Ballot loaded with state races as the primary election nears

by Tom Montgomery
Editor

The campaign trail — including parades, town meetings and club gatherings — has been well traveled in the Thumb for a number of state legislative hopefuls, who have just three weeks before area residents have the final say at the polls.

And the Tuesday, Aug. 5, ballot is loaded for voters in Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac counties.

In all, nine candidates are vying for State Rep. Terry Brown's 84th District seat representing Tuscola and Huron counties. The candidates include Kurt Damrow, Elkton, who previously served one term as the 84th District state representative from 2010 through 2012. He lost his reelection bid to Vassar area resident Dan Grimshaw, who was defeated by Brown in the general election.

Joining both Damrow and Grimshaw on the Republican ticket are Curtis J. Boehmer of Harbor Beach, Edward J. Canfield of Sebawaing, and Marlene Jobe of Port Austin.

Mayville area resident Richard Badger and David J. Jaroch of Ugly will face off on the Democratic ticket.

Brown (D-Pigeon), who can't seek another term in the district due to term limits, has been busy campaigning for the state's 25th District Senate seat.

Brown faces 25th District incumbent Senator Phillip Pavlov, a St. Clair Republican, in that race. Pavlov, first elected to the Senate in 2010, currently serves as assistant majority floor leader. He previously served three terms as the state representative in District 81.

The 25th Senate District encompasses Huron, Sanilac and St. Clair counties along with Armada Township, Richmond Township, Memphis City and the city of New Baltimore, all in northern Macomb County.

31ST DISTRICT

In the 31st Senate District, first-term Senator Mike Green (R-Mayville) faces two opponents next month in his bid for another four years in Lansing. The district is composed of Tuscola, Bay and Lapeer counties.

Green previously served Thumb residents as the 84th District state representative, from 1995 through 2001. He'll square off against fellow Republicans Kevin Daley and Jeffery Phillips in the primary, with the winner facing Democrat Ron Mindykowski in November.

Gagetown, Ugly women facing heroin charges

by Tom Montgomery
Editor

The long Independence Day holiday weekend brought a loss of freedom for a pair of Thumb women — one from the Ugly area and another from Gagetown — who were arrested on separate felony heroin charges.

Huron County Sheriff Kelly J. Hanson reported on the investigations last week, saying deputies and Bad Axe police arrested an Ugly resident July 3 following a controlled heroin buy in the parking lot of the Walmart store in Bad Axe.

"Tracy L. Janik, age 35, was taken into custody shortly thereafter and lodged in our jail for a felony heroin delivery charge," Hanson said. "She

Cemetery Walk organizers plan to expand tours during '14 fall tours

by Tom Montgomery
Editor

Organizers of the Elkland Township Cemetery Walk are again inviting area residents to take a trip back in time this fall to "meet" several of Cass City's notable citizens.

Preparations are well underway for the second annual event, and officials are encouraging those planning to attend to purchase their tickets early.

"We are really looking forward to this year's cemetery walk," commented Tyler Perry, who along with Rawson Memorial District Library Director Kate Van Auken played key roles in organizing the popular tour back in time at the Cass City area cemetery.

"Last year, we had only a month to plan and were unsure what the community's response would be to an event at the cemetery," Perry added. "We were happily surprised to find that it was a huge success, with over 100 people in attendance."

"This year, we have a whole new set of characters and cast, as well as changes to the tour format. Due to the large turnout last year, we have added an extra tour group to each tour time, which means we will be able to accommodate 150 people at this year's event — 75 at each tour time," Perry explained. "We also plan to have a shuttle wagon during the 2 p.m. tour for those who are handicapped."

Tickets will cost $7 and go on sale Monday, Aug. 25, at Rawson Memorial District Library in Cass City. Tickets are limited and will not be available at the event, which is scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 28, with tours starting at 2 p.m. and 4 p.m.

While the walk is designed to be entertaining as well as educational, organizers also utilize the event as a fundraiser in conjunction with Cass City's "Pinktober" celebration.

"While we do want to promote local history and the beautifully maintained Elkland Township Cemetery, this is a fundraiser for the American Cancer Society," said Perry, who noted $700 was raised during the 2013 cemetery walk.

"We hope to raise at least $1,050 for that organization (this year)," he added. "All the proceeds from the ticket sales go directly to the American Cancer Society. It's great to know we are offering an event that fosters interest in the history of the community while raising funds for such a necessary and worthy cause."

This year's "cast from the past" includes Dave McArthur portraying Art Holmberg, Tom Montgomery as Frederick Klump, Eric Brown as Dr. E.L. Morris, Cindy Carr as Elizabeth Pinney, Ashley Patrick as Belle Schwaderer, Dotty Scollon as Helen Stevens, David Boots as Milo Warner, Dennis Meck as Jacob Maier, Al Patrick as E.B. Schwaderer, and Barb Graff as Lucy Lee.

Also scheduled to appear is a special guest from Cass City's past, but organizers aren't revealing a name.

THE DEFORD Dazzlers, a local 4-H group, work with science in any form, from rocketry to engineering. They will be participating in the Tuscola County Fair this year.

Deford 4-Hers shine light on projects focusing on science, technology, engineering and math skills

by Andie Peck
Staff Writer

Rockets and robots probably aren't the first projects that come to mind when you think about 4-Hers showcasing their talents at the Tuscola County Fair.

But today's 4-H offerings include a number of projects outside the realm of raising and showing livestock.

The Deford Dazzlers, an area 4-H group, know this better than anyone.

"We do a variety of projects, including electronics projects," group leader Patricia Hansen said, adding that in any given year the group completes five to eight STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) projects.

The goal of the group is to build interest in the sciences and help promote science in Tuscola County.

Hansen, who serves as coordinator/director of the Deford area club along with her husband, Mark, noted the group draws participants from all over the county.

"We focus on teaching science," she explained. "We focus on mentoring and working with the kids."

The club regularly explores a variety of high-tech projects, including electronics projects that require them to create schematics and etch their own copper boards and wire them. They also completed projects in rocketry and aeronautics.

Hansen indicated she's looking forward to the group's participation in the fair this year, and said it's something the group looks forward to every year.

She said the projects they have completed up to this point have been more than enough preparation for the fair.

"We completed a 'Quest for Speed' project that used ramp power and balloon power," she said. "We've been working on as many projects as we can."

Hansen explained that after the fair is over, the group takes the month of August off. After that, the group, composed of about 11 to 15 youths meets about once a month for three hours.

They start back up in September and by June have their rockets pre-Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

The burning truth: UV rays no joke

If you think you're heading the advice of health professionals by getting that awesome tan inside instead of spending hours on the beach, better think again.

The Michigan Department of Community Health (MDCH) is joining the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) to promote the Burning Truth campaign urging residents to protect themselves from the dangers of tanning and exposure to ultraviolet (UV) rays.

Science has shown that no matter the source, sunlight or tanning bed, exposure to UV rays can cause skin cancer.

"There is a misconception that indoor tanning is somehow safe or safer than exposure to sunlight, but the truth is that tanning bed related injuries send thousands of people to the hospital each year," said Dr. Matthew Davis, chief medical executive with the MDCH. "Tanning beds pose immediate risk and have long-term effects on your skin and overall health."

People who tan indoors damage their skin which can lead to wrinkles, warts, rashes, and dark spots.

The most serious concern is the risk of causing the deadliest skin cancer, melanoma. Skin cancer is the most common cancer in the United States and rates are climbing. Teen girls and young women need to be especially careful, as it is the second most common cancer in women between 20 and 29 years of age.

Further, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) recently came out with new requirements for sunlamp products that reinforce the risk, especially to minors. These requirements include reclassifying sunlamp products and UV lamps as moderate-risk, up from low-risk, and additional warning and safety labeling regarding minors under the age of 18 and skin cancer screenings.

The CDC's Burning Truth initiative encourages residents to keep their skin healthy by protecting themselves from UV rays from the sun and tanning beds and learning about the myths associated with tanning of any kind, including:

A base tan is not a safe tan. There is a common misconception that a tan acts as the body's natural protection against sunburn. The truth is that a tan is the body's response to injury from UV rays, showing that damage has been done. A "base tan" only provides a sun protection factor (SPF) of about 3 or less, which does little to protect your skin.

Tanned skin is not healthy skin. Some people believe the tanning bed gives them a "healthy glow." The truth is that whether tanning or burning, you are exposing yourself to harmful UV rays that damage your skin, and every time you tan, you increase your risk of melanoma. The truly healthy glow is your natural skin color.

Controlled tanning is not safe tanning. People may have heard that indoor tanning is the safer way to tan because you can control your level of exposure to UV rays. When in reality indoor tanning exposes you to intense UV rays, increasing your risk of melanoma.

Avoiding indoor tanning and protecting yourself from the sun when outdoors are the best ways to reduce your chance of getting skin cancer.

Having it all

There's been a renewed media buzz on the age-old topic of women having it all. Career plus family equals success. Cameron Diaz fueled the discussion with an announcement about not wanting kids because, in her words, "It's so much more work to have children."

In another publicized conversation, Indra Nooyi, the CEO of PepsiCo and mother of two (not necessarily in that order) admitted she doesn't think women can have it all. "We pretend we can have it all," she said during an interview for The Atlantic. She also confessed she's not sure her two daughters would say she's been a good mom and she uses coping mechanisms to deal with her guilt.

So. We have two highly successful women speaking candidly about this topic and the media goes all a twitter with the shock and surprise of their statements. To have kids or not have kids. To pursue a career or stay at home. To attempt both or risk not having it all.

I've lived on both sides of the divide. I had a full-time career along with two small children. I dropped them off at daycare and missed them terribly while I was at work. But I loved my job and always planned to have it all. So I allowed guilt to creep in and developed coping mechanisms. I was in it for the long haul.

Until life changes necessitated a move to a distant town, which necessitated leaving my job. Instead of pursuing another, I opted to stay home with my kids - perhaps to avoid the guilt or more likely because for me having it all was really, really hard. Not every woman has this choice.

Even though it was my decision, there were days when I saw myself (and I'm sure others saw me) as just a stay-at-home mom. Just.

So. Cameron Diaz doesn't want to have children because they are a lot of work. She is right.

Indra Nooyi admits experiencing tremendous guilt because she has a high stakes job and sometimes feels she has had to choose between it and her children. She is right.

When I left my career, at least a part of me believed I was giving up on having it all. Maybe I was right. Diaz and Nooyi's comments made the news. I'm not that famous.

Why are we talking about this? It's an issue that hits us in the gut. Cameron Diaz says her decision was not an easy one. That's probably an understatement. No doubt Ms. Nooyi would say the same. I know I would. Thing is, we each made a choice - a tough choice that hopefully worked for us. It's a decision every woman at some point must make, and it isn't always easy.

I'd guess it's hardly ever easy, because here's the rub: If we do manage to have it all, most of us live with the guilt that the lifestyle produces. If we opt out of family or career and choose not to have it all we live with the guilt that the lifestyle produces.

Who makes these rules? More importantly, why do we accept them? Why do we chatter about the unexpected honesty when a woman admits to not wanting children, or when another acknowledges that having both a career and family is difficult? None of this is shocking.

Maybe we should put aside our expectations for others - and ourselves - and forget about a one-definition-fits-all for having it all. This could start with a rewrite and acknowledgement that each of us is working it out in our own way. That's all anyone can ask and it shouldn't be a surprise. In this age of acceptance and understanding, it seems a generic definition set down by perceived societal norms that makes life difficult, provokes guilt and causes us to judge one another would be outdated and unacceptable.

Perhaps this latest set of discussions will help us get there. Let's hope so.

Of course, before Tom's arrival, my dad taught a good number of former employees some valuable business wisdom.

One such worker was Dwight Loeding. He stopped by the office earlier this summer and the former fellow press operator told me he is still in the printing business after getting his printing roots here at the corner of Oak and Main.

Sounds like a win-win-win. The Huron County Farm Bureau office, 711 N. Van Dyke, Bad Axe, is hosting a blood drive Thursday, July 17.

If 20 people attend, Michigan Blood will donate $10 per person back to the county's 4-H program. Additionally, just for donating blood, the donor will get a free pint of ice cream. Hours of the drive will be 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Of course, the biggest prize is knowing that you may help save a life.

Brown supports limited charter school growth

State Rep. Terry Brown (D-Pigeon), Charles Brunner (D-Bay City) and Rashida Tlaib (D-Detroit) have introduced legislation they are calling the "SEE" bills, short for School Efficiency and Equitability.

The lawmakers introduced the bills in response to the recently passed education budget for fiscal year 2014-15, which funds some public school districts at $50 per pupil while giving some charter and cyber schools $175 per pupil, despite not incurring many of the same costs.

Brown's bill, House Bill 5694, limits the growth of charter schools. The bill caps the number of charter schools in Michigan to 200 or the number of charters operating when the bill becomes law, whichever is fewer. With declining enrollment, it's hard to justify the need for creating new districts, said Brown, who indicated he's open to revisiting the cap as the number of students in the state increases.

"A significant portion of charter schools in Michigan are run by for-profit corporations. I think it's wrong to prioritize making money over helping our children learn," Brown said. "Parents need quality choices for their kids, but unlimited charter and cyber schools is troubling, especially as it drains funding from other successful schools, large and small."

Brunner sponsored HB 5696, which prohibits public schools, charters and intermediate school districts from requiring employees to sign nondisclosure agreements. Any contractor that provides personnel to those districts also must not force their employees to sign a nondisclosure agreement.

Tlaib introduced HB 5695, which ensures that charter and cyber schools that lease real estate do so at fair market value, assessed by an independent appraiser. It also caps the appropriation to cyber schools to 50 percent of the minimum per-pupil allowance that public schools receive.

"Cyber schools have extremely low costs and don't have to transport their students. It's ridiculous that some would receive $175 more per pupil when the increase for some public schools is only $50," Tlaib said.

The first of two full nights of the popular Super Kicker Championship Rodeo kicks off Friday at 7:30 p.m. The day's schedule also features the "4-H Cloverbud Learning Experience: Exploring Birds" from 9 to 11 a.m. behind the poultry barn, followed by the 4-H Livestock Judging Contest from 9 a.m. to noon and the 4-H Large Livestock Sweepstakes Contest at 7 p.m.

Super Kicker Championship Rodeo action returns Saturday at 7:30 p.m. The day's activities also include an open horse show at the horse arena at 9 a.m.

FAIR HISTORY

The Tuscola County Fair's roots date back to the early 1880s.

The Tuscola County Fair Association, initially known as the Caro District Agriculture Society, was organized March 11, 1881, 33 years after the nation's first state fair was held in Detroit. In September 1881, the fair hosted its first agricultural, industrial and recreational exhibit.

Always a primarily agricultural attraction, the county fair has displayed new farming equipment and methods, animals, produce and handicrafts on its current site.

The Tuscola County Fair pre-dates any of the football "bowl" games as well as the Indy 500. When the fair started, there was no Panama Canal, no radio, the Wright Brothers had not flown, Ellis Island was not in operation, Geronimo was still on the war path, and 12 states had yet to be admitted to the Union.

Harness racing was a popular sport in a horse-powered society, and the clay track at the fairgrounds was built in 1892 with 7,000 yards of dirt, mostly sand, and topped with 3,000 yards of clay — all hauled with horses and wagons — at a cost of roughly $1,000.

The first grandstand was completed in 1894 at a cost of $2,000 and looked much like the stands of Kentucky's Churchill Downs, seating 1,500 people. This was followed by a stage, with a cement block basement for dressing rooms. Horse barns, sheep and hog pens were also constructed. In the early 1900s, the fair office and two restrooms were built. At about the same time, the building later called Heritage Hall was constructed and basketball games were held there until the new Caro High School was built.

The first electricity was provided by the Michigan Sugar Factory's power plant. The railroad tracks leading to the plant were also used in the early era of the fair to bring entertainment acts to the fair. One of those acts was Katherine Stinson, the fourth licensed female pilot in the United States. Only 21 at the time, she became known as the "Flying Schoolgirl", flying exhibitions all over the country. Her plane was brought in by train and assembled in the infield of the track.

Over the years, many other world famous performers appeared at the Tuscola County Fair, including Gene Autry, The Cisco Kid, Minnie Pearl, Homer and Jethro, the Duke Ellington Band and the Glenn Miller Band.

Reporter's notebook

Take our money,
then dump us?

by Tom Montgomery
Editor

The company we purchase our auto insurance from is dumping us because my wife had a couple of accidents that resulted in two used vehicles being totaled over the past year or so.

We had full coverage on both vehicles, and up until a year ago my wife's driving record was spotless. I won't say how long she's been driving, but believe me when I say she has a loooooong record of safe driving.

Anyway, she was considered to be at fault in both accidents but wasn't ticketed or even scolded harshly — the first was a domino-type crash in which several drivers (my wife included) were forced to stop suddenly when some knot head cut another driver off in a construction zone on I-75. Her second accident came solo last winter after she plowed into an 18-inch snow drift in white-out conditions on Dickerson Road and rolled a car over in a farm field.

I suppose I don't blame insurance companies for getting rid of customers who have accidents, but they could at least return some of the money. After all, they gladly collect our premiums for years without having to pay up, and when they do have to pay, they dump us?

I'm sorry, but isn't that why we buy insurance? What am I missing here?

I sure am glad doctors don't operate that way (so to speak).

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Montgomery, but that's the second case of flu you're family has come to me with in the last 18 months. I'm afraid I'm going to have to drop you as a patient."

Have you ever had a local mechanic tell you to go jump in the lake because he's tired of fixing your flats or just can't stand to adjust your carburetor again? Of course not. They're providing a service and you're paying for it.

Now, life insurance companies have their ducks all in a row. They don't dump you because you almost died on the operating table, right?

Okay, so surgery doesn't cost them anything. My point is, they continue to accept your premiums, even if your habits aren't the healthiest, but they stick with you right to the end. That's comforting in a way.

Oh well. Now we're going to be shopping for another auto insurance company.

This time we're going to do it right. We'll keep up on those premiums just like we always have, but this time we're not going to have any accidents, so it won't cost them a dime! That'll show 'em.

On second thought, maybe our life insurance carrier would consider selling us an auto coverage rider.

Library important to the community

Some may say that libraries are no longer needed in this era of technology, but Jesika Struve will tell you that simply isn't so.

Struve, who has lived in Cass City her whole life, has worked as the children's librarian at Rawson Memorial District Library for five years. She said she loves being a part of the Rawson staff and helping out community book lovers.

As the children's librarian, she lends a hand to the children's section of the library in part by planning programs for area children to participate in and enjoy.

"I love my job," she said. "I love working with people and helping them find what they are looking for."

Struve said she thinks libraries are very important to small town communities and thinks that this library plays a big role in the Cass City community.

"We're a huge hub for the community," she said. "People come in to do a job search or research, or for online schooling, and I like that this is a place they can go."

Deford 4-Hers gearing up for the fair pared for flight for the fair.

Some notable projects they have completed include one involving the science of Star Wars, which demonstrated the science behind three different special effects.

Earlier this year, the group competed at the Team America Rocketry Challenge (TARC) in Virginia. The group's third trip to the national finals saw them place into the top 40 of competitors. Their first and second trips to the competition awarded them the 10th and 14th places nationally.

The Dazzlers is just one of many area 4-H groups that are gearing up for the fair this year. Other clubs from Cass City and Kingston, among others, participate as well.

Hansen said there's nothing more rewarding than being able to lead this 4-H group.

"We grew up working with these kids, and to see the light bulb go off in their eyes — to see when they finally get the concept — it makes it all worth it," she said.

was unable to post the $10,000 (10 percent) bond and has remained in our jail. Her late model Cadillac was seized along with about a gram of heroin."

The investigation originated with the Ubyly Police Department, Hanson noted, adding Janik has since been formally arraigned in Huron County District Court. Her bond was increased to $3,000 cash and she remains in jail.

Two days later, the sheriff's department received a tip regarding two females, enroute from the Detroit area, who were allegedly trafficking heroin in Huron County, according to the sheriff.

"Undercover deputies from our office found the suspected northbound vehicle in Lapeer County and followed it into Tuscola County. It was then decided by our deputies and Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies to stop the vehicle south of Unionville, on a side road off of M-24," Hanson said.

"About a gram of heroin was seized along with syringes, spoons and a Chevrolet four-wheel drive pickup," he added.

"The vehicle's 29-year-old passenger, Autumn Peruski from Gagetown, was arrested for unrelated Huron County felony heroin possession charges and transported back to our jail and lodged on a $2,500 cash bond," Hanson said. "The 36-year-old Bad Axe driver was released pending felony heroin delivery charges in Tuscola County."

The driver's four-year-old son, who was with the pair, was turned over to family members, and officers contacted the Michigan Department of Human Services to conduct an investigation, the sheriff noted.

Peruski was later arraigned in Huron County District Court on felony heroin possession charges. Bond was set at $5,000 cash for the suspect, who remains lodged in the Huron County jail.

Primary ballot loaded with state candidates

Daley is currently the state representative in District 82 (Lapeer County). First elected to the House in 2008, he previously served as an Arcadia Township official for 24 years, including roles as a trustee, treasurer and supervisor.

The offices of governor, U.S. senator and 10th District representative in Congress won't be decided until the November election, as no candidate faces opposition in the primary election.

Republican Gov. Rick Snyder, Ann Arbor, faces a challenge from Democrat Mark Schauer of Battle Creek; Republican Terry Lynn Land, Grandville, is being challenged by Gary Peters, Bloomfield Township, for the U.S. senate seat currently held by Carl Levin, who has reached his term limit; and Democrat Chuck Stadler of Vassar is challenging Republican incumbent Candice S.

Miller, Shelby Township, for the 10th District Congressional seat.

Health experts: combat diabetes with healthier habits, lifestyle

The Michigan Department of Community Health (MDCH) is encouraging residents to combat the risk of diabetes by maintaining healthy habits and quitting smoking.

According to a 2014 report released by the Surgeon General, smoking is shown to be an actual cause of diabetes and a risk factor for poor control of blood glucose or blood sugar. The report — "The Health Consequences of Smoking: 50 Years of Progress" — released in January, noted that smokers are 30 to 40 percent more likely to develop type 2 diabetes than people who do not smoke.

"Smoking negatively impacts blood flow, making it even more difficult to control blood glucose levels," said Dr. Matthew Davis, chief medical executive for the MDCH. "The more cigarettes smoked, the higher the risk of diabetes. The good news is that by quitting smoking today you can lower your risk of developing diabetes and other chronic diseases over time."

In 2012, one out of 10 Michigan adults were diagnosed with diabetes. An additional 250,000 were thought to already have the disease but were not yet diagnosed. More than a third of Michigan adults were already at high risk with a condition called pre-diabetes.

Diabetes is a word used for several conditions where blood glucose levels are too high. When a person eats, most of the food is turned into energy in the form of glucose. Insulin, a hormone made by the pancreas, keeps glucose levels in normal ranges by helping glucose move from the blood into the body's cells where it is used for energy.

In type 1 diabetes, the pancreas makes very little or no insulin. In type 2 diabetes, insulin that is still being made is not working as well as it should to keep blood glucose levels down.

Some people are at risk for diabetes, particularly type 2, and don't know it. Risk factors for type 2 diabetes include: a family history of the disease, being overweight, physical inactivity, high blood pressure, age, and a history of gestational (during pregnancy) diabetes for women. The Surgeon General's report makes it clear that smoking is a cause for type 2 diabetes as well.

Type 1 diabetes is an autoimmune disease and most commonly develops in children or young adults.

Diabetes can cause serious damage to organs and nerves. Heart attacks, strokes, blindness, amputations, and infections are well-known complications. Regardless of the type of diabetes, smoking makes it more difficult to control blood glucose levels. Smoking negatively impacts blood flow resulting in similar complications and compounds the risks caused by diabetes.

Learn how to prevent or manage diabetes by connecting with a local Diabetes Self-Management Education Program or learn more at www.michigan.gov/diabetes.

Cass City grad loves helping out her patients

by Andie Peck
 Staff Writer

For Dr. Mallory Powell-Wilkins, helping people has always been a passion, and she hopes to use that passion to give back to the region where she grew up.

Powell-Wilkins, who is currently seeing patients at the Chiropractic Wellness Center of Caro in the office of Dr. Bob Gabriel, offers services as a chiropractor and nutritionist, as well as in homeopathy.

She said she loves working in Caro and helping out the people of the area. She has been working there since March and also works at a similar practice in Birch Run.

Powell-Wilkins said she is grateful for the opportunity she has in Caro and appreciates the amount of trust involved in her becoming a part of Dr. Gabriel's practice.

"It is not always an easy thing to find someone that you trust enough to take on at your practice, so I was really happy when I found Dr. Bob," she said.

Powell-Wilkins, who sees patients for chiropractic care, as well as for nutritional counseling, added her goal is to make sure that her patients' bodies are well-nourished and working to their highest potential.

As a nutritionist, she offers ways to help her patients eat a balanced diet and assists them in working out specific diet plans.

"I also try and cooperate with the patient's regular doctor to figure out what works best for them," she said.

Powell-Wilkins became interested in this type of medicine when a family member started experiencing medical problems, and doctors could do nothing for them.

Powell-Wilkins went on to explain that, simply by altering the family member's diet, their symptoms subsided.

After this experience, she knew she wanted to learn more.

She said she believes that people don't realize that sometimes they don't need pills or conventional medicine to cure their symptoms.

"Once people experience what this can do, I think it will spread like wildfire," she said.

Powell-Wilkins graduated as valedictorian from Cass City High School in 2004 and went on to spend three years at Saginaw Valley State University, where she continued her education in chiropractic medicine.

She graduated from Palmer College in Iowa with a Dr. of Chiropractic degree.

Powell-Wilkins said she loves having the chance to improve the well-being of her patients and hopes that she can make a difference.

"I want to help people," she said. "Knowing that over time you can help with problems that maybe otherwise cannot be helped makes it all worth it."

A FAMILY TRADITION

Third Baker brother earns the Eagle

by Andie Peck
Staff Writer

Sometimes excellence just runs in the family.

For the Baker family of Cass City, this is the case, with generations of Bakers having achieved the highest honor a youth can achieve through the Boy Scouts of America: the rank of Eagle Scout.

Lucas Baker is the third of four sons of Jim and Stephanie Baker to earn the rank. The 18-year-old said he chose to become an Eagle Scout because he saw how fun it would be while growing up in a family actively involved in scouting.

He explained there are many requirements one has to meet before becoming an Eagle Scout.

To earn the rank, a boy must first progress through the ranks of Tenderfoot, Second Class, First Class, Star, Life and the Eagle. They must earn 21 merit badges, including first aid, citizenship in the community, citizenship in the nation, citizenship in the world, communications, environmental science and personal fitness.

In addition, the scout must complete a leadership project that is largely a service to their community.

"I built a pavilion at the Cass City practice football field," Lucas said. "It took a couple of weekends, and we had to raise a lot of funds to build it."

Jim explained his son chose to build the pavilion because he saw a need for it.

"He saw that people who practice on that field needed a place to go when it storms," he noted. "It really did turn out to be a solid project."

The leadership project must be done by the scout's 18th birthday, and Lucas finished his on April 27.

He said the project went smoothly and had only a few problems to overcome.

He explained that he learned how to fix some structural issues with the pavilion, and though he worked with an inexperienced group of roofers, the project could not have gone better.

"I really, truly am proud of the crew we had there," Jim added. "The group had very little building experience, but they read all the instructions, got the job done and did really well."

Baker's other sons have also completed service projects in town as part of their Eagle Scout service requirement.

"The project is community service oriented," he said. "They are things that need to be done."

Baker explained that the Boy Scouts of Cass City help out in the community whenever they can, cleaning up litter, volunteering at local blood drives, and even helping put flags up for Memorial Day.

"We do very well in Cass City," Baker said. "The people here are very generous and there is a good atmosphere for learning."

Baker said it means a lot to him that his sons have all worked so hard to become Eagle Scouts.

"It's a big deal," Baker said, adding that his grandfather was an Eagle Scout, as well as his father, his uncle and himself.

Lucas said he believes that being an Eagle Scout will benefit him in the future, and maybe even prepare him for an eventual career.

"It's given me different tools and a lot of diversity of skills," he said, adding that right now he is considering a future career in civil engineering.

Cass City graduate not ready to hang up cleats

Dakota Hartel's spikes won't spend much time in the garage of his parents' Cass City home. In that regard, the 2014 Red Hawk graduate won't be there much either after signing a national letter of intent with the Delta College Pioneer baseball program.

Hartel, who plans on studying heating and cooling while at the Saginaw school, was originally planning on commuting back-and-forth to Delta College. But after the Pioneer coaching staff witnessed Hartel in action for 4 games this spring, including Division 3 regional action, he was added to the Pioneers' 2014-15 roster and was told to move closer to campus.

Hartel was a Greater Thumb West all-conference first team infielder in his senior season. He punched out 27 hits in 80 official at-bats that included 10 doubles and one home run. Hartel batted for a .338 average. Hartel was also named an all-district pitcher. He appeared in 14 games during the year and held a 2.1 ERA. "Dakota has gotten better and better every year, especially in the batter's box. He led the team in doubles and walks, which is an average of one walk per game. He showed how to be patient when hitting and being a "table setter" for the other hitters coming up. His job was to get on base and I think a .513 on-base percentage proves he did his job. He was also our crunch-time pitcher. When we were in a jam, he came in, many times with runners on base in a close game," Coach Nathan Haag said.

As a junior, Hartel earned GTW Please turn to page 10.

BIG DAY. Cass City graduate Dakota Hartel, right, is welcomed by Manager Dan Smith after signing papers committing his services to the 2014-15 Delta College Pioneer baseball team.

Plenty of free swim dates planned at Cass City pool

Kids of all ages can enjoy the Helen Stevens Memorial Pool free of charge this week, and throughout the summer, thanks to the generosity of several area businesses and civic-minded groups.

Thumb National Bank, Farm Bureau Insurance, Kranz Funeral Home and Coach Light Pharmacy each helped to kick off a series of free swimming dates recently at the Cass City Recreational Park pool, and free swimming at the local pool on Friday and Sunday is courtesy of Hills and Dales General Hospital and the Novesta Church of Christ, respectively.

In addition to free swimming Sunday, Pastor Brad Speirs will be holding service in the Lions Pavilion at 9:30 a.m., with a softball game to follow.

At 11:30, the church will be grilling hot dogs and hamburgers before heading to the pool for free swimming from 1-5 p.m.

Other dates that you can enjoy the pool without dishing out a cent include: July 25, courtesy of Harris & Co.; July 27-31 courtesy of Pat Curtis and Curtis Chrysler; August 1, courtesy of Kelly & Co. Body art procedures carry health risks Body art modification has become increasingly popular, with one out of four persons ages 18-25 in the United States now having a tattoo or body piercing.

As body art such as tattoos or piercings becomes more common, the Michigan Department of Community Health (MDCH) is urging residents to protect their health and wellness by working with a local state licensed body art facility for their body art.

The MDCH is running public service announcements on Pandora Radio through August to help educate Michigan residents about the risks associated with getting body art from an unlicensed facility.

Residents interested in body art modification can protect themselves against infection by choosing licensed body art facilities when electing a tattoo or body piercing procedure.

Body art procedures are invasive processes that can be associated with serious health risks including transmission of blood-borne diseases such as Hepatitis B (HBV), Hepatitis C (HCV), and Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV). These procedures also carry the risk of skin infections such as Methicillin Resistant Staphylococcus Aureus (MRSA).

In 2010, State of Michigan Public Act 375 was enacted to encourage and require collaborative on-site facility inspections of body art facilities in Michigan to ensure the health and safety of residents.

Public Act 375, along with the Body Art Licensing Program at MDCH, requires licensed body art facilities to adhere to a uniform set of standards to protect the health and safety of body art practitioners, their customers, and the general public.

To learn more about the MDCH Body Art Licensing Program, body art procedure risks, body art facility licensing requirements, or to find a list of local state licensed body art facilities, visit the MDCH website at www.michigan.gov/bodyart.

honorably mentioned all-conference praisers on the pitching mound. Said Haag at the time: "Dakota was one of our top effective pitchers. He's always had an accurate arm and has consistently been one of our best infielders. Any ball hit to him was an automatic out. In the batter's box, he had the best set of eyes on the team. He was great at working the count to get his pitch to hit."

Enrollment goal met

Gov. Rick Snyder recently announced that after less than four months, enrollment for the Healthy Michigan Plan already has surpassed its first-year goal of 322,000.

As of July 10, Michigan has 323,022 Michigan residents enrolled in the program. The Healthy Michigan Plan extends health care benefits to a half-million low-income residents. Enrollment for the plan began April 1.

"The Healthy Michigan Plan is providing hard-working Michiganders with the health care coverage they need to lead healthy, productive lives," Snyder said. "Reaching our first-year goal in only 14 weeks shows that we are well on track for improving the quality of life for our residents as Michigan's comeback continues."

Snyder commended the Michigan departments of Community Health (MDCH), Human Services (DHS) and Technology, Management & Budget (DTMB) for their leadership in implementing the Healthy Michigan Plan, and the host of health and human services and business organizations for the help and hard work in spreading the word and helping Michiganders enroll.

"Enrolling more than 322,000 people shows that Michiganders are ready to make positive changes for their health and their communities," said MDCH Director James K. Haveman. "Reaching our goal ahead of schedule is great news for the physical and financial health of our state. Thank you to our business and health care partners for helping us meet the demand in our communities."

MDCH, DHS and DTMB continue to monitor systems, but overall, enrollment continues to go smoothly. Of the 323,022 new enrollees, more than 230,000 already have enrolled in a Medicaid health plan.

Just three weeks earlier, the Healthy Michigan Plan reached the milestone of 300,000 enrollees. The plan was signed into law by Snyder in September 2013 to emphasize personal responsibility while reducing uncompensated care that shifts costs onto taxpayers and businesses. Beneficiaries are required to share in the costs, and the plan has incentives for beneficiaries to maintain and improve a healthier lifestyle.

Health coverage under the Healthy Michigan Plan includes both federal and state mandated Essential Health Benefits such as ambulatory patient services, emergency services, hospitalization, mental health and substance use disorder services. These benefits encompass behavioral health treatment, prescription drugs, rehabilitative and habilitative services and devices, laboratory services, preventive and wellness services and chronic disease management, pediatric services including oral and vision care, and other medically necessary services as needed.

For more information about the progress of the Healthy Michigan Plan or to enroll, visit www.HealthyMichiganPlan.org, or a local Michigan Department of Human Services office.

Primary ballot includes proposal to cut personal property taxes in state

Proposal 1 on the Tuesday, Aug. 5, primary ballot would cut personal property taxes — those taxes levied on businesses for equipment and machinery — by about $500 million a year while ensuring that local units of government are reimbursed for the entirety of revenue lost due to the cuts, according to a new policy brief released by the Mackinac Center for Public Policy. “Voters are being asked to certify a $500 million reduction in an economically inefficient tax,” said James Hohman, assistant director of fiscal policy and author of the policy brief. “Taxing equipment and machinery discourages expansion and growth.”

If the proposal passes, it would put in place legislation already approved by Michigan lawmakers that creates three new exemptions for certain businesses that currently pay PPT.

If Proposal 1 passes, it would put in place legislation already approved by state lawmakers that creates three new exemptions for certain businesses that currently pay personal property taxes (PPT).

Those exemptions would free businesses with less than $80,000 of personal property from all PPT liability; phase in relief for manufacturing personal property that has been subjected to the tax for at least 10 years; and exempts all new manufacturing personal property.

The exemptions would result in a tax cut of more than $600 million annually, but would be offset by a new, smaller tax on personal property that qualifies for either of the latter two exemptions. That is estimated to raise about $117.5 million annually.

State and local governments receive about $1.3 billion in PPT revenue currently.

The bills that would become law should Proposal 1 pass would see the state set aside a portion of the Use tax revenue to reimburse local municipalities and school districts that experience a decrease in PPT revenue.

The state will accomplish this through a new authority that will levy a Use tax and redistribute the money back to local governments. This “local” Use tax will decrease the state Use tax, leaving taxpayers unaffected. Although the package of bills has already been approved, the Headlee Amendment requires that the matter be put to a vote because it creates a new “local” tax.

“The state is going to absorb the revenue lost from these exemptions while cutting the personal property tax,” Hohman said. “It’s a hefty tax cut that should encourage job growth.”
