Palmateer ready to get his feet wet

Village elections often draw little interest and little voter participation, but a race for the president's seat in Cass City last week brought out more than one-quarter of the village's 1,668 registered voters.

"There was a steady stream of voters all day," said Cass City Clerk-Treasurer Nan Walsh, who reported Carl Palmateer won handily the 2-year term, receiving 298 votes. Challenger Tom Herron garnered 141 votes.

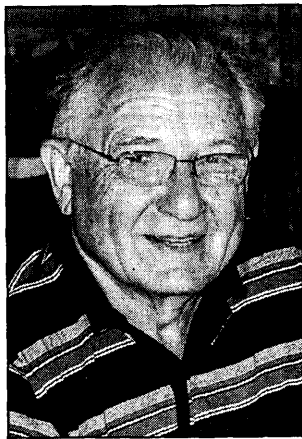

In all, 440 ballots were cast for a voter turnout of about 26 percent. "I talked to (Tuscola County Clerk) Margie White-Cormier and she said, 'that looks like a barn burner'," Walsh said. "That's very good. It speaks a lot for Cass City."

Palmateer, a former Cass City police chief and retired truck driver, will take over a seat previously held by Bert Althaver, who decided to retire from the council after more than 3 decades in office.

Palmateer served as a chief of police in the village for 10 years after working for 6 years as a deputy with the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department. After leaving the Cass City chief's post, he went on to a career in truck driving, retiring 10 years ago after nearly 30 years on the job.

Palmateer indicated Thursday that he's looking forward to this new challenge in retirement.

"I'm quite charged up about this. I was glad it went the way it did," he said of the vote, adding he plans to spend the next few weeks "getting his feet wet" by meeting with and talking to veteran village officials, including Althaver, as well as by attending meetings. "It will take a little time."

Palmateer said he's most concerned about the economy and the village's struggling downtown business district. "I really want to see what I can do to help improve the city," he added.

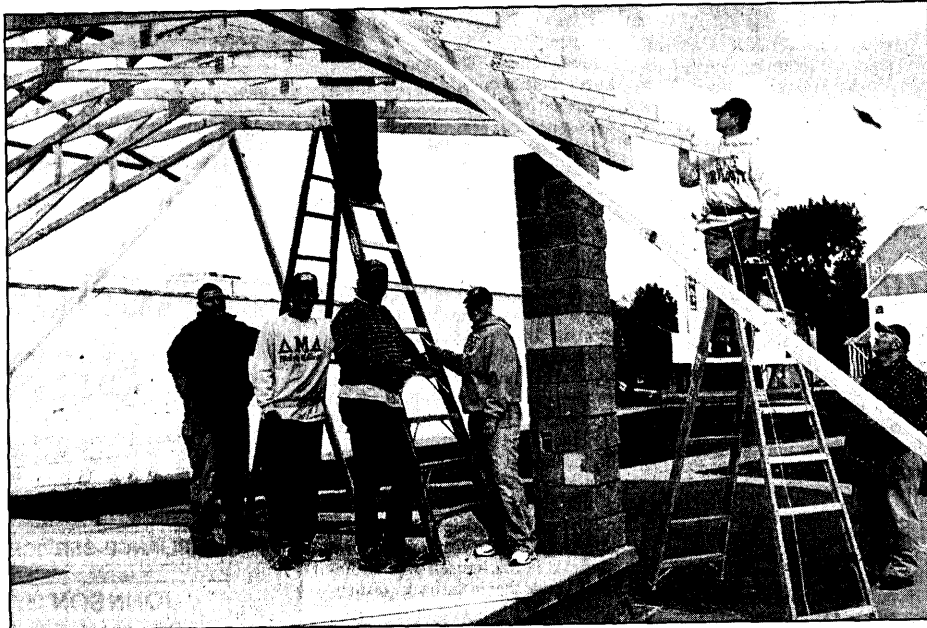

Herron, a longtime Cass City developer and businessman, declined to comment on the election results.

In addition to electing a new village president, residents filled 4 council seats last week. Running unopposed for 4-year terms were incumbents Mick Kirn (349 votes), Jenny Zawilinski (343 votes) and Jim Heiser (317 votes). Incumbent Jeff Gillig ran unopposed for a lone available 2-year term and was elected with 362 votes.

In other area villages:

Waging war on drugs TNU alive and well, commander says

A noticeable lack of publicity surrounding Thumb Narcotics Unit (TNU) cases in recent months has some Thumb area residents wondering if the multi-jurisdictional drug team still exists.

Ask Detective Lt. Mark J. Opra, however, and he'll tell you straight out: absolutely.

"We're still a viable team," Opra, who took over as TNU commander in the spring of 2006, commented Friday during an interview at the Michigan State Police post in Caro.

Opra was quick to point out a major case conducted by TNU last April, when officers, acting on a tip, attempted to contact a man in North Branch Township and observed a small amount of processed marijuana. Officers secured a search warrant and discovered inside the residence an elaborate indoor marijuana growing operation within a false room in the basement.

In the end, the drug team recovered 350 marijuana plants in various stages of growth. "The room had grow lights on tracks and the lights as well the water delivery were on timers," said Opra, who estimated the value of the crop, if it had matured and been harvested, at roughly $350,000.

And there have been several other investigations since:

*TNU officers seized 5 grams of powder cocaine, a small amount of cash and 2 firearms May 22 from a Fostoria residence. A tip earlier in the month led the team to the city of Lapeer, where officers, again acting on a tip, foiled a Lapeer resident's outdoor marijuana growing operation.

*Another investigation, July 25 in the Otter Lake area, netted a small amount of marijuana and 28 grams of suspected crack cocaine, and the suspect involved subsequently worked with TNU and FANG (Flint Area Narcotics Group) to nab her supplier, a Flint resident in possession of one ounce of cocaine.

*TNU also was actively involved in H.E.M.P. (marijuana eradication) program, seizing 13 marijuana plants in Lapeer County's Hadley Township in August and questioning a father and son, which led to the seizure of a small quantity of processed marijuana along with 2 long guns, a handgun and a small amount of cash.

Also in August, officers observed a single marijuana plant growing on the porch of a Lapeer Township residence, but that discovery led to seizure of a small amount of processed marijuana and $16,880 in cash.

*Another investigation, stemming from a tip provided by troopers from the Caro post in August, led officers to an indoor marijuana growing operation in Indianfields Township,

Cass City in black, for now

School loses 80 more pupils

by Tom Montgomery
Editor

One step forward, 2 steps back.

Financially speaking, Cass City School Supt. Ron Wilson has been riding a roller coaster when it comes to balancing the local district's books, and it's clear that ride isn't over.

After guiding Cass City Schools through some rocky waters, including some $1.6 million in cuts over the past 2 years, eliminating 2 dozen staff positions through lay-offs and attrition - most of them teachers - Wilson last week offered the latest good news-bad news report on the school's budget outlook.

The good news is that the Cass City Schools is no longer classified by the state as a deficit-spending district, which was confirmed in late August when the auditors announced a year-ending fund balance of more than $350,000 as of June 30. That announcement means school officials won't have to continue sending the state monthly budget reports reflecting measures designed to eliminate red ink.

The bad news, related to student numbers, is worse than even Wilson expected; while he projected the loss of 50 more students this school year, it now appears the district has lost a whopping 80 students, and at $7,085 per student (the amount of funding provided by the state last year), school officials are facing some $566,800 in lost revenue.

"It's been kind of an interesting ride this year, financially. It's been up and down, all around," Wilson acknowledged Thursday.

"Our February (student) count was 1,445 students. As of today, we're at 1,364 kids. I had budgeted for the loss of 51, so that's 30 more than I had budgeted for," said Wilson, who had anticipated a drop in enrollment based on a large graduating class of 127 seniors last spring, and an initial kindergarten enrollment of 80 youngsters.

In the end, the kindergarten numbers rebounded. However, he noted, "We've just lost kids every place. We've had whole families - 4, 5 kids - just pick up and they're gone."

This year's loss of students continues a trend that has seen Cass City's enrollment fall by a combined 230 pupils over the past 5 years.

Wilson said school officials have received an unusually high number of transcript requests from out-of-state schools this year, reflecting what he believes is an exodus of families in search of employment beyond Michigan's borders. Schools of Choice has also played a role, according to the superintendent, who pointed out the Cass City district's borders are contiguous with those of 11 other schools.

With the new enrollment projection, Wilson estimates the school's fund balance of $381,543 will be reduced to $168,000. And, with state funding for the coming year up in the air, that figure is likely to shrink further.

"That means that after all the blood, sweat and tears last year, we're going to end up with just over a one percent fund equity," Wilson said, adding the recommended fund balance is 5 percent of a district's budget. Cass City's budget totals around $11 million, he continued, and a one-percent fund equity is comparable to an individual earning $50,000 a year but having a "rainy day fund" of, perhaps, $500.

The loss in enrollment couldn't have come at a worse time, as the second of 2 statewide student counts to determine state funding will be conducted Wednesday, Sept. 26.

Student numbers are critical to the financial health - or lack of it - of all Michigan schools, which receive a majority of their funding in the form

Rawson Memorial Library, Cass City, will show the following Senior Citizen Movies Friday, September 21 at 1:30 p.m.

Jesse James: The Story of Jesse James remains one of America's most cherished myths...and one of its most wrong-headed. Jesse James, so the legend goes, was a Western outlaw, though in fact he never went west. America's own Robin Hood, though he robbed from the poor as well as the rich, and kept it all for himself, was a gunfighter whose victims, in reality, were almost always unarmed. Less heroic than brutal, James was in fact a product, from first to last, of the American Civil War - a Confederate partisan of expansive ambition, unbending politics and surprising cunning, who gladly helped invent his own valiant legend. A member of a vicious band of Missouri guerrillas during the war, James sought redemption afterwards. In a life steeped in prolific violence and bloodshed, he met what was perhaps the most fitting end - like so many of his own victims, James himself was an unarmed man, shot in the back. (60 minutes)

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Rabbit Tracks

(And anyone else he can get to help)

If you have 4 choices you can pick the group the meeting is designed to attract by the meal served, was the subject of a recent discussion.

The choices are men only, women only, men and women (family) and children. It was a church affair and if after reading the menu you know the answer because you attended, you are automatically disqualified.

Anyway, this is the dinner menu. A variety of chicken pot pies; mandarin, pecan, spinach salad; mini muffins, peach crisp; coffee, tea and orange delight punch. The right answer is listed on the bottom of this column of trivia.

It was one of those weeks. Trying to get an answer so that I could talk about the cost of keeping the village water supply free of arsenic, I called the village office Thursday and found that village clerk Nan Walsh was in a meeting and my call would be passed on to her.

Friday I called again and found that Walsh and village manager Peter Cristiano were taking the day off. What I was trying to determine, for use in today's "Haire Net" column, is what portion of the final construction bill was for removing the arsenic from Cass City's water. As you can see, I received the required information from Walsh too late to make the column.

It could have been more frustrating, except for one redeeming feature. I talked to a real live person instead of a machine when I called the village office.

Cass City Rotary Club and other volunteers found the site of the new band shell and park ready for them to go to work Saturday, but it was nip and tuck for the professionals who did the prep work.

Doug Laurie said that he checked the Main Street site at 11 p.m. Friday and the crew was still on the job.

A pipe at the Chronicle suffered a slight leak. That's not unusual, but what is, according to Don Howard of Howard's Heating who was called to make repairs, is that the pipe was made of lead.

First time he has ever seen one made of lead in his lengthy career, he said.

Answer to trivia quiz. The dinner was for women only and was held at Cass City Missionary Church. Did you guess it?

Tom Bardwell elected

The Michigan Association of Counties (MAC) recently welcomed a Caro resident and Tuscola County Commissioner to its 15-member governing board.

Commissioner Tom Bardwell was elected to the position at this year's annual summer conference in Grand Rapids. He will serve a 3-year term and be eligible for re-election in 2010. MAC's board is the association's decision-making body, and acts on recommendations of MAC Committees.

MAC Committees recommend policy for the association on legislative issues and develop political platforms. Bardwell has already served as the Tuscola County finance chair, co-chair of the personnel committee, secretary-treasurer of the MAC 7th District, Human Services Coordinating Council, Tuscola 2011, Economic Development, and Corrections Advisory Council. He earned his BBA from Western Michigan University and his Master of Science Degree from the University of San Francisco.

Bardwell brings an extensive background in business development and entrepreneurial start-ups. Professionally, he served 18 years as President of WORXZ LLC, an automotive consulting firm and is the current vice president of Hills and Dales General Hospital board of directors.

"I offer my experience as a planner and strategist in developing and promoting opportunities and solutions that positively impact all the parties involved. Because of my business background, I can understand the global perspective in terms of economic development while understanding the necessary details to promote positive community outcomes. I'm known for my ability to successfully balance those issues," Bardwell said.

The Michigan Association of Counties was formed in 1898 to advocate for the interests of Michigan's county governments. Over the past 100 years, MAC has evolved into a highly respected organization that offers the full spectrum of association services that distribute important public information to its members. MAC offers members educational programs, legislative representation, local workshops, legislative and summer conferences.

Crossroads management changes

The Crossroads Restaurant is under new management. Marlene (Grifka) Sossi took over ownership of the restaurant, located at the corner of M-53 and Bay City-Forestville Rd., last May.

Sossi has been away from the Ubly area for the past 25 years, having spent about 20 years in the Detroit area, working for an insurance company.

This is a new venture for Sossi, who said she loves to cook and has been cooking at home and sold her baked goods while working in Detroit.

Sossi is planning a number of upgrades at the restaurant and invites area residents to visit on Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m., and from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Fridays.

Gun threat lands mom in county jail

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies arrested a 41-year-old Millington woman last Wednesday after she allegedly threatened to take a gun to her daughter's school.

Tuscola County Undersheriff Jim Jashinske said the suspect, Kim Belbeck made the call at about 3:10 p.m. "(She) called the Millington Middle School and threatened to come to the school with the gun," he said.

"Central dispatch advised the middle school was in lock down," Jashinske said. "The middle school secretary reported the suspect called the school and was upset with the way she was treated earlier in the day by them when they refused to release her daughter to her. Earlier in the day she had shown up with an apparent injury to her head and the hair was matted due to the bleeding. She stated she bumped her head while working on her car."

Belbeck was transported to the county jail and lodged without incident, according to the undersheriff, who noted deputies found no weapons.

The Tuscola County Prosecutor's Office issued a warrant charging the woman with malicious use of a telephone. She was arraigned on the charge Thursday.

The Haire Net

Why pay for it when it's free?

I overcame an almost irresistible urge to clip out the huge front-page article in the Tuesday, Sept. 11, issue of the Bay City Times and place it in a can't miss position in the center of the kitchen table.

No, it wasn't about the terrorist attack on that date in 2001. That's etched in the public consciousness as another day of infamy. It ranks much the same as Pearl Harbor and is likely to be reviewed each year indefinitely.

What grabbed me was a comparatively minor story about bottled water, an issue in our house that is comparable to a short fuse and a firecracker.

My wife is an avid advocate of pure bottled drinking water and can't understand why I figure it ranks right up there with selling the Brooklyn Bridge.

Why pay for something that is virtually free? Not only free, but if taken from a municipal system it has passed stiffer tests than that of the bottled water industry.

That argument is inevitably greeted with disdain around our house. That's why this story in the Times is more important to me than it actually is to most folks.

Anyway, the story features Diamond Blue bottled water that is bottled from Port Austin's tap water that comes from Lake Huron.

The bottled water mania does have redeeming features. One is the economic impact that selling the water and processing it in Port Austin has on the community. Another is that substituting water for pop is without question a health boost.

The number of companies approved to process and sell bottled water is increasing rapidly. There are 66 approved sources for bottled water and 39 come from municipal sources and the remainder from private sources.

Cass City's water comes from deep wells and is required to meet rigid standards of quality. For instance, village taxpayers currently are starting to pay the bill for equipment to remove arsenic from the water.

The village had no choice but to buy the equipment, even though the wells served the community without visible health problems for at least 65 years and probably much longer.

Tests and standards that the municipal water system must meet guarantees that it is really safe.

Unless, of course, it is a topic at our dinner table.

The back forty

by Roger Pond

I guess I'll never understand the tourism industry. Several times each year I read about a city that wants to raise their hotel-motel tax so they can attract more tourists. It seems the best way to draw travelers is to charge them more money.

How can everyone attract more tourists, anyway? There are only so many out there. We're just dividing them up differently.

My favorite lesson in tourism was a trip to Vancouver, B.C. several years ago. We arrived at the motel just before dinner and asked the man at the desk about a place to eat.

"Leave your car here and walk to the end of this block, turn right and you will see a place called Earl's," he said. "They have excellent food, and you can get anything from steaks to seafood. They'll even fix you a pizza if you wish," he said with a grimace.

This fellow was right. Earl's is an excellent place with good food. When we got back to the motel we thought, "Maybe we should get some more information out of this guy."

We stopped at the desk and my wife asked about the places she wanted to see in the city. "We're going to Stanley park this evening and want to see Chinatown and Queen Elizabeth Gardens tomorrow," she said. "Can you tell us the best way to get to Chinatown?"

"Forget about Chinatown," the man said. "When you've seen one Chinatown, you've seen them all."

"Stanley Park is a beautiful park, and you'll love Queen Elizabeth Gardens, but there's nothing for you in Chinatown."

"Well," Connie said, somewhat startled. "We were also thinking of visiting the market at Lonsdale Quay. Is that worth a stop?"

"Lonsdale Quay is a nice place to go if you want to buy an orange," he said. "If you don't want to buy an orange, I can't see any reason to go there."

By this time I was turning hand-springs in the background. "Hot dog!" I thought. "We'll be out of this town and up the coast in no time."

"It sounds like we're going to have some extra time," I said. "If you were us, what would you want to do?"

"I'd take the city tour," the fellow said. "The bus picks you up right here, and you'll see much more than you could on your own. Then if there's someplace you'd like to spend more time, you can go back later."

"You'll even see Chinatown from the bus. There are no recorded incidents of a tour bus being Shanghied in Chinatown."

He was right. The city tour was an excellent introduction to the city. We even saw Gassy Jack's old digs and a pizza place where a guy tried to clean his oven with gasoline. There wasn't much left.

I'd like to go back someday, provided they haven't raised their hotel-motel tax — or that confounded GST.

"The Maroon and White"

by Lauren Hudson

Well, it's that time of year again. Those long, hot summer days are now turning into short, cool fall days and a new school year has begun. I welcome students to the new school year and the community to fall (and it's nice cool weather)!

First let me introduce myself; I am Lauren Hudson, I attend Cass City High School, I am currently a senior, and I am almost 18. Some things that interest me are: drawing, writing, music, movies and theater.

Did I say I was a senior? Well, some seniors (and the rest of the school!) might've recognized a few familiar faces as well as a new face. I talked to the "newbie".

She is Ms. Tichnell the new band director, known to the band students as "Ms. T". "It's overwhelming, but I get to see the fifth graders grow all the way to 12th graders," she said. Tichnell commented on being in charge of both the high school and middle school bands, "I get to have a long lasting relationship with my students!"

"A change...so far so good!" Mr. Cuthrell said of being up at the high school. He teaches physical education and health and is a familiar face to the student body. Teaching at the middle school for 7 years, Mr. Cuthrell is ready to teach high school. "Nice to see some familiar faces...they're mature," he commented on the student body.

Mrs. Graff is the next "newest" familiar face to the high school. She teaches English 9 and Basic English. "Coming up and seeing my students and how they've changed...how grown up they've become..." she said of the student body.

It's a little hard working at the high school but that's because she isn't used to it yet; whereas, at the middle school she had 7 years of experience in that setting.

I would like to welcome these new people to the high school and wish them luck!

"The Taste of Ink"

by Becca Troop

I have begun my senior year at Kingston High School and as I think of who I want to be, these words come to mind.

"Get off your feet and make this count..."

These lyrics, from a song by the Rocket Summer, mean exactly what they say. Make a difference in your life by stepping up and doing it yourself. Including all students in the Class of 2008, this is our last year in high school to succeed in school, make lasting memories, and to prepare ourselves for what adults might call the real world. I definitely want to make the most of it while I can and so should anyone else finishing their last year in high school.

My full name is Rebecca Troop, but all of my friends and family call me Becca. I am generally a good student at my school and in the sports category I play volleyball. I absolutely love all of my friends and close family. My closest friends and I have come up with the nickname "The Hardcore Four", mostly because of all the concerts we've gone to plus how much fun we have when we're all together, and partly because it rhymes. My family is also a big part of my life; they're always there for me even when I don't seem like the most approachable person. Each person in my life has greatly influenced the person I am today and even what I choose to write about.

Obviously, by my choice of quote, I love to listen to music. I generally like most music, but my preference lies with rock/alternative/punk. My thinking is unique in the way that I try to be myself, and not let anyone else bring me down or change my opinions. After all, I'm the one living my life so I should be making the decisions.

I have always excelled in my writing and I hope to do the same with this column. My opinion really stands out in a lot of my writings; as long as I am passionate about a topic the possibilities are endless. I intend on going to college next year to major in journalism, this column will definitely prepare me for my future plans and could put some experience under my belt. As for the subjects of my columns, they will probably come to me as I experience my life.

You never know what's going to happen in this world, and that's what makes it so interesting.

DEERING INSTRUCTS her students on the use of meter sticks to measure the football field at Owen-Gage. The lesson focused on the use of the metric system and gave Deering an opportunity to get her students outside.

A new beginning

Deering goes from X-ray tech to teacher

by Tom Montgomery
Editor

Most people would be pleased to look back on one long, satisfying career in their chosen field.

Teresa Deering has taken that idea one step further — she is enjoying 2 careers that are both rewarding and, in some ways, related.

The Cass City native spent nearly 20 years working as an X-ray technician before following her dream to walk into her own classroom and teach students about science. That second goal became a reality this fall when Owen-Gage School officials hired her to teach students in grades 7-12.

"I like being at a small school because I feel I have the opportunity to get to know the staff very well and the students," Deering said, adding she's found her fellow teachers very dedicated and the district's parents and community absolutely supportive.

"It's like a big family," she said. "I think that's very important in students getting the best education they can get."

Deering's journey from medicine to education started back after her graduation from Cass City High School in 1983, when she enrolled at Ferris State University and earned her associate's degree in radiology. From there, she took her first job at a doctor's office serving McKenzie Memorial Hospital in Sandusky. Deering later spent 2 1/2 years as an X-ray technician at Caro Community Hospital before joining the staff at Hills and Dales General Hospital in Cass City in 1988.

"I'm still on their employee list, so it was 19 years this July," said Deering, who quit her full-time position at Hills and Dales to earn her teaching degree. She is still considered a "casual" employee at Hills and Dales, which means she works occasionally when needed.

Deering, who earned a bachelor's degree in business administration at Baker College, later attended 3 years full-time at Central Michigan University through that school's Alternative Route to Certification (ARC) program, substitute teaching in the Caro and USA districts before graduating from CMU last May.

Deering confided she had wanted to teach for years, but was determined to put her family first — husband Dan and sons Andrew, 17, now a senior at Cass City High School, and Zac, 15, a freshman, also at Cass City High School. "I just had the opportunity to be able to quit my job and go to school full-time in 2004, so I took advantage of that," she said.

Deering is convinced that putting off a teaching career was the right decision.

"I'm happy that I waited," she said. "I feel like my experience and having my children, and raising them through the different stages, will make me a better teacher."

"When I went to college from high school, I didn't want to go to college for 4 years. I just wanted a job where I could make a decent income. I wanted a career where I could work with people and help them," she recalled.

But Deering also had personal reasons for becoming an X-ray technician — her brother, at age 16, was involved in a motorcycle accident years earlier and suffered a broken back and ribs as well as punctured lungs. At the time, she had a cousin who worked as an X-ray technician at St. Mary's Medical Center in Saginaw, where her brother was being treated. "So I could go down and sit with her in the radiology department, and she would show me around."

Deering also remembered her own love of science in high school, and a Cass City educator — the late Nancy Weippert — who made her learning experience memorable. "She was a good teacher, did a lot of fun things, was very inspirational," she said.

Deering has borrowed some ideas from Weippert, including taking her own class outside for a lesson on leaf collecting and identification. "It was just a lot of fun, getting out of the classroom, hands-on," she noted. "I think those are the things you remember the most."

Today, Deering is responsible for teaching 4 of her own classes. They include 7th and 8th grade science, exploratory science for grades 9-12 and an advanced biology class for primarily seniors.

In many ways, teaching and working as an X-ray technician are similar, according to Deering. As a tech, she said, you have to explain procedures to a wide variety of patients, young and old, to ease their fears and at the same time complete their procedures accurately. "You have to adjust to the needs of those people, and that's what you do in teaching," she added. "To me, I feel that's teaching. If I don't get the message to these kids, they're not going to get the proper education."

As a teacher, Deering is pleased with her experiences so far, such as the day when one student returned to her classroom and thanked her for teaching him that day, or another student who left her a note with a picture of a deer, after her last name, on it.

"There are a lot of rewarding things in a day," she said. "People appreciate you and you have the opportunity to feel you can make a difference."

When she was ready to seek a full-time teaching position, Deering personally delivered her resume to school officials throughout the Thumb, and it wasn't long before she landed a job.

Owen-Gage School Supt. Dana Compton said Deering had plenty of competition when it came to applying for a position, but her credentials as well as her life experience stood out. "In this situation, we looked at a number of people, and we scheduled interviews for a half-dozen folks," he recalled.

"Teresa — she has a great personality and is very sincere about what she's doing. Her references were very strong. She has a real commitment, and she's coming out of a background that provides the support and sort of discovery and experimentation we're looking for in our program," Compton said, adding that teaching as a second career worked in Deering's favor.

"She has some life experience that she can bring into the classroom," he added. "Those kinds of things are intangibles...that certainly lend themselves to recommending somebody for the classroom."

Deering still isn't abandoning her first job completely, but it's clear she's enjoying her new career.

"I definitely plan to keep my radiology license," said Deering, who may put that license to good use in the summers, earning cash to help with her sons' college expenses. "I worked very hard to get my radiology degree," she added, "but, yes, I plan to retire as a teacher."

Down Memory Lane

By Harmony Doerr

5 YEARS AGO

The Cass City Historical Society has created a neat montage of 30 buildings in Cass City with historical significance printed on a rustic looking 18"x24" sheet. It includes 5 Cass City school buildings, several churches and other buildings of special interest. The society missed the boat when it began marketing the sheet as wrapping paper, 3 sheet packages for $3. It's much better than that. The potential for the drawings became apparent when one of the sheets was framed and now decorates an office wall at the Chronicle. Deb Severance was responsible for the framing. She had a special interest because 2 of the line drawings, the Cass City State Bank and the Schneberger Home, were drawn by her brother, Mike Klinkman. (From Rabbit Tracks)

The Cass City Red Hawks had only a short weekend to savor their 26-6 win over Valley Lutheran Friday before it was back to the trenches to prepare for this week's invasion of undefeated Lakers, co-leader of the Greater Thumb West. If the Hawks are to spring a giant upset, there will be no room for mistakes and turnovers. Against Valley Lutheran Cass City turned the ball over 4 times, but still was able to overcome the bobbles and post the victory. It won't be that way Friday. The team will need to play errorless football and the passes of Nick Stoutenburg will have to be on the mark to give Cass City the opportunity to break the long winless streak that the perennial grid power holds over the Hawks.

Taking advantage of its home course, the Valley Lutheran Chargers rolled to an impressive victory over the Cass City Red Hawks Wednesday, 152-168. In the first match last week, the Hawks posted an easy win over Deckerville. The Chargers had a great performance by Ryan Gnatowski, meet medalist, who shot 34. Two other Valley Lutheran golfers were in the 30s. Wes Ferchan shot 37 and Randy Ferchan, 38. Rob Hirschmann shot 43. Cass City was paced by Chris Maharg with 37. Zack Bliss shot 38, Nick Swanson carded a 44 and Zac Toner, 52. Other Cass City scores: Cyndi Henn, 53; John Bennett, 49; Scott Thane, 44; Kevin Martin, 49; Evan Laurie, 63.

Elections in Elkland Township will never be the same, and Township Clerk Norma Wallace couldn't be happier. The Elkland Township Board last week voted to purchase a pair of automatic ballot counting machines, launching the township into the age of automated elections. Several neighboring townships have already purchased the machines, and the reports have been good, according to Wallace, who pointed out the technology reduces the need for an army of election workers, cuts the time needed to tabulate results and reduces the risk of counting errors. "I can hardly wait," Wallace said. "We are at the point where we had to get another machine for Precinct 2 because it's getting so large, and we didn't have the storage space for (another machine). So this is really solving a lot of problems." The township will spend $5,800 for each of 2 automatic ballot counting machines.

A pair of aces were recorded on area golf courses recently. Cass City's Faron Alexander recorded the first hole-in-one on the recently opened Ugly Golf Course. Sunday, Sept. 7, he used a 6 iron on the 160-yard number 2 hole to get in the record books. Another hole-in-one was picked up on the number 5 hole at Rolling Hills Golf Course. John Maharg picked up the ace playing in the fall 2-Man League. (From Rabbit Tracks)

Friendly Harvest Bulk Foods has been open for only a week, but already owners Yvonne Zartman and Jennifer Szubielak are convinced their decision to start the business was a good one. The Cass City area women celebrated their grand opening Sept. 9, after a whirlwind month of renovating, cleaning, painting and stocking at the store located at 6435 Main St. "We've had the most amazing response. It's been wonderful," commented Szubielak. She and Zartman met a year and a half ago when both worked at the Ben Franklin Store in Cass City. The pair describe their business not as a health food outlet, but rather a bulk food store that specializes in natural foods as well as fresh produce and baked goods, and more than 130 herbs and spices.

Donald Decker's new nickname may be "Lucky." The recount completed Wednesday, Sept. 15, showed Decker and Eugene Foote both received 444 votes in the Aug. 10 primary for the Republican nomination for Sanilac County commissioner from District 2, which consists of Greenleaf, Evergreen, Lamotte, Argyle, Austin, Minden, Delaware and Marion townships, plus part of Forester. As a result, a drawing was held in the commissioners meeting room Tuesday. Decker drew the slip of paper on which was written "nominated," so he will now face Democrat Charles Izydorek in the Nov. 2 general election.

Joyce Schwartz of Deford won first place for her entry in the professional art competition at the recent Michigan State Fair in Detroit. She was the only winner from Tuscola County in the art competition, which, according to officials, "was stiff this year with excellent entries in all of the categories."

Six is the magic number of the Ferris Wares. Ferris was Elkland Township Treasurer for six years. Then he quit and his wife, Carolyn, took over and, you guessed it, served for six years before resigning recently to leave for a new home in Indiana. (From Rabbit Tracks)

For many years Dick Erla has been the Lone Ranger in politics in Cass City as an outspoken, working Democrat. An optimist and extrovert by nature, Dick's boiling over now that he's getting help from other area residents who have adopted the party. The headquarters on Main Street will be too small before you know it, Dick bubbled characteristically after the Sunday opening attracted an estimated 200. (From Rabbit Tracks)

Bob DeLong, of Rural Route No. Three in Cass City, took the Michigan State Fair's Champion Showmanship Award in the Holstein cattle category with his animal, Valeyrest Lucky Bonnie. Bob, 18, the son of the Donald DeLongs, also exhibited at the Fair last year.

Kids Count report aired

Roughly 28,000 children in Michigan spent some time in foster care during 2004, and almost half were over the age of 11, according to the annual national Kids Count state-by-state report released today by the Annie E. Casey Foundation.

Adolescent measures such as the high school dropout rate and the teen birth rate improved in Michigan between 2000 and 2005, while economic security weakened. The state's overall ranking placed Michigan 27th among the 50 states (number one is the best ranking) based on 10 key measures of child wellbeing.

"This report emphasizes the need to enhance the capacity of the child welfare system not only to protect children but also to make sure they have strong lasting family relationships," said Jane Zehnder-Merrell, senior research associate at the Michigan League for Human Services and director of the Kids Count in Michigan project.

"The report also highlights the importance of interventions to strengthen and preserve families so that children do not get placed in foster care, but many of these efforts have been reduced or cut in the past decade," she noted.

"The most dramatic change for children in the state between 2000 and 2005 was the 36-percent increase in child poverty - triple the 12 percent increase in the nation over the same period.

"These escalating levels of child poverty in the state and the nation do not bode well for the next generation," said Zehnder-Merrell. "Michigan should begin immediately to identify policies to shield children from economic distress during their formative years."

In the area of maternal and infant health, the state infant mortality rate at 7.6 deaths per 1,000 live births earned the state its worst ranking, 34th among the 50 states. Almost 1,000 Michigan infants did not survive their first year of life. State data show the infant mortality rate for African-American infants was triple that of the state's white infants.

"Efforts to address these disparities that persist through early childhood have been hampered by inadequate funding or state budget cuts to programs," said Zehnder-Merrell.

The largest improvement for Michigan among the 10 measures was the 30 percent decline in the percent of youth, ages 15-19, who had dropped out of high school - down from 10 percent to 7 percent in 2005. National trends reflected a slightly larger decline of 36 percent.

"Economic recovery in Michigan hinges on our ability to create more high school graduates. Sustaining this improvement will have lasting impact on the young people themselves, and on the state in increased revenues at a time when they are sorely needed," said Michele Corey, director of community advocacy at Michigan's Children.

Other positive trends for the state's youth in the national Kids Count reflected declines of 15 percent in the teen birth rate and 11 percent in the percentage of "idle" teens who were neither working nor attending school. Births to female teens, ages 15-19, dropped from 40 of every 1,000 giving birth in 2000 to 34 in 2004, compared to the national rate of 41.

TOTAL SHOCKER

Bad Axe records rare win over struggling Cass City in overtime

Cass City's gridiron play-off hopes suffered a major blow Friday as host Bad Axe rallied from 2 scores down in the final 6 minutes of regulation play to eventually hand the Red Hawks a double overtime defeat.

Coach Scott Cuthrell's troops fell to 2-2 on the season as the Hatchets shocked their guests 34-28 in the Greater Thumb West thriller. After 4 straight road games to open their campaign, Cass City will attempt to return to their winning ways this Friday when Unionville-Sebewaing invades Cass City for the Hawks' home opener. The Patriots, like Cass City, will enter the contest a bit stunned as they fell 32-8 in their latest match-up against Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port, whom the Hawks defeated in week 2 of the season.

In addition to dropping its first GTW contest, Cass City lost junior quarterback Austin Babich in the closing minutes of the first half when he suffered a head injury and was unable to return. Babich's absence would come back to haunt the Hawks.

In the first overtime, both teams would record touchdowns. Bad Axe grabbed a 28-22 lead when 6-foot-5, 240-pound, Brad Iskow busted into the end zone from one yard out. The Hatchets elected to try for a 2-point conversion, but were denied as Iskow was stopped at the goal line. The senior fullback actually backed into the end zone on the extra point attempt, but the ball never crossed the goal as the Hawk defense rose up and stopped his progress only inches short.

On Cass City's initial overtime possession, Mark Koepf knotted the score at 28-28 with his second touchdown run on the night from the 3-yard line. But needing just a routine point after kick to escape with victory, the Hawks, without Babich - Cass City's point-after kick holder - attempted a 2-point conversion and came up short, forcing another overtime stanza.

Once again, the Hatchets called on Iskow in the overtime stanza and on a fourth and final play, Iskow accounted for the winning marker from one-yard out.

Still, Cass City had a chance to emerge with a win after preventing the Hatchets from padding its 34-28 advantage on their 2-point conversion attempt. But, on Cass City's second snap in the final overtime, the Hawks were flagged for an illegal block and could not recover.

As has been the case for most of the year, Cass City spotted its opponent a first quarter margin. Iskow recorded his first of 3 touchdowns at the 2:44 mark of the quarter when he bulled into pay dirt from one-yard out and, following Jason Brown's 2-point conversion, the hosts led 8-0.

Cass City drew even with the Hatchets early in the second frame on a 4-yard run by Koepf. The 62-yard, 6-play drive was highlighted by a 25-yard pass completion from Babich to Luke Newton.

Then, after forcing a Bad Axe punt,

Cass City squandered a golden scoring opportunity when Babich's punt return gave the Hawks a first and 10 on the Bad Axe 23 yard line. But 3 plays later, Koepf's fumble on the 3-yardline halted the Hawks' attempt to take its first lead.

Cass City did, however, take its first lead moments later as Josh Inbody recovered a sack in the endzone resulting in a safety that put the visitors on top 10-8.

The safety gave the Hawks an excellent opportunity to cushion its advantage following the ensuing kick. But another Cass City fumble deep into the red zone ended the scoring in the half.

Cass City opened the final half with junior Clark Walsh handling the quarterback duties. The Hawks moved 80 yards, on all running plays, removing nearly 7 minutes off the clock before Tommy Parrish scored on a 13-yard run to skate the visitors to an 16-8 margin.

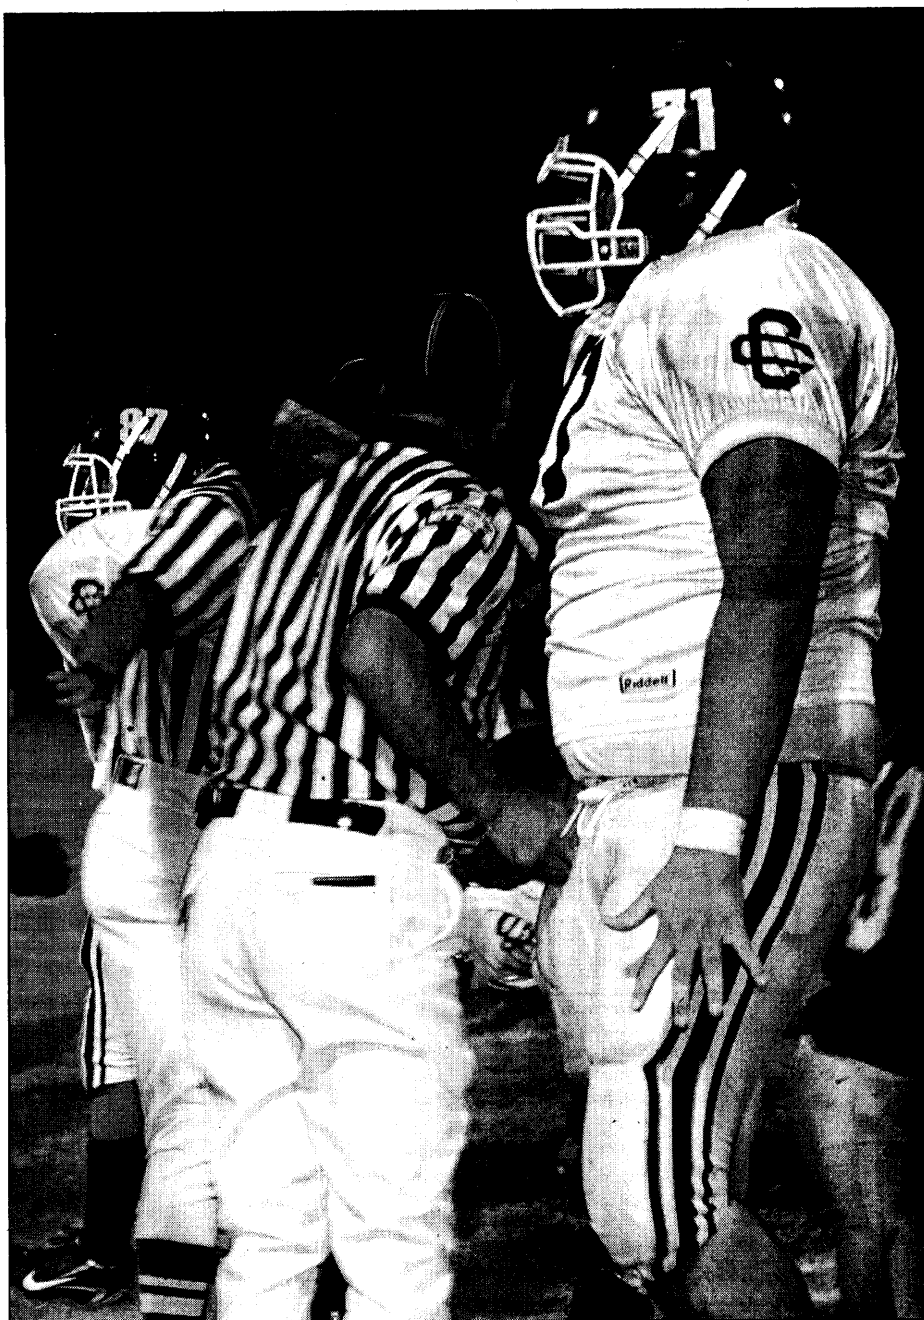

After Lyle Hutchinson recovered a Bad Axe miscue on their next series, the Hawks gained a 22-8 margin on Blake Messing's touchdown run from the one-yard line late in the third quarter and the Hawks looked to be in control.

But the Hatchets, who have won only 2 games over the last 4 years, rallied.

Brown helped moved the Hatchets to within 22-16 with just over 5 minutes remaining on the clock with his second marker from 11 yards out.

On the following kick, the Hatchets' pooch kicked the ball over Cass City's first line of defenders and pounced on the ball on the 31 yardline as Cass City made almost no attempt to field the ball.

The Hatchets needed just 4 plays to send the game into overtime as Derek Susalla scored on a 25-yard pass play.

STANDING TALL. Red Hawk defensive linemen Lyle Hutchinson, 6' 7", came up with a big fumble recovery in the final half of Friday's GTW meeting against Bad Axe. Nonetheless, Cass City bowed 34-28 in double overtime.

Bulldogs fall just short to Memphis

Fumbles played a crucial role for the Owen-Gage Bulldogs and were a determining factor in the 28-21 loss to the visiting Memphis Yellow Jackets Friday. Despite trailing by 2 touchdowns early in the second quarter, the Bulldogs bounced back and had an excellent chance to tie or win the game late in the fourth quarter.

Memphis counted the first touchdown with 1:37 left in the opening period. The drive started on the Bulldog 44. Two passes by the visitors moved the ball to the 15 from where Mike Roberts skirted his own left end for the touchdown. A run for extra points failed.

The Bulldogs fumbled twice in the second period and the Yellow Jackets recovered. The first did no damage, the second proved fatal. Memphis failed to move the ball and punted. The kick was fumbled and the Yellow Jackets recovered on the Bulldog 5-yard line. It took 4 plays for the visitors to move the 5 yards to score. Robert Siewert went into the end zone from a yard out. Siewert also ran for the extra points. With 7:02 left in the half, the Yellow Jackets were in front, 14-0.

The Bulldogs bounced back to score before the end of the half. Taking the ball on their own 48, the Bulldogs rolled to the end zone. Two big plays were the key in the drive. Quarterback Brent Reil picked up 22 yards and Nick Zaleski ran around right end for 14 yards and the touchdown. Steven Stormzand converted the first of his 3 extra point kicks and the Bulldogs trailed by just a touchdown, 14-7, at the intermission.

Another fumble recovered by Memphis set the stage for a Memphis touchdown. The Yellow Jackets recovered on the O-G 48 and a run plus a 15-yard penalty moved the ball to the 10 from where Memphis went in for the marker. The kick was good and with 10:15 left in the third quarter the Yellow Jackets were in front, 21-7.

But the Bulldogs refused to fold. Taking the ball on their own 28, O-G marched down the field to score. Key play in the drive was a 50-yard scamper by Kenny Brown. Reil plunged over for the score and the Bulldogs were within a touchdown again, 21-14, with 5:50 left in the quarter.

There was just 51 seconds left in the third quarter when Memphis scored again. The touchdown drive started on the Yellow Jacket 38. Runs of 33 and 17 yards by Siewert set the stage for a 2-yard touchdown plunge by Brent Odziana. The extra point kick was good.

Two 15-yard penalties moved the ball to the Yellow Jacket 38 setting the stage for Zaleski's touchdown run around left end. There was 11:44 minutes left in the game and the Bulldogs trailed, 28-21.

The Bulldogs had 2 more chances to tie or win the game before the final whistle. After a Yellow Jacket fumble was recovered by Reil, the Bulldogs moved to the Memphis 10 and when the drive failed a field goal narrowly missed. In the drive a Bulldog touchdown run by Zaleski was nullified by a penalty.

O-G had one more chance to tie or win with possession of the ball on the Memphis 34. The drive fizzled on the Yellow Jacket 24 and with just 2:58 left to play the Yellow Jackets ran out the clock for the victory.

Coach Cuthrell: Holly Invite is a meet of the elite

Cass City cross country coach Amy Cuthrell was all smiles Saturday after her Red Hawk cross country teams returned from the tough Holly Invitational.

"The weekend proved to be a success with every runner achieving personal best times for the season. The Holly Invitational is a meet of the elite, so to have 4 runners come home with medals makes it a worthwhile trip," Cuthrell said.

For the Hawk boys' team, Lukas Varney, Dewey Mabe and Tyler Burke all earned medals for finishing among the top 40 runners. Varney placed 8th individually with a time of 16:53, while Mabe posted a time of 17:25 (19th place) and Burke, 17:50 (35th place).

The trio, along with the efforts of Alex Varney (19:39) and Mike Potrykus (21:40), led Cass City to an 11th place team finish.

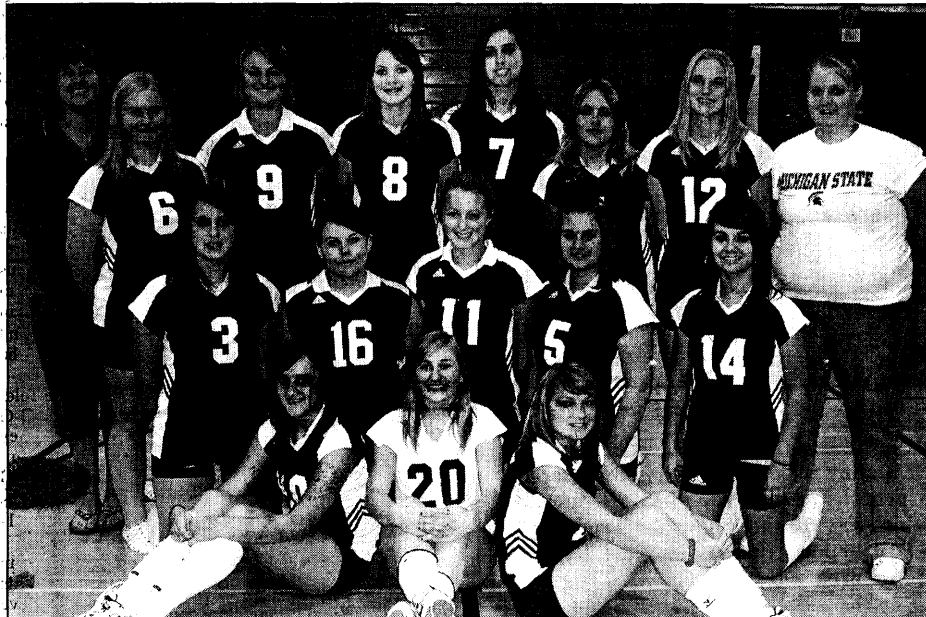

GIRLS' FIELD

Coach Cuthrell said that the Lady Hawks did not compete as a team, but individually Brittnay Loomis recorded a time of 21:30 to medal with her 24th place showing.

Lumen Christi had the days' top runners in both divisions. Hilary Snyder turned in a time of 19:01 to lead the ladies, while Josh McAlary was the overall winner with a time of 15:54.

SOLID START

Hawk spikers open GTW play with couple of road victories

Cass City got off to a solid start in the Greater Thumb West volleyball title chase with a pair of easy road victories over Bad Axe and Reese.

Coach Beth Howard's Red Hawks toppled both of their GTW foes in straight games, beginning Tuesday at Bad Axe where Cass City recorded wins of 25-16, 25-23 and 25-13 and ending Thursday at Reese with decisions of 25-23, 25-18 and 25-21.

"We started out slow in both contests," Howard said. "But we really came together against Bad Axe."

The Hatchets, a perennial power in the GTW, actually built a 10-4 advantage in game one, only to see the visitors record 10 unanswered points en route to a convincing 9 point victory.

In game 2, the Hatchets took a 19-16 advantage, but couldn't close out Cass City as the middle game ended on 2 kills at the net from junior Carly Howard. Howard recorded a team-best 16 kills on the night, but received plenty of help from senior Kristie Karr who pitched in with 7 kills, 2 blocks and 5 ace serves.

"The girls all played great ball, especially Kristie who had her best match ever," Howard said.

Defensively, Megan VanVliet added 12 digs for the Hawks, while Carly Howard and Lauren Dillon split 18 digs and Amanda Langenburg added 8.

REESE

Despite trailing 9-1 and 13-3 in game one against the Rockets, Cass City was able to keep its non-tournament record perfect with victory in 3 games.

Individually for the Hawks, Carly Howard had 12 kills, 9 digs, while Dillon added 8 kills and 7 digs, Karr, 5 kills and 3 blocks, Langenburg, 24 assists, Jennica Richards, 9 digs and Megan Zawilinski, 3 blocks.

Cass City, who has been without the services of middle hitter Sarah Howard due to a neck injury, will travel to face Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port on Thursday.

"Sarah went to the doctor last Friday. She is moving better and her injury isn't hurting like it once was. We should have her back next week," Howard said.

Schneeberger's ATHLETES of the WEEK

Cass City's Amanda Langenburg is this week's recipient of Schneeberger's Athlete of the Week honor.

The Red Hawk volleyball setter helped Cass City to a pair of Greater Thumb West wins last week over Bad Axe and Reese.

Junior Langenburg posted 35 assists and 8 digs against the Hatchets on Tuesday and followed that performance with 24 assists Thursday against Reese.

With the wins, the Red Hawks remain perfect in non-tournament play for the season.

Amanda is the daughter of Colleen and Joe Langenburg.

Commander: drug team alive, well

where TNU officers seized 13 marijuana plants, 5 long guns, 2 handguns and a small quantity of processed marijuana.

More recently, TNU along with Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies and troopers from the Caro and Lapeer posts shut down a popular "Festival of Rage" music festival in the Kingston area (see related story).

TNU was established in 1989 and serves Tuscola, Huron, Lapeer and Sanilac counties. Currently, Opra said, the team is staffed by troopers and officers from the Lapeer City Police Department.

"It's a concept team that's guided by Michigan State Police policy. Other agencies either contribute funding or personnel to it," explained Opra, who noted the team's primary funding source is a federal grant. The Michigan State Police also provide funding along with a host of resources, and a number of local government agencies contribute money as well.

Opra said TNU's low profile in recent months is due to a number of factors, including the transition of new officers and a new commander. The team is also down to 5 officers, compared to past staffing levels that reached as many as 9 officers. Opra said the state's economy has had a real impact in that area, with local police agencies simply unable to spare an officer to work with the team for 2 or 3 years.

Another reason, he explained, is that a number of cases involve suspects who agree to cooperate with the drug team by leading officers to other individuals who use/supply drugs, so publicity is avoided in order to not tip off would-be suspects in investigations that often continue for weeks or longer. That's especially true in the Thumb, he said. "It's a much tighter-knit community, I think."

Opra, whose job includes both administrative duties and serving as a member of the team in conducting search warrants and other operations, is also responsible for drumming up financial support from Thumb area townships, villages and cities. It can be a difficult job at times, he said, especially when officials don't see multiple drug investigations starting in their areas.

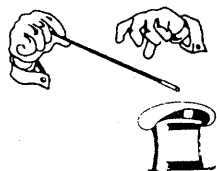

Opra pointed out that the bottom line, however, is that Flint, Saginaw, Detroit, Pontiac and Port Huron are the "source cities" for narcotics being trafficked in the Thumb, so a raid in Lapeer could involve marijuana - the drug of choice among Thumb residents these days - or cocaine planned for distribution in Tuscola County.

"That's the hardest thing to convince people of. Just because a case wasn't initiated in your community, doesn't mean we're not working in your community," he said.

"The cases are there - we're there," Opra added. "It's an issue every community should be concerned with."

Fall into Fun with 4-H at county annual fall enrollment

Fall Into Fun with 4-H during Tuscola County 4-H's annual fall enrollment. The new 4-H year has begun and clubs throughout Tuscola County are busy reorganizing and enrolling members. New clubs are forming and membership is open to any youth between the ages of 5 and 19 as of Jan. 1, 2008.

A big focus this year is creating more non-farm clubs, according to Melissa Payk, 4-H Extension educator for Michigan State University Extension - Tuscola County. "Many people think that 4-H is meant just for farm families and they're wrong," she explained, "but the possibilities in 4-H are really limited only by the imagination of our youth and leaders."

There are many types of opportunities for adult volunteers based on their interests and the amount of time they have to offer.

"Often new leaders come to us with experience in a certain project area, but sometimes they just have an interest," according to Payk. "We encourage leaders to learn right along side of the youth they're leading. It really teaches kids a valuable lesson when they see that adults are still interested in learning new things."

4-H clubs are full of young people having fun with friends and participating in new experiences. Through club activities, youth gain skills in decision-making, communications and cooperation. Clubs are led jointly by youth and adult volunteers and usually meet on a monthly basis. Planning and creating projects, going on tours, participating in fun hands-on activities, joining state or international exchanges, conducting community service projects and youth sharing their new knowledge with their friends and family are just a few of the things that happen in 4-H.

4-H offers real-life experiences in over 200 project areas and activities, all of them both fun and research based. 4-H members learn new skills and make decisions similar to those in adult life. Using those life skills, members learn how to manage their resources, work together in groups, develop critical thinking skills and communicate with others. There are opportunities for involvement at the local, state, national, and even international level.

4-H clubs also get involved in service learning activities designed to improve the circumstances in their community. Through activities like cleaning up neighborhoods or assisting with local food pantries, 4-H members learn citizenship and leadership skills.

There is an annual participation fee of $10 per child or $30 per family. Scholarships to waive the participation fee are available for those who cannot afford it.

4-H is open to all youth regardless of color, ethnic background, religion, gender, family status or disability. The Tuscola County 4-H Youth Development program is part of Michigan State University Extension. To join

4-H, find a 4-H club or for more information about local 4-H programs, contact the Tuscola County MSU Extension office at (989) 672-3870 or check out the 4-H website at www.msue.msu.edu/tuscola.

Mental illness real but very treatable

Mental illnesses are real, common and treatable. Just as influenza affects the lungs and norovirus affects the stomach, mental illnesses such as depression, schizophrenia and bipolar disorder are illnesses that affect the brain.

And just as influenza and norovirus are treatable, so too are mental illnesses through medication, therapy and peer support.

One in 5 people are affected with a mental illness at some point in their life, and Michigan alone has 1.4 million adults with various types of mental illness. Instead of receiving compassion and acceptance, people with mental illness are stigmatized by those around them every day.

September is National Recovery Month and the Michigan Association of Community Mental Health Boards (MACMHB) along with Tuscola Behavioral Health Systems encourages everyone to step up and support friends who are experiencing mental illness.

Colleges and universities nationwide are seeing rising numbers of students suffering from a mental illness and surging demand for mental health services. The prevalence of serious mental health conditions is highest among young adults, yet this group is the least likely to seek help. This is due in part to stigma associated with mental illness and the false assumption that once you have a mental illness, you are stuck with it for life.

This could not be further from the truth - for those with mental illness, recovery is indeed possible.

Peer social support networks, an important factor in recovery, have been found to be decreasing over the past 20 years. The Anxiety Disorders Association of America found that only 13 percent of students at major universities and 25 percent at liberal arts colleges are using campus mental health services.

It is imperative that friends and family understand how to help those coping with mental illness, including students and young adults, by encouraging them to seek treatment and connecting them with mental health resources.

Just as you send a "Get Well Card" and bring a bowl of chicken noodle soup to a physically ill friend, so too can you support those with mental illnesses and help eliminate stigma. Stigma associated with mental illness is often disguised as fear - fear of the unknown and fear of difference. Seek knowledge and become educated. We are all responsible for treating every person with respect and compassion, without exception.

It's time to get out there Michigan - we each have more than 1.4 million chances to be the first stop on a road to recovery and by being a friend to someone dealing with mental illness.

For more information regarding mental health or if you would like to arrange a speaker for your organization regarding mental health please call Susan Rickwalt-Holder at Tuscola Behavioral Health Systems at (989) 673-6191 or 1-800-462-6814.

of a state foundation allowance, a funding amount that is applied to the number of students in each district. A school's enrollment is determined by "blending" 2 separate counts; one conducted in September and the other during the previous February. The formula places a heavy emphasis on the fall tally, which is worth 75 percent of a district's blended total enrollment.

While school officials now have an idea of how many students they can count on over the next year, they can't say the same for how much the state will be providing in funding, although schools across the state established their new budgets by the first of July.

The signals coming out of Lansing continue to be mixed, according to Wilson, who said the House 2 weeks ago passed a funding proposal that would give schools an extra $250 per student. However, he added, even if the Senate and governor were to concur, "It's really just window dressing because the state doesn't have the kind of money to give that kind of increase."

"It's not a Cass City problem, it really isn't. It has to do with how schools are funded," Wilson continued, adding legislators have failed to fix the problem, which is now many times worse thanks to the state's poor economy.

Which has Wilson looking to the future and maintenance/repair needs in the Cass City district without having to further strain the school's general fund. Towards that end, Wilson has asked the board of education to approve a bond proposal to be placed before voters next spring.

The proposal would extend an existing millage used to pay off construction of the new middle school, now 9 years old, by about 12 years in order to raise roughly $7 million over that period of time for capital/facility improvements such as roof repair/replacement and purchasing busses. Currently, the district is levying 3.25 mills to pay off the existing debt.

In the meantime, Wilson said the district will keep meeting its financial challenges thanks to the support of the school board, staff and community.

"I'm optimistic," he said, "I don't think that we're going to have to make a bunch more cuts - we should be able to stay the course - but we're going to have to continue to be very frugal."

said.

In the second investigation, Opra said TNU officers, troopers from the Lapeer post and members of the Inlay City Police Department executed a search warrant Tuesday, Sept. 11, at an Inlay City home, where they found an indoor marijuana growing operation.

Officer arrested a 26-year-old male at the residence and seized a total of 74 plants in various stages of development, according to Opra, who noted each plant has a potential value of roughly $1,000.

Fire fighters in Thumb "fill boot"

Thumb area fire fighters, including members of the Elkland Township Fire Department in Cass City, recently joined together to "fill the boot" for muscular dystrophy.

Those fire departments, which include Elmwood Township-Gagetown, Kingston, Fostoria, Mayville and Richville, collected a combined $13,849.81 during the Labor Day holiday weekend.

"Fill the Boot" is one of the largest fundraising events for the Mid-Eastern Michigan Chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA).

The story of Fill the Boot began in 1954 with Butch Snyder and Jim Grigsby, 2 firemen who decided they wanted to do something for Jerry's Kids. They took their boots and headed into their community with the hope that people would fill those boots with money.

The Mid-Eastern Michigan Chapter of the MDA covers the counties of Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac Lapeer, Genesee and St. Clair. The organization provides a myriad of services, including a week-long summer camp session for children ages 16 to 21 at Lions Bear Lake Camp in Lapeer, support groups, an MDA clinic at McLaren Regional Medical Center, flu shots, and assistance in funding toward the purchase and repair of leg braces and wheelchairs.
