,000 from 1999. Expected harvested acres were estimated at 310,000 acres.

- Michigan all hay harvested acres are expected to total 1.30 million acres, the same as last year.

Letters to the editor

Baseball coaches deserve praise

Give Credit Where Credit's Due!

In some past weeks there have been a couple negative letters to the editor regarding the question of how our children's baseball teams have been run. I can't say I don't totally disagree with what was written, but PLEASE let us not forget all of the positive impact this has on our children's lives. Most of it is due to the coaches that put many hours in. You know they don't do it for the big bucks!

We had a couple coaches this year for my son's team that have grown children and took on the responsibility of coaching the team only because of the fact there were boys who wanted to play ball and not enough coaches.

This and many other instances I've witnessed through the years of minor, little league, pony league should not go unnoticed.

Time and again I have seen never ending support, understanding and encouragement demonstrated to our kids not to give up! Chances are when these children, young adults walk off the playing field they will keep many of the sportsmanship values and respect they learn as being part of a team.

Everyone cannot always agree or maybe like different ways or things that may go on, but ask yourself, "Who is out there giving their time to our kids?"

A grateful parent,
Ann Keiser

Ubly FFA proud to host training sessions

The Ubly FFA was proud to host the Region III Officer Training Camp. It was held at Ubly High School June 15 and 16. Twelve chapters joined in the fun. Participating chapters included: Ubly, Harbor Beach, Lakers, USA, Saint Louis, Chesaning, Alma, Ithaca, Breckenridge, Port Hope, North Huron and Capac.

About 90 FFA officers participated in sessions and training. Our guest speaker, Nathan Clark, gave an enlightening speech on "Fishing for Leadership." Members also participated in 4 sessions.

The second day kicked off with Chapter Time. Each chapter worked on goal setting and plan of action. Following the chapter time were interviews to choose new regional officers.

The members broke into groups for Off-Site Training. The presidents traveled to the Court Houses. Vice presidents toured the Co-Op in Ruth. All secretaries visited the 4-H extension office. The treasurers traveled to the Bay Port State Bank. Reporters toured the Huron Daily Tribune and then worked in the computer lab. Finally, the sentinels visited the Huron Daily Tribune and then practiced catering.

The results of the Regional Officers election were announced. Our new 2000-2001 Regional Officers are: Mark Shetler, president;

Scott Smalley, vice president; Nikki Beattie, secretary; Jeremy Licht, treasurer; Julie Pelak, reporter; Elizabeth Reeves, sentinel, and representatives are Josh Dodd, Crystal Schulz and Sarah Koglin. Camp ended with a banquet.

Everyone did a wonderful job. The FFA groups all had fun working together and meeting new people. Thanks to everyone who helped make the 2000 Regional Training Camp a success.

Tuscola County students attend Young People's citizenship Seminar

Students from Tuscola County traveled to Alma for the annual Michigan Farm Bureau Young People's Citizenship Seminar.

The students included Kristen Jones, Elysia Silvernail, Alecia Nicol, Melissa Hecht, Chad Martin, Jessie Mercer, Brett Baranic, Simon Williams and Adam Dunham. The Tuscola County Farm Bureau awarded each student with scholarships to attend the seminar, held June 19-23 at Alma College.

Nearly 180 Michigan high school juniors and seniors from 53 counties attended the program. They listened to speakers and took part in activities designed to encourage participation in the political process. Students even ran their own campaigns for a variety of mock political offices, and voted on platform issues including gun control, use value assessment on farmland and education vouchers.

"This was a great group of kids that got to learn more about the political process," said Sarah Black, coordinator of the seminar and associate legislative counsel for Michigan Farm Bureau. "Past participants of the program have gone on to great careers, most notably Lieutenant Governor Richard Posthumus."

Young People's Citizenship Seminar (YPCS), sponsored by Michigan Farm Bureau for more than 3 decades, is designed to do just that. The conference inspires, enlightens and challenges high school students to become active participants in the political process. Students heard from Rep. Valde Garcia (R-St. Johns), tri-athlete Kathy Hughes, Detroit Lions guard Barrett Brooks and numerous motivational speakers.

Longtime businessman, councilman

Weaver won't sever local ties

by Lynn Heitkamp
Staff Writer

Soon Mike Weaver's address will read Caseville instead of Cass City, but don't think he's leaving town for good.

"I really, really, don't want to sever all my ties," he said.

Weaver has lived in Cass City for 32 years. Two years ago he and his wife, Toby, bought a cottage on the lake in Caseville. They've recently sold their Cass City residence in order to move into the cottage full-time. "Two houses are getting to be too much work," he noted.

Because they are moving out of Cass City's limits, Weaver had to resign the seat on the village council he has held for 18 years. But he doesn't intend to quit all his jobs.

Weaver will still be working 2 days a week at Coach Light Pharmacy, a drug store he owned for over 30 years. He is not resigning from his positions on Hills and Dales Hospital and Chemical Bank's boards. And he will still serve as president of the Pinney Foundation.

The decision to move wasn't made lightly. Living half an hour away means the Weavers will have to change their lifestyle. "Selling a house is a very emotional thing," Weaver said.

Neither of the Weavers' 2 daughters, Jean, 30, or Wendy, 27, live in the Cass City area either, he said. If one of them lived in town, they might have considered staying, he added.

Quite a few former Cass City residents live within a mile of the Weavers' cottage in Caseville. "It'll be like a little Cass City up in that area," he said. Having old friends nearby will be one of the better things about living there, he commented.

32 YEARS

"Cass City's always been a pretty booming town, but it's changed a lot," Weaver recalled. He's seen many businesses come and go, but Coach Light has been a drug store for over 100 years, Weaver said. The building was built in 1899 and has been a drugstore ever since, he added. He's found prescriptions from that era in the basement.

During Prohibition years, pharmacies were the only place alcohol could be obtained legally, for medicinal purposes, he said. Weaver has found "Whiskey Permits," issued by the government, allowing the pharmacy to be in possession of alcohol during that time period.

"There've been a lot of different owners, but I was the longest owner," he said. During the time he owned the business, from 1968 to 1999, it doubled in size and then added on again into the alley that runs behind the store.

"I really enjoy people," Weaver said. One of his favorite parts of working at Coach Light for so many years is that he sees the same people regularly and gets a chance to see children grow up. There are a couple of regulars that he met as toddlers, he said, who now have families of their own.

Being a business owner is partly what interested him in first running for village council 18 years ago. "I was interested in what was going on in town and there was no one on council representing

All state cattle will have to be tested for TB

Citing the spread of bovine tuberculosis in the free-ranging white-tailed deer herd outside of northern Michigan, the U.S. Department of Agriculture dropped Michigan's bovine tuberculosis split-state status, June 27, to nonmodified accredited for the entire state.

The new classification mandates the state to test all cattle for bovine tuberculosis. And, because Michigan has now officially lost TB-free status, the Pasteurized Milk Ordinance requires all dairy operations to have a whole-herd test every year in order to ship Grade A milk.

Michigan, in a Nov. 1, 1999, USDA interim rule, was classified as nonmodified accredited in the 11-county area of northeastern Lower Michigan north of M-55 and east of I-75, and as accredited-free for the rest of the state.

"This ruling certainly doesn't come as a surprise," said Jack Laurie, Michigan Farm Bureau president. "What we need now are the money and people resources to get the job of testing the entire state completed as soon as possible. Testing will give us a complete picture as to where the disease is located and the severity of it. Our goal should be to test the entire state within 12 months and to get this behind us."

The change was necessary, according to Alfonso Torres, deputy administrator for veterinary services with USDA's Animal Plant and Health Inspection Service (APHIS), in order to prevent the spread of bovine tuberculosis because Michigan no longer meets split-state classification requirements.

retail," he said. It was an interesting job with wonderful people to work with, he added.

Weaver has also been involved with the Rotary Club since moving to town and has enjoyed his time with that group as well. From making pancakes to cleaning up a stretch of highway, he always had fun because it was a good group of people to work with, he said.

Fun is something Weaver hopes for more of in his life. He said he hopes the move will give him some more spare time for golfing, boating and fishing.

"I've got a lot of things I want to do," he admitted.

Farmer friendly bills signed into law

Three bills Gov. John Engler signed into law Thursday keep farming affordable for Michigan families and preserve prime and unique farmland for future generations, according to state Rep. Mike Green, chair of the House Agriculture and Resource Management Committee.

"This is a historic day for the future of farming in Michigan," said Green, R-Mayville. "Today's bill signings are the crowning moment for farmers and the many people who spent months working to ensure agriculture remains affordable and part of our state's rich heritage."

"All 3 bills provide incentives to farm families to stay in the agricultural business by offering alternatives and options other than selling to developers."

Public Act 260 of 2000 eliminates the taxable value adjustment, or so-called "pop-up", from agricultural property sales if the land remains in farming.

The pop-up adjustment, the difference between taxable value and state equalized value, was implemented when farmland ownership transferred, even among family members. The increased tax load sometimes made it financially infeasible to continue the farming operation after a property sale.

PA 261 of 2000 creates the Agricultural Property Recapture Act to collect the difference between the capped and uncapped agricultural taxable values if farmland is sold for other than farming. Repayment of the benefit provided by the capped assessment value is required for the 7 years prior to a non-farming sale.

PA 262 of 2000 establishes the Agriculture Preservation Fund, which will receive funds generated by the recapture tax and converting current agriculture protection programs.

Money in the fund will be used to provide grants to local governments for purchasing ing development rights from farmers through conservation easements. The easements prevent building or other development on the property.

A fourth measure signed into law by Engler promotes the agriculture industry in Michigan.

PA 259 of 2000 creates up to 10 additional tax-free renaissance zones for agricultural processing businesses. The zones will attract processing facilities and jobs to Michigan so goods are no longer shipped to other states to make final products.

"Now more than ever we need to recognize the important role farmers have in Michigan and on our lives," Green said. "by helping farm families maintain their lifestyles and businesses, we benefit ourselves."

Thieves hit course

July 4 Festival went on as planned. "Everything actually went off very smoothly."

Mulligan recently purchased the course from Joe and Barbara Howard, who decided not to open the business last spring. Their decision was based largely on problems they had experienced with vandals.

Cass City police investigated 4 other complaints involving property damage during the same time period over the weekend - late Friday night or early Saturday morning.

Mark Martin, 4585 West St., reported someone used a wooden lawn ornament to smash a window on his garage; Elmer Francis, 6457 Church St., reported a broken light fixture attached to his garage; Roy Shaft, 4553 Leach St., reported someone smashed a passenger side window on a vehicle parked near his residence; and Dick Hunt, 4581 Leach St., reported a window on his home was smashed.

Thieves have stolen and damaged a car, a minivan and an off-road recreational vehicle in Cass City in recent weeks, and police believe the same suspect(s) may be responsible for all of the crimes.

Cass City Police Sgt. Craig Haynes said area residents can avoid becoming victims by not leaving their keys inside their vehicles and by always locking their vehicles. Anyone who witnesses suspicious activity in their neighborhood is urged to call 911, and anyone who has information related to any of the recent thefts is asked to call the Cass City Police Department at 872-2911.

Alfalfa, now in its second cutting, is one crop that is definitely having an excellent harvest, Eichorn said. It's both high yield and good quality, she added.

The farm market is very depressed, especially for international crops like corn, wheat and soybeans, Nagelkirk said. Even specialty crops, like dry beans and alfalfa, which many use as a cash crop, have low prices.

In previous years, Michigan Sugar's payments to its Sugar Beet growers have averaged $35 to $40 a ton. "It will be less than that this year," Crook said.

Growers have 2 hopes, Nagelkirk said. They want prices to recover or to have a bountiful harvest. However, there is little optimism in the agricultural community that crop prices will rise, he added.

If yields are good, farmers can make up for the low prices. That happened last year when crops set records for yield and quality. "It compensated, to a large degree," Nagelkirk said.

"That level of success is hard to repeat. So many factors are out of our control," he admitted.

WET WEATHER has kept growers out of their fields a lot this spring, but experts say the precipitation was sorely needed. Low prices for crops continue to be a concern.

Fourth festival simply fabulous shine on the festival was Thursday. A brief thunderstorm interrupted the golf tournament at Rolling Hills in the afternoon for about half an hour, Dick Wallace, the event coordinator, said.

"Guys will play in rain but it's a no-no to play with lightning in the area," he explained.

The rest of the golf tournament went well, Wallace added. Golfers raised $1,200 for the festival in addition to paying the top 5 teams that placed, he said.

Four teams ended with 10-under par, but handicap scores broke the tie. The team of Jim Hillaker, Jerry Toner, Don Galbraith and Scott Murphy won first place.

5 YEARS AGO

Near perfect weather greeted the 4th of July festival crowds Saturday.

The greased pig contest drew some 40 children, prompting event organizer Charlie Carpenter to open a 3rd division. Zach Dorland, 8, caught one of 2 pigs donated by the Dave Little family in the 9-year-old and under category. Travis Jensen beat 8 other 10- to 12-year-old boys to take home the $10 prize, and Erin McMahan, 12, won in the 10- to 12-year-old girls' division.

Sharie DeLong of Cass City recently spent 3 weeks studying in Kenya as part of a first-year program organized through MSU's fisheries and wildlife program. Leslie Merchant, a delivery driver for United Parcel Service, was recently recognized by the company for completing 20 years of driving without an accident. Merchant works out of the UPS facility located in Cass City.

The judges voted Amanda Kaak, 3, as first place winner in the 4th of July Tiny Miss pageant. Tiffany Glasa, 6, was the first place winner in the Little Miss category. Danielle Guilds, 11, was the first place Junior Miss winner.

10 YEARS AGO

Adam Warack, 8, of Owendale, died Friday after the off-road vehicle he was driving struck a tree in northwestern Grant Township.

The Gypsy moth caterpillars have stripped bare many of the trees in a woodlot near the Dale Buehrly residence about 3 miles northeast of Cass City. The caterpillars have been especially hard on Buehrly's poplar, cottonwood and pine trees.

Cass City resident John Maharg was recently presented a plaque honoring him as Lion of the Year.

Connie Schwaderer and Betty Hurst attended the 50th Zonta Convention in Texas held June 23-28. Janet Francis, also of Cass City, helped them in driving. Francis visited with her son and family in Fort Worth.

The Fraser United Presbyterian Church Women's Association, formerly Fraser Ladies Aid, have sponsored a family-style dinner in the church every first and third Wednesday throughout the year for 40 years. Those attending pay for their meal by a free-will donation.
