Board approves budget without cutting staffers

by Tom Montgomery
Editor

A promised increase of revenue from Lansing enabled the Cass City Board of Education to approve a new spending plan with a healthy fund balance and no staffing cuts Monday night.

But members of the board were still hesitant to fully staff the superintendent's office following the resignation of three key employees last month.

Monday's session focused on finances, with the deadline to approve a 2014-15 budget just a week away. The board summarily adopted the amended 2013-14 spending plan presented by Chief Financial Officer Mike Klosowski, who reported total revenues of $9.645 million and expenditures at $9.5 million, leaving a fund balance of roughly $1.04 million, or an amount equal to nearly 11 percent of the budget.

In presenting the proposed 2014-15 budget, Klosowski noted state lawmakers in the both the House and Senate have approved — and Gov. Rick Snyder is expected to sign — a state budget that will give schools an

Motorist gets year in jail in a fatal crash that claimed 4 lives

by Tom Montgomery
Editor

The 23-year-old Ubyly man charged in the 2013 traffic death of four people, including a Pigeon couple and one of their teenage sons, will serve less than a year behind bars.

The sentence handed down to Andrew R. Braun last week in Huron County District Court included 330 days in jail as well as two years probation following his convictions on four counts of committing a moving violation - causing death, and two counts of committing a moving violation - causing serious injury.

Braun previously pled no contest to all of the charges, which are classified as misdemeanors.

The fatal two-vehicle crash occurred nearly a year ago — July 27, 2013 — at the intersection of Stein and Maxwell roads in Huron County's Oliver Township.

Huron County Sheriff's Department investigators reported a 2012 GMC pickup driven by Braun collided with a 2011 Chevrolet crew cab pickup when Braun failed to yield at the stop sign at the intersection.

The crew cab pickup was occupied by six people, according to investigators, who said the group was on its way to the Huron County Fair at the time. The occupants included victims Joshua C. Heck, 40, and Jessica A. Heck, 38, their son, Taylor J. Heck, 13, all of the Pigeon area, and Brendon Smith, 13, of Caseville. Also in the vehicle was another of the Heck's sons, Jarrod R. Heck, 15, and Jacob A. Langley, 20, also of Pigeon, both of whom were injured but survived the crash.

Huron County Prosecutor Tim Rutkowski said his office had no choice but to charge Braun with misdemeanors, which carry maximum penalties of one year and 93 days in jail, respectively, because of action by the Michigan Legislature in 2012.

"A year (in jail) is the most we could ask for," he said. "The fact is, this (moving violation — causing

135th anniversary bittersweet for parishioners as closing of Tuscola County's oldest church looms

by Tom Montgomery
Editor

Dozens of faithful parishioners — present and past — gathered Sunday afternoon in Gagetown to mark the 135th anniversary of Tuscola County's oldest church — St. Agatha Catholic Church.

But it was a bittersweet celebration, coming just as St. Agatha's is being closed in conjunction with a restructuring of parishes in the Diocese of Saginaw.

The day's festivities included mass and the laying of a wreath at the gravesite of Father Clement Krebs, the first resident priest of Gagetown as well as Tuscola County.

Michigan Senator Mike Green (R-Mayville) was on hand to personally present a certificate of congratulations on behalf of himself, state Rep. Terry Brown (D-Pigeon), Lt. Gov. Brian Calley and Gov. Rick Snyder. Green also presented a Certificate of Special Congressional Recognition on behalf of District 10 Congresswoman Candice S. Miller.

For service to DHS Board

Commissioners honor Bob Hirn

by Andie Peck
Staff Writer

After serving many years as the chair of the Tuscola Department of Human Services Board, Cass City's Robert "Bob" Hirn is retiring.

To honor his years of service to the department, Tuscola County Commissioners recently drafted a resolution in Hirn's honor.

"We assemble this day to celebrate Robert Hirn's 15 years of meritorious service to the Tuscola County Medical Care community and the Tuscola County Department of Human Services as their board chairperson," the resolution states. "The leadership he provided to the staff created an environment for success and high quality."

Bob Hirn

During Hirn's tenure as chair of the Tuscola Department of Human Services Board, he worked to implement many important measures for the health of the community.

According to the resolution drafted by county commissioners, under Hirn's leadership plans were launched to move long-term care in Tuscola County into the future by planning and implementing the construction of two small houses on newly acquired property adjacent to the main building.

"Through effective financial planning under his leadership, the Medical Care Facility was able to undertake and complete a major reconstruction and addition to their building in 2005," the resolution states.

Hirn said he enjoyed his time serving as chairperson of the board and

Mosquitos, ticks pose health risks

The sun’s rays aren’t the only hazard connected with enjoying a warm sunny day outdoors; it’s also important to take precautions against mosquito and tick bites.

The Michigan Department of Community Health (MDCH) would like to remind people, especially those spending time outdoors and children at camps, to protect themselves from mosquito or tickborne diseases.

Last year, West Nile Virus was responsible for 36 illnesses and two fatalities reported in Michigan. Seasonal activity varies from year to year, but mosquitoes in Michigan can carry illnesses such as West Nile virus (WNV) and Eastern Equine Encephalitis (EEE), and ticks can carry illnesses such as Lyme disease and Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

Mosquito and tick-borne diseases can cause mild symptoms, severe infections requiring hospitalization, and even death.

Adults who are 50 and older have the highest risk of illness caused by West Nile Virus. In addition to presenting a greater risk for older people, EEE is more likely to cause illness in children 15 years of age or younger.

People in outdoor occupations such as construction and landscaping are at increased risk of getting bitten, but the mosquito that carries WNV likes to get indoors as well. You can protect yourself by remembering to:

*Avoid mosquito bites. Use insect repellent when outdoors especially from dusk to dawn. Look for EPA-labeled products containing active ingredients, such as DEET, Picaridin, or oil of lemon eucalyptus. Reapply as needed according to label directions. Use nets or fans around outdoor eating areas to keep mosquitoes away.

*Mosquito-proof homes. Fix or install window and door screens and cover or eliminate empty containers with standing water where mosquitoes can lay eggs.

*Help your community. Report dead birds to Michigan’s Emerging Diseases website (www.michigan.gov/emergingdiseases) to help track WNV and support community-based mosquito control programs.

*Vaccinate horses against West Nile virus and Eastern Equine Encephalitis virus.

Michigan is also home to a number of tick species that will bite people. Ticks are typically found in wooded or brushy areas with tall grass and leaf litter. The ticks most commonly encountered by people in Michigan include the American dog tick which can carry Rocky Mountain spotted fever, and the blacklegged tick which can spread a number of illnesses, including Lyme disease.

Lyme disease is considered to be an emerging disease due to the expansion of tick populations in Michigan’s western Upper and Lower Peninsulas and is the most common tick-borne disease reported in the state with 165 human cases reported in 2013, an increase of almost 60 percent from the previous year.

The period from June to September is of concern because of the poppy-seed sized nymphal-stage tick, which is responsible for much of the Lyme disease in the U.S. While rare, human cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever have also been documented in Michigan.

You can protect yourself by avoiding tick-infested areas. Also, use insect repellent, bathe or shower as soon as possible after coming indoors, and perform daily tick checks.

A watched pot

At our house, my husband browns the hamburger. I don’t have the patience for it. I go in with the best of intentions. I place the ground beef in the pan, turn on the heat and grab my spatula. Then I get sidetracked. With the potatoes or maybe the corn. Sorting through the mail. Answering the phone. Twiddling my thumbs. Googling the area code for Paris.

I like to consider myself the ultimate multitasker. Unfortunately that’s bad news for the hamburger.

Under my watch it lies helpless and forgotten, sizzling in the pan getting clumpier by the minute – too brown in some places and still raw in others. Unappetizing and practically inedible. My husband has no patience for that. So he browns the hamburger.

Marriage is often yin and yang. While I have no talents for watching the pot, it makes me a prime candidate for any cooking tasks that involve boiling. At those I tend to excel. My husband does the watching; I do the boiling. It’s a match made in the kitchen.

I remember the first time I failed to watch a pot. I was about 10. My mom had beef stew simmering and had an errand to run. She asked me to keep an eye on dinner, making sure our stew didn’t stew to the extreme.

It was a simple request and I was eager to prove my near-adult prowess with pot watching. I was sure I could do a swell job of it. I watched the pot for a good 30 seconds and confirmed it was indeed cooking, boiling and hot. Then I got sidetracked with a Partridge Family re-run – the one where Keith sings, “I think I love you.” That used to be my favorite song. He was pretty groovy.

But I digress.

When my mom returned 20 minutes later, the stew on the bottom of the pot had done what stew does when you ignore a pot on a heated stove. It burned. Anyone who’s ever been in the same situation knows there is no quick fix when you’ve allowed a dish to go to pot. The charred flavor rises from the bottom of the kettle all the way to the top. I’ve yet to find a remedy – other than Chinese take-out or pizza delivery – for such an error.

It was a moment for me, albeit not a good one. I’d officially ruined dinner for the first time in my life; it wouldn’t be the last. Ahem.

I could say I’ve perfected my observation skills when it comes to cooking in the kitchen, but that would be the pot calling the kettle black. Some people don’t have much in pot-watching capabilities. I happen to be one of them. I can, however, stir the pot. It’s a habit that’s gotten me into hot water on occasion. So I try to avoid both – stirring and watching.

Instead, I keep my mouth shut and cook, which I can do with a fair amount of proficiency. It’s surprising, the number of dishes and meals one can prepare without a hint of talent in pot watching. You might say I’ve learned to ignore my weaknesses. Embrace them, even. It’s all because of my husband.

He discovered my inabilities early on – back when we didn’t have a pot to spit in. He may have thought about attempting to change me, but he didn’t try too hard. He is a smart man – a smart man who browns the hamburger. And while I’m no good at watching the pot, I do enjoy watching him – maybe even more than David Cassidy in a good Partridge Family rerun. But then again...

Your wish is my command, Clyde Wells. You wanted to know how the Cass City School mascot became the Red Hawks, here’s the answer.

According to Chuck Auten, the 1944 Cass City varsity club president, our school decided we needed a mascot and Coach Jack London came up with the solution. Although our school colors were maroon and gray, the varsity club liked his suggestion and the rest is history.

This time of year, as snakes are out and about in the great outdoors, the Department of Natural Resources gets many questions about Michigan’s snakes.

Michigan is home to 17 different species of snakes, 16 of which are harmless to humans.

There are two that are very similar and often cause a stir when people encounter them. Eastern hog-nosed snakes, when threatened, puff up with air, flatten their necks and bodies and hiss loudly. (This has led to local names like “puff adder” or “hissing viper.”) If this act is unsuccessful, the snakes will writhe about, excrete a foul-smelling musk and then turn over with mouth agape and lie still, as though dead.

Despite this intimidating behavior, hog-nosed snakes are harmless to humans.

The eastern massasauga rattlesnake, meanwhile, is the only venomous species found in Michigan, but it’s quite rare and is protected as a species due to declining populations from habitat loss.

As the name implies, the massasauga rattlesnake does have a segmented rattle on its tail. It should not be confused with the other harmless species of snake in Michigan that do not have segmented rattles but will also buzz their tails if approached or handled.

Eastern massasauga rattlesnakes are shy creatures that avoid humans whenever possible. Also known as “swamp rattlers,” they spend the vast majority of their time in year-round wetlands hunting their primary prey, mice. When encountered, if the snake doesn’t feel threatened, it will let people pass without revealing its location. If humans do get too close, a rattlesnake will generally warn of its presence by rattling its tail while people are still several feet away. If given room, the snake will slither away into nearby brush.

Rattlesnake bites, while extremely rare in Michigan (fewer than one per year), can and do occur. Anyone who is bitten should seek medical attention immediately. To learn more about the massasauga and for more snake safety tips, visit <http://mnfi.anr.msu.edu/emr/index.cfm>.

Those who encounter a snake of any kind should leave it alone and should not try to handle or harass the snake – this is primarily how snake bites happen. A snake can only strike roughly one-third of its body length, so it is physically impossible for people to get bitten if they do not get within 24 inches of the snake’s head.

Michigan snakes do not attack, chase or lunge at people or seek out human contact. Simply put, if left alone, Michigan snakes will leave people alone.

That’s not a problem here. I don’t like snakes, photos of snakes, movies with snakes or anything else dealing with snakes.

Sanilac County deputies nab Snover man after brief chase

by Tom Montgomery
Editor

STOLEN VEHICLE

Sanilac County Sheriff’s deputies apprehended a Snover area man after he attempted to elude officers during a routine traffic stop early last week in Sanilac County’s Watertown Township.

Undersheriff Brad Roff said the incident was reported Monday at about 6:30 a.m. as deputies attempted to make a traffic stop on Marlette Road near Johnson Road. “After activating the patrol car emergency lights, the suspect vehicle, described as a dark colored 2004 Chevy Impala, proceeded to flee north on Johnson Road from Marlette Road. The suspect then pulled into a private driveway on Johnson Road and fled on foot from the vehicle,” Roff said.

“Other officers arrived on scene along with a K-9 unit from the St. Clair County Sheriff’s Office to assist with a track to locate the suspect,” he added. “While the K-9 unit was tracking, deputies made contact with the homeowner and, after speaking with the homeowner, it was determined the homeowner knew the suspect. The 30-year-old male suspect...was located inside the residence and taken into custody without incident.”

The suspect, whose name was not released pending formal arraigned, was lodged in the Sanilac County Jail on multiple charges.

Sanilac deputies were dispatched the same morning to investigate a reported stolen SUV and, following a thorough search and an attempted tracking operation utilizing a K-9 unit, arrested a 30-year-old Minden City man.

According to reports, a 2005 gray Chevy Trailblazer was reported stolen from the Minden City area and was located overturned on Bay City-Forestville Road near Bad Axe Road.

“Upon deputies’ arrival, the vehicle was empty, overturned on the roadway and the suspect had fled the scene,” said Roff, who noted the St. Clair Sheriff’s Department’s K-9 unit was called in to assist in a search for the suspect.

“When the lead had turned cold, responding deputies continued to search the area for the suspect,” Roff said. “Acting on tips called in from businesses and residents, the 30-year-old Minden City man was located and arrested without incident and transported to the Sanilac County Jail.”

The suspect’s name was withheld pending further investigation and formal arraignment on charges.

Deputies were assisted at the scene by the Sanilac County Sheriff’s Detective Bureau and the Bingham Township Fire Department and EMS.

Grandparents have a really sweet deal

by Tom Montgomery
Editor

When it comes to grandparenting, the learning curve is smooth and easy, probably because there are very few rules. Well, except for sweets. Sweets are always okay. My wife and I have been blessed with several grandkids — all living nearby and each as different from the other as they can be, but every one of them special in their own way. And they all enjoy visits to our home.

I suspect grandma and grandpa’s house is a popular destination for several reasons, starting with the fact that grandparents are old and have interesting features; some have no hair, or only hair growing out of weird places like their ears. Some can even take their teeth out.

Many of us — myself included — do share a common joy, however. We really savor opportunities to let the kids do all the things they’re not supposed to at home.

And why not? We have time and a few more dollars in our pockets compared to our child-rearing years, and we know that when all the fun is over, the little ones are going to take all of that sugar-fueled energy back home with mom and dad, just in time for bed.

I don’t know about you, but I particularly enjoy ignoring my daughters’ glares when I offer the kids an extra chocolate cookie just as they’re climbing into the old minivan.

No bib? No problem, daughter, that’s why they invented soap, water and the washing machine (not to mention sleeves). Duh!

Don’t get me wrong — our grandchildren love fruit and often go for the bananas and apples first. And they’re always on the lookout for a cucumber or tomato fresh out of grandpa’s garden. But they aren’t about to turn down a handful of Skittles on the side. Or a quarter that magically appears from behind their ear.

Grandparents are special because we have the luxury of taking the time to give each youngster some special attention, whether it’s heading outside to search for bugs or cut a few flowers, or climb a tree.

I imagine when our kids were young, we looked a great deal like my daughters and their broods — always rushing around, especially when it came time to gather the youngsters along with their toys, shoes, jackets, etc., for the journey back home from wherever. Meal times were often crazy hectic, and getting everyone ready and off to school was a fascinating study in multitasking.

No wonder we look old and tired these days.

And happy, because there’s nothing that compares to having a little one — with bright eyes and a broad smile — running up to you and wrapping their little arms around your neck for a big hug.

Now that’s sweet.

Helping others is a passion for Fisher

Helping people has always been a passion for Forest Fisher. Whether it’s in the community or among strangers, he is always looking to lend a helping hand.

Fisher has lived in Cass City for about two years, after living here while attending school in grades one through five. Now 20 years old, he is studying psychology and Christian counseling online through Liberty University.

“I felt like God was calling me to do it,” Fisher said, referring to his field of study.

Fisher said he hopes to use what he is learning in school to help people through trials in their lives.

“I try to help people as much as I can,” he said. “I’ve had a lot of experience with it, professionally and personally.”

Fisher said he loves to help people by talking with them about their problems. He hopes to be a professional counselor someday.

“I talk them through it and help them through their problems and trials,” he said. “The best piece of advice I have ever gotten is, ‘Take what is given,’ and I think this helps me every day.”

5 YEARS AGO (2009)

The summer music series kicked off Thursday at the Cass City Rotary Park. A few dozen people showed up on the warm evening to watch as a group from the Tri-Cities called “Muzyka!” performed. The Cass City Parks and Recreation Department, Cass City Rotary Club and Thumb National Bank are sponsoring the free concerts.

Sean Smith helps children get ready for their snack time. Smith, the inter-generational services manager at the Generations Youth Enrichment Program in Caro, said the program provides children with opportunities and experiences that they wouldn’t have if they stayed at home while their parents worked. The program, part of the Human Development Commission, is offered for kids grades K-5 and provides a summer day program, along with a before/after school program during the academic year.

Madilyn Tschirhart, 7, of Cass City, recently donated several inches of her hair to Locks of Love, a non-profit organization that provides hairpieces to financially disadvantaged children who suffer from long-term medical hair loss. “She got the idea after seeing another little girl in the paper that had done the same thing. A little over a year ago, she lost her uncle and a very close friend of her dad’s to cancer. After watching both of them battle cancer and then learning of the Locks of Love organization, it took her about 3 seconds to decide,” said her parents, Sonya and Scott Tschirhart.

A host of fun activities were recently included in this year’s Summer Reading Program sign-up at Rawson Memorial District Library in Cass City. Nicholas and Andrew Clarent hold balloons created for them by Daniel Suttkus, a magician and balloon creations expert.

The unit, costing $2,100, was donated to the hospital by the hospital auxiliary. Accepting the operations manual from Mrs. Willis Campbell, auxiliary president, is Richard Palm, hospital administrator. Present are: Mrs. Donald Arndt, Mrs. Neil Hurry and Mrs. Sherwood Rice Jr.

Oren Staley, NFO national president, exchanges a few brief words with Kenneth Parish, Caro, just before addressing an estimated 1,100 persons at an NFO rally. Parish was Staley’s extension director in the later 1930s when Staley was just a youngster. Staley urged farmers to unite for better conditions. The program was under the direction of Ernest Cook, Cass City, national staff organizer for Tuscola and Sanilac counties.

100 YEARS AGO (1914)

Mac Wood and daughter, Lucreice, of LaGrande, Oregon, are guests at the homes of L. I. Wood and other friends. Mr. Wood was employed in the general store of J. C. Laing 22 years ago and he was greatly surprised in the improvements which were everywhere apparent in Cass City. Not only was he favorably impressed with the growth of the town, but the development of the country surrounding it was pleasing to Mr. Wood and a special delight were the miles upon miles of improved highways. Miss Wood has recently completed a course of study in a Boston college and she and her father met in Detroit to make the trip to visit Cass City relatives. They plan to visit New York City, Boston and Washington, D. C., and on the return trip to the west, take a boat trip to Galveston, Texas, and thence by rail by way of Los Angeles to LaGrande. Mr. Wood is a general merchant at LaGrande and will thoroughly enjoy the delightful trips outlined for his vacation after years of steady grind in mercantile lines.

Deford was the victim of a cyclonic storm Wednesday morning about 6:30 and citizens of that place lost property aggregating an amount from $2,000 to $3,000. The tornado’s visit did not continue much longer than a second of time, but during that period hardly a building was left without some evidence of damage from the wind. Among the heaviest losses were the following: Grand Trunk freight sheds, wrecked; Deford Grain and Lumber Co.’s; warehouse blown down. Loss between $600 and $806; fully insured; D. Croop’s store, badly damaged; A. Webster’s barn, total loss; R. Kennedy’s barn, total loss; Deford Bank, windows, doors and roof damaged. One of the freaks of the storm, was the way the Hotel Daugherty was moved from its foundation. The building was moved to the east about 16 inches and hung over its foundation walls in a perfectly straight line, but there was no loss of life nor any serious injuries to any of the town’s inhabitants.

Twenty-one of them—one of the largest high school classes that has ever graduated in Cass City—and they all received their diplomas Wednesday evening before a large audience of admiring friends. It was a class to be proud of and Cass City has all the right in the world to stand upon its dignity and look important whenever its educational opportunities are mentioned. The invocation was delivered by Rev. G. A. Fee, pastor of the M. E. Church. Supt. Kennedy then introduced Henry R. Pattengill, who delivered the commencement address. Following the address, a special feature was introduced into the program when Mrs. A. J. Knapp, in behalf of the Woman’s Study Club, presented a first year scholarship in any college which may be selected to the member of the Class of 1914 who had attained the highest average standing during the full high school course of study. The honor was conferred upon Miss Carola Fritz.

has especially enjoyed working with the area's medical care community. "I just thought it was great," he said. "The staff and the residents were all really great and I learned lots of things over the years," he said.

"He has been a huge help on our board and has an awful lot of knowledge," Van Auken said. "He is always willing to jump in and help wherever needed."

Van Auken added that Hirn has been a driving force in other community projects, from restoration of the Thumb Octagon Barn to the Fun in the Thumb Playscape.

"He has been involved in everything. He's just been a driving force from the beginning."

Hirn said he has loved being a part of the restoration of the Octagon Barn.

"We've worked on a variety of things there," Hirn added, noting he's been involved in just about every aspect of the barn restoration as well as establishing the Thumb Octagon Barn Agricultural Museum. As for the future, Hirn said he plans to continue volunteering at the barn, but not as much as he has in the past. "We'll keep moving forward," he said.

2 plead in heroin trafficking probe

Office last week. Each defendant faces up to 20 years in prison and/or a fine of up to $25,000.

Sentencing has been scheduled for Friday, Aug. 15. Palmer's bond was set at $10,000 and Labombard's at $7,500, both cash. They remain lodged in the Huron County Jail.

The couple's arrests came following a lengthy investigation into heroin trafficking, according to Huron County Sheriff Kelly J. Hanson.

Deputies along with Elkton Police Chief Scott Jobs confronted the defendants in the parking lot of McKinley Apartments April 9 after conducting a surveillance operation targeting the pair. Shortly thereafter, officers found nearly five grams of heroin hidden in the gas cap of the couple's 1977 Grand Prix.

Two minor children in the company of the defendants were turned over to relatives and deputies called in Department of Human Services (DHS) officials to investigate.

The arrests led deputies to execute three search warrants in connection with the investigation.

The first warrant was served at the suspects' apartment, where officers seized scales, a white powdery substance, syringes and other drug paraphernalia. The second warrant was served at a residence on Myrtle Drive in Oliver Township, and prescription pills, syringes and other drug paraphernalia were seized. The last warrant, allowing deputies to search the couple's vehicle, netted a small amount of cash and packaging material.

Thumb law enforcement agencies have been focusing on heroin trafficking because use of the illicit drug, especially among young people, has increased at an alarming rate, spreading far beyond cities into suburban areas in recent years.

Officials say heroin use is growing again because the drug is relatively cheap compared to more popular — and expensive — prescription drugs such as OxyContin and Vicodin, which are frequently abused.

delinquency of a minor.

The Chronicle is not naming the father in order to protect the identity of his son, who has already pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless discharge of a firearm.

Sanilac County Family Court Judge Gregory S. Ross, Circuit Court

Juvenile Division, subsequently sentenced the youth to a brief stay in a detention facility, as well as what court officials described as a period of "intense probation" that could continue until the boy turns 19.

His parents were deemed responsible for court costs and fines plus restitution — roughly $2,000 to be paid to the victim's family for funeral expenses.

The victim in the shooting, Tyler Dunn, 11, was a Marlette Elementary School student.

Investigators said he died during an unsupervised sleepover in Marlette Township, where the juvenile defendant was showing Dunn a lever-action rifle, which accidentally discharged. There were no adults at home at the time.

death) is what used to be called negligent homicide, but they took that away in 2012.

Prior to the legislative action, negligent homicide was considered a "high misdemeanor" but was treated the same as a felony and carried a maximum penalty of two years in prison.

Investigators found no evidence of alcohol use or distracted driving on Braun's part. However, Rutkowski pointed out there was no reason the defendant shouldn't have stopped at what is an open intersection.

"We call it a crash — an accident is something you can't control, and this could be controlled," he said.

Rutkowski acknowledged family members of the victims were left frustrated by the sentence handed down to Braun.

"They understood that no matter what we do here, that's not going to bring their loved ones back, but they wanted the court to send a message," he said. "It's a very difficult case."

The accident was the first quadruple fatality in Huron County since 1992, according to Huron County Sheriff Kelly J. Hanson.

School board okays budget

additional $175 per student, a significant jump from the proposed $82 to $111 more per student being discussed last month.

The increase translates into roughly $66,400 more than school officials had anticipated receiving in the coming year.

Expenditures are set at $9.669 million, $151,650 higher than in the 2013-14 fiscal year, which ends June 30. Revenues are also anticipated to climb — to about $9.77 million. Under the proposed budget, the district’s fund balance would increase to $1.14 million, or an amount equal to a healthy 11.82 percent of the budget.

Also approved were amended 2013-14 amended and proposed 2014-15 Food Service Funds.

Cass City Schools had a good year in this category, according to Klosowski, who noted revenues this year ($503,730) exceeded expenditures ($479,190) by $24,540, leaving a fund balance of nearly $150,000. The 2014-15 spending plan calls for $503,000 in revenues, with expenditures of $522,000 and a year-ending fund balance of $130,514.

Shari Bock, the district’s food service director, said a portion of the additional spending in the coming year will go to pay for health insurance costs related to retaining the district’s full-time cooks.

Board members revised a list of cost increases and proposed cuts/savings for the coming year.

The cost increases, totaling an estimated $420,000, including $126,000 in teacher salary increases approved in conjunction with the staff’s current contract, $141,520 in lost revenue due to an enrollment decline of 20 students, $35,000 more to meet a health insurance cap increase, and $40,000 due to a one-percent hike in the retirement rate.

The savings, in addition to the $181,000 in per-pupil revenue from the state, include funding the district’s Title I position held by Nick Moyer out of the Title I budget rather than out of the general fund, $154,870 stemming from a restructuring of some teaching positions, $10,000 related to one teacher buy-out agreement, and $26,000 to replace a full-time maintenance employee with a part-time worker.

SUPT’S OFFICE

Last month’s resignations submitted by veteran Bookkeeper Linda Bennett, longtime Secretary to the Superintendent Ets TerBush and Klosowski, who has served as Cass City’s part-time chief financial officer for the past three years, left school officials with an empty superintendent’s office with the exception of Hartel.

He proposed Monday the hiring of one full-time secretary at a cost of $42,598 and one business manager/CFO, whose responsibilities would include both CFO and bookkeeper responsibilities minus payroll, which would be contracted through the Tuscola Intermediate School District at an annual cost of $22,000. He estimated the combined savings over the current staffing at $7,156.

Hartel’s proposal to fill the positions wasn’t received enthusiastically by board members, including Trustee Janie Meeker, who questioned changes Hartel has made in his recommendations over the course of the past month, such as taking on more financial responsibilities and hiring a part-time CFO.

Some board members suggested a local resident could be hired to handle the payroll, at least temporarily, but Trustee Jeff Loomis said it might be best to contract with the ISD for consistency’s sake at this time.

“I think you guys are underestimating what payroll involves,” said Hartel, who pointed out he was simply offering a proposal for the board’s consideration. “It’s a transition in the superintendent’s office,” he said. “Everybody’s going to have their own opinion.”

Meeker commented that Hartel has revised his proposal five times since mid-May, “and now it’s changed again today. How can we make an informed decision when things keep changing?” she said.

“Because things change, Janie. I have been on the phone the past week and a half” exploring options and checking on how other district’s are staffed, Hartel responded.

Hartel said all of the district’s administrators have taken financial hits by reduced staff or increased responsibilities. However, Trustee Dan Manwell called that statement “bogus”. “It doesn’t look like the superintendent’s office is taking a hit,” he said.

Hartel noted his plan is to staff the office with two positions, down from 2 1/2 positions, “and I’m going to have inexperienced people doing very important work for the district.”

The superintendent, who currently also serves as the district’s transportation director, later suggested that the board not fill the bookkeeping position. “Take the $22,000 out of there (budget) and I’ll have Linda teach me how to do payroll.”

In the end, the board approved a plan to hire a full-time business manager/CFO and a part-time secretary for the superintendent’s office, as well as temporarily contracting with the ISD for payroll services.

IN OTHER BUSINESS

In other business during the regular monthly meeting, the board:

- *Approved an annual motion to borrow funding to meet cash flow needs over the summer months until state aid payments resume in late fall. The proposed $1.2 million loan — $100,000 less than last year and $200,000 less than the year before — will be offered to various financial groups, including local banks, to submit bids.
- *Was asked my Meeker to consider a motion next month to reduce the principals’ two-year revolving contracts to one year, and the superintendent’s contract from three years to two.

Meeker, who indicated she’ll make the recommendation based on the district’s financial status, offered the proposal after Hartel reported all three principals had been rated as being “effective” during their annual performance evaluations.

- *Approved “with regret” the resignation of longtime full-time maintenance employee Randy Schuette.
- *Heard from Meeker, who condemned Hartel’s decision to send an email to board members asking to meet with them individually.

Board Secretary Sloane Stimpfel and board Vice President Alice Zaleski both disagreed, saying there is nothing wrong or illegal with meeting with Hartel under those circumstances. Loomis agreed, saying an informal discussion with Hartel better prepared him to make more informed decisions during regular meetings.

STATE SENATOR Mike Green (right) and Wayne Dillon hold a state special tribute in honor of the 135th anniversary of the St. Agatha Parish in Gagetown. Also pictured are members of the St. Agatha Historical Committee.

THE REV. PATRICK J. Dwan, builder of the present St. Agatha Church, was appointed pastor of Gagetown in April 1904. The actual construction began April 1, 1914, but the cornerstone wasn’t laid until July 1915, and it was two more years before the church was ready for occupancy. An imposing structure of Gothic architecture, the church was designed to seat nearly 800 people.

tion of a number of parishioners over the closing of St. Agatha’s.

“We have no problem with the merger; we just wanted to keep our church open and to have mass,” he said.

According to Dillon, the committee sought to have the church designated as an historical site by the Michigan Historical Commission. However, he said, Bishop Joseph Cistone of the Saginaw Diocese twice refused to sign off on the campaign.

The committee then turned to Gagetown Village officials, who offered their support and endorsement of a plan to have the village honored with an historical site tribute that would include St. Agatha’s.

Dillon said the committee embarked on a fundraising campaign, with roughly 100 people donating $13,000 to-date. The money has been used to produce an updated history of the church and to purchase signs honoring both the village and St. Agatha’s

The church sign, which lists the dates for St. Agatha Church (100 years — 1914-2014) and St. Agatha Parish (135 years — 1879-2014) lists all of those who donated towards its purchase, including many whose families have been associated with the church for decades.

The display reads:

“In Gratitude, In Honor. St. Agatha Parish was founded with the appointment by Bishop Casper H. Borgess of Father Clement Krebs as the first resident priest of Gagetown. The Clergy and the community grew together throughout the years, presently coming to St. Agatha’s 135th anniversary. The church has served faithfully as a place of worship and gathering for the community and has earned the distinction of being the oldest Catholic church in Tuscola County. “St. Agatha’s Church stands as a monument to the people whom first settled in the area, and it continues to stand in commemoration of the ancestry and history of Gagetown. St. Agatha’s has fostered a love of tradition, heritage, and a desire to keep the faith strong in the community. There remains a sense of home and family tradition connected to Gagetown and its historic sites.”

RESTRUCTURING

The restructuring of parishes in the Saginaw Diocese, effective July 1, includes the merging of four area churches into the new Our Lady Consolata Parish, consisting of the churches of St. Pancratius in Cass City, Holy Family in Sebewaing, St.

Agatha, and St. Michael in Wilmot.

The merging was directed by Bishop Cistone as part of his “Planning Tomorrow’s Parishes” plan, designed to restructure parish communities due to what church officials say is a decrease in church attendance, fewer priests and shifting demographics.

Under the restructuring, St. Pancratius will remain a parish church, meaning regularly scheduled masses and sacraments will take place there for all members of the parish community.

Holy Family in Sebewaing will become an “additional use” church, which means regularly scheduled masses and celebrations will continue to take place there.

St. Agatha and St. Michael, meanwhile, will become “occasional use” churches. Masses will no longer be celebrated in those churches, but permission may be granted from the diocese to use the buildings for weddings, funerals and other formal events and ceremonies.

CHURCH HISTORY

According to recently updated history entitled, “Saint Agatha Catholic Church, 1979-2014, Our Cathedral in the Cornfield”, revised by Anne Lenhard, Father Krebs was appointed as the first resident priest of Tuscola County June 21, 1879.

His appointment, which came just two weeks after his ordination, “gave him charge of ‘the Mission of Gagetown, Tuscola County, embracing the townships of Sebewaing, Brookfield, Grant and Sheridan in Huron County, and all the Catholics of Tuscola County.’” the historical account states. “Thus Father Krebs, like Father Roche of Port Austin, was often called the ‘Apostle of the Thumb’.”

The demand for a resident priest was long in coming, as the late 1860s and early 1870s saw a large influx of many Canadian families of Irish, French, German and Scottish ancestry arriving in the Thumb, many attracted to a growing lumber industry and the low cost of land holdings.

On Jan. 6, 1880, Bishop Casper H. Borgess paid $200 to Joseph and Helen Gage for several lots in Gagetown, where the county’s first Catholic church — a frame building 30 feet by 30 feet with seating for about 300 people — was constructed.

“There were about 40 Catholic families in the immediate neighborhood of Gagetown when he (Father Krebs) began his pastorate here, but the territory of which he had charge comprised many more families,” the history book states.

“It took a man of Father Krebs’ physical strength and spiritual courage to face the task of ministering to the people of so large and difficult a territory. He also undertook the responsibility of serving as the first village president of Gagetown.”

Bishop Borgess dedicated the church in honor of St. Agatha in October 1881, and a parsonage was erected at about the same time. In 1886, under the guidance and support of Father Krebs, the first St. Agatha School was built, marking the beginning of an 82-year existence in Gagetown.

The original church building was expanded in 1893, and seven years later Father Krebs was given permission to take an extended vacation. An appointment to Utica Junction Mission and the chaplaincy of SS. Peter and Paul Cathedra Convent in Detroit rounded out his long career in the priesthood.

The Rev. Father Michael J. Crowley succeeded Father Krebs in July 1900. The mission of Cass City grew under his leadership, with the establishment of the Church of St. Pancratius.

Four years later, the Rev. Patrick J. Dwan, builder of the present St. Agatha Church, was appointed to serve the Gagetown church. Born in Tipperary Ireland, he came to this country at the age of 15. He was ordained after studying at Notre Dame University and St. Mary’s Seminary, Baltimore.

During his 16-year tenure, it fell to him to complete construction of St. Pancratius in Cass City as well as build a new church for the rapidly growing parish of Gagetown. The actual construction began in 1914 and was interrupted several times due to a lack of funds and materials stemming from World War I.

It was estimated the building would cost $30,000, but the final figure was closer to $45,000, and the stained glass windows and the south tower remained incomplete. It wasn’t until July 1915 that the cornerstone was laid by Bishop Edward D. Kelly, D.D., the auxiliary bishop of Detroit. It would take two more years before the church was ready for occupancy.

Over the years, St. Agatha was served by nearly three dozen leaders — pastors, pastoral administrators and sacramental ministers.

Local hospital partners with Cass City Schools

Hills & Dales General Hospital has continued to partner with Cass City Public Schools. This time they have donated back all monies collected from sports physicals performed recently through the Cass City Family Practice.

Dr. Donald Robbins, Jr. DO, Angela Zaucha, FNP-BC, and the office staff welcomed 52 Cass City students to perform annual sports physicals. Each physical was $10.00 apiece. Hills & Dales General Hospital wanted to donate the money collected back to the school as a way to support their financial needs.

When asked, Dr. Donald Robbins, Jr. stated, “We are invested in our community and the education of the students. Making a donation is just one small way we can ensure they continue to learn and grow.” Hills & Dales General Hospital and the Cass City Public Schools have found many ways to partner together in recent years. Jean Anthony, President & CEO says, “We know that the children are our future. If we can partner with the school to provide services that benefit the kids, we are happy to do so.”

This is the fourth year Hills & Dales General Hospital has performed the physicals and made a donation back to the school. The staff looks forward to assisting with this service again next year.

Post season awards plenty for Kingston ball players

Post season awards were many for North Central Thumb League baseball champion Kingston. The Cardinals recorded their first ever league title and 5th district crown in 2014 with an impressive overall record of 20-3, 13-1 in the NCTL Stars Division.

Coach Carl Nicol’s squad landed 7 players on the NCTL all-conference listings highlighted by senior pitcher Joe Barrons, a unanimous first team pick.

Also selected to the NCTL all-conference first team was Cardinal seniors Peter Hill and Connor Smith. Hill was placed with the NCTL all star outfielders, Smith with the all star infielders.

Joining the Kingston trio as first team choices were North Huron’s Kyle Case, Brandon Moore and Justin Hatch. Both Case and Moore are unanimous vote getters. Rounding out the first team picks are Cole Simmons, Caseville, Hunter Morrison, Mayville, Curt Fritch, Deckerville and Dan Rickett, Carsonville Port-Sanilac. Named to the NCTL all-conference second team was Kingston Colton Bundschuh and Jacob Zyrowski. Bundschuh, senior, handled the catching duties for the champions and Zyrowski, senior, was a tested glove in the infield. They were joined on the all-conference second team by North Huron’s Nick Goretzki, Peter Pineau and Justin Baranski, Caseville’s Cameron Ashmore, Mayville’s Andrew Morrison, Peck’s Kyle Abrego, Deckerville’s Ryan Stone and Carsonville-Port Sanilac’s Wyatt Hooper.

Receiving NCTL honorable mention praises were Kingston’s junior outfielders Travis Tucker and Jared Koehler, Mike Strozeski, North Huron, Zack Gerstenberger and Mason Kozfkay, Caseville, Cole Coutercher, Michael Shaver, Matt Lopez and Larry Pierson, Mayville, Tristen Haener, Peck, Taylor Balhoff, Bryan Mason, Austin Fraley and Austin Fritch, Deckerville, Sam Washe, Carsonville-Port Sanilac, and Connor Kowaleski and Robert Schulte, Port Hope.

In addition to NCTL awards, Kingston baseball players collected several other honors in 2014.

Joe Barrons was named to all-district, all-region and all-state first teams. He had plenty of company on the all-district team that also included Cardinals Colton Bundschuh, Jacob Zyrowski, Connor Smith, Peter Hill and Travis Tucker.

Honored on the academic all-region team was Peter Hill. He was also an academic all-district pick, as were his teammates Zyrowski, Smith, Bundschuh and Eric Hartsell.

DNR airs new

web application

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) recently announced that a new web application designed to educate anglers and fisheries professionals is available for public use.

The application, which offers information on local and regional trends in abundance, growth and survival of important fish populations in select-ed streams across Michigan, was developed by the DNR's Fisheries Division and incorporates data collected from a network of fish population survey sites, with data for some sites going back to 1947.

"The new Stream Fish Population Trend Viewer features more than 40 streams that represent a range of conditions in terms of stream size, temperature and Great Lakes access," said Troy Zorn, DNR fisheries research biologist.

"The focus is on streams with long-term data and naturally reproducing populations of trout, Great Lakes salmonoids or smallmouth bass to provide users with information on self-sustaining fish populations around the state," Zorn added.

Since trends in stream fish populations are largely influenced by regional climate and flow conditions, repeatedly going back to the same locations annually provides a clear understanding of trends in a stream.

Users will be able to see what the population trends are in different areas of the state by comparing trends for key sites in each region. For fishery managers, understanding regional trends is critical to determine the best course of management on these streams, as well as interpreting survey data on streams that are surveyed less frequently.

Understanding these trends is equally important to anglers, watershed or conservation groups, and the public.

Anglers, fisheries professionals and the public will be able to look up a river and see what the most recent trends are in terms of abundance, growth and annual survival of select-ed fish species. Information can be viewed in map, graph or table formats.

Roughly half of the sites are sampled each year, and the new data will be added annually to the trend viewer app prior to spring.

The app was developed in collaboration with the Michigan Department of Technology, Management and Budget and Michigan State University and funded by the Great Lakes Fishery Trust.

The Stream Fish Population Trend Viewer app can be found at: <http://www.mcgi.state.mi.us/fish-pop/>.

STOECKLE puts in long, demanding hours these days at the Darling 888 Ranch in Kentucky, but she’s enjoying the challenge. The Cass City grad hopes to return to Michigan eventually and work as a trainer with a facility of her own.

Rawson Library earns QSAC certification

The Library of Michigan recently awarded Rawson Memorial District Library, Cass City, with a certificate of completion for meeting the Enhanced Level Standards of the Quality Services Audit Checklist (QSAC).

To earn certification, libraries must demonstrate their competence in seven categories of achievement, including human resources, governance/administration, services, collection development, technology, facilities and equipment, and public relations/marketing.

“The Rawson Memorial Library Board is very proud that the library administration and staff provide services deemed ‘enhanced’ by the Library of Michigan,” said Rawson Memorial District Library Board Chairman Lyle Clarke. “Excellence in customer service is one of our library’s main goals and by focusing efforts on these key areas, our library has shown a strong commitment to our district.”

Rawson Library achieved QSAC Essential Level Standards in May 2010 and again in May 2014. QSAC administrators describe Essential Level Standards as “those which should be achieved first because of their fundamental importance - the basics of all library service.”

Enhanced Level Standards are more difficult to achieve than Essential Level Standards and start where essential quality measures leave off. These standards are a commitment by the library to quality management and services beyond the basics.

To achieve QSAC certification at the Enhanced Level, a library must meet the requirements for state aid to public libraries and the quality measures at the Essential and Enhanced levels.

“QSAC represents the work of library directors, trustees and staff members who together created measures of quality for our state’s public libraries,” said State Librarian Randy Riley. “The staff of Rawson Memorial Library is to be commended for achieving a vital milestone in library service.”

Stoeckle follows her dream of training horses to Kentucky

by Tom Montgomery
Editor

Ashleigh Stoeckle never let skeptics get in the way of her dream of turning a lifelong love of riding and showing horses into a successful career.

And she has the credentials to prove it.

Stoeckle, a 2010 Cass City High School graduate and the daughter of Mark and Carol Stoeckle of Cass City, recently graduated from the University of Findley, Findley, Ohio, where she earned a Bachelor of Science Degree in western equestrian studies, with a riding/training emphasis, and in equine business management.

The granddaughter of RoseMae Krohn of Elkton and Helen Stoeckle of Pigeon, she was a member of the Intercollegiate Horse Show Association (IHSA), stock horse team and the reining judging team while in college.

She’s already working in her field, having accepted a position at the Darling 888 Ranch in Princeton, Ky., as an assistant trainer.

The journey from high school to career has been a challenging one, according to Stoeckle.

“I had to complete all the regular college courses — math, science, etc., like any other student getting a Bachelor of Science Degree,” she explained. “Also I had the business classes to complete my equine business management degree. That meant I had to get in all the regular classes while spending a minimum of 5 hours a day at the barn.

“The Western Farm at the University of Findlay is about eight miles from campus, so that means driving out there every day, no matter what the weather,” she said.

“Freshman year consists of learning all your basic horsemanship correctly. You are assigned to one horse and rotate every two weeks. You have stalls assigned to clean and feed the horses. You are graded on your stalls and you have weekly riding tests,” Stoeckle noted. “The university owns more than enough horses for all the students, but some bring their own horse to work with.”

Stoeckle said colt breaking was the emphasis during her sophomore year of studies at the university.

“You are assigned to a horse that has never been trained and you have to train it to ride,” she added. “There is a show at the end of each semester that you and your horse participate in. That is part of your grade. Sometimes the horses are quite challenging and it is a lot of work to make them a safe, willing mount. I was fortunate to have a really great first horse to break that I ended up owning. He was with me through the rest of the college career.”

During the junior and senior years, students are assigned more horses and learn more about reining, cutting and western pleasure, according to Stoeckle.

“That is when the fun begins,” she said. “This past year I always had at least four horses to ride and train. You spend a lot of time at the barn — besides the four hours of actual class time, you have many early mornings and late evenings to try and get (in) extra riding. While at the barn the instructors are out in the arena giving demos and helping make sure you stay on track with your horses.

“Senior year also includes the Western Pleasure Futurity,” she continued. “In the late fall all the seniors pick a yearling that the farm owns and they start training it in January. At the end of the semester there is a big show where all the two-year-olds compete in a riding class. The winner gets a big trophy. We were a very competitive group with many very nice, well bred horses. After the futurity there is a horse sale where your horse is sold. It is a great experience to work with really nice horses and getting them ready to show and to sell them to a good home.

Stoeckle said her interest in “reining” really blossomed while she was at Findley.

“Reining is a western riding competition where the rider guides the horse through a precise pattern of circles, spins and stops. It is exhilarating — the fast circles, the high speed spins and the sliding stops,” she explained.

“The staff at Findlay consists of many top notch, experienced horsemen and women, successful in the real world, that teach you the ins and outs of training, riding, and managing,” Stoeckle noted. “While at Findlay, I became more determined to become a professional horse trainer. Although I thought I always wanted to be a trainer, my experiences at Findlay showed me that I could be a trainer and gave me a great starting point to find a job within the industry.”

It’s a career Stoeckle has been preparing for since she was a youngster.

“I have always had horses,” she said. “I started training our miniature horses when I was just a little girl. My sister and I showed our horses in 4-H, (and) I competed in high school with the equestrian team.

“My riding instructors, Jan Stoeckle, Trudy Gage and trainer Kirk Langley taught me so much of the basics of riding and showing. Trudy Gage was always there telling me there was a bigger world out there and that I was good enough to compete in it. I started competing in American Buckskin Horse association horse shows throughout high school and earned a World Championship in Youth Hunter under Saddle,” Stoeckle added.

“I think that Cass City schools gave me a good starting point for my college career, though one teacher once told me that I had to start writing and drawing something other than horses, since I would never be able to go to college and study horses,” she recalled.

“Many people don’t know about the University of Findlay and its equestrian program. Sometimes I do get funny looks when I say I have a degree in horses, but my family and friends have been extremely supportive and always pushing me to be the best I can be in whatever field I choose.”

Stoeckle was familiar with the Darling 888 Ranch before she was offered a job.

“I had interned (there) last summer. It is a beautiful place, with some of the best reining horses in the world. They train, and have stallions and broodmares there, over 150 horses,” she said.

“I have from eight to 10 horses that I ride every day, along with helping out the interns. I also often go along when they go to shows. It is a long day, starting at 5 a.m. The weather has been really hot and humid, which makes the days even longer. The work is demanding but when I am out riding and things are going well, there is nothing else like it,” Stoeckle said.

“Darling is a good place for me right now. The trainers are very skilled and I am learning so much,” she added.

“The worst part is being so far from home. I miss my family, especially my nephews and niece, but most of all my horse,” she said. “My goals are to eventually become a trainer with a facility of my own and be able to move back to Michigan.”

“I HAVE ALWAYS had horses,” Stoeckle said. “I started training our miniature horses when I was just a little girl. My sister and I showed our horses in 4-H, (and) I competed in high school with the equestrian team.”
