

Area dairymen see fight for consumers' dollar

By Stan Putnam

If cows aren't careful they, too, can be replaced and if dairymen don't do right by Old Boss they're going to be hurting.

For that fabulous inventor of new fangled things - the American free enterprise system - has come up with a product that could put the cow to pasture along with the horse that once drew the buggy: - imitation milk.

Imitation milk won't revolutionize the world the way the car did, dairymen are convinced, but the threat posed by the substitute product to their market makes them heart sick.

For in the market the consumer is king and there is real concern that, for a number of reasons, the fickle consumer may vote in favor of "Tingle" instead of "Elsie" the way they voted for "Pream" instead of cream, for margarine instead of butter, for made-up fruit juices instead of the fresh-squeeze kind.

BEGAN IN '66

The rumble over the imitation milk products - they came in all current forms of milk products except cottage cheese and the enterprise system is working on that one, too - started in the west in '66.

Arizona and California, to be exact. A long way from Michigan, but the soaring sales records out there in the sunshine country is breeding trouble right here in Cass City.

A spot survey among local dairymen conducted by the Chronicle this week shows that: - while none of them have seen the products on any market shelf, or tasted any samples, they've all heard about them and are aware of the danger to their market.

All are willing to toss in extra pennies to buy a "drink milk" advertising campaign and research into new uses for raw milk.

All are convinced that it's up to the dairy farmer - through his various associations - to come up with the answer to how to counter the threat and not trust those who market the milk: the dairies and super-markets.

WON'T REPEAT ERROR
They refuse to repeat the mistake made many years ago when dairymen fought a bitter war against oleo-margarine and found that the battle had only given the butter-substitute a lot of free advertising.

None know where this struggle for the favors of consumer will end and how much it will cost them.

Pessimists say that, unless the dairymen move and move fast, imitation milk could capture 10 to 15% of the market in the next few years.

Optimists say that following perhaps a brief honeymoon as consumers try the new products the demand will reach a plateau and stay there.

But, in spite of state legislation which now bans the sale of skim milk using vegetable fat instead of butterfat (so called "filled milk") area dairymen are being warned by the Michigan Milk Producers Association that there's a war coming with products challenging "nature's most perfect food."

LOCAL COMMENTS
"It's quite a problem," said Donald Loomis, putting aside the hammer he was using in building a new 70-stall barn on his farm on Cedar Run Road.

Loomis, and his younger brother David, first heard of the advent on imitation milk at a dairymen's meeting in Cass City in December.

"It's going to be a real threat to the market."

"I hear about it every place I go," Clare Carpenter said as he and his two sons wound up chores one morning last week on his farm on Bay City-Forestville Road.

"We don't know what's going to happen and so you don't know what to do," his son, Dick, chimed in. "You don't know whether to expand or hold tight."

The elder Carpenter noted that he had attended a farmer's meeting in Lansing recently and had been told: "We will have to do something and do it quick."

"The only thing I know," conceded Donald Koepgen as he was rolling paint on a barn ceiling and his face out on his Koepgen Road farm one day last week, "is what I read about and the film that is being shown by the ADA (American Dairymen's Association - the cows' propaganda arm to promote milk.)

"Pricewise it will be just like it was with oleo," he said. "Every sale, every little bit will cut down on the use of raw whole milk."

PRICE IMPORTANT

"Michigan Milk Producers Association is quite concerned," said Gerald Hicks as he stood in his milk room following a slow morning on his farm down on Crawford Road. "It will all depend on price. We can't price ourselves right out of the market. Or they will flood the market with filled milk."

Alfred Ballweg, director of the county's extension service, put the threat this way:

"If they (the supermarkets, dairies, etc.) can make more money selling imitation milk over selling regular milk, they won't care if the dairymen suffers. Their business is selling."

Hicks, noting that the contest will center on prices, said "That's the American system."

And the system is already at work in Michigan where one dairy in the southern tier is marketing a form of imitation milk made from sodium caseinate (a chemical derived from milk) combined with vegetable fats.

This is one form in which imitation milk is being manufactured. Others include a product made from fluid skim milk or milk powder combined with coconut oil and another product made entirely from soy (bean) protein.

TASTES FOR REAL

If it sounds ghastly, it isn't. Reports state that the stuff tastes for real. With chemical additives, imitation products can be brought up on a par with milk in terms of nutritional value.

"When I went to a meeting over in Muskegon," Hicks said,

"I roomed with a fellow from Chicago who had tried filled milk. He said he gave some to his cat and it fooled the cat. It's got to be good to fool a cat."

Imitation milk is expected to appeal to the consumer because it can be sold at a lower price (averaging 10¢ to 15¢ less a half-gallon); it has a longer shelf life, and promotional pitches can be aimed at the "calorie" watchers and "cholesterol" worriers.

"You see, in Arizona they can't keep whole milk for more than a day," said Dave Loomis, trying to explain away the popularity with which imitation milk was received there a year ago, a popularity which "really hurt dairymen."

If a similar popularity were to sweep Detroit sometime in the future, the Loomises, the Carpenters, the Hicks, the Koepgens; in fact, the whole country could be hurt.

Jury rules for county lawmen

A Tuscola County Jury in Circuit Court ruled Thursday that there was "no cause for action" in a civil suit seeking a $50,000 judgement against a Caro police officer and two deputy sheriffs.

The suit, filed by Harley Brock Jr., 19, of 1691 East Dixon Road, Caro, had alleged that the three officers had been

Four youths nailed for beer snatch

Four area youths were arrested last week by Michigan State Police and charged with stealing beer and wine from Erla's Food Center in Cass City.

Pleading guilty Friday before Caro Justice of the Peace Frank Rolka were David Bliss, 18, of 5855 Cass City Road, Cass City, and William Goss, 17, of Deckerville Road, Deford.

Rolka fined Bliss $65 and $5 in costs and placed Goss on three months probation.

The other two youths involved are minors and their cases have been assigned to the county's probationary court.

According to the State Police, the arrests followed the investigation into a cache of beer and wine found in a wooded area about one and a half miles southwest of Cass City.

The police had been tipped off that the beer was there and that a big beer party was being planned by the youths.

Investigation revealed that the ten cases of beer, two one-half gallons of wine and another fifth of wine, had been stolen from the market on the night of Feb. 5.

The arrests were made on Friday.

March draft dodges Cass City area

A total of 21 Tuscola county youths between the ages of 19 and 25 will be inducted into the service during March, none of them from Cass City.

Tuscola's contribution to the pipe line will go to make up the total of 2,805 Michigan youths who will be drawn into service next month from Michigan, according to the state selective service board.

Next month's call-up will be the largest for the local state boards since 1966.

The county's selective service board in Caro noted that its largest draft ever made since the Viet Nam War broke open for real in the winter of 1965 was in January 1966 when 72 county lads were called to the colors.

Clerks in the county office said that the number called in the county has varied too much over the years to make up realistic "average monthly" figures.

Also, the local office says that it has been instructed from state selective service headquarters not to give out the guilty of "excessive physical force" in arresting Brock.

The jury's decision was immediately hailed by county authorities as a "triumph of justice in the cause of law enforcement."

The jury took 35 minutes to reach its 11-1 decision in the defendants' favor after a day and a half long trial before County Circuit Court Judge James P. Churchill.

The suit stemmed out of an incident that happened in October, 1966, when the three officers arrested Brock for speeding along M-81 just west of Caro.

Brock charged that when he was apprehended, the three officers had "severely mauled him without provocation," and had struck him on the mouth with a pair of handcuffs.

The suit alleged that Brock suffered serious and permanent injuries to his mouth, including the loss of teeth.

In their defense, the officers asserted that they had "used no more force than necessary" to subdue Brock and had used the handcuffs for their own protection.

Shortly after the verdict had been rendered, Sheriff Hugh Marr said that he felt that justice had been served.

He said that when police officers are found guilty of using excessive force then they should be punished but that they must be able to use whatever force they deem necessary to carry out their job protecting the life and limb of citizens.

He said that if the judgment had gone against the three officers, then police officers everywhere would have to worry in whatever situation they faced whether they would be sued.

Marr said that law enforcement officers have a tough enough time these days in carrying out their responsibility without the added burden of being threatened with civil suits after every arrest.

One for the money Two for the show Three to . . . ?

Walter Bertul, 28, of Snover, had better start looking for another job before it's too late.

That is, he better start after he is released from the Port Huron Hospital.

Bertul's been driving milk tank trucks and he just hasn't had the luck with him these past several months.

In fact, he has two strikes against him.

Last September, while piloting a 28,000 pound load of milk, Bertul narrowly missed injury when his rig crashed through a bridge across the Cass River.

The accident happened on Hadley Road, about four miles south and five miles east of Cass City, and Bertul was forced to evacuate his truck through the cab window. The rig, some $45,000 worth of truck, was demolished.

That wasn't bad enough. Last Thursday Bertul himself was almost demolished.

Piloting another milk truck along M-46 about four miles west of Sandusky last Thursday, Bertul hit two concrete abutments and crashed into a tree.

There was no quick escape

$20,000 donation sparks new building for Masons

Sparked by a $20,000 donation from a Cass City couple who prefer to remain anonymous, Tyler Lodge No. 317 F & AM is steaming ahead with plans for a spanking new building at the corner of Maple and Garfield Streets.

The new brick building will be erected this spring over a previously built basement purchased from the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church.

A building committee under the direction of Ed Golding Sr., president of the building association, is already drawing plans.

"The reason we plan to get by for just $20,000, Golding said, is that members of the Lodge plan to do much of the work themselves."

Today the Lodge meets above the Federated Store. Although even the oldest members can't say for sure, it is thought that the meeting place today is the same as when the Lodge was instituted in June 1873.

Art Atwell, who with M. B. Auten, is the oldest living member of the lodge, (they joined in 1913) says that the organization has met there as long as he remembers and he has never heard of it meeting anywhere else.

STEADY GROWTH

Through the years the organization has experienced a steady growth.

When S. C. Armstrong was elected Worshipful Master in 1873, there were just nine members. . . including family

Tries for bridge that wasn't

It was snowy and dusky at sunset time Sunday when Gordon A. DuRussell, 19, of Riley Road, Caro, turned south on North Phillips Road in Novesta.

The County Sheriff's traffic accident report tells the rest: Written under cause of accident: "Dead End by River."

Yep, DuRussell tried to cross the Cass River on a bridge that wasn't there.

He piled out and made his way home okay. The car stayed in the drink.

In Cass City will be closed Thursday, Feb. 22, a legal holiday.

It's status quo in area strikes

The rash of strikes which hit three Cass City area firms last month continue with no one predicting any immediate settlements.

The strikes - which were called at the Walbro Corp. in Cass City, the Nestles Co. milk plant in Ubyly, and the Active Industries, Inc. of Elkton - affect some 670 workers.

Federal mediators have been called in to assist bargaining at all three plants.

The strikes - at Walbro's it was the first strike in the company's 14-year history - are symptomatic of the current unrest of labor unions throughout the nation, an unrest which labor experts say will continue throughout 1968.

Negotiations are underway only at Walbro currently.

There, some 100 members of United Auto Workers Local 213 struck the plant Jan. 23, restricting the company to only limited production by supervisory employees.

Howard Bacon, vice-president, said that the company and the union had met on Monday and would reconvene bargaining at the plant Saturday morning.

He had no comment on progress made to date in reaching a settlement on issues which center primarily on economics.

At the Nestle's plant, which was struck by some 70 members of United Dairy Workers Jan. 9, Olin Ramseyer, plant manager, said that the situation is the same as it has been.

"We aren't meeting right now," he said. "We have met in the past. I don't know if any meetings are planned."

The Chronicle learned that it's status quo at Active Industries, where some 500 members of Allied Industrial Workers Local 628 struck on Jan. 16 after negotiations had collapsed.

The plant produces stampings for the Big Three auto companies.

Owengage to look at future Tuesday

A meeting will be held Feb. 20 at Gagetown school cafeteria when the special ad hoc operating millage and the future of the Owengage schools will be discussed.

The district is asking for six mills for two years for operation.

To study these questions a 60-member citizens' committee was appointed by the Owengage-Cass City Board of Education Wednesday night.

The vote for special millage will be held Mar. 11.

Say schoolmen

Owen-gage merge? none in sight

A suggestion that the Cass City School Board should put out feelers to the Owengage School Board regarding the possibility of a joint study of the benefits of a merger received a cool reception Monday night from Cass City board members.

Horace Bulen, board president, suggested that this was the time when Cass City might "extend the olive branch" to the Owengage School Board.

"I would like to dispel the hard feelings that exist," Bulen said. "I would like to have Gagetown join with us to evaluate their position."

The Owengage school district was left isolated as a result of the merger last week of the Unionville and Sebewaing districts.

Bulen noted that residents of the Owengage district "have been mad all these years about some unintentional slight."

"We might overcome this if we were to humble ourselves a bit," he said, "and extend the offer to talk to them."

However, the board president stood alone on this.

"It would be hurrying things a little," said Don Reid.

Several board members - William Ruhl and Elwyn Helwig - urged that no steps be taken until the results of a millage vote in the Owengage school district are learned.

"Let's wait until we find out results," Ruhl said.

The Owengage school district is scheduled to have a millage vote March 11.

After a brief discussion, Bulen said: "If that's your feeling, we'll lay off."

During the public portion of the session, Mrs. Emerson Kennedy of 4652 Van Dyke, passed a tray among board members containing a replica of the noon meal served to students in the elementary school cafeteria Friday.

"This is what my daughter Louann, 12, got in grade school," Mrs. Kennedy said. On the tray: one fish stick; one-half slice of bread; four peach slices and one cookie. (Mrs. Kennedy noted that a carton of milk was missing.)

She said that the meal had to sustain her daughter for a nine hour day and, in addition, had cost 35 cents.

Mrs. Kennedy said that she had shopped in a local grocery store and that the cost of the food on the tray was 14.2 cents.

"None of us," Bulen said, "think this is a good meal."

Superintendent Donald Crouse

said that the problem of running short of menued foodstuffs stemmed from not taking a daily headcount of the number of children who will be dining in the cafeteria each day.

"If you just guess how many are going to be eating in the cafeteria, and guess wrong, then you have to substitute."

He said that school cafeteria people will be instructed to start taking headcounts each day.

In the only action that did not win a unanimous vote, the School Board put its final approval on new rates and rules for use of the school facilities by the public.

The six to one vote, with Helwig opposing, came after a 20 minute discussion on the

Editor's Corner

Bruce Henderson, a successful prize winning columnist from Fort Washington, Pa., reports: "I can't be positive, but writing a regular column must be something like being pregnant. I know that I am just as impatient as an idea develops, feel the pain of delivery onto paper and experience the exhilaration of birth. . . for every deadline."

And, he might have added, for most of us the result is too often a miscarriage.

Stan (the man) Putnam returns to the Chronicle on a day-to-day lend lease from the Free Press.

I remember when he came during the previous Free Press strike and Dave Kraft said in his inimitable style that as far as writing was concerned "he planned to do nothing at all."

What was good enough for Kraft is good enough for me and I plan to follow Dave's strategy to the hilt. . . especially starting Tuesday of next week when Dorothy and I are headed west for a five-day vacation.

While in the West we hope to meet the Cliff Fergusons who are in the West now after several weeks in Florida.

Some of their cynical friends say that the Fergusons buy travel tickets and insist on Cass City stop over privileges.

Prediction: Cass City's new gym will not seat all the spectators for several games when and if the school has a winning team.

This is not a criticism of school planning. It would be nice to have a gym that would take care of all contingencies. . . but to build for the few times a year when a few spectators would be turned away would be an uneconomical use of the taxpayers' money. The seating capacity will take care of any average crowd for at least the next few years.

Come to think about it, it would be nice to have a season where the spectator interest was so great that you'd have to go early to be sure of getting in.

merits of assessing residents for use of the buildings they support with their taxes.

According to reports, School Board members had been asked by several residents not to levy use fees. However, the consensus of the board after the discussion was "what's fair for one is fair for all."

In other action the board: Voted to purchase three new buses with bus bodies, at $3,994 each, manufactured by McFadden Corp. of Lansing.

Approved a contract with Mary Lou King as a first grade teacher to fill a post formerly held by Betty Kirm who is continuing her education this year.

Instructed its insurance agents to study the possibility of putting all of the district's insurance policies - liability, fire, comprehensive, honesty bonds and possibly workmen's compensation into one package at a savings to the district.

Set March 10 as the date for an open house at the new high school and appointed Helwig, Reid and Mrs. Gerald Prieskorn to serve as a planning committee for the open house program.

Purchased new speakers for the high school cafeteria at a cost of $286 and some $9,000 worth of equipment for an electronic classroom to be used as a language laboratory.

Voted to set aside space in the high school to serve as center for $40,000 worth of education materials (films, tapes, printed matter) for use in a three county area. Such an area materials center is contingent on federal approval of a Title II grant.

names and addresses of men called into service.

Why? It seems that when addresses are published in the papers insurance agents and bill collectors take note; one starts dunning the future inductees for business, the other for past business debts.

Those named in next month's call-up are: Dennis Splekerman, Dallas A. Craig, Edwin G. Gyurko; Richard N. Stange, John R. O'Kelly, Robert A. VanHove Jr., Dennis J. Gibbs, Dale F. Daniels and Terry M. TerBush.

Gagetown Public

Friday I went to Gagetown's Public School to take some Valentine pictures. While I was there, Mrs. Finkbeiner showed me her class's organ. The class got the organ for one semester from the Mason Music Company in Bay City.

Each student practices 20 minutes every other day and a class lesson two times a week, in which a music instructor teaches them for about a half hour.

The neat part about the whole thing is that the organ has earphones which enables only the student at the organ to hear what he's playing, while the rest of the class continues working, sometimes on their music workbooks.

Evergreen

by Barbara Dorland
Darlene Wentworth

The students at Evergreen are still decorating their rooms for Valentine's Day and the second and third graders are making plans for their Valentine party.

On Monday the 5th and 6th graders picked a class president and vice-president. Nancy Langenburg is president and Ronnie Pomeroy is vice-president. Speaking of Mrs. Johnson's room - last week the students have been studying George Washington and writing reports about him.

There are a number of contests going on at Evergreen lately! One is a reading contest in which Janet Mordick is leader. Two other contests are going on in Mrs. Gray's room. The room is split into two teams. The team with the most marks by Washington's Birthday has to furnish a dinner! (Darlene didn't tell me what they got marks for, but it seems the losing team, or the one with the least marks, should have to furnish the dinner, instead of the team with the most marks. Unless of course, these marks are demerit-type marks!) The other contest is with dragons! The students build tails for them and I imagine the one with the longest tail wins!

Report cards were given out last week in Evergreen. The third marking-period honor roll for the fifth and sixth grades is:

Nancy Langenburg
Diane Leslie
Paul Sefton
Randy Smith
Ann Turner
Janet Auvil
Nora Massingale

The first graders at Evergreen are just learning how to measure with a ruler. When I read something like this or like - "the students are learning the alphabet and how to write the letters," it makes me stop and think about where I learned all the everyday, simple basics we all take for granted - such as speaking, writing, counting and so on. And I came to the conclusion that elementary teachers really have a hard job. I mean - it's probably just as hard to teach someone to write who doesn't know his alphabet, as it is to teach high school students French or Spanish!

W. Campbell Elementary

Mrs. Esau's kindergarten class has been talking about things that go. When they studied wheels, Mr. Helwig made the class 500 little wheels. So the class saved their milk cartons and Linda Parrott spray painted them. They bought enough nuts and bolts from Mr. Vyse and they are each going to make little carts. two games at Lakers. Let's After they get their carts made, hear it for team A who defeated them!

Friday afternoon, the eighth grade teams A and B played Lakers, also. In those two games, team B was defeated by only one point!

While I was reading the list of the lost and found in the Intermediate school's bulletin, one item sort of struck me funny. . . Lost: one doll dressed like a little old lady in a red velvet dress! (It even rhymes!)

C. C. H. S.

Well, just to start the week off right, we received our report cards, and Monday was the beginning of a new semester. On Monday, a new student entered C.C.H.S. Her name is Jerri Bartlett. Jerri transferred here from Monroe High School and is a junior.

A man from Olivet came to C.C.H.S. Wednesday to talk to interested students. Mr. Cleveland, our guidance counselor, decided it would be better not to announce what hour he would be here, so that he could get students who were really interested in the college, not getting out of class. The only trouble is, some of the kids who wanted to go, weren't called from their classes when the man arrived, and they missed the whole thing!

Thursday afternoon the Cass Theatre opened for the World History students at Cass City to go see "A Man For All Seasons." It sure must be nice to get out of all your afternoon classes to go to a movie with all your friends!

On Friday, we did have our Pep assembly. For some cheers, a girl from each class was called out on the floor to lead a class cheer. The girls from each class were:

9th grade - Libby Hillaker
10th grade - Ruth Ann Hunter
11th grade - Jean Doerr
12th grade - Sharon Eberline

After these cheers, the Varsity and Junior Varsity Cheerleaders entertained the student body with a 'mock' basketball game. The Varsity represented Cass City, and the J.V. represented Caro. After a while of goofing around, the narrator announced that the next team that made the point would be the winner of the game. So, Linda Brown climbed up on Gloria Stine's shoulders, they walked over to the basket and Linda dunked the ball. Cass City (The Varsity) Cheerleaders won the game!

The sophomores won the spirit ball, so the score now is:

12th - 4
11th - 1
10th - 2

CLUB NEWS

The Spanish Club had a meeting Tuesday after school. The trip to Detroit's Masonic Hall to see Jose Greco and his troupe was discussed. It was decided to invite both Spanish classes to get enough students to take a school bus. The program is on March 16, at 8:45. We probably won't get home until 1:00 or 2:00 a. m., but that's half the fun!

The G.A.A. held a practice session Tuesday night. (6:30-8:30) We're still pluggin' away at our basketball skills!

The Pep Club had a meeting after school Thursday. The pep assembly was planned, and a few other details, such as the ordering of pins, were taken care of.

TID BITS

Sometime around Tuesday the boys started what was to be a daily ritual. The boys put Gary Sefton in the plastic waste basket in the boy's restroom. His arms and legs were pointed toward the ceiling, so he was really trapped. Finally the guys took him out in the hall, rolled him over and pulled him out!

The next day Gary Chambers was honored. While all this was going on, the girls were goofing around in their restrooms, too. Only they just put purses in baskets! But finally on Friday, they put Carla Calka in the basket - twice!

One time there was so much noise from one of the girl's restrooms that a passerby (just goofing around) told a nearby teacher there was a boy in there. Boy, did that teacher move!

You'd be surprised how much fun everybody has after lunch!

For a while, everyone was complaining because there weren't any waste baskets in the hall! Well, they've been there all along, but they're kind of invisible.

The waste baskets are the bottom half of the green lockers, which hold the fire extinguishers, in the hall! There's a little trap door to throw things away!

Friday nite the F.H.A. sponsored a Valentine dance, with a battle of the bands, with "The Souz" and "Knights of Time" which are both groups from C.C.H.S., and a third band - "The Dead Ends" from Laker High School. All the bands did a great job and the F.H.A. had a good turn out.

We need to fight, say Tuscola county dairymen

Tuscola's dairy industry - a total of 450 farms with milk cows (of which 344 are Grade A herds) brings $5 1/2 million annually into the county.

In terms of agriculture, from which 65% of the county's cash comes, milk products are second only to the annual bean crop, which brings in 6 1/2 million dollars.

What's being done? Dairymen can't count on laws to ban the sale of "filled" milk, like the Michigan law nor price regulations requiring that top prices be paid for milk products used in the manufacture of filled milk.

DAVE LOOMIS
compulsory dues

Entrepreneurs can use the old soy (bean) protein play, a process which gives an adequate substitute without using any milk product or derivative. Half a dozen true imitation milk products - containing no dairy products - are now on the market and are outside milk regulations and pricing controls.

ACCEPT CHALLENGE

The challenge is being accepted by the MMPA and the ADA.

In meetings throughout the state, association leaders are alerting Michigan dairymen to the not-too-remote, and urging that the dairy industry act now.

Leaders are promoting a two-fold program: advertising and research.

To pay the freight, ADA is asking for a boost in contributions from dairy farmers from the now voluntary two cents per hundredweight of milk produced paid into the association, to a mandatory four cents.

For a 40 head herd, that would mean an approximate boost of $100.

CLARE CARPENTER
knows problem

The money would be used to sell milk-drinking to a slowly but steadily declining milk market and to seek new ways in which milk could be packaged and made competitive.

The approach is far different than the negative assault made by dairymen in the old margarine war.

And the dairymen are buying the program.

"The only way I figure that we can keep our market is by advertising," said Don Loomis. "It (the two-cent boost) should be compulsory," his brother Dave said. "No one should be able to ride along without paying his share."

"I don't feel two cents is too much to ask," said Dick Carpenter. "Filled milk will be pretty disastrous for us farmers and we've got to do something about it."

"We have to figure on some new methods of using milk," "Look at how much is being spent on beer and cigarette advertising," said Hicks, "We've got to do the same things."

Hicks said that he had heard of a new milk product: "Cherry-Milk."

"This is the sort of thing we've got to find. Cherry Milk might appeal to kids. We've got to find other things that will help."

"We can't leave it up to the dairies to push this. We've got to do it ourselves. We have a good co-op (MMPA) to do it."

Will it work?

"Only time will tell," said Ballweg.

"It's up to the consumer," summed up Koepgen. "He pays out of his pocket."

Book Review

"Mostly in Clover" is mostly boring

By Rev. R. J. Searls

Let me admit bias about this book from the start. The paper cover of the book shows a large farm house complete with wind mill, in front of which a boy with fishing pole is strolling -- obviously all set for an afternoon at the old fishing hole! What could be nicer? Or, make for more enjoyable reading on a winter's morning than some nostalgic childhood memories based on farm life of a dozen years ago?

With a reviewer's outlook like that, what author needs to be concerned about a book review? Well, "Mostly in Clover" by Harry Boyle let me down. I picked up the book intending to read it through at one sitting, but instead, put the book down after ten minutes and literally had to drive myself across the period of a year to finish reading the book.

The only thing that gives me any comfort at all is the fact that this book did not come via the usual source: Mrs. Little by way of the library.

To put it honestly, I cannot recall reading at any time of my life, a book that proved itself to be so disappointing, or more boring than this one. However, I shall quote some favorable reviews, hoping that by being honest, some readers whose tastes in literature differ markedly from my own will pick up the book, and (unbelievable!) find it to meet their standards. J. Donald Adams, writing for "The New York Times" Book Review, says this: "Not enough Canadian books reach an American audience. Recently I have been reading two which I think would be enjoyed by many Americans. They have a human quality that I find engaging. They contain the boyhood reminiscences of Harry J. Boyle. Their quality was well described by a reviewer in 'The Toronto Globe and Mail' who wrote: 'Everything is told in a simple, heart-warming style with a complete absence of sophistication and a real grass-roots affection for what he remembers. It is the warmth, honesty and simplicity which lift these books high above the commonplace.'"

I wish to share only one more thing with you: It is a trick of book reviewers when they find that a book which they have been assigned to review is incredibly bad, to then read others' reviews, quoting them at length. I have quoted from Adams, who, in turn quotes from the review in "The Toronto Globe and Mail." Caveat Emptor!

Mrs. Laurie named a District Rep.

Mrs. Jack Laurie of Cass City was elected Thursday by area Farm Bureau Women as their representative to the upcoming meeting of Associated Country Women of the World.

Mrs. Laurie will be one of two "accredited visitors" representing Tuscola and five other counties at the meeting which will be held this September on the campus of Michigan State University.

The other representative from District Six, also elected Thursday at a District Farm Bureau Women's meeting in Marlette, is Mrs. Harland Welke of Mayville.

At an earlier Tuscola County Farm Bureau Women meeting a week ago, Mrs. Henry Hohman of Vassar, co-chairman of the group's National Affairs Committee, was named as the woman to represent that county as "legislative leader" on a Washington, D. C., tour.

At this meeting, Mrs. Stanley Lagos of Cass City, program chairman, discussed and demonstrated flower arranging.

It was announced to the 30 women in attendance that this year's legislative seminar for the Thumb area will be held at the YWCA in Lansing this Wednesday.

Those attending the seminar will meet and lunch with area legislators and then attend an afternoon session of the legislature in the State Capitol.

ANOTHER WINNER in the free holiday week-end contest sponsored by local merchants and the Chronicle receives her prize card from Harry Lenda, Cass City IGA Food-liner owner. Mrs. Joe Harbec submitted her prize winning entry at the market.

Legislature looks around for laws to control riots

Can riots be controlled? If new riot-control laws could do it, Michigan could be free from uprisings. The truth of the matter: laws can be passed more easily than they can be implemented and enforced.

Twenty-seven bills have already been introduced in the current legislative session to deal with rioters. These proposals would:

Make it a felony to interfere with a fireman in performance of duties.

Consider a person killed by a mob the same as one who was lynched, holding people in the mob equally guilty of first degree murder.

Classify as a felony any attempt to obstruct or resist police, abuse or molest militiamen in riot area.

Carry penalties for failure to disperse from a mob when ordered or to refuse to help in suppressing a riot.

Make participation in a riot punishable by a minimum five-year sentence.

Prescribe conditions under which police may stop, question and detain for two hours. Stiffen penalties for attempting to escape while under arrest.

Describe circumstances under which "suspicious" persons can be searched.

Broaden sections of law dealing with explosives.

Increase penalties for attempted murder, assault, entering without breaking, malicious burning, intent to maim or disfigure, rob and steal while unarmed.

Many crimes, formerly considered "misdemeanors," are classified as felonies under the proposals. Conviction of a felony carries a sentence of more than a year.

If voted into law, these proposals must be implemented and enforced. This may prove difficult. There simply are not enough police, courts and jails to quell rioting through legislation alone. If the people of our state do not support law and order because they believe it is the right thing, legislative action has little value.

level or lose their licenses. This is the worry of traffic safety officials. Detroit police report a higher-than-average number of such accidents in the last two months of 1967.

A study of records for the whole state is underway.

The situation becomes more difficult when you realize that conviction for hit and run in minor accidents often carries less penalty than drunken driving.

Road tax funds distributed here

Local units of government will have more money to spend on roads again in the fourth quarter as the State Highway Commission announced that total highway fund collections were up slightly over the same quarter in 1966.

Cass City will receive $5,143. Shares for other communities will be: Caro, $8,717; Gaytown, $1,804; Kingston, $1,306; Owendale, $1,397; Uby, $2,214.

Also receiving funds will be the counties. Tuscola will receive $227,370. Sanilac's share is $214,326, and Huron county will have $206,350 to spend on roads.

Change dates for farmers' Week

A change in future dates for the annual Farmers' Week at Michigan State University was announced today as the 1968 event concluded.

Dr. Thomas K. Cowden, Dean of MSU's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, said that beginning in 1969, Farmers' Week will be held in mid-March during the University's spring recess. Since it began in 1914, the event had been held in late January or early February.

"The change, approved by a wide majority of agricultural Extension personnel throughout the state, will help us accommodate the expanded educational programs presented during Farmers' Week," Dean Cowden commented.

"These improved facilities -- meeting rooms, demonstration areas, and exhibit space -- plus the better weather which usually exists in early spring, will increase the potential for an even better educational event."

"Visitors will also have better transportation and parking, food services, housing and use of other University facilities."

The 1969 Farmers' Week has been set for March 17-21, between the winter term final exam period and the beginning of spring term registration at MSU.

Toys that are filled with shredded or foam rubber may be immersed safely if the opening in the toy is covered with waterproof adhesive tape during the sudsing to keep water from soaking in.

Hawks lose shooting eye; drop two league games

The visiting Frankenmuth Eagles flew into an early lead Tuesday night and posted a 67-57 decision over slumping Cass City before a sparse crowd of local fans.

With Ernest "Chip" Weiss hitting with consistency with 20-foot jumpers from the side, the Eagles raced in front 13-4 almost before the fans were well settled in their seats.

And it was this early margin that proved decisive.

At the half, the visitors were in front 35-21. In the opening half of the third quarter, Cass City played some of its best ball of the evening and at one time moved to within five points of the Eagles only to fall back again.

At the three-quarter mark the score was 48-37.

One of Cass City's bright points in many previous games was missing Tuesday. The club failed to show the alert, tight defense that helped them to victory in several games during the year. Frankenmuth scored several "cheap" baskets to keep its offense clicking.

****

Cass City has just two games left to sharpen up for the district class B basketball tournament at Caro and if the club is to be a factor in the post season classic, it will have to shoot better than it did in a 60-44 loss to Caro Friday.

To rate a chance against Mariette, who comes to town this Friday, or against Vassar Friday, Feb. 23, the Hawks will have to hit with more consistency from the field.

Coach Jim Wynnes' charges were able to convert only a miserable 28 per cent against the Tigers while the visitors converted a creditable 41 per cent of their field goal tries.

Cass City has lost the services of Dave Bliss and Friday Joe Hillaker moved up from the Junior Varsity to take his place.

Caro jumped into the lead in the first period and was never headed.

The Hawks scored just 10 points in the opening quarter, despite several good shots from close-in. The Tigers started rolling slowly, but still managed to notch 16 points.

In the second quarter the Tigers rolled for 22 points while Cass City scored 15 and at intermission, the Caro lead had mounted to 33 points, 38-25, and the Hawks were never able to catch up.

The second half was one of the lowest scoring in several years in Cass City. Caro scored 10 points in the third period and the Hawks countered with 14 points, to keep alive faint hopes for victory.

But in the final quarter, the Hawks found a lid on the basket. . . scoring just five points while the Tigers netted 12 for the easy win.

It was a poor shooting performance all around for Cass City. The team's 50 per cent free throw shooting score was under the 63 per cent posted by Caro. Only in the rebounding department did Cass City hold its own. . . with a slight 33-30 advantage off the boards.

As usual, John Maharg led Cass City's attack. . . netting 20 points even though he missed several normally "sure" shots from close-in. Mike Murphy was the only other player in double figures as he scored 9 points.

JV GAME

The Cass City Junior Varsity which has sent two boys to the varsity during the year, dropped its preliminary to the Tigers, 53-34.

Dale Ashmore netted 17 points and Rob Alexander, who moved up from the Freshman squad, netted nine points for the Hawks.

The box score:

Ventilate corn to stop spoilage

"Cool it" -- that's the advice for reducing spoilage in ear and shelled corn from Alfred Ballweg, County Extension Agricultural Agent.

Ballweg advises that an air flow of approximately 1/2 cubic foot per minute per bushel of ear corn and 1/10 cfm for shelled corn is necessary for good storage. Aeration systems need to be operated when relative humidity is below 75 per cent and when outside temperatures drop below 40 degrees.

A good practice is to hang a thermometer in the exhaust air stream to check temperature of the air. This should be kept within 10 degrees of outside temperatures.

Then, check the grain every ten days until the temperature is below 40 degrees in the bin and after each radical weather change, the county agent recommends.

Spoilage losses from high-moisture corn can be costly if adequate ventilation isn't provided.

Former resident vice-president of plastics firm

Cadillac Plastic and Chemical Co. named William D. Benkelman to the position of executive vice-president effective immediately.

In addition, Benkelman was named president and member of the board of directors of Cadillac Plastic and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited.

W. D. BENKELMAN

Benkelman joined Cadillac Plastic in 1956 as coordinator of manufacturing and sales. He served as branch manager in Cincinnati, Ohio, and sales manager in Chicago, Illinois, before he was appointed Cadco products sales manager in 1962.

A graduate of Michigan State University, Benkelman was named vice-president--marketing in 1964. Prior to his present appointment he was vice-president and general sales manager.

Benkelman is a member of the Society of the Plastics Industry, Inc., and the Society of Plastics Engineers. He is also a member of the Young Republicans Club and Phi Kappa Tau.

He is author of numerous technical articles on plastics including "Plastic Materials for Bearings", "A Re-evaluation of Production Processes for Plastic Parts" and "Designing for Effective Use of Plastics".

In his new position Benkelman will operate from the company's headquarters at 15111 Second Ave., Detroit, Mich. He lives with his wife, Barbara, and their three children at 830 Rock Spring Road, Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

Erdman speaker at farm meeting

Alfred P. Ballweg, county extension agent, this week reminded area farmers that the third meeting in a series for dairymen was to have been held Wednesday at Cass City High School at 8 p. m.

Milt Erdmann, crops specialist from Michigan State, will be the principal speaker.

Freshmen win one, lose two

Cass City's Freshman team lost two of three games played during the week. . . dropping a 60-44 decision to the Little Tigers of Caro Wednesday, Feb. 7; and nipping Vassar Thursday, 53-52, and losing to the Lakers Tuesday, 56-38.

Cass City forged into an early lead against Caro and led until the final period when the Tigers posted a big 19-6 advantage to win going away. Rob Alexander scored 18 and Kim Hopper, 10 points, for the Hawks. Caro had four men in double figures led by L. Kitchen with 14 points.

A top effort from everyone on the entire team coupled with excellent rebounding and alert defensive play was responsible for the win, Coach John Balfoss said.

The team led for the first three quarters, dropped behind by four points in the final period and then rallied to win.

Scott Guernsey scored 21 points, Dan Calster netted 13 and Kim Hopper, 10, for Cass City. Leo Rosencrans scored 19 for Vassar. In the first meeting between the two schools, Vassar won by 22 points.

In a B Frosh game, Cass City won 39-28 with Jeff Spencer scoring 12 points.

LAKER GAME

The Freshman team of the Lakers gives strong evidence of continuing the dynasty at the school as they topped the Hawks, 56-38.

The winners posted margins in each of the first three periods to coast home with the victory. Kim Hopper netted 16 points and Scott Guernsey, nine points, for Cass City. D. Koehler netted 15 for the Lakers.

In a short B team game, Cass City won, 15-11, as Jeff Spencer scored eight for the Hawks.

Agent's Corner

Mrs. Ann Ross

The current interest in sex education is linked with the teaching of "responsible relationships" as the 4th R. Education in human sexuality goes far beyond the facts relating to the human reproductive system and process, according to Mrs. Ann Ross, Thumb Extension Home Economist.

Complete sex education draws from all disciplines - sociology, psychology, anthropology, biology, economics, philosophy, home economics, and education. The aim is to guide young people in understanding and managing their human sexuality throughout life.

Teaching of the fourth R - responsible relationships - needs to continue throughout life because as the life situation changes, new relationships must be met.

Some of the objectives for teaching sex education as the fourth R might be:

-To provide objective and complete knowledge of the various aspects of human sexuality.

-To understand the psychology of male and female sexuality.

-To provide a chance to integrate sound values and beliefs into a philosophy of life.

-To develop an understanding of the skill and dedication needed to build a successful marriage and a happy home.

Many agencies and organizations are attempting to supplement the home in teaching sex education. It is hoped that joint efforts will inform and protect the adolescent and other family members, concludes Mrs. Ross.

In such cases, CYSTEX usually brings relaxing comfort by soothing irritating germs in acid urine and quickly ending pain. Get CYSTEX at drugists.

5 classes at mini college here

Although luncheon reservations are closed, you may still attend the classes at "Mini" College Day Feb. 17. Registration begins at 9:30 in the lobby of the new Cass City High School. There will be a one dollar fee to cover expenses of materials.

Five classes will be held in the morning and repeated in the afternoon so you will be able to choose and attend two classes.

Classes to be presented include: "A Day in the Supermarket"; "Pregnancy, Fact, Fad, Fiction"; "Application of Landscape Design"; "Money and Your Marriage"; and "Enjoying a Foreign Guest."

Everyone with an interest in these subjects is urged to attend.

13 Cass Cityans at Valentine banquet

Thirteen persons from Cass City were among around 350 who attended a Valentine banquet Saturday evening at the Tabernacle Baptist Church in Hazel Park.

Speaker for the evening was Rev. Don Sewell, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church in Toledo. A quartet of folk singers also provided entertainment.

Joint meet! features talk by Fr. Flavion

A joint meeting of the St. Pancratius Altar Society and the church's men's club featured a talk by Father Flavion of the Queen of Angels retreat house in Saginaw.

The meeting was held Monday at the church. A film, "Up the Mountain", depicted the peace, relaxation and nearness to God from a three-day retreat.

Father Peter Pijnappels, pastor, told of the financial plight of the non-public school and urged that interested persons write governmental units for action.

At the next meeting Per Petersen, exchange student, will speak. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Tom Jackson, Mrs. Ron Keegan and Mrs. Kenneth Maharg.

Cass City to eye Caro's city plans

Cass City village authorities will be eyeing closely the results of an upcoming meeting in Caro.

The Caro Planning Commission will meet Monday night to organize efforts to bring about an election on whether Carolites favor city status. There has been brief informal discussion about changing Cass City from a village to a city and if the measure is successful in Caro it could give impetus to the local movement.

A citizen's committee will be named at the Caro meeting to spearhead a drive to secure the signatures of village residents needed to petition for a special election.

If the petitions are signed by at least 100 persons the village council would then be obliged to call an election.

Knoblet to study French in France

James Knoblet, who made the scene here as a top flight High School athlete and student, will make the scene at the Olympics this year.

But only as a student. A 19-year-old junior at Albion College, Knoblet left for France Feb. 4 where he will spend the semester studying the French language and the customs of the country.

As part of the tour, Knoblet and 13 other Albion College students were to swing through Grenoble where the winter Olympics are being held.

While in France, Jim will spend time in French homes, take trips to southern France, and make excursions to local industries, museums, and cultural events.

A 1965 graduate of Cass City High School, Knoblet is majoring in history and languages at Albion.

735 at annual NFO Caro meet

An estimated 735 persons heard Erhard Pfingsten, NFO's national vice-president, tell of problems of America's farmers and repeat the NFO policy of demanding, instead of asking, for a fair price.

Pfingsten was speaking at the annual Tuscola County NFO meeting at Caro High School Saturday, Feb. 10.

Real Estate

SEE US TODAY if you are in the market for a cash crop farm, some are partially tilled, others have a good outlet for tilling. We would like to hear from you now.

WANTED: A modern dairy set-up for at least 30 to 50 cows and approximately 200 acres of good land, land that can be tilled. If you have this then see me at once.

THREE BEDROOM home with a space natural gas heater, hookup for an electric stove. If you have between $500 and $1,000 to put down then see me. Payments only $50 per month, full price $6,300.

THREE BEDROOM home with kitchen cabinets, double sink, electric water heater, gas (natural) space heater, partial basement, new sewer line put in last fall, $6,500 with $1,000 down, balance $60 per month.

120 ACRES with a large house and barn, about 1/2 tillable, balance to good pasture. This would make a good stock farm, hold your regular job and run cattle on this. Widow cannot handle, asking price $21,000.

LARGE STORE building with living quarters, plenty of room for extra rental income or start up a business, extra lot to boot, $6,000. This is cheaper than you would pay for a house.

FOUR BEDROOM home, kitchen with cabinets, dining room (large), living room, utility room, tiled floors, garage, basement with oil furnace. Full price $11,500 with $2,000 down, balance like rent, interest at 6%.

BUSY TOWN: Large business building with hardwood floors, full basement with a large kitchen, oil furnace, plenty of parking space, an ideal place to serve chicken dinners, on highway leading to resort area. If you are interested in going into business for yourself don't let this good buy get away from you. Full price $12,600.

Here's why you miss the big Detroit papers

By Stan Putnam

Bet you can guess the one question I get asked the most. Most? Everytime is more like it.

"When's the (Detroit newspaper) Strike going to end?" Or, a little less politely: "When are you going to get it (the strike) settled?"

As a reporter out of the mess I perhaps should know the answer to the first question. As a lone reporter adrift, I certainly have none of the control over the situation needed to make peace between the 13 unions and the management of the two papers.

It's been three weeks since, as a reporter for one of the three interim newspapers that sprang up over night to fill the news void created by the strike, I have been close to the situation. However, over the past week end, I checked to see if anyone knows anything. If they do, no one was telling me or my sources.

So that answer to the first question is "I don't know and I don't believe, at this moment, anyone else knows."

The strike, as of Wednesday, began 91 days ago at the Detroit News. The Free Press kicked its employees out into the cold 89 days ago as a matter of management policy.

To say the situation is complicated is to beg the question. It is. But to residents of the Thumb who only want their paper to read with their morning coffee or during TV ads, it's probably boring.

According to a Detroit source, it seems that everyone - management and union - is waiting to see the outcome of voting by Teamsters truck drivers on terms of a new three year contract.

The Teamsters, who deliver the newspapers, struck the News on Nov. 15 when their old contract expired and after the News had rejected Teamster demand for a $45 pay increase over three years.

Unlike the strike of 1964, which was called by two unions against the News after some six months of negotiations, the 1967 strike was called the moment the contract expired and only after a few negotiating sessions between management and labor had been held.

When the Free Press shut down two days later, four "emergency" papers came to life.

(In 1964, there was only one emergency paper and it has been reported that this paper made upwards of $500,000 during that 134-day strike.)

However, only three papers survived and all three collapsed within two weeks of each other. Two of them folded on Jan. 22 when the striking Teamsters, who had been delivering the papers, withdrew their services.

A committee from the State Senate is investigating the connection between the strike, the emergency papers and the Teamster union.

(Early in the strike, a top-flight labor expert in Detroit said that, while it was probably unethical as all get out, it was not illegal for the Teamsters to deliver emergency newspapers.)

One reason the Teamsters quit delivering the interim papers was to restore union solidarity which had suffered because some of the 1,000 Teamsters involved had jobs with the emergency papers and some didn't.

On Feb. 7, the union agreed upon a settlement with the publishers, a settlement which would give the average truck driver an additional $30 over his current $150 a week over the next three years.

This is the settlement on which the Teamsters have been voting - by mail - over the past week.

This is the vote which management and the other 12 newspaper unions, printers, typesetters, lithographers, mail carriers, pressmen, plate handlers, reporters etc., are watching.

If the Teamsters vote in favor of the settlement (they probably will), then the publishers will say to the other unions that a "wage pattern" has been set.

That is, none of the other unions had better look for more money than the "pattern settlement." In this case $30 for three years.

But the other unions, speaking through a combined voice of an "all union council", say $30 isn't good enough; they want $36.

Another difference between 1964 and 1967 is that, by the time the 1964 strike was called in July, all the other unions had signed new contracts. When that strike ended in November 1964, all were ready to resume work.

But since the day the Teamsters struck this past November, contracts between all the other unions and the publishers have expired and not one of them has been renewed because the publishers concentrated their efforts to end the Teamster strike.

So, even if the Teamsters ratify the settlement, reached two weeks ago, it is unlikely that the papers will resume publication until new contracts have been signed with all the unions.

The publishers just couldn't afford to resume making newspapers until permanent peace with all parties is reached for fear of another strike right off the bat.

And, if the other unions remain firm (which they probably won't) on $36 for three instead of $30 for three, then the bargaining will be mean and protracted.

But let's say the Teamsters ratify. Let's say that the other unions, seeing the writing on the wall, amicably seek a settlement.

Let's say everything runs smoothly and, miracle of miracles, management and labor are able to wrap up new settlements at the rate of three a week.

This is unlikely, but even if it happens it would take four weeks to wrap the package and tie the string.

Like the joke we all made when the strike continued through the Christmas Holiday season: "See you again in April."

And that is all I know about it.

CASS CITY CHRONICLE

VOLUME 61, NUMBER 44

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN - THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1968

RECEIVING A PLAQUE from Les Profit, manager of Klein's Fertilizer in Cass City Wednesday was Allen Merchant of Cass City. Merchant was honored at a Lansing banquet in the company's 150-bushel corn contest.

In addition to the plaque, Merchant was given a cash award for producing a 156-bushel yield on 20 acres.

More than 100 growers were honored. In 1968 the company will offer a $1,000 prize for a yield over 200 bushels per acre on a 20-acre or larger field. Other awards will remain unchanged.

Hostetler's Hodgepodge

Even the truth is not absolute

By Marion Hostetler

Stuart Nisbett, who recently retired from the faculty of General Motors Institute, spoke to a group in Cass City last week. He says two things interfere with the success of college students:

(1) Many have failed to develop a study habit discipline. These are often good students, with high I Q's, who have been active in extracurricular activities, and have breezed through high school without ever studying seriously. When they get to college and really do have to study, they don't know how to make themselves sit down and get to work.

(2) Many don't know how to budget their time. Time, for a student, is in greater demand, and of greater value, than money. A one hour course may require just as much study as a four hour course, if the one hour course is more difficult or in a less familiar field. A student must continuously adjust his time budget to a moving target, just as a hardware dealer or a crop farmer must. The thing on which he properly and profitably concentrated last month or last year may not be the thing at which he should aim this month, this year.

If a student can't decide which subject to study, and someone comes along and says, "Let's go get a coke," this may turn into an evening at the flicks -- and then he'll be way behind on his studying.

Speaking of deciding, our oldest daughter (who probably always will be) was born in England. We registered her birth with the American Consul, and when she reached the age of 21 she had the privilege of choosing whether she wanted to be an American or British citizen. When last I heard, she hadn't decided yet.

If anyone asks whether she is American or English, she replies, "Half and Haaw!"

Speaking of half and half, here's a story about milk. A teacher in Flint gave her class this arithmetic problem: If a cow gives 2 gallons of milk a day, how many gallons will she give in a period of 28 days?

Most of the class came up with the correct 56 gallons. But a surprising large number said 40 gallons. The teacher didn't see how they could all have copied from one another, so she began to inquire, and found that they were thinking in terms of a 5 day week.

Now that's an example of good thinking and poor information. If you had been the teacher, would you have counted that answer right or wrong?

Nisbett says that engineers always have to live with the fact that a piece of information which may be true in one frame of reference, may not necessarily be true in another situation.

This is true also in the field of human behavior, according to the recent proponents of "situational ethics."

It used to be that a man who was trying to live a good life would govern himself by a set of rules, such as "Always tell the truth." Then along comes his neighbor and asks, "How do you like the color I painted my house?" In that situation, after the paint has been applied, something other than the truth may work best.

As portrayed in "A Man for All Seasons," Sir Thomas More was a man of noble, iron-clad principles. When he believed in something, he stood up for it through thick and thin, and we are bound to admire him for it.

Yet at the same time, when it became evident that he was fighting a losing battle against King Henry VIII, when his family's welfare and his own life were at stake, most of the people I know would have said, "Situations alter cases." They would have ignored the rule and lived by the dictates of their heart and mind.

The old way was to live by the rule. The new way seems to be to live by the situation.

Someone has said that formerly a teacher's job was to help his pupils find the correct answers. In today's fast-changing world, he may be wiser if he helps his pupils learn to live with the relevant questions.

If the thought of buying a new furnace bothers you, read this new Three-Step Protection Plan.

First, call Edison. We'll give you the names of electric heat contractors near you. Each has been Edison-approved as capable and reliable.

Next, the contractor will check your home, review your needs, and recommend the type of heat best for you. He will estimate both installation and operating cost and give them to you in writing. All without obligation. We'll check the quotes if you like.

Then, after your new electric heat system is installed, Edison and your contractor will make any adjustments necessary to the system if operating cost exceeds the original estimate during the first three years of use. At the end of this time, if operating cost still exceeds the estimate, and you aren't satisfied, Edison will remove the system and refund your original price.

That's our new Three-Step Protection Plan. Remember the first step. Call Edison.

Lady Bird should have invited Guru

By JIM FITZGERALD

Even if she didn't look a lot sexier in a sheet, I'd like Eartha Kitt much better than Guru Maharishi Mahesh.

Mahesh is that little Indian joker who thinks meditating will make Mia Farrow happier than Frank Sinatra did when he stole her away from Peyton Place.

Miss Kitt was best known for singing in a panther purr until she snarled at a White House luncheon and made Lady Bird cry.

Guru Maharishi Mahesh became a meditator at an early age. It all began when someone asked him how to spell his name. He had to think so long that people thought he was such a deep thinker he hadn't heard the question. Guruliked this reaction so much he has been thinking deep ever since and letting someone else answer the tough questions. The moral is: if Guru Maharishi's parents had named him Billy Joe, Mia Farrow might still be living the Bible according to Sammy Davis Jr.

It is Ordered that on February 29, 1968, at 2 p. m., in the Probate Courtroom Caro, Michigan a hearing be held on the petition of Genevieve Hartel, administratrix, for allowance of her final account and for assignment of residue.

I have studied Guru's "transcendental meditation" from which Mia hopes "to emerge a new person." What you do, see, is sit down and think about nothing. Make your mind a blank. And into that blank mind, contentment will creep. A grand new feeling will transcend everything else and you will be happy.

I do this every night after dinner in a black leather chair with matching footstool. Only my wife doesn't call it transcendental meditation. She just says to the kids, "Your dad is going to sleep again."

So much for Guru Maharishi Mahesh. Now about The Good Eartha...

Miss Kitt was one of 50 women invited to lunch with Lady Bird and discuss crime and juvenile delinquency. I suspect Eartha was included to give the affair color - black. These days, a Washington politician doesn't give a 6-handed taffy pull without inviting at least one Negro - even if he must be bused in from South Africa.

Anyway, Miss Kitt listened to these sophisticated dames prattle the platitudes and twaddle usually heard when women join together to save the world. These gals were probably even windier than usual because they knew they didn't have to save energy for the mind-boggling task of splitting the luncheon bill 50 ways. It was probably agreed that the way to keep our youth out of jail is to have them tear down beer signs and plant tulips along the highways.

And Miss Kitt finally had all she could take on a full stomach. She stood up and told things the way they are. She said young men are disturbed today because they know some Pentagon brass has already penciled them in as tomorrow's statistics. They do not like the idea of killing and being killed in a lousy Vietnam war that makes no sense. And a few of these boys can't quite muster sufficient respect for the law of a land that condemns draft-card burners while dropping napalm on defenseless villages.

I do not have to agree with Miss Kitt to understand her - and to admire her. She was invited to the White House to give her opinion and, by God, she gave it, even if it did bring gasps into lace hankies and tears into Lady Bird's eyes.

Mia Farrow may become a better person by sleep sitting with Guru Maharishi Mahesh. That's her bag and I root for her happiness. But I think she'd get happier quicker if she quit padding around with kooks and stuck her oar in where the water runs swift and deep.

Guru may help a few people, especially himself because transcendental meditation doesn't transcend commercialism. Guru gets a fat fee. But it is the Eartha Kitts who do the most good in a world sadly in need of home improvements.

Any clown can sit down and think about nothing. And too many of these clowns are running the circus. We need more Eartha Kitts to stand up and yap at them.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellers at the country store Saturday night was discussing this new science of replacing human parts. All the fellers was mighty interested on account of most of their parts has been in service fer about 70 year on the average.

Clem Webster reported he had saw where the Health, Education and Welfare folks said the Government would have to help with this parts transplanting business on account of the high costs involved. That remark by Great Society Clem got Ed Doolittle started and he liked to never got stopped.

Ed reported he had already wrote his Congressman to see about getting on the waiting list fer a few spare parts. Ed said he figured the Government would git into the spare parts business as part of the help-everybody program. He had saw where they ain't enough money on hand to cover the Social Security payments fer March, and he was shore the Congress would up the national debt this year to bail out the Social Security. And he figured the day ain't fur off when it will be cheaper fer the Government to pay fer spare parts and keep everybody working and paying taxes than to let everybody git broke down on Social Security.

Zeke Grubb was agreed with Ed, claimed that with half the population under 25 and about half of what's left past retirement age, and millions more getting eligible fer Social Security and Medicare, they ain't no way out except to keep folks working longer. He was of the opinion if a man had a choice of spending the rest of his life on Medicare and Social Security or getting a new heart and replacement fer his bad eye and staying on the job 10 year longer, he would keep right on working and get the replacements.

Ed claimed he had done a heap of thinking about this spare parts business. He said we have to set up a Parts Department like we got fer war, space, and agriculture, fer instant. He said the big problem would be to figure out who was qualified fer what. He was of the opinion they ain't much use installing a new kidney in a feller on welfare because he was already drawing from the pot. He said the Parts Department might have to come up with a deal like them trading stamps you git nowadays fer everything you buy. Ever person that holds down a regular job would be eligible fer stamps, and he could build up books of stamps that he could trade in on second-hand and overhauled parts. He figured this might git a lot of them free-loaders that don't use any of their parts-off their hind parts and out looking fer work.

Personal, Mister Editor, my parts was still working pretty good but anything could happen. Ed said he would study up on the parts plan and tell us more next week.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Former area pastor Rev. G. Guilliat dies in Yale

Funeral services for the Rev. Mr. Gordon A. Guilliat, 73, a former pastor in area United Methodist Churches, were held Saturday in Yale. He was buried in Elk township cemetery near Peck.

Mr. Guilliat died Feb. 7 in the Yale Community Hospital after a short illness.

A native of Sanilac county, he had served as a minister for 41 years before he retired in 1960.

Among the churches he served during these years were New Greenleaf (1944-45 and 1954-59) Mizpah and Riverside (1945-48) and Bad Axe, (1941-45 and 1954-59).

He is survived by his widow; two daughters, Mrs. Robert Matteson, Roseburg, and Mrs. Herbert Langolf, Port Huron; a sister, Mrs. Orilla Hickey, Roseburg; three brothers, Thomas of Peck, Dick of Roseburg and George of Flint, and six grandchildren.

Slate speaker on alcoholic problems at EUB church

Sunday, Feb. 18, Arthur Bartholomew, of the Michigan Temperance Foundation, will be guest speaker in the morning worship service of Salem Evangelical United Brethren Church, Cass City, at 11:00 a. m.

In the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Stanley P. Kirm Sr. will preside and conduct the service.

Mr. Bartholomew is deeply interested in helping to solve alcohol problems. A product of Lapeer schools, he pursued further studies in General Motors Technical Institute and at Michigan State University before gaining several years experience as an industrial worker in Flint.

Presently, having served over 15 years as a risk inspector for insurance companies, he witnesses the destructive influence alcohol has on many Michigan citizens.

An Episcopalian, Mr. Bartholomew will tell of his experiences and explain how concerned Christians everywhere can combine their efforts to help meet one of the most challenging problems facing the church and the world today. This service is open to the public.

BPW Club to see show

Members of the Cass City Business and Professional Women's Club voted at their Feb. 7 meeting to attend the musical "Cabaret" at the Fisher Theater in Detroit.

No date for the trip, for which a bus will be chartered, was set.

Guest speaker for the meeting was Mrs. Gladys Albee, city councilwoman, who discussed the duties and functions of the council. She was introduced by Mary Kirtson.

Two new members were welcomed into the club by Grace Nemeth, membership chairman. They were Elaine Roman and Mable Wright.

Gladys Agar spoke about the purpose of the BPW club's 12-year-old foundation through which scholarships are provided to aspiring students.

Members Martha Knoblet, Verna Mae MacRae and Grace Nemeth were to attend the club's 50th anniversary party held Saturday in the Statler Hilton Hotel in Detroit.

The club will hold a bake sale this month, it was announced.

Nearly 50,000 acres of potatoes, amounting to a 22 million dollar industry, were harvested in Michigan last year. The leading vegetable crop in the state, most of the potato acreage is concentrated in the middle sections of the lower peninsula, yet much is in the upper peninsula.

Behind the Counter Child poisoning—

There's a stage all children go through, when they begin exploring the world about them. Everything has to be climbed up on or lifted or opened, or smelled or touched or tasted. This is how children learn that stoves burn and that chairs are heavy, and it's natural for them to encounter an occasional mishap.

But it also results in a half-million American children being poisoned each year. Once a youngster gets into the medicine cabinet and starts sampling the little bottles of "candy," there's trouble. Those adult sleeping pills, laxatives and pain killers can be dangerous — especially when the child can't tell you how many he has taken of which pill.

Also, there is that supply of common household products which are poisonous, even though they're not labeled as such: bleaches, lighter fluid, furniture polish and cleaning compounds. The child's undeveloped taste buds may not keep him from swallowing things that would taste awful to an older child.

Almost every pharmacist can tell you about the calls he has received from distraught mothers who want to know what to do in such an emergency. He can probably give you the advice you need and can rush over any necessary supplies. However, some complicated poisonings demand hospital attention, and you should have that telephone number handy. We'll also be glad to give you suggestions on how to prevent poisonings, and how to minimize the danger from such an accident.

AROUND THE FARM

Planning-Zoning Needed on farm

By Alfred P. Ballweg

Countryside, U. S. A., is changing. In many instances the farmsteads, livestock, fields, orchards and woodlots are still there, but farmers everywhere are getting new neighbors--neighbors who work in town or in local business or industry.

These neighbors are of all trades and professions, and some of them are part-time farmers. Their houses are found in every State, near cities and towns and miles away in the open country. They came to the countryside for cheaper land and lower taxes, sunshine and open spaces, room to relax and enjoy outdoor living, a safe and healthy environment in which to raise their children, a place to grow a garden and perhaps keep a few chickens, a refuge during misfortune, and a home in their declining years.

The change in the rural scene often begins when a farmer sells off a front lot or two or perhaps a front tract of an acre or so. Later, a house is built on the lot or tract. The change continues and as the years go by, country roads begin to look like residential streets. As the nonfarm population grows, land is bought for gas stations and roadside stores and shops, then for other business and industrial uses.

More people living closer together have brought new problems to countryside, U. S. A. A farmer up the road objects to assessments based on speculative land values; he says he is being taxed out of existence. A homeowner complains about a junkyard that was recently located across the road. A mother doesn't want a proposed tavern to be built near her home. A housewife is disturbed about the smell from a neighbor's barn. A farmer grumbles about children leaving his gates open and about dogs chasing his livestock. But he and his farmer neighbors are more concerned about the decline in local farm service and marketing industries. Others in this changing community are concerned about the remnants of farms, the declining agricultural production, falling water tables, septic tank odors, traffic congestion, billboards, and the need for more and better roads, new schools, additional fire protection, sewers, public water systems, and so on. What of the future? As the community grows, are these problems likely to increase in both volume and number? With so much land, it would seem that there is ample room for farmers and their new neighbors to live side by side in peace. What's wrong? What can the community do to cope with these problems? What can the county, the town, or the township do?

Many local units of government have legal tools that can be used to deal with the problems that concern the people of countryside. These tools can be used to guide the expected future growth of the community toward desirable ends. Among the tools are community planning, subdivision control, building codes, plumbing codes, and zoning ordinances.

Everywhere zoning tools are used to shape better communities and to lessen the growing pains of those already established. Communities are using these tools to prevent the hazardous mixture of conflicting land uses that often comes with unguided growth, that depresses property values, and that causes friction among neighbors.

Additional information about planning and zoning can be obtained from a number of sources. A good place to begin is with your local Cooperative Extension Office, Courthouse, Caro.

Legion Auxiliary has 81 members

Sixteen were present Monday evening when the American Legion Auxiliary met at the Legion hall. During the business meeting, with Mrs. Eugene Keller presiding, the members voted to pay 50¢ on each past president of the unit to the Department of Michigan. The fund is used to provide scholarships for student nurses.

The Auxiliary has been requested to contribute seven handkerchiefs for the Mothers' Day handkerchief program in the Saginaw VA Hospital.

Mrs. Garrison Stine, membership chairman, reported 81 paid memberships for the current year.

At the close of the business meeting, games and a lunch were enjoyed.

Kingston marine completes training

Marine Private James C. Patterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Patterson, Kingston, was graduated from eight weeks of recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot at San Diego, Calif.

PVT. JAMES C. PATTERSON

He will undergo from two to four weeks of individual combat training and then, after leave at home, will report to his first Marine Corps Assignment.

The intensified Marine recruit training emphasizes rigid physical conditioning and survival techniques, both at sea and ashore, to develop self-confidence and endurance. Marksmanship with the M-14 rifle and 45-caliber pistol are equally stressed, and close order drill instills the traditions of Marine Corps teamwork.

PowerMix

*It's refinery-blended in exact proportions for snowmobiles, chain saws, snow blowers
and all other two-cycle engines.*

Use PowerMix, the modern two-cycle fuel specially-blended for snowmobiles, chain saws, snow blowers... and all two-cycle engines. One simple fill-up does it. No messy hand mixing of gas and oil. No chance for destructive impurities to enter the fuel while you're mixing it. And the proportions are always just right.

PowerMix is a combination of the finest non-leaded gasoline and detergent oil. Gives faster starts. Better mileage. Keeps your engine cleaner. And wait 'til you see how long plugs last! That's Leonard Total Performance. You can depend on Leonard.

Ask for your Blue PowerMix Snowmobile decal!

O. VanValkenberg of Caro, dies in Fla.

Funeral services were held Tuesday in St. Agatha's Church, Gagetown, for Otto E. VanValkenberg, 59, of Caro.

Mr. VanValkenberg died Friday in the Doctors Hospital in St. Petersburg, Fla., after a short illness.

Rev. Isidore Mikulski, pastor of the Sacred Heart Church of Caro, of which Mr. VanValkenberg was a member, officiated at the services. Burial was in the St. Agatha's Church cemetery.

Born in Midland, Mr. VanValkenberg had lived in Caro for the past seven years. Prior to that he had been a resident of Gagetown.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Evangeline VanValkenberg; a sister, Lila DeBoer of Caro; a niece, Mrs. Nancy Harnback of Utica; four half-brothers; one half sister; five grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

Income tax

Laugh makers

By Dan Marlowe

Department of It's-Getting-To - Be - That - Time - Of - The - Year:

Humorist Bill Adler collected the following bouquet of unbelievable letters direct from the files of the Internal Revenue Service in Washington, D.C., everyone of them absolutely authentic, as follows:

"DEAR SIR: I received the notice from your 'idiot box, commonly called computer' indicating that I owe you $5.00 plus $1.11 interest on my 1963 tax return. I know it is common practice for your service to charge taxpayers for information rendered to them about their returns. I am enclosing herewith a bill for my services, and telling you that the computer forgot to apply the $5.00 filed with my estimated tax return. Please refer to line 19-b. Inasmuch as my time is extremely valuable, it seems to me that the charge I have made for my services in straightening out your computer is most reasonable. Your prompt remittance will be appreciated so that I will not have to start charging interest on the amount you owe me. Sincerely yours."

"TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: This is to certify that my sister has contributed more than $600 to my support for my past year. This includes: groceries, medicine, clothes, doctor bills, hospital, and funeral expense. Yours truly."

"GENTLEMEN: We would like to obtain a copy of your study 'Where millionaires -- and -- others -- get their money' referred to in the July issue of U.S. News and World Report, Page 8. If this material is available without costs, we should like very much to have it for addition to our permanent reference library. Please use this address in replying: Librarian, State Prison. Sincerely yours."

"COLLECTOR OF U.S. INTERNAL REVENUE: I am not in this country long, and does not have Form 1040A or Form 1040. I make interest 1959 for $1.23. Enclosed my last page check. Please take what you want and send me the money back what is left."

"DEAR INTERNAL REVENUE: I've always paid my income tax in the past because I was afraid of going to jail if I didn't. Now, I read in the papers and hear on the TV and radio that this is a matter of voluntary self-assessment. If it's voluntary, I don't want any part of it, so you can have your forms back."

"DEAR SIR: My wife went to pay my income tax last Friday and I haven't seen her since, so will you please let me know if it has been paid. If not, will you please send me another form for me to fill out. Respectfully."

"SIRS: Borrowed cow, cow fell in ditch and broke her leg. No cow, no milk, no money. Is there a deduction there?"

Mrs. Fournier, of Gagetown, dies

Funeral services were held Friday in Florida for Mrs. Alice C. Fournier, 59, of Gagetown.

Mrs. Fournier, who has been wintering in Florida for the past three years, died Feb. 7 at the Tarponaire Trailer Park, Tarpon Springs, Fla.

She was buried in Meadowlawn Memorial Gardens, New Port Richey, Fla.

Born in Sarnia, Ont., Mrs. Fournier was a member of the Gifford Chapter OES No. 369 of Gagetown.

Survivors include her husband, Preston C. Fournier, and two sisters, Mrs. Pearl Clapworthy of Sarnia and Mrs. Dora MacKenzie of Port Huron.

Letter to Editor

Feb. 12, 1968

Dear John,

Congratulations on your recent edition commemorating national Boy Scout Week. Our troop is truly active and expanding and I feel that credit should be given to the person responsible. Scouting in Cass City would surely have been "on the way out" if it had not been for the unselfish devotion of time and expert guidance by James Ware. He, in the true spirit of scouting, has never expected to receive the credit due him for all his work with the youth of our town, but I feel that it is worth mentioning. I'm sure most of the parents and scouts are aware that for the past several years he has given one week of his two week vacation to go to Camp Rotary so that his troop can attend. (It's required that an adult accompany a troop).

In the spring he takes canoe trips with the boys down the Cass River. Last year it took four week ends to accommodate all the troop. There are many activities during the course of a year that requires Jim to take the time from his family to supervise - such as campfires, scout fair, and the Polar Bear outing last week end in sub-zero temperature. This, of course, doesn't include the planning for each week's troop meeting. He has received exceptional assistance for the past few years from two Cass City businessmen, Al Bennett and Jim Johnson, and many of the parents help out whenever they can. Cass City's boys should feel very fortunate that they have the leadership available to them in the person of Jim Ware. I'm sure that I speak for the entire troop committee in expressing our appreciation for a job well done.

Sincerely,
Dick Wallace

Wednesday, Feb. 28 - Will Montgomery will hold a farm machinery sale at the place located 12 miles west of Caro on Gifford Rd.

Saturday, March 2 - Sylvester Bukowski will sell at auction, farm machinery at the premises located eight miles east, one mile south and one and a half miles east of Cass City.

Friday, March 8 - Patrick and Paul Beckett will hold a farm machinery auction sale at the place located three miles west and two and a half miles north of Cass City on Dodge Road.

Saturday, March 9 - George M. Cooklin will sell farm machinery, dairy equipment, feed and miscellaneous items at the farm located six miles south, two miles east and two and a half miles south of Cass City on Crawford Road.

Fully charged car and tractor batteries have only 40 per cent of the cranking power at zero as they have at 80 degree temperatures, say Michigan State University agricultural engineers. Cranking power can be increased by connecting a small, low-output trickle charger to the battery while the car or tractor is parked in the garage overnight. This increases internal temperature of the battery and insures a full charge, say the agricultural engineers.
