

A rocky road

Red tape hinders efforts to solve Cass City's nursing care dilemma

The man with the hacking cough and bleary eyes lifts his head from his handkerchief and wheezes, "I should catch pneumonia, they can cure that."

It's one of the older health gags and always brings a chuckle because it pinpoints a paradox in health care. Another paradox exists in Cass City and it's much less funny. It concerns the care of the aged and chronically ill.

The widely hailed adoption of Medicare and the use of Medicaid and the generally advancing age of the population is causing problems.

For the truth of the matter is that we have trouble, trouble right here in Cass City. Blessed with one of the finest small hospitals in the State, Cass City can take care of the acutely and critically ill as well as any small community and better than most.

But what about the person recovering from the acute illness with a long convalescence; the arthritic sufferer; the invalid, the bed-ridden?

We're hurting, says Frank Haythorn, administrator at Hills and Dales General Hospital. We have three patients in the hospital right now that should be in an extended care facility, but we're forced to keep them until we can find a place for them.

These patients are occupying beds that we need for the more seriously ill. Today, he said, we are at capacity and if an emergency arises we don't have a place for the patient.

In Tuscola county, Haythorn explained, only the Tuscola County Medical Care Facility qualifies as an extended care unit and I have been able to place only one patient there in 18 months. They are running at capacity.

Our problem is multiplied now that the Cass City Hospital has abandoned its plan for becoming an extended care facility.

The various social programs that have instigated the boom in care facilities are the reason that a growing problem is plaguing Cass City and many other communities.

While politicians point with pride to the strides that Medicare has taken to care for the aged and infirm, only the insiders or those who have brushed against the hard realities of the program, know that it is not an Open Sesame for perpetual care.

There is no Aladdin's Lamp in the health field and a bewildering series of classifications made of the various type care centers available makes the problem even more confusing to the layman.

THERE WAS PLENTY of room for persons attending the annual meeting of the Cass City School district Monday in the speech room at the high school. For those attending - important decisions were aired.

Tax boost hinted

School board airs plans to empty seats Monday

Important decisions concerning Cass City schools were aired Monday night when the budget for 1968-69 was presented and questions answered in the annual meeting that followed.

Unfortunately, there were only about seven members of the district present to hear them.

In rapid fire fashion Supt. Donald Crouse and the board ticked off the problems and the tentative solutions or explanations.

- The school deficit and what to do about it.
- Gageton property transfers to the Cass City School district.
- Taxes as paid by the former Evergreen and Stone school districts and possible courses of action.
- The hot lunch program.

President Horace Bulen pointed out that the school will be in the red for the second year, according to the budget. The estimated deficit at the end of fiscal 1969 is expected to be $30,000.

Naturally, he pointed out, we cannot continue to operate on this basis. Neither Bulen nor the board were prepared to discuss how much additional taxes would be needed to operate the school. There is no change in the tax rate this year.

With a valuation of some $21 million, one mill will raise $21,000. At this rate, the district will be 1 1/2 mills in debt at the end of the fiscal year.

GAGETOWN TRANSFERS

Supt. Crouse explained that the proposed transfer of property from the Owengage district to the Cass City district would be decided next year. He said that if a break-up of the district is voted Cass City is slated to receive about $5 million in taxable property.

He said that the district would gain less State aid per pupil by accepting the students.

The best rough estimate today would be that the district would about break even. The loss in State aid, Crouse explained, would be compensated for by an increase in operating efficiencies with the larger student enrollment.

DEBT QUESTION

Today the former Stone School and Evergreen districts pay taxes on a different basis than the remainder of the Cass City district.

The two districts pay for obligations incurred before joining the Cass City district and do not pay for debts contracted by Cass City before they were annexed.

Next year the districts will have been members of the Cass City system for three years and a vote can be held over the entire district. A simple majority would be enough to have the Cass City district pay the Evergreen debt and Evergreen pay the Cass City debt. Stone school has no debt and would simply assume its share of the Cass City debt.

Teen with a mission

Youth advisory work involves Margie Clarke

Margie Clarke, 16, a junior at Cass City High School, would be the first to deny that she is a teenager with a mission. . . .

For Margie is a concerned teen who is trying to do something about the smoking hazard in Cass City.

Kids who smoke, smoke that cigarette will probably find her knocking at their door.

The quiet, brown-haired intense daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Clarke is a member of the Youth Advisory Council (YAC) team trying to find the answers to the cigarette smoking problem.

We were told at last week end's YAC meeting at East Lansing, Margie confided, that the campaign to curb smoking among adults is working, but that the kids are starting faster than the older folks are quitting.

We're going to try to reach them. How? The first step is a survey. As a team member, Margie will interview 10 or more local kids and, armed with a questionnaire, try to find out the why of smoking for youngsters.

Not among teenagers. . . . but smoking among children 10 to 12 years old. That's where the problem starts, the experts say, and that's where Margie and scores of other YAC delegates will be trying to find the facts in their home communities.

The YAC council meets three times yearly and the various surveys will be compiled so that the youngsters can organize a campaign at one of the future meetings.

RACE PROBLEM

Smoking is just one of the problems tackled by the teens at YAC. The council is involved in some of the nation's most pressing problems. In the past it has launched educational campaigns about youth employment, the 18-year-old vote, the school drop out, the alcoholic.

The overriding theme of the week-end conference was racism. A keynote speaker told the delegates that "white supremacy and racism are taught in schools and the sickness in the black community is only the mirror image of the ills which exist in the white community."

While Margie is not on a committee that is tackling the race question as it relates to youth, others are. The Cass City delegate was accompanied by Elaine Lutz of Sebawang and there were some 50 delegates in the racially mixed teenage group at Lansing.

Delegates to YAC are sponsored by various organizations. Margie was sponsored by the Michigan Junior Horticulture Association.

Margie, who has been exposed to many different hobbies and projects, is an extremely active 4-H'er, but now horticulture is her top interest. She enjoys just about everything about it and is leaning towards a career teaching botany.

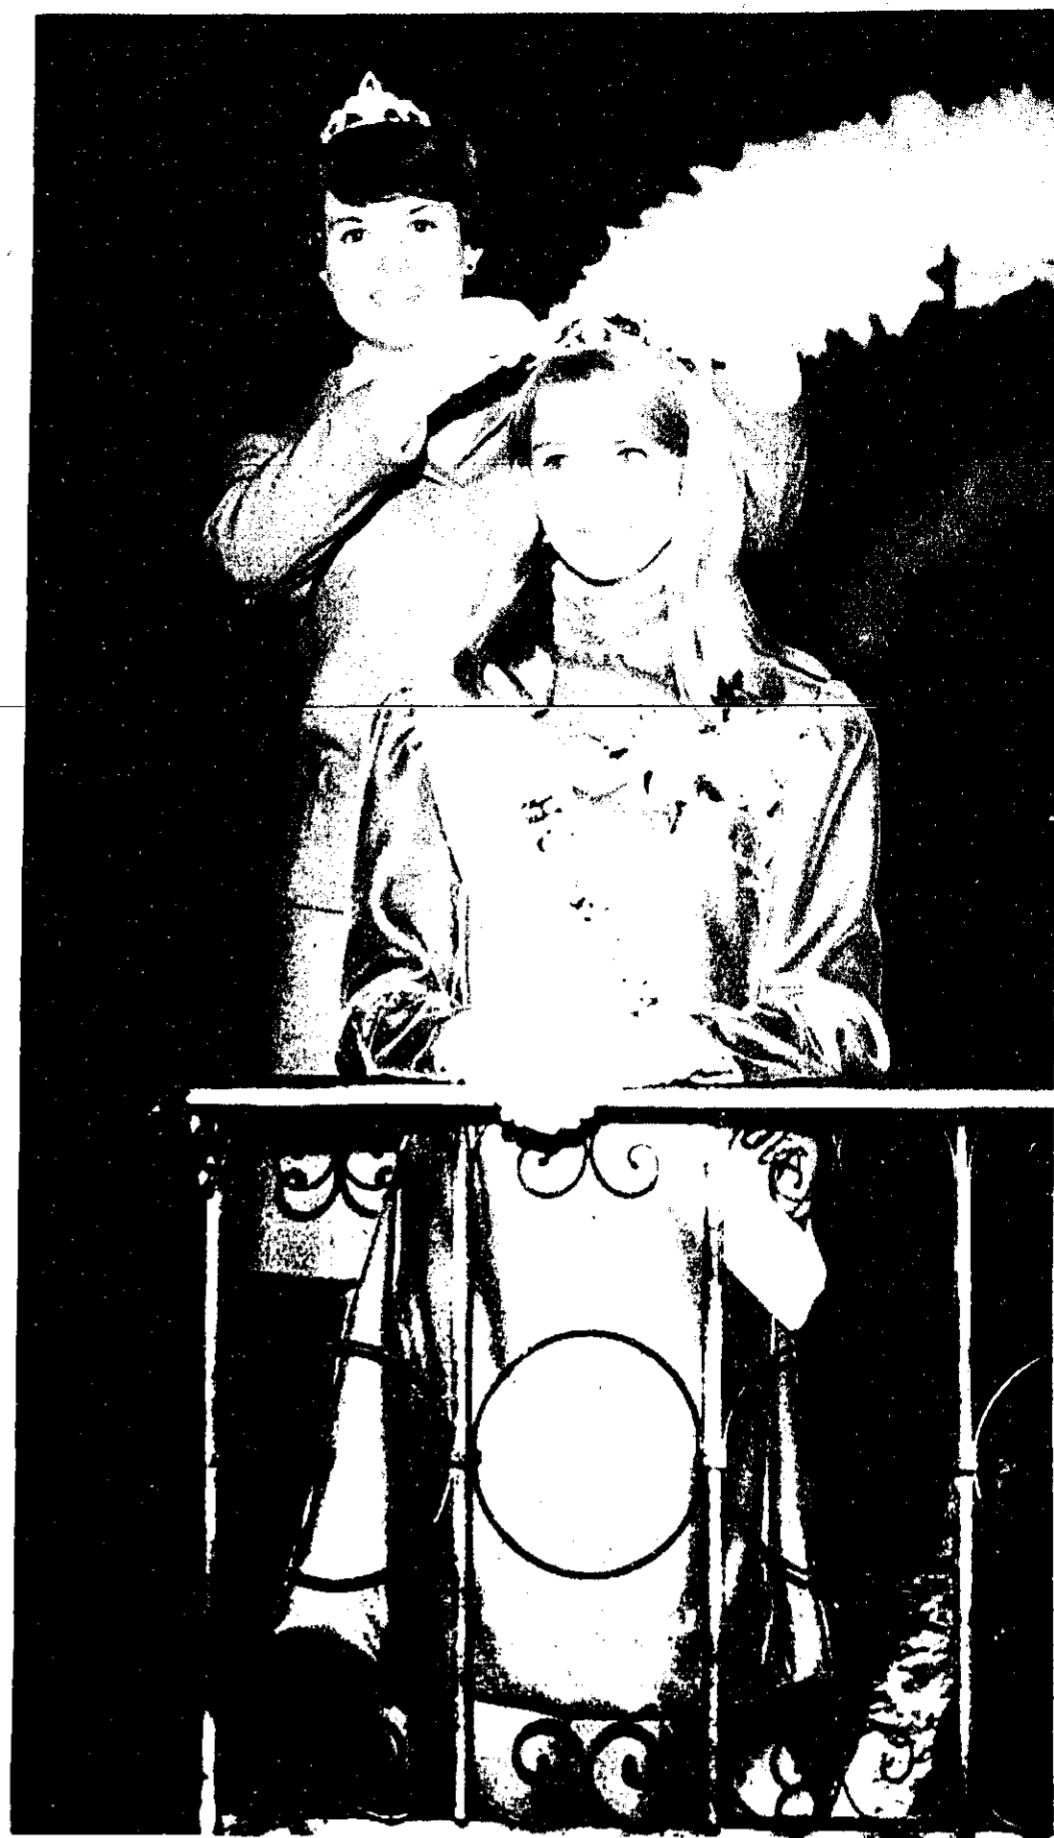

But this is in the uncertain future. Today's attention is devoted to a full school load, activities as president of the French Club and secretary of the Future Teachers' Club, intermingled with work around the house as the eldest in a family of six children.

It's a busy schedule, one that doesn't leave much time for other activities. . . . but there is time enough to become involved in the affairs of the world.

And try to do something about it.

MARGIE CLARKE . . . . a teenager with a mission.

THE TEARS OF JOY streamed down Jean Russell's face Friday night when she was selected from among five girls as Cass City's Home-coming queen. She reigned at the game and the dance that followed. Crowning Miss Russell is last year's queen, Kathy Mark.

THE BREAKDOWN

The first thing to do is forget about the nursing home. That's as dead as the passenger pigeon.

At the top of the list is the General Hospital.

For patients needing care just a shade under the General Hospital level there is the extended care facility. . . . that's where the Tuscola County Medical Facility comes in.

And it is at this level that Medicare stops. Eligible persons can receive up to 90 days' care under the Federal health program, Haythorn explained.

Extended care units are required to have registered nurses on duty at all times, X-ray and laboratory facilities and medications available. They must be under the supervision of a physician. . . anything less and, bingo! it's a convalescent home.

There are two types of nursing care institutions in the convalescent home as defined by the American Hospital Association and each of these have special requirements.

Most important to the elderly is that neither type qualifies Medicare.

Governmental assistance comes from the State program called Medicaid. Patients can receive care indefinitely but must show that they have net worth of less than $2,000 to qualify, Haythorn said.

Despite the difficulties, there remains the raging need for the

A new thrust in the annual Elkland-Novesta Community Chest Drive was underway this week, President Tom Proctor said as "Mission Responsible" started with payroll deduction plans at area plants and businesses.

The drive is not based on the size of the gift, but participation. Special recognition will be given for 100 per cent departments, shifts or plants in the community.

Signed to participate are General Cable, Walbro, Cass City Public Schools, Hills and Dales General Hospital and many local businesses.

In Saginaw where a similar drive is held, an hour's pay per month was set as a standard.

Local authorities say that since Cass City's needs are not as great, a lesser amount could be given.

Cass City's goal is $8,200 and without the change in drive procedures local authorities feel that it would be impossible to meet.

Cass City has a proud record of always coming up with the necessary funds to help the less fortunate.

The new plan is designed to maintain it.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

At 21 everything is sure: very little grey and a lot of very black and very white.

Talented Larry Werner who wrote for the Chronicle this summer "explained it all" in the first issue of the campus weekly he started when he wrote of Cass City:

"Ruraltown is hell for those concerned with what is outside the village limits. . . . Larry says as dogmatically as a George Wallace promising law and order in the streets.

Fearlessly continuing, he says, "occasionally a high school graduate would be drafted from his factory job to fight in a war he knew nothing about.

". . . and most of all," Larry pontificates, "they enjoy the luxury of not knowing the way it is. And not caring".

There's more, much more, in a column about his summer (we've reprinted it elsewhere) but you get the general idea.

Larry heaves a vast editorial sigh of relief in his escape from the rural town womb, back to the involvement at Michigan State.

It's beautiful to be able to "tell it like it is" from the advantageous viewpoint of three years in college and no experience at all. It's wonderful to be able to know what the war in Vietnam is all about. . . . to have the answers to the race problems and the war on poverty and the troubles that assail MSU.

I say, Larry, it's wonderful. I say it, because I, too, had

Behind the Counter Cancer

The treatment of cancer with drugs is partly responsible for a leveling off of the increase in the number of cancer deaths. The American Cancer Society also notes that cancer death rates are, in some cases, dropping off.

In 1930, there were 112 cancer deaths per 100,000 population; in 1950, it was 125; by 1965, the figure was 128. This leveling off reflects earlier (and better) diagnosis and prompt treatment by surgery, x-rays and drugs.

Even better news is found in the increasing number of persons who survive for five years or more, with cancer. Thirty years ago, the ratio was one in five; today it's one in three.

Last year, 915,000 Americans were treated for cancer; 369,000 of them died. This year, another 600,000 new cases will be diagnosed. More than 50 million Americans now living will eventually have cancer. If present rates continue, that's one person in four, affecting two out of three families.

Numbers don't tell the whole story. For years, people were so afraid of cancer that they didn't talk about it and hid the fact that they had the disease. That attitude is now changing. People are alert to the "Seven Danger Signals" and are quick to see a doctor if there's something suspicious. They know that needless delays are literally "a matter of life and death."

THE WORLD'S STRONGEST MAN

The day little Jimmie admired my muscles I was the strongest man in the whole world. And so I remained until the next morning when I got into an argument with that big kid in the next block. Then a humiliating retreat seemed preferable to a bloody nose.

Life hasn't changed much since I've grown up. Sometimes on Sunday I am so confident of my human might that I glibly pass up the spiritual resources my neighbors are finding in church. And by Monday I'm wondering where to turn for help in some insurmountable difficulty.

Experience is forever teaching me that my own self-confidence is mostly self-delusion. The men I admire seem absolutely honest about their own limitations, and absolutely certain about God's strength.

One Sunday as I sat in a pew and watched others receiving Communion this thought struck me: Among those who kneel reverently before us altar today is undoubtedly the world's strongest man.

Medical care: A rocky road

care centers, and Cass City leaders are trying to come up with a care center for the community.

ROCKY ROAD

It's been a rocky road. One plan has been closely investigated and abandoned; another is having trouble getting off the ground. Spearheaded by M. B. Auten and the Cass City Development Corp., facility supporters are trying to snare Small Business Association funds to build a half million dollar 50-bed unit on Hospital Drive, just south of the hospital property. But before the SBA will consider a request for a loan, the proposed facility needs a certificate of necessity from the Department of Public Health.

So far, it hasn't been received. Authorities are still striving. . . if this hurdle is jumped plans could progress rapidly.

Needed locally would be about 25 per cent of the money. According to Federal authorities the development group would invest 10 per cent and the SBA 65 per cent. The project would be repaid in 20 to 25 years.

ANOTHER PROBLEM

Even if the Federal funds are raised, finding patients to pay the freight is by no means a lead pipe cinch.

While most financial experts regard health facilities as excellent investments and ones now operating appear to be successful, the cost of any new facility will be ultimately borne by the patients.

Costs at facilities range from $15 per day and up, and when and if one is built here, costs will undoubtedly be higher. It was a combination of these factors, plus bureaucratic red tape that caused authorities at Cass City Hospital to toss in the gauntlet. The question is can Cass City pick it up again?

He is also the Dairy Tech Club representative to the Agricultural Council; a vice-president of Farm House fraternity, and treasurer of scholarship committee of Alpha Zeta.

Kids for Clean Water STOP WATER POLLUTION

Who says kids don't care anymore? Shown here with Michigan Conservation Director Ralph A. MacMullan are four boys from Civic Park School in Flint who do. After hearing their science teacher Charles Lefanowicz (standing in back) tell them about the need to stop water pollution in this state, these lads decided to do something to help solve this problem. They made the rounds and collected $15.70 from their fellow classmates. The boys then sent the Michigan Department of Conservation a check for that amount to show that they "really cared" about fighting dirty water. Their fund-raising efforts paid for nearly 3,000 folders, explaining Michigan's need for Clean Water and Quality Recreation, which Director MacMullan shows to them. The folders along with about one million others, are being distributed to the general public to rally support for the $335 million Clean Water bond issue and $100 million bond proposal for Quality Recreation which will be up for vote November 5. Looking over the good their money has done are (left to right) Terry Holmes, Mike Eidson, Robert Hem, and David Meerson. Director MacMullan remarked that the future of Michigan's natural resources will be in good hands if there are more youngsters like these four who are growing up with such a keen concern for conservation. --Mich. ## Mrs. Murray tells WSC of Canada

Mrs. E. Schwaderer was hostess to the Woman's Study Club Tuesday, Oct. 8, with 17 members and two guests present. Mrs. Roy Chisholm was welcomed as a new member. Mrs. Donald McAleer, legislative chairman, advised all members to be sure to vote Nov. 5 and called attention to the five proposals to be voted on.

"Canada in Fact and Fiction" was the program presented by Mrs. George Murray.

Among the many books of fiction on Canada, perhaps the best known are Lucy Maud Montgomery's "Anne of Green Gables" and "Anne of Avonlea." Canada is the second largest country in the world with a population of 20,000,000, compared to the U.S. with 196,000,000 in a similar area.

Mrs. Murray noted that with so small a population in a larger area Canada might be expected to have fewer problems than the U.S. However it has just as many problems as the U.S.

There are also other racial problems, as Canada has 14,000 Eskimos and 215,000 Indians.

Canada has been developing very fast since the discovery of radium near Great Bear Lake in 1930. Other interesting facts Mrs. Murray told of Canada included the Canadian transcontinental highway is the longest in the world; its capital, Ottawa, was made by Queen Victoria; cheese, maple syrup, grapes and other fruits are among its products.

Mrs. Raymond McCullough, president, asked for plans to increase club funds as a new unit is to be added to Girlstown. Suggestions for local community improvement were requested for the next meeting.

Cass City certain to be heard during town-wide harvest sale

Cass City will be heard from Saturday afternoon and evening.

One thing that all of today's bands have in common is amplification.

Every band is wired for sound and like 'em or not, it'll be hard to ignore them.

Certainly, it will be impossible if you live in Cass City and it could be mighty hard if you live in Elkland Township.

But no one's complaining, because the big battle of the bands is expected to be a top crowd pleaser as it winds up Cass City's annual three-day, town-wide harvest sale Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The sale is one of the larger of the year sponsored by the Retail Division of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce and bargains will be available in nearly every store.

But back to the bands. There will be five of them, representing three communities, struggling to win the $75 first prize offered by the Chamber.

Bands now signed are: "The 4th Stone from the Sun", "The 4th Reich" and "The Short Circuits", all of Cass City; "The Pentagon", Sebawang, and "The Whonoz", Elkton.

Three of the bands have previously competed and finished high in competition this summer, Jim Hatch, Chamber member, reports, and the battle Saturday promises to be a real swinger.

After the competition, the top band will play for a dance in the downtown area from 8 to 11 p.m. Saturday to complete the day's festivities.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By H. M. Bulen

It may come as a surprise to you to learn how much actual playing time there is in a pro football game. . . A national sports service has released figures that surprised us -- they show there are only about 15 minutes of actual playing time in a game! . . . For the remainder of the more than two hours of a football game there are huddles, timeouts, penalties being discussed or walked off, players unpling after a tackle, ends coming back after going out for a pass, etc. . . For only 15 minutes or so, is the ball actually in play.

Here's quite an oddity about Notre Dame football. . . Did you know Notre Dame once went 23 consecutive seasons without losing a home game! . . . The Irish lost a home game Oct. 21, 1905 to Wabash, 5-0, and then never lost another home game till Nov. 17, 1928 when Carnegie Tech beat them 27-7. . . That loss to Carnegie Tech, by the way, turned out to be the ONLY home game Knute Rockne ever lost in his entire coaching career!

Do you know which athlete in history holds the record for winning the most gold medals for first place finishes in the Olympics? . . . An American set the record back in 1900-1908. . . He was Ray Ewry who won eight gold medals, and no one has ever been able to top that, before or since.

all the answers to all the world's complex problems when I was 21.

Speaking of telling it like it is, we gave a mental hurrah! the other day when some guy on TV with more guts than sense looked at his newborn and said, he looks red, wrinkled and worn to me.

I'll risk the wrath of mothers everywhere (headed by my wife) when I say that's REALLY telling it like it is.

You can be positive about the atom bomb with little chance of fall out, but saying it about a baby is apt to bring a real radiation problem.

And you'd better believe that an angry mother who has the most beautiful baby in the world can radiate.

At the risk of getting burned (again) I still say they are much more beautiful at six than six months.

The pheasant season opens Monday, Oct. 21. Oh hum.

Supervisors open October session

Supervisors opened their regular October session Monday by hearing routine reports and requests for funds to be included in the 1969 budget.

It is expected to be near the end of the session before the board comes to grip with some of the nitty-gritty questions facing the county.

Tops will be finding the money to pay expected salary boosts for county employees and elected officials. Both are requesting increases.

The Tuscola County Road Commission presented resolutions asking for extra money for bridges and road signs.

Pointing to the county's heavy traffic toll, the commission claims that 188 road signs are needed at a cost of $44,000.

Another resolution pointed out that 23 bridges in the county need repair and requested $160,500 from the county for bridges to be used with matching funds.

Both resolutions were taken under advisement. It is doubtful if supervisors will be able to squeeze this kind of money from current revenues.

CLOSE SEASON

Elmer Conant, supervisor from Ellington Township, reported that it was possible to close the county to pheasant hunting and suggested that it might be in the best interest of conservation to do so. The matter was taken under advisement.

Auxiliary eyes coronary care unit next

The purchase of a $500 hydraulic lift for use in the Physical Therapy Unit of Hills and Dales General Hospital has been authorized by the Auxiliary and members are now turning their attention to a new project... a Coronary Care Unit.

Auxiliary members saw a unit on a recent visit in Standish and decided to start working towards the purchase of one for Cass City.

Other activities for the Auxiliary include the fall meeting of the East Central District Michigan Hospital Auxiliary Association meeting slated in Marlette Wednesday, Oct. 30. Members are invited and reservations with Mrs. Willis Campbell are necessary before Oct. 25.

Kelley enrolls at Asbury Seminary

Eldred Lee Kelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Kelley, is enrolled as a student in Asbury Theological Seminary, Wilmore, Kentucky, in a course of study leading to the Master of Divinity degree.

Eldred is a graduate of Cass City High School and Spring Arbor College.

Total enrollment for the fall quarter at the Seminary is 411, including students from 42 states and ten foreign countries.

Truck Owners

WASHINGTON—More than 90 per cent of truck owners own only one or two trucks.

Bulletin

Mrs. Mary Prieskorn died early Tuesday evening in a Saginaw hospital. Funeral services will be held Thursday at two o'clock at Little's Funeral Home.

The family requests memorials to the heart fund at Hills and Dales Hospital.

Methodist men meet in Cass City

The first meeting of men in the Evangelical and Methodist churches in the Upper Thumb will be held Monday, Oct. 21, in the First United Methodist Church of Cass City.

Speaking to the group in the newly formed northern sub-district will be the Rev. John Nicholas Grenfell Jr., pastor of the United Methodist Church of Port Huron.

Few attend important school meet

And you can't vote mutual property owners. Assumption for a part of the district, Crouse said, so if Gageton transfers a vote would be impossible.

HOT LUNCH

Most of the news concerning the school's finances was on the gloomy side Monday. But one phase of the school's operation that usually causes the most concern was the bright spot of the evening.

President Bulen reported that the price adjustment for the hot lunch program was bringing it out of the red.

Equally important, he claimed, the program is running more smoothly than ever before and after the meal count was stabilized there have been virtually no complaints.

OTHER BUSINESS

Mrs. Geraldine Prieskorn reviewed the various bond issues still owed by the school and outlined the new budget.

Questions by Fred Pinney established that the school boundaries remained stable during the year and the comparison of budget figures published from year to year is valid.

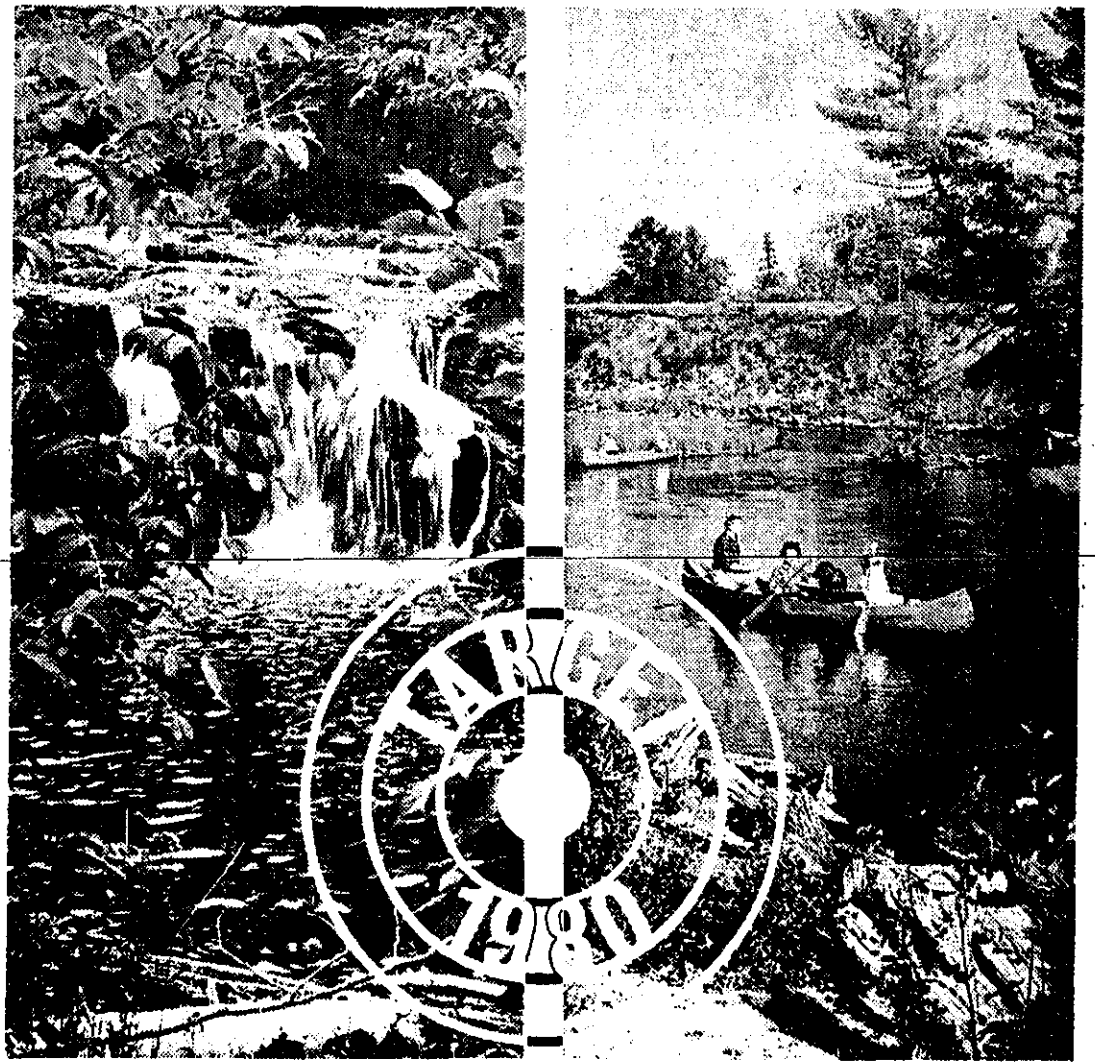

Arie VanderMeer questioned the use of the computer for payroll checks and said that perhaps General Cable could do it cheaper and save the district money.

The board promised to investigate.

David Bulen enters service

David Bulen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Bulen of Cass City, was one of three Tuscola County youths to enter service during October. David volunteered for the draft and left Tuesday morning, Oct. 15.

Clean Water.....Quality Recreation

Setting your sights on having Clean Water and Quality Recreation in Michigan by 1980? You can help hit the mark when you vote November 5 on state bonding proposals Nos. 3 and 4. If approved, proposal No. 3 would bond Michigan for $335 million to provide money for towns, cities, counties, and townships to build water treatment plants, sewage lines, and other clean water facilities by 1980. Proposal No. 4 is aimed at bonding Michigan for $100 million to provide this state with quality recreation by that same target year.

matched with federal and local funds, the $335 million bond issue for clean water would balloon into a $1.2 billion program. Every nickel of that would be passed from the State to local governments. It would provide more than Clean Water in Michigan by 1980. It would also provide jobs, income, and business growth in all the towns, rural areas, and cities of this state for the entire decade ahead. Under bond issue for Quality Recreation, a significant slice—$30 million—would be turned over to local governments to buy parks, playgrounds, senior citizen centers, and the like. The remaining $70 million would go for state recreational improvements. Happily, it looks as though no new taxes will be needed to pay off these two bond issues. At any rate, the choice is clear. It's yours to make November 5. —Mich. Dept. of Conservation

Innocent plea for Hemingway Rotary gang to canvass village

Alger H. Hemingway stood mute Tuesday afternoon when he was charged with negligent homicide before Judge James Churchill in Tuscola County Circuit Court. A plea of innocent was entered for him. The charge stemmed from an accident at the intersection of Arhela and Belsay roads June 15 in which Steven R. Young was killed.

Error in report of area crash

A report at the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department last week said that a car driven by Robert Vila was hit in the rear by a vehicle driven by Joseph Frank Nagy, 17, of Cass City.

The report was in error as it was Vila who hit the Nagy car.

As reported previously, Vila was ticketed for driving while impaired.

Rotary gang to canvass village

While noted professional speakers will be winking patrons all over the globe in performances scattered throughout the season, Thursday's show will show points of interest in the United States. Titled "America of Three I Sing," it features Robert Brower in full dimension, stereo sound films of famous landmarks from coast to coast.

The movement for a 13-month calendar should be vigorously opposed. It's bad enough getting bills 12 times a year.

A FIRST-HAND insight into the State's needs was given by Governor George Romney to Alvin DeGow of Pigeon, Republican candidate for the Michigan Senate 28th District, during a recent Lansing visit.

The shirt-sleeve session gave the candidate an opportunity to bring himself up to date on the wide range of state and local issues.

3 start Peace Corps training

Three new members of the Peace Corps started training this week. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Forthun and James Fritz left for San Antonio, Tex., for a week's schooling prior to spending a scheduled two months in a small community in Mexico.

Their ultimate destination is Paraguay in South America in the two-year program.

Mrs. Forthun is the former Sally Hunt of Cass City.

Besides the breaking and entering, several cases of malicious destruction of property and theft were reported.

Seven mailboxes on Greenleaf and Reed Roads in Greenleaf township were damaged Sunday by vandals.

State Police said that Harold Wills reported the vandalism that occurred Sunday.

Mrs. Seeger at management school

Mrs. Theda Seeger, pre-assembly foreman at the Walbro Corporation, completed a first-level course in Wittenberg University's Management Development Program Friday.

Wittenberg's program offers instruction in each of four levels to supervisory personnel from industry. Areas emphasized are human relations, economics, communications and business operations.

The boxes were struck by an object as a car drove by the boxes. Police theorized that a tire iron may have been used.

Boxes were damaged belonging to Wills, John Zmierski, Hazel Brown, John Ryba, Dale Buehrly, Ed Marshall and James McLellan.

Another mailbox was reported damaged on Bay City-Forestville Road. It belongs to Norman E. Emmons who reported that someone threw a squash against it.

State Police say that the box may have been damaged by the unidentified persons who stole 40 squash and 70 muskmelons from the farm of Stanley Morell, west of Cass City.

Werner escapes from womb-like Cass City

Editor's note: This column was printed in the Campus Observer, a weekly started by Larry Werner and other Journalism students.

The Chronicle reprints it for obvious reasons.

I spent my summer in Limbo. Many have said that the college community is a womb-sheltering the maturing mind from realities of the big, bad, ugly world outside. But there is no womb like Ruraltown, USA, no umbilical cord more strangling than the one I have recently severed.

For the first summer in the three years I have existed in this living-learning experiment, wandering notions led me from the campus and into a position with a small, family-run weekly newspaper, in a small rural Michigan community.

The name of the town doesn't seem important now. I will always remember the people I worked for and wrote about, but somehow names are lost in a mist of stereotyped anonymity. It seems that this tiny rural community is like all tiny rural communities --- isolated, womb-like.

And returning to MSU with its awareness of, if not confrontation with, important issues somehow inspires that "big, bad world" type of feeling.

You see, the small rural community is very unlike the small suburban community, Suburbia, because of its proximity to major population areas, knows the city and its realities.

But the rural village sees metropolia's mash and the world's harshness as something the other side of their 21-inch screen.

Immediately after taking my place behind a typewriter in this farming town like every farming town, I felt the vacuum. Conversations were shot through with complaints about too much or too little rain for the corn which is always too small.

But conversations rarely turned to something so "otherworldly" as the war in Vietnam or civil rights.

Occasionally a high school graduate would be drafted from his factory job to fight in a war he knew nothing about. Two or three villagers suggested that their all-white rural community become involved in the civil rights movement but they will restrain themselves or leave.

Those who like the quiet life will restrain themselves. Those who want to do something significant in this world will leave. Ruraltown is a paradise for those who enjoy small talk over the backyard fence and fear facing the issues. Ruraltown is hell for those concerned with what is outside the village limits.

But for most of the summer I was suffocating in an atmosphere of trivia. I was revived temporarily by a young civil rights-minded minister who brought young Negroes to the all-white village for a visit.

But the blanket of complacency squelched my enthusiasm when the young minister confided, "I have to watch myself, I have a position in this community."

After bucking the apathy for nearly the entire summer, I began to feel myself slipping into the ruraltown rut. I began to see why these people were happy. Lack of contact with the "outside world" and its problems while hiding among the rolling wheat fields provided a happy existence.

But the old "ignorance-is-bless" line is a hard one to swallow for someone who is concerned. So before I threw away my sports coat and stocked up on overalls, I escaped from that womb.

I escaped with most of my concern, and I quickly renewed the cynicism which accompanies involvement. I plunged into this green-and-white womb to find that, compared to my sheltered summer place, the city on the Cedar is a big, bad world outside. Contact with reality may be minimal, but there is awareness on a college campus where there was nothing in Ruraltown.

There was nothing but quiet, happy people who like their town the way it is and don't like those who want to change it. They like their pretty village park and their clean new school. And most of all they enjoy the luxury of not knowing the way it is.

And not caring.

Schools will feel pinch of hold-the-line budget

TIGHT BUDGET

"Hold the line" is the budget message from Gov. George Romney to state government agency heads as they begin fashioning their spending requests for the 1969 legislature. Romney says times could get tough, what with the constant threat of inflation, and he's not about to ask for higher taxes next year.

"We must have prudent planning and a tight budget," the governor said. "There will be little or no room for new programs and major expansions of existing programs."

The administrators get the message, but some don't like it and are trying to convince Romney's budgetwriters they need more money.

First to receive public criticism was the governor's proposed "target" figure of $812.4 million for state school aid in fiscal 1969-70. This is a $34 million boost over this year's estimated total.

Dr. Ira Polley, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, says the figure is $27.7 million short of maintaining the state's present share of 45 per cent of school costs.

This means, he adds, that local districts will be required to increase their financial support for schools by $61.8 million, necessitating an average 2.5 millage boost, or cut back educational programs.

"Such an increase (in millage) is unrealistic in light of recent voter reaction to requests for millage approval," Polley contends.

Meanwhile, State Budget Director Glenn Allen is stressing that the proposed "target" figures are only tentative and are subject to revision.

"They're only work sheets. They're not final figures--they're a point from which to start," he says.

But on the other hand, he continues, "the point is to tell them (administrators) there isn't enough money for a lot of new programs. We don't shut them out completely, but we make it pretty clear to them that they're just wasting their time."

Other examples of Romney's "hold the line" budget plan: State colleges and universities, which this year asked for $300 million and got $226.6 million, have been collectively assigned a "target" figure of $240.3 million.

The Mental Health Department, recipient of $916 million on budget increase this year, would receive about $6 million more next year.

The Department of Public Health, with a current budget of $19.3 million compared with the $20.8 million it requested, would get an increase of only $485,061.

Budget infighting wasn't cooled by the governor's report that the state treasury surplus at the start of the current fiscal year was nearly $56 million, nearly twice the amount forecast last January.

Romney warned the extra funds could be gobbled up in a hurry by steadily increasing costs of existing government programs and a reduction in federal matching money.

"It could quickly disappear if business activity declined," he said. "It would be entirely absorbed if, as part of the federal government economy move, grants to states were reduced."

The governor said the surplus resulted chiefly from management efficiencies in government, larger-than-expected revenue collections and aggressive investment policies by State Treasurer Allison Green.

HIDDEN RESULT

Surprise is the reaction of state officials to the disclosure that proposition No. 1 on the Nov. 5 ballot could bring a graduated income tax to cities as well as the state.

In placing the item before voters, the legislature thought it had restricted the controversial issue to the state income tax.

The state and cities with income tax laws now use a flat or fixed rate. The people must approve before a "sliding scale" can be used to figure how much each taxpayer owes his government.

Romney says he's against a graduated tax. He maintains the federal government has pre-empted that form of taxation and the state should leave well enough alone.

****

Concern whether the proposal is self-enacting or not was also voiced by the governor. He's asked Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley to clear up the matter.

"The people have a right to know this," Romney said.

If Kelley rules it is not self-enacting, the legislature would have to implement the graduated tax provision before revenues could be collected on this basis. This undoubtedly would trigger a stirring debate over the merits of graduated versus fixed rate taxing.

SHUCKS! I am used to selling property and I don't get all goose pimples and run to put up a for sale sign when I get a listing (some are up for 2 years) nor after I have made a sale, bloat up like a frog in a hall storm, run up and down the street with a bundle of papers under my arm and stick a sold by sign on the property. (Some clutter the property for months.)

DUE TO THE many sales, I am desperately in need of listings! Particularly in the Cass City, Caro, Watrousville and Reese areas. Any property, any size - farms, homes, vacant land, hunting ground, river property, small farms, etc.

IF YOU HAVE Property to sell or want to buy, stop in and see me. We will both be glad you did. Quick, quiet, confidential service. Your next door neighbor probably won't know your property is for sale!

"If It Fitz..."

One bath a week is plenty

BY JIM FITZGERALD

Something a poet said recently has given me nerve enough to write a column my mother said I wouldn't dare write or she'd shoot me. It's about taking baths.

The poet is Phillip G. Bronstein who, the newspapers said, intends to write some angry verse about such folk heroes as Mr. Clean and the White Knight.

"The soap companies, the plumbing industry and Madison Avenue have brainwashed the people of this country," Bronstein said. "Everybody's jumping in and out of their tubs and showers. The entire nation is obsessed with being clean. One Saturday night bath a week is enough for the normal human being."

Boy, I hope Mother read that.

The first bath I can remember, I was probably about 4 years old. I had been playing hide and seek with my older sister, Terrible Jean, and some other roughnecks. They couldn't find me because I'd hidden in a barrel in my grandfather's barn. It was a barrel of tar. Jean finally pried me free. When we got home, the neighbors thought the block was being integrated.

Mother usually supervised the baths at our house. This didn't mean she scrubbed backs. She guarded the bathroom door and checked against fake baths. I was not above filling the tub with water and then stirring it with a stick to produce the sounds of a boy bathing. I would also soak a towel and splash water on the floor. Then I'd dampen my hair in the sink, button my pajamas to my neck, and run for bed.

The tar bath was something else. It was man's work and my father rolled up his sleeves and scrubbed with a brush usually used on the basement floor. He got me so clean he said I should probably be re-introduced to my sisters so they wouldn't think a stranger was sticking his nose in the frosting bowl. The bath hurt but there was one consolation. I'd fallen in the tar on Tuesday which was not a regular bath day. Wednesday was. So at least, after getting so clean on Tuesday, I could skip Wednesday's bath. I thought. But mother sentenced me to the tub again Wednesday anyway simply because it was Wednesday.

From that day forward I have known that my mother and mothers everywhere are duped shills for the soap industry. I wouldn't be surprised if most of them are getting kickbacks from Proctor & Gamble - probably free cold cream, the better to slither with.

I perfected my fake bath technique in high school. I was on the tennis team which practiced everyday. On bath nights I'd tell Mother I didn't need one because I'd taken a shower at school after practice. Beautiful. Until the Sunday the pastor took up a special collection to remodel the school gym which was in such poor shape "the shower hasn't worked in 2 years." Oh my.

Incidentally, old dogs do do old tricks. Today, I tell my golf buddies I'll skip a shower at the club because I'll take one when I get home. And I tell my wife the same thing I told Mother about tennis practice. Only the game has changed.

Poet Bronstein is absolutely correct. A bath a week is enough. In fact, what with the incredible powers of Command and Right Guard, a well-sprayed man might go dry even longer if he is careful. He should always know which way the wind is blowing and position himself accordingly. And he should never perspire (I'd say sweat but Mother is angry enough already).

I realize that, on hot days, a man must remain completely inactive to avoid perspiration. Which I think is marvelous. I often just sit in a cool tub all day. The only trouble is I can't sleep for fear someone will turn the water on.

Onward and Upward.

C. C. H. S.

Last week was homecoming week, which is one of the most exhausting, yet most exhilarating weeks of the entire school year!

First hour Monday morning, the students nominated candidates for queen and court by a write-in ballot. Nominees were: Seniors: Karen Gaffney, Carla Calka, Linda Brown, Marilee Turner, Jean Russell, Lynn Haire.

Underclassmen: Mona Calka, Sally Gelger, Sherry Bacon, Cindy Strickland, Karla Stine, Pat Bauer, Patty Waud, Mardi Auten.

Second hour Tuesday the student body voted by secret ballot for the queen and her court. Two seniors, Joan Orzal and Ellen Morgan, counted the ballots. These girls were the only two persons who knew who was queen. They should be congratulated on how well they kept their secret! They didn't tell a soul the results -- not even our principal, Mr. Holmberg.

Monday night was the beginning of all the float sessions. Working from about 6:30 p.m. to 10:00 p.m., every night, the classes had four nights to complete their floats.

The Junior High entered a float in competition this year for the first time, and won first place in the contest! Second place was won by the Juniors, and third place by the Seniors.

To build up school spirit, special activities occurred last week. Thursday was maroon and white day--all students were to wear their school's colors. Friday was hero worship day--the football players got first places in the lunch lines, and during the lunch hours the student body rose and gave a toast with their milk cartons to the players, who sat at a specially decorated table.

Also on Friday the Typing I classes sent letters to the football players asking for a victory over Vassar.

Thursday night was the annual snake dance through the center of town and pep rally at the park. At the park Mr. Bifoss gave a pep talk, the queen and her court were introduced, and the cheerleaders led a number of cheers. Friday the best pep assembly of the year was held. The football players played a special part in the assembly when they presented skits to the student body.

After the football team's skits, a contest was held to see who could lead the student body better in a cheer--the cheerleaders or the players. Ac-ording to Mr. Watson, who judged the contest, the guys do a better job.

The spirit jug was held and the sophomores won. The score now stands:

12-0
11-1
10-2
9-0

Mrs. Bifoss, C.C.H.S.'s former cheerleading coach who now teaches first grade in Campbell elementary school, attended the assembly and gave a pep talk. Her topic--"What is a hero?"

Other parts of the assembly included a skit presented by the varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders, a pom-pom routine the varsity cheerleaders set to the song "Mr. Touchdown", which the band played for them, and a number of cheers.

I think Carla Calka, chairman of the homecoming this year, should be congratulated for the great job she accomplished. She and others who worked under her planned and organized: the selection of queen and court, the snake dance, the pep assembly, the homecoming parade, the pre-game show, and halftime. It would take an entire page to list all the details that come under these main headings! This is mainly why I stated in my opening sentence--"Homecoming week is one of the most exhausting..."

****

The senior class really had a busy week last week! Selling candy at noon hours, a project to raise money for the senior trip, was started. For all of the efforts in this first week of the sale, we hardly made a cent!

On Tuesday the officers and some members of the class chose graduation announcements.

On Thursday all of the seniors who planned on going on the senior trip had to have their $10 deposit paid. The turnout was really great with 89 out of 109 students paying.

Friday a short class meeting was held to take the official vote on where the class wanted to go on the trip. It was almost unanimous to go to New York.

The trip reservations were sent in Saturday morning.

TID BITS

Tuesday a Thumb "B" Student Council meeting was held in Mariette. Phil Keating, Joe Mark, Jan Weipert, Neil MacCallum, and Lynn Haire represented C.C.H.S. at the meeting.

Wednesday a student council meeting was held. The main purpose of the meeting was to decide if the three members of the council who were kicked off the football team should be kicked off student council also.

The council decided to take a vote from the entire student body the next day in home-rooms. The students could vote either for re-elections (one of the guys in question is president of student council and two are representatives) or for no change. If re-elections were to be held, it was stipulated that these guys could run for re-election. The results called for no change.

The Freshman Class officers met Wednesday morning to discuss plans for their dance after Cass City's football game with North Branch.

Wednesday and Thursday eye tests were given to 9th and 11th graders.

The Debate team went to Central Michigan University Saturday, where they attended lectures in the morning and a cross-exam debate in the afternoon.

Deford

by Rosemary Novak and Lucille Hartsell

The third graders are starting on their "Election '68" notebook in Social Studies. Friday elections of class officers were held. The results are as follows:

- President--Alan Pratt
- Secretary--Mike Little
- Fire Marshall--Bob Realmond
- Fire Drill Leader--Judy Luana
- Captain of Chalk Board -- Holly Freeman
- Generals in charge of Pick-up -- Brenda Whittaker, Mike Gilliam.

Deford met Evergreen in a game of football Friday. Evergreen won 32-6.

Evergreen

by Janet Auvil and Nora Massingale

Mrs. Gray's sixth graders have made Cuniform samples of Babylonian writing, and in art they have made papiermache masks. Mrs. Gray's fifth graders are making relief maps and painting them for social studies.

Mrs. Bailey's students have been learning where and when to use the words please and thank-you, mixing two colors of paint with a paint brush and observing the results, and making rhythm band instruments such as drums, stick rattlers and sand blocks for music class.

The second graders in Mrs. Wain's class are making Halloween decorations for their room. In their language class they have been learning to arrange words in alphabetical order.

The younger grades at Evergreen have been listening to phonics records and watching filmstrips for a special class in phonics. These students are also enjoying books on animals from the state library.

Miss Stauffer's class has decorated their room for Halloween with a big skeleton (which they made) on their bulletin board, and a pumpkin.

The class has also been gathering information and cutting out pictures of the three astronauts.

Mrs. Smith's kindergartners have all learned to write their names! They are also collecting pictures of food for a health train of foods they should eat to keep healthy.

All of the students and teachers are glad to have their aide, Mrs. Morgan, back.

W. Campbell Elementary

At the end of each day last week, if a World Series game was on TV the students of the elementary school enjoyed it on their classroom television. The students also watched the lift-off of Apollo Seven.

When the students in Mrs. Haythorn's class learned of Detroit's winning the World Series, they were very happy and made winning pictures of the Tigers.

Mrs. Stickle's room had a spell-down. Among the students left standing at the end of the down were: Shelly Gallagher, LuAnn Galloway, Noreen Callum and Debbie Cook.

In their art class the students in Mrs. Stickle's room have been making interesting abstracts with colored, cut paper designs.

Mrs. Tibbits' class is beginning to make a book worm. Every time they finish reading an entire book, the class is going to make him grow by adding the name of the book to his body.

Cass City Intermediate

The Intermediate School's seventh and eighth graders built their float after school in Mr. Dillon's Industrial Arts class. Many of the students worked four or five hours after school to complete the float. All the meetings were well attended by both students and faculty members.

All of the parts of the float were planned and constructed by the seventh and eighth graders. The result was a beautiful float representing the junior high spirit and hope for a Red Hawk victory.

Several seventh and eighth grade English classes wrote endings to a story. Their answers to the problem of how to treat handicapped children will be the basis for discussions.

Mr. Bifoss's Health Class is studying a new Health series with films Tuesday and Thursday.

FOOTBALL NEWS

The Stricklands won their game Wednesday night over the Spartans. Mr. Albee coached his team to a 40 to 0 victory. Paul Bliss, Kurt Strickland, and Mark McClorey ran the touchdowns while the Spartans fought to get one.

On Thursday the Salas team beat the Boiler-makers by two points in the first quarter when the Salas team pushed the Boiler-makers back for a safety. Later in the game both teams made touchdowns making the score 8-6 in the Salas team's favor.

Rudy Patera, 41 succumbs at home

Rudy Patera, 41, died at his farm home Wednesday, Oct. 9. He had been ill since August. Born in Hamtramck Oct. 21, 1926, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Patera.

He and Miss Rosemary Creger were married June 28, 1952, in Cass City and the couple made their home on a farm in Novesta township.

Besides his widow, survivors include two sons, Randolph and Richard, both at home.

Requiem Mass was held at St. Pancratius Church Saturday morning. The Rev. Peter Pijnappels officiated. Burial was in Novesta cemetery.

Letter to Editor

Dear John:

It is with great hope that the United Fund trustees have opened another campaign in the Cass City area. Each year the needs grow and the requests for aid mount. We hope to attain the same goal of $8,200.00 this year although we already know the requests are up 20%.

For several years the United Fund Board has discussed the growing need to change the method of collection. Giving once a year to support the United Fund Agencies is a wonderful thing for everyone. Unfortunately, many persons cannot give adequately at the time of the drive. Each year some say: "If I could only spread out the time, I could give more."

Industry and employers in Cass City have responded almost unanimously to help our drive by payroll deduction. Thus 50 cents becomes a fitting gift, hurting no wage earner but helping tremendously our drive which supports both the county-state UF but our local agencies as well. Scouting and summer programs depend on United Fund and we never want to fall them.

Thus, we are underway in a new Mission Responsible-United Fair Share Drive giving where you work. The public drive will get underway Friday, October 25th. Solicitors may pick up the envelopes on that day from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The trustees hope everyone will do their share and God bless...

Tom Proctor
President 68-69
Elkland-Novesta United Fund

AN AMERICAN INTERNATIONAL RELEASE

Ask your engine what makes Leonard Premium 500 such a great gasoline!

The engine and fuel system in your car are really the proper critics of the gasoline you use. Some engines, like some people, can stand almost anything. But if yours is a high-performance, discriminating engine, these are the qualities in gasoline it would demand if it could talk:

- Smooth conversion to the proper gasoline vapor-air mixture to give fast starts and warm-up in any season and weather.
  - Fast unleashing of high-octane, powerful components like platformate and alkylate into pure energy, with no wasteful knocking and the minimum of engine deposits.
  - Clean, dry fuel, free of dirt, moisture and gum which would clog tiny passages.
  - Additives that effectively stop corrosion and carburetor icing, that keep the spark hot and strong mile after mile, and that keep carburetors and exhaust parts cleaned to tune-up conditions for long mileage.
  - Uniform quality, tankful after tankful, so that the engine is always eager to give top performance.
- And, these are the qualities you get in new Leonard Premium 500. Try a tankful -- it's a great gasoline!

Book pinpoints
the real malaise

By Dan Marlowe

You're going to be hearing a lot soon about a book called PRESERVE AND PROTECT. It's a novel by Allen Drury, who also wrote ADVISE AND CONSENT, A SHADE OF DIFFERENCE, and CAPABLE OF HONOR.

Like the previous books, PRESERVE AND PROTECT is about politics in Washington, D.C. Nobody writes about it better than Drury. He has been a political reporter in the capitol for 20 years.

It's the timeliness of the new book which will contribute to its impact. An editor's note on the inside front cover of the book jacket sums it up: "PRESERVE AND PROTECT was completed and in the final stages of editing several months before the latest rash of political violence overtook our country. While the incidents of violence depicted in this book are not direct references to any real events, they do point out and underscore the very real malaise from which we suffer."

Pfc. James Grifka
in Vietnam duty

Army Private First Class James J. Grifka, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex J. Grifka of Snover, was assigned as a rifleman with the 101st Airborne Division (Airmobile) in Vietnam in September.

And this editorial note, it should be pointed out, was in print before the recent rioting which took place at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

The point is pertinent because Drury's story, laid at some unspecified time in the 1970's, depicts the democratic process as exemplified by the convention to choose a presidential candidate under an actual state of siege. An army of rebels, wierdos, and have-nots have surrounded the convention hall. These malcontents have been summoned by the powerful supporters, both right-wing and left-wing, who have united behind a candidate.

This man, a wealthy, powerful individual in his own right, closes his eyes to the implications in his choice by the politically, socially, and morally disaffected. The resulting explosion is enough to show that Chicago was a pale carbon copy of what it might actually have become.

It must be said that Drury's prejudices color the book. He is bitter about the United Nations. He is vitriolic about the communications media, especially the columnists and commentators who attempt to foist their own warped right-wing viewpoints upon the country. He is such a good political reporter, though, that despite his bias his story has the crackling immediacy of tomorrow's headlines.

Drury disliked the movie made from ADVISE AND CONSENT so much that he reportedly stated that he would never permit another book of his to be sold to the movies. He will be hard put to stand out against the offers that will be made for this one.

CASS CITY, MICHIGAN -THURSDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1968

Vassar too strong

Victory at Marlette can brighten grid season

Cass City's best chance for another Thumb B Conference victory this season comes Friday night at Marlette when the Hawks meet the Raiders in a battle for a spot near the top of the league's second division. Both teams have won just one game in four conference tries. Also bracketed with the Hawks are the Lakers, a team that Cass City faces Nov. 1.

With a victory over both of these clubs, Cass City could end up in fifth place. If Cass City fails to answer the challenge, the club would probably end up next to last in the conference.

With the season just past the midway mark, it is evident that the top teams are Frankenmuth and Vassar.

The Vulcans showed local fans why with a strong defense and a tough offense last Friday that ruined the Hawks' Homecoming, 39-0.

It was apparent from the opening whistle that the visitors had just too many horses for Cass City.

With Archie MacGillivray, a pile driving fullback, leading the way, the Vulcans took the opening kick-off and moved steadily down the field to score. Henry Horning went eight yards to start the scoring parade for Vassar.

Later in the first quarter MacGillivray capped a drive by smashing over and Vassar led at the end of the first quarter, 13-0.

The Hawks' defense stiffened in the second period, containing Vassar in plays from scrimmage. But the Vulcans added another marker to the mounting points by scoring on a 58-yard return of a punt by Buchman.

THUMB B STANDINGS

	W	L	T	Pts.
Frankenmuth	4	0	0	8
Vassar	4	0	0	8
Bad Axe	3	1	0	6
Caro	2	2	0	4
Lakers	1	3	0	2
Marlette	1	3	0	2
Cass City	1	3	0	2
Sandusky	0	4	0	0

Buchman took the kick and scampered to the sidelines and raced to paydirt behind a wall of excellent blocking. He was untouched by a Hawk defender in this TD jaunt.

In the second half, Vassar sharpened its aerial game scoring three times via the airways.

The first came on a toss from Graubner to Skip Baldwin. The next Graubner heave was to Horning and covered 20 yards. At the end of three periods Vassar's lead was 33-0. A new passer took over in the final quarter as Buchman tossed to Baldwin for nine yards to end the scoring for the evening.

Coach John Bifoss said that the team made a number of mistakes against Vassar. We did have some aggressive plays by a number of boys, he continued.

Terry Brinkman posted the best game on offense and John Dillon was tops on defense. The best blocker was Scott Guernsey, Bifoss said.

Fred Hicks recovered a fumble and Tony Davis and Marty Zawilinski intercepted passes. Rob Alexander blocked an extra point try.

Bifoss said that he is looking for a strong effort against the Red Raiders as the team seeks to climb the Conference ladder.

This week the squad is working to correct mistakes that showed up in the Vassar game, to be ready for the showdown among second division clubs.

The statistics:

	V	C.C.
First downs	13	2
Passes complete	5/10	1/8
Yards passing	102	8
Passes intercepted	2	-
Rushing yards	199	40
Total offense	301	48
Punts, average	1/45	6/41
Fumbles lost	1/1	1/8
Penalty yards	9/105	9/95

EXHORTING his charges in vain Friday was Coach John Bifoss.

Coming Auctions

Saturday, Oct. 19 - Gerald Stilson will hold a household sale at the home located at 6638 Main St., Cass City.

Uncle Tim From Tyre Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

The fellers at the country store Saturday night decided that reports on the death of newspapers was, like the man said, greatly exaggerated. What got them started was this piece Zeke Grubb had saw about newspapers.

This feller said in his piece that by the year 2000 newspapers would be as extinct as plowmules and wimmen with clothes on. The trouble is, this feller wrote, newspapers can't keep up with the times. He said television already has took over news and all the papers got left was the comics and crossword puzzles.

Well, Mister Editor, the fellers was general agreed they was nothing new in this piece, that somebody has been writing obituaries for newspapers ever since ole Ben Franklin started putting out his Pore Richards Almanak afore the Revolutionary War. But Ed Doolittle said from what he could learn they're going stronger than ever.

Ed, that was up reading his newspapers and farm journals afore most people git out of bed, said he was strong for newspapers. He claimed you not only git more news in the paper than anywhere else, but you can git it as fast or as slow as you want it.

Zeke Grubb was agreed with Ed, said them TV folks didn't tell you but when they git set up for some news and it don't work out right they fix it to suit theirselves. For instant, said Zeke, the TV did a series on starving young'uns in America. It turned out later they couldn't find no starving young'uns so they just showed pictures of a sick baby that was born premature.

The feller that runs the store butted in to say he had talked to a heap of salesmen in his time and they was agreed they wasn't nothing that beat the newspapers for making advertising stick in folks mind. He said he sorter feels like that feller said about the Lord-if they wasn't no newspapers it would be necessary to invent some.

Personal, Mister Editor, I was agreed with the store-keeper. For instant, I ain't never heard nothing on radio or saw nothing on television about our sessions at the country store, and if yore paper didn't come out this way we wouldn't know how we was doing much less the rest of the community.

The fellers don't oven come out strong on any item, but they was of a mind that the printed word would outlast 'em all and that newspapers still would be around in 2000-if people are.

And it was Bug Hookum that sorter wrapped up the newspaper subject, Mister Editor. Bug said they won't never come up with news that beats a newspaper fer wrapping up fish, table scraps, and keeping frost off tomaters plants.

Yours truly,
Uncle Tim

If your teenage athletic son or daughter makes a raid on the refrigerator for that milk carton on the day of his big game, it's all right.

A common notion among coaches and laymen has been that drinking milk isn't advisable on the day of the "big game." They believed that it caused a dry mouth and increased mucous in the respiratory system. The result -- a lack of endurance for the players.

This is fallacy. Scientific evidence has shown that there is no basis for these ideas. There is a reduction in water in the body during athletics, but this is due to excessive perspiration during hard exercise and excitement. Studies indicate that mouth dryness occurs as a result, but milk is not to blame.

Remember, every growing teenager needs at least four glasses of milk or its equivalent in milk products daily. Milk is still our best source of calcium. In addition, it contains many other important nutrients including high-quality protein -- necessary for growing and playing those active games.

Whole milk contributes Vitamin A, riboflavin and thiamine, and is usually fortified with Vitamin D. Skim milk supplies the same top-quality protein, except that Vitamin A is removed with the fat. However, fluid skim milk is fortified with Vitamins A and D by most dairies.

Make sure your son or daughter gets the milk needed every day, game or no game.

Auxiliary exceeds membership quota

Nineteen members attended the monthly meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary held Monday evening.

In the business meeting with Mrs. Philip McComb presiding, plans were made for a family dinner to be held in the Legion hall Nov. 9 for Tri-County post and Auxiliary members and their families.

Mrs. Arthur Little gave a report of the Seventh District Association meeting held Sunday in Caro.

The unit, with a membership quota of 81 for the year, is over quota with 82 paid-up memberships reported by the membership committee, Rosella Cherry and Ruth Stapleton.

Mrs. Wilbur Morrison, rehabilitation chairman, has completed the purchases for the annual gift-shop program. The gifts were on display and will be sent to the VA hospital in Battle Creek.

The Auxiliary voted to pay 50¢ for each past president of the unit into the nurses' scholarship fund.

At the close of the business meeting, members heard a review of a new book, "The Mothers of American Presidents" by Doris Faber, given by Mrs. Arthur Little.

AROUND THE FARM

More lime, more profits for farms

By Don Kebler

Last week I was visiting with two brothers in the south portion of the county and we had a long talk about their soil program.

It all began when they brought in one sample each of soil to be tested for lime needs. After receiving the test results they asked me to discuss their soil program.

First of all the fields tested acid with lime recommendations being in the 8 to 10 yard per acre range. They wondered why so much lime was needed and I showed them the recommendations from the university.

Here was a case where liming materials had not been applied in the last ten years and, since this time the soil acidity level increased slowly and gradually every year since until the pH readings were in the medium acid to strongly acid range.

This increase in soil acidity can be accounted for in several ways with leaching and crop removal of liming material

Lt. D. Rienstra at Mather AFB

First leadership training school "very helpful"

"We've never had anything like this before - it was very helpful", said many of the 160 women who attended an Area Leadership Day in Bad Axe October 8th.

The event was co-sponsored by the Thumb Deaneary Council of Catholic Women and Area 14 Homemakers' Council of the Cooperative Extension Service.

Classes were held in the Methodist Church, the County Building and the Detroit Edison Building, with luncheon being served in the Methodist dining room.

Michigan State University instructors used many teaching techniques during the class sessions. Classes dealt with public relations, making visuals, writing reports, chairman's role and individual responsibility.

Women said they expect to use their knowledge and skills in such groups as 4-H Clubs, Parent Teachers Associations, church societies, Extension study groups, youth groups, and other women's clubs.

Ration calcium to prevent milk fever

Too much calcium in the diet can cause milk fever, informs Alfred Ballweg, County Extension Agricultural Agent. Research has shown that an overload of calcium relative to phosphorus in the diet before and immediately after calving leads to milk fever in cows susceptible to the disease. Increasing phosphorus or decreasing calcium levels will substantially reduce incidence of the disease.

Calcium intake can be successfully lowered by replacing alfalfa hay with grass hay and substituting monosodium phosphate for limestone and bone-meal in the dry cow and freshening ration.

Donald Hillman, Michigan State University Extension dairy specialist, suggests increasing the amount of concentrates to a rate of one per cent body weight three weeks prior to calving to prevent milk fever where there is a previous history of the disease. This practice is probably most effective by reducing voluntary consumption of alfalfa hay, says Hillman.

"Hay containing a high percentage of grasses and corn silage makes excellent low calcium diets which can be fed as the only roughage to help prevent milk fever," Hillman reports.

MSU's recommendation for herds with a high incidence of milk fever calls for a low level of alfalfa hay or haylage (not more than 5 to 10 pounds) during the dry period. The grain mixture should contain 12-14 per cent protein fed at the rate of one per cent of body weight beginning three weeks before freshening.

If alfalfa hay or haylage is fed more liberally, bonemeal and dicalcium phosphate should be replaced with monosodium phosphate fed free-choice and included at the rate of two per cent in the dry cow grain ration.

Farmers feeding large amounts of alfalfa should examine mineral supplements to be sure they are low in calcium and high in phosphorus if milk fever cases are frequent, Ballweg advises.

Milk fever, which plagues some dairy herds more than others is especially common among the Jersey breed. However, in some high producing Holstein herds, as many as 75 per cent of the cows are affected by the disease.

Scott Apparel Foam

All Walls' Blizzard-Pruf Suits feature Scott Apparel Foam insulation. Scott Polyurethane Foam is one of the finest, lightest and warmest insulation materials available. The fabric and foam are permanently bonded and will not mat, bunch or deteriorate. The Blizzard-Pruf Suit is completely washable using normal care that should be given to any fine quality cotton garment. Due to the unique "open pore" construction, Scott Foam is far warmer than old fashioned heavy linings: 55% warmer than Dacron, 79% warmer than Wool, 142% warmer than Orlon, 160% warmer than Nylon on an equal weight basis.
