Board okay, too

School yea; taxes nay say readers in survey

Following the announcement that, due to rising costs, the Cass City school system will finish approximately $24,000 in the red, a cross-section of area taxpayers told The Chronicle that:

(1) A new method must be found to finance education.

(2) Teachers' salaries in the district are "about right."

(3) Salaries of school personnel and other financial matters, though they involve taxpayers' money, can be handled best in "executive" or closed sessions.

On Monday, Sept. 9, the Cass City school board climaxed months of negotiations over teachers' salaries with an announcement of the expected deficit and the first public notice of raises for supervisory personnel. The raises, which averaged approximately 10 per cent, were determined in closed sessions.

With the possibility of fiscal difficulties looming in the near future for district taxpayers, The Chronicle solicited answers to the following questions:

(1) With the present tax rates and the present tax system, the school system is running into the red. Is there a better method of financing education than through property taxes?

(2) Teachers' salaries range from a low of $6,500 a year to a ceiling of $9,200. Supervisory personnel in the district make from $8,900 to $16,800. Are salaries for school personnel generally about right, too high or too low?

(3) The salaries for supervisory personnel in the Cass City school system were determined in "executive" or closed sessions by the school board. Should these matters be settled in closed sessions by school board members, who are duly elected representatives of the taxpayers, or in open meetings, since these matters involve taxpayers' money?

Everyone contacted insisted that there must be a different method of collecting school-support taxes than by taxing property.

"There must be a different type of taxation," said Lloyd Bryant, owner of The Gamble Store. "Right now the property owner is the only one paying the taxes. I have given this a lot of thought, but I haven't come up with an answer."

Mrs. Alan Rogers, a farm wife, said that the farmer is carrying an unfair portion of the school system's burden.

"Farmers pay very high taxes as it is," she said. "People in the city just have that house, but we have all this land. What irks me is people who rent."

Property owners complained that those who rent are allowed to vote higher property taxes, but they are not required to pay those taxes.

A possible solution to the dilemma, some said, is income tax.

"They are talking about an income tax," Kenneth Maharg, a farmer and former school board member, said. "That way everyone would share in paying the way. You can only stand so much property tax."

Ferris Ware, of Western Auto, said there is no satisfactory answer to the school-support problem.

"Perhaps charging tuition is a possibility," he said. "But I'm not saying that this is the answer."

Area taxpayers, generally, do not feel that pay for school personnel is too high or too low. Ware's comment was typical.

"I think they are fair for this area," he said. "This would follow pretty much the pay structure for factories."

Only one person interviewed felt the teachers are overpaid. Pat Doyen, a factory worker, called teachers' salaries "elaborate."

"We put in a full year," he said. "But teachers put in nine months. I realize they have to spend a lot for education, but they are making a lot for the time they put in."

Mrs. Rogers disagreed. "I wouldn't say the salaries are too high," she said. "A lot of money goes into education, and they don't make any more than someone who doesn't have the education."

More than one taxpayer pointed out that living is cheaper in the Cass City area than in other areas. But, as Maharg said, Cass City must compete with these other areas for teachers.

"You've got to meet the competition," he said. "You've got to pay to get anyone. You just have to pay what the others are paying."

Despite costly equipment

Everyone has a pastime. Some are just noisier than others.

Those in Cass City who prefer the quiet life and quiet pastimes might do well to invest in a set of ear plugs, because organizing a rock band seems to be the "thing" in the village.

There are two kinds of bands currently driving parents and neighbors out of their peaceful neighborhoods. There are the "old pros" and the "rookies."

Those who do not appreciate the aesthetic values of hard rock music probably do not draw a distinction before writing them all off as nuisances. But the bands which have been around for a while are quick to disassociate themselves from the "young kids," and the "kids" will try to use their inexperience to their advantage by telling you about their "new sound."

The old pros include a group called "The Soundz" and another known as the "Straywalkers." Two of the rookie groups are "The 4th Stone from the Sun" and "The Institute of Domestic Harmony."

Don't relax, friends and neighbors, there are more. But spokesmen from these four groups should suffice to fill in the "out-group" on the "in sound."

There is one basic difference between the old pros and the rookies: the pros know that being in a band is expensive and those just breaking in think it will be.

"We have $2,000 worth of equipment," said George Turner, 17. "And we have to buy

The question of whether a school system's financial decisions should be made in open or closed sessions is a classic controversy. It has been debated in many school districts, sometimes bitterly.

Huron county vote pushes DeGrow towards Senate

Alvin J. DeGrow of Pigeon won a smashing victory Tuesday in his first try for a major political post when he swept by 10 other candidates to win the Republican nomination for State Senator from the 28th district.

An unofficial total of over 20,000 voters trudged to the polls including a heavy vote from Huron County.

For vote totals by county for each candidate see page 8.

The 4,594 Huron voters pushed DeGrow to victory. He piled up an astounding 82 1/2 per cent of all ballots cast.

Over the entire district he posted a resounding margin of 5,413 votes. His Huron county total of 3,791 votes was strong enough for victory without any help from the other counties in the district. Second place Richard D. Sommerville totaled 3,398 votes.

Although St. Clair County turned out over 10,000 votes in the GOP primary, they were well split among the eight candidates from the county.

In addition to his tremendous vote in Huron county, DeGrow also did well in Tuscola and Sanilac counties.

He was especially strong in Elkland, Novesta and Elmwood townships where a strong campaign was waged in his behalf. DeGrow's entry into the race probably hurt the chances of Tuscola County's Alton Reavey. Reavey was strong in his home county and led the ticket. His chances were hurt by a light vote. Tuscola had the least voters of any county. Only 2,422 were at the polls.

DeGrow's strength in the eastern edge of the county is apparent in area township totals:

Jim Rutman, MSU's biggest booster, entertained "Duffy" Daugherty, Clarence "Biggie" Munn and the MSU football coaching staff last Wednesday at Sherwood Forest Country Club. It was a birthday party for Daugherty. When this crew gets up to sing happy birthday it makes reporters feel like a Lilliputian in Brobdingnag.

Richard Nixon says that there is a destiny for running for political office. The combination of circumstances must be just right and you must be ready to act when it comes, to be successful, Nixon said over and over during pre-convention speeches.

Al DeGrow of Pigeon, successful candidate for the Republican nomination for State Senator, surely must subscribe to this theory today.

DeGrow says that he has always had a hazy idea of running for office sometime in the future... but he realized two and half weeks ago that there might never be another chance like the present.

He was ready. He jumped into the campaign with both feet and with strong support from friends and boosters swept to a convincing victory against long odds.

Pioneer business

Frutchey sold to Michigan Bean

One of Cass City's oldest firms, Frutchey Bean Co., of Cass City, has been sold to the Wickes Corporation but local customers of the firm will notice little difference in the operation.

Frank Schott, manager, says that the new owners plan no change in operation or personnel.

We will go on as we have, Schott says, giving the best possible service to farmers.

The sale of Frutchey removes from the local scene a business pioneer.

Frutchey's came to Cass City in 1899. The village served as headquarters for several Thumb area plants until 1922 when the headquarters moved to Saginaw.

Rapid expansion followed and the company operated at 24 locations throughout the state.

The sale announced last week included seven plants. Besides Cass City, plants at Shepherd, Linwood, Kawkawlin, Vassar, Lennon and Bay City were sold.

Robert C. Dodge, vice-president of Wickes Agricultural Operations, noted that the sale to Michigan Bean Division of Wickes will supplement the various locations presently served by Michigan Bean.

Don't knock it—rock is here to stay

$2,000 more."

George is with the Straywalkers, a band which has been "on the circuit" for almost two years.

"It can be expensive," Bill Pierce, 16, said. "Good equipment can cost $500."

Bill is 16. His band, The 4th Stone from the Sun, has been together for almost six months, and he has just begun laying out the green stuff for his expensive hobby.

Expense is one problem in organizing a band. Another important consideration is finding a place to practice. Bands are basically noisy, both the old pros and the rookies. Cass City is basically quiet.

"Practice sometimes created problems with the neighbors," said Handy Aleksink, 18. Aleksink's band, The Soundz, has temporarily disbanded but plans to regroup and begin making noise again.

"We practiced in an apartment upstairs," he said. "Mom and Dad would usually leave when we practiced."

Turner and his Straywalkers have solved the noise problem. One of the band members, Dave Skiles, 15, has just the place for practice.

"We practice at Dave's place --- in a barn," Turner said. "It has great acoustics."

Critics of rock music might think that a barn is just the right place for this type of music. But the rock 'n' roll bandmen don't seem to care what their critics think because, they think, rock music is here to stay.

"Everybody says this is just a passing fad --- that the big bands are going to come back," Turner said. "But they've been saying that for years."

And the rookie bands in the area think this way too. This, according to Pierce, is the reason for new bands like his.

"Right now there is a market for bands," Pierce said. "Kids like the music that is being put out now."

Aleksink and Turner agree with their younger counterparts that the music is popular, but they do not agree that there is a market for bands in Cass

City.

"There is no demand around here," Turner said. "There are a few high school dances, but around Flint, Bay City and Saginaw, there are clubs open for kids."

Aleksink agrees that Cass

City is not prime territory for marketing their musical product.

"It's hard to make it in town," Aleksink said. "My word to anyone trying to start a band is get out of town."

RACKY

Frightened, its wing broken, the bird was clinging to a rail when Tod found it. He brought it home, and "Racky" became its name.

Days passed and the bird mended quickly. "Racky's getting well," the six-year old informed me one day. "Will he fly away?" I nodded. "But I want him to stay here! I'll feed him, and let him sleep in his box-house, and take care of him—an' everything!"

"But he might want to be with his friends," I said. There was silence as the boy pondered the idea.

"All right," he finally said. "I'll let him go. But I bet he'd be happier here with me!"

We, too, would be happier if we knew where we belong in the complex pattern of life. God helps us discover ourselves and our place in His universe through His Church.

The child didn't know any better. Do you?

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By H. M. Bulen

Here's an oddity that shows that even when a team gets off to a bad start, it can still recover. . . Did you know that Texas A&M, which went to the Cotton Bowl last season, lost its first four games of the season and yet was still able to come back and earn a bowl bid? . . . They opened the season losing to SMU, Purdue, LSU and Florida State in order, and stood 0-4 for the year. . . But, then they won their last six, took the Southwest Conference championship and got the Cotton Bowl invitation. . . But who would have thought when their record was 0-4, that they'd win the conference title and play in the Cotton Bowl?

Did you know football fields were not always 100 yards long from goal line to goal line? . . . When football started the field was 140 yards. . . Then, they shortened it to 110 yards in 1880. . . The present rule making the football field 100 yards was not put into effect till 1912.

Here's an oddity from pro football. . . You'd think the home teams would win most often, because there's always been a feeling in sports that the home team has an advantage. . . But did you know that in the National Football League last season, the VISITING teams actually won the majority of times! . . . That's hard to believe, but it's true.

Face Frankenmuth Friday

Opening dismal; Hawks have hope

Don't judge Cass City's football season on the basis of just one game. Everyone knows that the Hawks lost their opening game of the season last Friday to Mt. Morris, 32-6, but the cold statistics don't tell the whole story.

The word from Mt. Morris is that the team there is one of the best in recent years and is expected to make a serious bid for the Big 9 Conference championship.

And the big nine includes teams like Flint Beecher, Davison and Owosso. . . now class B schools, but formerly large enough to play as "A" teams.

Cass City fans should get a better line on the 1969 Hawks when the team plays its first home game of the year against Frankenmuth Friday at Cass City Recreation Park.

Frankenmuth, fresh from a 13-0 victory over Michigan Lutheran in its non-conference opener, is rated one of the teams to beat in the Thumb B and how Cass City fares against the Eagles should be an indication of just how good the team may be.

In the first half at Mt. Morris, the worst fears of the pessimists were realized as Cass City looked B-A-D. But in the second half the complexion changed and the Hawks looked like a football team.

Coach John Bifoss said that he was pleased with the team's efforts in the second half. Our defense looked better, he claimed, and the rookie underclassmen received valuable game experience.

"We should be ready for league opener," Offensively, we need work on whom to block, he continued, but we showed a strong second effort at times throughout the game.

The Red Hawk awards for outstanding play went to Mick Miracle, best on defense; Gary Vollmar, best on offense, and Kim Hopper, best blocker.

FIRST HALF

In the first half, the Mt. Morris defense pulverized the Hawk offense and the winners sliced through the Cass City defense with reckless abandon.

Greg Carrier slammed 31 yards off tackle and the scoring parade started. Brad Leek capped a drive by going three yards on a quarterback keep to make it 14-0. The last two points were posted on a safety as Cass City's fullback was tackled in the end zone. Score at the end of one period: Mt. Morris 16, Cass City 0.

In the second period Carrier carried for his second touchdown of the game with a four-yard off-tackle slant and Rick Schanks, kicker deluxe, converted his third straight extra point.

When Cass City's quarterback was tackled in his own end zone later in the period while trying to pass, Mt. Morris picked up another two points and left the field at intermission on the long end of a 25-0 score.

BRIGHTER FOR HAWKS

Things looked about as dismal at this point as they could for Cass City. But in the last two periods, Cass City did an abrupt about-face.

Neither team scored in the third quarter and both clubs notched a touchdown in the final period. The only difference between the two clubs in the last half was an extra point kicked by Shanks.

Larry McClorey dashed 18 yards off tackle for the only Hawk score of the night.

With 10 seconds left in the game, Carrier plunged over from a yard out and Shanks booted successfully to make the final 32-6.

The Statistics:

	M.M.	C.C.
First downs	14	6

Letter to Editor

Teachers ratify; still unhappy

Dear Editor:

The members of the Cass City Education Association, which represents 65 professional teachers, ratified their master contract at their regular meeting late Tuesday afternoon. We wish to take this opportunity to thank those involved in any way in settling this agreement.

We have many dedicated teachers in our school system who realize that we cannot resolve age-old problems overnight. One such problem in our school this year is the overload in many classrooms. We must sometimes live with these problems until an honorable agreement can be reached. The agreement we have now ratified was drawn up after many hours of work and we feel it honorably settles some of these problems. However, we feel the greatest disappointment that those teachers who are dedicated and have given many years of service to this community do not receive maximum salaries as high as those in schools of our surrounding area.

Now, with negotiations terminated, we shall continue to unite with our Administration, our Board of Education, and our community to provide the most effective and best possible education for our children. The community could not effectively operate a school without a School Board. The Board could not effectively operate the school without Administrators. The Administrators could not effectively operate a school without the teachers. We, as teachers, could not operate effectively without the help and support of you, the community.

Okay school policy

But the taxpayers in the Cass City district seem to share the belief that board members are elected to do a job, and they can do it best behind closed doors.

"If they discussed these things in open meetings, they would never reach a settlement," said Charles Tuckey, who works in engineering at Walbro.

Tuckey's sentiments were echoed by Mrs. Rogers.

"If we select a group of people, we should put the responsibility in their hands," she said. "I feel sorry for the school board members; they have a tough job."

Some taxpayers felt the sessions should be closed until a settlement cannot be reached, but only Doyen disagreed completely with the concept of closed sessions for financial decision-making.

"I feel that it should be taken care of in open sessions," Doyen said. "If it involves the people's money, it should be kept out in the open."

Financing schools has been one of the chief weaknesses of the U.S. system. With the announcement of an expected deficit, it appears that the local school system might have to start facing up to the problem of running schools on less-than-adequate funds.

Though he feels that there may be a problem on the way, one taxpayer does not believe the school will finish in the red.

Said Tuckey: "I don't believe we will be operating in the red. I think we will just have to tighten our belts."

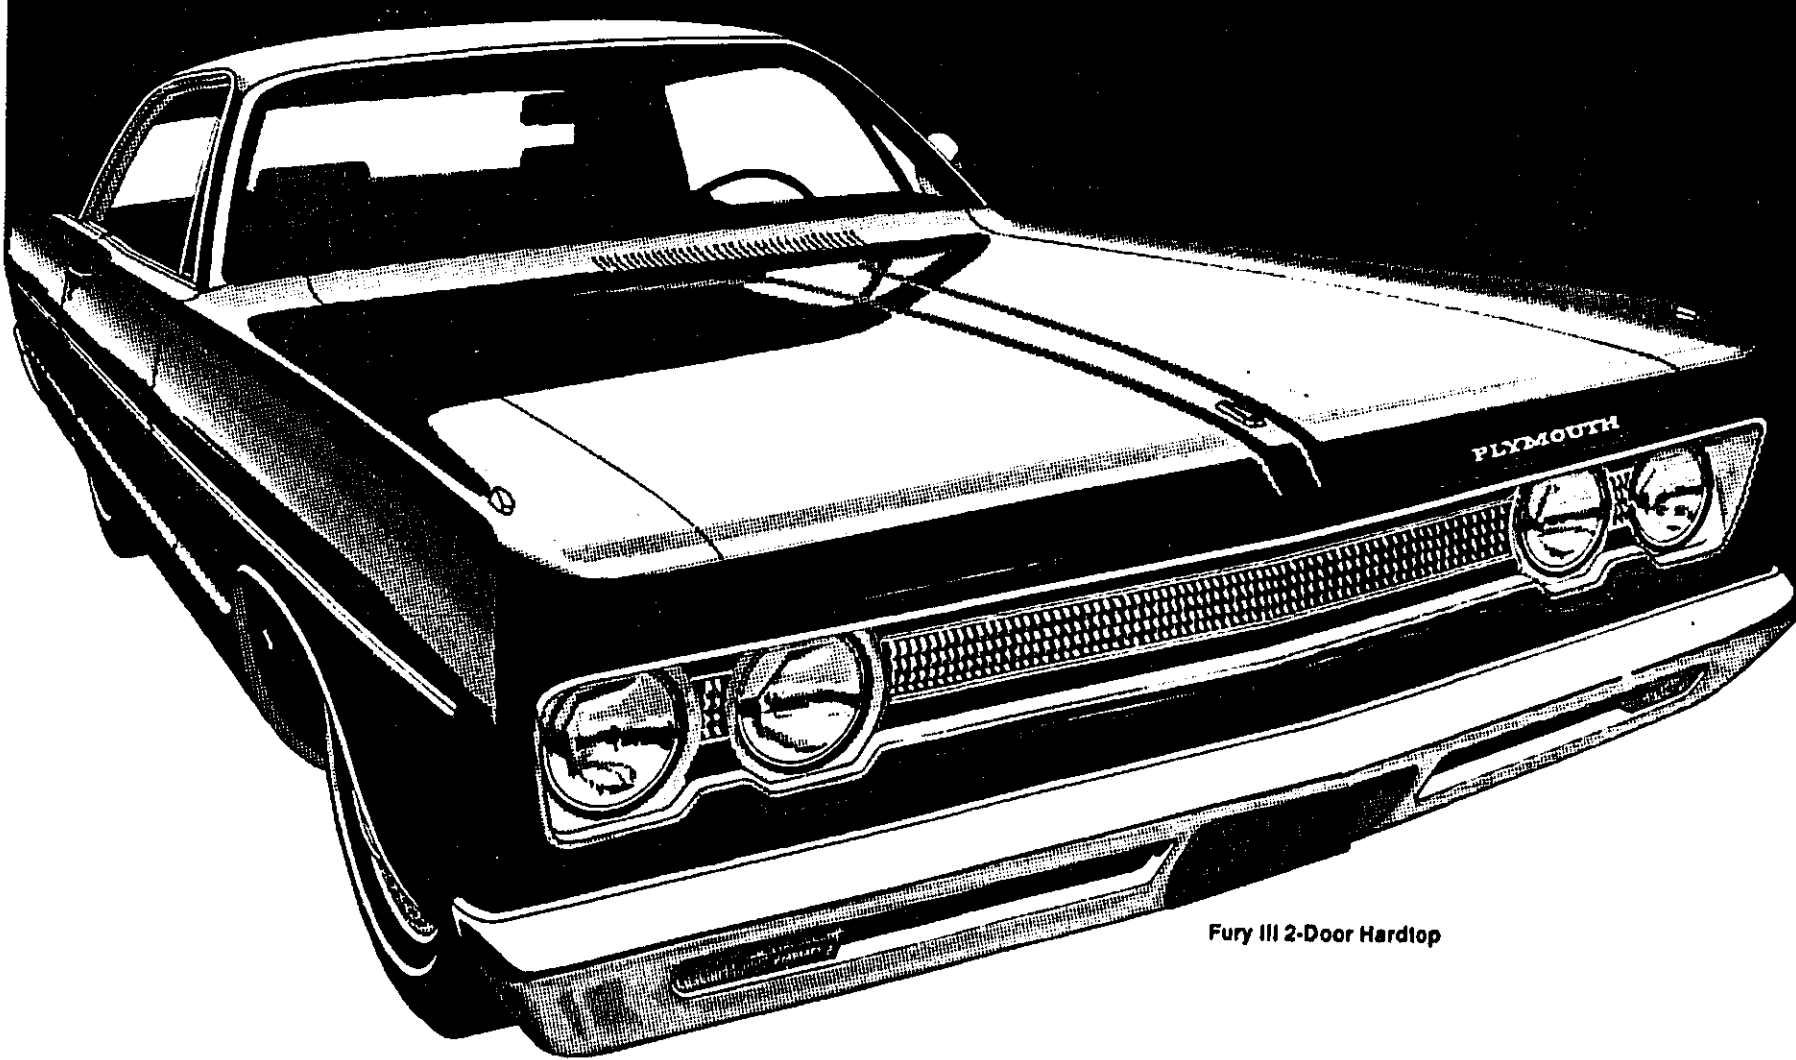

But belts can be tightened just so far.

IT PROBABLY IS a total loss, Supt. Donald Crouse said as he discussed the Cass City School bus wrecked in a freak accident Sunday morning at about 5:25. The bus was parked at the Emerson Kennedy farm and the Kennedys were unable to say why the silo caved after being filled the day before.

Supt. Crouse said that the insurance adjuster had not yet examined the wrecked bus and the extent of damage would not be known until after he arrived. The bus was a 1963 model and had been in service five years. Buses are normally used seven years at the school.

Burns on draft board

John J. Burns, Kingston, has been named a member of the Tuscola County draft board, it was revealed by authorities this week. Burns will replace Fred L. Henderson who resigned after long service on the board. In other business, the board announced a concerted effort to insure legal registration of young men on their 18th birthday. The local board is requesting the cooperation of school officials, armory commanders and youth agencies in publicizing draft registration requirements, it has been announced by H. H. Johnson Sr., chairman of Local Board No. 83, Tuscola county.

Many young men forget to register on their 18th birthday and may be declared delinquents and scheduled for priority induction, according to Mr. Johnson.

Young men are required to register for the draft within five days after their 18th birthday. Registration may be at any local board office. Men who are away from home on their 18th birthday may go to any local board where they are located and register for the draft.

The local draft board currently has 9,523 registrants, including all males born after August 30, 1922. The local board registered 476 men during the past twelve months, compared with 446 registrants for the previous year.

Full information on registration requirements may be obtained at the local board office, 423 North State Street, Caro. All registrants are required to keep their local boards informed of changes of address and other changes in educational, occupational or marital status as they occur.

Three persons were injured in separate accidents investigated during the week by the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department.

Saturday afternoon Linda Lee Seeley, Third Street, Cass City, was treated at Hills and Dales Hospital for injuries received in a two-car crash on Cemetery Road, a quarter of a mile south of River Road.

A car-driven by Miss Seeley collided with a car driven by Lavina Elaine Willer Hendricks, Bach Road, Cass City. According to the police report the Hendricks car had partially pulled from the drive onto Cemetery Road and stopped to look south when hit by the Seeley car travelling north.

Saturday evening at 10:55 a car driven by John Robert Gray, 21, of Warren went out of control on Bay City-Forestville Road, a quarter of a mile west of Koepfgen Road.

Gray was treated at Hills and Dales.

The car skidded 130 feet before turning over on the side of the road. Gray was ticketed for failure to stop in assured clear distance ahead.

Sunday evening at 7:45, Gonfasio Fierros of Caro lost control of his car on Deckerville Road about an eighth of a mile from Phillips Road in Novesta township.

He was treated for injuries at Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Red Cross seeks names, addresses of servicemen

The Tuscola County Chapter of the American Red Cross is seeking the names of all servicemen from the county so they can remember them at Christmas with a Yule card.

Get down the name and address of servicemen and send it to Tuscola County Chapter, American Red Cross, Box 8, Caro, Mich.

Mrs. Lilia C. DeBoer said that last year the county chapter received many cards and letters from servicemen thanking the chapter for remembering them.

The Red Cross would like the address of all servicemen, regardless of where they are stationed.

Gagetown Teens Damage Signal Light In Village

State Police from Bad Axe report that four Gagetown teenage boys admitted Saturday to throwing pop bottles and beer bottles at the traffic signal located above the village's main intersection.

Officers report that the signal light was damaged by the vandalism adding that possible charges will be considered after consultation with the Tuscola County Prosecutor.

Rock bands start and fold quickly

But the new bands are determined.

"There are dances all the time," said Jeff Spencer, 15. And sometimes they have a "Battle of the Bands."

Spencer is organizing The Institute of Domestic Harmony. Turner thinks that the realities of the "band business" will catch up with those he calls the "young kids."

"For a year and a half it was just 'The Soundz and us,'" he said. "The little guys are getting the idea that it's a good thing. But I think they'll fade out. The young kids will get bored and grow tired of it."

"Breaking up" is a regular happening with young bands. Turner admits that his band has broken up three or four times, and Aleksink's Soundz, the most successful local rock band, is currently picking up the pieces after a break-up.

But a "jam session" with members of the band and a record player frequently results in another try at "making it big."

Records are the prime source of numbers played by the young musicians. Few of the bandsmen can read music. And so, a record is placed on the turntable, and members of the band attempt to play along.

Only after a measure of success has been achieved do groups begin writing their own numbers.

The Soundz were practicing songs Aleksink had written shortly before members left for college or for other reasons. The band had won "Battle of the Bands" contests in Bay City, the Lions Club talent show and a talent show at the high school.

Plans were being made for cutting a record, and Delta Promotions of Bay City wanted to book The Soundz in and out of state.

But pressures — economic and otherwise — resulted in the most successful of Cass City's young rock bands going the way of most young rock bands.

"A lot of kids heard we broke up," Aleksink said. "They want us to get back together."

So The Soundz will try to regain the momentum which nearly carried them to a recording session.

And Turner's Straywalkers will try to maintain the momentum they have been gathering for the past year-and-a-half.

And the "young kids" will try to raise enough money and interest to get off the ground. And there will be no peace for those who like the quiet life in Cass City.

BANKING HOURS

In a joint announcement this week, bank officials released this new schedule:

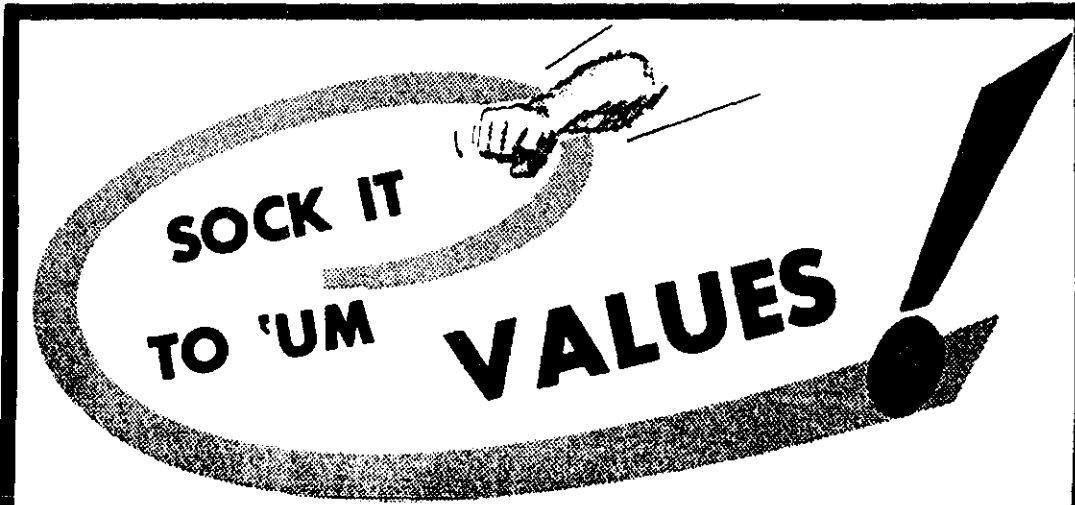

Monday through Thursday 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Friday . . . 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
Saturday . . . 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

Formerly, the banks had been open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily, except Thursday, when they closed at noon.

The change in hours came after a discussion with businessmen at a recent Chamber of Commerce meeting. At the meeting, the consensus was that it would be better for the banks to close at noon Saturday and stay open Thursday afternoons, Friday and Friday nights.

The change apparently evolved from information received at the meeting.

It Seems To Me How airlines could improve service

By Rev. R. J. Searls

Our last account of the trouble encountered while on vacation this summer ended as the 707 jet (with us aboard) took off from the runway in Chicago's O'Hare airport. Our morning's activities had left us ravenous, but as lunch was served we felt better and began to be interested by the country over which we were flying. Landmarks were called to our attention by our pilot as they rushed by beneath. And, suddenly my favorite piece of American real estate picked its way through the clouds, gigantic, ponderous, Mt. Rainier! The entire trip and all its trouble were justified by this, easily the most beautiful sight in our nation. Sea-Tac was only minutes away and when we caught sight of my wife's parents then suddenly the entire trip, with all its troubles, was worth it.

It was in the middle of the afternoon and Grandpa had a plan to test our patience. According to the plan, he would not let the kids know that we were even in town until the next morning. After some debate we settled at a compromise. We would go over to their cousin's house (where the older of our brood were staying.) Grandpa went into the house and announced that he had someone in the camper and they would get to see just as soon as they guessed who it was. It didn't take them long and thus started the biggest gab-session in town.

Now let us skip to the trip home, via the same company that flew us out there. Marsha had decided to stay in Seattle until her brother and sister would be returning. We arrived at O'Hare field and once again began the search for transportation in the sweltering heat. We stayed in Chicago a couple of hours and flew, once again, to Tri-City Airport, convinced that our travel troubles were over. It was hot at Tri-City. We had left the family car in the airport parking lot so as not to have any problems with it! It just did not work out that way! The battery couldn't even manage a peep. We called for AAA club which gave the motor a quick charge and we drove on home without further difficulty.

Comment: Planes, like everything built by man, have troubles occasionally, but planes have periodic check-ups when the planes are literally torn apart and component parts are checked. That is why we so seldom hear of an airplane having motor troubles in the air. Personally, I always feel better when an air line scratches a flight because of engine failure.

However, I do feel that the air line could have lots more ticket salesmen to accommodate the passengers already inconvenienced by the air lines.

Comment: With airport parking, there ought to be more attendants on hand. They should be trained how to get a car started and how to fix a flat, etc.

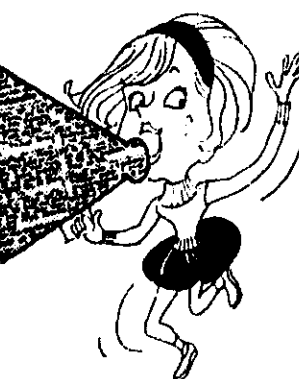

Comment: "Where are you going to go on your vacation next year?" you ask. I can think of few vacations better than the one we took this year.

Comment: To really tell how serious the matter is I must include the trips where no trouble took place. The kids have flown before, some of them without Mrs. Searls or me along. They encountered no difficulty at all. And such travel broadens them as few other experiences can!

Orville Reed is credit for this one! "The distinction between a prankish child and a juvenile delinquent is whether he is my kid or yours!"

One side of flying 'it seems to me' is the mystery of just how a person's luggage will be correctly routed so with thousands of suitcases frequently taken from the luggage bays of jet planes, your luggage arrives at the airport designated, AND ON TIME!

Helpful ideas aim of Leadership Day

Michigan State University personnel who are lined up to present leadership ideas to Thumb women on October 8th come qualified by a variety of past and present assignments.

Area Leadership Day, to be held in Bad Axe on October 8th is open to all women of Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties. Admission will be by pre-paid ($1.75) registration, mailed before October 1st to Mrs. Jay Mittin, 8787 Ruby Road, Bay Port, Michigan 48720. No official registration blank is needed.

Registration for the five classes will begin at 9:00 a.m. in the First Methodist Church beginning promptly at 10:00 a.m.

Mr. Joe T. Waterson, leader for 4-H youth programs at Michigan State University, will set the theme for the day with remarks on "Leadership - Your Challenge and Response". With a variety of experience in both the business and educational fields and having gained as part of a group venture a service award from the United States Department of Agriculture, he can well speak on the topic of one class, "The Importance of Each Person in a Group."

Miss Betty Ketcham, member of the Michigan State University Family Living Education staff, with world travel, service in the U.S. Air Force, and several professional assignments in Veterans Hospitals, will discuss leadership from the point of view of presidents and chairmen of groups...whether these groups be of church, civic, or social nature.

Rex Sletting, the only local speaker involved in the day, presently serves as Sanilac County Extension Agricultural Agent. A teaching background in addition to advanced study and current agent's duties, qualifies him to present the class on Public Relations and protocol which will include ideas on how to introduce speakers, how to close a meeting, and how to communicate with people.

Miss Patricia LaFlame will conduct a class on making visuals to present ideas. This will include use of projectors as well as posters, signs, etc. Her background in graphic arts and outdoor advertising will insure a knowledgeable presentation.

Miss Judith Prochnow, with her experience as an assistant editor and as an information specialist with Michigan State

JUDITH PROCHNOW

University Department of Information Services, can well handle the class on news media, photography, and writing reports recommended especially for secretaries and publicity chairmen.

All in all, Area Leadership Day, October 8th, hopes to offer every participating woman many ideas which will help to make her organization more beneficial this year.

Child's school attitude formed by parent

By Mrs. Ann Ross Extension Agent

Don't be surprised if your child's attitude about school is a lot like yours. He formed it mostly by listening to you. So keep your discussion of school on the positive side -- you'll see it coming out in what your child thinks about school. Happy talk is better than a list of "do's and don'ts" that make him afraid he'll do something wrong. Start each year on the right track. Explain that teachers like children and want to help them. And encourage your child's excitement by telling him how much fun it is to learn. If he had fun learning things at home he'll have some inkling of what school can be like. Learning can be fun wherever it takes place!

His ideas about getting to school are important, too. He might be afraid of walking there if you keep warning him constantly about crossing the streets or talking to strangers.

The route to his school should be the shortest and safest one there is. Tell him to look all four directions before crossing at each street corner and not to get into cars with strangers. Make him aware, but not afraid.

If you're optimistic about school, he can't but be, too. Don't keep saying how you're going to miss him. It only makes it harder for him to like the thought of school.

So get enthusiastic -- it will "rub off" on your child!

Seek way to increase vote on referendums

"HIDDEN" PROPOSITIONS

How to draw attention to special propositions on voting machines is a problem which plagues Bernard Apol, state director of elections.

Five state proposals will be on the November ballot, and local propositions in many communities will increase the number. Apol is concerned that many voters will not be aware of the referendums "hidden" in the maze of office seekers. It is a well-founded fear.

Various methods to draw attention to proposals on voting machines have been tried, says Apol, but no one solution seems best.

A multi-color face of red, white and blue seems to be most effective. Not only does the method have patriotic implications, the "vote the red, white and blue" slogan helps voters remember to complete their ballots before pulling the machine release lever. Under this system all propositions are printed on a red background, partisan offices are printed on a white background and non-partisan offices on a blue background.

Strange believes the method will probably be made mandatory. He notes that local voting precincts are now permitted to use the strips but many do not. "Depending on the results of our study, there is a good chance the 'red, white and blue' designation for propositions, partisan and non-partisan questions will be adopted as a standard."

A numbering system was also used on an experimental basis but many of the county clerks ran into complaints, says Apol. The system used oversize numbers to designate steps for the voter to follow when casting his ballot. Arrows pointed to questions which corresponded to the numbers. Some candidates complained that the numbers pointed to their opponents' names, and many complained that the arrows pointed to "yes" or "no" on proposals, thus influencing voters' decisions.

verbal reminders have been used in some communities, and a facsimile of the face of the voting machine must be posted outside of voting booths.

Mechanical innovations may be in the offing. Apol has written to manufacturers of voting machines asking that they investigate installation of special lights or lock-releases to assure complete scrutiny of the ballot.

Since approximately 87 percent of all voters in Michigan use machines to cast their ballots, it is important that an effective solution be found.

NEW APRICOT

"Goldcot," a new variety of apricot, was developed by horticulturists from Michigan State University's South Haven experimental station, and is expected to stimulate the first successful apricot production east of the Rocky Mountains.

It has an early maturity date and can be harvested over a 10-day period. Fruit buds resist injury from low temperatures but harmful effects of freeze-thaw weather in early spring may restrict production to the northwestern part of the Lower Peninsula.

Research in development of a hardy apricot began in 1888, and 239 varieties have been unsuccessfully tested since 1937.

Goldcot is excellent for fresh use, home processing and baby food. It is not considered prime for commercial canning because the skins are dark and probably unpleasant to the eye of many consumers.

The August Primary Election showed the same trend in voter drop-off, although some improvement has been made since 1963.

Rep. Russell Strange (R-Mt. Pleasant), chairman of the House Elections Committee, says, "This has been a matter of growing concern during the 12 years I have served on the elections committee. I have been involved in five legislative recounts and have noted the voter drop-off on propositions, particularly in Presidential elections."

Both Strange and Apol feel a study is needed, following the November election, to determine the best way to deal with the problem. Strange notes that many Legislators share his concern. Rep. Louis Schmidt (R-Livonia) has requested a joint study be conducted by the House Elections Committee and Apol's office.

Deford

By Rosemary Novak
and Lucille Hartzell

The students in second and third grade are studying about insects and milkweeds and have collected samples of both. They have a caterpillar and they hope that they will be able to follow the life cycle of the Monarch butterfly.

The third graders are also making projects in connection with their social studies. The students are studying a chapter entitled, "Our Home"; therefore, for projects houses of wallpaper are being planned and designed by groups of 12 students.

The football season is starting for Deford! Fifth grade boys -- as well as girls -- are participating in the sport. Many of the girls are practicing cheers.

Cass City Intermediate

Students in Mrs. Greenleaf's sixth grade have been collecting books with old-style lettering. They have old Bibles, English books and readers. The oldest books date back as far as the nineteenth century. The students commented that they are very happy that they have gym every Thursday this year.

Mr. Kuntz's and Mrs. Brown's rooms are working with base six and base ten in their math studies.

Mr. Kuntz's class is studying the South Pole and Antarctica, and they have started their new English books and are now learning about the dictionary and how one is made.

In Mr. Albee's class, the students are having S.R.A. reading tests to determine their reading ability. In English they are also studying dictionaries -- the entire class is making a class dictionary for a project. In science they are studying atmosphere and air travel, and in social studies they are studying the solar system and latitude and longitude.

Mr. Roger's and Mrs. Bauer's seventh grade English classes have been discovering the influence of the American Indian on our language and culture. They discovered that more than half of our states have Indian names and that many lakes, rivers, cities, and counties also have Indian names. . . . Did you know that Minnesota means land of sky colored waters and that Chicago means place of the wild onion? (!?) Indian names for food such as succotash and animals such as the raccoon and chipmunk are also part of our language today.

Would you believe that Robert Vatters of Mrs. Brown's room was on the Bozoshow last Thursday?

The Intermediate students have set up a staff of reporters for the Chronicle this year. The entire staff includes: Dan Lowe, Gary Eisinger, Paul Biffoss, Chester Sieradzki, (Last week's Chester S.), Cara Jo Prieskorn, Lisa Champion, Debra Francis, Randy Hoffman, Geving Bennett, Diane Burk, Cindy Strickland, Jeanne Alexander, and Sally Kolb.

With such a good group of volunteers they should be able to cover the news well.

C. C. H. S.

This year's first student council meeting was called to order by President Gary Vollmar first hour last Tuesday morning. The homecoming, which is on October 11, was discussed. Carla Calka was appointed general chairman of homecoming activities.

This year any organization within the school that wants to sponsor a money raising project has to have a constitution approved by the student council. Organizations under this rule include all clubs, classes, teams, the cheerleaders, and any other group that may not come under these headings.

First thing Wednesday morning homerooms were held for the reading and discussion of the student council minutes.

During the last half hour of the day Wednesday, all classes met to elect officers. The presidents of grades 10-12 were elected last year, so the elections, with the exception of the Freshmen's, was run by the class presidents. The results are as follows:

Seniors
President - Lynn Haire
V. Pres. - Sandy Schuett
Treasurer - Carla Calka
Secretary - Ellen Morgan
Sponsors - Mrs. James Wynnes and Mrs. Thomas Jackson.

Juniors:

President - Fred Hicks
V. President - Lee Taylor
Treasurer - Laura La Jole
Secretary - Mona Calka

Sophomores:

President - Anne Bulen
V. President - Jude Patnaude
Treasurer - Cindy Strickland
Secretary - Kaye Dillon

Freshmen:

President - Louie Salas
V. President - B.J. Haire
Secretary - Penny Copeland
Treasurer - Karla Stine

Friday afternoon was this year's first pep assembly. Pam Dobbs, Pep Club President, welcomed the student body to the assembly and introduced Mr. Biffoss, who in turn, introduced this year's football team to the student body and gave recognition to the two new co-captains - Tom Guinther and Gary Vollmar.

After the guys were all introduced, the Freshmen, Junior Varsity and Varsity Cheerleaders formed a circle around them and did the cheer - BEAT.

CLUB NEWS

The Pep Club had its first meeting of the year after school Thursday. Various committees were established such as a poster committee, and a mascot committee.

The Pep Club is in charge of the snake dance pep-rally for the homecoming, so various members were appointed jobs to get this underway.

The Future Nurses Club had a meeting also on Thursday.

This year's president is Jean Butler. The purpose of the meeting was to set up this year's meeting dates and a trip to Detroit's Ford Hospital was discussed.

Elections for other officers are scheduled for next Wednesday.

TID BITS

Mrs. Wynnes:
I thought that it would be very relevant, pertinent, and apposite to put a little note about English 12 vocabulary in my TID BITS column this week. After much abstract cogitation, I purport that my conjecture of English vocabulary is predicated on verity. My conjecture:

The students in English 12 are gonna have one heck of a time with vocabulary this year.

Meet Mr. Anthony Nicklow:

Mr. Nicklow was born in Greece during World War II. After a Nazi attack, in which the village he lived was burned down, his father, who was a guerilla, came to the United States to find a new home. After finding a home for his family in Minneapolis, Minnesota, Mr. Nicklow's father sent for the rest of his family. By this time Mr. Nicklow had completed third grade in Greece.

Mr. Nicklow is now teaching fifth grade at Cass City Intermediate school and is residing at 6445 Houghton Street, Cass City.

Award Pvt. Willis sharpshooter medal

PVT. JAMES E. WILLIS

He is taking advance training at another base in Kentucky for eight weeks and is driving a tank. He received a medal for sharpshooter.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

Some of the fellows at the country store Saturday night was of the opinion one of the troubles with this nation today was that we wouldn't recognize our problems and face up to the situation.

Ed Doolittle, for instant, said our pretending that them folks on Formosa was the legal Government of China was the grand-daddy of hopeless causes.

Ed, Mister Editor, knows as much about foreign policy as a Jersey bull knows about the New Testament but ignorance ain't no drawback to Ed. He'll discuss anything. At least once.

Zeke Grubb said he didn't know nothing about them Chinese problems but he was agreed that folks as well as Government has to face up to and recognize their bad situations. For a long time, he said, them television networks wouldn't admit the others was there. Final, they started calling one another "the other network," and then some NBC announcer slipped up one night and said "CBS" right on the air. After the shock was over, the flood gates was open and now even the butter people will admit in public they was such a thing as margarine. It used to be, said Zeke, that a car manufacturer would compare their car to riding on air, or maybe setting in a easy chair, then they got to talking about other cars "in the same price range," then they referred to them as "Car A" and "Car B" and now they come right out and call their competition by name.

Clem Webster said he reckoned the idea was not to do your competition no favors by telling folks about them, but he was agreed with Zeke that it was better to recognize a problem and try to deal with it. Some people don't recognize poison ivy, Clem allowed, but they break out in a rash just the same. Then that don't recognize the difference between lead stools and mushrooms better let somebody else do the picking, was Clem's words.

The fellows was general agreed with Zeke and Clem and they all listed the things they was going to recognize. Bug Hookum said he was going home and recognize a broke board in his porch that had throwed him a dozen times in the past two years, and Josh Clodhopper confessed he had better recognize them thin tires on his pickup truck.

Ed closed the session by saying it was a puzzle to him why the U. S. wouldn't recognize a outfit as big and mean as Red China but recognizes the Communist Party and let's them run a candidate for President alongside the Democrat and Reepublican Party.

That's the first time, Mister Editor, Ed ever recognized the Democrat Party.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

Passing Through

After 14 weeks...no longer a stranger

BY LARRY WERNER

All my life I've wondered about small towns.

I remember kneeling on the back seat of our family car and looking out the back window at all the little villages which dotted the highway on our way up north.

And I wondered why those people lived there. Why didn't they move into the cities where they belonged?

While scanning maps of Michigan I've often wondered what kind of people live in places like Omer, Lenon, Vanderbilt, Cass City.

I've often wanted to stop in these villages instead of just passing through. I've wanted to ask small town people what it is they like about small towns.

But I never stopped --- until this summer.

I stopped in one and asked these questions. I received answers. And then I told the story of that little rural village in which I stopped, and I told stories of the people in that village.

And almost before I knew it "that" village became "this" village. I began to understand why people preferred to live in small towns. I even began to like it here myself.

So I guess it's time to move on.

It's been about 14 weeks since I pulled up in front of the little square building on Main Street. A man who talked fast like a newspaper editor shook my hand and said, "You can sit here for now."

It seems like just yesterday, but everything seems like just yesterday until no one really knows what "just yesterday" seems like. It was 14 weeks ago, and in 14 weeks I've learned that the people in Cass City are like people in any city --- only different, like everyone is different from everyone else.

I learned that "four north, two east and two north" is as good as any street address. I learned that you cannot escape bureaucracy by leaving the city: in small towns bureaucracy is just found in different forms --- like the election of officers and holding of business meetings at family reunions.

I've learned that when people wave, you wave back, whether you know them or not, because everyone knows everyone in small towns. And I've learned to appreciate those waves, and smiles.

I've appreciated the personal contact of the small town, after thinking earlier that I would despise it. And most of all, I appreciated the contact a small-town newspaperman enjoys with his readers.

I've enjoyed the comments pro and con, by letter, telephone or in person. I've enjoyed the comments because I know, after working for a couple of dailies, that writers with bigger newspapers are usually ignored by readers.

I even appreciated the comment by one reader who was upset by a story on marijuana. He pointed out that "evil men and seducers will wax worse." I really didn't think writing a story about "pot" placed me in either of those classifications, but I've repented anyway.

I had to repent if I was going to stay in Cass City for the summer. I thought my hometown of Bay City had quite a few churches, but I've been nearly churchured to death in the last 14 weeks.

It is interesting how people in a small town hang onto religion long after their city cousins have given in to modern-day skepticism. Religion is taken very personally in a small town, so personally that three families in the village are building their own church and preaching their own sermons. "Personally" probably sums up my reaction to Cass City as a stereotype of Small Town America. That's the way everything is here --- personal --- and that's why some people like it and why others don't.

And that is why a stranger can stop in Cass City and after just 14 weeks of asking questions and telling stories feel like part of this town.

And that is why someone who has spent 14 weeks here feels a bit nostalgic before leaving and why he feels compelled to say good-bye and thanks for the answers.

"If It Fitz..."*Another record for McLain?

BY JIM FITZGERALD

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

The game was over but Eddie was still staring intently onto the field, mumbling to himself. "What are you doing?" I asked.

"I am counting butt pats for mother," he said.

I took 10-year-old Eddie to Detroit to see the Tigers play Baltimore. My dad used to take me to ballgames and I thought he was quite a guy even if he never would buy me a 75-cent Tiger shirt for $1.75. I started dragging Eddie to games 2 years ago when he hardly knew a baseball from a dumpling. I was determined that he would think I also was quite a guy, right off an old Saturday Evening Post cover by Norman Rockwell (back when poor people were allowed to read the Post). But the only impression Eddie got from those first few games was that Dad "sure hollers a lot at ballgames." He was also embarrassed when the Tigers lost and I cried. The only thing he was interested in was the TV camera. Everytime it swung his way he did his impression of Ed Sullivan and took 3 quick bows.

But the Tigers, finally snarling, made a real fan of Eddie this year. He has, in fact become one of those all-out nuts who can tell you what Norm Cash eats for breakfast the morning after he has struck out 3 times. At home, in front of the radio or TV, he keeps a running box score of every game. When the Tigers win, he bores the family silly by roaring loudly on how they did it, frequently consulting his written record to keep the facts straight. When they lose, Eddie flushes that lousy box score down the toilet and forgets it. In fact, if the Tigers are more than 3 runs behind by the 5th inning he rips up his record and goes outside and throws a ball against the side of the house, bang, bang, BANG. This is a real fair weather kid.

Eddie arrived for the Baltimore game well prepared. He was wearing his Al Kaline glove and his Tiger cap and he carried a well-sharpened Tiger pencil. His mother gave him the pencil so he wouldn't have to buy another one at the stadium. She had saved it from a game she saw a while back (Ty Cobb stole 3 bases).

"Mom saved us 10 cents," Eddie explained as he bulldozed me into buying him one of those shirts my dad would never buy me.

But there was a problem. How was he going to keep accurate score with his cheap pencil and still catch foul balls with his Al Kaline mitt?

"You keep score," he told me, handing over the scorebook and pencil. I wrote in each player's name and was half-way through the first inning before Eddie checked to see if I was doing it correctly. He snatched the book out of my lap.

"Nobody can read your writing," he said. And he erased everything I'd written and started all over again. Boy, 5th graders print as if they were engraving tombstones. Each letter is straight and sturdy enough to trip over. You can read them from across the room. If I wrote like that, no one would know I was a big business executive.

All of which was embarrassing enough but the kicker was that I had to wear Eddie's mitt and watch out for foul balls. We sat in the left field corner and every time a right handed slugger was batting Eddie would caution me to be ready "because this guy pulls a lot of 'em foul." Whenever a ball came within a mile my nerves jumped and I fell out of my seat. You can imagine how

I felt. If a ball ever came to me and I blew it - with a mitt on yet! - that little kid would go back to the hospital and ask for another dad.

Fortunately, no ball came that close. I escaped Eddie's scorn. And nuts to all those Tiger fans who kept giving me strange looks. Didn't they ever see a fat left-fielder before?

The Tigers won with Denny McLain getting number 27. It was "after McLain's last pitch that I discovered Eddie keeping a new kind of score. You have probably noticed that athletes often congratulate a fellow athlete by swatting him in the seat of the pants. This is the type of thing my wife notices, anyway. She had told Eddie that if McLain won, he would probably get 15 butt pats before he reached the dugout.

"I counted 17," Eddie reported.

I wonder if that's a record?

Hospital auxiliary to meet Monday

Hills and Dales Hospital Auxiliary will meet at 1:30 Monday afternoon, Sept. 23, in the hospital meeting room.

The proposed intensive heart care unit, for which the Auxiliary money making projects are intended, will be explained. Last year the Auxiliary's bridge marathon realized between $700 and $800 for the unit.

Mrs. Donald Wernette, chairman of the bridge marathon, needs more players for both the women's and the couples' groups.

Mrs. George Murray will fill the unexpired term of the treasurer, Mrs. Clark Boylan, who is leaving Cass City.

FIVE YEARS AGO

With the opening game against Dearborn just two days away, Coach Orlie Lemanski is not yet sure who will be the half-backs. Dave Parrott, at full-back, and Ed Retherford, at quarterback, are sure starters.

Robert Spencer of Tyre was congratulated by the general manager of the Michigan State Fair for his performance on the trombone with the State Fair Honors Band.

The Walbro Golf League ended with a tournament held at Bad Axe Sunday when league member Ken Elsingner won the low handicap, 18 holes.

Nineteen members of the Cass City Business and professional Women's Club attended the meeting of the club Wednesday evening at the New Gordon Hotel.

TEN YEARS AGO

An open house will be held in the Don Lorentzen home Sunday, Sept. 14. Relatives and friends are expected to attend to help the couple celebrate their Silver Wedding anniversary.

Several changes were completed during the summer months at Cass City High School. One of the principal ones was the relocation of the shop to the newly completed school addition and the reconditioning of the former shop building for the band.

An estimated 75 members and guests attended the first fall meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service Monday evening at the Methodist Church.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Suits were issued to thirty boys for pre-school football practice. Nine of this group are veterans from past seasons. The early practice sessions consisted of general calisthenics and individual fundamental techniques.

"The Gavel," the newly organized club of Cass City businessmen, met Tuesday evening for the regular weekly meeting. The club meets each Tuesday evening at 6:45 for dinner at the Hopper restaurant.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Around The Farm

Heavy rains bring drought to beets

By Don Kebler

Last week I had two rather unusual farm calls. Both involved sugar beet plant abnormalities, particularly so considering the year's growing conditions.

These abnormal sugar beets were showing the effects of wilting but the question was, why? Here is what was observed during the diagnosis of both sugar beet fields.

Both areas of wilting occurred on light textured soils and not on silt loams or clay loam soils. The root of the beet plants were decidedly smaller and shorter from the wilted plants compared to those not wilted. None of the plants, wilted or normal, showed any nutrient deficiencies, mechanical damage, disease or insect damage. None had the growth conditions associated with possible nematode infestations. Beets growing over the tile lines, running through the wilted sugar beet areas of the fields, were not wilted and had larger and longer roots.

After these observations were made the question arose as to why were these sugar beets wilting in these lighter textured soils and in a year of high precipitation soil water levels.

The only logical reason decided upon was the cause due to the extremely high level of soil water accumulation. This abnormally high soil moisture condition with unusually high spring rainfalls plus a slower rate of drainage all retarded the depth of beet root penetration normally occurring. Under normal soil water level conditions the sugar beet roots would have penetrated deeper into the soil.

This year the high soil water level prevented the beets from sending their roots down as fast. So when the excess soil water was able to decrease to the point of normalcy the beet roots had not grown downward as fast as the soil moisture level had dropped. Those beets over the tile lines were able to make a deeper root penetration because the soil water level was less over the tile during the same period of time than in the soil areas adjacent to the tile lines.

As the soil water level reached a point of seasonal normalcy those shallow rooted sugar beets found themselves trying to reach this deeper area of adequate moisture. They couldn't reach this sub-soil adequate moisture level and began to wilt. Those beets over the tile, being deeper rooted, could find sufficient moisture at the deeper soil moisture level.

Intermittent rains during the hot and dry periods this summer could have supplied adequate moisture, allowed deeper root penetration and prevented this wilting.

On the same soil and under normal seasonal soil moisture conditions, those same sugar beet plants would have pushed their roots deep enough and fast enough to have enabled them to keep in contact with a normal soil moisture table drop. Then during the seasonal period of hot weather and drier conditions, usually found later in the summer, the sugar beets could still have remained in contact with a sufficient sub-soil moisture supply.

I should remark here that our very unusual condition of soil water saturation has also affected many of the lawn and forest trees in our county and around Michigan.

Mrs. William Goretski

Jacqueline Pelton of Detroit, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Pelton of Snover, and William Goretski of Detroit, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Goretski of Port Austin, were married at a nuptial High Mass in St. Ignace Catholic Church, Freiburg, The Rev. Fr. Richard Seifert performed the double-ring ceremony at 6:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 30.

The bride approached the altar with her father and mother, wearing a floor-length silk peau de sole gown fashioned with Venice lace bodice and long sleeves. Complementing the gown was a train edged with Venice lace. She wore a silk illusion veil and carried a cascade arrangement of baby mums centered with an orchid. Maid of honor was Joan Goretski of Port Austin, sister of the groom. She was attired in an apricot linen floor-length gown with matching bow and veil. She carried a cascade of carnations.

Best man was Richard Knoblock of Port Austin, friend of the groom. Usher was Dr. John Zauner of Seattle, Wash., brother-in-law of the bride.

The groom's mother wore a pink chiffon dress with a corsage of white roses. Mrs. Pelton chose a white linen dress with matching navy and white coat and navy accessories. She wore a corsage of red roses.

A reception was held at Williams Inn, Harbor Beach, following the ceremony, with 160 guests attending.

Following a week's honeymoon in Northern Michigan, Mr. and Mrs. Goretski are living in Detroit. Mrs. Goretski is a hair stylist in Detroit and Mr. Goretski is a commercial artist taking post-graduate studies at Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti.

A road built from India to Burma by the U.S. Army during World War II followed for part of its route a trail originally blazed by Marco Polo.

One For The Road
Auto stereos
target for thieves
By Dan Marlowe

If you have a stereo tape-deck in your automobile, copy down its serial number and mark it in some other distinctive way so that you can identify it.

This advice comes from the police. An increasing headache for law enforcement personnel is the forcible removal from parked cars of this equipment. Valued at $75 to $225, they are easy to remove and find a quick re-sale. It's not only the value of the tape-deck that the car owner loses, either. Almost always when they are stolen, car doors and windows are smashed and glove compartments are broken into in a search for extra stereo tapes.

So mark your tape-deck in a way that will permit you to leave your mark upon the culprit if you become a victim.

Another case of identity is in a somewhat lighter vein.

The U.S. Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife has on hand about 900 supposedly wild Canadian goslings that think they are people. The tiny birds were rescued when the new John Day Dam on the Columbia River first closed its gates and formed a 75-mile lake behind it. The rising waters inundated the many river islands where the Great Western Canadian geese nest each spring.

Some 1300 eggs were removed from the flooded nests, and about 900 of the birds hatched. Wildlife men hoped to return the majority of the goslings to their parents, but now they aren't so sure. It seems that the little birds don't like geese.

"This is known as imprinting," the resident biologist explained. "They take to the first thing that moves when they come out of the shell. It makes no difference if it's a goose, duck, chicken, or man. Since only humans were around when these goslings hatched, it's with humans that they identify."

Any volunteers to escort the flock to its winter quarters? If you can fly, that is.

*****

Joggers take note: The Tarahumara Indians of northwest Mexico live 140 miles from Chihuahua, but they think nothing of jogging to town to visit or to see the sights. It's not uncommon for them to run for 24 to 48 hours. They usually travel 6 or 7 miles an hour at a slow jog, and they can travel as much as 100 miles a day on foot.

This remarkable physical stamina is being studied by a U.S. research team with a view to determining how the Indians can maintain such effort for such prolonged periods. Meantime, lengthen out on that stride, gentlemen. You have nothing to lose but your breath.
