Doing some grilling helped the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department work towards doing an even better job of protecting and serving – and investigating.

The sheriff's department is conducting some fundraisers in an effort to purchase a drone to help with investigations and other related police work, but a quality drone isn't a toy and it isn't cheap.

"A good one with extra batteries and the features we want is about $3,000," said Undersheriff Robert Baxter.

So far, about half of the cost has been raised, and most of the money raised to-date has come from hotdog sales. Northstar Bank has been helping the sheriff's department raise money. The bank is selling candy bars, and last week the bank invited the sheriff's department set up a grill in its parking lot to sell hot dogs, chips and a drink for a donation.

"The hotdog sale raised about $1,247 and the candy sale a cou-Please turn to page 6.

First indoor farm market in county to open in village

by Tom Montgomery Editor

There's good news for area residents anxiously awaiting the opening of a grocery store in Cass City later this year: fresh produce, homemade baked goods and other locally-grown and made products will be available for purchase in town starting this month.

Thumb Market Center officials recently announced the planned opening of the Cass City Farmers Market Friday, May 19, from 1 to 6 p.m. in the former Campbell Elementary School, 6627 Rose Street.

The operation – believed to be the first indoor farmers market in Tuscola County – is sharing former classroom space as well as hosting vendors in an adjacent parking lot through a partnership with the Thumb Area Psychological Services, which owns the building and land.

Although initially open only on Fridays, the market will be a seasonal as well as year-round venture, according to Vicky Sherry, who serves as Tuscola County Economic Development (EDC) communications director as well as president of the Thumb Market Center, which is sponsoring the local farmers market under the umbrella of the Greater Thumb Agri-Business Corporation.

Sherry explained that the Thumb Market Center is a non-profit organization formed to promote economic development in agriculture, with a focus on smaller-scale producers.

Sherry said Thumb Market Center officials have been discussing a shared space arrangement with the owners of Thumb Area Psychology Services for the past several months. "They're extremely community-minded, and we think this is one of the best efforts to help the community," she said.

"I'm thrilled that it came to be," added Sherry, who called the former school building "a little jewel in Cass City. We (previously looked at other) locations and it just didn't click."

Defendant in rape hoax faces jail time

by Tom Montgomery Editor

A Caro woman charged with fabricated claims that she was abducted and raped in Tuscola County's Wells Township last fall was ordered to serve one year in jail during her sentencing last week in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

Valerie M. Lesoski, 38, was also placed on three years of probation and ordered to pay court costs and fines totaling $1,826 plus attorneys fees of $500.

Lesoski previously entered the pleas of no contest to two counts of falsely reporting a felony. She was originally charged with four counts involving the alleged crimes of kidnapping, first degree criminal sexual conduct, second degree criminal sexual conduct and unlawful imprisonment.

Falsely reporting a felony carries a maximum penalty of up to four years in prison and/or a maximum of fine of $2,000. However, a plea agreement provided that Lesoski would not be sentenced to more than one year in jail, although she will be required to make restitution in the case. The specific amount has not yet been deter-

The charges are the result of a Michigan State Police investigation that began in late October, when Lesoski reported she was abducted and sexually assaulted in the area of Riley Road, between Pierce and East Dayton roads.

Days later, Tuscola County Prosecutor Mark E. Reene and Michigan State Police, Caro post, Commander First Lt. Todd Mapes issued a joint news release saying the alleged incident had been fabricated.

"(Lesoski) indicated she had stopped to assist a stranded motorist and was forced into a vehicle. She further stated she was driven to an unknown location and sexually assaulted," Reene stated. "It should be noted physical injuries were observed.

"Since the date of the initial report this matter...remained a top priority for the Michigan State Police," the prosecutor added. "Countless hours and resources (were) expended to investigate all information that became available. Multiple units within the department became involved with both obtaining and analyzing evidence."

Reene declined to be specific regarding details of the case, but indicated Lesoski was looking for an excuse to avoid some sort of obligation when she told police she had been attacked. Michigan

Local students take part in bike to school event

by Tom Montgomery Editor

Dozens of Cass City Elementary School students were scheduled to start their day off on bicycles today (Wednesday) for a fun event that also promotes physical activity among the community's youngest citizens.

The Cass City Schools is among a handful of districts in this area that participate in the annual Bike to School Day, according to teacher Rebecca Walker, who noted thousands of students take part in the activity across the country.

Walker said Cass City students were scheduled to meet at the high school bus corral at 7 a.m. this morning to leave on a route that began in the parking lot and con-

TRUE TO THE saying, "April showers bring May flowers", Mother Nature's floral splendor can be seen throughout the Thumb, including these bleeding hearts near Cass City. The weather pattern has remained cool and rainy, giving residents few peeks at the sun, but forecasters are predicting a gradual warm-up with (hopefully) an increase in sunny skies.

Owen-Gage names students of the month

The focus for Owen-Gage's students of the month for April is being a "Goal Setter". A student

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Tick season is here; protect yourselves

The Michigan Department of Health and Human Services (MDHHS) is encouraging Michigan residents to protect themselves from ticks as warm weather approaches. Tick-borne diseases, and particularly Lyme disease, are expanding across the state.

Although ticks can cause multiple illnesses, Lyme disease is the most commonly reported tick-borne disease in Michigan. Lyme disease is caused by the bacterium Borrelia burgdorferi and is transmitted by the blacklegged/deer tick.

The blacklegged tick is well-established in Michigan's western Upper and Lower Peninsulas. However, the ticks are expanding into new areas across the Lower Peninsula. In 2016, there were 221 human cases of Lyme disease reported, and roughly two out of three cases reported exposure in Michigan.

There were fewer than 30 human cases of Lyme disease reported in Michigan in any year between 2000 and 2004. By 2009, the number had jumped to 90 reported cases. By 2013, it was 166 cases.

That number could be very low. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), the number of Lyme disease cases nationwide could be 10 times higher than what's actually being reported. Because of Lyme disease's relative newness in Michigan, and because its early symptoms often mimic what feels like the flu, infected people — and even their doctors often don't test for it.

"With the expansion of blacklegged ticks into new areas in Michigan, the most important way to protect against Lyme disease is to prevent tick bites," said Dr. Eden Wells, chief medical executive of the MDHHS. "If you find a tick attached to your body, promptly remove it. Monitor your health and if you experience fever, rash, muscle or joint aches, or other symptoms, consult with your medical provider.'

People can protect themselves against Lyme disease and other tick-borne diseases by using the following tips

*Avoiding tick-infested areas. Walk in the center of trails to avoid contact with overgrown grass, brush, and leaf litter at trail edges.

*Protect your pets too. Dogs and cats can come into contact with ticks outdoors and bring them into the home, so using tick prevention products on pets is also recommended.

*Using insect repellent. Apply repellent containing DEET (20-30 percent) or Picaridin on exposed skin. Treat clothes (especially pants, socks, and shoes) with permethrin, which kills ticks on contact or buy clothes that are pre-treated. Do not use permethrin directly on

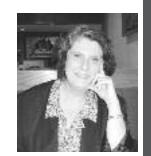

*Performing daily tick checks. Always check for ticks on yourself and your animals after being outdoors, even in your own yard. Inspect all body surfaces carefully, and remove attached ticks with tweezers. How to remove a tick: Grasp the tick firmly and as closely to the skin as possible. With a steady motion, pull the tick's body away from the skin. Cleanse the area with an antiseptic.

*Bathe or shower as soon as possible after coming indoors (preferably within two hours) to wash off and more easily find ticks that are crawling on you.

*Washing clothing in hot water, and drying on high heat will kill ticks in clothing, and help to prevent ticks from coming indoors.

Still older than Godzilla

My birthday was May 1. I'm not going to incriminate myself and say how many birthdays I've celebrated, but there have been more than a few and I'll let it go at that.

When my birthday rolls around, I think of Godzilla and back when my children were kids. Being semi-retired now, I have plenty of time to play on the Internet and do research. So, after checking facts while waiting for April the giraffe to give birth, I decided to utilize my keyboard skills to learn more about Godzilla.

Godzilla starred in 29 films... and counting. He even has his own star on the Hollywood Walk of

I always thought Godzilla's birthday was in the latter part of April. According to the Internet, he doesn't have a set birthday. Because the original Godzilla movie was released Nov. 3, 1954, some fans consider that as his birthday (I'll stick to my opinion - as the Zodiac sign of Taurus says, "We're stubborn like that").

Anyway, my research showed: with the nuclear bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki still fresh in the Japanese minds, Godzilla was conceived as a metaphor for nuclear weapons... the unintended mutant side effect of atomic weapons. He is the embodiment of "a lesson to us all" of the consequences of nuclear war.

I have always been fascinated with Godzilla and his movies, and my children apparently inherited my love for the big, green, scaly lizard. As each of my birthdays roll around, I think of the "Godzilla 1985" movie and remember my boys as children.

There must have been something on television that made me and the boys think Godzilla's birthday was in April. Jason was five years old back then and Chuck was nine. Both boys enjoyed drawing, so when they were huddled in their room with markers, paper and scissors, I thought they were making a birthday card for me.

They asked me how to spell birthday for them. I was puzzled when they asked me to also spell Tokyo as well as Japan. And I was baffled when they asked me to spell Godzilla, and for a postage stamp instead of just handing the card to me, but I thought kids will be kids.

My birthday came and went without a homemade card from them and not a "happy birthday, mom." I must say I was somewhat hurt, but just figured out the card wasn't to their satisfaction so they didn't give it to me.

Several days after my birthday there was a glued together envelope inside the mailbox. The address written in crayon said: to Mr. Godzilla, 1985, Tokyo, Japan. Inside was a birthday card my boys made for Godzilla.

Because both of my sons are Godzilla fans, they wanted to send him a birthday card. My heart melted, and I joked with them how they loved Godzilla more than me. I told them that I had thought they were making me a birthday card.

I told them my birthday date and year. Chuck's eyes got really big as he counted my age on his fingers. He blurted out, "You are older than Godzilla!" He realized the statement could be an insult, he backpedaled by saying, "We love you like Godzilla." That is still my family's pet saying after all these years, and a fond memory.

Among the notable comic routines of Bud Abbot and Lou Costello was one in which somehow through their calculations a girl who was much younger ended up being too old for them within a few years.

I need to find out how they calculated that so I can be younger than Godzilla.

Ever wonder if that speed trailer you occasionally see on the side of a roadway is keeping track of the number of vehicles that pass by — and their speed?

It is, according to Tuscola County Sheriff Glen Skrent, who last week reported on the stats from a speed trailer parked near the corner of Bevens and Underwood roads in Wells Township from April 26 through May 3.

The speed trailer, which features a lit sign displaying just how fast each vehicle is traveling as it approaches, recorded a total of 412 vehicles, according to the sheriff, who said the average number of speed violations per day was 135. The maximum speed recorded was 85 miles per hour, with an average speed of 49 miles per hour.

Skrent rated the sign's effectiveness at 75 percent.

The Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA)sponsored Drug Take Back Day effort has resulted in 52 pounds of old and/or unused prescription pills being collected in Sanilac County to-date, according to Sanilac County Drug Task Force Director Jim Johnson.

"The Saturday drop-off at the sheriff's lobby generated 25 pounds of pills," Johnson noted, adding, "During the first months of 2017, another 27 pounds was collected by the Sanilac Drug Task Force or dropped off at the Sanilac County Sheriff's lobby collection box.

"The drug task force reminds everyone that we will continue to pick up unused, expired medications year-round by calling (810) 648-4580, or they may be dropped off at the corrections lobby area of the Sanilac County Sheriff's Office, located at 65 N. Elk St. Sandusky," Johnson said.

"Your efforts to help remove these medications from those they were not intended for, and keeping the chemicals out of our water/eco systems is very much appreciated."

Lions Club member Kelly Smith says the local civic club would like to thank Cass City, and everyone that donated, for their support this past weekend during their annual White Cane fundraiser. Over $1,500 was collected to aid the blind during two days of giving at the Cass City stoplight.

The white cane is the international symbol of independence, mobility and safety for people who are blind or visually impaired.

"Conservation Trees is an ideal resource for tree planters," said Matt Harris, chief executive of the Arbor Day Foundation. "Taking care of existing trees is just as critical as planting new ones, and proper care ensures communities are able to fully enjoy the diverse benefits of urban forestry."

The booklet provides details about the right way to plant and prune trees. It also includes tips on using shade trees and windbreaks to save on energy costs, attract songbirds, and create a living snow fence.

Tuscola County, local communities showcased in new video production

By Mary Drier Special for the Chronicle

Tuscola County has a lot to offer, and a newly-created video will showcase that.

CGI Communications was hired to produce a video promoting the county. Local officials started working with the videographer to put together promotional segments featuring not only the county as a whole, but also its communities and businesses.

Tuscola County Board Chair Thom Bardwell, Cass City, is filmed in front of the courthouse as he starts the narration and talks about the county's many positives.

"The video was designed to help communities strengthen communications in showcasing economic development, tourism, education, quality of life, public services and more," explained Tuscola County Controller Mike Hoagland.

The video focuses on specific aspects each community has to

In the village of Cass City, for example, the video showcases its park system and health care services. The film features park amenities, Hills and Dales General Hospital, the senior living complex Northwood Meadows, the Cass Theater, Baker College and the wooden bridge over the Cass City River.

The video also includes a segment on the Thumb Octagon Barn near Gagetown, various businesses in different communities, agriculture, wildlife, and the 30,000 acres of state land throughout the county.

The video is broken-down into segments: education, economic development and agriculture, parks and recreation, and tourism and culture.

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN

According to Bardwell, technology has changed the way businesses promote themselves. "Internet access and video dramatically improves visibility to a wide audience," he said. The county's video can be streamed on a variety of devices.

There was no cost to the county for the project. CGI generated funds for production costs by asking businesses to advertise next to "The company has done 4,000 to 5,000 such videos for counties, villages, organizations, and businesses," said Hoagland.

Each year, millions of Americans face the reality of living with a mental health condition, as 1 in 5 U.S. adults will experience a mental health condition in their lifetime. For youth 1 in 5 ages 13 to 18 will experience a mental health disorder at some point in their life. Source National Alliance on Mental Illness

However, everyone is affected or impacted by mental health through friends, family or co-workers.

As we celebrate Mental Health Month, it's important to let our community members know that there is help, hope and understanding. By being supportive we can change the way people view mental health.

Reporter's notebook

Of the big move and childhood memories

by Tom Montgomery Editor

"Tom has added a lot to our classroom this year. He has a bubbling personality. Tom has been reading much more fluently and seems to attack new words much better. Number concepts don't seem to bother him. Tom has had some difficulty with his writing. His coordination seems to have developed, but Tom often rushes through his work so rapidly that it is often carelessly done."

—Mrs Geukes, first grade teacher, West Elementary School, Thornapple Kellogg School, Middleville., Mich.

I found the yellowed, typewritten progress report among a mountain of other keepsakes from my school days. There are dozens of report cards, examples of homework, old newspaper photos of the Little League baseball and pee wee football teams I played on in my youth, etc.

I say "keepsakes" because my mom considered just about everything a keepsake from what I can gather, looking at the thick, tattered School Years book she meticulously filled as I grew.

Hanging on to those memories was a lot of work back in the day (I entered kindergarten in 1967-68), considering there were no computers or cell phone cameras – no digital anything. As I recall, the luxury of electric typewriters – not to mention color TV and more than three channels — was still years away (for us) then

But I digress.

Every photo pasted in my book had to be developed and printed, and each entry was lovingly hand-written on pages as I progressed from grade to another.

The book along with other memorabilia from my youth was set aside in my mom's apartment in Grand Rapids with express instructions to take them home.

I no idea what a flood of memories they would trigger later as I poured over them.

My wife, Deb, and I recently traveled to the west side of the state to meet my some of my siblings and their families for a "moving out" party of sorts. My mom recently entered a long-term care facility, and it was time to empty her apartment and get everything stored.

It was a bittersweet day of hard work (her apartment was on the fifth floor). I think we've all struggled with mom's declining health and wanted to have around-clock-care available to her in order to prevent another fall or worse. At the same time, after initially resisting the idea of giving up her independence, mom came to the conclusion that she simply couldn't go on the way she has.

Her only real fear was living in the sort of facility she had seen friends and family members spend their final years in, surrounded by too many nurses and other staffers who had forgotten why they pursued a career focused on caring for others.

Frankly, we shared that fear.

Fortunately, we found a nice facility and, after pouring through reviews, tackling piles of red tape and arranging for her to visit, she was ready for a change. She has since settled in and seems to be enjoying the social aspect of her new community.

Still, moving most of mom's belongings made it all real. For me, there was a certain sense of sadness, knowing this was the same woman who had spent so much time ensuring the memories of her children's youth would be preserved for decades.

I think mom would have been proud if she could have witnessed the move. My slightly younger sister spent days packing and following her instructions as to what should go to whom (while her husband busied himself with moving and lifting), my much older sister and her husband and son and daughter were all on hand to help out, and Deb had a hand in just about every aspect of the day, after tackling much of the legwork involved in mom's admission and move to her new home. And me? I supervised, of course.

What better job for a son with such a bubbling personality?

One of Eugene A. Livingston's high producing cows went on a rampage on his Elkland Township farm recently and it was only after she had been issued several rations of sweets did she subside and return to her normal self. For a few days, it looked as though the owner might have to apply for a sugar ration card for Bossie, for Mrs. Livingston's sugar supply was reduced down to a half pound before a substitute sweet was discovered. This proved to be molasses, Mr. Livingston having purchased a five-barrel supply of this syrup to use for mixing with grass for silage. A pint of molasses a day for Bossie, like an apple a day for man, has kept the doctor away. The four-year-old bovine suddenly became unmanageable and apparently went temporarily insane until the sugar and later the molasses ration was administered on the advice of a veterinary surgeon. The malady which affects only a high producing cow depletes her sugar supply. In the temporary stage of insanity, the cow affected will chew her manger and attempt other unusual and unnatural feats. A diet which includes sweets restores the animal to a normal state of health.

Hundreds of students poised to tour the Thumb Octagon Barn

by Tom Montgomery Editor

A small army of volunteers is gearing up to host a small army of students from across the Thumb beyond this week as the 22nd annual Thumb Octagon Barn School Tours kicks off today (Wednesday) at the historic eight-sided barn and agricultural museum near Gagetown.

The tours for students from preschool through the eighth grade will continue throughout the day Thursday and Friday.

The theme of this year's school tours is "From Farm to Table - Highlighting Grain Processing", according to Diane Rapson Gabil, 2017 Thumb Octagon Barn School Tours chairperson.

"This theme ties directly to health, science and social studies curriculums at all grade levels. Students will learn the production of food for people and animals in the early 1900's, and how it was attained, kept/processed for use — when there weren't grocery stores on every corner," explained Rapson Gabil.

"Also (we'll be) highlighting how food production figured into life-long occupations and industries," she said, adding students will have the opportunity to learn more about how the food they eat today gets to their tables, how it's grown on a farm, and the preparation of those product to get them ready to eat or incorporated into other foods.

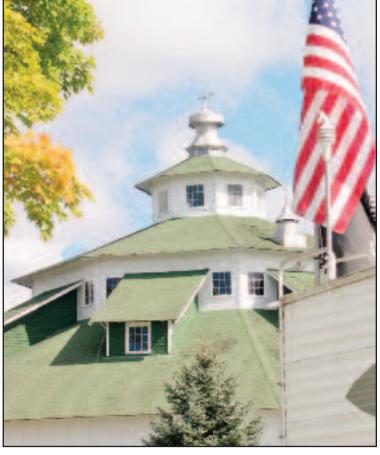

"Also, the students will learn what are the by-products of the grains, beans, corn, and other crops and how are they used not only in foods people and animals eat, but in other necessary products of today," Rapson Gabil continued.

Michigan State University Extension and local grain cooperatives/elevators will be providing educational materials, as well information on crops/food.

In addition, the tours will feature an introduction to the barn/museum, grain elevator, grist mill, live farm animals, children's story, Cora Purdy's diaries, folk music and instruments, live honey gees, milking station, chick/egg hatching, garage/vintage cars, trucks and memorabilia, tours of the Purdy farmhouse, powerhouse, children's activity area, tractors to "drive", old time music sing-along, one-room school house, school house museum, sugar shack/syrup evaporator, sawmill and museum, blacksmith shop, cider mill, souvenirs and tractor shuttle rides.

"There will be 25-plus educational stations for the students to visit," Rapson Gabil noted, adding most of the guided tours last about 4 ½ hours, but organizers also plan some briefer tours to meet the students' ages and scheduling needs.

In 2016, more than 1,300 students attended the barn tours from nine counties.

HUNDREDS OF area youngsters are expected to take part in this year's annual Thumb Octagon Barn School Tours.

State Police investigators used her description of the alleged attacker to create a sketch of the "suspect" that was subsequently disseminated to the media.

"I think the motivation here...she had certain obligations and commitments over that weekend and was trying to come up with an explanation as to why she wasn't at a particular place when she was supposed to be." he said.

Reene lauded what he described as the "extraordinary efforts of the Michigan State Police in conducting this investigation and reaching a definitive conclusion so the public can expeditiously be informed of its results."

In spite of the frustration inherent in spending hundreds of hours and a significant amount of money investigating a crime that didn't occur, Reene pointed out that area law enforcement officials again proved why they continue to play a vital role in keeping Tuscola County communities safe throughout the year.

"The process worked here – it worked the way you want it to," said Reene, who explained the investigators immediately went to work searching for a suspect once a crime was reported, then continued following up on leads and additional information until the incident was resolved.

"Our community is well served and benefits each and every day from these dedicated and tireless efforts."

ple of hundred so far," Baxter noted.

He explained investigators could use the drone to assist them in a variety of cases, including search and locating a missing person, conducting, collecting aerial views and photographing accident scenes as well as recording property and structural damage assessments.

Drones have been used for aerial observations and photographs by the military and farmers, and now law enforcement is embracing its capabilities.

Drones aren't just child's play. Depending on their size and capabilities, there are requirements to operate them, including a special operator's license.

"Josh Herman took the necessary class to pilot it when we are able to get it. He used study guides from the FAA (Federal Aviation Administration) and completed research on several other websites to prepare for the test," Baxter explained. "So there was no cost for the training. He completed a lot of training on his own time."

The cost for the remote pilot's license was $150. The class was held at AvFlight, which is located at Flint Bishop Airport.

The Remote Pilot Certification covers regulations, operating requirements, aviation weather observations, the effects of weather on the drone, decision-making and several other subjects needed to fly a drone safely.

"Once our drone is purchased, he will have to log test flights to learn how to fly the specific drone and learn the capabilities of the drone," Baxter said, noting Herman's hobby will be a help in operating the equipment.

"Josh rarely plays any video games, but does have some previous experience in flying a recreational drone and remote-controlled cars," he added tinued down Chestnut Boulevard to Hemlock Lane.

"From Hemlock the ride will then travel to Beechwood Drive, Beechwood Drive to Spruce Street, Spruce Street to Hunt Street, Hunt to Huron Street, Huron to Kennebec Drive, Kennebec to Rose Street, and Rose to Ale Street and end behind the old elementary building," she said.

"Riders will be assisted and accompanied by members of the Cass City Elementary School Coordinated Health Team, the (Elkland Township) Fire Department and the Cass City Police Department," Walker added.

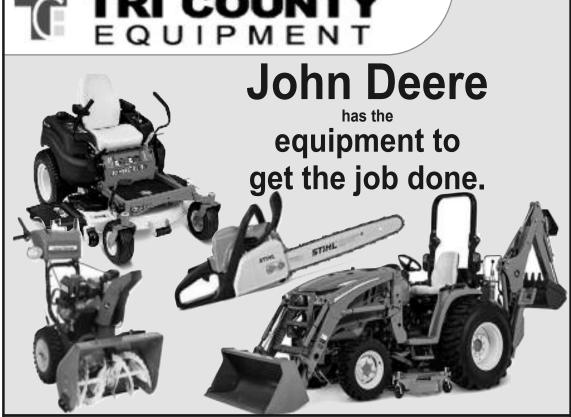

Cass City physical education teacher Adam Dorland, who coordinated this year's event, said studies have shown that kids who walk or bicycle to school benefit from the physical activity in a number of ways, including improved weight and blood pressure control; bone, muscle and joint health maintenance; a reduction in the risk of diabetes; improved psychological welfare; and better academic performance.

Cass City Elementary School first participated in the Bike to School Day in 2015. Roughly 150 students took part, and school officials indicated they were hoping to see that number increase this year.

Cass City home to farm market

The new farmers market is putting out the word, inviting prospective vendors to participate by calling Market Manager Al Cox at (989) 670-1429, or the Tuscola County EDC Office in Caro at (989) 673-2849 for a vendor application and more informa-

Sherry said indoor 12-foot by 12foot spaces will be rented for $12 a week, with a 13-percent discount for those who sign up for 28 weeks. In the parking lot, two different sized vendor spaces are available at a cost of $10 to $15 a week, also with a discount available for 28 weeks of participation.

"I think this is a fantastic opportunity," she added, referring to smaller producers and crafters to showcase their wares, whether they specialize in nursery plants, fresh produce, home-baked goods or unique craft items. "We're hoping to get a lot of Amish vendors because this is a great venue for them.'

Cox agreed. "The Amish folks are close - they're a pretty good contributor and I expect to see a good showing from them along with other vendors," he said.

Sherry described Cox as a godsend, saying his background and people skills make for a perfect fit in the role of market manager. "He's just extraordinary. He works so well with the farmers,"

Cox has been around produce since his youth, including time spent with his grandparents on their Kingston area farm, and later when he and his parents moved to Illinois where they worked at a ranch. Later, Cox put in a stint working on a dairy farm.

More recently, he has been involved with the farmers market in Caro, first as a vendor and later serving as market manager.

Cox says the ample traffic moving through Cass City makes the community an ideal location for a farmers market. The key, he pointed out, will be to familiarize area residents with the operation and what it has to offer.

"Think that's the main point to get something off the ground. Once they discover it, the customer base just grows," said Cox, who indicated customer loyalty is built not only on the availability of fresh, locally-grown or made products, but also on a desire to mingle with friends and neighbors on a regular basis. "It is a social gathering," he added.

The news of a farmers market comes just a couple weeks after Ben's Supercenter Inc. owner Jim Zyrowski announced plans to gut and renovate the former Erla Foods building in Cass City, which has set vacant since former owner Venu Ganga closed the business about three years ago.

Ben's Supercenter Inc. has locations in both Marlette and Brown City, offering groceries as well as contractor and sporting goods outlets, but Zyrowski said his expansion to Cass City will focus on a full-service grocery store, including a bakery, deli and specialty Zyrowski said he hopes to open the doors to the new local business by the end of the year.

lems associated with methamphetamine production.

The public-private partnership was developed by CHPA, a national trade group representing the manufacturers of over-the-counter (OTC) medicines, and is based on extensive research and message testing that has proven to yield positive results.

"Meth use is something that has greatly affected our state, from the Upper Peninsula to Detroit and all areas in between," Schuette said. "Talking about how anyone can inadvertently play a role in the process of meth production is one of the keys to stopping the problem in its tracks.

"The message is clear: if you're buying over-the-counter medicine for a meth cook, you're breaking the law and contributing to one of the most serious problems in Michigan."

"As the sponsor of the initial legislation that enacted the National Precursor Log Exchange (NPLEx) system, I am very pleased to be a part of this campaign to educate consumers of the terrible costs of smurfing to the community," added Proos. "Michigan has been very proactive in our fight against meth production and we have ensured that tools are in place to make it much more difficult for meth makers to get their hands on

"Smurfing is not just a user problem, it is a health, safety and public welfare issue, too. People who make meth can be found throughout the state, so informing our citizens about the warning signs of smurfing will help curb the threat at its initial stages and enhance public safety," said Reene, who in addition to his role as a county prosecutor serves as president of the Prosecuting Attorneys Associ-

ecutor's office have dealt with a number of cases involving meth production. He said officials are making progress in the effort to curb what presents a serious health risk to anyone who comes in contact with such operations.

"The numbers across the state are pretty staggering when it comes to meth labs," added Reene, who said Michigan saw roughly 1,180 cases involving meth labs in 2015 – second highest in the nation – up from 525 cases in 2011.

"Retailers are on the front lines of the meth fight every day and we take very seriously our responsibility to the community. The posters and other collateral material will be a strong, proactive way to discourage smurfing, while protecting the rights of law abiding cold and allergy sufferers in Michigan," said James P. Hallan of the Michigan Retailers Associ-

"As pharmacists, we are some of the most trusted professionals in healthcare. We understand the responsibility we have to make sure that PSE does not fall into the hands of meth producers," Pharmacist Dianne Malburg, chief operating officer of the Michigan Pharmacists Association, said.

"By displaying these signs in pharmacies, we believe that they

"The Anti-Smurfing Campaign, coupled with the use of NPLEx, gives Michigan another effective tool in the state's fight against meth production."

> Last year, 8,744 boxes of cold and allergy medicine were blocked from sale after being flagged as suspect by the NPLEx

> "The manufacturers of PSE containing cold and allergy medication take very seriously the diversion of our products into the production of methamphetamine," said Carlos Gutierrez of CHPA.

> "We are steadfast in our desire to eliminate illegal purchases while at the same time protecting the rights of law-abiding cold and allergy suffering families," Gutierrez added. Reese Invite displays depth in league race

by Clarke Haire Publisher

There seems to be several conference title contenders for the 2017 Greater Thumb West (GTW) men's track championship.

At Friday's Reese Invite, it was a tight battle for team honors between the GTW schools Reese and Bad Axe and Greater Thumb East power Marlette. In fact, when the final scores were tabulated, Reese and Marlette would share top billing on the day with 113 points each, while the Hatchets finished third with 111. The complete team standings also had North Branch with 93, Cass City 82, Vassar 60, Mayville 57 and Elkton-Pigeon-Bay Port 27.

"It was a very cold and windy

CASS CITY'S Zane Wright separates himself from the pack during the 3200 meter relay at the Reese In-day and we suffered a couple of minor injuries that affected our performances and team score for the meet," said Cass City Coach Jon Zdrojewski.

"First off CarLee Stimpfel suffered a back cramp during the third lap of the 1600 meter run and therefore was unable to win and was beaten by Bad Axe's Kendal Delpiere. He narrowly held off Bad Axe's David Knarian to finish

TJ Moore also suffered a minor injury during the 400 meter dash and as a result was unable to compete in the shot put, which he was the second seeded athlete. TJ also missed the 1600 meter relay," he

Although the absence of the two injured Cass City point winners couldn't be helped, Zdrojewski was happy with many performances handed in by his defending GTW champion Red Hawks, including those from a pair of first year team members.

"Freshman Drew Markel was one of the only athletes to post a personal best time in the very trying conditions. He finished 9th in the 1600 meter run with a new personal record, as well as setting a new personal record in the 3200 meter run with a time of 11:56. Freshman Kris Nika also stepped up and ran the 300 meter hurdles for the first time and ran a team best time for the season of 49.74 taking 8th place," said Zdrojew-

Other efforts singled out by the veteran mentor had senior Brady Warford posting a personal best in the shot put with a distance of 42' 9", while the 3200 meter relay team finished in second place with Zane Wright running a very strong 800 meter leg.

"I look for Zane to continue to run strong and maybe look to him to surprise in Regionals, Zdrojewski said, adding, "The team finished behind league rivals Reese and Bad Axe. This will make the conference meet very interesting on Tuesday, May 16, at the Cass City Track and Field Complex."

Individual winners for the men long jump (16' 3").

For the Lady Red Hawks, freshman Mary Muter finished third in the 800 meter run (2:50) while sophomore Hailey Schmotzer finished 5th in both the 100 meter hurdles and 300 meter hurdles. Cass City also had freshman Kenidee Stanhope place 6th in the 100 meter dash.

In game one, North Branch struck for six runs in the fourth inning - thanks in part to home runs by Lily Ragaatz and Olivia Sweeney - to take a 7-2 advantage, only to see Cass City plate eight runs in the bottom of the sixth to tie the offensive thriller at 13-13. Sayge Cuthrell keyed the Red Hawk comeback effort with her bases loaded double to even

Sweeney started on the mound for the visitors and worked six innings without earning a decision. She allowed nine hits and issued eight free passes, before handing the ball to Julie Ruhlman who earned the victory on the hill after just 18 pitches. She allowed one hit, fanned one and did not allow

For Cass City, Baylee Murphy clubbed a home run over the left field wall and scored three runs, while Bailee Ross recorded three hits and Lauren Dickinson two. Ross and Dickinson had two RBIs

For North Branch, Autumn Deshetsky had a pair of extra base hits, while Claire Lyons chipped in a double.

Cuthrell gave up a season high 15 hits and suffered the defeat. She whiffed seven, but was hurt by three errors.

In game two, North Branch made quick work of disposing of their hosts. A huge 15 run first inning had the Broncos well on their way to the three inning beat down. Sweeney and Ragatz each sent shots over the right center field fence for the winners in the initial Danyelle Wells, Maeson Schlaud and Ruhlman handled the mound chores for North Branch combining for four strike outs, while allowing five runs. Wells was the pitcher of record for the Broncos. Ross took the defeat for Cass City. She surrendered 14 hits.

USA GAMES

Unionville-Sebewaing Area took control of the Greater Thumb West softball race last week after sweeping host Cass City. Scores of Wednesday's matchup were 7-4 and 2-1 as the Patriots remained perfect in conference play.

Trailing 2-1, the Patriots never panicked and would strike for five runs in the top of the fifth inning on their way to victory in game

Katie Engelhardt struck out 11 to earn the decision for USA. Cuthrell fanned nine for Cass City and was hit with the loss. Both hurdlers tossed complete games. Please turn to page 10.

Although out hit, USA boys win two

Unionville-Sebewaing Area held host Cass City scoreless last Wednesday, winning both ends of a Greater Thumb West baseball double header by identical scores of 3-0.

In the early game, the Patriots scored solo runs in the 2nd and 3rd innings and then held on for the GTW victory.

Devin Risky earned the win on the mound for the visitors. He tossed a complete game allowing just four hits, while fanning three and issuing two free passes.

Cass City's Joey Krol was the victim of a lackluster attack and was strapped with the loss. He, too, went the distance, yielding six hits and striking out four.

The Patriots took the lead for good on Cody Finkbeiner's second inning home run. Paul Miklovic added two hits for the

Cass City, meanwhile, had Brent Baker with a double, while Luke Stern, Sandyn Cuthrell and Hunter

Vaughan chipped in singles. In the late game, a pitchers' duel went the Patriot's way.

Brendan Prime scattered six hits to best Cass City's Stern for pitching honors. Prime recorded six strike outs and walked two to collect the Patriot victory.

In an equally dominating show, Stern gave up just two hits and one earned run. He had four Ks.

With the game scoreless, it looked like Cass City would break into the scoring column in the 5th inning when Nick Perry was called safe at home plate for the game's apparent first marker. However, a quick toss from Patriot catcher Cooper Kauffold caught Vaughan attempting to reach third base for the final out in the frame. In a controversial call, it was ruled that Perry didn't reach home base before Vaughan's tag at third was made.

"It is pretty disappointing when you out hit your opponent in both games, but can't get a win. The guys played well, we just couldn't seem to string together any hits in a row. Joey and Luke both pitched great games and neither deserved to lose their game," said Cass City Coach Josh Stern.

"The call that may have cost us the second game was unfortunate, but again, we need to score runs to win and we just didn't Wednesday night."

The Patriots defense sparked their offense and runs by Miklovic, Prime and Risky in the bottom of the sixth proved plenty for Coach Tyler Bader's squad. At the plate, Cass City had Perry with a double and Cuthrell with a pair of singles leading the way. Miklovic and Prime had the lone knocks for Unionville-Sebewaing

Alexis Cady, and Brianna Area, as did Ross for Cass City.

Schneeberger's ATHLETE of the WEEK

Cass City's Hunter McGrath is Schneeberger's choice for their coveted Athlete of the Week award honors.

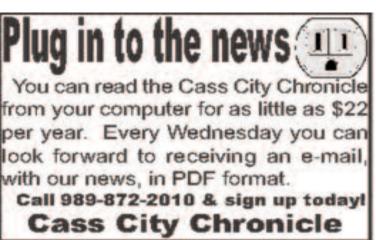

The Cass City senior golfer has started to find his stroke recently for first year Coach Jon Ligrow. At the Red Hawks' own jamboree last Tuesday, Mc-Grath shot a team-best score of 44 at Rolling Hills Golf Course – nine shots better than his closest teammate - to lead the McGrath has always played his best golf late in the season. Last year, he was the medalist at the district tournament held at Verona Hills Golf Course in Bad Axe, where he shot an impressive round of 77. Hunter is the son of Debra Cook and Bill McGrath.

State police commemorate a century of tradition

by Mary Drier Special for the Chronicle

Michigan had homeland security long before the federal government developed the concept.

The state's homeland security started 100 years ago during World War I. On April 19, 1916, the Michigan State Troops Permanent Force of mounted units and dismounted units was created and named the Michigan State Constabulary. That was the forerunner of the current Michigan State Police (MSP).

As part of the centennial celebration of the agency, the look of some familiar MSP items has changed to commemorate the anniversary. Troopers are once again wearing round doughboy-style hats instead of the traditional billbrimmed hats.

"They are called campaign hats. There are a lot of highway patrols in other states that wear that style of hat," explained First Lt. Todd Mapes, commander of the Michigan State Police post in Caro. "We are all wearing them for the 100th-year anniversary."

In addition, there are now some black and gold patrol cruisers to go along with the standard MSP blue ones.

"We have one of the new cruisers assigned to our post. It's black and gold look is different, but the inside it's exactly the same as the other units," Mapes said. "It's being used for patrols just like the other ones."

The special cruiser was created in honor of the 100th anniversary of the MSP's founding, according to Mapes, who anticipates the state will keep the traditional blue MSP patrol vehicles.

The Michigan State Troops Permanent Force of mounted units and dismounted units was an emergency service used during World War I as a replacement for the National Guard for domestic

The Michigan State Police started out under the name of the Michigan State Constabulary, Mapes noted.

The mounted aspect of the original name of the unit meant riding horses, and dismounted meant using motor vehicles. In fact, before the Caro MSP post relocated to its 7,546-square-foot facility on M-24 in 2000, the former post on Millwood Street - since torn down — started out as a carriage factory and stable in the 1900s.

Public Act 53 of 1917, authored by then-Gov. Albert Sleeper, who was originally from Caseville and served as chairman of the "War Preparedness Board", created the constabulary for domestic secu-

It was the constabulary's job to guard war production facilities and also to enforce liquor trafficking laws during prohibition.

Because Sleeper was impressed with the constabulary's performance, he and the state's lawmakers permanently established the Department of Michigan State Police with P.A. 26 on March 27, 1919.

Back then, the fledgling MSP had four mounted troops who were each assigned responsibilities for a section of the state. They had full authority to enforce traffic laws, conduct criminal investigations, enforce prohibition laws, and patrol rural areas.

Later, in 1921, the MSP became the uniform division of the Michigan Department of Public Safety, eventually assuming the duties of the former state oil inspector, state fire marshal, transferring prison inmates, and the prohibition section of the Food and Drug Department, according to the MSP history.

When the constabulary started, its headquarters was in a portable wooden barracks on 90-acres of the then-Michigan Agricultural College's (Michigan State University) poultry research farm.

From 1935 to 1941, major building projects were done to replace the hodge-podge rented and temporary MSP barracks. To do that, grant money from the depressionera Works Progress Administrator was used.

The MSP has since seen many changes, from being a temporary agency for homeland security during the "war that would end all wars" and using modes of transportation that included horses, motorcycles and roadster-era vehicles for patrols, to patrolling in cruisers equipped with computers utilizing state-of-the-art forensic investigation techniques.

"It is an honor to be part of the MSP during this time, and be a commander," said Mapes. "There is a lot of tradition in the MSP and I'm proud to be part of it."

IN HONOR OF the Michigan State Police 100-year anniversary, a special black and gold cruiser was designed and issued to posts. The MSP post in Caro was one of the posts to receive the unique vehicle. (Photo courtesy of the Michigan State Police)

BACK IN 1937, Michigan State Police vehicles were black and gold instead of the blue that is used on today's cruisers. The standard vehicle used back then was a Ford Model 74. (Photo courtesy of the Michigan State Police)

Special needs focus of law

MICHIGAN — Parents or guardians of a child or adult with special needs can now request that their fingerprints and photograph be taken and included in the Michigan State Police's statewide network system to be used in the event the child or adult goes missing, under legislation signed Thursday by Gov. Rick Snyder.

"Ensuring that all Michiganders can be identified quickly in an emergency situation is critically important," Snyder said. "This legislation helps parents or guardians of individuals with special needs have greater peace of mind knowing that their loved one can be identified, should an unforeseen emergency occur."

The legislation expands the current Child Identification and Protection Act to permit a parent or guardian of a child with special needs to request that the child's fingerprints and photograph to be used for distribution, should the child go missing.
