Golding squeezes past O'Dell for county supervisor seat

A pair of Cass Cityans provided Tuesday's primary elections with an old-fashioned tooth-and-nail battle before Elkland Township Supervisor Ed Golding defeated Township Treasurer Mac O'Dell by just 42 votes in the contest for District Two Supervisor. Golding received 580 votes to O'Dell's 538.

See unofficial vote by precincts Page 3

In other elections commanding local interest, incumbent Hugh Marr easily topped Jim Barriger and Cass City Police Chief Carl Palmateer in the Republican Sheriff's race, and Cass City's Les Lounsbury defeated fellow-Republican Quentin Howell, 3,208-2,352, in the contest for Drain Commissioner. Marr received 2,988 votes, Barriger got 1,459, and Palmateer 1,540.

O'Dell won three of the five townships in District Two, but a very strong showing in Elmwood Township pushed Golding into a seat on the new seven-district county board.

"I figured it would be close," Golding said.

A very confident Marr lost no more than a half-dozen of the 34 precincts in breezing to victory.

"I figured it would go this way," he said.

The only township official running for office was Albert Gallagher, unopposed in the balloting for township trustee.

Less than 7,000 of Tuscola County's 18,400 registered voters made it to the polls. First returns were received from Indianfields Township at 10:40, and Vassar Township was concluded on Page 4

Personalities at the primaries

BY LARRY WERNER

The Tuscola County Courthouse looked just a bit like the chaos of the GOP Convention, Tuesday night. Dozens of election officials, candidates and members of the press crowded the county clerk's office as precincts reported one by one throughout the night. Amidst the hubbub of the Aug. 6 primary, two different types of candidates were evident at the courthouse: the confident, outspoken landslide victor and the reserved politician who narrowly won his contest.

In name, these prototypes of American politics are Hugh Marr, who scored nearly 2-1 victories over two opponents in the Republican Sheriff's race, and Ed Golding, winner by just 42 votes in the contest for District Two Supervisor.

"Those Dutchmen are coming through," Marr would exclaim as returns were announced in his favor. "Those Dutchmen appreciate me."

Marr commented on nearly every return. At 1 a.m. he assured his supporters: "Yep. We're in real good shape."

"I'm well satisfied," Marr said as it was becoming evident that he had too large a lead to be overtaken. "I figured it would go this way. Everyone I talked to said it would be 2-1. I guess they sort of convinced me."

As Marr's lead grew even faster than the pile of used coffee cups in the busy office, a soft-spoken Ed Golding stood against the wall, silently scratching totals onto a small piece of paper. The figures told the quiet Elkland Township Supervisor that he was engaged in a genuine political struggle with his opponent, Mac O'Dell.

Marr had campaigned his way through elections before. In this election, his wisdom in the ways of county politics became evident. "I should lose a hundred votes in Elkland," Marr predicted boldly.

But Golding had never campaigned before this year. He has never encountered opposition in his decade of running for Elkland Township supervisor.

But times have changed. Golding was engaged in a battle for a spot on the newly-formed County Board of Supervisors. He had campaigned for the first time. And, also for the first time, he found himself immersed in tension and faced with the possibility that he might very well lose.

O'Dell took a township, then Golding came out on top. Shortly after the final precinct reported, Golding flashed a nervous smile and announced to a few bystanders that he had won by 42 votes.

Marr, the experienced politician, celebrated his victory by passing out cigars and candy bars, telling anyone who would listen that he knew all along that he would win.

"We both live in town and are both township officers," a cautious Golding said. "I figured it would be close."

Marr, on the other hand, wasted no words in explaining why he had won the nomination.

"Good service," he said. "We went from nothing to a modern police department. Why, they didn't even have a typewriter at the jail when I came here."

Marr also credited the success to his campaign. He pointed out that he campaigned hard and "handed out 9000 combs and 4500 thimbles."

Golding talked little of his campaign or his accomplishments. He talked, instead, of the job ahead. Township supervisors represented the township only. As a county supervisor, Golding will be representing four townships.

"The problems are the same. The work is the same," he said. "But how are we going to serve four townships? This is why I've said that the candidate should be someone who was on the old board. If the board were all new, it would really be a mess."

Although Golding was new at campaigning, he felt the contacts he made with people in this manner would help him in his job. He felt he had met much of his constituency, and this would help him to know what is best for the people he will serve.

At 2:47, after the last of the ballots had been turned in, Marr strolled proudly across the office, smiling the smile of a successful politician.

Ed Golding, meanwhile, stood against the wall, rechecking figures scratched on a small piece of paper.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

After watching the opening session of the Republican Convention Monday it appears that the delegates will nominate Richard Nixon and the same old self-hypnosis that nominated Barry Goldwater in 1964 is still very much alive in 1968.

Goldwater received the greatest ovation of the night Monday as he reiterated tired old conservatism rhetoric that the voters so dogmatically rejected four years ago.

Never mind that the polls show that Nixon trails both McCarthy and Vice-president Humphrey in every poll while Nelson Rockefeller leads both in voter favor.

The delegates are going to nominate Nixon and have concluded on page 4

Cycle game yields broken collarbone

Frank Mosher, 21, of 4316 Doerr Road suffered a fractured collarbone Tuesday when the motorcycle he was driving plunged nine feet over a cliff and into a gravel pit located south of the village.

Mosher was riding his cycle in the area of an old gravel pit 1/4-mile north of Kelly Road. According to Police Chief Carl Palmateer, Mosher was playing "follow-the-leader" with friends when the accident occurred. Mosher and his bike reportedly tumbled over the sand cliff with the bike landing on top of Mosher.

KRUG INJURED

CASS CITY AND OTHER predominantly-white rural communities have been generally unaffected by the country's racial problems. However, Pastor Richard Eyer of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church is concerned with the problem.

ONE OF THE TOP CORN crops in the area is a small plot at the east village limits of Cass City planted by Dale Iseler. The stalks stretch well over 10 feet tall. Planted on "light" soil, the frequent rains and hot moist weather have accelerated growth, Iseler said.

Wheat crop suffering from harsh winter

This is the story on area wheat yields, according to Frank Schott, manager of Cass City's Frutchey Bean Co., and extension agents.

And due to poor drying conditions, "She's all coming in wet," Schott said.

"There is some good wheat," he added. "But there is some awfully poor wheat, too."

Schott estimates that the average yield has been between 30 and 35 bushels per acre, and he blames a harsh winter for the poor yields.

Rex Setling, county extension agent at Sandusky, agrees.

"There was a lot of water lying on the fields in late fall and after that January thaw," he said. "Then we got ice sheets on the fields, which really hurt."

And we had a cold winter with no snow cover."

Alfred Ballweg, Tuscola County agent, points out that it is hard to determine just how costly the hard winter was to wheat farmers.

"Some farmers dug up fields that winter killed," he said.

The major complaint from wheat farmers, however, is the price.

"You can't make any money growing dollar wheat," Ballweg said of the $1 per bushel price.

"Some farmers will lose money on wheat."

Setling sees little hope for a higher price and says the only answer is doing "anything possible to get maximum yield."

Schott says that no one seems to have a sound reason for what he calls "depression prices."

The wheat story may be generally a sad one, but the experts are predicting a bumper crop in barley.

"Barley is good this year," Schott said. "We are getting close to 60 bushels per acre, and the quality is excellent."

Ballweg has had reports of up to 70 bushels per acre in barley.

It is still early for oats and corn, but harvests indicate good years for both.

"We got the warm weather that corn needs," Ballweg said. And about oats, "We will probably have a better than average crop," according to Setling.

"Especially the early-planted oats."

Hay is of poor quality and poor yield. The heavy rains in June prevented the farmers from harvesting, but Ballweg reports some good quality second cuttings.

Pastor preaches inter-racial love

BY LARRY WERNER

The plight of the American Negro is the plight of all America, according to a Cass City minister.

And Pastor Richard Eyer of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church is arranging for Negro youths

Supervisors request State Police post

The Tuscola County Board of Supervisors decided at their regular monthly meeting on Monday to draft a resolution requesting a State Police post in the county.

According to County Clerk Archie Hicks, the resolution will be sent to Michigan State Police headquarters in Lansing and to senators and representatives. If granted, the post site would be left to the State Police to determine.

to vacation in the village in hopes that this will increase understanding among the whites of the community and their black brothers.

Under sponsorship of the Lutheran Human Relations Association, the young civil rights-minded pastor is working with the Sebewaing Lutheran church in bringing Negro youngsters, between the ages of seven and 12, to Cass City during the last week of August.

According to Pastor Eyer, there are two reasons for the project.

"First, we want to simply give the kids a vacation from the city," he said. "There is nothing racial about this, except that most inner-city kids are Negro."

"Another reason is to bring our own young people into contact with Negro youths so that they get to know them."

There has been little done in the rural community toward solving the racial problem in America, Pastor Eyer said. This project, which has won nation-wide acceptance, is an attempt by the predominantly white community to do its part.

However, he said, there is bound to be some opposition and prejudice.

"People have to digest any new idea," Pastor Eyer said. "They have fears, whether justified or unjustified, and you have to take these fears into consideration. But, most of these fears are not founded in fact but in public misopinion."

The pastor emphasizes that he is not undertaking this project for the sole purpose of proving a point.

"I feel that as a Christian, as a pastor, I have to do something about this problem," he said.

Reaction to the project in Cass City has been short of enthusiastic. Only two families have volunteered to accept the young Negroes into their homes for a week's stay.

Pastor Eyer is disappointed but does not see this as an indication that there is going to be significant opposition.

"I don't foresee any major problems," he said. "I suppose some people will raise an eyebrow simply because it's unusual."

The Lutheran minister is one of many clergymen who are becoming concerned with issues facing the country. There are those who suggest that a preacher's place is in his pulpit. But Pastor Eyer, and hundreds like him, feel they must practice what they preach.

"Many people have fears about the church becoming involved," he said. "But if faith isn't related to life, if what we say on Sunday about the love of Christ is not applied, what is faith?"

"I can't imagine a faith which isn't related to the issues of the world."

School board and teachers close to settlement

Negotiations on a contract for Cass City teachers have been "proceeding quite smoothly," according to Don Crouse, superintendent of schools.

Three meetings have been held with a federal mediator, and, according to Crouse, "Tentative agreement has been reached on all non-monetary items."

Crouse said he is generally optimistic about a settlement being reached on monetary issues.

"In the past years, it has always taken longer to reach settlement on the non-monetary items, than the monetary," said Crouse.

The concerned Lutheran minister was born in New Jersey and attended schools in New York, Indiana and Missouri. He moved to Cass City in the spring of 1965 to assume his first pastorate.

He is not sure where he developed his interest in the civil rights issue. Perhaps, he said, he became interested when he found himself creating the likenesses of Negroes while enjoying one of his hobbies, oil painting.

"Or perhaps I've always felt this way," he said. "And as tension increased, so did my concern."

Racial turbulence has seriously affected the lives of city dwellers, while residents of the predominantly white rural community have been able to ignore the burning issues which lie somewhere the other side of the television screen.

Though the race riots haven't struck Pastor Richard Eyer personally, the significance of these disturbances struck the clergyman's conscience, and he is trying to "do something."

"We have to realize," he said, "that Negroes are people and deserve our love as much as anyone else."

You haven't failed if your child's idea of success isn't just like yours. You might even say that you have succeeded in letting him think for himself.

The teen years are times when your child will test the values he has acquired in growing up. He wants to live and think for himself. But he needs your concern and interest.

Often parents work so hard to succeed in their own lives that they don't have the energy to listen to their children. However, respect and love can keep your child unafraid to tell you what he thinks about such things as school, religion, dating and sex. He already knows what you think about these -- because he has been watching and listening to you for the last 14-19 years. He may not want to hear out your ideas again, but he needs to know that you are concerned about his ideas, problems and life.

View your child's accomplishments or failures in light of his development and how they affect him -- not as a feather in your cap or a blow to your ego. For example, a low grade in school needs to be compared to his own ability-scale and not to the neighbor boy's grade. No matter what he does, your child needs your acceptance of him as he is in order to combat those rough and impersonal standards at school or out in the group.

Your child is an individual who is growing and learning about the kind of life that is right for him. He is doing it in surroundings that are different from the ones you knew. The kind of life he leads and the values he acquires should be in tune with his life and times. Your child is mainly a result of what and how you have taught him. Even if he is not obeying you now, he is learning your values. If you respect his judgment of what is right and important, you are also respecting your ability as a parent.

A pickup truck driven by Garfield Turner, 50, of 5449 Cass City Road, collided with a car driven by Anna Marion Kady of Gagetown, Wednesday, July 31, at the intersection of Main and Weaver.

The Turner vehicle pulled into traffic and struck the car driven by Mrs. Kady. Both cars were slightly damaged.

According to the police report parked cars obstructed Turner's vision. No tickets were issued.

Three injuries were reported in three county accidents, all occurring in Wells township.

On Monday, Billie Leray Nidiffer, 16, and Winnifred Kelly, 16, were injured when a car driven by Nidiffer left Curry Road, 1/4 mile west of Plain Road, and rolled over in a ditch.

Nidiffer told Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies that he swerved to miss a dog and lost control of the car. The car was damaged on the top, front and side. Nidiffer and Miss Kelly refused treatment.

Nidiffer was ticketed for failing to stop in the assured clear distance.

Cars driven by Alice Belowus, 55, and Gerald McAlpine, 29, both of Caro, collided on Wells Road Sunday, as McAlpine's auto was pulling out of a trail along the road called Cat Lake Road.

McAlpine told deputies that he could not see the Belowus auto because of tall grass near the edge of the road. The Belowus car was headed east on Wells at about 25 miles per hour when the collision occurred.

Mrs. William E. Welch

White gladioli adorned the altar of the Grant United Methodist Church, Cass City, Saturday, Aug. 3, for the wedding of William Edward Welch and Florence Mae Moore. The double-ring ceremony was officiated by Rev. E.D.K. Isaacs.

A scalloped neckline and removable Watteau train of chapel length, also lace chained, further highlighted the dress. A plateau of overlapping petals of tulle with pearls and tiny blossoms secured her triple bouffant veil of imported French illusion and she carried a cascade of white carnations with pink carnations in the center.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Charles F. Parker III and bridesmaids were Miss Ann Moore and Miss Joan Moore of Lansing, cousins of the bride. They wore identical floor-length sheath gowns of chiffon.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By H. M. Bulen

Anybody who ever had trouble getting a golf ball into the hole might be interested in knowing just how wide a golf hole is. . . It may seem smaller when you're putting, but the exact width is 4 1/4 inches.

Here's quite an oddity from boxing. . . There was one year -- 1941 -- when five of the eight world champions were all from the same area of the same state in the U.S. . . The light heavyweight champion of the world then was Billy Conn of Pittsburgh. . . The middleweight champ was Barry Soose of Barry, Pa., which is some 60 miles from Pittsburgh. . . The welterweight champ was Fritz Zivic of Pittsburgh. . . The lightweight champ was Sammy Angott of Washington, Pa., which is 20 miles from Pittsburgh. . . And the featherweight champ was Jackie Wilson of Pittsburgh. . . What are the odds on that happening!

Of all the men who have ever played big league pro football, which one scored the most touchdowns in one season? . . . The answer is Gale Sayers. . . He holds the all-time major league pro football record, set in 1965 when he scored 22 TDs in that one season.

When virtually all of the tombstones in Grant Cemetery were tipped over recently by vandals it made all of the area daily and weekly papers.

I doubt that their repair will cause such a splash. But it's worth noting. The work was underway Tuesday by two monument companies.

Donating their time and material are Wes Fredericks of Cummings Memorials in Caro and Robert Badgley of a Bad Axe monument sales company.

As far as I know neither man- tried to cash in on the goodturn with publicity and the Chronicle learned of the effort only because a Cass City person with relatives in the cemetery casually mentioned the project.

Supervisors

ban Sunday

liquor sales

Sunday liquor by the glass sales is still prohibited in Tuscola County after the County Board of Supervisors voted down the controversial law, 13-12, at their regular monthly meeting, Monday.

Sales of liquor by the glass was legalized on the state level when Governor Romney allowed the bill to become law without his signature. However, the law is subject to local option and must be adopted by the local governing units before sales are allowed.

The Supervisors could have granted county-wide sanction, with individual townships approving or rejecting the measure for their areas.

With the defeat, however, townships are forbidden the option, and townships in the county which have already approved sale of liquor by the glass on Sunday must abide by the old ruling.

The question can be forced to a vote if 1,054 county signatures are collected demanding a referendum.

Letters to the Editor

Auten blasts high interest rates

Dear Editor:

Views of a small town country banker on inflation.

Inflation is generally assumed to be an increase in the cost of living. There are many factors which bring this about:

1. For the government to spend more money than it takes in.
2. For labor to demand higher and higher wages.
3. Excessive profits to the large companies, who, because of a partial monopoly, are able to maintain and even raise the price of their products.

However, the one factor which seems to have had the greatest impact on raising prices is the policy of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System headed by Wm. McChesney Martin.

In 1965 banks were paying 3% on savings accounts. Government bonds bearing 4 1/4% were desirable for banks. An issue that came out at 5% in 1959 was heavily oversub-scribed and immediately sold above par.

Suddenly, in early 1962, the Federal Reserve raised the permissible interest to 4%. Every large bank in Michigan immediately came out with full page ads stating they were paying 4%. What could a small bank do but raise also? Some of the large New York banks had as low as 13% of their deposits in savings, so the immediate effect on them was small. However our bank, which I believe is more or less typical, had 80% in savings and the impact of 1% was severe. Rates to the borrowers were immediately raised.

Then in March 1966, the rate was increased to 5 1/2%. Again the large banks came out with full page ads. Again interest was raised to the borrowing public. More inflation.

The papers published the fact that the cost of living had gone up 3/10ths of one per cent. Those that figure the cost of living completely ignore interest rates. To the great borrowing public, the cost of living was raised 40 to 50%. The Federal Land Bank rate to farmers is now 7%. The large companies, who permit charge accounts, used to add 1% a month to the account; they now add 1 1/2%.

The Federal Reserve was very anxious for a six billion dollar raise in taxes. This helps but it will not pay the additional interest that the government will have to pay on its 356 billion dollar debt. This interest on the government debt must also be paid by the American public and adds to inflation

Then in April 1968 the Federal Reserve Board gave permission to banks to pay 6 1/4% for deposits of a hundred thousand or more if left six months. It is the old story of the rich get richer and the

Minden City Lions plan Home-coming

The Minden City Lions Club sponsored Home-coming promises to be a gala affair, Fred Spaetzle, chairman, said this week as he reviewed events slated for the three-day event, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Highlights include a kiddies' parade Friday afternoon followed by games and carnival rides. Saturday's feature event will be a fire department water battle.

Live steam show planned at Caro

The 13th annual Saginaw Valley Live Steam Show will be held at the Fairgrounds in Caro, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Featured will be two engine parades daily and 12 large engines are expected to be in the procession.

Various races, grain threshing, straw baling, tug-o-war and other events will highlight the three days, authorities said.

poor get poorer.

In February 1967, the Fed. reduced reserve requirements of member banks from 4 to 3%, thereby reducing required reserves about $50 million. This in itself added to inflation. Had they raised the reserve requirement, instead of lowering it, they would have tied up $50 million, made the banks more liquid and drastically curtailed inflation by restricting loans by banks.

Hence my conclusions are that the policies of the Federal Reserve:

1. Have added greatly to

Kennedy report

Hi Folks,

Well it's me again, I'm still here trying to get better. I hope you missed me, I really was too sick to miss anyone, but I'm out of solitary confinement, I mean intensive care. So all of you can come see me. I'm sure behind on all of the news. I don't know who is going with who, or who got potted up at Caseville. "Tsk tsk" as the old folks say.

Once again I can watch TV, just in time for the political convention (blah). Mom and Dad put my TV fund to good use and got me a brand new portable. It's real nice except all the electrical equipment in my room makes a lot of static. First I have a circle electric bed, it consists of a bed set inside of two - six foot circles, with this I can sit, stand, turn 180 degrees and lay on my stomach, or tip my head lower than my feet. Then I have oxygen equipment, vaporizers, fans and all sorts of lights. If the power goes out I'm out of business.

If any of you ladies really want to go on a diet try IV's for three weeks. I'm getting so hungry even the cafeteria food would taste good to me.

Everything I do now hurts to move but I can move a little more each day. I think soon I'll be able to shove the ice bags out of the bed faster than the nurses can put them back.

I've got to get better soon as I owe all of you so much for the cards, letters and gifts. Dad told me the Severance family came over and baled all of our hay so next year, Art and Les, I'll be over to help you.

Come see me,

Ken Kennedy

inflation by raising the cost of living to all borrowers;

2. Have cost the government billions in added interest to be paid on the government debt;
3. Have reduced the value of government bonds over 500 million dollars which loss has been partly sustained by the banks and must be made up by charging higher interest on loans;

4. Have raised the interest which communities have to pay on their municipal bonds about 50% - which interest in turn must be paid by the public;
5. Have caused a decrease in liquidity in banks to an alarming extent;
6. Have greatly increased savings deposits in the larger banks with decreasing reserves;
7. Have caused banks to reach for higher profits with attending risks;

Is there any solution? It seems to me there is:

1. Reduce the permissible interest gradually;
2. Require banks to carry larger reserves thereby curtailing lending;
3. Let the big banks that want foreign funds pay higher interest for foreign money.

The Federal Reserve pretends that it wants to stop inflation, but, so far their every move has tended to increase it.

IT'S WILD - this lettuce growing in the garden of John Bohnsack, 88, Main Street, Cass City, is not only a wild plant, but this year is growing "wild". Tuesday morning it stretched three feet tall. Never saw anything like it, genial John said, and all I've ever done with it since it first started growing in 1942 is pick it when it was ready. Never out of lettuce around here, John boasted with a grin.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE GRADUATING CLASS OF 1968!

You have just completed one of the most important steps in your life. But, where do you go from here? There are a number of avenues open to you. You could get a "routine" job, join the service, enter college...OR...enter a specialized field through technical training. Two of the most lucrative specialized fields open to ambitious young men and women today that offer a good income, opportunity for advancement and a secure future are Drafting and Electronics.

Right now, I would like briefly to discuss each of these avenues.

WORK

To want to earn your own living and stand on your own two feet is a good indication of a mature outlook. But, I urge you, don't let an unskilled job keep you from the possibility of a real future. It is easy to fall into the routine of the unskilled worker. Ask yourself this, "How well do I want to provide for a wife and family?" Let me tell you that you have an opportunity to do something NOW that will assure you a secure future before marriage and before you start that family!

SERVICE

To want to do your part and to serve your country is commendable. But the Armed Forces need more than just men to carry guns. They need technicians - skilled young men in all kinds of specialized fields. You can prepare now for a good position in the service - one in which you can serve your country better as well as better yourself!

COLLEGE

This is a fine way that you can prepare (in four to eight years) for a career in law, medicine, journalism, teaching, engineering or many, many others. But you must have a goal! If you do...and if you know where you are going and what you are going to be, then this is the place for you.

SPECIALIZED FIELDS

A technical institute offers an education with a built-in goal! There are no unassociated subjects. A technical institute, such as UTI, offers you a short, fast route to security and good pay with excellent advancement opportunities. In one year of comprehensive and intensive training you are prepared and qualified to step into the booming, wide-open fields of drafting or electronics. If you like to work with your mind as well as your hands...if you want to stand on your own two feet...then you owe it to yourself to see if you have aptitude worth developing for one of these exciting fields.

For more information about the opportunities waiting for you as an Electronics Technician or Draftsman, write for your free copy of "Electronics - Career with a Future" or "Drafting - Your Doorway to Opportunity." Simply fill out the coupon below and return it to me. I'll see that your copy is rushed to you by return mail. No obligation, of course!

Lt. Gov. calls for modern law enforcement

POLICE ROLE CHANGING

Amid the turmoil of violence and lawlessness across America the policeman must recognize his new role as peace officer and new demands of the profession, Lt. Gov. William Milliken told the Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police.

There were two distinct trends in criminal law during the last 40 years, strengthen the rights of the individual, and restrict the powers of the police, Milliken believes the changes are desirable, but that policemen often encounter difficulty because the law is confused and uncertain, it does not clearly define the powers which the officer can exercise, he says. This uncertainty discourages and demoralizes officers.

Better laws, well-trained officers, and more concerned

bee problems

By Alfred Ballweg

Bees and other stinging insects that nest in or around the home can become a nuisance and should be removed.

Even though bees are very beneficial, they may become a menace to people working or children playing near the bees' nests. In addition, nests in the walls of homes may ooze honey in warm weather and stain the walls.

Dr. E. C. Martin, Michigan State University entomologist, offers the following "painless" suggestions for getting rid of bees and other stinging insects:

1) If you can open up the building or tree, a beekeeper can remove the colony alive.

2) If you can expose the colony, but cannot hire a beekeeper to remove it, destroy it with an insecticide and bury the contaminated material.

Protect yourself from being stung by using a beekeeper's veil, smoker and leather gloves.

3) When the nest is concealed and it is impractical to open the area around it, an exterminator may be called. If you decide to destroy the colony yourself, remember that the nest is often some distance from the flight hole, and insecticides generally will not reach the nest when sprayed into this hole. Locate the nest by tapping on the outside or inside wall with a hammer and then listening for an answering buzz. Once the nest is located, bore a hole through the wall (preferably from the outside) so that a spray or dust may be directed onto the nest.

When using insecticides, Martin warns that cyanogas or fire extinguisher bombs of carbon tetrachloride can be quite effective, but they are both very dangerous and should never be used in an occupied building except by a professional exterminator.

Ordinary household sprays are usually not effective, says Martin. But several commercial companies now put out special aerosol sprays specifically designed for bees, wasps and hornets. He says lindane or chlordane dust blown or shaken directly on the nest can be very effective. These are poisonous chemicals and should be handled with care.

Another technique that works in some situations is to put lindane or chlordane dust in a brown paper sack and in the evening tack the open edge of the sack around the bee's entrance. The colony will gradually be destroyed as the bees carry poison dust back to the nest on the hairs of their bodies.

citizens are essential if society is to survive the stress of present conditions, Milliken said.

Much uncertainty of the laws in Michigan can be removed by legislation, principally through updating criminal codes. A revised code may be ready by the next legislative session, he said. The current session included passage of legislation designed to strengthen existing laws and assure equal justice.

State Police estimate that 50 percent of the seven major felonies in Michigan, including murder, are committed by children 10 to 16 years of age. These youths represent only 15 percent of the population. The new role of the police officer requires a program of prevention so that young people view the officer as protector and friend rather than persecutor and enemy, Milliken concluded.

BILLION DOLLAR SHORTAGE

Retirement funds for state employees and schoolteachers will cost Michigan taxpayers a billion dollars or more in the next 20 years, according to Rep. James H. Heinze, R-Battle Creek. Heinze, who is considered an expert on the subject by his colleagues, points out that the huge amount is in addition to large sums the state is already setting aside each year.

This year $178 million was earmarked for retirement benefits and social security payments for current service of public employees. This is nearly double the cost three years ago.

The situation results from the 1963 constitution which specifies that after Jan. 1, 1964, the Legislature must set aside each year all the money needed to pay retirement benefits earned by state employees, including teachers, that year.

A shortage in funds will develop in about 18 months, says Rep. Heinze. At that time, the state will have depleted its reserve fund to pay those who retired prior to 1964. Taxpayers will then have to provide revenue for those already retired, as well as for the retirement fund specified by the new constitution.

In other words, the state got itself into a financial hole by shortchanging the retirement fund prior to 1964 by failing to set aside funds to finance the plan in effect. It must now make up this lack of financial responsibility by using current revenue to support those who have already retired and to build a fund for those who will retire.

Estimates of the amount needed to provide full pension payments for those who retired prior to 1964 were set at $1.2 billion by a special Legislative committee earlier this year.

The committee also noted that after the next seven or eight years the problem will diminish as the number of retirees remaining on the pension rolls for pre-1964 service gradually declines.

Rep. Heinze suggests actions can be taken to help relieve the immediate problem: more flexible investment of retirement funds to increase their earning power for the state; closer tie-in of the state pension plans with federal social security; a long-term borrowing arrangement to help overcome the immediate shortage without plunging the state into another financial crisis in the years immediately ahead.

DeHart to speak at Rotary fete

An entertaining and informative speaker has been signed to speak at the annual Cass City Rotary meeting Tuesday, telling Rotary Ann's of the club.

Speaking will be "Tiny" DeHart, former superintendent of schools, who now works with Purdue University presenting educational TV.

The courses are relayed to subscribing schools through an airplane relay system, Tom Proctor, chairman, told Rotarians Tuesday when releasing details of the meeting.

The event is slated to start at 6:30 p.m. at Sherwood Forest Country Club in Gagetown.

Besides their honey-making activities, bees are busy pollinating $80 to $100 million worth of Michigan fruit, vegetable and seed crops each year, say Michigan State University entomologists.

One For The Road
Summertime
Santa Claus

By Dan Marlowe

Christmas in July? Certainly, if you're a member of the Harbor Beach Resort Association.

Manager John Chapman, who staged the memorable Fiji Island Fiesta last year, overheard a member lamenting that resort families were never able to celebrate Christmas together. Since the 1890's three and four generations of some families had been spending summers in Harbor Beach, but each Christmas found them separated by many miles.

Fortwith John Chapman to the rescue.

Enlisting his sturdy crew of waitresses, counselors, and whatever other help he could dragon, a mammoth snowman was constructed. The snowman had a 10-foot-high board-and-chicken-wire frame which was stuffed with 2000 white paper napkins. After the snowman was placed on the clubhouse lawn, the interior of the building was festooned with decorated Christmas trees, holly boughs, wreaths, and other gaily colored artifacts of the season.

Santa Claus toured the resort fittingly attired in red stocking cap, white whiskers, red jacket, and red shorts. Since Santa's reindeer couldn't be summoned from their North Pole pastures upon short notice, his motive power was supplied by more prosaic mechanical horsepower.

The den in the clubhouse was set aside for the children. Games were played and sandwiches and punch were consumed in quantities. The gathering then adjourned to the lounge where good old Santa Claus passed out a present to each child amidst the gayest of Christmas decorations.

Members and guests came to the Christmas buffet dinner in seasonal attire. There were prizes for the most Christmas costumes. Fortunately the weather cooperated, subsiding into the pleasantly low 70's after the early-in-the-week steaming 90's.

The menu would have been appropriate in any home on December 25th. Roast turkey, ham in wine sauce, Hubbard squash, molded jello salads in the form of Xmas trees and Santa Clauses, home made plum pudding with hot brandy sauce... 'twas a Christmas dinner fit for good old St. Nick himself.

Carols were sung afterward, some straight and some parodied. A jolly good time was had by all with only a single negative factor. Some parents were a bit apprehensive that never again were they going to be able to convince their little ones that Santa Claus came only once a year.

After all, hadn't they seen the best of evidence to the contrary with their own ecstatic eyes?

Suddenly A race in Church League

PLAY-OFFS

And suddenly there is a race in the Cass City Church League.

Grant-Fraser, which looked impressive in the first nine games, nosedived with a pair of losses and the surging Catholics took advantage of the lapse to move a half game behind the league leaders and all even in the important loss column.

Now a tie for the championship is highly probable and a championship game will be played Thursday, Aug. 8, at 8 p.m. if the teams are deadlocked.

The skid for Grant began against Shabbona Tuesday, July 30. The league leaders were swamped, 13-2, and were never in the game after the first inning. Shabbona scored five times in the first. Les Severance slammed home runs for the winners. Severance got the win and Gary Mellendorf was charged with the loss.

The first game of the evening was forfeited to Decker when the Cass City Methodists failed to field a team.

The race really tightened Friday, Aug. 2, when Deford, a league also ran, shut out Grant-Fraser behind Ron Nichols. Mellendorf took his second loss of the week.

Meanwhile plans for the post-season play-offs were formulated.

Monday at 7 p.m. Shabbona faces Grant-Fraser and Catholics face United Missionary. In the nightcap, the Catholics stayed in the running with a 4-3 decision over the United Missionary men. Dave Bliss slammed a two-run homer to win the game. Phil Gray helped by driving in the other two runs. Al Zawilinski was the winning pitcher.

In the other night of softball action, July 29, Decker easily romped over United Missionary, 16-3, and Shabbona edged Deford, 8-7.

Lee Hirsch was the winner for Decker and Rinerd Schember took the loss.

Les Severance tossed the winning game for Shabbona and Nichols was the loser. Both teams scored single counters in the first.

Deford moved far in front in the second with a six-run splurge. Shabbona countered with three in their half of the second and four more in the third for the victory.

Bernie Babich clouted a three run homer and Art and Les Severance each collected three hits in four tries.

stationary at 9 p.m. Tuesday at 8 p.m. Decker plays the Methodists. Friday at 7 the Monday winners play and at 9 the Tuesday winners will pair off. Saturday at 8 p.m. the championship game is carded.

Erla's still champions in Uby League

Erla Foods won the league championship with a 9-0 victory over Carlings of Bad Axe and defeated Uby Motors, 3-1, in a playoff game to sew things up in Uby Recreation League softball play. Erla's then took on the T-Birds from Saginaw in an exhibition game and won, 1-0, on a no-hitter by Al Bosch.

Bosch struck out 11 Carlings hitters in the championship game. He also picked up a double and a single to aid his cause. LaRoache had two singles for the winners.

In the playoff victory, Elwyn Helwig struck out six and allowed Uby Motors just a single in the second inning in a strong pitching performance. Dean Hoag was the big hitter for Erla's, with a single and a double.

A scratch single by Helwig and a double by Jerry Hillaker in the final inning gave Bosch his no-hit exhibition victory over Saginaw T-Birds. Bosch fanned 15 enemy batters in the seven-inning pitchers' duel. Helwig had a single in the fourth and was the only player in the game with more than one hit.

Erla's will play Kentucky Colonels Friday in the first game of a double-elimination Class C district tournament. The game will be played at 8:30 p.m. in Port Huron.

The two teams will play again at 8:30 Saturday night, and a third game, if necessary, will be played Sunday at 7:30 p.m. Winner of the best-of-three series will advance to the regional tourney at Owosso.

Doctor Can Halt Killer That Creeps

Is your blood pressure going up?

It could be creeping up quietly, without your being aware of it, unless you have had it checked recently by a physician.

This is definitely not a case of "what you don't know won't hurt you," the Michigan Heart Association warns. Not only can hypertension which blood pressure do serious damage to blood vessels, heart and kidneys; it also considerably increases your risk of having a heart attack.

A scant 15 years ago, physicians could do relatively little to modify the course of hypertension. Since that time modern medicine has achieved one of its most dramatic successes, between 1950 and 1962, the death rate from hypertension dropped 52 percent among American men and women aged 45 to 64.

This was accomplished with potent new drugs which singly, or in various combinations, can bring down high blood pressure and keep it down. The earlier the disease is detected and treated, the better these medicines work.

Meanwhile, researchers on the 5,000 persons in the 15-year Framingham (Mass.) population study learned that, in each age group, those with blood pressure even slightly above normal were running significantly higher risks of heart attacks.

After 10 years those with sharply higher pressures had an incidence of coronary diseases four times that of subjects with normal blood pressure. And when high blood pressure was found in combination with overweight or high blood cholesterol or smoking, the risk was multiplied enormously.

These findings of the Framingham study, confirmed by research at Tufts Medical Center, have urgent significance for the estimated 7 million Americans with hypertension but as yet no heart disease, on 10 million persons, heart disease linked to high blood pressure has already appeared.

Because high blood pressure often has warning symptoms, regular physical examinations to bring it to light are very important, says the Michigan Heart Association, a Michigan United Fund agency.

In some cases, the doctor may discover a specific cause, which often can be corrected. The majority of cases, however, are "essential," meaning no specific cause can be found.

Passing Through
Nothing's sure for my buddy
BY LARRY WERNER

It's ugly what war does to people.

I was at a wedding two weeks ago, playing the old "long-time-no-see" game with school friends who seemed like much better friends now than they ever did when we were going to school. I suppose good friends, like good wine, improve with the years, at least temporarily.

There is something about going back and hashing out the old times which is so enjoyable at the time but so sad later because, as someone once said, "You can never go home again."

You can never go home because home and the people at home change, and this is why old friends prefer to talk about the old times and not the intervening times, which are so different from the "good old days."

I was having a drink with one of these old friends with whom I had spilt blood my way through grade school, and since there is just so much of the elementary school routine you can remember, we took the fatal step and began talking about those cruel intervening years, and this is where the war comes in.

He was always "Happy-go-lucky Bob" or "Fatso." I hardly recognized him; he was so slim. And when he began talking he seemed anything but happy. Since the time Bob and I had plotted our last great "tack-on-the-teacher's-chair" conspiracy, reality bared its ugly head in the form of a war in Southeast Asia.

Bob had dropped out of college to join the Army and fight the war for "One nation, under God." The Army trimmed him of excess pounds and sent him to Viet Nam, where he worked as a supply officer and lost faith in his nation and his God.

Happy-go-lucky-Bob is a bitter young man now. He sees little reason for 500,000 Americans to be fighting in Asia. He knows, from first-hand experience, that the typical Vietnamese farmer is simply sick of war and bombs, and that this farmer hates the American GI as much as he hates the pajama-clad Viet Cong. Perhaps he hates the American more, because the sniper in pajamas may be his son.

"If they only wanted us there," Bob says.

And "Bitter Bob" knows that the typical South Vietnamese official is as corrupt as the swamp is wet, and he knows that these corrupt South Vietnamese officials, who imprison people for talking about peace, are the ones who want us in Viet Nam.

And knowing all of these things has caused Bob to wonder about the meaning of it all and the cause of it all and whether there is a cause of all things. For the time being, at least, Bob sees no cause.

The once-beaming, chubby face of Happy-go-lucky-Bob did not beam at that wedding. Facial features on my old buddy were not rounded but stern and angular, and the closest his thin lips came to a smile was a cynical grin when someone would say something about "containing Communism" or "patriotism" or "God."

Bob had served his time and was honorably discharged. He couldn't find a job, and he pathetically displayed all of the money he had --- 15 cents, which he thought were only six cents, but the penny he felt clicking against the nickel in his pocket turned out to be a dime. "Gee, if I knew I had that much, I would have gotten a date," he joked, still not smiling.

He supposed he would go back to school and finish the college education he began in happier days. He supposed he would find a girl and get married some day. He supposed the bride looked pretty and the ham was good.

The lack of certainty obvious in everything he said indicated that somewhere between the eighth grade graduation party and his 13th month in Viet Nam he had lost all of the absolutes he had ever clung to.

The sad, cynical veteran of a war he didn't believe in stood alone near the bar at the wedding where I played the old long-time-no-see game. I wondered if there was anything in life that Happy-go-lucky-Bob still enjoyed.

If there was something, it was the beer. He must have liked the beer; he drank so much of it.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Zeke Grubb's preacher come by the country store Saturday night but said he couldn't stay but a few minutes. He was rounding up some groceries on account of his old lady was late getting home from the auction sale. The good Parson said his wife had to go to them household auctions on account of it was the only way she could tell if their furniture was junk or antiks.

After the Parson had left, the fellers got to talking about them auctions and how they was getting more popular ever day. Clem Webster was of the opinion wimmen go because they think everthing that was old and don't belong to them was valuable.

But Zeke had some ideas on the subject. He said the world was changing so fast that we got to have antik auctions so we can sell some of the stuff that goes out of style afore it's ever sold the first time. He said he knowed of this feller that runs a furniture store in one town and a antik shop in another town, and he gits all his antiks that way.

Zeke reported he was in the preacher's house one day recent and saw this horse collar being used fer a mirror frame in the hall. It seems the preacher's old lady bought the collar at a auction and couldn't figger what else to do with it. Zeke said the Parson told him his old lady has got a room full of everthing from quilting frames to a matched pair of snuffboxes, and it was just the other day she announced what she aimed to do with all of it. She was planning a auction sale of her own. Zeke said she was a member of the garden club and the wimmen was always fixing up these flower arrangements fer shows. Nowadays, wimmen don't use a pot or a jar fer arrangements. They got to give their flowers what they calls "character." A bunch of flowers sticking out of a coffee grinder took first place at the last show, Zeke said.

All the fellers was agreed this was real "character" and Ed Doolittle was of the opinion this antik business was a way of trying to hold on to the past. The future, he claimed, was coming at us so fast that the hurrier everybody goes the better they git, was Ed's words. Afore we git used to doing things one way, he said, they was three more inventions to do it faster.

Personal, Mister Editor, I was agreed with Ed in this matter. I was reading the other day about the printing business and this column writer said printing equipment that ain't been invented yet will be antik in 20 years. I'm already antik and ready fer auction and I wouldn't be surprised none if my cow pasture this year didn't turn out to be a shopping center next year.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Around The Farm
May be best to purchase corn

By Don Keblor

For two or three years now I have been encouraging certain dairy operators to purchase their grain corn instead of raising it.

This practice would be advantageous to all operations and certain factors need to be weighed before moving into this new direction. Here is an example of a dairy operation which could take advantage of not raising its corn for grain.

Two men are involved full-time in managing and milking a 60-cow herd and farming over three hundred acres of land. Actually this is more than a two-man full-time operation.

The crop yield averages are three to three and one-half tons of hay per acre, seventy to seventy-five bushels of corn, seventy bushels of oats and twelve to fourteen tons of corn silage.

Economically if these crops were sold for cash this operation would be running in the red. However, because they are marketing this feed and forage as milk and flesh they are selling their crops at a profit.

This dairy operation has several possibilities to increase their returns. They are: (1) Reduce their labor requirements and increase their milk production. (2) Maintain their labor requirements and increase their herd size and production. (3) Try to increase their labor supply, their herd size and crop program. (4) Increase their labor supply, herd size and production, and reduce their crop program.

The easiest way to move would be to reduce their crop program and spend this time increasing their management efficiency and the milk production per cow. If they then found time the herd size could be increased.

Basically we can say it takes 10 productive man days of work per year per mature cow and two days per young stock. Corn production requires one day per acre and small grain six-tenth days per acre. Therefore the time required to produce and harvest 12 acres of corn could be used to handle one cow and her replacement.

This operation plans to contract with a corn grower to purchase high moisture and dry corn, and the decision was made after weighing the cash rented land costs, labor savings and the fact it has dairy facilities nearly sufficient for a hundred-cow herd.

If this program works to their advantage these two operators will be able to devote more management time for their herd and their total business operation. They are even thinking about not producing oats. Instead, they will purchase oats and make their alfalfa seedlings with their wheat and/or spring band seed on their previous year's corn silage ground. They will be concentrating on producing all the alfalfa for silage and corn silage necessary on their owned land. Their crop machinery needs and maintenance will be less, and they plan to hire their small grain combining.

It is my belief that in the not too distant future we will see dairy operations where practically all the feed and forage will be purchased and the operator will spend his working day milking and managing his dairy herd. There is presently one operator in this county who crops 40 acres of land and milks about a 40-cow herd.

Drowning

It's tragic to think of how many people are rescued from drowning — and then nobody knows how to provide artificial respiration. Mouth-to-mouth resuscitation is easy to learn, and should be practiced from time to time.

You can begin this as soon as the drowning victim is pulled into the boat, or on to shore. First, place him halfway between a face-up and a side position. Then lift his neck with one hand and, holding the top of his head with your other hand, tilt his head back. Pull his chin up with the hand that was lifting the neck, so the tongue doesn't fall back to block the air passage.

Take a deep breath, and place your mouth over the victim's nose or mouth, making a leakproof seal by holding his lips closed with your thumb, or pinching the nostrils closed. In mouth-to-mouth breathing, be sure your lips don't seal the victim's nostrils.

Blow your breath into the victim's mouth or nose until you see the chest rise. Then remove your mouth and let him exhale while you take another deep breath. As soon as you hear him breathe out, replace your mouth over his and repeat the procedure. Repeat 15 times per minute.

The same technique can be used for victims of suffocation by plastic bag, electric shock, convulsion and choking on a foreign body. It's well worth learning.

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

The village of Cass City has purchased some five acres of land within the village limits from Mrs. Frank Morris. The village reportedly paid $5,000 for the land, which will be used for the new water tower to be erected as part of the new $150,000 water system.

Cass City lost one of its native sons when Andrew N. Bigelow died at Hills and Dales General Hospital. His death marked the end of a struggle with an incurable disease. He was forced to sell his hardware store which has been a village landmark since 1888.

After three months without a regular pastor, Dr. Marion Stewart Hostetler, 61, pastor of the Kinde and Chandler parishes in Huron county, was named pastor of the Presbyterian church. He earned his AP degree from Cedarville College in Ohio and was awarded a Doctorate from Hartford Seminary Foundation. He also studied for a year at Cambridge University in England.

TEN YEARS AGO

In the primary elections, William Tomlinson defeated George Baird and A. M. Wallace for county sheriff, and James Epskamp defeated Douglas L. Williams for prosecuting attorney. Voting in the primaries was the lowest it has been in years. Less than 4,000 of the 17,903 voters turned out at the polls.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bush, formerly of Inlay City, decided to open Bush's Drive-In Restaurant in Cass City because they were "impressed with the community and had many requests to move to Cass City." The restaurant will be located in the building on West Main Street which formerly housed D. A. Krug's appliance store.
