AMBER Alert helps rescue 2-year-old boy

Tuscola County Prosecutor Mark Reene lauded the AMBER Alert system and quick action by law enforcement authorities for the rescue of a 2-year-old Unionville boy whose father allegedly assaulted him and then fled with the child Thursday.

The incident began at about 9:25 a.m. when Sgt. Scott Jones of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department investigated a complaint involving Jason Gary Allen, 32, at a residence in Unionville.

Reene said Allen had been observed by a neighbor engaging in assaultive and threatening behavior, both inside and outside the residence, toward his 2-year-old son at about 2:30 a.m. that lasted about one hour. He said investigators found blood on bedding inside the residence and on a variety of items near a child's blanket/towel, and that preliminary tests for human blood were positive in an unattached garage at the residence.

"Evidence of the use of chlorine bleach was found both inside the residence and in the driveway at a location between the residence and garage — chlorine bleach is commonly used by defendants/suspects to destroy biological evidence," noted Reene, who said Allen failed to report to work Thursday.

Based on additional evidence gathered at the residence in Unionville, Reene authorized a 3-count felony warrant charging Allen with arson — preparation to burn property valued at $20,000 or more (punishable by up to 10 years in prison), attempted arson — dwelling house (carries a maximum penalty of 5 years in prison, and malicious destruction of property valued at $1,000 or more but less than $20,000 (punishable by up to 5 years in prison).

"At approximately 3:30 p.m. on Aug. 2, an AMBER Alert was issued in an attempt to immediately locate and ensure the safety of the defendant's 2-year-old son. Descriptions of the defendant, 2-year-old son and vehicle driven were all provided," Reene said. "After this time the investigation continued at the residence in Unionville with additional investigation of the crime scene completed by the Michigan State Police Department's Crime Lab and the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department."

Hours later, at about 11 p.m., officers with the Dewitt Township Police Department located the suspect's vehicle at a motel. "Officers of that department were assisted by officers from the Bath Township Police Department and Clinton County Sheriff's Department in apprehending the suspect and taking the child into protective custody," Reene said. "The 2-year-old boy was transported to a local hospital for evaluation of observable injuries."

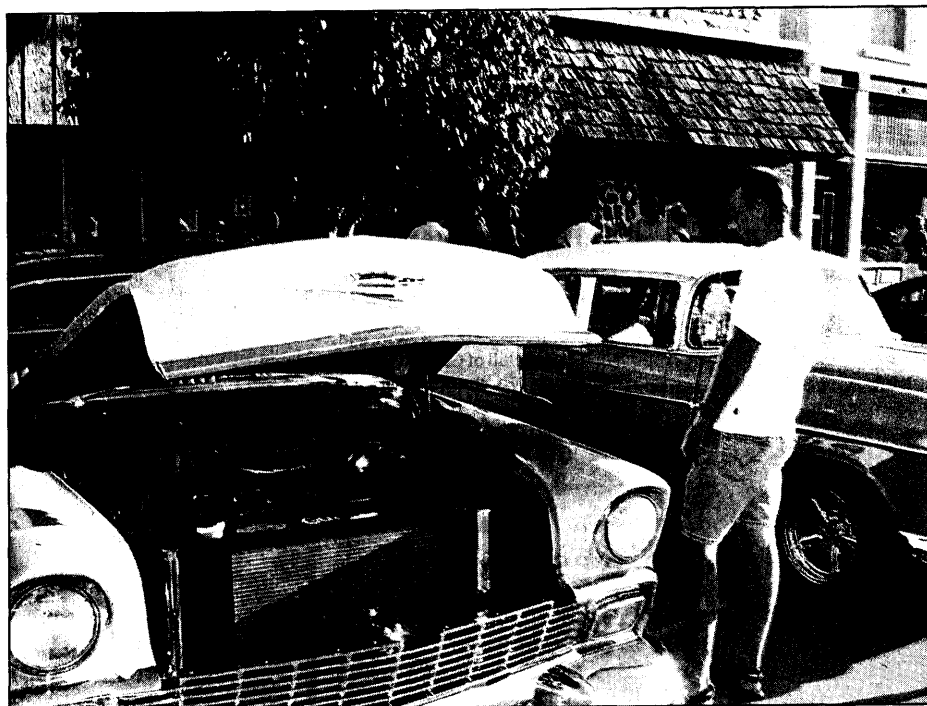

Reene commended Sgt. Jones, Detective Glen Skrent and Detective Patrick Woidan, all of the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department, along with officers Steve Murphy and Don Rochford and Sgt. Travis Rawson of the Dewitt Township Police Department for what he described as their "exemplary work on this case."

"The AMBER Alert worked in the exact manner for which it was designed," he added. "Through extraordinary law enforcement coordination and effort, a 2-year-old child was located and returned to safety." Allen was scheduled for arraignment in Tuscola County District Court Friday.

The AMBER Alert system was established in 1996 when Dallas-Fort Worth broadcasters teamed with local police to develop an early warning system to help find abducted children. AMBER stands for America's Missing: Broadcast Emergency Response and was created as a legacy to 9-year-old Amber Hagerman, who was kidnapped while riding her bicycle in Arlington, Texas, and then brutally murdered. Other states and communities soon set up their own AMBER plans as the idea was adopted across the nation.

Once law enforcement has determined that a child has been abducted, police notify broadcasters and state transportation officials. AMBER Alerts interrupt regular programming and are broadcast on radio and television and on highway signs. AMBER Alerts can also be issued on lottery tickets, to wireless devices such as mobile phones, and over the Internet. Through the coordination of local, state and regional plans, the Department of Justice is working towards the creation of a seamless national network.

Classic car show big hit

Traffic was rerouted down Seeger Street to accommodate the 200 classic cars that lined both sides of Main Street Friday evening.

During Summer Mania, from 6 to 8 p.m., The Curtis Chrysler Car show displayed cars dating back to the early 1900s, all different makes, styles and colors.

The Saginaw based country music station, 98 FM KCQ, reported on the airwaves live from the car show.

Gene Hoban, 60, of Caro and a retired General Motors employee, said he grew up with gas in his veins. Hoban said he was impressed by the large selection of cars.

"This is one of the better shows," he said. "I've been to the last several and this has been a great turn out."

His favorite car displayed in the show was a red 1959 Chevrolet. "My first car was a '59," he said. "It's kind of like your first love — you always remember it."

In Cass City Rotary Park, people of all ages were wandering the grounds, which were packed with activities for many different interests.

The Cass City Farmers' Market was open for the first time ever, selling vegetables, pop and candy, flowers and honey from 5 different vendors.

Kate VanAuken of Cass City and her husband Joe skimmed through the selection of fruits and vegetables at one produce stand that sold everything from blueberries to squash.

"To buy local like this — it's wonderful," VanAuken said. "We tried to grow potatoes and it was a nightmare. We'll let someone else grow 'em and we'll buy them."

The farmers' market coordinator, Richard Little said business was slower than he had initially hoped, but he hopes for a greater turnout for next week's market, when the vendors will be in Cass City Rotary Park from 4 to 7 p.m.

"It's not the kind of crowd that will buy vegetables if they're going to go look at cars," Little explained. "I think it could have been better and if we don't promote it, we're going to lose it."

Vendors sold food for the immediate appetite from midday until the late hours of the night.

To election process

Law changes add consistency

by Caitlin M. Foyt
Staff Writer

Renewed state election laws will effect the Cass City Village election for the first time since they were implemented in 2005.

The minor changes were made to create consistency in the election process by synchronizing voting dates to specified times in May, August, September and November to make it easier for voters to recognize an election period.

"Elections were all over the map. The state decided that elections could be held only 4 times a year, no matter what you are," said Village President

Bert Althaver.

A formalization of what has been done during past elections, the Election Commission is one part of the newly implemented election laws.

The duties of the commission are to review the ballot, appoint election inspectors and ensure that election

Enderle missionary work shares gospel in Turkey

Editor's note: The following story was submitted by Cass City area resident Laura Enderle, who recently described her experiences as a missionary in Sierra Leone, Africa, after attending the Antioch Christian Training School in Naches, Washington.

In this final installment, Enderle talks about her next adventure — a 3-week mission in Turkey with 2 of her fellow missionaries.

Enderle, 21, the daughter of Arlene Jamieson of Cass City and Frank Enderle of Bay City, is a 2004 graduate of Owen-Gage High School and a 2007 graduate of Delta College, where she earned an associates degree in journalism and international studies.

What happens when 3 American Christian missionaries in their 20s enter a 99.8-percent Muslim country where the words "Christian" and "missionary" are not even allowed to be spoken?

Where fear may have caused hesitation in some, Brad, 25 from Ohio, Adina, 23 of Chicago, and I prayer-fully pressed on to see what the Lord had in store for us in Turkey.

While the rest of our team from the discipleship training school in Washington looked forward to their homeland after our stay in Sierra Leone together, the 3 of us strapped on our packs and continued east for another 3-week mission.

After a shift from 16 people down to 3, our unity amongst each other grew to new depths and our dependency on the Lord became ever more central.

The words "Christian" and "missionary" are not allowed to be used when talking to Turks because they immediately associate it with the CIA and consider us the worst people that could influence their culture.

Another reason we did not want to speak the "C" and "M" words was because Turks assumed that all Americans are Christian; and the majority of Turks only know the Hollywood version of Americans. This obviously paints a completely false picture of true Christianity.

Therefore it was essential to build relationships before being able to share the Gospel. Since Turkey is a super relational culture this was less difficult than it would appear and the Lord gave us some clear divine appointments during our travels.

We were able to share with 2 waiters in Istanbul who were very curious about the truth since they had never had any actual interaction with Christians. They were full of questions and open to conversation, but still reluctant to accept Jesus as God.

In Cappadocia (inland Turkey) we took an all-day tour to an underground city where some of the first Christians hid from the Hittites and Arabians. It was remarkable to get a glimpse of how people survived in hiding without possibly ever seeing daylight. Over the years the city was dug out to be 8 levels deep with about 2,500 inhabitants. After our visit to the underground city we were privileged to witness some of the first cave churches and even a monastery carved out of volcanic rock.

On this tour I had an opportunity to share with a fellow American traveler

Health project

Health officials have joined forces for a second year to assist residents of Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties to improve their health.

The project partners include the health departments and MSU extension services in all 3 counties, Hills and Dales General Hospital, Scheurer Hospital, Harbor Beach Hospital, Deckerville Hospital and Huron Medical Center.

The project is being funded by a federal Rural Health Care Grant. The Thumb Area Nutrition and Physical Activity Campaign is the result of a community health assessment conducted by the Thumb Rural Health Network. Results indicated that obesity is the major factor related to death rates from heart disease, diabetes and other chronic diseases.

The Thumb Steps Up Task Force has developed a community-wide campaign that goes beyond health education. Interventions include community outreach and health promotion. All 3 counties are offering assistance in getting walking groups established in various communities.

Organizers are also offering tools to get residents started, such as exercise bands, water bottles, pedometers and tracking logs.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Rabbit Tracks

by John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

A couple of weeks ago I talked briefly about the Mackinac Bridge that was celebrating its 50th year. The note was of special interest to Carl Palmateer, Cass City native. He said that he had a part in the construction.

He drove trucks with giant building blocks that were unloaded in place at the bridge. We took 2 trips a day, he recalled. The first was much quicker than the other because the slow trip required taking the ferry before unloading on site.

Probably the majority of state residents know that there are 2 ways to spell the city and the famous island at the straits dividing the upper and lower peninsulas. Quick now, is it Mackinac Island and the city of Mackinaw, or is it Mackinaw Island and the city of Mackinac?

What makes it difficult is that no matter how you spell it, it's pronounced the same (Mackinaw) and only when writing is it important to know which is which. For the record, it's Mackinac Island and the city of Mackinaw.

Of course, you can always look it up to make sure. I did.

In Cass City there seldom is a Main Street parking problem, yet there are lots of cars that park on the main stem and adjoining roads routinely. I thought about that during the construction on Main Street and the activities during Summer Mania that prohibited parking on Main Street.

The parking areas in the downtown alleys were full and some cars were forced to park an unheard of block and a half from the downtown business district.

Most folks figured it was worth the walk.

I didn't trek home on I-75 Sunday, but I did cross the highway at about 5:30 p.m., ordinarily a peak traffic time at this location (M-84) in southwest Bay City. The traffic heading south was brisk, but was flowing smoothly.

You can't help but think that 3 bucks a gallon gasoline has had an effect.

Caro village official faces sentencing on embezzlement charges

A Caro Village official faces sentencing on 11 counts of embezzlement of more than $50 by a public official following her decision to plead guilty last week in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

Cheryl L. Daniels first appeared on the charges last Tuesday in Tuscola County District Court and waived her preliminary examination on a 50-count warrant charging her with embezzlement by a public official. A short time later, Daniels, 53, appeared in circuit court and pleaded guilty to 11 counts in 2 separate files.

Each offense carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison or a $5,000 fine.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered in the case. Bond for Daniels was continued at $28,000.

"She has agreed to pay full restitution to the village of Caro regarding all embezzled funds," said Tuscola County Prosecutor Mark Reese.

The Haire Net

Players, game real interest

Spearheaded by revered Ernie Harwell, a group is making a last minute stab at saving the former baseball stadium in Detroit. According to the newspaper report there have been pledges of $300,000 for expenses in presenting a plan for saving the stadium.

As one fan old enough to attend Tiger baseball games when the stadium was Navin Field, followed by Brigg's Stadium and then Tiger Stadium, the baseball park does not have the nostalgia effect that it generates for many.

Certainly I can recall many good times, but it was always the game and the talent of the players that were of true interest.

What was great about Tiger Stadium, for me, was my familiarity with its location, knowing where to park and the fastest way to get there. It goes without saying that property owners around the stadium are sorry to see the stadium close.

Needless to say, that last name change came before it was discovered that the name game was worth big bucks to the owner. Generic names like Tigers have no chance these days.

Now one of the most popular persons in Detroit, Ernie Harwell, is heading a last ditch drive to save at least a portion of the abandoned stadium.

The Harwell group announced that in a 24-hour period they have received commitments that will total $300,000, enough to pay the stadium's $25,000 monthly maintenance bill for a year.

They are expected to present a plan to Wall Street for the necessary funding to develop the area with a greatly reduced ball field and stands to be used by high school and college teams.

The rest of the land would be used for low-rise housing, stores and maybe a museum. None of the plan is really new and has been proposed without success in previous attempts to save the stadium.

Meanwhile, plans for demolishing the stadium are proceeding on schedule and if no concrete funding has been secured the Detroit council has refused to delay the demolition.

One suggestion for funding is to sell shares in a new corporation to the public at large, as they did for the Green Bay Packers football team.

But in Green Bay if the community didn't buy, the city lost its football team. In Detroit only the stadium goes, not the team.

The best interest of the city would be well served by taking the $300,000 that is pledged to keep the stadium open for a year and using it to raze the dope-infested vacant homes that are a continuing unsolved problem.

However, even Harwell couldn't get pledges for that.

Can you believe it? Driving 1,200 miles to shoot prairie dogs?! My brother did it last year, and I thought he was insane.

I drove the same distance to hunt with him this year, and I was right: We're both insane.

It was a fun trip. For us at least. I'm sure it was a downer for the prairie dogs.

Lots of folks will drive 1,200 miles to hunt bear or moose, but not too many do that for prairie dogs. That's a mistake, I think.

Prairie dogs offer several advantages over moose and bear. There are so many for one thing. You can shoot all day, and you don't have to eat any of them.

I know there are folks who don't like the idea of shooting prairie dogs (or anything else for that matter), but it's like a rancher's wife told us, "Those people don't have to live with them."

There are other methods of control, of course. Some years ago a woman sent me a newspaper clipping about a man in Denver who had converted a septic tank truck into a prairie dog sucker.

This fellow would drive into a prairie dog town, shove the hose down a burrow, and suck the little devils right into the tank. Then he sold them to some type of pet broker in Japan.

Can you imagine prairie dogs as pets? And can you envision the international uproar when Japan finds out where those "giant gerbils" are coming from.

Then, there was the municipality in Colorado that needed some way to get rid of their prairie dogs. They trapped as many as they could, and took them to a county that didn't have any, and turned them loose! Sharing the wealth, so to speak.

Needless to say the prairie dogs' new owners weren't too happy with that idea and put a stop to it rather quickly. I suspect these folks were looking for some stray cats they could release into the wildest part of town.

Anyone who thinks prairie dogs are not a pest hasn't been around them very long. I was with them only three days and was impressed with the damage they can do. That many rodents eat a lot of vegetation, in addition to the damage done by their burrows.

My brother and I shot at one prairie dog city for most of a day — and killed quite a number. We went back the next day and found there were just as many as the day before. It seemed that way at least.

There were mounds everywhere. A prairie dog here, another one over there, and five more over here.

Two hunters need at least three or four rifles for one of these hunts. That allows them to lay one or two in the shade to let the barrels cool while they shoot another one.

That has to be the main attraction for this sport. The biggest thrill for anyone who likes to shoot is the thought that he needs more rifles.

Mental Illness is about illness;
It's about people.

It's about medical care;
And it's about time we treated it that way;

LYNDI TRISCHLER met Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson during his visit to her school, Nova Southeastern University in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Trischler's meeting "Rock" solid

Lyndi Trischler got the chance to meet Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson last February while she was doing her job. While on duty as a campus security guard, Trischler met The Rock during his visit to Nova Southeastern University in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. where she is completing her master's degree in Social Criminal Justice and Psychology.

"I did the normal stupid fan thing," said the 23-year-old former Cass City resident. "He asked me my name and when he was leaving he called me by name. He was not like what you think a typical star would be like." As part of a program called Life 101, a "talk show-like" presentation about life experiences, The Rock made his visit on Feb. 19, answering questions posed by professors about his rise to fame. Trischler worked a detail shift during the presentation, the following meet and greet session and then stood near his car to ensure his safety while he was preparing to leave campus. Her mother, Julie Palmateer, said she was a fan of The Rock during his time as a wrestler in the World Wrestling Federation (WWF) and had read his autobiography.

"She called me to tell me that she was standing by The Rock's car. It was so funny, because she was security and she could stay there and no one else could. When he was pulling away, she started crying. She basically made a fool of herself, but it was awesome," said Palmateer. Since he became a standout in the WWF, he has held cameo and starring roles in feature films including: "The Mummy Returns" (2001), "The Scorpion King" (2002) and "Be Cool" (2005). The Rock will play a significant part in the upcoming Disney Movie "Game Plan," premiering in most theatres on Sept. 28, in which he plays an NFL quarterback living the bachelor lifestyle until he discovers that he has a 7-year-old daughter. The Rock is a 1995 graduate from the University of Florida and lives in an area that is "close by" Trischler.

The "Michigan History" magazine often comes up with bits of history that are interesting, informative and fun to read. The Michigan participation in the Spanish-American War in the May-June issue is one. Folks bitten by nostalgia and the "good old days" might come to the conclusion that they were not really that great after reading this article. Michigan sent some 6,000 soldiers to fight in Cuba and 209 died. The kicker is that of the 209 casualties, just 20 died in battle. The rest succumbed to diseases, principally tropical malaria. If this sparks your curiosity, Michigan History is available at Rawson Memorial Library. (From Rabbit Tracks)

The New Beginnings 4-H Club from Ubyly was recently recognized as the State Winner of the State 4-H Community Service Group award at the 4-H State Award Program. Representing the club were Kevin Smalley, son of Ronald and Delores Smalley; Kristen Vogel, daughter of Rick and Sandy Vogel; and Kyle Walsh, son of Rod and Marilyn Walsh, of Ubyly. "The group was given recognition because of their involvement in numerous community service activities," said Delores Smalley, the club's administrative leader. "Their club name, New Beginnings, represents what they stand for: the opportunity to provide new beginnings," she added. "Their motivation is to give back to their community since their community has given them so much."

Aaron Fernald, 31, was selected from among 33 applicants for the post of Assistant high school principal and athletic director at Cass City by the School board at a special meeting of the board Thursday. Fernald has served for a year as the Cass City boys' basketball coach while teaching at Unionville-Sebewaing Middle School. In his new job as athletic director, he will retain his coaching duties. "We talked about that in committee," Supt. Ken Micklash said. His work as athletic director will be reviewed just as all coaches and teachers are reviewed. As assistant principal his job performance will be reviewed by high school principal Jon Good.

Bigelow Hardware, a building rich in history, is once again changing hands. The Paint Store owned by Steve and Sandy Wright, located at 6544 Main Street, Cass City, is moving right across the street to Bigelow's Hardware, located at 6549 Main Street. Wright said he purchased the building about a month ago and The Paint Store will be moved as early as the first of next year. Wright maintained little will change in the outward appearance of the building with the exception of the original flooring being replaced. Bigelow Hardware, presently owned by Gerald Stilson, has been a hardware store housed in its present building since 1901, although it has changed hands over the years, said Jack Esau, local historian. "It's always been a hardware store," he said. In 1888, the Bigelow Hardware Store, at the time a wooden frame building, actually occupied the site of The Paint Store building. "Here 100 years later, they trade places again," Esau commented.

Derfny looking forward to retirement after 22-year teaching stint in Cass City

As a teen, Linda Derfny had plenty of inspiration to enter the field of education, but she decided early on that career wasn't for her.

Derfny eventually changed her mind and went on to a 22-year stint as an instructor in the Cass City School District, including the past 16 years teaching sixth grade students. Now, she's looking forward to retirement.

"My grandmother was a teacher and my mom was a teacher," recalled Derfny, who grew up in Kalamazoo. "I thought I wanted to do something different - I wasn't sure what; I was thinking something travel related or art related - but I was irresistibly drawn to it (teaching), and I loved it."

Derfny earned her bachelor's degree at Central Michigan University and, later, her master's degree in middle school teaching from Saginaw Valley State University.

She took her first job in 1975, as a third grade teacher at Campbell Elementary School. "I taught for 5 years, and after Matt was born, I stayed home for 10 years, and had Michelle," Derfny said of her children, Matt, a 1999 Cass City High School graduate who resides in Muskegon and attends Baker College, and Michelle, a 2001 Cass City grad who lives in the Kalamazoo area, where she is employed as a corrections officer at the Kalamazoo County Jail.

The timing was perfect when Derfny decided to resume her career.

"It was neat that when I wanted to go back, a third grade position had opened up, and that's what I had taught before," she recalled. "A few things had changed, but not much. Basically, third graders are third graders."

"I loved teaching the third grade - well, third grade and sixth grade - because they're so curious. They're so curious about the world and interested in everything. They're a lot of fun."

Although Derfny has considered a travel-related job, she has managed to pursue that interest and incorporate her experiences in the classroom.

She joined a group of teachers in 2002 for a trip to Belize, in Central America, and was able to study the rain forest, coral reefs and the Mayan Ruins.

Three years later, she and her daughter traveled to Costa Rica, where Michelle had been an exchange student while attending Western Michigan University in 2003. "She spoke Spanish and I had the Visa card," Derfny joked. "We traveled on buses - we traveled like the locals."

A year later Derfny was selected for an all-expense paid study trip to Germany.

She noted each adventure provided her with opportunities to share with her students a variety of social studies topics, such as Communism, cultural differences, the challenges of not speaking the language in a foreign land, and currency exchange.

Derfny's decision to leave the classroom for good was sparked, in part, by the school district's recent offer of retirement incentive packages to veteran instructors. The offer came at a time when she qualified for full retirement benefits.

"Dan's (her husband) been retired for 8 years, and so I'm ready to do other things. I'm ready for more freedom myself," she said, noting Dan, who retired from his job of teaching drafting at the Tuscola Technology Center in Caro, is now self-employed, doing contract drafting design.

"I want to travel and I want to spend more time with family and friends, and pursue hobbies that have been on the back burner - reading, gardening, oh, and stamp collecting," Derfny added.

Asked if she'll miss not going back to class this fall, Derfny paused for just a moment.

"I don't think it's going to bother me. It was so much work, so consuming. I was totally wrapped up in this," she said.

"Back when I started teaching, we had more freedom to present things in the way we chose to, but now there's more curriculum, there's way more testing, and there's more pressure. The state and federal government have gotten so much more involved," she explained.

LINDA DERFNY is looking forward to spending more time with family as well as pursuing hobbies, including gardening, following retirement from the Cass City Schools. Derfny taught for 22 years, including the past 16 at Cass City Middle School.

People are still being recovered from beneath the recently collapsed Minneapolis Bridge.

As many as 50 vehicles became trapped in the rubble or in the river after the eight-lane interstate bridge collapsed during Minneapolis' evening rush hour Wednesday. Twenty to 30 people were missing and at least 79 people were injured after the bridge collapsed and fell 60 feet, about 6 stories, into the Mississippi River.

The water below the collapsed bridge is 7 to 8 feet deep, which is just covering the roofs of dozens of cars that are in the water.

The bridge was undergoing nonstructural re-decking work when it collapsed.

President Bush pledged federal aid to rebuild the bridge on Thursday and a total of $5 million is being made available to pay for traffic flow adjustments and debris removal.

A 2001 study conducted by the Minnesota Department of Transportation suggested that the design of bridge's main truss could cause a collapse if one of two support planes were to become cracked.

Jessie Bessler, 17, of Cass City, said she drives across the Mackinac Bridge on a bi-monthly basis. She now questions the safety of her frequent bridge crossings.

"I am now terrified of driving on bridges. It seems so weird that it just fell all of a sudden," she said.

The steel arch bridge was opened in 1967. Its longest span stretches 458 feet over the river, and it was constructed with no mid-river piers to facilitate river traffic.

About 100,000 cars a day travel over the bridge, according to the Minnesota Department of Transportation.

Bessler works at the Coach Light Pharmacy.

CNN News, The Detroit News and The Detroit Free Press contributed to this report.

Election laws

Laws and local village procedures are followed.

Delegates for the Election Commission were approved at the village meeting June 26.

A unanimous vote appointed Village Manager Peter Cristiano, Village Clerk-Treasurer Nanette Walsh and Althaver to the Election Commission.

In the past, one person, usually the Village Clerk, was responsible for the duties of the Election Commission. Walsh trusts that the extra help will ensure a smooth running of the election.

"There are additional people that will be overseeing the process, which will only help," Walsh said.

Generally, though, voters won't notice any substantial changes when they go to the polls on Tuesday, September 11. "Our situation isn't any different except the date and maybe some minor rules," Walsh said.

Voters will utilize machines to cast their ballots, in which they will be instructed to mark where appropriate and then feed the card into the machine, where it will be verified and counted.

There won't be a primary election, either. Village elections are non-partisan and therefore will not include primaries to limit voting options for the general election. Because just 2 individuals are campaigning for the Village President position and there will not be a race for any of the 4 available council trustee seats, September's election will not be concerned with an overflow of candidates.

Participants in the election will be going to the Village Municipal building to cast their ballots, instead of the VFW hall, where all other elections take place.

The election will be the first voters have seen since March of 2004.

Althaver has served his term as Cass City Village President for 3 years and six months, a position that is traditionally carried out for a maximum of 2 years.

The state's attempt to gain consistency in the voting process and a charter prohibiting the shortening of a village board member's term as a result of a change in the law extended the president's duration on the council.

As a result of the elimination of the March voting period, the council was faced with 2 options to renew the voting cycle. They could either hold an election simultaneously with the federal election in November, which takes place during even numbered years, or they could vie for a September election, which would take place exclusively during odd numbered years.

"We talked about it and we basically decided to go with September because we thought we would get lost in the Federal election," Althaver said.

There are currently 1,636 registered voters in the Village of Cass City. Last November, 59 percent of the area's voters participated, which was a drastic increase from previous years.

Althaver expects a similar intensity of participation in this year's election due to the competition between village president candidates Carl Palmateer and Tom Herron, who are both lifelong Cass City residents.

"In the past when there has been no competition for a seat, the numbers have been very low. Probably less than 100, or right around 100 voters participate," Althaver said.

Althaver opted not to seek reelection after serving on the council for more than 40 years.

Incumbents to the available council trustee seats include: Jenny Zawilinski, Jim Heiser and Mick Kim for 4 year terms and Jeff Gillig who is seeking the single 2 year term seat.

The remaining council members, trustees Don Richards and Dwight Thabet, are completing 4-year terms that will expire in 2009.

To participate in the election, individuals must be registered voters with legal residence in the Village of Cass City.

Letter to the Editor

Enough is enough

Editor

First off, the House Commerce Committee is wrong in promoting such a bill. I would like to know what hospitals, government offices, banks, restaurants, etc., allows smoking in Michigan? We do a good job of policing our own establishments. You have seen this yourselves: people outside smoking, even in the dead of winter, conscious of their smoking habits, even their employees. It is their choice. Of the 31 states that have at least some kind of restrictions, doesn't that include Michigan?

Second, I challenge the state annual health costs attributed to smoking at $2.5 billion. Whoever came up with that figure? Let them break it down to how much care was attributed to bar smoking and smoking in general, of the one in 4 adults.

How many more rights are we going to lose by those people in the shadows?

Enough is enough!

Enderle travels to Turkey

about my faith after he asked what made the 3 of us such dedicated Christians. I told him about my former view of God who was like a policeman in the sky, ready to judge everything I did wrong. I tried in my own strength to be a Christian, but continuously failed because I was consumed in sin and could not repent.

Then I began to understand God's true character: one that is slow to anger, abounding in love, patient, and ready to forgive. I explained that when we recognize our sin and turn from it, the Lord promises that times of refreshment will come. God wants to take all our burdens from us and care for us, but human nature tells us to care for ourselves.

I told this Oregonian on the tour that after I recognized the true essence of Christ it was easy to surrender to Him. My actions follow out of that love relationship with the Lord. It is just like a normal human relationship. When spouses truly love each other they want to serve and care intimately for one another, it is the desire of their hearts.

Another opportunity to share the gospel presented itself with our young peer tour guide through the ancient ruins of Ephesus. She surprisingly never heard the gospel and knew very little Christian history for that matter.

We had a full day of learning about the rich history of Ephesus; an early harbor city for trade and a culture center that thrived for centuries. Even the streets were marble and the people had a running water system.

This ancient culture had a pagan practice of worshipping women, specifically the goddess of nature, Diana (Artemis in Greek). The temple of Artemis was one of the 7 ancient wonders of the world that included 127 columns, 36 of them being solid gold. Only one marble column remains standing in its original place and the statue of Artemis can be seen in the museum of Ephesus along with several other statues of famous governors, doctors, warriors and more.

When the tour was finished we told Falya, our tour guide, about the book of Ephesians in the Bible and shared the good news of having Jesus Christ as our savior. She was very interested in what we had to say, possibly only for the purpose of her profession, but none-the-less the message was given.

We do not know if any of the people we shared the gospel with accepted Jesus as their savior, but that is not for us to worry about. The Lord does the work, we are just responsible to deliver the message.

One day we rented scooters from a well-educated Muslim and for more than an hour we discussed the simicluded barbecue pork on a bun, brats with kraut, cheeseburgers and hamburgers, hot dogs and coney dogs, and cheesy nachos.

Free treats- snow cones, cotton candy and Popsicles were very popular to the crowds as over 1,200 snow cone cups were used throughout the day.

Kids were drawn to 5 large inflatable play places that served as slides, moon bounces, obstacle courses, battle fields and race tracks.

Maggie Bolt, owner of Fancy Face Face Painting arrived at 3 p.m. and after 4 hours of long lines, put up her closed sign at 7 p.m.

"We're supposed to be done at 8, but we don't want people to get in line and not be able to have their faces done," she said.

Her most popular face paintings among the children were "Spiderman faces" for boys and butterfly designs for girls.

Other attractions for the kids included a bubble station, where kids soaped up wands to make hundreds of oversized bubbles, and a craft center where kids were able to express themselves and then take their projects home afterward.

Earlier in the day, garage sales, sidewalk sales, a book sale at Rawson Memorial Library and a bake sale sponsored by Hills and Dales General Hospital kept the community busy.

larities and differences between Islam and Christianity over tea.

The Bible and The Holy Qur'an share some of the same historic books such as the Torah (books of the Law, the first 5 books of the Bible), Psalms (book of wisdom), and the Gospels (books explaining Jesus' life on earth). Also both religions acknowledge some of the same biblically historic men such as Adam, Abraham, Moses, David and even Jesus.

The main separation between the 2 religions is when Christians accept Jesus as God and do not acknowledge Muhammad as the final prophet. Also, Islam is a religion that earns their salvation according to their works through the 5 pillars of Islam, while Christians have the sacrificial gift of Jesus Christ to restore their fellowship with God.

In contrast to the typical American point of view portrayed by the mass media, Muslims are very peace-loving and hospitable people. They share some of the most basic concerns as you and I such as rising crime rates including terrorism and how to raise their children in a loving environment. They work hard to pay their bills and are in general especially joyful people.

In fact my 2 traveling friends and I often joked that we had VIP written on our foreheads because we were treated so exceptionally well by nearly everyone we encountered. It was hard to go anywhere without making a new friend. Their kindness was genuine without expecting anything in return.

One profound lesson I learned in Turkey that was articulated by the long-term missionaries we stayed with in Antalya, is about unity. As a new evangelist, I naively felt like I needed to defend Christianity or support the church, but when people clearly have unlike beliefs, this automatically causes separation.

To get beyond the differences it is important to start a relationship on common ground. For example again, Islam does not believe Jesus is God, but they do believe in a god, Allah, that is all-powerful who created heaven and earth. Build the foundation on all the great loving qualities of God because that is always something you can come back to.

I recognized that although most people value peace and unity, these virtues can easily be overlooked while searching for the truth and trying to determine what is right and wrong, especially in faith-based issues.

Also, I learned a huge lesson in relationships while abroad. In America, a society where time is money, it is easy for us to stray from what is most important. We simply do not take time to truly nourish the relationships around us.

I wish I could go back and really pay closer attention to all the things Turks did for us to make our stay practically hassle-free and so enjoyable. Because of them I better understand the value of slowing down to take time for people and really applying love to my everyday encounters.

So while Turkey is clearly a country rich in history and formed by its culture, again it was the people that made our stay most memorable by far.

Thank you for your listening hearts and because of your continuous prayers and support, this "C" "M" is home safe again. If you have further questions or comments you can contact me at lauralouise85@hotmail.com.
