Benefit set Sunday for local resident awaiting transplant

by Ryan Walker Freelance Writer

What's better than a heaping plate of spaghetti on a Sunday afternoon in the fall? How about the warm feeling you get from helping a local family whose patriarch is battling health issues?

Area residents will have the opportunity to enjoy both this weekend when organizers host the Tom Burns Benefit Dinner, Sunday, starting at 11 a.m. in the Cass City Junior-Senior High School cafeteria.

The event, planned by the Tom Burns Benefit Committee and cosponsored by Thrivent Financial for the liver from functioning properly.

p.m. The cost is $6 for adults and $3 for kids ages 5 to 12 years (children under 5 years are free).

In addition to dinner, the day will include a 50/50 raffle, bake sale and a silent auction.

Proceeds from the dinner and other fundraising activities will go to help Cass City area resident Tom Burns, who is awaiting a liver transplant.

Burns' battle began in March 2011 when he was diagnosed with cirrhosis of the liver. Cirrhosis is a disease in which healthy liver tissue is replaced with scar tissue. Over a period of time, the process prevents Lutherans, will continue through 3 Advanced forms of cirrhosis are lifethreatening if not addressed, and one way to deal with the disease is a liver transplant.

At the time of Burns' initial diagnosis, his Model for End-Stage Disease (MELD) score was 14. The MELD score is a system to assess the liver's function and determines when a transplant is required. The higher the MELD score, the more immediate the need for a transplant.

There are four MELD score stages; the lowest level is less than or equal to 10, followed by 11-18 and 19-24, then the highest range — 25 or higher — which indicates a more immediate need for a transplant.

The MELD score is configured based on three measurements, including bilirubin, which measures how effectively the liver excretes bile. The INR (prothrombin time) measures the liver's ability to make blood clotting factors, and the final factor is creatine, which indicates how well the kidneys are function-

Burns' MELD score reached 19 while he was at St. Mary's Medical Center in Saginaw early last month. Within a week, the score had soared to 40, which prompted doctors to transfer him to Henry Ford Hospital near Detroit. He has since been transferred to the Cleveland Clinic in Cleveland. Ohio, where he is awaiting a transplant.

Anyone interested in donating to or helping out during the upcoming benefit is encouraged to contact Nick Moyer at (517) 990-4966.

Volunteers always welcome at community Thanksgiving meal

Steve and Barbara Lutzky agreed. "As our families grew smaller and get-togethers became more limited, we first attended the Thanksgiving Community Dinner about 6 years ago. The next year we decided to sign up to help prepare, set up and be servers at the dinner," said Barbara

'Since we were fairly new to the area, we found it a good way to meet new people and enjoy a great meal at the same time," she added. "It's very heartwarming to see so many people come together at a time when many would have spent the day alone. We encourage those who may be newcomers to come this year and enjoy the fellowship of their new neigh-

Rotary working to brighten holidays for local youngsters

by Tom Montgomery

Thanksgiving is still just about a week away, but it isn't too soon to start thinking about ways to help ensure a merry Christmas for Cass City area youngsters whose families are struggling financially this year.

Towards that end, members of the Cass City Rotary Club are gearing up for their annual Christmas for Kids campaign, an effort focused on collecting toys, clothing, books and other items to be distributed to kids living in the Cass City School District.

As always, Curtis Chrysler Dodge Jeep Ram, 6617 Main St., Cass City, will serve as the Christmas for Kids campaign headquarters, according to Pat Curtis, who serves on the Christmas for Kids Committee along with other members of the Cass City Rotary Club.

Although the club will designate a few locations in town to collect donations, the dealership will be the primary drop-off center for toys and clothing as well as cash contributions, which are used to purchase items needed to ensure all the families on the club's list are served. Donations may be taken to the local dealership during regular business hours; Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Curtis figures this year's need is similar to that seen in recent years. It's a need the local Rotary Club has managed to meet annually with the help of the community.

Hospital, emergency crews prepare for the worst in mock disaster drill

by Tom Montgomery

Preparing for the worst was on the minds of Hills and Dales General Hospital employees last week as they worked with several agencies and volunteers to execute a disaster drill in the Cass City community.

The hospital's "Weapons of Mass Destruction Drill", designed to improve activation of a local disaster plan and associated emergency codes, was launched last Wednesday at 9:02 a.m.

In partnership with the Cass City High School Drama Club, Cass City Police Department, MMR Ambulance personnel, Elkland Township Fire Department and Tuscola County Emergency Management, the exercise involved simulation of a chemical weapons attack and the scenario that would follow.

"Performing this drill allows us to practice for activation of an incident command center at the hospital, setting up a decontamination tent to receive victims in the hospital's ambulance bay, practicing donning and doffing appropriate personal protective equipment, testing the hospital's patient tracking process, (and) practicing collaboration with outside agencies like police and fire departments," explained Craig Bellew, who serves as patient safety officer at Hills and Dales General Hospital.

"It is essential for the hospital staff to be prepared for any sort of disaster," Bellew said. "We are very thankful to all of the outside agencies and school students who were willing to help us act out this sce-

The exercise began with a call from MMR officials notifying the hospital staff of a possible "chemical contamination" taking place near the village pool in Cass City Recreation Park.

The hospital staff immediately moved into action, following established protocols for such emergencies. The first "patients" were received at Hills and Dales at 9:32 a.m. and the decontamination process and triage steps began. Four "patients" were received in total. At 9:50 a.m., the "all clear" was called for both the incident site and hospital triage area, followed by a debriefing of staff, students and personnel representing outside agencies.

"The Hills & Dales General Hospital Safety Committee will meet to discuss how the drill went and what changes, if any, need to be made in the process and policies for a disaster," Bellew noted Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Diabetes stats not very sweet

We hate to be a spoil sport at this time of the month, when area residents are starting to think about those mouth watering Thanksgiving feasts just over a week

However, we want to take just a moment to help the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan (NKFM) spread the word about diabetes education and awareness.

November is National Diabetes Month, and officials with the NKFM along with the National Diabetes Education Program (NDEP) want area residents to know that diabetes is a family affair.

"Whether family means people at home, school, work, place of worship or in the community, having a support system is an important part of staying healthy," said Dr. Art Franke, NKFM senior vice president. "Proper diabetes management is critical in preventing kidney failure. By involving your family in your daily health needs, both managing and preventing diabetes can be a little bit easier."

In a nutshell, diabetes is a disease in which blood glucose (sugar) levels are above normal. Most of the food we eat is turned into glucose for our bodies to use for energy. The pancreas, an organ that lies near the stomach, makes a hormone called insulin to help glucose get into the cells of our bodies. When you have diabetes, your body either doesn't make enough insulin or can't use its own insulin as well as it should, causing sugar to build up in the blood.

There are two forms of diabetes; Type I, also known as Insulin-Dependent Diabetes Mellitus, may account for about 5 percent of all diagnosed cases, and Type II, also known as Non-Insulin-Dependent If you have kids (and who doesn't) there will be Diabetes Mellitus, which accounts for the remaining cases.

Diabetes affects nearly 26 million Americans, with an estimated 79 million people at risk for developing the disease. In Michigan alone, an estimated 10 percent of adults — roughly 758,000 people — have been diagnosed with diabetes. Another quarter-million residents are thought to have the disease but are currently undiagnosed.

Health experts say diabetes is a challenging disease that affects the entire family in many ways. For those with diabetes, and their families, it's important to work together to manage the disease in order to prevent serious health problems such as kidney failure, heart disease, stroke, blindness and nerve damage, which can lead to amputation.

That means education — understanding the symptoms as well as the risk factors of diabetes such as age, obesity, family history, physical inactivity, race/ethnicity, and prior history of gestational dia-

The good news is that when diabetes is managed properly, serious health complications can be delayed or prevented.

Five steps for a quick trip down the aisle

As chief dietary consultant and food preparation if you really, truly love ketchup. specialist in my domicile, I am responsible for the procurement of foodstuffs and other assorted provisions to ensure continuous familial sustenance within our humble abode.

In other words, I do the grocery shopping.

I've been at my post for decades, rising from the ranks of grocery greenhorn to that of food aficionado. They don't give PhDs for grocery shopping proficiency, but if they did, I'd practically have my bachelor's degree.

Years of experience have fostered finesse in the aisles – a necessity when one is attempting to traverse the narrow passageways on a Saturday afternoon. The space becomes a virtual obstacle course as responsible and competent shoppers are forced to dodge errant children, navigate around the free sample lady and make evasive maneuvers in order to steer clear of the cute newlywed couple arguing about crunchy or smooth in the peanut butter aisle.

The underlying problem stems from inexperience. Many of the cart-wielding folks loitering near the Hamburger Helper display are unfamiliar with the universal grocery aisle rules of etiquette. They are rookies intermingling with a league of professional shoppers, and they are holding things

Conquering the produce section and beyond can be a frustrating drain of one's time and energy, so in hopes of helping everyone get home a little sooner on Saturday afternoons, I have put together five basic rules to help streamline the shopping process. Those of us who have been there, done that, understand it is important to be there, do this. So, please do.

1. Become one with the cart.

Your cart is nothing more than a large metal obstruction on wheels, capable of blocking access to produce and product, causing undue irritation to any and all super shoppers in your vicinity. Think of this steel box as an appendage of you, young grasshopper. When you separate from your cart even for the briefest of moments - you double the space consumed within an aisle. Never abandon your cart, and by all means do not leave your cart on the right side of the aisle while you cross over to retrieve a box of macaroni and cheese on the left. This serves the purpose of blocking an entire aisle. Blocking the aisle is beyond a shopping faux pas – sort of like crossing over to Vader's dark side, and we all know how that little reunion turned out.

2. Fly solo.

Be brave. You do not need a second opinion about which flavor of Ramen noodles to purchase or whether your toilet paper should be mega strong or mega soft. If shopping was meant to be a team sport, there would be more than one handle on the cart. Besides, it's an undisputed fact that two people take up twice as much space in an aisle as a solo shopper and are more likely to commit the crime of aisle blockage. They also purchase significantly more product. Want to save money? Leave the family at home.

3. When you have no choice but to bring them... times when you are forced to include the little munchkins in your grocery pursuits. Whenever possible, physically restrain them. Most carts are even equipped with locking belts for this very purpose. A child who is unable to run in a zigzag pattern throughout the frozen foods section is 24 percent less likely to convince you into an unneeded ice cream purchase and 57 percent less likely to throw a temper tantrum in the candy aisle.

Don't lollygag.

Shopping is not a passive sport. Pausing, stopping, daydreaming, dawdling or lingering in the cereal aisle is frowned upon by those of us trying to get the job done. This is not the time to plan tonight's dinner or stop and wonder if you are out of pickles. Do the prep work pre-store – at home, where dawdling over a cup of coffee is not only tolerated, but sometimes even endorsed.

5. Do the parade wave.

It's pleasant to run into familiar faces in the produce section, but let's not take it to the extreme. Greet friends with a wink and a wave; catch up on family gossip with Great Aunt Tilly later at a funeral or other family gathering. This is not a brunch or happy hour. This is the grocery store. Shop now. Chitchat later. On the phone. On Facebook. At work. At a bar. Anywhere but in front of the chocolate milk, because we are out at my house and if you block my access I will be far away from my happy place.

Grocery shopping is unavoidable for those who find it necessary to eat. This includes most of the people I know. Since food is something we all need, why not enhance the acquisition experience by making it as brief as possible? Life is too short to spend it dawdling in the condiment aisle – even

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Like many of our neighbors, we find it hard to believe that another holiday season is right around the corner already.

It's easy to feel like you're always a step or two behind, always scrambling, but with a little planning, everything turns out just fine. That's the approach embraced by Cass City Chamber of Commerce officials when it comes to preparing for the annual chamber dinner, highlighted by the announcement of Cass City's Citizen of the Year.

The dinner isn't scheduled to take place until Feb. 1, but officials are asking area residents to submit their nominations for the top citizen award now. Nominations should be mailed in a sealed envelope (marked attn. Dee Mulligan) to the Cass City Chamber of Commerce office, 6506 Main St., Cass City, MI 48726. For more information, call (989) 872-4618.

The deadline is Friday, Dec. 13. But if you get right on it, you won't be scrambling later!

We are certain the Chronicle staff won't be the only ones to miss Hills and Dales Hospital spokeswoman Ashley Patrick. Patrick informed us recently that she has turned in her resignation at the local hospital after almost ten years of employment.

Patrick says it's been a pleasure working with the community over the years and that she will miss the relationships forged along the way. Her last day is Wednesday, November 27.

Back at ya, Ashley.

The 7 p.m. all-school show is titled: The REAL Story of Little Red Riding Hood.

So, how has my 2013 deer hunting been going? Basically, 3 days on stand highlighted by the arrival of a pair of new 6-pointers Sunday evening on private property located off of M-53 in Huron County.

Not much of a story, I know. Well, how about these 2 hunting tales?

First, congratulations to my friend Dave Bartnik for his good fortune. The lifelong Thumb resident took an impressive 8-point buck with one shot to the neck from 75 yards away that dropped the beast dead in his tracks late Friday afternoon. You can check out his trophy and others by turning to page 10.

Bartnik, meanwhile, had an opportunity to take what many would call the "buck of a lifetime" Friday morning when the brute relieved himself just yards in front of Dave's hunting blind, which has been located for the past 2 decades on Doerr Farms, just north of town.

However, Bartnik, who just celebrated 10 years in business as owner of Bartnik Propane, had to make an emergency gas leak run on opening morning and was unable to head to the woods.

Come to find out, that run was actually to his home, as he attended Thursday night's annual Deer Camp bash without his shotgun.

Here's a similar story my dad used to tell. This one happened years ago at the (Gerald) Prieskorn family cabin near Lucerne.

According to my dad, he was the camp cook and among the hunters was fellow Cass City businessman Wayne "Buck" Rabideau. The story goes; Buck came home from the overnight trip to northern Michigan and was upset that his wife Mary forgot to pack his favorite hunting socks.

To which she replied, "They were in your gun case."

Baker College among top "Best for Vets" schools in the country

by Tom Montgomery Editor

"You'll do better with Baker" is more than an advertisement slogan for the Flint-based college that has a satellite campus in Cass City.

According to the "Military Times", a family of newsweeklies that provides independent information to service members and their families, veterans are, in fact, likely to "do better" with Baker when it comes to furthering their education.

The Baker college system has been ranked among the nation's top 20 online/non-traditional schools in the annual "Best for Vets" college rankings by the "Military Times".

The designation includes Baker's 12 campuses and three satellite locations across Michigan, as well as Baker College Online.

"As with all of the 'Best for Vets' rankings, 'Best for Vets: Colleges' is Programs for Baker College. an editorially independent news project that evaluates the many factors that make an institution a good fit for military veterans," said Amanda Miller, editor of "Military Times EDGE".

A new emphasis was placed on academic rigor for this fourth year of rankings. Other factors taken into considering were tuition percentage covered by the G.I. Bill, availability of specific programs, service member enrollment and statistics commonly used to track student success and academic quality, such as student-faculty ratio and rates for student loan default, retention and grad-

Baker offers more than 150 career programs ranging from certificates to graduate degrees. Each campus has a veteran certifying official. The main Military and Veteran Student Service Center/lounge is located on the Flint campus in the building for the Center for Graduate Studies.

Baker College received the highest ranking for staff support dedicated to veterans issues, the amount of time spent on veterans issues and the scope and frequency of military training for teachers and administrators. The college also grants academic credits for military training as recommended by the American Council on Education (ACE).

Huron County Sheriff Kelly J. Hanson said deputies spotted the advertised gun sale on Facebook, a popular social media site, Nov. 8, and they were aware of the man's criminal record.

"Our deputies, with the assistance of the Bad Axe police and Michigan Department of Natural Resources, made arrangements for an undercover buy to take place that same day at Bad Axe Wilcox Park," Hanson said.

"Shortly after 2 p.m., the transaction took place and a Mossberg 12-gauge shotgun was purchased.

Officers arrested the suspect for possession of a firearm by a felon, and he was lodged in the Huron County Jail on a $10,000 bond. The illegal sale also resulted in the Huron County Prosecutor's Office authorizing a search warrant for a Kinde residence, where deputies seized a Remington 870 12-gauge shotgun also belonging to the

The man, Devin A. Spicer, 19, of Kinde, was identified last week after he was formally arraigned in Huron County District Court on two felony counts of possession of a firearm by a felon. He was released after posting a reduced bond of $5,000 (10 percent cash).

Hanson noted Spicer was found guilty last fall of a felony involving larceny in a building. He was also convicted for his part in a countywide breaking and entering spree in early 2012.

You have to give these atheists some credit.

After convincing many of us of their disdain for "organized religion" and touting their belief that there is no god, a growing movement involving a group of atheists is proving its point by gathering for Sunday morning services in newly-formed "churches".

These services reportedly include rousing music, an inspirational talk and some quiet reflection — even a collection — but they lack religion and ritual. And God.

In case you've been living in a cave recently, news outlets across the globe have been reporting on this story, which focused on the inaugural Sunday Assembly in Los Angeles that attracted several hundred people bound by their belief in, well, not believing.

According to published reports, the founders of this movement are a pair of prominent British comedians who are working in earnest to drum up cash and support to establish additional Sunday Assembly locations.

Editors across the nation quickly ran with the story and added a snazzy headline referring to these gatherings as atheist "mega-churches", although it seems to me that an attendance of a few hundred people — even sadly misled people — hardly amounts to a mega-church.

Is it just me, or does this whole idea of building an organization around something you don't believe in sound kind of silly? Doesn't it make more sense to invest your time and resources in things you do believe in?

I have to wonder if this movement will spark an anti-movement to keep the atheists out of our schools and away from our courthouse lawns during the holidays. Wouldn't that be ironic? And refreshing?

Well, as long as they keep their hands off of symbols that represent those beliefs on which this country was founded. I mean, if you think the value of the dollar is pathetic now, just wait until someone prints "In Ourselves We Trust" on currency. And, frankly, I have no desire to ever pledge allegiance to our flag as "...one nation, under ourselves, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Phil Zuckerman, professor of secular studies at Pitzer College in Claremont, Calif., was recently quoted in an Associated Press story on these atheist mega-churches as saying that in the United States, there's a feeling that if you're not religious, you're not patriotic. "I think a lot of secular people say, 'Hey, wait a minute. We are charitable, we are good people, we're good parents and we are just as good as citizens as you and we're going to start a church to prove it'," Zuckerman said.

Maybe so, but I wouldn't want to be any one of them come Judgment Day.

5 YEARS AGO (2008)

Earl E. Grigg celebrated his 105th birthday Sunday at the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Cass City. Born in Munger Nov. 14, 1903, he married Delia Mielens Oct. 5, 1927. She is deceased. There are 4 children, Betty Fuller of Caro and Neal Grigg of Munger. Two sons, Lyle Grigg and Eldon Grigg, are deceased. Earl is a retired farmer who enjoys cards and socializing with his family and friends.

There have been memorable twosomes over the decades in Cass City sports history. On the gridiron field, one duo was quarterback Curt Strickland connecting with end Paul Bliss en route to an undefeated football season. On the basketball court, another was guard Steve Muska feeding center Paul Ulfig as the pair led Coach Jeff Hartel's cagers to league, district and regional champions. Another Red Hawk duet that will be recalled in years to come is Lady Red Hawk standouts Carly Howard and Amanda Langenburg. Howard, who will play next at Oakland University, and Langenburg helped put Cass City volleyball on the radar with brilliant 4-year careers that included 2 district titles. The two-some highlighted a number of Red Hawk selections to the 2008 Greater Thumb West All-Conference volleyball teams.

The Owen-Gage Bulldogs fought, scrapped, clawed and battled themselves to a 49-47 win over Akron-Fairgrove to give 3rd year Coach Dean Roller his first district title at North Huron on Monday night. The victory was the Bulldogs' 4th in six days. "Like I've said all along, these girls do what they have to do to win," said a shower soaked Roller For the Bulldogs, afterwards. Andrea Mandich's 15 points were tops. She was followed by Angie Bolzman's 15 tallies, Kim Butcher was the only Viking to finish in double figures.

First hunter to check in at the Chronicle opening morning, Tuesday was Gary Bradley. He bagged his buck in the Colwood area at about 8 a.m. The 8-pointer was his second buck in 3 years.

Thumb farmers may apply for hail damage assistance

U.S. Senator Debbie Stabenow, Chairwoman of the Senate Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry Committee, last week announced disaster aid for farmers in 20 Michigan counties that suffered damage from severe hail storms this summer. Farmers will be able to apply for disaster aid in the form of emergency loans from the Farm Service Agency (FSA).

"We cannot allow Michigan farmers to be wiped out because of bad weather," said Stabenow. "This emergency declaration will help provide assistance for Michigan farmers. Agriculture supports nearly one in four jobs in Michigan and when parts of the industry are hit, it impacts our whole state's economy.'

The hail storms that led to the disaster declaration occurred earlier this year, between June 10 and Aug. 2. Farmers in the affected counties will have eight months from today's disaster designation to apply for emergency loans. The FSA will consider each application separately and take into account production losses as well as security and repayment ability.

Huron, Jackson, Saginaw and Washtenaw counties were all designated as primary disaster counties. Sixteen counties were named contiguous disaster counties and are eligible for the same aid as primary counties: Bay, Calhoun, Eaton, Genesee, Gratiot, Hillsdale, Ingham, Lenawee, Livingston, Midland, Monroe, Oakland, Sanilac, Shiawassee, Tuscola and Wayne.

Wanted: Homework Heros

Today's successful students are tomorrow's leaders, which is why Human Development Commission (HDC) officials are launching a new program designed to help youth reach their academic potential.

There are many children who need a hand, who may be struggling with just one subject in school, or who may need help taking tests or learning to be better organized. HDC's Retired & Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) is stepping up to meet those needs by introducing a program called "Homework Heros".

Members of this unique group of volunteers will be assigned to schools and paired with young people, whether they need just a little assistance or an extended period of help, depending on their progress.

"Homework Heros" may serve in a school as little as one or two hours a week, or as much as several hours daily if that is what they choose. They will serve during class, during lunch, in study rooms, and/or before or after

Program officials say it's important for volunteers to understand how critical it is for children to learn and grow academically and emotionally along with their peers to become successful adults. Towards that end, volunteers will be trained in tutoring and mentoring techniques, and will work closely with teachers to achieve specific goals for each assigned child.

Volunteers must be at least 55 years of age and successfully pass a background check. Anyone interested in participating is asked to call RSVP at 1-800-843-6394. Training is available now, and placements are waiting.

The Cass City Chamber of Commerce &

Krystal Cole, new owner of the Charmont Restaurant says, "Sounds crazy but we actually met in a bowling alley. If we only knew then what our future had in store for us. Andy has been in the food industry for over ten years. He worked for a nonprofit food rescue agency called Hidden Harvest based out of Saginaw.

I have also been in the food industry for as long as I can remember. I have worked for small diners, as well as big corporate restaurants like Outback, Applebees, and Carrabas. I love this line of work, and I am so thankful for this opportunity.

About a year ago, we came to Charmont for the first time with the idea of a possible investment. We saw its potential immediately. We decided with our children Andy II (13) and Cora (11) to take this leap of faith together as a family. We knew it would be a lot of work but it is just the type of work we love to do.

The concept was easy. Good family, good food, and good times. We called in all of our family and friends to help us clean and remodel. We are so excited to see how it has turned out. Along with Charmont's fresh new look and new menu, we have added electronic scoring for the bowling alley.

We are so thankful the community has been so welcoming. Pinktober was an awesome concept and we were happy to be part of it. Come see us this weekend for our official Grand Opening. We are offering free bowling all weekend, along with our friendly crew and yummy food."
