Outstate teacher strike possibility seen increasing board.

By Jim Ketchum

While a teacher strike in the Cass City School District may be remote in the near future, new legislation revamping union-school board bargaining procedures may lead to strikes in other than Detroitarea schools.

That's the feeling of Dave Stafford, local representative for the Michigan Education Association, who spent several weeks in the strike-bound Crestwood School District in Wayne county recently.

Stafford believes proposed legislation is all but certain to legalize teacher walkouts and _provide_for_some_form_of arbitration when teacherschool negotiations reach an

Stafford predicted the new law would, in addition to legalizing strikes, adopt some sort of penalty for bad faith bargaining on both sides and would encourage voluntary

''At some point, they'll probably say a strike is legal if it doesn't interfere with the public health, safety and welfare," Stafford said. "If it does, then I think you'll see arbitration take over."

In recent hearings before the House Labor Committee headed by Rep. William R. Keith (D-Garden City), MEA President Keith Geiger stated the need for legalizing the right of teachers to withhold

'Our current law has been a good first step; however, it is incomplete-it is a law without an ending," Geiger told the committee. "It extends the freedom of collective bargaining but prohibits the right of employees to withdraw services in protest to an employer's actions."

Geiger urged legislators to guarantee the right to strike for public employees, including teachers. He also urged limited arbitration, a guarantee that striking employees could not be fired and penalties for unfair labor practices against teacher unions.

Stafford said generally he is opposed to repealing the law which requires attendance for 180 days.

"Generally, educators have said that 180 days of school are needed to provide a good education for students," Stafford said. "Repeal of the rule would be a detriment to the

On the opposite side, Al Luce, a professional negotiator who represents Cass City and several other Thumb school boards, maintains repealing the 180-day rule is Luce said if teachers are given the right to strike, there should also be some penalty for days not in the classroom. As it currently stands, days missed by strikes are made up at the end of the year.

"If employees strike General Motors, they are not paid for the days they are on strike," Luce contended. "If teachers go on strike, they should not expect to do so without some financial pen-

He said more days are lost by school districts due to "acts of God" than by strikes, yet no one is pushing to make up act of God days.

GETTING TOGETHER

Stafford said the experience of the Crestwood strike could bring about more coordination of efforts between teachers in various districts in the coming year.

"One thing that happened in Crestwood was that teachers in other districts formed a coalition and would not allow any of their colleagues to be fired," Stafford said. "If some were fired, they would to Crestwood Jan. 5. Teachers same thing will go all over the in neighboring districts were scheduled to go out Wednesday, Jan. 8. On Monday, Jan. 6, court action alleviated the need when Crestwood teachers were ordered to be reinstated by the school

"The courts realized the teachers were organized," he said. "In the Reese case, there was no inclination on the part of the courts to take any hasty action. But in Crestwood, when the pressure existed, the courts moved within a week.' He said this kind of strategy could be adopted by teachers all over the state and sees potential for teacher coordination in bargaining in the Thumb area.

'We know school boards get together and discuss strategies before they go into negotiations," Stafford con-

Stafford said he was called of the teachers doing the Stafford's contention that school boards discuss strategies with other districts was denied by Luce. The professional negotiator said it is the teachers who get together to discuss strategies.

"They have more of an opportunity to do so than other public employees do," Luce said.

"It wouldn't be practical for the Caro board, for "instance, to hold off on a settlement until Cass City or Kingston settled," Luce said. "Local people must decide the problems locally. Each district has a certain amount of money to spend and has to work within that frame-

ARBITRATION

Officially, MEA supports tended. "I think the example some form of arbitration. In his committee statement, he said. "For one thing, these Geiger touched on the issue. "When a strike occurs, the employer may seek relief by proof of present danger to the health, safety or welfare of the public. If relief is granted, arbitration ordered by the state should follow which is binding on both parties and retroactive to the termination date of the previous contract," Geiger's statement said. He added that arbitration when ordered by the state should be viewed as a failure of the collective bargaining process but a necessary tool when two mature parties were either unwilling or unable to agree on how they would work together.

He said voluntary arbitration should be encouraged. Stafford said many worries over arbitration are largely unfounded. "I don't buy a lot of the criticism about arbitration.'

people have had a high degree of training. Secondly, they would conduct a hearing to hear all the evidence which could be refuted by the other side. Thirdly, most arbitrators tend to be management oriented anyway." Cass City School Supt. Donald Crouse suggested one compromise plan might be a "last best offer" approach. Under such a plan, each side would submit a final contract proposal. Then an arbitrator would choose either one and that would be the settlement.

"This could put more pressure on both sides to come up with a settlement," Crouse commented.

He said most school administrators still fear arbitration on the grounds that it takes away local control of schools and that an imposed settlement might be more than a school district could Concluded on page 14.

RON SIERADZKI, 16, of rural Deford, manages a smile for the camera as he recovers from a broken leg sustained in a 30-foot fall inside a silo at his father's farm Tuesday, Jan. 28. Rescuers worked nearly two hours to bring him down the silo and transport him to Hills and Dales General Hospital.

Falls 30 feet

Local youth stays cool during rescue

"Where did I put the pitchfork?" That was the only thought racing through young Ron Sieradzki's mind as he fell 30 feet inside a silo on his father's farm Tuesday, Jan.

Sieradzki, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester A. Sieradzki of 350 N. Crawford Rd., Deford, had climbed to the top of the 72-foot silo to see why the automatic silo unloader had plugged up, and had taken a pitchfork with him to throw some of the silage down. Then, somehow, as he stood near the rim of the silo, he slipped and began plummeting 30 feet. In the fall, he broke his right leg.

"He told me afterward that as he was falling, the only thing he could think of was 'Where did I put the pitchfork?'," his mother said later. Fortunately, he missed the fork, but lay in agony, his right leg broken above the His mother heard her son's cries for help and dashed to the telephone to summon a doctor. She was told to call for an ambulance at Little's Funeral Home. Responding to the call, which came shortly before 7 p.m., Roger Little called firemen Ed Bergman and Jim Jezewski, fire chief, to help. Arriving at the scene, they discovered they would have to climb 50 feet to reach the trapped youth. "The rope we managed to get hold of wasn't long enough, so we called the fire station," Little said. "Jack Hartwick and Dick Root brought 100 feet of new rope to us and we fashioned a sling to lift him out." Little said pullies were rigged and the rescuers started up. Before Sieradzki could be lifted out of the silo, however, his fractured leg had to be splinted and two bars across the silo door had to be cut. The rescue effort went smoothly and Sieradzki arrived at Hills and Dales General Hospital a little over two hours after the ordeal

Through it all, Little said, Sieradzki bore up under the pain well.

"He was very brave about the whole thing," Little said. "He was in quite a bit of pain, but he didn't say much."

The youth is reported on the mend this week. According to Dr. H.T. Donahue, Sieradzki sustained a transverse fracture of the femur. After the swelling goes down, he explained, he'll surgically insert an intermudellary pin which will hold the fracture in place. Once that's done, he'll be able to hobble around on crutches until the bone is healed. As for Sieradzki himself, he didn't have much to say about the incident. He's just anxious to get out of the hospital and back on his feet.

New controversy swirls around Owen-Gage sewage system

Controversy began to swirl last week over whether or not the existing sanitary sewage disposal system at Owen-Gage High School could be used to accommodate a new high school building in Owen-

New questions about the disposal system's potential were raised after school architect Frederick E. Wigen of Wigen, Tincknell and Associates, told the Board of Education the system could possibly be approved for use.

Wigen told the board he had verbal assurances from officials at the Michigan Department of Natural Resources that if the system is presently be used with a new building that did not add more students than the present 325.

But according to George Prich Jr. of Huron Line Road, Gagetown, too many questions exist regarding the present system and whether or not it is functioning prop-

Prich said he spoke with Huron County Health Department officials Wednesday, Jan. 29, and was told the decision presently rested with the DNR.

Prich said a check of the area confirmed the system empties from an eight-inch tile into a ditch a half-mile north of the high school. He said it is still unknown where the septic tank is located or Reportedly, no plan for the sewage system exists.

Prich claimed problems with the system draining during high-water periods in the spring have been reported. "I'm not anxious to build a new school over that system until we're sure it passes state standards," Prich said.

Officials at the health department in Bad Axe refused substantive comment on the Owendale situation, saying it was a matter for the DNR and the Michigan Department of Health to decide. The system's future as related to the future of a building issue is sure to come under extensive discussion at the board's Feb. 10 meeting. If the system did not pass a DNR inspection, the building issue might have to be reworked to include a sewage disposal system. Prich claims not as much is known about the Owendale system as is known about the one at Gagetown, where Wigen told the board no building could take place. The system's future also worried

Prich. Louis Kennedy, Sanitarian for both Huron and Sanilac counties, told the Chronicle Monday final approval of the system would have to come from the DNR. He explained the county health department could rule on any system

In a letter written last week to architect Wigen, Kennedy explained his position and said the system should be checked thoroughly before approval is given. "Reportedly, the existing drains will not handle the load in the wet spring season and causes a back-up of water and waste in some rooms, such as home economics," Kennedy told Wigen.

Kennedy would not comment on whether or not the system could be approved, but added he had seen similar systems in other areas which had been okayed by the DNR, as long as no additional load would be added.

NO ADDITIONAL EFFLUENT

Backers of the school proposal say the system would qualify since no additional students would be added to further tax the sewage sys-

Kennedy said in situations similar to Owen-Gage, sometimes the state will okay an existing system provisionally until a municipal system is approved.

Jack Laurie, head of the Owen-Gage Citizen's Study Committee, said late last week he learned that the village of Owendale is close to having a municipal sewage disposal system. He predicted the system would be in operation within five years.

Frank Baldwin, Regional Water Quality Administrator for the DNR's Water Quality Control Division, told the Chronicle Monday as long as no additional effluent were added to the existing sewage system at the high school, a new building could be constructed using the old system.

Baldwin said if no complaints came to the DNR regarding the system, no inspection would be necessary. He added that the district would not need to re-apply for a discharge permit since it is licensed under a "grandfather clause" presently.

"This is assuming the system is presently functioning properly," Baldwin said. "If we had word that there was a problem, then, of course, we could make an inspection."

Baldwin agreed that if a municipal system is on the horizon for Owendale, it is doubtful a great deal of pressure would be placed on the district to bring its existing system up to stand-

He implied that the department could be flexible regarding the situation while at the same time not forcing students to attend class in a less than desirable environment.

He indicated that if any problems might exist with the system, they may not be solvable by the school district itself and could mean a municipal system as the ultimate answer.

GAGETOWN

According to officials, the at Gagetown was dropped by Wigen was that additional students would have been added to the existing septic system, which Wigen said could not be done without upgrading the system.

Had construction been completed, elementary students in Owendate could have been transferred to Gagetown.

Prich maintains the system at Gagetown may in fact be functioning better than the Owendale system, although he had no facts to support the claim.

Wigen explained no known drain field exists at Gagetown while there definitely is a field at Owendale. Prich also whether or not the school district has obtained an easement for the drain from the school to the ditch.

EFFLUENT FROM Owen-Gage High School empties into a ditch a half-mile north of the high school in Owendale, experts say. State Department of Natural Resources officials say as long as no additional load is added to the system, it can be used for a new high school building. Some citizens within the district, however, dispute the claim.

Sentence 3 in Huron assault case

Three Owendale-Sebewaing youths were sentenced to spend the next 10 week ends in the Huron County Jail following pleas of guilty Friday to assault and battery in connection with an incident involving a 15-year-old girl.

I am doubly pleased this week to announce that Mrs. Harold Koch is writing the Gagetown news for the Chronicle. I am pleased, first, because correspondents as good as she appears to be are very hard to come by. The second reason for elation is that Clare Comment, part time farmer and full time basketball nut, can no longer bug me about not having the Gagetown news in the paper.

In this release Armbruster says that gross receipts on some farm commodities have dropped as much as 500 per cent. Which I say is impossible. It can't be more than 100 per cent,

I assume what's meant is that it is now five times less than a previously established high point in receipts, but who can say for sure?

Or maybe I'm just nit picking?

Okay, all you publicity chairmen, this is for you. It's easier to get publicity pictures in the paper if you plan ahead and give us a chance to do the same.

Calling an hour or a day before the event may mean that we just can't work your pet project into our schedule.

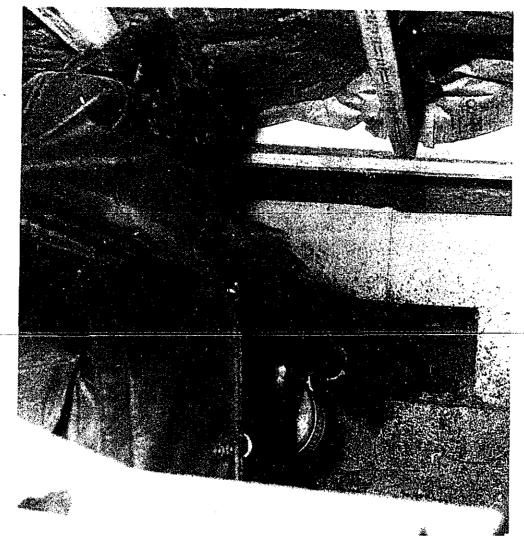

Sure, there's always time for major stories and major pictures of current news events, but pictures of the school play cast or others like it may hinge on the amount of advance warning we have. A week's notice is not too much.

The village of Gagetown moved a few notches closer to having a municipal sewer system, Gagetown Village Councilmen learned at their regularly scheduled meeting Monday night,

A letter from the Department of Natural Resources was read informing the village that it has moved up from 384 to 355 on the state sewer priority list. No possible date for construction was revealed in the letter.

In other business, council voted to continue the policy of issuing its own building permits and conducting building inspections. The action came after a letter from the county informed council it must decide how the village plans to enforce the recently passed State Building Construction code. The council received a check for $3,453.96 from the state as partial payment of the state's share in the construction cost of a new village park pavilion. The pavilion is expected to be completed in the spring.

Council will meet with the Gagetown Fire Department Tuesday, Feb. 11. The meeting was scheduled at the request of the firemen.

A building permit was approved for Martha Remsing to remodel a home damaged by fire last December. Cost of the work was set at $3,000.

You name it and somebody's either formed an organization or is teaching a class telling you how to do it.

From using the telephone to having kids, we have to be led by the hand and have somebody watching out for our interests. I'm not saying all of it is wrong-not by a long shot. I'd still be in the hospital waiting room wondering what had happened to my wife if we hadn't attended those Lamaze childbirth classes to-

And after six weeks of waiting, I'd probably need a shave or a bath at the very least. And my supply of change for the candy machine would be long gone.

It's curious, though, that we Americans have such an affinity for organizations. Put two people together in the same room and before long, they'll form an organization and choose a president, vicepresident and secretarytreasurer.

From singles clubs to marrieds clubs, divorcee's clubs and remarried's clubs, you can wade your way to the Telephone User's Society, the Edsel Car Club and the American Concrete Association all the way up to the American Medical Association and the American Association of Retired Persons.

No matter what it is, there's an organization to tell you how to do it better with less cost. Generally, there's a membership fee, plus dues involved for the service. But then, that's life.

A glance through a copy of the Detroit yellow pages shows enough clubs to keep you broke just paying dues. For instance, there's the Ancient Order of Hibernians, the Choppers Motorcycle Golf clubs abound, as do motorcycle clubs, boat clubs, tennis clubs and flying clubs. There's even a Woodrow Wilson Post No. 347 in Detroit. I'm not sure what they represent, but somebody should tell them the President died over 50 years ago.

With all this in mind, I'm forming an organization of my own, And as soon as somebody comes into the room, I'm nominating them for vice-president and secretary-treasurer.

Gregory Bruce Thompson, 27, of 4245 Maple St., the driver of the van, and Bruce Louis LeValley, of 6188 Cedar Dr., a passenger, were injured in the accident.

Thompson told Cass City Police he bent down to pick up a cigarette that he had dropped and the next thing he knew, the van had struck a parked vehicle.

Police ticketed Thompson for failure to stop in assured clear distance ahead and for transporting an open container of alcohol.

BETTER HEALTH

Hold that salt shaker

BY DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ and DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

Salt did not always have the bad name that it has today. Indeed, in ancient times, salt was more prized than gold.

In imperial Rome a soldier's salary -- "sal" is the Latin word for salt - was literally money to buy salt with. The Roman goddess of health was named "Salus," and even today, if the weather is windy, sunny and wholesome, we hark back to the old connection of salt with health and refer to the atmosphere as salubrious.

But salt has become a villain in our day, more seriously even than butter, eggs and milk, and life without salt is the lot of millions of ailing or near-ailing Americans.

This big change in our attitude toward salt came about when we first recognized that in many conditions of ill health the body is slow to rid itself of even normal amounts of salt and water. This retained salt and water spill into the tissue spaces causing the swelling we call "edema," what your grandmother called "dropsy."

The swollen legs and bellies of patients with sick livers, the puffy ankles and lung congestion of patients with failing hearts and the body swelling of kidney disease are all related to this abnormal retention of salt and water.

When salt is eliminated from the diet of such patients, the stored salt and water finds its way slowly into the kidneys and the swelling goes Diuretics, so-called "water pills," bring down the swelling faster by forcing the kidneys to get rid of more salt and water than they normally dà, but even so, the dietary intake of salt has to be kept well below the amounts we customarily use.

Even more striking in the history of the bad name salt now has is its relation to high blood pressure. Cutting salt out of the diet will often bring high blood pressure down to normal without any other treatment. Although this is a well established fact, most people find such a salt-free diet unpalatable. Fortunately, the use of diurectics is very effective in their 25th wedding anniver- the treatment of much high sary. It was held at the blood pressure and makes Owendale parsonage Sunday such rigid salt restriction un-

The important part of the salt molecule -- chemically sodium chloride (NaCl) -- is the sodium, which is why you will hear doctors refer to low salt diets as low sodium diets.

In the last few years, increasingly powerful water pills have been developed, which can almost always "wring" out the retained water and sodium if the patients' kidneys are able to function even a little, but not without side-effects.

Unfortunately, the more effective they are in washing out the undesirable sodium, the more they tend to wash out potassium, along with the sodium. Potassium is a mineral we very much need to maintain our muscular vigor and to keep our heart rhythm from becoming dangerously irregular.

So if you are taking a diuretic, your doctor will often advise you to eat food rich in potassium to make up for the loss. Two or three bananas each day are helpful. or about three ounces of dried apricots. Figs, dates and raisins are also rich in potassium.

If this is not sufficient, many doctors prescribe two or three teaspoonfuls of a decently flavored syrup of potassium chloride.

If you are faced with mental illness in your family, you should have the helpful booklet, "When Mental Illness Strikes a Family,' For a copy, send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. William J. Welch, Box 4994, Dept. CCC, Des Moines, Iowa 50306.

Her father died a little over a year ago, and served as a local government official.

Betty lives just a short walk from a large university, situated in the midst of the 600,000 population city in Brazil's interior. She plans to attend the university after graduation from high school. She is enrolled as a senior at Cass City and will have to complete high school back home as well when she returns. Betty will stay with the Clarkes for six months. She said she wanted to come to the United States for two reasons.

"First, I wanted to come to see how a family in the United States lives," she said. "Secondly, I wanted to learn the language better. So far, I've enjoyed it very much."

While no formal classes are held during the afternoon, Betty did take special classes in English to help prepare for her trip to the United States. She also studied in another optional evening class.

"I enjoy school very much," she said. "I don't like to skip classes and I don't like being late."

Eventually, she says, she'd like to study medicine, but she admits that's a long way down the road right now.

Another big difference she finds involves the foods we eat. Pizza was something new she discovered one night following a basketball game. Mrs. Clarke said Betty would not eat the new-found food with her fingers, which is traditional with American teen-agers.

Betty is staying with the Clarkes as part of a Youth for Understanding exchange program that saw nearly 250 students traveling with Betty to the United States.

The Clarkes put in their application for a student over a year ago and learned last October that Betty would be coming to stay with them.

Since her arrival, she's becoming more accustomed to her new surroundings. She said she likes Cass City and the friends she has made at school.

Dear Mr. Haire, Just a little breeze from Florida where we look forward to getting our Chronicle which, with our efficient mail service, usually arrives in five days but may take nine. I read "Rabbit Tracks" and would say the only place to make rabbit tracks here would be in the sand. I note in the Jan. 20 issue that Mr. Ouvry thinks Florida weather lousy because it got down to 57 one morning. What would he say if Michigan weather got up to 57 just for one

Then I read in the same paper that there were six accidents in one week due to slippery roads, in one of which a policeman couldn't stop for a car which had stopped for a stop sign. Did he give himself a ticket for too fast driving under road conditions? I doubt it.

They do have accidents in Florida but not because of icy

Then I read with considerable amusement the great problem created for the grocery stores when the sales tax on food was repealed. Checkout girls have always done it in Florida with no problems, no delay and no expensive cash registers. They just use their heads. Surely Michigan girls are as bright. In fact some of the check-out girls here are from Michigan.

I also read with interest the story about the Tanner School. I could give quite a history of McHugh, built in 1882, where I went 1900 to 1907. I later taught there for six years. It was more fortunate than Tanner for after the Evergreen unit was formed, it was sold at auction for more than its original cost and for nearly 20 years has been a part of the Church of Christ, south of town.

Needless to say I can't attend there but a lot of memories come flooding back. Some are very funny and some not so laughable.

Thanks to an appreciative son, we are enjoying a lovely 12x60 mobile home and the long drive which I made 19 times each way is replaced by a two-hour and 12 minute ride above the clouds where the sun is always shining and the sky is always blue. Yours from Florida till the

Foster parents set meeting

"Child Abuse and Neglect" will be discussed by Joe Rotger at a meeting of the Sanilac County Foster Parents Assn., scheduled Feb. 11, at 7:30 p.m., at the Sanilac County Medical Care Facility, Sandusky.

Rotger is Services Supervisor at the Sandusky office of the Michigan Dept. of Social Services.

At the meeting, the group will also hear details of the annual Michigan Foster Parents Assn. conference scheduled for Feb. 21-23 in Lansing.

The group also plans to discuss a proposal to furnish the new Group Home being constructed in Sandusky. Election of officers is also scheduled. All foster parents or interested persons of the area are welcome to attend.

He viewed the position of teachers in a school as similar to doctors in a hospital concerned with upgrading the quality of the institution. Once the economic status has been upgraded, he said, then efforts toward improving quality of education can become paramount.

"Collective bargaining will go a long way toward upgrading 'quality of education,''
Stafford said.

Arraign six in Circuit Court Monday

Six arraignments and one sentencing were heard Monday in Tuscola County Circuit Court before presiding Judge Martin Clements.

Donald Ziehm, 42, Owendale, was arraigned on a charge of driving under the influence of liquor, third offense. He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered in his behalf. Pre-trial examination was set for March 3, and $500 bond was continued. Ziehm is charged with his is checked before it is sent in. "They estimate at least 30 per cent of all the applications filed will be incorrect in some way," he said. "And I can believe it because that's about how it's run here so far. For instance, there's a question on the form that asks the applicant to enter the name he served under in the

"If it's the same as his name, all he has to do is put 'same' on the application. But a lot of them will put in Army or Marine Corps. It's really a simple form but we still have people who don't understand McCann said veterans can expect checks to start coming around the middle of March. Once the initial flood of applicants have been served, he added, the process should speed up.

"We expect that by July, there shouldn't be any more than a three-week wait from the time the application is filed until the serviceman gets his check," McCann said.

He added that unemployment and difficult economic conditions have helped bring more servicemen into his office seeking the bonus which was approved by voters in the November election. McCann said applicants should bring in a legible copy of their DD214 discharge paper when they apply. "You'd be surprised how many totally illegible DD214's are brought in here with applications," McCann said. "If they can't read them, it stalls everything and the application process has to start all over again."

Crowded conditions at the veteran's office in the courthouse have eased from Thursday's initial onslaught, but a steady number of applicants was still reported picking up forms Tuesday afternoon.

Harold D. Enos, 42, no address given, was also arraigned on a DUIL, third offense charge. He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered in his behalf. Pre-trial examination was set for Feb. 18, and bond was continued.

Enos was arrested Nov. 30 in Indianfields township. Al Simon, 17, Bay City, was arraigned on charges of larceny in a building and breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny. He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered on both counts. Simon then entered a plea of guilty to attempted larceny of the building, Frank's Gun Shop, in Wisner township. The plea was accepted by the court and sentencing was set for March 3. Judge Clements also took under advisement a motion to dismiss the breaking and entering count. The offense allegedly took Hawks rebound after dismal game to upset leading Lakers seasons. Anything may happen on a given night and Tuesday night Cass City did it to the Thumb B Conference co-leading Lakers, 65-54, to move Frankenmuth into the league lead all by itself.

Coach Ron Nurnberger's charges played inspired ball against a Laker team that was below par Tuesday. The fine effort followed a dismal performance the previous Friday against Sandusky and renewed Cass City fans' hopes for an interesting district tournament the last week in February.

Following the Laker victory, Cass City will reign as favorites at Caro Friday night. . . .but the way this season has been going nothing is sure.

If Cass City plays as it did Tuesday it should win easily ... on the other hand if the game goes like it did last Friday, look out.

Cass City broke in front to stay in the first quarter. With Cass City a point behind, Jerry Toner hit a jumper, Ken Lowe added a short shot from inside and Dave Eberline picked off an offensive rebound for another bucket and suddenly Cass City was in front by five. And in front they stayed the rest of the night.

The big break came in the second quarter. Laker Coach Dave Johnson pulled all of his starters for five minutes in the second quarter and when he shoved them back into the game with a minute and a half left in the half, the Hawks were in front by 10.

The Lakers made several minor threats in the third period closing the gap to seven points at one stage but Cass City was equal to the

The two teams matched tinued until the final three minutes of the game. The Hawks then shifted to an outside weave and control ball offense.

It worked nearly to perfection as Cass City held the ball until someone broke through for a lay-up and removed whatever chance the visitors had of catching up in the final minutes.

Lowe ripped in 21 points to nullify the efforts of Tom Matteson, the offensive gun for the Lakers, who was credited with 20 to lead the green and white.

Also in double figures were Jerry Toner with 15; Dave Eberline with 13 and Dave Zawilinski with 10. Zawilinski played his best defensive game in recent weeks.

JUNIOR VARSITY

The Junior Varsity's fivegame win string was snapped by the little Lakers, 45-43. The Hawk jayvees blew an early 15 point lead as the Lakers used a last half rally to win.

SANDUSKY GAME

Veteran followers of the Cass City Red Hawks were surprised at the comparatively large crowd at the Sandusky-Cass City basketball game Friday night at the high school. Pleasantly surprised.

The fans were even more surprised, unpleasantly surprised, with the sorry performance staged by the Red Hawks as they dropped a 59-46 decision to the Redskins in a Thumb B Conference

Wrestlers really rolling: talent The loss dropped the Hawks a notch farther behind the leaders in the standings and removed whatever remote chance there was to share part of the league title this

> The story of the game is available in the shooting Caro statistics. Cass City hit just 33 per cent from the field, converting 21 of 63 shots. Sandusky wasn't much better with 23 of 58 for 39 per cent.

The Hawks' cold, cold night was even more apparent from the foul circle. The team converted just four of 12 tries for 33 per cent. The visitors made 12 of 21 for 61 per cent for an average night from the charity stripe.

The visitors served notice that they had come to play in the very first quarter. The Redskins spurted into a 10point lead early in the period as they solved Cass City's press for easy baskets.

The Hawks moved back into contention in the second period with a tighter defense and some good shooting by Ken Lowe. By intermission Cass City had pulled to within four points, 28-24, and it was a ball game again. But not for long. The Hawks never were able to muster a hot shooting quarter. In the first three periods Coach Ron Nurnberger's charges posted identical 12-point totals and then were able to muster just 10 points in the crucial last

With that kind of point production Sandusky had little-trouble-taking-control-ofthe game. The margin widened to six points in the third period and the issue was decided midway into the final quarter.

Lowe led Hawk scorers with 19 points while Dave Eberline came off the bench to play a fine game and score 10 points.

JUNIOR VARSITY

In contrast to the varsity, Coach Dale McIntosh's jayvee squad played what was probably its best game of the season as it turned back the Sandusky JV squad in the preliminary, 57-51.

It was the fifth straight win for the little Hawks who were led by Rick Selby with 18
