

The kids were good...the teacher wasn't

By John Haire

Maybe it hadn't been such a good idea after all. . . that bright flash that came before the holidays and made me volunteer as a substitute teacher at Cass City Schools.

For now, here I was facing my first class feeling like the day I was (1) ordered to enter the Army, (2) asked to white-wash the top of a cement silo and (3) waiting to publish my first issue of the Chronicle.

It didn't sound too bad when Intermediate Principal Bob Stickle roused me out of bed after a hard night to inform me that my big chance had come. . . I was going to teach.

Cautiously I felt him out. . . what class am I to have? English. Ah. . . my long suit.

Jauntily I made my way to the school to get the assignment for the day.

Perhaps we would do a little old fashioned diagramming. . . or study passive verbs. . . or read a little literature (Edgar Allen Poe and Mark Twain should be a snap to teach).

Whatever it is, the book will tell me what to do. . . the lesson will be ready.

ANY QUESTIONS?

You're to teach in room 32. Stickle explained, and that's right next door. If you have any questions, just ask.

Any questions?

Just one. What in the devil was I supposed to do?

The deadline was approaching; the kids were coming and I had no books, no pencils, no paper and no ideas.

The lesson book had not been prepared in the emergency situation. . . but the lesson was to tell how to use a library.

How to use a library? How do you spend 48 minutes telling a group of kids that the way to use the library is to go in and ask the librarian for the book you want?

I wondered if every substitute looked with such affliction at a slightly used roll of film and a spanking new projector as I did at 9:25 a. m. when the chips were down and the kids were waiting to test a new rookie.

"We've got a fairly long slide presentation here and after you present it the kids might want to ask questions", Stickle said as he left the room before the class arrived.

He was half right. They asked questions, but only before the class had started.

Where's Mrs. Bauer? You our teacher today? Hot dogs, a movie?

Sally Jones? Present. Tim Smith? Present. John Jones? President. WHAT? I mean present.

The day had started.

"LONG MOVIE"

It's a long film I cautioned myself. . . maybe I'm flicking these slides too slowly. . . it will probably be time to go and the movie will be just half over, I thought as I surreptitiously tried to spy the clock on the wall without letting that boy with the gleam in his eye in the back row know what I was doing.

I should have worried. The "long" film proves to be at least 20 minutes too short.

Thank God for the question and answer period. Do all of you understand the three ways to get a book out of the library? Do you think you could check a book from the library? Does anybody have any questions about anything?

Terror. That's what it is when you face a bunch of kids with 10 minutes left in the class and don't know what to do.

Let them study, I said triumphantly to myself. . . and the parade to the front of the room for "reference" books started.

The pattern was established and after it was repeated five times during the day it became almost routine.

LIKE A WARDEN

The only trouble was that I felt more like a warden than a teacher. . . most of the kids were pretty darn good about the whole thing. . . only they weren't learning anything.

As the classes streamed in one after another and I tried to tell them about the local library and the wonderful world of reading for fun, I couldn't help but feel totally inadequate.

From personal experience, I knew I had a million dollar product to sell, but I wasn't able to move the merchandise.

My respect for the three really outstanding teachers that I had been fortunate to learn from and for the other good teachers that had tried to help me in school raised another notch. . . and I now look back with new sympathy and understanding to those who tried and couldn't.

WANT TO LEARN

For certainly in the seventh and eighth grade classes that I taught, the kids wanted to learn. . . even if most of them would die rather than admit it. . . and most of them were fair.

In the closing moments of the day with the last class, one which presented more problems than others, I thanked the students for their attention. One girl raised her hand and said that I was too strict; demanded too much quiet and attention.

And the class came to my defense. . . accused the girl of mouthing off and said that I was okay.

It was a glow to know. . . and I thought how really satisfying it must be to receive this approbation for really achieving, really teaching.

How great it must feel at times to REALLY be a teacher.

Strike ends at Walbro

Labor peace came to Cass City Friday as members of United Auto Workers Union Local 213 ratified a new three year contract with the Walbro Corp. by a vote of 41-39.

According to Howard Bacon, Walbro vice-president, the settlement calls for an increase in wages and fringe benefits amounting to 42 cents over the next three years.

The some 100 members of the union will receive 19 cents of the package this year, 11 1/2 cents next year and the final 11 1/2 cents of the settlement in the third year.

The settlement of the 25-day old strike came late Friday afternoon following an all day bargaining session between company and union officials at the Walbro Plant in Cass City.

Immediately after the negotiators had reached agreement, members of Local 213 ratified the new pact.

The pact gives employees at the plant two cents more than they were first offered by the company, Bacon said.

The old contract expired on Dec. 14. Under that contract, the average hourly wage for female employees was $1.90 an hour while the majority of male employees received $2.62 an hour. The rate includes an average incentive payment estimated at 30 per cent of the base rate.

Employees continued to work at the plant without a contract until Local 213 called them out on strike on Jan. 23 to reinforce its economic demands.

Under the new contract, employees will receive pay for three holidays they missed during this "no contract" period, Bacon said: Christmas, New Year's and a half a day before each.

Bacon said the plant, which had been kept at limited production through the strike with the use of supervisory persons, will be back in full production by Thursday.

Meanwhile, strikes against two other area plants continue.

At the Active Industries plant in Elkhart, members of Allied Industrial Workers Local 628, AFL-CIO, Friday shut down an agreement which had been reached earlier between union and company officials.

Some 450 workers have been on strike against the plant since Jan. 15 when the contract between the company and the union expired.

As a result of Friday's vote, which ran 180 against the proposed agreement to 118 in favor of it, the union's three member bargaining committee resigned.

The bargaining team had reached tentative agreement with the company Wednesday.

Merlin Fayer, who as president of the Local served as chairman of the bargaining committee, also resigned.

From Uby, where some 70 members of the United Dairy Workers have been on strike against the Nestles Co. plant, since Jan. 9, Olin Ramseyer, plant manager, said negotiations will resume Tuesday.

Company and Union officials will meet in the Thumb Electric Office in Uby at 10 a. m., he said.

New fire truck due here soon

Cass City Fire Chief Nelson Willy announced this week that the village's new fire truck, ordered in the fall, will be delivered on March 1.

With the addition of the new 750 gallon-per-minute pumper, the department will have a total of four fire fighting vehicles, he said.

The department responded to a call around 8 p. m. Saturday when the neon sign in front of the McConkey Jewelry Store on Main Street began to arc.

"We only had to disconnect the sign," Willy said. "There was no danger unless the sign had continued to flare."

Tax collection near 90 %

A total of $242,000 in tax monies was collected by the Elkhart Township treasurer prior to the Feb. 14 deadline after which 1967 taxes due became delinquent.

Mac O'Dell, township treasurer, said that the total to be collected for 1967 is $277,000.

"I have approximately

THREE from Cass City - (from right) Mr. and Mrs. Al Tropp and Mrs. A. T. Barnes are met by Senior Club Prexy Mrs. Helen Craig.

Seniors rally

That old gang still A game old gang

It was a fast, old-fashion game of Euchre and Mrs. Gisele Schian of Reese was dealing.

"Oh," she said as she fingered the cards, "I learned the game too many years ago."

"Shush, dear," said Mrs. Irene Dyer of Caro from across the card table. "He's trying to learn your age."

The two were playing partners during last Thursday's regular meeting of the Senior Citizens of Tuscola County in the 4-H Building on the Caro fairground.

And asking of lady's age in this club can be a dangerous sport.

For indeed, when interrogated about her birth date, Mrs. Schian, with eyes dancing, reared back putting in true feminine style and said: "What a question to ask, what a question."

Shot down, the reporter pulled in his notebook and pen, retreated and asked: "Are you having fun?"

"It's my first visit here," the grey-haired lass admitted.

But her partner, Mrs. Dyer, is an old club member if a year, old club can have old members. "I come to every meeting," she boasted, not without showing pride.

"You meet people you would never meet otherwise."

Like the visitors - and perhaps future members - who made the scene that day from Cass City: Mr. and Mrs. Al Tropp, Mrs. A. T. Barnes and Clayton Root.

And that's the whole purpose of the organization, this gathering of the county's elderly every two weeks, said Mrs. Helen Craig of Reese.

Just plain socializing. Mrs. Craig - a charming hostess (perhaps due to the fact that she didn't give the reporter a hard time about her age) is the founder of the senior citizens club and its current president.

As she described it, the club's motto could be simply: fun and games.

"We've been real lucky," Mrs. Craig said as she prepared to draw a number to see who won the door prize for the day.

"We have a wonderful little social group here. We operate it all by ourselves and without any restrictions."

By this she meant the club doesn't bother chasing after causes.

A person tried to talk us into joining something - let's see - like Michigan Senior Citizens or something like that. Well, we wouldn't have anything to do with it."

Mrs. Craig started the club a year ago in January, based on a "why not in Tuscola" idea she got from a visit to an elder's club in Saginaw. Membership now numbers 60, with the average attendance at the afternoon gatherings running around 50 persons.

The format for fun is simple. "We play cards," said Mrs. Craig. "If our planist comes, we have a community sing. And once a month, we try and hold a pot-luck supper."

And, for those who don't play cards, there's "Po-keno," Mrs. Craig added.

Refreshments? Of course. Coffee and doughnuts, usually.

Cass City-Owen-gage boards to parley

The Cass City School Board and the Owen-Gage School Board will meet together in Cass City Feb. 28 to discuss the future relations between the two schools.

The meeting will be the first tentative step to determine whether there is any possibility for a merger of a portion of the Owen-Gage District with Cass City.

But no one is saying that right now.

The meeting is being billed as "Throwing Out Feelers."

"We will be throwing out feelers on both sides," said Cass City's superintendent Donald Crouse.

"We don't know the purpose yet," said Allen Fennell, superintendent at Owen-Gage. "We are just putting out feelers."

Arraign two from area

Two area men will be arraigned Tuesday before the Tuscola County Circuit Court on felony charges.

George W. Keller, whose address was given as Main Street, Cass City, will be arraigned on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

Keller was arrested on Dec. 29 for having a 22-caliber pistol in his car.

Following an appearance before Caro Justice Frank Holka, he was released on a $1,000 bond.

Donald F. Stein, who gave his address as the Gagetown Hotel, Gagetown, will be arraigned before Judge James Churchill on a charge of illegally selling on Jan. 24 ten Holstein steers which were being held subject to a chattel mortgage.

Appearing before Justice Holka on Jan. 27, Stein was released on $1,000 bond.

In all, there will be 31 cases heard during the two day court session this week.

The session will conclude Wednesday with the jury trial of Juanita Thompson, 40, of 203 Ellington Street, Caro, who has been charged with issuing three fraudulent checks totaling $41.67.

She pleaded innocent following her arrest last June 23.

SEEK MILLAGE

The Owen-Gage board is seeking $70,000 in additional operating funds in a special March election in hopes of coming up with the money to continue to operate on its own.

"Naturally," said William Ruhl, treasurer of the Cass City Board, "if they get the money they'll run the school."

It was for this reason, he said, he urged at the last board meeting that the board make no move at this time on the matter of possible merger with Owen-Gage until after this election.

A majority of board members polled recently favored merger in some form or other, if possible.

"I'm for increasing the size of the school district," said

FROM THE Editor's Corner

Close votes involving employees at Walbro are the rule rather than the exception. Last week the ratification of the vote came by a meager two votes.

When the employees held their first vote to decide whether or not to become part of a union the vote was a tie and it was not until a year later that the employees finally joined the AFL-CIO.

More important than the vote is the settlement of the first local strike in Cass City's history after 25 days.

As usual after a labor dispute, it's impossible to point to a "winner". Probably nobody won.

More important, it appears that nobody lost so much that it will take the rest of the year to catch up.

The strike was watched with apprehension by local merchants. . . but most reported that the economic effects were fairly slight. . . not nearly as destructive as they feared it would be if the dispute dragged on for months.

The positive side of the new contract is that the new pact guarantees labor peace at Walbro for the next three years.

The unquestioned sales kings of Cass City will start a new campaign Friday.

That's the date that the annual Girl Scout cookie sale gets under motion and before the ending date, Mar. 3, nearly every resident will be contacted.

The girls make six cents for their troop on every box they sell and it's a rare adult who can escape without buying a box of each variety.

The remainder of the profit is used for campships, camping equipment and camp development and maintenance.

And besides. . . you just might like the cookies.

BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By H. M. Buley

Here's a little known fact about Sandy Koufax. Although he became one of the greatest pitchers of all-time, if not THE greatest, Sandy's over-all won-loss record actually was worse than average his first SIX full years in the majors! . . . Sandy joined the Dodgers in 1955, winning 2 and losing 2; in 1956 his record was 2-4; in 1957 it was 5-4; in 1958 it was 11-11; in 1959 it was 8-6 and in 1960 it was 8-13. . . . Thus in those six seasons, Koufax won only 36 games while losing 40!

Here's a little baseball puzzle for you. Suppose a pitcher is thrown to the batter. The pitch hits the dirt in front of the plate but then bounces right up into the strike zone. Is it a ball or a strike? . . . Many people would answer that it is a strike because it went through the strike zone -- but, it is a ball.

Of all the baseball teams, there is only ONE that has been in the big leagues every year since the start of major league ball in 1876. . . . Any idea which team it is? . . . Answer is the Chicago Cubs. . . . All other big league teams either started after that or dropped out of the majors for a year or more since then.

Dr. Goldsmith 1st AAUW speaker

Dr. Arnold Goldsmith from Wayne State University will be the speaker Monday, Feb. 26, 8 p. m. in the first of three lectures to be presented this season by the Cass City Branch of the AAUW at the Culture Center. Since then he has been associated with Wayne State University where he is now an associate professor.

In connection with his special field, nineteenth and twentieth century American literature, he has appeared on television and radio several times. "If It Fitz . . ."

Don't say cheese.... sue instead

By JIM FITZGERALD

With the help of William Boyan, I may sue the State of Michigan.

Boyan is asst. prosecutor of Mercer County in New Jersey and he might be for laughs - if you are a judge. But he has a law degree and an impressive title and I have avoided trouble since I learned the Elite Bar and Grill couldn't belong. So I take Boyan seriously.

The Associated Press told his incredible story. Boyan hired a photographer named Gunkel to take pictures at his wedding. Boyan claims the pictures turned out "grotesque and repulsive" and he is suing Gunkel.

The pictures were so horrible they couldn't go in the newspaper, Boyan says. The lack of publicity hurt his private law practice, cutting his income. Gunkel should reimburse him for this loss, Boyan insists.

Boyan also wants Gunkel to pay him $2,000 to cover expenses of a trip to the Netherlands to visit the bride's parents. The trip was necessary to soothe the feelings of his in-laws who were angry because there were no decent wedding pictures.

Naturally, the bride and groom couldn't go to the Netherlands without the matron of honor, the best man, and the soloist who sang at the wedding. Gunkel should pay their expenses, too, Boyan says.

Boyan also points out that his bride is a professional model and "an excellent subject to photograph."

It is enough to make one wonder if Gunkel went to the right wedding, isn't it? But I'm certain he did. I'm certain Gunkel stands guilty as accused because Boyan is a member of the legal profession from whence we reap so many of our politicians. Would he lie for a few lousy thousand dollars?

Besides, I think I have spotted Gunkel for the dirty bird he is. He must be the guy who invented the photo machines which Michigan uses to take pictures to go on driver's licenses. And that's what I want to see Boyan about as soon as he's done plucking Gunkel. The photo on my license has caused me terrible anguish for which Michigan should pay dearly.

It's like this: I am usually late getting to wherever I am driving. I won't drive over 40 mph for fear of being stopped by some smart cop who will want to see my license. The last time I got caught speeding I was humiliated in front of my entire family by a New York state policeman.

This cop looked at my technical likeness and began mumbling.

"Why are you mumbling, officer?" I asked.

"I'm not mumbling," he answered, "I'm counting chins to make sure it is you."

Finally he laughed, shook his head, and said: "By golly, that is a picture of you. For awhile I thought it was Jackie Gleason."

At various other times my license picture has precipitated comment on my: 1) Nose - "It really is that red, isn't it?"; 2) Eyes - "They're mostly red too aren't they?"; and 3) Over-all face: "I've seen better hanging in postoffices, ha-ha."

With wisecrackers like that patrolling our highways, it is no wonder I proceed cautiously.

Arriving anywhere late has definitely hurt my income. If I'd been 5 minutes earlier to a Legion meeting once, I would have won a $25 raffle. Several times I've arrived at theatres 2 minutes after tickets quit selling at matinee prices. And I've also been tardy for several bargain cocktail hours.

Lord only knows how much my license picture has cost me in real cash and crippling humiliation. I'll let Boyan decide how much I should sue Michigan for. If he can get Gunkel to finance a Netherlands honeymoon for his entire wedding party, he certainly should be able to make me rich enough to buy my own cops.

I can think of only one thing that might stump a lawyer as smart as Boyan. To sue Michigan, it might be necessary to serve a subpoena on Gov. Romney while he is in the state.

Onward and Upward.

Maharg's record breaking effort leads Cass City past Marlette

SOPHOMORE JOE HILLAKER has shown steady improvement since moving up from the Junior Varsity ranks for Cass City at mid-season. Gradually getting the feel of varsity play, he helped the Hawks to victory over Marlette Friday.

Just when you start to write off the Cass City Red Hawks for another season they bounce back with an unexpected, almost unbelievable victory over teams that were supposed to have no trouble defeating them.

Friday night it was Marlette that felt the sting of an outstanding shooting performance by John Maharg and company as the Raiders were dumped, 78-71, and eliminated from a chance to share any part of the Thumb B Conference title with the Lakers.

Maharg did just about everything that you could ask of a basketball player Friday as he almost single-handedly led his team to victory.

The sharp shooting senior hit on 16 of 26 shots from the field for an average of 61 per cent and 12 of 13 from the free throw line on his way to a new school record.

His individual effort eclipsed the former mark held jointly by Fred Leeson (1958) and Tim Burdon (1953). Maharg also probably set a record for sinking a long distance shot that will last for years.

He took a desperation heave from three-quarters of the length of the floor and the ball swished through without even touching the rim.

In addition to his shooting effort, Maharg played a strong defensive game and led the team in rebounding with 14.

Despite the record performance, it looked for awhile as if Cass City was going to blow the game after leading throughout the first half.

The Hawks scored the first five points of the game as Coach Jim Wynne started a new combo that featured Joe Hillaker at center and Henry Ashmore at guard.

Ron Weppert chipped in with some key baskets and rebounds in the first two quarters before he was pulled from the game with four fouls midway in the second period.

The fighting Hawks were foul prone and eventually lost Weppert, Hillaker, Ashmore and Joe Graham via the foul route.

With the heart of its rebounding strength sitting on the bench, Cass City continued to hold its own with the visitors and actually widened a narrow lead in the dying moments of the game.

END SEASON

Cass City fans will be watching the last regular season game of the year Friday when the Hawks entertain Vassar. If the team can hold its edge, the chances for an upset in the District B tourney will be at least an outside possibility.

The box score:

WSC hears Mrs. MacRae Tuesday

Mrs. Ivan MacRae told members of the Woman's Study Club of the people, customs and attractions in the Smoky Mountains. Tuesday, Feb. 13, at the home of Mrs. Margaret Haire.

She told of the State park in the mountains and of Cade's Cave while saying that the people living in the area have changed little since the first settlers came.

Mostly poor, the mountaineers lived on whatever the poor, thin soil produced, she explained.

When the park was formed, many of the people had to leave the area and today are more prosperous as they are employed in industry, Mrs. Mac-

Rae said.

The older persons who did not want to leave were allowed to keep their homes as long as they lived.

Mrs. MacRae showed colored slides of the area that she photographed while a guest of the Robert Schuckerts who now live in Naperville, Tenn.

In other business it was announced that Mrs. Arthur Moore is exhibiting paintings and Mrs. Herbert Ludlow, sewing, in a contest to be held at the State convention of Women's Clubs.

Many a fellow literally knocks himself out trying to keep up with his good intentions.

Rites Thursday for Frank E. Dodge

Funeral services for Frank E. Dodge, 69, will be held Thursday at the MacAlpine Funeral Home in Bad Axe.

Dodge was born Sept. 30, 1898, at Marlette and spent his boyhood in the Cass City area. He graduated from Cass City High School.

Dodge died Sunday night at Atlantic City, N. J., where he was attending a national convention of superintendents of schools.

He had been superintendent at Port Austin for eight years and served in a similar capacity at Bad Axe for 11 years.

TAX COLLECTIONS

$95,000 more to collect," he said. A penalty of four per cent of the delinquent tax, plus a one per cent collection fee is now in effect and will remain so until Feb. 29 when all taxes must be paid, he said.

The treasurer said that the amount of delinquent taxes at this time - an amount representing close to 13 per cent of total Township tax - compares favorably with tax collection in prior years.

"It is very good," he said, "as compared with other years."

O'Dell said that he expects to "end up with less than five per cent" of the tax delinquent when he makes his accounting with the county on March 13.

The tax money is based on an assessed valuation in the township of some $10 million on 1,574 "descriptions" - pieces of property - he said.

The majority of the $277,000 will be turned over to the Cass City School District, the rest will be used in township and county operations.

SENIOR CITIZENS

There are no dues. Donations go for goodies.

The formal part of the meeting is run so informally that one member stood up Thursday and reminded club officers that - in the interest of presenting a good image to visitors - someone should second the treasurer's report.

"We try to do something special every meeting, a little thing," the club president said.

At Thursday's meeting the theme was Valentine's Day and club members exchanged "Be Mine and I'll Be Thine" cards as if they were in grade school. A girl scout troop had donated napkin holders of paper hearts and flowers.

"The next meeting will be on Washington's Birthday," Mrs. Craig said. "We're going to have a potluck supper. The club will buy the cherry pies. George Washington? Cherry pies? Doesn't that ring of 'I can't tell a lie' or something? Okay, Mrs. Schlan. What will you answer that day if you happen to run into a nosy reporter?"

News From Cass City Justice Court

Three persons were in court during the week ending Feb. 17:

Floyd Gray, 61, of Gagetown was ticketed Dec. 16 for driving with an expired operator's license. He was picked up on a warrant Jan. 31 and posted bond. After entering a plea of guilty Feb. 13, he paid a fine of $15.00 and costs of $19.90.

James Edward Willis, 19, of rural Cass City, ticketed by Police Chief Carl Palmateer for violation of the basic speed law, paid a fine of $10.00 and costs of $6.00.

Dennis L. Luetke, 19, of Cass City, charged Feb. 14 by Officer James Jezewski with being a disorderly person, was sentenced to pay a fine of $25.00 and costs of $8.50 or to serve three days in jail. Fine and costs were paid.

In this high cost of living era the only way to get well-heeled is to keep on your toes.

Lost and found one little lad from Uby town

Out Uby way the other day, wee Bryan V. Pivalowski just took the notion that he'd like to go visiting.

Like maybe drop in on Grandma and Grandpa just down the road a piece.

So he gathered all his inches under him and, trusting that his two and a half years made him man enough, hid himself away from his father's farm.

Out through fields and woodlots. Without a by-you-leave.

For his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pivalowski, the next four hours on their farm on the Bay City-Forestville Road that Friday were dreadful.

"I didn't know if we'd find his body lying in the road or in the ditch," said Mrs. Pivalowski Monday - getting nervous all over again.

But Bryan hadn't gone by way of the big ditch full of dangerous water or down the road and that's what confused his parents.

He had gone out with his father to the barn to watch dad do chores. Suddenly he was missing.

From 5:30 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. State Police, Sanilac Deputies, and neighbors scoured the area looking for the lad.

"There was no snow on the ground so you could see where he went," Mrs. Pivalowski remembered.

Then Henry Peruski reported he had spotted a child fitting the description walking east.

"He never went in that direction before," his mother said.

Sure enough, a half a mile east of home, warm in his winter buff, Bryan was found by Leo Talaski.

He told the adults he was heading for Grandma's house.

"He knows the way," Mrs. Pivalowski said. "But he never walked it before."

"All I could feel was relief when they found him," she said. "A spanking? Don't you believe it. Not for a big, bold adventurer."

"I just gave him a big squeeze," Bryan's mother said.

VOTERS REBEL

of 830 to 581 while rejecting out of hand another proposition, which called for an additional 6 1/2 mill levy, by a vote of 988 to 418.

Elton Gingrich, Principal of the Caro High School, described the turn out as "one of our larger votes."

He blamed high taxes and inaction on part of the state legislature in coming up with new school funding programs for the thumbs down on the new millage.

"My observation is that, as far as the three mills was concerned, it didn't make any difference. It is on the tax rolls right now and people are satisfied with our program and want to keep it."

"But people I've talked with feel taxes are high right now - the state is lolling around - where's the income tax money they were going to get back through their schools?"

"If they don't get something from the state, then they're not going to vote new millage." "I feel fortunate we got the three mills renewed."

He, too, said that if additional monies aren't forthcoming, Caro's program will have to be altered to meet the budget demands. Gingrich said that the Caro School Board had not met since the election to discuss the board's next step to raise revenue.

In spite of what he noted was needed revision in the tax law, to relieve local tax payers, Owen-Cage Superintendent Allen Fennell is still hopeful that district residents will buy a tax hike this year.

His board is faced with a millage election on March 11 in which voters will be asked to approve six brand new mills - some $70,000 - to cover an anticipated deficit and maintain the budget.

A citizens meeting has been called in the Cageton School cafeteria for 8 p. m. Tuesday at which the future of the school and the millage proposition will be discussed.

"I am hopeful," Fennell said, "that when they know the full story they will vote for it. We are attempting to get the story across to them."

Here at home Superintendent Donald Crouse, who's relieved of having to seek for new tax money this year, blamed taxes, too.

"The general sentiment is against further taxation," he said.

"It is unfortunate that tax payers only get to vote 'no' on the one tax from which, dollar for dollar, they get the most return through local expenditure."

Evergreen

by: Darlene Wentworth & Barb Dorland

The kindergarten students at Evergreen have been learning their numbers. To make learning a little more fun, the students play various games with numbers, which help them to recognize the numbers and to place them in order.

The kindergartners have also learned several songs which they can play with the rhythm band.

The contest in Mrs. Gray's room has ended. Gerold Lewicki's side of the room defeated Chuck Phetplace's.

The contest was to see which side could get the least marks for talking. Darlene and Barb said that Chuck didn't help his side very much because he got quite a few marks himself. Now his team gets to treat Gerold's.

Also in the sixth grade, the students each picked a topic they liked and gave a report to the class for English.

The third and fourth graders had a basketball game last week. They were evenly matched with the final score being 18-18.

The Boy Scouts of Troop 801 gave a demonstration of various skills for the students of Evergreen last Tuesday.

Leading the troop was Henry Sherman.

CAMPBELL ELEMENTARY Mrs. Stickle's room has made a bulletin board of TV art work. It includes string paintings, action figures in winter sports, silhouettes, and valentines.

In order to prove that gas escapes from a container, Mrs. Hutchinson was going to do an experiment demonstrating this to her students. She took a bottle of water, dropped some alkali into it, covered the bottle and shook it. Supposedly, the escaping gas would cause a balloon to "blow up" if it was stretched over the mouth of the bottle. However, . . . before Mrs. Hutchinson could get the balloon stretched over the top of the bottle, the gas was already escaping right along with the water in the bottle that went all over the floor and on a couple of the desks in the front row. (That sounds like something that would happen in a typical high school Chemistry Class!)

On Friday the Junior High had its own pep assembly for the first time. The assembly was modeled after the Senior High assemblies with the seventh and eighth grade cheerleaders leading the students.

The seventh and eighth grades battled it out for the Spirit Jug, with the eighth grade ending up the winner.

A skit was presented by the two groups of cheerleaders and the two groups of cheerleaders and the two groups of cheerleaders.

C. C. H. S.

On Tuesday the new school had its first assembly. The assembly was a dramatic play presented by a husband and wife team - The Purdue's. The play they presented was written by Czechov. After their performance they told the students something about Czechov and his writings, the field of acting in general, their career as a traveling program, and about their props. Their props are made to collapse so as they can fit in a trunk of a car, which is really great considering they had a couch, a table, a chair, and complete background scenery.

Also on Tuesday there was a student council meeting. Both Mr. Cleland and President Mary Sue Burns weren't in school Tuesday so Phil Keating (vice-president) presided, with Mrs. Brown substituting for Mr. Cleland.

Mr. Holmberg informed the council of some decisions made by the "Thumb B" principals, who got together to "iron out" a few things. The principals decided to allow only one student exchange day this year. Cass City will exchange with Caro on March 18. They also decided that the "Thumb B" talent show would be March 29.

The "Thumb B" talent show is a program in which the winners of each local talent show of the schools in Thumb B travel to different schools in the area to present their act. This year Cass City's winners (top three) will go to Caro in the morning of the 29th and to Frankenmuth in the afternoon. Sandusky and Vassar will come to Cass City in the afternoon.

C.C.H.S. is going to host the next "Thumb B" Student Council meeting Feb. 21. The students from other schools will come to Cass City for the entire day and have the meetings in our Library. It was decided at our Student Council meeting that we would pay for our guests' lunches.

Wednesday morning we had homerooms in which we discussed the student council's minutes and filled out our location cards.

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN - THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1968

Hostetler's Hodgepodge

The right time,
the right place?

By Marion Hostetler

One of our readers, who had intended to leave for a vacation in Hawaii on Jan. 27, had a gall bladder operation on that date. Instead, how's that for timing? Have your operation while on vacation, so as not to lose any time from work.

He learned three things from his stay in the hospital:

(1) People who have already had surgery themselves are more solicitous about phoning, visiting, and sending cards than those who have always been disgustingly healthy.

(2) It's cruel to tell funny stories to anyone who has just had an abdominal operation. It hurts him to laugh.

(3) It is unkind to say to a patient, "Oh I didn't know you were here!" That makes him feel as if you think he should have called up all his friends and acquaintances to announce his approaching surgery.

the right place, but since you already had it marked, I cut there anyhow."

I got to wondering why "card" means "wag." The dictionary didn't give me any help, so I had to invent my own etymology. A wag is called a card because a card is a joker.

That second, joker was quite a cutup.

Margaret Schubel remarks that old-time trains seem to rank next to kittens in terms of reader response.

Adel Welter's remembers that the horse-drawn bus which used to meet the train in Cass City was a convertible... in snowy weather it was converted into a sleigh. And when an uncle of hers died in the winter time, his casket was taken to the cemetery in a horse-drawn box sleigh.

Virginia Auten remembers when Cass City was rich enough to clear the snow from everyone's sidewalk. The job was done with a one-horse snow-plow.

Speaking of kittens, our Betsy received four of them as birthday presents. They were born on her anniversary date, Feb. 4, in varying blends of their mother's gold color and the putative father's white and gray.

Speaking of birthdays, Lynnea Rabbleau received a gift on her sixteenth birthday from her father Lee: just an old Plymouth that he happened to have standing around the shop. How lucky can some people be?

Neither an exclamation point nor a question mark is quite adequate to punctuate that last sentence. So let's use the "interabang," a new punctuation mark invented by Martin K. Specter, consisting of a question mark and an exclamation point combined. How about that?

A couple of weeks ago I named some people whose first names and last names both rhymed. Then there are some whose first names are identical and whose last names rhyme: Evelyn MacKay and Evelyn MacRae. Some have rhyming first names: Gerald and Harold Whittaker, Garrison and Harrison Stine. Some have identical first and last names: Richard R. Wallace and Richard W. Wallace... and both of them write checks on the same bank!

Plan 4-H spring achievement days

Tuscola county leaders held a meeting to outline the annual District 4-H Spring Achievement days to be held at Vassar March 23, Akron-Fairgrove March 30 and Cass City, April 6. The County 4-H Dress Review is to be held in Caro April 27.

The Tuscola County 4-H Service Club held their regular meeting Thursday, Feb. 15, to start programming activities for next year.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Like Ed promised, he came up with more data on the Spare Parts Department at the session Saturday night.

First off, Ed said the new Spare Parts Department was going to run into what them Government consumer experts call "designed life of the product." He said he had saw where the President's assistant for consumer Affairs said them that make and sell products had ought to tell the consumer what he could expect in service life. Right now, he said, a feller might get a new set of teeth that would be good for five years "normal use," but he said normal use ain't the same for a feller that likes popcorn and peanuts like a feller that don't eat nothing harder than cornbread soaked in buttermilk.

The storekeeper, that keeps up with things on a Wall Street level, butted in to say we already got a outfit called the Consumer Federation of American that was looking into these problems. He went on to say Ed's new Spare Parts Department would have its hands full with imports. Fer instant, he reported he had saw in this magazine where you can order wigs made out of "100 per cent pure Italian human hair." He said he couldn't figger out what was special about Italian hair, but if they charge more for it all the wimmen will want Italian hair. He was of the opinion the worst part would be to keep the market stable in this new Government department. Fer instant, if Sweden has a special on lungs and England has more livers than she needs, we would have to buy up all them parts for two reasons. First, we wouldn't want them to sell to the Communists, and second, we couldn't let the bottom fall out of the Spare Parts market. So, he figgered, the United States wouldn't have no choice but to set up a Spare Parts Bank, guarantee support prices and buy up all the world's extra parts and store them like wedo wheat, butter, and copper.

The next thing, Ed allowed, the Government will have to pay people fer not willing their parts to the bank. And right then, he perdicted, the head of the Spare Parts Department will have to ask Congress to raise the national debt to keep up payments to all the people that has agreed to keep their parts off the market.

The fellers, even Clem Webster of the Great Society, was agreed that the pattern of Government-run business in the last 40 year showed Ed had a good reason to worry. And so, Mister Editor, it was agreed by all the fellers on a resolution to award a contract to General Motors to run the Spare Parts Department operation and turn all the profits from the franchise back into the Welfare and Poverty Program.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

You can remove scorch from linen by placing the spot between two dampened turkish towels, then pressing the scorched area with a hot iron. The stain will go into the dampened towel, where it can be washed out.

You'll buy a new furnace maybe once
in your life.
Here's how to do it right.

First, call Edison. We'll give you the names of electric heat contractors near you. Each has been Edison-approved as capable and reliable.

Next, the contractor will check your home, review your needs, and recommend the type of heat best for you. He will estimate both installation and operating cost and give them to you in writing. All without obligation. We'll check the quotes if you like.

Then, after your new electric heat system is installed, Edison and your contractor will make any adjustments necessary to the system if operating cost exceeds the original estimate during the first three years of use. At the end of this time, if operating cost still exceeds the estimate, and you aren't satisfied, Edison will remove the system and refund your original price.

That's our new Three-Step Protection Plan. Remember the first step. Call Edison.

Owe state $5 or less? Forget it, says treasurer

You need not file a state income tax form if the amount you owe is less than $5, reminds State Treasurer Allison Green. This provision is not mentioned on either the tax form or the instruction booklet. Forms were compiled so quickly after the new tax law was passed that the provision was omitted.

Green said he is "quite pleased" with the number of returns filed in January but warns taxpayers who will claim refunds that last minute filing may delay receiving a refund check. Refunds are processed in the order they are received.

Contrary to rumors, the state will refund overpayment this year. Green feels the rumor was started because of provisions which do not allow certain deductions for 1967 tax purposes. On 1968 returns there will be allowances made for payment of city income tax, property taxes, and renter credits.

First refund check was released Feb. 2 to a taxpayer in Walled Lake. Green estimates that some million refund checks will be issued for the 1967 taxable period, October through December. This number may reach two and a half million in subsequent years, he said.

The tax is yielding far more revenue than anticipated, Green stated. But deductions allowed in 1968 and thereafter will probably bring revenue more in line with original estimates. He said a major problem facing the department is to anticipate how large a bite deductions will take from current yield.

IMPORTANT ISSUES
Largest state budget in Michigan history was listed foremost for legislative consideration by Lt. Gov. William Milliken when he recently "boiled down" Governor Romney's State of the State message.

The $1.3 billion budget was one of nine "key areas" outlined by Milliken as deserving "attention and action this year."

Milliken ranked the other eight areas in the following order of priority.

Court reorganization. The new Michigan Constitution requires that by next January Justices of the Peace be phased out of existence and replaced by another system of local courts.

Crime control. As an aftermath to last summer's riots and as a result of mounting crime rates, improved crime control will be a center of attention in the months ahead. A series of recommendations has been made to insure further protection of lives and property against lawlessness and violence. They range from anti-riot measures to improved weapons in the battle against organized crime, and they require action now.

Housing. "One of the great challenges before our state," says Milliken, "is that of providing greater opportunities for adequate, decent housing for low income citizens. Above all this means full legal support for the equal opportunity of all citizens to buy or rent property without regard to color, creed or national origin. But it also means a fully operative State Housing Authority, better housing code enforcement, and a strengthening of tenants' rights."

Public employment. Events of the past two years clearly demonstrated the ineffectiveness of existing laws in dealing with the organized efforts of public employees, says Milliken. Whether the fault lies with employers or employees, we cannot condone the interruption of vital public services. The only answer is a basic revision of our Public Employment Act to provide a satisfactory, workable means of resolving these contract disputes.

Natural Resources. The Lieutenant Governor believes that a bonding program is a necessity if the state is to clean up lakes and rivers before more serious harm is done. A $435 million bond program is proposed. When combined with $1.3 billion of federal money, a sufficient fund should be available.

Insurance pooling and veteran tax relief. Because citizens and businessmen in certain areas, those where riots have or might take place, find it nearly impossible to buy insurance to protect their property, the Governor's message asks that insurance companies set up a pool which can spread the risk without undue problems for only a few companies. A revision of veteran tax relief laws is also urged. The changes would recognize the degree of disability of the veteran and provide the greatest help for those who have the greatest need.

Education. Increased state support is proposed for all levels of education from kindergarten to graduate school. Since there is special need among disadvantaged children in central city areas, special assistance has been proposed to them.

Behind the Counter
Foot Care—

It's a shame to see people confined to their homes by sore and swollen feet. Not only is there great discomfort, but many persons are embarrassed by their appearance and the hobbling gait. There are a few things you can do to keep your feet in good condition:

- 1) Be careful in the fitting of shoes and stockings. Avoid the steady wearing of extremely high heels, running shoes or slippers.
- 2) Keep toenails clipped, and remove the cuticle and dead skin from around their edges.
- 3) Use an antiseptic, absorbent foot powder to reduce infection, particularly that which develops between the toes. This powder will also act as a deodorant, keeping the skin dry and comfortable.
- 4) Never sit on your feet. When possible, put your feet up on a chair or high footrest, to improve circulation. In older people, this will help keep swelling to a minimum.
- 5) Wash your feet often, taking time to soak them in warm and soapy water that will help the muscles relax.
- 6) Then massage each foot in turn. Make a fist of one hand, and rub the knuckles over the ball and arch of the foot to further ease muscle tension. Then slowly rotate each toe, one after another.
- 7) If a callus should form, soak a cotton square in lotion and tape it over the area. Leave it on overnight. During the day, an adhesive callus pad should be worn till the problem disappears.

ARCADIAN GOLDEN URAN PROFIT IDEAS FOR FARM MANAGERS

You want maximum profit from each acre of corn ground and to do it you must grow a high yield at a reasonable cost. In this area, soil compaction often reduces yields several bushels per acre. You may only see results of serious compaction in wet spots where you got stuck. Crops are stunted in these spots because there is little pore space in compacted soil for air, water, and for roots to grow.

Everytime we run over wet ground (remember last spring), we cause some degree of compaction. This usually goes unnoticed because by the time the crop is up, the field has been uniformly packed. But the loss is there and it shows up when you check yields.

We can't change your soil moisture conditions, but we can help solve a compaction problem by spraying on ARCADIAN Golden URAN on stubble fields this fall and winter. Here's why it works --

1. We are not running over your fields next spring when it causes the most compaction. Freezing and thawing this winter breaks up compacted spots.
2. Golden URAN sticks to crop residues to speed decomposition and improve soil tilth. This means less compaction from operation you must do next spring.

Band fertilizing still the best

By Don Kebler

It has only been a short few years since we started recommending planting time fertilizers be placed in a band to the side and below the seed level.

This placement of fertilizer in this band relationship to the seed has not as yet been surpassed by any other proven method to be superior.

We have read and heard statements advocating practices of pre-applying all the fertilizer and not using any at planting time. And just about as recently the new word "Pop-Up" has been introduced into our vocabulary.

To more closely analyze the first statement the tool bar planter is not a new innovation. It's been on the market for at least five years. Now, from the standpoint of the crops to be grown, no crop should ever be planted without the benefit of a planting time fertilizer especially in the Saginaw Valley where micro-nutrients as zinc, manganese and boron are so critically needed.

Greenhouse and field research show that on the average a person can pick up about 10 percent more in yield by using a planting time fertilizer. This could amount to anywhere from 5 to 25 dollars net profit per acre depending on the crop produced. In any case, especially with the size of Saginaw Valley farms, this is going to be sufficiently more return to more than pay the extra cost of a fertilizer attachment plus the cost of the operator's time involved in handling the planting time fertilizer.

The most INEFFECTIVE way of using phosphate and manganese that has ever been developed by man involves broadcasting fertilizer on the surface of the soil and then using a tillage tool to work it into the soil. A much easier and completely acceptable way that is in agreement with the use of minimum tillage principles is to broadcast and plow the fertilizer under. This latter is generally a good concept even on off-season applications on LOW FERTILITY soils and where high fertilizer requirement crops are to be grown. But this should not be a complete substitute for planting time fertilizer.

Never plant a crop without the benefit of a band planting time fertilizer. Fertilizers placed in a tight, compact band two inches below and two inches to the side of the seed represents the ideal placement. Banded fertilizer greatly reduces the rate of nutrient fixation so prevalent found in our soils.

What about the use of the Pop-Up method of fertilizer placement. This is where a small quantity of fertilizer is placed around the seed and the remainder in a band or broadcast previously.

Does that germinating seedling really derive its early food supply from the soil held nutrients more quickly when small quantities of fertilizer are placed in contact with the seed as where the planting fertilizer is placed in the band method mentioned above?

A germinating and growing seedling receives its food from its cotyledon food supply until it emerges from the ground, sets forth its primary leaves and begins manufacturing its own food supply and absorbing nutrients from the soil supply.

During the time this germinating and pre-emergence procedure occurs that fertilizer applied in a 2" side and 2" below the seed band has dissolved, moved into the root feeding area of the seedling and is ready for plant uptake when the plant needs it.

On this proven basis, Michigan State University Soil Science Department Head, Dr. Cook, bases his recommendations. He states there is no need for this pop-up method of applying fertilizer and the attachments necessary for application of small quantities of fertilizer in contact with the seed where fertilizer is banded at planting time. Along with this he emphatically recommends the application of planting time fertilizer which should be always placed in a band to the side and below the seed level.

So let's not knowingly slip backwards in our best known methods of fertilizer use and placement.

Agent's Corner

Mrs. Ann Ross

So you'd like your pork roasts juicy, flavorful and tender? Now they can match up to beef roast quality due to changes in the rules for pork roast cookery to a lower roasting temperature, says Mrs. Ann Ross, Thumb Extension home economist.

Research finished not long ago at Iowa State University, done over a ten year period, has shown that an internal temperature of 170 degrees is at least a 30 degree margin of safety above the temperature required to kill the organisms which cause trichinosis. The old recommendation of 185 degrees was fine for its time. But new improvements in household ranges, and leaner, meatier pork cuts make the temperature revision possible and practical.

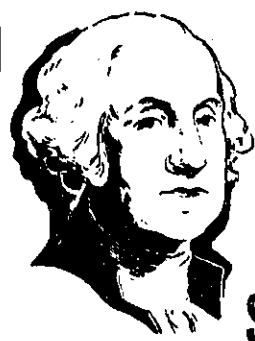

The next time you prepare a pork roast, insert a meat thermometer into the center of the thickest part of the roast. When it reads 170 degrees F. your roast is not only safe for your family but a more juicy, flavorful and tender dish for their enjoyment, too.

You can't count on the color change of pink to grey or brown to indicate degree of doneness. It doesn't have to be grey. Even a pink meat might still be well-done and safe.

Your best guide to degree of doneness is still your meat thermometer, Mrs. Ross recommends.

Even the other extreme of temperature range can make pork safe for your use. Holding pork at 5 degrees F. for 20 days or 0 degrees F. for no less than one day will kill or make harmless trichinella larvae. This may be a boon to those of you with home freezers.

Book ReviewRhys' work really not that good

By Rev. R. J. Searls

Jean Rhys was born in Dominica, one of the Windward Islands, (so the book jacket reveals.) Her father was a Welsh doctor who had settled there; her mother came from a Creole family.

Miss Rhys attended school in England before the first World War, when she was 16. She went to a school of acting and worked for a short time as a dancer. Then she married a Dutch poet and spent some years on the European continent, primarily in Paris and Vienna. As the introduction tells it, Miss Rhys' early work received very little attention because it was ahead of its time in both style and mood.

"Wide Sargasso Sea," selected by Mrs. Little to be reviewed this month, does one thing that I have often wondered is not done more often. Namely it carries on with a character created by someone else, in this case from Charlotte Bronte's Jane Eyre. There, as you may recall, Antoinette Bertha Cosway was the Creole heiress whom Mr. Rochester married on his father's orders, and who was later to haunt Miss Eyre as the madwoman kept hidden in the attic of Thornfield Hall.

Before turning to the heart of the story, let me tell you that, for me at least, the story must have been good to live through the reading of it. Professional writers no doubt have a technical name for this literary device. The story is told in its entirety in the first person (or nearly so) but changes the first person increasingly throughout the novel. As I have written previously, this technique arouses, unnecessarily, much confusion while contributing nothing to the story.

As the story begins, we find that the family whose lives are told by the novel have fallen on bad times, accented by the death of the head of the household—which legally was made up of the widow, a son, Richard, by a previous marriage of Mason, and finally, the heroine, a daughter of Mason. The setting of the story is Jamaica.

All the Coulibri Estate has been allowed to go uncared for and the family cherishes the privacy that goes with the description of being haunted. Antoinette describes her mother in these terms: "She was much blacker—blue-black with a thin face and straight features. She wore a black dress, heavy gold earrings and a yellow handkerchief—carefully tied with the two high points in front. No other Negro woman wore black or tied her handkerchief Martinique fashion."

Superstitious slaves made up the rest of the household. With no income, Antoinette sells some jewelry she had managed to hang onto.

Faced with the responsibility of feeding, clothing and housing so many people, the mother shook off the lethargy that had surrounded her since the funeral of her husband and soon was married for the second time. Mason, her brand new husband, is an unusual husband, as well as an unusual father. I have little space left and haven't even outlined the story for you. Hot tempers prevail with the framework of Voodoo lurking in the background. Their mansion is burned by sullen Negroes. This book is unusual in that, after reading every page -- all 190 of them -- I cannot recall once any happiness.

While Antoinette was in her teen years, she was taught and trained by sisters in a convent. By this time her mother and stepfather were not happy with each other and went their separate ways. This book will hold your attention while you read it. I suppose that I ought to commend it to you; but it really wasn't all that good.

"Wide Sargasso Sea," by Jean Rhys. Available at the Elkland Township - Cass City Public Library.

The Draschils came to Huron county from Cleveland, Ohio.

Funeral services were held Monday, Feb. 19, in St. Agatha Church, Gagetown. The Rev. Fr. J. Friske officiated at the final services and burial was in St. Agatha cemetery.

Surviving are five daughters, Mrs. Roland Curtis of Santa Barbara, Calif., Mrs. Earl Retford of Owendale, Mrs. Willard Harley of Kenosha, Wis., Miss Marie Draschil and Mrs. Harry Braun, both of Detroit. Also, one son, Frank of Hobart, Ind., and 14 grandchildren and 26 great-grandchildren survive.

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

"Fired up by the many problems besetting Cass City," six candidates declared for three open Trustee seats on the village board: Lambert Althaver, Kenneth Elsing, Bernard Freiburger, Dean Hoag, R. M. Hunter and Jerome Root Jr. Hawk debaters had a short and disastrous season: debated once, lost once. The squad included Tom Ellis, Bob Milligan, Bill Dobbs and Bonnie Spencer.

Teacher morale was said to be low, so the school board moved to cut supplementary pay given to teachers for extra-curricular duties. To be sure, "it touched off a furor."

One of the county's rare murder trials - that of Glen McDonald - got underway in Caro.

Orion Cardew was elected clerk of the session of the First Presbyterian Church here.

TEN YEARS AGO

Nadene Winters won top honors for her alto saxophone at the District Solo and Ensemble Festival in Saginaw along with Doris Orto, clarinet, Bill Dobbs, trombone, and Craig Winters and Theresa McCormick for a drum duet.

Ward G. Hodge of Snover was named president of the American Dairy Association of Michigan.

Trustees seeking re-election this year were C. R. Hunt, James King, and Mrs. K. I. MacRae.

Bob Wallace netted 15 points in a game against Bad Axe to help move the Hawks into first place in the Thumb B Conference.

Men's club holds banquet

Forty-seven were present Wednesday evening, Feb. 14, at a Valentine banquet in the New Gordon Hotel sponsored by the men's club of the Novesta Church of Christ.

Kenneth Nye was toastmaster for the program which followed the dinner.

Guest speaker was John Hasty of Lansing, president of the Church of Christ Great Lakes Bible College.

Ernest Sharp landed a 36 pound muskallunge while fishing through the ice at the mouth of Belle River.

Miss Iva Kolb and Walter Schell, employees of the Cass City Post Office, were in charge of a civil service examination held at the schoolhouse to fill the position of rural carrier.

The barking of her dog awakened Mrs. Leach at Shabbona about three o'clock in the morning and the lady was greatly surprised to find the general store of William Auslander, situated across the road, to be on fire.

One For The Road

It's wild, but oh so good

By Dan Marlowe

How would you like to sit down to a dinner during which the huge platters of meat being handed to you consisted of venison, elk, moose, bear meat, beaver, muskrat, and rabbit? A meal during which all the meat was so tender that it was rarely necessary to use a knife upon any of the above mentioned main courses?

I had this pleasant experience recently at the Pigeon Sportsmen's Club annual Wild Game Dinner held in the Veterans Memorial Home on the outskirts of Pigeon. Based on the advance ticket sale, the club had set up 250 places for dinner, but the sportsmen and the lovers of wild game on the dinner table came and came and came, with the result that the dinner committee found itself hurriedly setting up additional tables in an adjoining room to take care of the overflow.

There was no shortage of food even with the rush of late-comers. There is never a shortage of food at the Pigeon Sportsmen's Club Annual Wild Game Dinners. Quite the contrary. The meal is an eating experience guaranteed to delight any twohanded eater who really enjoys sitting down and tucking in.

Word-of-mouth reports of the success of previous dinners brought the sportsmen from far and wide this time. Members from clubs in Tuscola and Sanilac counties came, as well as Huron, and there was a large delegation present from the Selfridge Air Force Base Sportsmen's Club.

Representatives were present from various bureaus of the Conservation Department in Lansing, and following the dinner a short talk was given followed by a question-and-answer period during which the bulk of the remarks were addressed to the problem of the recent kill-off of young coho salmon at the hatcheries.

After the meal movies were shown featuring bow hunting for Rocky Mountain sheep in the Canadian Rockies and brown bear in Alaska as well as moose hunting in the far north. Another movie was shown on the life cycle of the bee, demonstrating the contribution to mankind made by this underrated little citizen of the wilds.

If an event like this is your idea of the way to spend an evening in well-stuffed contentment while absorbing a few educational aspects of conservation from men who know their business, then circle the first and second weeks in February, 1969 on your calendar and get in touch with a member of the club for an announcement of the date.

But don't wait for 1969 to do it. The dinner committee has

Lutherans slate Midweek services

St. Michael's group plan coming events

At the February meeting of St. Michael's Rosary Altar Society, of Wilmet, members planned various group projects. Following 11:30 Mass Sunday, Feb. 25, the Altar Society will have a potluck get-together. At the next monthly meeting a Tupperware party is planned as a fund-raising project.

Members have scheduled attending the Ice Capades March 16.

Mrs. Patricia Swallow has been named corresponding secretary, replacing Mrs. Ann Lewicki.

Two new members joined the organization at the Feb. 8 meet. They are Betty Walkowski and Catherine Somerville. Fifteen members were also present.

The want ads are newsy too.
