

THICK SMOKE rises from the ashes of the destroyed dairy barn owned by Howard Hill Jr., after firemen brought the blaze under control and prevented it from spreading to the Hill residence. Cause of the fire is undetermined but is believed to have been caused by faulty wiring.

EXCESSIVE DAMAGE in the amount of $8,000 resulted from Friday's fire in a farm home owned by Eugene Smentek. The fire started in the area of a floor furnace and was out of control by the time firemen arrived.

Two buildings destroyed; loss totals $58,000

Fire consumed $58,000 of property in two separate blazes this past week. Destroyed Friday was a farm home owned by Eugene Smentek and Monday, a dairy barn owned by Howard Hill Jr.

The fire at the Smentek home, located 3 1/2 miles southwest of Cass City on E. DeLong Road, started in the area of the floor furnace and was discovered by a neighbor at 4:30 a. m. Flames could be seen two miles away as the Elkhart Fire Department responded to the call. The fire was out of control by the time firemen arrived.

Damage to the home was estimated at $8,000. The home, unoccupied at the time, was being remodeled for a tenant. The loss is insured.

Seven head of young cattle and three fox hounds were destroyed in the estimated $50,000 dairy barn fire at the Hill farm on Robinson Road. Also lost in the fire were five thousand bales of straw and hay and a small amount of corn when flames damaged a nearby corn crib.

Extensive damage was done to the north side of the Hill home. The fire was discovered by Hill at 10:10 a. m. in a corner of the barn. By the time he called the Elkhart Fire Department flames had circled the building. Cause of the fire is undetermined but is believed to have been caused by faulty wiring.

A dry run was experienced Tuesday when firemen answered a truck fire call eight miles northwest of Cass City. A panel truck, owned by Thumb Appliance Center, was reported to be on fire at the residence of George Schadt. The fire was extinguished by the time firemen arrived.

The accident was investigated by Cass City Chief of Police Carl Palmateer. Charles Clayton O'Dell and Carol Goodall were injured Friday in a two-car collision on E. Caro Street, Caro. Also injured in the accident was Larry Smith of Caro. The injured were taken to Caro Community Hospital, treated and released.

According to Tuscola County Sheriff Department report, Richard Gammy, 35, of Caro, was traveling northeast on M-81 and made a left turn into the vehicle driven by O'Dell. Gammy was cited for failing to yield the right of way.

Petitions for school board due May 13

The six, possibly seven candidates for the June 10 Cass City School Board election have four days to return their nominating petitions to Secretary Elwyn Helwig. Petitions must be in by May 13 at 5 p. m.

The two school board positions open are the four-year expiring terms of William Ruhl and Kenneth Maharg. Ruhl has announced he will not seek another term. Maharg will run for re-election.

As of Monday no petitions had been returned to Helwig. In order to be valid, petitions must have 30 valid signatures.

Free pick up highlight of clean-up week

The annual clean-up, paint-up, fix-up week for Cass City has been set by the village May 13-18, President Lambert Althaver reported this week.

The clean-up campaign will feature free pick up of refuse by the village maintenance department.

The pick up is scheduled for May 15-16-17 and the material should be placed at convenient pick-up locations in the alley or at the curb, Village Engineer William Schram said.

Clean-up week in Cass City traditionally comes before Michigan Week festivities.

Authorities say it is a good time to examine buildings, yards and lots to see what can be done to put a new spring face on the community.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

In these days of ever narrowing international borders, I can't think of a better way to spend three months of a college career than the way Les Searls and David MacRae did when they were in England. As the boys said when they returned, it allowed them to look at the United States with a new perspective. . . not clogged by the nearness of the American culture.

Reading between the lines, it appears they came back with a new awareness of the advantages of living in the States and a new understanding of our neighbors in Europe.

MacRae said, the people there are basically just the same as they are here, when he discussed his trip at Rotary this week.

Isn't this what education is all about?

A week or so ago I was in a bull session concerning what was the most important facet of a community college for the Thumb. Al DeGrow of Pigeon, a tireless worker for the facility, said that he felt the vocational schools was the crying need. . . some place where all the students who do not drive, or are not qualified for college can receive training beyond the high school level.

He pointed to the top wages and the good life available today for the mechanic and other tradesmen.

I countered by pointing to the strained facilities at State supported four-year colleges and inquired what was to be done if they were forced by space limitations to take only Junior, Senior and advance degree students.

After about an hour's hassle, it dawned on me that it was like trying to settle which came first, the chicken or the egg.

Excellent cases for both sides can be established because there are excellent reasons for establishing both. . . and come next spring it is likely that the Thumb will have another opportunity to bring it about.

"I HAVE ALL THE TIME in the world", Mrs. Harry Hool told the Chronicle this week. Some of the time is being used to sew a pair of culottes for a neighbor child.

Students learning more

'Teaching' family discusses changing education pace

By SANDY DeWAR

With the retirement of Mrs. Harry Hool, the Crawford family of Gagetown has chalked up almost 175 years of family teaching. Years that brought the seven members through a maze of changes in teaching, students, and in the teachers themselves. Members of the family still with the teaching profession are Unionville School Superintendent Alex Crawford, with 39 years of teaching, and Mrs. F. D. Profit, with 28 years. Mrs. Hool retired this year after conducting school throughout the area for the past 41 years.

Like most families the twin sisters and their brother agree on some issues and disagree on others. The three are unanimous in feeling that teaching has greatly changed over the years.

"There are more materials to work with," Mrs. Hool stated firmly, "all to the advantage of the children, enabling them to grasp the subject and to advance to their ownability. Years ago children had to be more independent, relying strictly on text books. There is not a great deal of difference between the old and new way of teaching the subjects. It's just that classes are more advanced today."

Her feelings were echoed by Mrs. Profit who added that more teacher preparation is needed. "Students once worked quietly by themselves. Now they work more in groups." She also feels that despite the fact teachers do not have as much time to devote to the individual child, students are farther advanced than before and have a broader view of the future. She was unable to say if math has changed for the better or worse. "We still need multiplication tables. The new way is alright for explaining multiplication, but the old way is needed for actual learning."

Superintendent Crawford agreed with his sisters on the advancement of the student. "Knowledge is the same, subject wise, but the way of presenting this knowledge is different. Audio Visual aids are reaching more children. The children have more knowledge and are expected to know more. By the time elementary school is completed the children have stored more knowledge than ever before."

COUNTRY SCHOOLS

The three teachers have taught in country schools. Each distinctly remembers the days when all eight grades were taught by one teacher. "During those days," Mrs. Hool recalled, "I received $60 per month. I taught eight grades with sometimes as high as 50 students, and also acted as janitor. Children in the country school system learned both from the grade ahead and behind. One first grade parent asked me what I was teaching her child. It seems the youngster went home and began telling her parents all about the Revolutionary war, a subject that was being discussed in the upper grades." Mrs. Profit added that a teacher in a country school had to learn to handle her own problems; "there just wasn't anyone else around."

"SLOW" CHILD HELPED

Increased concern for the "slow" child was expressed by the teachers. They agreed that the child slow in learning has a much better chance in today's school system. "Years ago if a child was slow, he had to tag along at the back of the class," Superintendent Crawford stated, "today the slow child is helped through special education geared to the type of instruction the child needs."

Mrs. Profit agrees on the different methods of teaching the slower student. "Some learn by hearing, some by seeing, and some have to go the hard way and dig it out themselves. There is more understanding of these children today. A good and dedicated teacher will present every method of teaching she can to these children. I have a student to whom I can read the problems and he will understand. But he can't seem to learn by himself. Eventually he will."

Speaking towards the changing future of teaching and the slow child, Mrs. Hool stated she felt the "child who needs pushing and prodding to finish his education is in need of additional help. Some day this type of child will have to go on learning by himself."

DISAGREE ON MEA

The trio came to a disagreement over the Michigan Education Association. Mrs. Hool and Mrs. Profit echoed each other's sentiments that the association was beneficial to the teaching profession. A life member of the group, Mrs. Hool feels that the association has benefited all teachers, salary wise. "I wouldn't be receiving the retirement I am now if it weren't for the association."

"We have always had the MEA," Mrs. Profit included. "We just didn't have a voice before. Before the Hutchinson Act, people were leaving the profession to become factory workers and such because the pay was higher. Now the MEA is negotiating for us."

The opinion changed as Superintendent Crawford spoke. Concluded on page six.

Pair tell experiences abroad

In England even the businessmen have long hair, David MacRae told members of the Cass City Rotary Tuesday noon when he and Les Searls described a 3 1/2-month unique study course that included becoming a part of English life and learning from various foreign experts.

The formal study for the MSU Oakland students included just three courses highlighted by experts from London who conducted lectures.

Some of the lectures were by immigrants to the country.

They are talking about the same things that the colored people are talking of here, Searls said, "saying that they don't want to riot, but will if they have to."

Racial prejudice is as strong in England as it is here, the boys continued. . . only for economic reasons. There are not enough jobs in England now and the immigrants are threatening the economic security of many in the country.

Asked to compare teenagers, they said that the girls in England wear skirts higher than the girls here, but the girls on the continent wear them lower.

There is very little freedom for young people in France, Italy and Spain, they said. All dates are chaperoned.

EUROPEAN OUTLOOK

Searls was asked if Europeans still consider all Americans rich. . . and he said they do because they are by English standards.

A dollar buys much more in England than it does in America. A good sweater might sell for $4 or $5 and an evening's lodging at a good hotel costs about $2 including breakfast, Searls said.

An average man might earn $40 or $50 a week and make enough to get by on, but not enough to save anything.

While the older men have little money, the teenagers have lots of money to spend. That's because most of them quit school at 15 and go to work, according to Searls, and they spend everything they earn giving the impression that England's teens are loaded.

Most Englishmen still look on the United States as sort of an English colony, he continued. You become aware of the older culture by the buildings. Here everything is relatively new and plumbing, wiring and other conveniences are taken for granted.

In London there are modern buildings, but there are many that are old, inferior and don't measure up to American minimum standards, Searls claimed.

Both young men agreed that the real value of the course was the experiences they had while living in London. We learned by a process of osmosis, MacRae said. You know how some kids go to sleep with the record player on? Well, we went to sleep with the professors turned on.

The boys took a three-week vacation and hitchhiked across Europe as part of their education.

The course was designed so that the students would have plenty of free time to roam. Each of the students paid their own way and received 12 credits for the semester's work.

This is under the 16 normally obtained, but still provides enough hours for the student to graduate in the normal four years, Searls explained.

BOW TO PROGRESS - North Cemetery Road will be widened and leveled this spring and the many trees that previously lined the road have been removed. Trees are regarded as one of the major traffic hazards on country roads. Now just the stumps remain and soon these will disappear as the work progresses.

Agent's Corner

By Mrs. Ann Ross
Extension Agent

From breakfast to dinner, from picnic to snacks, we've been changing our eating habits over the last 10 years. Despite the fact that our supermarket shelves are loaded with an "Arabian Nights" abundance and variety of food, our diets have slipped nutritionally, says Mrs. Ann Ross, Thumb Extension Home Economist.

The spotlight was put on American eating habits when the first report on the 1965-1966 Food Consumption in U.S. Households survey was released by the USDA early this spring. The facts: that only half our families had good diets; that the number of poor diets increased - from 15 to 21 percent - during the interval between the 1955 and 1965 surveys.

It's quite a paradox and one that's puzzling the experts; our incomes are higher and real food costs relatively low, but adequate income is no guarantee that adequate diets will follow. Even at a $10,000 and above level, 9 percent of these families had poor diets. Best explanation is that we're not making good nutritional choices from our almost overwhelming abundance.

The biggest losers at meal-times have been fruits, vegetables, milk and milk products. Nutrient-wise that means we're falling short of vitamin A, vitamin C and calcium -- the important ingredients contributing to glowing skin, sparkling eyes, general growth, healthy gums and body tissues, and strong bones and teeth.

What's afoot to reverse this trend? More emphasis on helping homemakers use more milk products, fruits and vegetables in meals; an increased effort to get bread enrichment a law in all 50 states; more interest in adding calcium to bread products, and a new look at the possibilities for fortifying dry skim milk powder with vitamin A.

Book Review

Oriental intrigue fills 'Tower of Babel'

By Rev. R. J. Searls

The author of today's novel is no stranger to readers of this column. He has written much that is a contribution to this nation's fiction literature. I recall reviewing for "The Chronicle," "The Shoes of the Fisherman" and "The Ambassador." Undoubtedly my readers have enjoyed one or several books which have come from Mr. West's talented pen.

Morris L. West is a native of Australia born in Melbourne in 1916. At the age of 14 he began studying as a postulant with the Christian Brothers, but left twelve years later, not having taken his final vows. In WWII he became an officer in Australian Army Intelligence, following this with a flourishing (and lucrative) transcription business which included recording, as well. He left that business when he decided that he much preferred to write for himself rather than for sponsors.

A stay in Italy resulted in his book, "Children of the Sun," which became a best seller in 1957. There followed two novels published in The United States. In 1958, Mr. West returned to Italy as Vatican correspondent for The Daily Mail, which experience resulted in "The Devil's Advocate" in 1959, which created quite a sensation and sold over two million copies! Since then, Mr. West has produced four new novels, the latest being "The Tower of Babel" which we are reviewing for your pleasure this week. We should take notice that Mr. West, with his wife and four children, now lives in Rome, Italy. We can logically expect at least one more novel, whose setting is in that historic place.

As I read "The Tower of Babel," I reached for my Bible, where appears the original "Tower of Babel," (in Genesis 11.) As we read the stories of the book's principal characters, we find ourselves thinking of oriental intrigue, faces covered with burnooses, as a protection against ever-present sand storms, while camels parade in the background.

The picture is played today -- in fact I should say, the pictures are played today. The middle East in our time, is the ground on which a Six-Day War is planned. The cast involves five dominant leaders, active leaders who are not above plotting the death of the others if it seems to make some sort of Oriental sense.

The five leaders are Adom Ronen, an Israeli spy in Damascus; Safreddin, the Director of Security for Syria; Jarrak, a terrorist of the Palestine Liberation Organization; Chakry, an international banker in Beirut, and Baratz, the Director of Military Intelligence for Israel. Most of these men display a very multi-faceted ability to find out what the others are planning.

The reader gains the feeling that the events of the novel are ultimately real, so fine is the line drawn between them.

To quote another reviewer: "Indeed, this is one of the wonders of the novel that in addition to being a great human drama, it possesses an extraordinary sense of political reality. Mr. West unlocks all the secret doors, takes the reader not only inside the meeting rooms but also into the participants' minds and leaves him with the conviction that this is the way it really is."

"Suspense" is the one-word description of the mood of this novel. If you admire books that are filled with suspense (suspense with realism), read this novel!

The Tower of Babel, by Morris L. West, William Morrow & Company, N. Y. 1968. Available from the Elkland Township and Cass City library.

4-H Wranglers lasso new corral with donations, desire and determination

The combined efforts of members and interested residents have produced one of the finest training areas in the Thumb for the Cass City 4-H Wranglers club, following completion of a new corral on Cemetery Road, south of Cass City.

Cash cost to the club was about $225. Leader Al Seeley estimated this week. The total needed was kept to a minimum by aid from interested residents.

The site of the facility is seven acres owned by Dr. Ed Scollon who lets the club use the land free.

The corral site was leveled by volunteer workers. Lee Hartel donated time and a tractor and Marshall Implement let us use equipment, Seeley explained.

Gravel for the road to the corral was donated by Tuckey's. Club members worked three full Sunday afternoons painting and erecting the fence.

Cash for the project was donated by interested residents, Seeley concluded.

There are now 41 members in the club and they will begin training at once for competition at the Tuscola County Fair this summer.

WSCS holds annual pledge service

The pledge service for '68-'69 was observed when the WSCS met in the United Methodist church Monday evening.

Presenting the program were Mrs. Keith McConkey, Mrs. Robert Keating, Mrs. Harlan Dickinson and Mrs. Gary Christner.

The theme was "money kept in the purse was only paper and coins." But if put to the right use it gives hope to millions and teaches humility, mercy, compassion and provides the means for service. The program ended when each put a pledge at the altar.

Mrs. Howard Rexin conducted the business meeting and members were urged to attend the East Central district meeting at Port Huron, Thursday, May 9. Mrs. Roy Chisholm was chosen delegate to the Detroit Conference Meeting which will be held at Metropolitan Church in Detroit, May 21.

Group 4, Mrs. Albert Gallagher and Mrs. Keith McConkey, co-chairmen, served the 6:30 dinner.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By H. M. Bulen

Here's a real puzzler for you ... Suppose a batter in baseball hit a home run, but as he rounded first base he collapsed and fell unconscious between first and second ... What would happen? ... Oddly, such a possibility is not covered specifically in the rules. ... However, umpires say this is the one case where another runner would be allowed to come in and finish the trip around the bases for the fallen man, provided the ball was out of the park and not in play.

Do you know where the word "Olympics" comes from? ... It's from the Greek word "Olympiad," which means every four years. ... And, in the ancient Greek times, as today, the Olympics are held every four years.

Here's one that may surprise you ... Do you know exactly how great a hitter Ted Williams was? ... Many fans are surprised to learn that he finished with a higher lifetime batting average than all these famous men. ... Tris Speaker, Babe Ruth, George Sisler, Lou Gehrig, Nap Lajoie, Eddie Collins, Paul Waner, Stan Musial, Joe DiMaggio, Jimmy Foxx and Honus Wagner to name just a few. ... Ted's lifetime average was .344.

Behind the Counter Fake Food Folklore

Have you always known that milk should not be taken at the same time as sour fruits? That you feed a cold and starve a fever? That whisky with aspirin is a good remedy for a cold? That premature baldness is caused by wearing a hat? That if an expectant mother holds her weight down, the size of the baby will be reduced? That red meat and alcohol are bad for persons with high blood pressure? Sorry, but every one of those "beliefs" is incorrect. They are part of the medical folklore that has been disproved as we learn more about the human body and the illnesses that plague it. However, they have been repeated so many times, they are often accepted without question.

According to "Today's Health Guide," published by the American Medical Association, fish doesn't increase your brain power; beets don't "build blood" and parsnips don't "cleanse the kidneys." Sour foods can't cure diabetes, eating warm bread doesn't lead to a stroke, and ice water doesn't cause heart trouble. Despite what you may have been told, arthritis isn't helped by grape juice, honey, dried pike berries, carrot juice or tomatoes. But there is one piece of advice that still makes sense: treat your body with respect and intelligence. See your doctor regularly and follow his advice. Don't ignore the symptoms of pain or bleeding (the body's way of warning you that something's wrong) in the hope that they'll go away. Good health is still a matter of good common sense.

Maxwell speaks at church banquet

Charles "Paw Paw" Maxwell, one of the most popular of players ever to don a Tiger uniform, has lost none of his crowd appeal, judging by the response of some 100 persons who attended the father-son banquet at the Cass City Methodist Church Thursday night.

Maxwell told guests that his choice for the American League pennant is Minnesota, with Detroit finishing second.

Maxwell recounted many of his experiences as a player with Boston, Detroit and Chicago, and described his four home runs against the Yankees one Sunday.

Of special interest to the many boys attending was Maxwell's demonstration on how to hold and throw a baseball and other tips about baseball.

The guest speaker was secured by Dale Brown, Chairman. Toastmaster for the evening was Paul O'Harris.

W. Campbell Elementary

To celebrate "May Day," the kindergartners made May baskets and, of course, danced around a May Pole. Also on May 1, the kindergartners had their regular "Penny March" and they are proud to announce that they have a total of $32.86 in their savings.

The students in Mrs. Frederick's, Mrs. Kuntz's, and Mrs. Howarth's third grade rooms visited station WLEW on "May Day." They saw A.M. and F.M. broadcasting, a teletype machine, and a bomb shelter, in which broadcasters can live for two weeks to do emergency broadcasting. After their visit to the radio station, the students visited the Fairmont Creamery. They witnessed cottage cheese being packaged, and were treated to ice-cream bars. (The teachers "go, stuck" with a package of cottage cheese!)

Would you believe Mrs. Howarth's room won the Library Award for the month of May? This must at least be the fifth month in a row that they have won it!

Last Thursday the girls in Mrs. Stickle's room presented the play, "Lenka's Little House." The cast included Pam Ahern, Kathy Jo Richardson, Tina Pierce, Mary Stilson, Lona Mellendorf, Pam Gallagher, and Vicki Vandiver.

Mrs. Stickle's class also went on a field trip last week - to Wesley's Milk Company. Mr. Gerald Stilson showed the students all of the machinery used in making butter, powdered milk, and condensed milk, and Mrs. Gerald Stilson treated the students to ice cream bars.

Mrs. Hutchinson's class dissected a toad last Thursday. When they finished, two of the students decided that they wanted a "souvenir" - so Vicky Newsome grabbed the tongue and stomach and Jackie LaPeere took the heart, lungs and eyeballs. (Bleah!)

C. C. H. S.

There is only one word that can describe the month of May for the average high school student and that is HECTIC! There's the school play for those who are taking part, the prom and banquet to plan, planning the senior trip and graduation, and perhaps a little studying on the side. (And a little extra time taken up here and there thinking about and planning summer.)

May has just got to be the busiest month of the year - and just about the most fun, too. (Well, ... that's if you don't count summer.)

Just to start the final marking period and the month of May with a big bang - last week "Twirp Week" was held. Twirp Week is one week out of the entire year in which the students and teachers get a change from the regular, monotonous week, and everything is just a little bit "twirpy."

In the past, if the students didn't conform to the rules of Twirp Week, they were fined a penny for their "crime" by one of the student sheriffs, and if they refused to pay their fine, they usually ended up in the Kangaroo Court for punishment.

The idea of fines and kangaroo courts were getting stale so this year no fines were charged and Twirp Week was fun only if you decided to make it that way. ... and most everybody did.

The first day of the week is always "tag day." During this day a girl is supposed to give a tag to the guy of her choice, so everyone will know that they're a couple for Twirp Week. In the past years, tags which were numbered were bought early on Monday morning. However, this year tags weren't sold and each girl had to use her imagination to make a tag. It was really interesting to see some of the tags - there were flowers, stuffed animals, and one guy got a stork with "My Little Bundle of Joy" written on it. (I don't dare mention any names!)

Tuesday was dress-up day. There's nothing more surprising, yet a little pleasing, than to walk into school and see all the guys with a tie and suit coat on, and to see the girls in their best dresses. Wednesday was "ribbon day."

School scribbles

By L. H.

All the girls wore ribbons, but if they talked to a guy between classes, they had to forfeit their ribbon to that guy. The guy with the most ribbons at the end of the day was "Mr. Irresistible."

Thursday was just the reverse of Wednesday, only the guys wore ties, and the girl with the most ties was "Miss Irresistible."

The only thing wrong with ribbon and tie days is that Mr. Irresistible and Miss Irresistible usually can't be determined because some couples talk without exchanging, others refuse to give up their ribbon or tie, and some are taken by force. Friday was "Mod-Day" or "Dress Down Day." In contrast to Tuesday, practically everybody showed up in levis and T-shirts. It may have looked a little odd, but it sure was comfortable!

Friday night was the big dance, for which tickets had been on sale all week. The price for the tickets started at 75¢ on Monday and increased a nickel every day to $1.00 on Friday. Since the girls had to ask the guys to the dance, if they wanted to save any money they had to ask a guy early in the week. The dance, which featured the popular band, "The Corruptors," turned out to be the biggest success Cass City has had in a long time.

A dance contest was held and Jim Selby and Sharon Hartel came out on top. They got to split a record for their prize!

There is always a Twirp Week King and Queen. In the past years, the king and queen were chosen by a "penny" vote. Students would put pennies into canisters and each penny would be worth one vote. Naturally, the couple with the most money were king and queen.

However, this year petitions for the various couples were sent around the school. To qualify, couples had to have twenty-five signatures, one of which was a teacher's signature.

The couples that qualified were then voted for at the dance. The Twirp King and Queen for 1968 are John Maharg and Kally Pine. Nancy Auvil and Karl Welpert were in second place, and Karen Gaffney and Dave Osentoski were third.

Something new that was tried for Twirp Week this year was a five-minute break between classes and no bells! It was really great to be able to take your time between classes for a change. (We usually only have three minutes.) If only we could try the system on a permanent-type basis!

TID BITS

The "Senior Poll" was announced last week. In the eyes of their classmates, the following students fit into these categories:

MOST POPULAR: Kathy Mark, Dave Bliss.

NICEST PERSONALITY: Brenda Powell, Dale Bullock.

MOST INTELLIGENT: Joan Maleck, Eric Esau.

BEST DRESSED: Nancy Zawilinski, Dan Rabideau.

MOST TALENTED: Mary Sue Burns, Ken Blatt.

MOST ATHLETIC: Kally Pine, John Maharg.

CLASS FLIRTS: Paula Cope-land, Tim Barnes.

CLASS SAMARITANS: Teri Rabideau, Jack Selby.

On May 1, which is National Day observed as Law Day, the seniors were addressed by Mr. Wallace Kent, an attorney from Caro who spoke on the subject of Laws.

Thursday was report card day! Oh well - that's five marking periods down with only one to go.

The boys in the Auto Mechanics Class went on a field trip to the Ford Motor Company all day Thursday.

Friday morning we had our last regular assembly of the year. The guest speaker's topic was "Reptiles." What really made his lecture interesting was that he had many live specimens with him to show us. In fact he walked into the audience with a tarantula in his hand, he placed a diamond-back rattlesnake on the floor, and showed us a "baby" boa-constrictor that was about five feet long. The girls in the front row loved every minute of it!

If you don't want to pay the price of America's roomiest car try the second roomiest:

68 Chevrolet Impala 4-Door Sedan

a new Chevrolet like this

If things like head, shoulder and leg room are important to you, take a close look at the new Chevrolet.

Automotive News did—and its 1968 Roominess Index shows Chevrolet is the second most spacious of all American sedans.

The roomiest? That distinction, we're not at all embarrassed to admit, goes to America's most popular luxury car.

Based on the Roominess Index, which totals seven key interior dimensions to the fraction of an inch, Chevrolet's 4-door sedan scored 290.7. A tenth of a point behind the 4-door luxury model.

A pretty good showing when you consider how much more the expensive model sells for. And some of the other cars Chevrolet topped carry just as impressive price tags.

But that's just a sample of the pluses you get at a Chevrolet price. You'll find a lot more of them in the fine things Chevrolet has designed around all that space.

Drop down to your dealer's and bring the family. This one's a real crowd-pleaser.

175 Years of teaching

of how the Hutchinson Act and the Teacher's Tenure Act had changed the attitude of the teaching profession. "Teachers have developed an attitude of more money and less work and hours. This is not aiding the child. There are exceptions. I have some very dedicated teachers, some just new, but I am talking about the average teacher."

"The teacher today is less dedicated than before," Crawford continued. During the last three years the quality of education has been lowered due to the Hutchinson Act and the Teachers' Tenure. It is difficult to discharge an incapable teacher because of the tenure. The attitude of teachers is one of uncooperation. Today the teacher comes into the profession not because of dedication but because of the pay. I tell this to all my teachers during negotiations."

Mrs. Profit did agree with her brother that teachers have changed, pointing out that most teachers wanted to be a supervisor in their particular field rather than teach. "You have to be born a teacher," she added. Mrs. Profit also felt that lack of discipline in the classroom is not as good, especially amongst the younger teachers. "I must have discipline in my room. I cannot teach with noise and confusion going on. Some teachers can."

Mrs. Hool ended the teacher discussion by stating she feels a teacher's day isn't finished when the school day is done. She believes that taking work home at night is necessary for the teacher.

"Dedication" is the mainstay of the Crawford family. The seven children followed one after the other into the teaching profession, stepping into the thoughts and actions of their four uncles and aunts.

Retired from the field are Mrs. Lawrence Harrison of Capac who spent 35 years in the Troy, Romeo and Elkland township districts; Mrs. Harry Russell who taught at the Unionville school for 25 years before her untimely death; Mrs. William Profit, Cass City, retired with two years of service; Mrs. James F. Murray, Flushing, retired with almost three years of teaching; and Mrs. Hool, with 41 years of teaching.

TEACHING BACKGROUND

Mrs. Hool spent 11 of her teaching years with the Cass City schools, 19 years with Unionville, four years in Gagetown and the remaining seven between Elmwood and Elkland townships.

She attended Eastern Michigan University, receiving her Bachelor of Science degree from Central Michigan University.

"I have all the time in the world," Mrs. Hool murmured softly. "I only wish I were back teaching." Illness caused Mrs. Hool to leave her chosen profession. "I hated to send in the last papers on my retirement and held off until this week."

Mrs. F. D. Profit has spent 23 of her 28 teaching years in Cass City. She attended Central Michigan University where she received her Bachelor of Science Degree. When asked about retirement plans, Mrs. Profit quickly answered, "I don't care to retire just yet. What else could I do? I will have to retire at 65 unless the school would want me to stay on. If I did retire then I suppose I would do some traveling."

Alex Crawford has been Superintendent of the Unionville Public School for the past 21 years. Previous to becoming superintendent he had taught 14 years in Gagetown and four years in Port Hope.

The seven Crawfords followed in the footsteps of their aunts and uncles. Of their children only one, Jack Hool, made the decision to become a teacher and is now at Assumption College High School in Windsor.

IMPROVING

John Cieslinski, 21, of Uby is in fair condition and improving at St. Mary Hospital in Saginaw following a motorcycle accident Sunday afternoon, four and a half miles west of Uby. Hospital authorities said Wednesday morning that he will be removed from the intensive care unit of the hospital as soon as a bed becomes available.

Cieslinski was riding a new motorcycle in a field. It was purchased the previous day and was still without a license. He was found by two cousins, Jane and Sue Sofia, who went to look for him when he failed to return. He was lying beside the wrecked cycle.

Cieslinski was taken to Hubbard Memorial Hospital in Bad Axe and later transferred to Saginaw.

Damage to the cycle was estimated at $400. Cieslinski is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Cieslinski, Uby.

Hawk thinclads edged by Bad Axe, 62-56

Cass City evened its track record at 2-2 for the season Wednesday, May 1, when they dropped a close dual meet to Bad Axe, 62-56, at Cass City Recreational Park.

Highlights of the meet for Cass City were the performances of Jim and Jack Selby. Jim posted a 10:39.3 two-mile, his best time of the year and second best in the Thumb B Conference. Jack ran the 880 in 2:08.5 which was his best time of the year.

Coach Robert Watson says that Cass City should do well in the hurdles in the Conference. Tom Gunther, Dennis Stine and Dick McRae continue to improve each week, he said. Watson also cited Dennis Clara, Mick Miracle and McRae for their efforts in the pole vault.

Cass City's biggest weakness is in the field events and it cost the Hawks a win against the Hatchets. The visitors posted a 23-4 point advantage which proved too much for the team to overcome in the track events.

Each school swept one event. Cass City taking all the points in the 440 and Bad Axe countering with a sweep in the shot put.

The results:
Shot put - Benzi, BA;
Tamblyn, BA; Gottschalk, BA, 39'6".

180 attend dinner for Democrats

Sander M. Levin was guest of honor at the Tuscola County Democratic Dinner held Saturday in Caro.

Approximately 180 persons, 12 from Cass City, attended. Dick Kern, Caro attorney, was Master of Ceremonies, with short talks presented by R. L. Hill, County Democratic Chairman, and Liddy Maynard, State Committee Recording Secretary.

Hawks split 2 diamond tilts

Cass City split a pair of games in Thumb B Conference diamond-competition during the week, chalking up an initial loop victory over Caro, 3-1, before losing to the Lakers Monday, 2-1.

The Hawks have lost three of four Conference games and most of the defeats have been because of weak hitting. The only game in which the club scored as many as three runs was in the victory over Caro.

The Hawks scored twice in the second inning against the Tigers on Freshman Kim Hopper's circuit clout and added an insurance run in the fifth on a double by Freshman Rob Alexander and a single by Jack Hillaker.

Against the Lakers, the Hawks failed to collect a hit until the last inning when Bill Klunkman broke the spell with a single.

John Maharg was nearly as good for Cass City as he allowed just four hits. There was not an earned run in the game.

The hurlers dominated the game for both clubs. Twelve Hawks and 10 Lakers were retired via the strike out route.

Teen Ranch surpasses their goal

Teen Ranch "Operation Friendship" surpassed its announced initial goal of $20,000 by raising $24,200 during a three-day radio broadcast which ended Thursday night, May 2. Contributing to the success of the program broadcast by WTHM, Lapeer, was generous pre-broadcast publicity in a great many newspapers, and contributions totaling $700 which were solely attributed to newspaper activity.

The $24,200 contributed or pledged will be used entirely for a $70,000 home to house ten more boys at Teen Ranch. This will be the second home on the Ranch, which is located between Clifford and Kingston. Teen Ranch provides a good home for boys who sorely need a good home.

Sentence one to Jackson

One person was sentenced to Jackson State Prison and six others arraigned before Tuscola County Circuit Judge James Churchill, Tuesday.

Gary Ross of Lapeer was sentenced to Jackson State Prison for a term of 1 1/2 to 10 years, with 11 days credit for time spent in the county jail.

Ross, sentenced to four years' probation March 12, appeared before Judge Churchill, April 30 on a charge of violating his probation by being a minor in possession of intoxicating beverages. Ross was placed on probation after pleading guilty to a charge of breaking and entering Legg's Restaurant in Kingston.

David Lee Nichols, Cass City, stood mute to a charge of felonious assault. A plea of innocent was entered for him. Nichols was charged with assault without intending to commit the crime of murder and without intending to inflict great bodily harm less than the crime of murder. Nichols was armed with a 12-gauge pump gun when the incident occurred Feb. 14. He allegedly pumped several shots into the home of his next door neighbor, Grady Taylor, following a fight.

James R. Green of Mayville stood mute to the charge of grand larceny and a plea of innocent was entered for him. Green is charged with taking a 1956 tractor from Harold A. Martin of Watertown township on Sept. 20.

Floyd Selden, Caro, was arraigned on a charge of larceny from a building. Selden pleaded guilty and a pre-sentence investigation was ordered. Sentence will be passed June 4. Selden was accused of taking $9.70 from the Rainbow Laundry in Caro Dec. 19.

Also pleading guilty was James McGinnis of Mayville, who was charged with forgery. A pre-sentence investigation was ordered. Sentence will be passed June 4. McGinnis was charged with forging a Saginaw Creamery check May 1.

Minor league try-outs slated

Try-outs for Minor League baseball will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 14-15-16, at 6:30 p. m. at the Cass City Recreational Park. Lee Hartel, director, reported this week.

Minor League play is for boys seven and eight years old and for boys 9-12 who failed to make a Little League team.

Hartel said that May 14 is the chance for prospective players to sign for the league this year.

New Congo film to be premiered here

"They Have Overcome," a new missionary film just released by the Assemblies of God Foreign Missions Department, will be shown May 12, 7:30 p. m., at Cass City Assembly of God, 6th and Leach, the Reverend Paul H. Cowan, pastor, has announced.

The 43-minute documentary film describes in graphic detail the violent Simba revolt in Congo, the tragic martyrdom of Missionary J. W. Tucker, the miraculous growth of the Congo church while in hiding in the jungle, and the brave return of four Assemblies of God missionaries just a few months ago.

The major role in the new film is played by the Congo church itself. Separated from the missionaries, driven into the savage horrors of the African jungle, exiled from homes and families, chased down and martyred for the cause of Jesus Christ, the Congo church still met every Sunday in the seclusion of the forest and held its regular services. The Congo church actually increased its numbers during the many months of persecution!

The film begins with the personal testimony of Mrs. Angelina Tucker, who is the widow of the martyred missionary. She tenderly recounts her last hours in Congo and vividly portrays the time when she received the word of her husband's death.

When the four missionaries returned to Congo, the Assemblies of God Foreign Missions Department sent a photographer in with them to document their arrival and capture on film the spontaneous joy of the African church.

The title of the film comes from Revelation 12:11 (Amplified Version) -- "And they have overcome (conquered) him by means of the blood of the lamb and by the utterance of their testimony..."

Pastor Paul Cowan cordially invites the public to attend this free premier showing of the Congo film.

JV nine tops Caro Tuesday

Cass City's Junior Varsity baseball team has the batting punch that the varsity is missing this year. The JV's notched their second victory against a single loss Tuesday by whipping Caro, 6-3.

John Novak pitched the entire game and yielded five hits, walked one and struck out four. Cass City led the game in the third with four runs on two walks, an error and hits by Dan Calister and Bruce Esheleman. The Hawks added single runs in the fifth and sixth.

A single by Clint Warner and an error scored the run in the fifth and a double by Bob Hennessey and a single by Lee Taylor netted the final run. Calister and Esheleman each picked up two singles in three tries.

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN - THURSDAY, MAY 9, 1968

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hayward

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hayward will celebrate their 35th wedding anniversary on May 18 at an open house given by their children.

Friends and neighbors are invited to attend the celebration, which will be held at the American Legion Hall in Marlette beginning at 7:30 p.m. They request that no gifts be given.

The Haywards were married May 18, 1935, in Cass City. Mrs. Hayward, the former Julia Sherman, was born January 30, 1918, and resided on a farm south of Cass City. Her husband was born June 27, 1914, and resided in the Brown City area. He is presently manager of the Harper Elevator in Hemans.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayward have five children, Mrs. Art (Doris) Fishell, Mrs. Robert (Marion)

Fields of Decker, Mrs. Larry (Sharon) Potter of Rochester, Duane of Marlette and Harold of Pontiac. They also have 15 grandchildren.

Nazarenes plan 2 events at Gagetown

A Mother and Daughter dessert is planned at the Gagetown Church of the Nazarene by Mrs. Anne Neal, Miss Shirley Neal, Mrs. Violet Ellis and Mrs. Barbara Bugbee. The event will take place Friday evening in the church basement.

A senior banquet is also planned by the Sunday School under the direction of Superintendent Deloss Neal. It will be held Saturday, May 18, in the Gagetown gym.

Hold final rites for Mrs. Freeman

Funeral services for Mrs. Alice Freeman, 79, were held Tuesday at St. Agatha Catholic Church, Gagetown, with Rev. Joseph Friske officiating. Burial was in St. Agatha cemetery.

Mrs. Freeman died May 4 in Hills and Dales Hospital after a long illness.

She was born August 8, 1888 in Gagetown, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Miles Kehoe. She married Arthur Freeman in April, 1908.

Mrs. Freeman is survived by her husband; two sons, Lawrence, Cass City, and Frank, Gagetown; four daughters, Mrs. Harry (Deloris) Comment, Gagetown, Mrs. Bert (Elizabeth) Bain, Drayton Plains, Mrs. J. (Eileen) Pennock, San Diego, Calif., and Mrs. Elmer (Rose Ann) Krauss, St. Petersburg, Fla.; seven grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Steven Auvil to receive honors at CMU convocation

Steven Auvil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Auvil of Snover, will be honored at the Twenty-fifth Annual Recognition Convocation of Central Michigan University, May 9.

Auvil, a Cass City High School graduate, has been taking Chemical Engineering at CMU and will receive his Bachelor's degree next year at Michigan State University. He is married to the former Pamela Gee and has a three-year-old son.

Each year a recognition convocation is called to honor those students who have distinguished themselves by achieving in an unusual way in scholarship, leadership or extra-curricular activity.

Time may be money, but too many people fail to realize how little time they have.

Take the average man at his own valuation and you are pretty sure to get stuck.

Hostetler's Hodgepodge

The shadow on the schoolroom floor

By Marion Hostetler

I never cease to marvel at the magic that is made when a master teacher is in the midst of a class.

On the Friday before daylight saving time went into effect, Wilma Finkbeiner was talking with her elementary class at Gagetown about sun time and standard time.

"Let's see how much the sun will move while we are at lunch," she suggested. So she walked over to the place where a window frame was casting a shadow on the floor, and she stuck a piece of tape on the floor at the edge of the shadow, labeled "11:17."

When the class came back from lunch, she put another piece of tape on the floor, marked "12:17." The children were amazed to see how far the shadow had moved in an hour, and one hawk-eyed youngster exclaimed, "It's moving right now." All afternoon the pupils kept eyeing the shadow on the schoolroom floor.

That sounds like the title of a mystery novel, doesn't it? Dan Marlowe could write quite a book, I suppose, about "The Shadow on the Schoolroom Floor." In fact I could do it myself, if I had the mind to. "Aye, there's the rub." I just don't have the mind to do it. How about you?

Pupils of any age could learn something from Mrs. Finkbeiner's experiment -- anything they had a mind to.

A geometry class could prove that the sun traverses 15 degrees every hour -- 1/24th of a circle.

A class in general science would find evidence for the dictum: "Science is based on the fact that some natural events are predictable."

A class in lifetime living might be forced to remember "It is later than you think."

One of the main differences, it seems to me, between a competent, experienced teacher and one who is just beginning to master the profession is that the novice concentrates on the lesson and the master concentrates on the pupils. Your master teacher will constantly be thinking, "Is this getting through to Johnny?" She has long ago learned that the lesson is about, so she can pay attention to the pupils.

Instead of being concerned about what she is saying, the teacher is concerned about what the pupils are hearing and thinking and doing. When a pupil says something, instead of thinking of this as an interruption, she pays attention to what he says, for she knows this is a window to his mind. It is a sign either that the pupil is learning something (perhaps even discovering something!) -- or that he is resisting her teaching. And if he is resisting, she wants to find out why he is resisting, and what the need is in his life which must be met if he is to get back on the track of living and learning.

There are a thousand things going on in a classroom every minute. The master teacher is aware of a hundred of them. The novice may be aware of ten.

For reasons best known to themselves, some certified public accountants who were working on the books of a local institution sent me a copy of a bill I had recently paid, with the request that I sign a form saying, "This statement is correct."

Reminded me about the cab driver in Chicago. Seems a little old lady from Iowa handed him the exact amount of the fare, then anxiously asked, "Is that correct?"

"Yes, lady," said the driver, who had come to think of tips as a legitimate and essential part of his income, "it's correct, but it ain't right."

I would have been willing to sign the statement in the interest of efficiency, but when I noticed that they expected me to pay the postage to mail it back to them, I decided I didn't owe those accountants anything. If they want to come and get their statement, I have it waiting for them.

Walbro employees complete course

Two employees of the Walbro Corporation completed a first-level course in Wittenberg University's Management Development Program Friday.

They are Maynard Helwig, machine foreman, and Barry L. Miller, final assembly supervisor.

Wittenberg's program offers instruction in each of four levels to supervisory personnel from industry. Areas emphasized are human relations, economics, communications and business operations.

The want ads are newsy too.

WILD TURKEYS became a reality last week in Sanilac county. Gary Schell, a former member of the Sanilac Soil Conservation District Board of Directors, accomplished a long time ambition when he released three hens and one tom. Even though these were purchased by Schell and released on private land they are still under the jurisdiction of the Michigan Department of Conservation. Only after this department opens season in Sanilac can they be hunted. Schell hopes they thrive well in the wooded areas of the county to give the hunters of Sanilac some sport in years to come.

Church lecture in Caro Friday

A Christian Science lecturer coming to Caro Friday, May 10, will discuss today's "identity crisis" and how a deepened understanding of man's relationship to God can help.

The speaker will be Jane O. Robbins, C.S., of Boulder, Colorado. Her visit here is being sponsored by First Church of Christ, Scientist.

The lecture begins at 8 p. m. in the church edifice, Lincoln and Pearl St., Caro. It's titled, "Freedom To Be Yourself." Admission is free and the lecture is open to the public.

Foresight is the ability to utilize the present in making a past for future use.

Always try to remember that national greatness is a product of sense - not census.

Letter to Editor

May 3, 1968
Argyle, Mich.

To the Editor:

What I saw on "Today" show made me cringe; "Sex on the College Campus."

I didn't want to watch it because I had a hunch it would make me sick - but I was curious, thought perhaps it's not as bad as we've been reading - it was worse. Society is on its way to Sodom and Gomorrah.

No wonder there are a thousand suicides a year among college students - it's the corrupt morals. Sure these couples looked happy for the time being - but there will come a day of reckoning. Can't help but pity them, and my prayer is, "God forgive them for they know not what they do."

Cropweed control information offered by county extension

Are you controlling weeds in field crops by tillage or by application of chemical sprays? Both have advantages, according to Alfred Ballweg, county extension agricultural agent.

Tillage controls annual and deep root weeds such as bindweed and thistles, Michigan State University crop scientists report. The loosened soil is left to form a top, dry layer to discourage weed growth.

William F. Meggett, MSU crop scientist, suggests pre-emergence herbicides for corn, potatoes, field beans, soybeans, sugar beets, alfalfa and bird-foot trefoil. Application should be after planting, but before the crop emerges. Pre-emergence sprays generally give better control than post-emergence sprays, Meggett explains.

Post-emergence sprays are useful in emergencies since they are not applied until the weeds appear, the crop scientist says. Post-emergence sprays are available for corn, small grains, and small seeded legumes but not for field beans, soybeans or sugar beets.

The newly revised Extension Bulletin E-434 is available at your County Extension Office for further information on weed control in field crops.

The iceman

cometh no more

By Dan Marlowe

You're an oldtimer if you remember the icewagon coming down the street to your house. It may surprise the younger generation to know that we haven't always had electric refrigerators. In the old days, food was preserved by 50, 75, or 100 pound chunks of ice placed in a box-like compartment at the top or rear of the icebox.

Emptying out the pan of accumulated ice water from under the icebox was one of the daily chores. Woe betide the unfortunate youngster who neglected to do so at the appointed time and thus caused a flood when the pan overflowed.

In my hometown the icewagons were always painted bright yellow. They were drawn by patient horses who knew the route as well as the icemen did. The horses usually wore battered straw hats with two holes pierced in them to accommodate the horses' ears.

The ice was loaded onto the wagons at the icehouse in long slabs. It would go onto the wagons just as it had been cut from the pond or lake the previous winter. A good iceman could chisel a fifty pound square of ice from a huge slab with no more wastage than a diamond merchant in Amsterdam would have with an uncut diamond.

The ice would be covered with the straw which had helped to keep it from melting after it was removed from the pond. Before delivering the ice to the home, the iceman would brush off the straw with a whisk broom. Finicky housewives didn't care to have dirty straw in their iceboxes along with melting ice.

The icemen wore rubber ponchos which covered their chests and backs. This was to protect them from drainage as they carried their wares from the street to the icebox. The iceman would pick up the chunk of ice to be delivered in a pair of ice tongs and swing the chunk up onto his shoulder. Then he would carry it wherever it had to be delivered. It made no difference if this meant climbing five flights of stairs. The ice was delivered.

It was no accident that some of the better fighters in the '20's and '30's started out as icemen. Babe Risko and Jack Delaney came immediately to mind. There were undoubtedly others. The long hours of delivering ice developed shoulder muscles and stamina.

Red Grange, the great All-American from the University of Illinois, was often called "The iceman." Grange delivered ice during his summer vacations. He often said afterward that football practice was a vacation after delivering ice.

In the winter time the huge wheels would come off the box-like icewagons and be replaced by steel-covered runners. The same patient horses would stand in the snow with scarves wrapped around their ears in-

Freedom to be yourself

Man's freedom to be himself is a God-given right. But no one can truly be himself as long as he believes he is the product of heredity, age, environment or psychological factors, says an experienced Christian Science practitioner and lecturer. Man's true identity, asserts Jane O. Robbins, C.S., is found through the recognition of himself as the likeness of God. You and your friends are invited to hear "Freedom to be Yourself" by Miss Robbins, a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship. Everyone is invited, admission is free.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Ed Doolittle told the fellers at the country store Saturday night he was aiming real soon to go to the city and see one of them wrassler matches. He said he was reading where one wrassler defeated another wrassler by breaking a chair over his head and knocking him out. He figured this was a real clean sport after reading fer months about riots and demonstrations. Fer instant, he said he had read where it cost the taxpayers $5,000 to paint over and git rid of the "Peace" signs at the demonstration they had at Northwestern University.

Incidental, Mister Editor, all the fellers at the store was strong agin these demonstrations, protests, marches and things that was going on today agin about everything. All the fellers was gitting along in years and they wasn't raised up in that kind of goings-on. Maybe they was just old fashioned and has-beens, and again maybe this country was built and grewed great on their brand of philosophy. I reckon future history will nave to decide that question. Zeke Grubb said he was reading where some college boy broke his arm trying to hang some kind of sign on a monument in Boston. Zeke said in his day most of the younger generation that got a broke arm was from trying to crank them automobiles that come out fer the first 10 year with a crank under the radiator afore self-starters was ever invented.

Josh Clodhopper said, speaking of broke arms, he could recollect about 50 year ago when the feller that run the bank brought hisself one of them Overland Six automobiles, which was about as fancy as a feller could git in them days. Josh said it was the talk of the community and everybody was shaking their head about the powerful six-cylinder 45-horsepower motor this car had. A heap of folks, said Josh, didn't believe a feller could keep a car with that much horsepower in the road and everybody was predicting he'd git killed in the thing. The only thing that happened to the feller, said Josh, was he got his arm broke one cold morning trying to crank it up.

Today a 45-horsepower motor ain't hardly enough fer a 18-foot boat, and I reckon this just about tells the story between today and when us fellers at the store was in our teens. I reckon all of us was out of date and don't believe in all these peace demonstrations, protests, riots and things that was going on today.

But the storekeeper told us one thing we understood. He said a history teacher at Gloversville, N. Y. told his class the national debt was $352,546,363,116.57 exact. The students took up a collection and sent the Government a check fer 57 cent to bring it to round numbers.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

"If It Fitz..."

There's no tingle in TV

BY JIM FITZGERALD

(Jim Fitzgerald is still vacationing. This column first appeared March 30, 1961.)

It's like this: TV never makes me tingle. Never.

Last week I took my women to Detroit to see "The Sound of Music." All of us tingled, from toe to head-top.

I call it tingling. You may call it goose bumps or shivers or just plain thrilling.

It's the feeling you get when a good band marches by, going full blast with cymbals crashing and flags waving. Maybe you tingle when a stadium full of people is hushed while a soldier plays a bugle. Or when a good tenor sings "Danny Boy."

No scientist has ever explained exactly what tingling is. In layman's language, I'd simply call it an emotional reaction to certain stimuli (pretty good, huh?)

It is an uncontrollable reaction. You can't turn it on and off. The wonderful, prickly feeling along your skin comes and goes on its own accord.

Show business is a good source of tingles. Some phases of show business. Not TV.

For instance: Mabel runs into Ruth downtown. They are old schoolmates who haven't seen each other in 20 years. What do they talk about?

Mabel's skin, of course. Mabel has had 2 dozen kids but she still has skin like she was born with. On the other hand, Ruth has a face like an old catcher's mitt.

"How do you do it?" asks Ruth. "I wash my face with soap," answers Mabel.

Naturally, this makes Ruth feel like a dirty slob. For 20 years she's been washing her face in a homemade mixture of tar and gravel. Doesn't everyone?

Then there's that commercial about "Elm City, USA." From this inspiring message I learned that American women always carry cans of kitchen cleanser in their purses. I never knew that.

The point is: With crud like that popping up between the gun shots, how could TV possibly make anyone tingle? Who experiences an emotional reaction when a garbage truck drives by?

An occasional movie has tingled me. A good book can sometimes do it. But, mostly, it takes flesh.

A peek at my sleeping kids in the dark of night (how can they be such brats in the sunlight?) does it, of course. Loved ones can produce tingles easily. But I'm talking about show business.

A good stage play is the best tingle, especially musicals. Nothing can beat live entertainment when it's good. Nothing can beat the thrill of being RIGHT THERE as the artist performs.

I wouldn't turn a page to see another picture of Liz Taylor because I've seen hundreds. But if she were right around the corner, in the flesh, I'd certainly take a peek.

Rodgers and Hammerstein music is usually good for tingles. "The Sound of Music" is no exception. The plot is thin and there are some dead spots in the second act. But oh, that music! When the orchestra pulls out all the stops, the tuba compas, and the singers spout those marvelous lyrics -- man, that's living!

There's a contagious enthusiasm in great performances. To be exposed to the genuine electricity you must be right there, not home on the couch, squinting at a 21-inch one-eyed monster and telling the kids to shut up so you can hear.

There are different degrees of tingling. At "The Sound of Music" I caught my wife bawling when everyone on stage was happy.

"I'm crying because it's all so beautiful," she said. Well, she can cry passing a church where strangers are getting married. I looked around the theatre to see if anyone else was crying while they laughed. There were sobbing women all over the place. And many men were wiping their eyes. That's real tingling.

I even tingle at curtain calls. I get a real kick when the stars take a bow and the audience shows its approval.

If it were on TV they'd come on stage, light a cigarette, and tell how really good a good smoke tastes. Who could tingle to such stupidity?

Of course, I realize there are probably readers who don't know what the devil I'm talking about because they don't tingle to anything.

For them, I feel sorry. They are missing a wonderful feeling.

AROUND THE FARM

Judging Michigan

farm produce

By Alfred P. Ballweg

Michigan Week will soon be with us so why not acquaint ourselves with Michigan agricultural facts. Tuscola county contributes heavily to the total agricultural production of Michigan and helps it to rank as one of the leading agricultural states.

Seven percent of Michigan citizens make their living on the farm, but an additional 20% make their living from pursuits dependent on agriculture. Yet only one person out of 88 in our state is a farm operator. During 1967 Michigan farmers received 886 million dollars for products sold. The retail value of these products would be 2 to 2 1/2 billion.

Agriculture is the second largest source of income in Michigan; 27% of Michigan citizens derive some part of their income from agriculture.

Apples - The Midwest's largest producer of this attractive fruit (11 million bushels in 1967), Michigan each year markets its apples in more than half the states and Canada. In 1967 the estimated return to Michigan's 2,700 growers was $25 million.

Asparagus - Fresh, green and succulent, asparagus is the first vegetable to be harvested from Michigan fields each spring. Most of it goes to processors. Despite adverse weather that cut yields, production in the state in 1967 was 9,500 tons worth $3.6 million to growers.

Dry Beans - Can you visualize 5.4 million bags of beans -- 100-pound bags that is? That was Michigan's 1967 production of dry edible beans, the largest bean crop in the country in spite of a drop of 1/3 from a year earlier. Its value to 11,000 growers was $44 million.

Snap Beans - Twenty-six thousand tons of this tasty vegetable, worth $2.7 million to growers, were produced in Michigan in 1967.

Beef - Sales of cattle and calves in 1966 totaled 631,000 head and the $101 million producers received is important.

Blueberries - Michigan is next to the nation's leading producer of blueberries. Many leading varieties of blueberries were propagated at the South Haven experiment station. Last year's Michigan crop was 35 million pounds, of which 3/5 went to processors.

Butter - Michigan produced 33 million pounds of butter in 1967, placing eighth among the states in production.

Cantaloupe - Growers marketed 187,000 hundredweight worth $1.3 million in 1967 to place the state sixth in production.

Carrots - Ranking fourth among the states producing carrots, Michigan commercial growers raised more than 1.1 million hundredweight in 1967.

Celery - The state advanced to third among the states in production in 1967 with a crop of 722,000 hundredweight worth an estimated $4.2 million.

Cheese - Michigan in 1966 produced 59 million pounds of cottage cheese to place fifth in the nation in production.

Cherries - Speak of red tart cherries and you think of Michigan (the No. 1 producer) because each year 3,900 growers produce more than half of the total crop of this delicious bright red fruit.

Chicken - Michigan sold about 6 million birds worth $3.7 million gross income to poultry producers in 1966.

Corn (Sweet) - The sixth largest producer of sweet corn in the United States, Michigan produced a crop of 735,000 hundredweight valued at $3 million in 1967.

Corn (Field) - In 1967 Michigan produced 91 million bushels, worth $92 million to place twelfth nationally as a corn producer.

Cucumbers - For years Michigan has been the nation's chief source of cucumbers grown for pickles, and in 1967 producers marketed 117,640 tons of pickles worth $13 million.

Eggs - What a whopper of a job it would take to try the 1.6 billion eggs produced in Michigan in 1966. Poultrymen were paid more than $47.5 million for this production.

Grapes - Michigan harvested only 35,000 tons of grapes in 1967 due to heavy bud freeze, but the crop was the fifth largest grape crop in the nation. Growers received about $2.1 million.

Honey - Michigan had a yield in 1967 of 6.1 million pounds from its 121,000 bee colonies. Value of the yield was estimated at $0.9 million.

Lettuce - About 38 million pounds of head lettuce worth $2.5 million to growers were raised in 1967.

Maple Syrup - In 1967 Michigan stood sixth in production with 60,000 gallons worth $366,000 to producers.

Milk - Milk and dairy products take about 19 percent of what the housewife spends on food, and Michigan's milk production in 1967 was 4.7 billion pounds. For the farmer it was worth nearly $250 million, the largest single source of farm income in the state.

Peaches - The grower last year received an estimated $8.1 million.

Potatoes - The state's potato production was nearly nine million hundredweight in 1967.

Strawberries - Michigan stands third among the states in the acreage devoted to strawberries. There were 29.2 million pounds harvested for an estimated return to growers of $5.5 million.

Sugar - More than 1.3 million tons of sugar beets were grown in Michigan in 1967 for sugar processing.

Wheat - Only fourteenth among the nation's great wheat producers, Michigan occupies a unique position in production of this grain. It is the source of 2/3 of all the eastern white winter wheat grown. In 1967, Michigan harvested 40 million bushels worth $51 million.

The trouble with pulling strings is that you never know who's pulling at the other end.
