Credit rating upgraded County gets good news

State funding cuts, failed millage elections and skyrocketing costs have left Tuscola County officials with little to smile about, but county Controller Mike Hoagland offered some good financial news last week.

From now on, Hoagland said, Tuscola County will pay less when it borrows money.

"The county has received an upgrade of its credit rating to A- from Standard & Poors Inc., which is a New York rating agency that rates the credit of municipal bond went down, we had an increase.'

According to Standard & Poors, the new rating reflects "the maintenance of strong reserve levels and economic diversification in the southern portion of the county as evidenced by consistent tax base gains and rise in income levels. "Considering the economic and financial problems of the nation, state and region, the importance of this upgrade is even more significant," Hoagland said. ""By receiving this upgrade, the county is $11 million," county has been able to reverse a state and regional trend of bond rating downgrades. Hoagland said the county's former bond rating of BBB+ was in effect for at least the last 20 years. Peterson said credit for the Annual school elections Cass City voters unseat incumbent

Voters in the Cass City School District unseated a veteran school board member in a close race during Monday's annual school election.

Winning election to 4-year terms were newcomers Doug Lautner, who garnered 247 and Cathy votes, Kropewnicki, who received 208 votes. Incumbent Beverley Auten, who has served 18 years on the board, received 200 votes. District voters approved a vital 18-mill non-homestead property tax renewal by a vote of 306 to 51. The renewal will enable the district to continue collecting $6,700 per student, or about $750,000 annually in state funding for operations.

A total of 358 votes were cast in the election, representing about 6 1/2 percent of the district's registered voters.

In other area schools: •Owen-Gage Board of Education trustees Mike Mandich and Deb Quick ran unopposed for 4-year terms and were reelected with 70 votes and 79 votes, respectively. Board appointee Cathy Champagne ran unopposed for a 2-year term and received 72 votes.

Voters also approved a Headlee override request, 72 votes to 27 votes. The nonhomestead tax had been reduced over the past several years to 17.5047 mills due to the Headlee Amendment, which restricts increases in property tax revenue. Voter Marc Tenbusch and Mike Rutkowski to 4-year terms. The pair tied for the most votes with 254 each.

Incumbent Allen Bischer lost his seat, receiving 198 votes, while challengers Carl Osentoski and Dennis Janowiak garnered 174 votes and 58 votes, respectively. Incumbent Dennis Romzek did not seek reelection.

Voters approved the district's 18-mill non-homestead tax renewal. The vote was 423 to 100, with about 18 percent of registered voters turning out at the polls.

O-G school officials approve spending plan

by Benjamin Ray Staff Writer

The Owen-Gage School District will find itself facing another revenue loss for the coming school year, despite many recent steps to save money.

The school board approved next year's budget at Monday night's meeting and figures show the district will have a little more than $260,000 in fund balance, a $200,000 drop from last year.

Superintendent Bob Peterson attributed the loss

Peterson's contract until Sept. 30, after which he will receive an evaluation.

Teachers and staff members alike are frustrated. The elementary school closed its doors for the last time in June, and next year's children will be consolidated into the high school building

Likewise, seven positions were either eliminated or reduced at the May 31 board meeting. The board announced despite these proactive steps, they are facing an 18 percent increase in insurance premiums and 12.87 percent increase in retirement funds. Teacher salaries way at the high school for the elementary classrooms. and benefits also contribute to the loss One position eliminated was dean of students; although Josh Hahn will return as athletic director. Three community members came to the meeting to voice support for the dean. They were the only community members present. Principal Diane Warack said the district is probably going to sell the former elementary school and put that money into the general fund.

In spite of all this, the students at Owen-Gage thrive, participating in trips to Chieago and Mackinae Island and succeeding in sports Warack attributed this to the small, personal attention students receive.

"Our curriculum is competitive and our staff is up-todate," she said. "Students' needs are met here."

The board also approved a voted increase in the millage rate to the full 18 mills the district is eligible for, instead of the current 17.5 percent. Construction is also under-ture, if the county were to borrow $12 million such as it did several years ago for the medical care facility, and the bonds were outstanding for over 20 years, the county would save almost $200,000 in interest costs."

"That's a significant savings. That's positive," commented Gerald Peterson, chairman of the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners. "It's just amazing. In a time when the state overall - they're bond rating - upgrade goes to Hoagland and other members of the county's financial staff as well as county officials.

Achieving the higher rating, he added, indicates a strong conviction on the part of county leaders to live within their financial means, to maintain a balanced bud-

Hoagland said. "In order to balance the 2004 budget, one-time reserve funds were used and significant employee wage and fringe benefit concessions were implemented."

Hoagland added that county officials continue to put emphasis on multi-year financial planning to maintain a proactive rather than a reactive financial position.

That approach, added Peterson, has enabled Tuscola County to avoid some of the major service and personnel cuts now taking place in many other Michi-

In addition, voters will be asked to approve a new sheriff's road patrol millage of .5 of a mill, which would raise just over $600,000 in the first year.

Peterson announced the state government's recent decision to put $50 million of the general fund back into schools and said that may help get Owen-Gage through the rough patches.

"Our funding could change by the number of kids who enroll," he said. "We just don't know yet."

Society set to induct 4-H veteran Adam

by Tom Montgomery Editor

Just about anyone involved in the Lucky Stars 4-H Club would probably recognize Wayne and Faye Adams' names

And for good reason. The Snover couple helped establish the club and then devoted decades of leadership and service to Sanilac County youth through 4-H. For Wayne, the decision to get involved started in his teens when he became a 4-H member. That was years ago, but his dedication will be recognized later this month when he joins an elite group of 16 former 4-H alumni selected for induction into the Michigan 4-H Emerald Clover Society.

The Michigan 4-H Emerald Clover Society honors former 4-Hers whose professional leadership and community service reflect the ultimate outcome of 4-H use of an individual's head, heart, hands and health to make communities, the country and the world better places in which to live.

The recognition, provided by Michigan 4-H Youth Development, will take place Thursday, June 24, at the Michigan State University Kellogg Center in East Lansing.

This will be just the second class of former 4-H members to be honored. Michigan 4-H Emerald Clover Society members are inducted every 2 years, and the inaugural class of 62 members was inducted in 2002 in honor of the national 4-H centennial.

"I was actually a 4-H member in high school - I had beef, swine, rabbits and field crops. Then I went to college and the service, and when I came back I got involved as a leader," recalled Adam, one of the founding members of the Sanilac County 4-H Livestock Sale Committee. "Our community here, when we started our 4-H club, was kind of unique," Adam said, noting that in some clubs, 2 or 3 adults end up supervising all of the 4-H projects.

"But everybody that was involved in the community (here) took what we thought was our specialty, and I was the swine leader."

Although never a 4-H member, Faye was also a leader for the Lucky Stars 4-H Club. In all, she put in 35 years of service. She has also served as a Michigan 4-H Foundation trustee since 1988.

Together, the Adams raised 3 children on the family farm, where they had hogs, dairy heifers and beef cattle along with cash crops.

Wayne also continued working at Marlette Livestock Auction, a job he first started as a high school student. He retired in May after more than 50 years. "I was a fixture there for a long time in every capacity, from bottom to the top," he said. "I went from write-up clerk to yard manager to a manager/ owner, I guess you would say."

Throughout those years, the Adams encouraged their children to be active in 4-H. "All the kids were involved," Wayne said. "They all had livestock as projects, Alan had some crafts and woodworking. The girls had Please turn to back page.

Driver hurt in crash

A Snover man was injured early Monday morning when the vehicle he was driving left North Sandusky Road and struck a ditch.

Sanilac County Sheriff's deputies said the driver, Carlos G. Castillo, 20, was northbound on North Sandusky Road, near Eddy Road, when the 4 a.m. accident occurred. Castillo told officers he fell asleep at the wheel.

Castillo was able to escape the wreckage on his own and walked to a nearby house to call 911.

He was transported to McKenzie Memorial Hospital, Sandusky, for treatment, according to reports, which indicate he was not wearing a seatbelt at the time of the crash

A Caro man arrested last lice officer - causing injury, transporting/possession of an anhydrous ammonia container not approved by law, possession of more than 12 grams of ephedrine/pseudoephedrine, and larceny of property valued at less than $200. He is also charged with being an habitual offender (3 prior felony convictions).

The most serious of the felony charges is operating/ maintaining a methamphetamine lab, which is punishable by up to 20 years in prison and/or a $100,000 fine.

A pre-trial hearing was ordered scheduled in the case. Bond was continued at $20,000.

The charges stem from an incident last spring at a cooperative in Fairgrove, where Thumb Narcotics Unit officers had previously set up surveillance operations in an attempt to arrest a suspect(s) believed to be stealing anhydrous ammonia

According to TNU Commander Detective Lt. Mitch Krugielki, officers observed a suspect stealing anhydrous ammonia from a tank located at the cooperative April 23, and when they approached the suspect, he led them on a brief foot chase.

Both the suspect and a TNU officer were treated at Caro Community Hospital for minor injuries resulting from contact and inhalation of anhydrous as well as the struggle with the suspect during his arrest.

A second suspect was also identified and interviewed, according to Krugielki, who said the suspect is believed to have dropped off the first suspect with a plan to pick him up after he stole the chemical.

"When the second suspect's vehicle was searched, lithium strips as well as ephedrine was located and seized," Krugielki said. He noted manufacturing methamphetamine is dangerous and deadly not only to the individuals who make it, but also to the surrounding public and residential areas. "Explosions can sometimes occur during methamphetamine production, gasses can be released and hazardous waste run-off can result from residual chemicals left by meth labs.

Sandusky Schools has adopted a school cost-cutting measure unprecedented in the Thumb and may well be the first for any public school in Michigan.

Faced with a staggering deficit that has required pink slipping 9 1/2 employees, the school board has voted not to pay coaches for the 2004-5 school year.

Work for nothing or don't work. This at a time when coaches for junior varsity, junior high and assistants have been hard to fill, even though they are paid.

I would judge that for many sports if a volunteer is found it will be a dad or mom with sons or daughters participating that will fill the void.

Even with highly trained play. Money would be found from philanthropic organizations and individuals to pay the way. In small towns, the school and its athletic teams are the activity centers. If the money crunch extends for several years and volunteer coaches are all that are available, Sandusky's program will be decimated.

It's likely that the state will be forced to come up with funding as schools across the board are exhausting fund balances to keep operating. Hopefully it will come before Sandusky is forced to adopt the no pay policy that promises to be so disastrous down the road.

It's easy to forget how much air travel has changed over the years. I remember the days when a person could walk into an airport, hand over his suitcase, and get on the plane.

Now, we arrive hours before takeoff, park the car miles away, and spend half the morning answering questions about how our bags were packed. Then we jump on a conveyer and ride through the airport — just like a bale of hay entering the barn.

Someday I'm going to tell the baggage clerk, "No, I didn't pack my bag. My wife packed it. And neither you, nor I are supposed to know what's in it.

All of this hassle comes in the name of progress and security. I can't speak for everyone, but I felt better in the old days - when I could see where my baggage went.

The concept of airline "hubs" with huge planes and enormous airports has gone too far in my opinion. We're getting to the point where it costs more to park the car than it does to buy the plane ticket.

Why can't the airlines help upgrade the smaller airports where a person could find his way around, instead of building a monstrosity no one can even get into?

I have fond memories of flying into the little airport at Pendleton, Oregon - many years ago when United Airlines still scheduled flights there. The Pendleton Airport was small then, and I don't suppose it's any bigger now that United has abandoned the premises.

I sat in that airport one morning and watched the wind howling down the runway. You can't see the wind in many parts of the country, but you can in Pendleton. The wind there is full of things: Russian thistles, Jim Hill Mustard, pieces of driftwood.

This particular morning, windows rattled and lights in the airport lobby began to flicker. I wondered if this was a normal day for that part of the country.

A woman staggered in from the parking lot to report someone tried to open the hood on his car. The wind peeled the hood back like someone opening a new can of Spam. "Must have been a tourist," the woman surmised.

Finding money to operate is not unique to Sandusky. Many, many schools are wrestling with the problem. Cass City is fortunate that its program is solid at least for another year.

Many schools in a fund bind have established a pay to play policy. The drawback, of course, is that it discourages participation.

Sandusky has proven in the past that district residents support the school very well. It boasts one of the finest gyms in the area and has been nicknamed the "Thumb Palace" with justification.

Pay to play will eliminate players; the athlete that was coaxed to join a team is gone.

I question if charging to play will eliminate a single student who really wants to

Taj Mahal Cass City carpentry students create custom hunting blind

by Tom Montgomery Editor

They call it the Taj Mahal. That's how students in Craig Weaver's carpentry class at Cass City High School referred to the custom deer hunting blind they were asked to build for Mayville area resident Mike Wood.

In the past, the carpentry class has built sheds for interested area residents, who paid for the materials while the students provided the labor in exchange for handson construction experience in the classroom. But Weaver, who took over the class this year, decided to try something different and a little smaller in scale. He asked the students in his class to build deer blinds, and he put an ad in the Chronicle advertising the project. "They're smaller, 6 by 6, with 2-by-4 construction, OSB sheeting and a shingled roof," Weaver explained, adding the basic blind model sold for about $275.

"We've sold 2 so far. The big problem is, the price of building materials is so high. I think that scared some people away."

Not Wood, who approached Weaver and asked if his class would be willing to take on a bigger project - a deluxe 8foot by 8-foot blind.

"Mom (Carol Long of Cass City) told me they were making them, and I wanted to make one for my little brother," Wood recalled. "I was really interested in a blind built to code, and Mr. Weaver was really excited about it.

"I was pretty excited about it, too" Wood added. "And I was really excited for the kids. This is so good for the kids - it's an experience they can take out of the shop

"That was perfect," Weaver agreed, adding he knew the project would provide his students with a wider range of construction experience. Building a blind to code requires more attention to certain details, according to Weaver. "The main thing was the spacing of studs, the framing and the electrical where they ran the wires. It's just like a real house; real wall construction, siding, electrical, insulation, windows and door."

Weaver's "work crew" totaled 16 in all; Dustin Bitzer, Christopher Brown, Brenden Curtis, Paul Hoelzle, Jason James, Christopher Johnson, Matthew Koepf, Kyle Lowe, William McCreedy. Chad Newton, Justin Owen, Jack Palmer, Thomas Sabo, Frankie Stinson, Jareth Tyson and Scott Woidan.

The class was enthusiastic about the challenge. In fact, on the last day of school, some of the kids who had already finished their classes for the school year returned to help finish the project.

"I love working on stuff like that," said Paul Hoelzle, a member of the class who will begin his senior year in the fall "It was pretty elaborate for a hunting blind. This one had actual vinyl siding that a couple of students had to cut to fit," Hoelzle noted. "The thing is 8 feet tall. It's like a Noah's Ark.

In all, it took the class about a month to complete the blind, but it was worth the wait, judging by Wood's reaction.

"I think the kids did a very good job," he said. "I'm very pleased with their work, and I'm ready to have them build another one.'

In fact, Wood who previously built 3 similar blinds himself, is planning to ask Weaver's students to construct an even larger blind big enough to accommodate his family — during the next school year.

Weaver indicated he's ready for the challenge, although he and his students plan to continue offering residents the opportunity to purchase the smaller, basic blinds as well. "I would like to if people are interested in them.

"I think the kids really enjoyed it," Weaver said, adding the project promotes teamwork. "That's the nice part - when you have 2 or 3 kids working on a wall.

"It was a learning experience for them and me.'

WEAVER'S CLASS spent about a month building the custom deer hunting blind, a larger, deluxe version of the blinds they began offering for sale during the past school year.

Taking care of business...

LIZ REEHL finishes some financial paperwork Thursday afternoon. Reehl, director of financial aid at Baker College in Cass City, is leaving to do the same job in Jackson.

Your neighbor says America needs another Reagan

Question: How are you reacting to the death of former president Ronald Reagan?

Thousands of Americans stood in line last Thursday, walking past a flag-draped casket in the Rotunda of the U.S. Capitol building to pay respects to Ronald Reagan.

The 40th president of the United States, Reagan lost a decade-long battle with Alzheimer's disease and left this world on June 5.

Among his many accomplishments in his eight-year term were revitalizing his own Republican Party and helping end the Cold War. His plain-spoken style, ability to fight for what he believed and wry sense of humor won him fans from both political parties - and helped restore optimism among Americans.

His state funeral last Friday was the first in more then three decades. Former British prime minister Margaret Thatcher and former U.S. president George Bush eulogized him.

Here is how area resident Sue Regnerus reacted. "We lost a good person who did a good job with the presidency," she said. "He was able to be down-to-earth."

Reehl moving to accept new job at Baker

by Benjamin Ray Staff Writer

Liz Reehl ran for village council in March and lost by three votes.

Now, she is moving to Jackson.

However, those two are not linked, nor is Reehl a sore loser. In fact, she loves Cass City and the people in it. But a better job opportunity calls in Jackson, so Reehl will pack up her dogs, husband and life and move downstate on June 18.

Reehl, 26, is director of financial aid at Baker College in Cass City and will be doing the same job at the same school in Jackson. This time, she gets an assistant and a larger office. She was one of four internal candidates for the job.

Aside from the council loss, pleased with Reehl found time to join the Downtown Development Authority just recently. Because of the job opening, she has to vacate that position, which has yet to be filled.

> "I just wanted to see if I could get on and make a difference," she said.

She will depart for Jackson with her two dogs in tow, Toby and Charlie. Her husband of six years, Norbert, will give up his moving job at Anthes Movers in Gagetown as well. The couple is busy dispensing resumes for Norbert; they remain optimistic about being able to support themselves and the dogs.

"The job market is much better down there than it is here," she said.

She is also involved with the American Association of University Women, a group of female professors and professionals that help young women get involved in math and science at higher learning institutions.

Jackson needs to fear ---- if Rechl gets as involved down time," she said. there as she is here, the city may need to find other ways to keep her busy. "She was very easy to work with," said Justin Degrandt, office manager at Baker. "She works well as a team member.

After high school, a one year-stint at Saginaw Valley State University yielded no career ideas, so Reehl moved back to Cass City, where she had lived since age 12. Enrolling at Baker finally revealed answers, and four years later she walked away with an associate's degree in accounting and a bachelor's in management.

Reehl, who was born in St. Louis, Michigan, has been employed at Baker for the last two years and enjoys working at the small company. "I can walk down this hallway and recognize nine out of 10 people by their face,' she said. "Baker is very family- and customer service oriented."

She loves reading - John Grisham in particular - and attends classic car shows with her husband whenever possible. Norbert owns a 1969 Dodge Dart.

Country music, Jimmy Buffet and Guns 'n' Roses rank among her recent musical purchases, though she has very catholic tastes, she said.

Although her husband is very supportive and has been since the couple met six years ago, Reehl counts her mother as the biggest influence in her life.

"She had a difficult life and raised us to be what we wanted," Reehl said. "She pushed us to make the best of ourselves.' But Cass City will always have a special place in her heart, not just because she has family here but because of the laid-back approach to life, which she has adopted. "I just take it one day at a gliding around town ever since.

The Cass City Girls' Junior Varsity softball team completed another outstanding season. For the third year in a row, the Hawks came out on top of the Blue Bay Conference. This year the league format called for teams to play both home and away doubleheaders. This meant each school would play 12 league games. The Hawks were 11-1 in league play Their only loss was to Bad Axe in the last game of the season.

When the remodeling is completed, the store will have three checkouts and an express checkout as compared to the two checkouts now operating, it was explained.

A trophy sized Black Bass brought a grin to the face of Jim Doerr Sunday even though he didn't catch it. It was landed by his dad, Jack Doerr, with whom he was fishing. Notes from Northwood Meadows

By Becky Barr. Activities Coordinator/Receptionist

And it rained, and it rained, and it rained - a lot - in May. Of course, looking back - we're thankful it rained because today the flowers look lovely, and the grass is greener at Northwood Meadows.

Here's a quick review of the month:

Residents were treated to Mariachi Music at lunch for Cinco De Mayo. Arrrriba!

All of our ladies received pink Mother's Day corsages, and a special dinner selection (including bubbly champagne).

The M.A.R.C. Senior Acrobics class concluded exercises until fall - we'll miss you!

Girl Scout Troop #863 has green thumbs and certainly put them to good use by planting our spring containers. We placed them on our patio and our residents' patios. They are beautiful (the girls and the greenery)! Thank you all.

Caro's Sacred Heart Men's Choir provided a wonderful song program, proving to us again "you're not getting older, you're getting better!"

We had a noon BBQ, while we offered up our Great Room to the Cass City High School Band to record a

And finally, our residents observed a peaceful and quiet Memorial Day.

The bill comes at a time when elections are somewhat of a controversial issue again. Many Americans remember the 2000 presidential election fiasco and point to it as the apex of a flawed system. Locally, nobody who lives outside the village limits can vote for village council members, regardless of whether or not they work in town. Although this has made some business owners upset, village manager Frank Sheridan said it's the best system there could be. "An elector lives within their political subdivision, and you can only be a resident of one place," he said. "If you don't live here, you don't pay taxes - that's a state law as old as the Constitution.'

Sheridan had simple advice for those who have an issue with the law.

"If you want to vote in the village, then move to the village," he said.

Another dark cloud, Peterson said, is the future of state funding.

Peterson said projections at this point indicate cuts will range anywhere from no reduction, which isn't likely, to a whopping 43 percent. That adds up to $430,000 for Tuscola County.

include a wide variety of non-agriculture-related topics, Wayne said.

"It certainly has changed, but the times have changed,"

Faye agreed. "But I don't think the purpose has changed," she said.

Four-H continues to provide valuable lessons to young people, such as responsibility and the right way to approach competition, Wayne said. "The big thing is, you learn to lose as well as to win."

"No matter how hard you work, you may not be number one, and that's not a bad thing. It's learning - what you gain from it," Faye said, adding 4-H programs reinforce the basic life skills that parents try to instill in their kids.

Which is a big part of what has kept the Adams involved for so many years.

"We just realize the value of what 4-H does for youth, the opportunities it provides," Faye said. "I think it teaches kids, really, about life.'

Local Girl Scouts give away 1,500 pounds of food

The Girl Scout Food Pantry held Saturday was a huge success. Jerica Fenningsdorf, Klyn Puterbaugh and Lauren Brzuchowski, all from Senior Girl Scout Troop 1081, opened a food pantry in Cass City to earn their Gold Award.

The girls gave away over 1,500 pounds of food and helped over 30 families Saturday.

> If anyone else would like to donate, they can send donations to Troop 1081 at: 7711 Germania Rd., Ubly, MI to 1 p.m. 48475, or they can drop off food at Videomation, Chemical Bank, Independent Bank or Thumb National Bank. The girls plan on having the food pantry open the second Saturday of every month, so the next time it will be open will be July 10, from 11 a.m.

On July 10, besides food, there will be free clothing given away as well because the girls received clothing from an anonymous donor who wanted the clothing to be given away to those in need.

BEST FRIENDS Vicki Spencer, 11, and Sarah Burk, 11, both of Cass City, recently spent a day under a nice shady spot beating the heat and picking up a little pocket change at the same time.
