

Hospital, doctors face malpractice insurance crunch

Hills and Dales General Hospital faces the prospect of being without medical malpractice insurance within the next 60 days, it was learned Monday. Without such insurance, the hospital could be forced to close its doors.

According to Hospital Administrator Randy D. Howard, the facility learned last week that its annual malpractice premium will jump from $18,000 to $52,000 or a 290 per cent increase.

Howard conferred with members of the hospital's board of directors Monday, but it is uncertain what will happen next. He explained that it is illegal for an insurance company to increase premiums in the middle of a contract year. Telephone calls to the State Insurance Commissioner's office Monday confirmed the fact, but raised an even more ominous possibility.

"We might end up losing them (the insurance company) completely," Howard said. "And if we couldn't find a carrier somewhere, for malpractice, we might have to close."

Howard indicated the malpractice carrier, Argonaut Insurance Co. of Southfield, which has been the primary hospital malpractice insurance writer in the nation, has already pulled out of 14 states and can walk out on its Hills and Dales coverage anytime.

The present policy expires Aug. 1.

"If they stay, we'll either pay out around 300 per cent more in premiums or hope we can find another carrier," he said. "But right now, nobody is writing malpractice insurance."

Saginaw General wound up with a 900 per cent increase, so in a way we're fortunate."

Howard indicated that in the history of the hospital, only one malpractice suit has been brought against the facility, and that was eventually settled out of court.

Under the present policy, the hospital carries $736,000 worth of malpractice insurance costing $18,000 per year. In addition, it carries an umbrella malpractice policy for $1 million, costing $3,000 a year.

Howard predicted this latter coverage will skyrocket when its premium comes due later this year.

"I expect this coverage to jump at least four times in cost," he said. "But right now, I'm just worried about the next 60 days. If the insurance commissioner tells Argonaut that it can't raise its rates during the premium year, it could walk out completely. The whole prospect is very frightening."

Howard said he and many hospital officials through the state favor a complete overhaul of the state insurance laws governing malpractice in hospitals.

"One proposal that is being discussed is that malpractice cases go to arbitration," the administrator said. "From there, fees paid to attorneys could be set on some sort of graduated basis."

He said the Michigan Hospital Association is lobbying hard for revamping existing insurance laws in Michigan.

DOCTORS COMMENT

Increasing medical malpractice insurance rates have also begun to hit local doctors. Dr. J.Y. Lee indicated his medical malpractice insurance rates have climbed by 500 per cent in the past year. He said the entire malpractice insurance situation is creating new difficulties for doctors.

"I'm afraid it could lead to some bad relationships between doctors and patients," Dr. Lee said. "Of course, this problem is not isolated to one field—it exists in the entire medical practice field."

He said some out-of-state doctors are reluctant to start practices in Michigan because of the malpractice insurance law, but added the problem is spreading throughout the nation.

He added he plans to stay in Cass City. Moving to another state wouldn't solve the problem, he said.

Dr. H.T. Donahue said he doesn't expect a billing on his malpractice insurance for another two or three months and isn't sure what the cost will be.

"I've been with the same company 40 years and had no liabilities in that time," Dr. Donahue said. "I'm hoping that will work in my favor, but until then, I just don't know."

He said the malpractice insurance situation at the hospital is very serious and is also putting pressure on newer doctors in the state.

Dr. Efrén M. Dizon, Cass City pediatrician, told the Chronicle Monday he may be forced to leave the village because of an inability to purchase malpractice insurance.

He said one company quoted him an annual premium of $5,000 for $100,000 worth of insurance. In his former state of New Jersey, he bought $1 million worth of malpractice insurance for $700 a year.

He said he is presently operating without malpractice coverage and is doing no emergency work.

"I'm only doing routine procedures," he said. "I'm really getting desperate. I like Cass City very much, but what should I do? If I can't get malpractice insurance within another month, then I'll have to re-evaluate my situation here."

Dr. Dizon said the problem could very likely force him to leave his Michigan practice.

Dr. James Ballard indicated he expects his malpractice insurance rates to climb by as much as 200 per cent when his insurance comes up for renewal in June. Last year, he said, his premium climbed 100 per cent over the previous 12 months.

"And I've been with the same firm since 1946," he said. "The whole situation really frightens me."

He said the Michigan State Medical Society is working with the legislature to develop a form of arbitration in malpractice suits and wants to end the contingency system used by lawyers in malpractice cases.

Dr. K.I. MacRae refused comment on the situation and Dr. Yongkyun Kim was unavailable for comment.

Barn fire loss set at $9,000

FIREMEN BATTLED thick clouds of smoke Tuesday as they managed to save a barn from destruction on the George Cooklin farm on Dodge Road. Officials placed a $9,000 loss on the building and contents.

Fire, believed to have started in a heat lamp, did an estimated $9,000 damage to a barn owned by George Cooklin, 2061 Dodge Rd., Cass City, Tuesday morning.

Elkland Township Fire Chief Jim Jezewski said the blaze broke out shortly before 9:00 a.m., filling the barn with smoke and routing between 20 and 25 pigs housed inside.

Firemen battled clouds of thick smoke, fanned by a west wind much of the morning as they fought the blaze. Jezewski estimated two or three pigs may have been destroyed by the fire, along with a large quantity of hay and beans.

Water trucks from Caro and Gagetown were called in to assist in fighting the fire.

Firemen were forced to pull several siding boards from the south side of the structure to get to the fire, but saved major structural damage from occurring. Jezewski said the roof sustained little damage.

"We were lucky to save the barn," Jezewski commented. Smoke from the fire could be seen as far as four miles away.

No one was reported at home when the fire broke out.

Cass Cityan awarded $321,750

A rural Cass City woman was awarded a grand total of $321,750 in actual and punitive damages by a federal district court last week from a Saginaw credit firm after it had reported she was an excessive drinker and criticized her morals.

A seven-man, five-woman jury awarded the settlement to Ms. Barbara Collins, 25, of 3409 N. Dodge Rd., rural Cass City, after five days of testimony and two days of deliberation.

The suit arose out of a credit report on Ms. Collins filed by Retail Credit Co. of Saginaw in October of 1972 that her attorneys charged contained "false, defamatory and injurious statements."

Attorney Forrest Walpole of Caro said the suit was filed under the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act. He explained the suit asked punitive damages under the act and damages under common law libel.

Ms. Collins was awarded $21,750 in actual damages and $300,000 in punitive damages.

Attorneys said Ms. Collins was refused auto insurance by one firm and was forced to pay high rates with another because of the report. The complaint also alleged Ms. Collins' reputation had been damaged by the report.

The jury found the Saginaw firm guilty of neglect and negligence.

The case was tried before Federal District Court Judge James Harvey, former Eighth District Congressman, in Bay City.

Kingston to decide liquor issue

Kingston village voters will decide whether or not to approve the sale of liquor for consumption on the premises when they go to the polls in the annual village election Monday.

The proposition voters will face reads in part, "Shall the sale of spirits in addition to beer and wine be permitted for consumption on the premises in the village of Kingston?"

The liquor question is the only real contest facing voters, but said there is room for movement on both sides.

He emphasized that only one productive meeting has been held with board representative Charles Minner since Feb. 11, adding that other meetings that had been scheduled were cancelled. He refused to characterize the board's action as bad faith bargaining.

Union claims mediator sought in county talks

Breaking a news blackout that had existed throughout negotiations, representatives of Michigan Council 55 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, revealed Monday that the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners has sought the services of a state labor mediator.

At a news conference called Monday morning in Probate Court chambers, Staff Representative Mitchell Gradowski said the board is seeking the services of the Michigan Employment Relations Commission to assist in negotiations with county courthouse employees.

"We are somewhat amazed by this action," Gradowski said in a written statement, "since we have had only one real meeting since we presented our economic proposals to the board's spokesmen Feb. 11."

Gradowski revealed that a meeting scheduled between union representatives and commissioners set for Tuesday had been cancelled. He implied the board has been dragging its feet to date.

"If they need help, they'd better seek it," Gradowski said. In his written statement, he said the union had no objection to an outside mediator.

"However, they could have asked for this assistance at an earlier date," the statement continued. "The employees of the court house have been patient in spite of the lengthy negotiations. We'd like nothing better than to arrive at an early contractual settlement; the employees of this county deserve this much."

Gradowski refused to discuss specific economic issues, but said there is room for movement on both sides.

He emphasized that only one productive meeting has been held with board representative Charles Minner since Feb. 11, adding that other meetings that had been scheduled were cancelled. He refused to characterize the board's action as bad faith bargaining.

When asked if he felt Minner did not have enough authority from the board to negotiate, Gradowski said it may be so.

"Perhaps Mr. Minner is on a short leash," he said. "This could be the case."

He charged that the board had not done its homework for previous meetings and added that the union has no fear of mediation. He said a mediation meeting is set Tuesday, March 11.

According to Gradowski, the mediator is Leon Cornfield.

WITHHOLD SERVICE?

When asked if union members might consider withholding service, Cornfield said:

Concluded on page 14.

Crisis: County fighting cocks face rent bill, eviction notice

What does it cost to room and board 33 chickens? So far, it's costing Tuscola county at least $371.25. And it could go higher before it's over.

The chickens, fighting cocks, were seized by State Police Feb. 10 in a raid on a cockfight being staged near Millington. Some 116 persons were arrested and the 33 fighting cocks were confiscated and lodged in the Genesee County Animal Shelter.

Thursday, Tuscola County Clerk Elsie Hicks received a letter from Donald R. Sorenson, Chief Animal Control Officer for Genesee County, addressed to the Chairman of the Board of Commissioners:

"Dear Sir: We are submitting a bill for $371.25 for room and board of 33 fighting cocks that were confiscated by the State Police 2-10-75 for evidence. This bill is payable immediately upon receipt of this letter. 33 chickens at 75 cents equal $24.75 per day. 15 days at $24.75 equal $371.25 total. This total takes us through 2-25-75. Mrs. Hicks said Friday she isn't sure what her next move is, other than not to pay the bill. It hasn't been decided yet whose jurisdiction this comes under," she said. "I don't know if District Court has to pay the bill or the county or who. And until then, I can't pay it." Meantime, the bill of $24.75 per day keeps growing. The chickens are being housed until all defendants have been processed through the court on charges of attending a cockfight. Should someone seek a court trial, the chickens would be needed as evidence. Mrs. Hicks said the chickens have to be housed separately because if they were put in together, they'd kill each other. The next question of what to do with the chickens once all the cases have been concluded also faces the county. Since the fighting cocks lay no eggs, there's no produce to sell to help pay their room and board. And since cockfighting is illegal, there isn't much practical use the chickens can serve. It's not known what kind of stew fighting cocks make, but chances are, it's not too good. Mrs. Hicks said it was a safe bet that the County Board of Commissioners wasn't about to build a chicken coop at the rear of the courthouse for their feathered friends. Prosecutor George Holmes had no comment Friday on the situation.

UPDATE

Mrs. Hicks learned Tuesday that the chicken problem has taken on a new dimension—eviction.

In a second letter from Sorenson, Genesee county claims it needs the room and that after next Monday, it will no longer be able to house the county's chickens.

"Due to the fact that we are using our observation room for these chickens and as warm weather approaches, we will need all available space," Sorenson's letter said. "We feel that by this date you should be able to house them outside at someone's farm."

Mrs. Hicks, who lives on a farm herself, has not volunteered to take the chickens.

"I've never had it so good"

"If It Fitz . . ." Baby, light my fire

BY JIM FITZGERALD

It was a snowed-in Sunday. One of those days when a poet looks out the window and sees the meaning of life in a snowflake. One of those days when people of good character yearn to take long strides and deep breaths in the woods.

The sun bounced off the snow and sparkled through the window, dancing dazlingly into every corner of the room. I could not help but say to my wife:

"For God's sake close the drapes. I'm trying to watch TV."

"A fire would be nice," she said.

That's what she always says on snowed-in Sundays when the lousy weather prevents my escape.

Years ago we had a smaller home with a fireplace in the living room but we never had a fire in it because I never had a match. Then we had a couple of more kids and it was deemed necessary to add a second bathroom as I was sick of going 2 blocks to the nearest gas station in my bathrobe.

"As long as we're adding a bathroom we might as well add a family room and 2 bedrooms," my wife said. She said it to the builder while I was at the gas station. Thus the $10,000 deal was made while I was turning the crank on a paper towel dispenser and nothing was coming out. It was an omen.

A few weeks later I returned from an inquisition with my friendly banker who would soon have the legal right to keep me waiting outside the new bathroom for 20 years. My wife was pondering the plans for the family room.

"A fireplace would look nice at the east end of the room," she said.

"So would Elizabeth Taylor," I said with my customary wit. This was before she started dating used car salesmen, of course.

My opposition resulted in a lot of impassioned pleading, tears and deep sobs. All mine. We soon had 2 fireplaces.

"Now I suppose you want a fire," I said.

"Look in the backyard," she said.

"Which way is it?" I asked.

She guided me to the site of a recent disaster. "Did Abe Lincoln's boyhood home collapse against our porch?" I asked.

This was my introduction to a pile of wood. People sneak out of forests during the day and dump these piles in the yards of innocent breadwinners who are off tending the wheels of commerce, little suspecting what evil lurks in the hearts and minds of wives and woodchoppers (unless they've read Lady Chatterly's Lover).

Since that awful day there have been 16 billion piles of wood burned in our fireplaces. My only respite from fire duty is a couple of days in July and when we run out of wood before my wife can yell TIMBER! to the woodchopper.

That's why I wasn't worried this particular snowed-in Sunday. A few weeks earlier I had put 2 empty cardboard cartons at the end of the woodpile and covered them with snow. She thought there was wood under the snow but I knew better, heh, heh, heh. "Sorry, no fire today," I said, "we are out of wood."

"There is plenty of wood and if you ever took any interest in your yard, you'd know it," she said. "The Detroit Edison cut down those 2 dead trees yesterday and cut up the wood for you. There are 2 big piles out there."

This was the same week Edison asked for another rate hike.

The meaning of life, as seen in a snowflake, is that husbands never make it Onward and Upward because they melt too fast.

AT PAR

Food for thought is the only kind that hasn't been affected by the high cost of living.

ALL EARS - Jeff Prieskorn (left) and Kurt Proctor listen in on a recorded story as part of the cassette tape program at Rawson Memorial Library. Cassettes may be checked out for home listening or played on the library's tape player, furnished through a federal grant.

Cassette tapes now at Rawson library

Where can you find the voices of Henry Kissinger, Barbara Walters, the Beatles and a Ku Klux Klan meeting? At Rawson Memorial Library.

The library has begun a new cassette tape check-out program that features famous persons, along with the great classics of literature in condensed form.

The program is funded through a $20,000 federal grant which provides the tape programs and equipment to member libraries in the White Pine Library System, which is a cooperative group of 40 libraries in Tuscola, Sanilac, Saginaw, Huron, Iosco, Bay and Arenac counties.

Rawson Memorial Library has been given a cassette tape player, headphones, cassette display units and a series of tapes. Librarian Barbara Hutchinson said more tapes are expected to arrive shortly.

The programs were selected from a list of over 900 tapes offered by the White Pine system.

Tapes available cover various subjects ranging from business management to old radio programs. Even a live recording of a Ku Klux Klan meeting is available.

According to project director Richard Krumwiede, "We have tried to offer a broad enough selection to meet everyone's needs."

Tapes may be checked out or played at the library, Mrs. Hutchinson said.

Tell county rail abandonments

Approximately 52 miles of railroad track, none in the Cass City area, has been officially recommended for abandonment by the United States Railway Association in Tuscola county, it was learned last week.

Lines recommended for abandonment by USRA include Penn Central and Ann Arbor lines. Specific recommendations call for eliminating service on the line from Colling to Caro, Caro to Vassar, Vassar to Millington, Millington to Lapeer Junction, Vassar to Denmark Junction and Denmark Junction to Munger.

Chesapeake & Ohio and Grand Trunk lines in other parts of the Thumb were not affected by the USRA recommendations.

Cass City area rail users can take little comfort in the report, however, since they are faced with legal abandonment of the Imlay City to Caseville line. Grand Trunk petitioned for abandonment last October.

That petition is awaiting hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission. No date has yet been set for the hearing.

I've never seen her look any more alive, any more vibrant, any better than she did Monday in my office while promoting the Ishangi family's appearance in Cass City.

Maybe that's an exaggeration, but I honestly don't think so.

At the very least she is deeply involved, working very hard and, without the slightest doubt, very happy to be working.

You'll never have to be "sorry" for Holly.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

The "sorriest" people in this world are those who have nothing going for them outside of working, eating and sleeping.

Nothing that gives them that special thrill, that inner satisfaction, that beautiful concentration that wipes away everything that stands in its way.

Doing the thing that always will banish, however briefly, the cares of the day.

Being turned on by . . . a day spent fishing in a beautiful stream on a rare spring day.

Blasting the stillness of winter with a high powered machine.

Involved in a game where the emotion runs high.

Working the garden or manuring the lawn to make it the 'best' in the block.

A ride in the country on a beautiful fall day or a swim at the beach in the hot summer sun.

Building a table or baking a cake may do it for you.

Or maybe club work, village councils or school boards is where your action is.

For Holly Althaver the thing is art and culture. Most folks know that it was Holly who sparked the finest small town Arttrain week in the history of the show when it stopped here.

They know, too, that she is the president of the Cass City Arts Council.

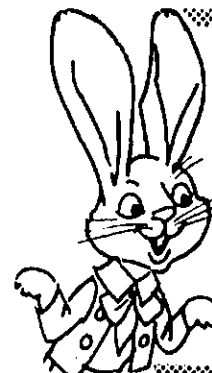

With Holly at the helm the Council has brought outstanding shows to the village.

Another comes Monday when the Ishangi Family of Nigeria dances for the students (and anyone else interested) at the Intermediate School Monday. It's a top show and the performers are pros. . . and as always Cass City is one of the few small towns on the performers' agenda.

Now Mrs. Althaver is worried about doing something in connection with the Bicentennial. . . she's got ideas, but she doesn't know about the community interest.

All this is just a little background for what I started out to talk about.

Having something going that lifts the spirit. I'll confess

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Sneaky, I call it.

Lambert Althaver asks if it's too late to get an item in this corner of trivia and then up and tells me I erred in a basketball item reported here.

This year's team lost six games, not five, in the Conference . . . which makes the record the same as last season.

Editor Jim Ketchum turned this item in about Harry Little. According to his wife, Edith, Harry has been trying for three years to catch a sailfish without success while in Florida or Acapulco, says Jim.

You'll have to excuse our editor for thinking this was a bit of trivia well worth reporting.

The rest of us who have seen Harry on the lake and in trout streams over the years know about his "fisherman's luck".

We won't mention the time (and don't you dare ask) he swamped his boat or the fishless week ends on the AuSable.

Be nice! Ask to see the giant Rainbow (Steelhead) that he caught and had mounted.

That one didn't get away.

I can understand it but The percentage of the payroll that the Chronicle pays for unemployment went from one per cent in 1974 to 1.5 per cent in 1975. During nearly 25 years here there has been one person draw against the fund from the office.

That was after the Korean war when we hired a man to replace a soldier and then gave the soldier back his job when he returned.

The reason for the raise, of course, is that steady employers like the Chronicle must help pay for other businesses where labor fluctuates.

As I said, I can understand it, but

B. A. Calka feels that Arab money invested in America is A-okay.

It would be especially beneficial, he says, if some of it were pumped into the Thumb area economy.

With that in mind he wrote to the new major stockholders of the Bank of the Commonwealth with a major land deal proposition.

Sorry to report but those sheiks are as smooth as oil. No answer.

We don't know if it's because business is good or bad but about a dozen showed for a retail meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday at 7 a.m.

That's twice as many as usually show. And for the first time in several years there will be four town-wide promotions instead of two.

The first comes your way in mid-April.

The Ken Martins returned to the real world last week after a vacation stint at Las Vegas. You were right about Las Vegas Mrs. Martin said. It's just like you said it was.

You know it's a lot easier to write an item like this than the one that opened this column of nonsense.

Set millages at Kingston

Millages for 1975 were set by Kingston Village Council during its Monday night meeting.

Clerk Mrs. Mildred Parrott reported millage for general operation was set at 10 mills; highway, two mills; water debt, two mills; fire protection, one mill; police protection, one-half mill; and water operation, two mills to be set aside for the purchase of water meters.

A final figure on the general fund budget was not available, she said.

Astrology brings self-knowledge for Mrs. Donahue

By Jim Ketchum

What's your sign of the Zodiac? What's your rising sign, sun sign and moon sign? Chances are Darlene Donahue can tell you. And she can explain what it all means to your personality and how you can better understand yourself.

Mrs. Donahue is an amateur astrologist. She's studied this ancient science a little over three years and in that time, she has come to understand it as more than a horoscope printed in the daily newspaper.

"I was never really interested in astrology in the newspapers or magazines," the attractive former fashion model explained as she sat at the table in the family kitchen. "It just never interested me because I never believed anyone could tell the future—only God. And I still do."

Then three and one-half years ago, someone gave

Mrs. Donahue a book on astrology while she was in the hospital.

"I got tired of reading novels, so I started in on this," she recalled. "That's what really got me going."

From there, her studies grew and she eventually became convinced in the basic tenets of the science—that the motion of the planets and stars has a definite bearing on human personalities.

Mrs. Donahue, who resides with her husband, Richard, son Douglas, 8, and Dawn, 6, in a spacious home 10 miles west of Cass City, doesn't consider herself a true expert. Yet her knowledge of the science is great.

She explained that astrology is the science of the galaxies. It began in ancient Babylon with the priests 3,000 years before the birth of Christ.

It did not make its way to the western world until the 10th century A.D. and never got very favorable treatment from the church. While St. Augustine recognized it as a science, he condemned it as criminal and inherently evil.

Astrology stood still for many years, she explained, until the mid-1960's when it gained popularity on college campuses. She believes it has continued its rebirth into the 1970's.

"I still don't believe in being able to predict the future," Mrs. Donahue emphasized. "Only God can do that. But I do believe that a study of astrology can help you understand yourself better and can provide ways of improving yourself."

She finds no conflict with the study of astrology and Christianity.

"I think God wants us to understand ourselves," she said. "I think He's interested in us as individuals and I think this is one way of gaining some of that self-understanding."

SIGNS

The study of astrology is broken into four general signs in which the 12 Zodiac signs are grouped.

Fire signs include outgoing, idealistic persons generally born under Aries, Leo and Sagittarius. Air signs include good communicators and socially-minded individuals born under the signs of Libra, Aquarius and Gemini.

Water signs include emotional persons who understand others easily and are born under the signs of Cancer, Scorpio and Pisces.

Earth signs include practical, money-minded individuals born under the signs of Capricorn, Taurus and Virgo.

"Once I began studying these things and the positions of the planets and sun, moon and rising signs, I began to understand myself better," she said. "Actually, I was doing much the same thing as a child. I would analyze people and use the information to help my understanding, but I never realized what it was until I began studying astrology."

Mrs. Donahue doesn't go in for reading cards, palms, or tea leaves. That gets into the area of predicting the future which is a whole different area.

INSIGHT

Mrs. Donahue's ability to analyze is something she prefers to call insight, rather than anything psychic.

She dreams a great deal and at times has related those dreams to events in life.

Part of that insight comes from studying birthdays. By knowing the time, date and year, Mrs. Donahue claims birthdays are extremely revealing.

Through her gift of "insight", she is able often to tell the sign of the Zodiac under which you were born.

"We were in a group of persons once for about a week and of the six couples we were with, I guessed all their signs and birthdays except one by the end of the week," she said.

"You can tell from watching their personality traits and listening to them talk," she said. "For instance, it's easy to tell that Lucille Ball is a Leo. No question about it."

She pointed out, however, that she doesn't analyze everybody.

NO SUPERSTITION

Mrs. Donahue discounts superstition completely in her study of astrology.

"I'm not a superstitious person," she said. "You're superstitious when you have to read your horoscope in the daily newspaper to find out what's going to happen to you that day."

Mrs. Donahue says self-improvement is the greatest gain a person can achieve with a study of astrology.

"I've heard that most people in the United States today are striving to take on the characteristics of Sagittarius," she said. "They have high moral standards and will stick to their principles no matter what. They are generally very open and tend to express their opinions. They're jovial and don't have much trouble meeting people."

She said part of President Nixon's downfall came through an inner conflict in his Zodiac signs.

"His sign is at the Taurus part of Capricorn," she said. "That's generally the type that can't stand arguments and ends up doing things he really doesn't want to do just to keep an argument from erupting. I think he's suffering more than other signs because of this conflict."

BIRTHDAYS

Birthdays are extremely confidential to Mrs. Donahue, for these are the window of the personality. A birth date reveals three important signs, sun, moon and rising. These probe both the conscious and sub-conscious mind.

She rarely asks anyone their birthday and is reluctant to reveal her own, for birthdays tell much about the individual.

Mrs. Donahue is also fascinated with the study of gene structure and how they relate to astrology. This is a whole new realm she hopes to study soon.

She holds a bachelor's degree in art from Central Michigan University and a master's degree in elementary education from Michigan State University. She has some credits toward a doctorate in child development and psychology.

"I've been a little reluctant to talk about it in the past because some just aren't interested," she said. "But there really is a lot to it once you begin to view it with an open mind."

She said one thing she has learned through studies of astrology is never to close your mind to an idea you know nothing about. This blocks understanding. "Besides," she said, "it's fascinating."

MRS. RICHARD DONAHUE and daughter, Dawn, are shown in a quiet moment together. Mrs. Donahue has studied astrology as a hobby for about three years and believes human lives are directly affected by the motion of stars and planets.

1,000 county families who could use food stamps don't, experts say

By Jim Ketchum

It is Monday morning. The line of persons waiting to purchase their monthly allotment of food stamps at the Department of Social Services building on West Caro Road, just west of the village, began forming before the doors opened at 8 a.m.

All day long, every day, they come to purchase the coupons that help make already scarce dollars stretch a little farther at the grocery store checkout line.

Many are young or middle-aged. Some are disabled, walking with the aid of canes or crutches. Others are senior citizens who retired and have only their Social Security checks as income.

In spite of the packed scene in the lobby of the social service building, it's estimated that over half the families in the county eligible for the program don't take advantage of it.

According to Onalee Detwiler, Director at the department, this means over 1,000 county families who theoretically could buy the stamps don't.

Why?

According to Mrs. Detwiler, there are several reasons.

"Frankly, some people know they are eligible but they've heard so much criticism of the program that they're afraid of possible comments from friends or neighbors," she says.

"Then there are other families who would participate in the program but don't think they're eligible and haven't checked with us to find out for sure."

Still others are discouraged by what they see as long delays and too much paperwork, Mrs. Detwiler says. Some complain that the food stamp program has not kept pace with inflated food prices.

According to department statistics, in January 1,078 Tuscola county families received food stamps. She said that, according to national averages, at least another 1,000 families in the county could take advantage of the program.

Because of this, efforts are underway by the department to increase participation in the program. This involves an information campaign along with contacts made by volunteers with families already on public assistance.

Social worker Ray Speigl said a survey is underway to make such contacts and that after two weeks, one more family has been signed on from four contacts made.

Speigl said many of the reasons given for not using the stamps involve either the social stigma connected with public assistance or with transportation. He said volunteers will be working to help bring eligible clients to the office to pick up stamps.

Another move involves selling the stamps at local post offices. Mrs. Detwiler said Tuscola county post offices are scheduled to phase in the program around April 1, although final details are still to be settled.

"We think this might take a little of the stigma away," she said. "If the stamps can be bought at the Post Office this may increase participation in the program."

In spite of many eligible families not using the stamps, the number of families using them has increased five-fold in the last five years.

In 1969, when food stamps were first sold in the county, a total of 2,110 families purchased them. Last year, 10,117 families in the county bought food stamps.

In the last two years, the value of stamps purchased has nearly doubled. In 1972, a total value of $669,292 in food stamps was sold in Tuscola county. Last year, that value hit $1,118,232.

WHY INCREASES?

Why have so many more families begun using food stamps when the population of the county has increased only slightly?

Part of the reason involves increasing unemployment rates. But an equally important factor is senior citizen participation in the program.

"With inflation hitting fixed incomes so hard these days, more older persons are taking advantage of the stamps, even though the stigma against using them is probably greatest among this segment of the population," Mrs. Detwiler said.

She said most of the applicants for food stamps come from the southern part of the county, many laid off from factory jobs.

Mrs. Detwiler doesn't see any practical way to change attitudes against using food stamps, especially among older citizens.

"Part of the problem in Tuscola county is that people know each other well and don't particularly want to be seen in the food store using food stamps," she said.

Food stamps are sold to qualifying clients at a rate based on family income. The ceiling income for a family of two in the food stamp program is $280 per month. Ms. Barb Duemler, who works with the program, says many persons seeking the stamps today fall at this income range. Usually, though, they're substantially below it.

PROCEDURE

Generally, stamps can be had the same day application is made, Mrs. Detwiler said. Each applicant is screened and a social worker runs a computation on the application. If everything checks out, the family can purchase stamps that day.

Cost of the stamps is based on a sliding scale and is dependent on income. For example, if you are single and earn between $190 and $209.99, $46 worth of stamps would cost you $36. If you made under $20, the same amount of stamps would be free.

A family of eight, allotted $256 worth of food stamps and earning less than $210 per month would pay $57.

For each person in excess of eight in a household, another $22 is added to the eight-person allotment.

Recent White House statements suggesting that the price of the stamps be raised upsets the local social service workers.

"Raising the price of the stamps seems a little unjust," Mrs. Detwiler said. "If it happens, I'm sure there will be a lot of older people who won't be able to afford them."

It's doubtful, however, that any price rise will come soon. Standards are expected to be reviewed soon, Mrs. Detwiler said, regarding eligibility. It's hoped that the revisions will bring more needy families into the program.

In the meantime, department personnel indicated more effort will be made to reach needy families in the county and to work around the stigma of government assistance.

Officials indicated that the numbers of persons applying has begun to level off.

"I think we may be reaching most of the families who are willing to use the stamps," Ms. Duemler said.

That still leaves over 1,000 families who could receive the stamps, according to national statistics.

How to reach them still remains the challenge.

Gagetown okays land purchase

Gagetown Village Council agreed to purchase 13 acres of land adjoining 27 acres already owned by the village near what is known as the Fisher farm at its Monday night meeting.

Clerk Mrs. Elery Sontag said council will purchase the land for $500 per acre. The action came following word from the Gagetown Development Corporation that it did not wish to renew its option on the land. The development corporation had held the option for about two years, Mrs. Sontag said.

In other business, council granted a seven per cent pay increase to village maintenance man John Tenczer, effective March 1.

Council granted permission for Michigan Bell Telephone Co. to lay underground cable from its building to Fifth Street.

It did not act on a building permit request submitted by Art Carolan to remodel a house in the village, pending further study.

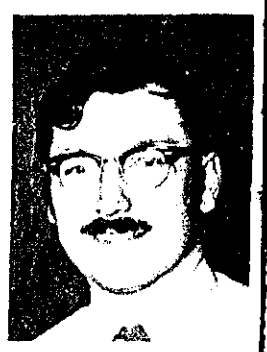

Trustees also discussed the possible purchase of a new street sweeper, but took no action, pending further investigation.

Village bills totaling $1,900 were approved for payment.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

The 'new' Ehrlichman

By Jim Ketchum

At least one thing good has come out of the Watergate mess—John Ehrlichman has developed a sense of humor.

You remember Ehrlichman. He was the presidential advisor who looked a lot like a concentration camp commander when he appeared before Sen. Sam Ervin's committee.

That—famous—scowl—has forever been etched into the pages of history, along with Ervin's throbbing eyebrows and Spiro Agnew's impassioned plea that he wasn't a crook and would never resign.

Since his trial and conviction on cover-up charges, however, a new Ehrlichman has emerged, not unlike the "new" Nixon a lot of us voted for in 1968. This Ehrlichman has shed the Prussian soldier image and is valiantly trying to re-enter the human race.

His first attempt came just after he was indicted. Off went those plastic-framed half-rim glasses, replaced faster than Perry Mason could dissect Hamilton Burger, with wire-rim spectacles.

The next alteration was in the mouth. No doubt he spent long hours standing in front of the bathroom mirror practicing how to smile. This obviously took some effort and probably put a lot of strain on the mirror.

Then came tears on the stand. This was designed to show the jury in general and Judge Sirica in particular that indeed he was a person and had been covering it up all the time.

Then came the latest revelation of Ehrlichman's humanity—his sense of humor.

As he was being sentenced, his attorney asked kindly old "Maximum John" if his client could please do penance by working on legal matters for the Pueblo Indians. This, instead of going to jail, would be far more beneficial to society, the attorney reasoned.

No doubt Judge Sirica did his best to keep a straight face as he sentenced Ehrlichman to jail.

As special advisor to the President on domestic affairs, I don't recall much that Ehrlichman did to benefit the Pueblos or any other Indian tribe in this country.

The Indian tribes still record abnormally high rates of alcoholism, suicide, drug addiction and lives in crime.

The family structure continues to break down on the reservation because work, along with the money it provides, is as scarce as indoor-plumbing, central heat and a balanced diet.

Indians continue at the bottom of the economic and social totem pole and suffer more from discrimination than any other segment of society.

And John Ehrlichman now wants to do his penance by working with the Pueblos handling their legal matters.

It would probably be far more useful for the former White House advisor to grab a shovel or a pick and help install a few water and sewer lines on the reservation. What Indians need is a chance—not a lawyer with a criminal record.

John Ehrlichman can't give them that chance.

GOING OVER guidelines for Tuscola county's food stamp program are (from the left) Ray Speigl, Onalee Detwiler and Barb Duemler. It is estimated that at least 1,000 families in the county who qualify for food stamps are not taking advantage of the program.

Sentence 5 in Circuit Court

Five sentences were handed down Monday in Tuscola County Circuit Court by presiding Judge Martin Clements.

James W. Roblin, Caro, was sentenced on a jury verdict of guilty to delivery of heroin, to Jackson Prison for five to 20 years. In addition, Judge Clements recommended counseling on drug abuse for Roblin.

Roblin was convicted by a Tuscola county jury Feb. 6. He was arrested May 31, in Caro.

Al Simon, 17, Bay City, was sentenced on charges of larceny in a building to two years' probation and fines and costs totaling $200, payable at $20 a month. In addition, he was also ordered to pay restitution of $100 at $20 per month.

Judge Clements ruled, however, that Simon is to receive $20 per month credit for each month he attends school. Court sources said this could mean Simon might avoid paying the fine altogether if he stays in school.

Restitution will still have to be paid, however.

Leo Glenn Waterman, Fostoria, was sentenced for a plea of guilty to failing to return rented property valued at less than $100 to one year of probation and fines and costs totaling $200.

In addition, Waterman was ordered to pay restitution of $294.14 at $40 per month and to spend 60 days in the Tuscola County Jail with credit for 20 days served.

Waterman had been charged with driving a vehicle away from a Caro auto dealership Dec. 9.

Rick Freeman, Akron, was sentenced on a probation violation to serve 29 days in the county jail with credit for 29 days already served.

He had been placed on probation last year.

Gordon Houghteling, 21, Vassar, was sentenced for a plea of guilty to unlawfully driving away an automobile to one to five years in prison to run concurrently with time already being served at the facility at Milan.

Houghteling had pleaded guilty to the offense Feb. 6. Three arraignments were also conducted before Judge Clements Monday.

Alvin Vollmar, 17, Akron, was arraigned on charges of breaking and entering and larceny in a building. He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered in his behalf.

Pre-trial examination was set for April 21, and bond was continued.

Vollmar is charged with breaking into a bar in Akron Jan. 22, and taking a television set.

Vollmar was also arraigned on breaking and entering and larceny charges involving the Briggs Furniture Store in Akron. He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered in his behalf. Pre-trial examination was set for April 21, and bond was continued.

Vollmar is charged with breaking into the furniture store Jan. 16, and stealing a microwave oven, $750 in cash and a hair dryer.

Tracy Don Kelly, 17, Caro, was arraigned on charges of possessing the drug PCP. He entered a plea of guilty to a lesser count, use of PCP, which was accepted by the court.

Sentencing was set for April 21. He was arrested Nov. 20, in Caro.

At a pre-trial examination held Monday, Donald D. Ziehm, 42, of Owendale, entered a plea of guilty to driving while under the influence of liquor, a second offense.

The plea was accepted by the court and sentencing was set April 21. Bond was continued.

Ziehm was arrested in Elmwood township Dec. 23.

AROUND THE FARM Radial tractor tires

By William Bortel

Radial tires have been promoted as the "next major innovation in tractor tire design", and have recently become available in a limited number of sizes. Advantages of radials on automobiles are well known and widely accepted, but will these same advantages apply to tractor tires?

During the summer of 1974, the Nebraska Tractor Testing Laboratory ran a series of tests to compare the effects of conventional and radial tires on drawbar performance. Tests were run on both the concrete test track and on cultivated soil. Six-ply 18.4-38 tires were used without liquid ballast, but with 450 pounds of cast weights added to each radial tire and 520 pounds to each conventional tire. (Each radial tire was 70 pounds heavier than its conventional counterpart.)

Summarizing test results briefly, fuel economy was improved by 5.1 per cent at maximum load through the use of radials. At 75 per cent load, fuel economy was improved by 2.2 per cent, at 50 per cent load by 4.5 per cent, and at 50 per cent load, part throttle, by 5.0 per cent.

In general, it looks like we can expect an overall improvement of fuel economy by roughly 5.0 per cent in over-all year-round tractor use through the use of radials. The radials used in this test, however, cost $280 per pair more than conventional tires. At 40-cent diesel fuel, there is "fuel" economy, but not much "dollar" economy in the use of radials on tractors. As production of tractor radials increases, the price differential may go down. Also, the cost of diesel fuel could go up. Either or both of these factors could quickly change the "dollar" economy picture.

Town & Country REVIEW OF AREA BUSINESSES

RIECK'S USED AUTO PARTS, INC.

SEE ROGER, DENNIS OR CLINTON RIECK

The next time you're in the market for used auto parts, contact Rieck's Used Auto Parts, Inc. located at 4549 E. Sanilac in Kingston, phone 683-2351, one of the largest used auto parts selection in the state of Michigan.

Many do not appreciate the value of an auto wrecking concern to a community, although they help both the ecology and the economy. They will pay the highest price for your wrecked 1970 to 1975 auto. They will take it to their place of business and work on it. Engines, transmissions, parts and accessories are segregated in one area and the car body is placed in a separate area for used body parts.

Many dollars may be saved on parts if purchased at Rieck's Used Auto Parts, Inc. Their parts are in good condition and completely checked over. All their employees are familiar with automobiles and trucks, and are courteous and accommodating. See them for auto parts, or whenever you have an automobile that is no longer in running condition that you want to sell. They have a large selection of used engines, transmissions, alternators, generators, starters and much more. They also have 3 hot lines for finding any part you might need from a five state area. We take this time to endorse this fine wrecking yard of fair and honest dealing.

They offer a way for farmers to secure loans in a business like manner, without being imposed upon in any way. There can be no better way to secure funds for your agriculture needs than to visit the Federal Land Bank.

National Computer Service of Bay City

DALE HERNDEN - GENERAL MANAGER

Reliable automated accounting and inventory control service is an important asset to a community. The National Computer Service of Bay City at 623 Washington in Bay City, phone 893-3564, offers a complete automated accounting service to the businessmen of this area. These services include professional billing, accounts receivable, accounts payable, general ledger and payroll processing. They offer pick up and delivery service or remote processing.

To correctly direct a business, the manager or owner should keep his mind free from details in order that he may introduce new and better methods into the business. As the directing head, it is his duty to guide the business upward, and over the rocks and pitfalls that are so prevalent, particularly at this time. Quite obviously, no business executive can give his entire attention to the expansion of the business if he has loaded himself with the mechanics of keeping his own books.

We suggest to our readers that they let National Computer Service of Bay City handle all their accounting and inventory control needs. In this section the one to call is this well respected and reliable computer service. They also provide a complete software service for businesses with their own data processing department. This includes system design, programming and conversion aids.

AGENT'S CORNER

Buying a slow cooker

Allene Mills - Extension Agent

Buying an electric slow cooker? Consider these tips from Michigan State University equipment researchers.

The location of the heating coil is one of the most important features of an electric slow cooker. If the heating coils are located only in the base of the cooker, the effect is the same as a gauge pot on the electric range at the warm temperature.

After determining the location of the heat source, inspect the lid. With a see-through lid, you can check the food without lifting the cover.

If the lid is lifted, moisture and heat may escape, causing the food to dry out or burn. In addition, loss of heat may increase cooking time.

Is the cooker easy to clean? Some contain removable inner cook wells and heat-control units. They can be completely immersed in water or washed in the dishwasher.

Investigate the control dials. Some slow cookers have an automatic shift in the position of the control dials that lowers the temperature from high heat. This shortens cooking time by bringing the contents to a boil on the high setting and then automatically adjusting to a low setting to continue cooking. The automatic shift is especially helpful on slow cookers that offer an extra high heat setting for browning or deep fat frying.

Turn the temperature dials to find out whether they operate with stops for each setting. This feature helps separate the regular cooking temperatures from the special-purpose ones. Does the dial turn to an off position or must you unplug the cooker to turn it off?

The inside of the cooker may be stoneware, aluminum, Teflon-coated or porcelain enamel. Stoneware can be vulnerable to damage from sudden temperature changes or sharp blows, but retains the natural flavors and juices best.

Mineral deposits from water and food stain aluminum. Teflon II needs careful handling to prevent removing the finish. Porcelain enamel may crack, craze or chip.

Because brands vary in the amount of electric power the cooker uses, determine the wattage of the cooker at its highest and lowest settings. Ask yourself if you really need browning, frying and faster cooking features, which use more electricity.

Look for the Underwriters Laboratory (UL) seal for proof the product meets safety standards.

Examine the guarantee to learn which parts of the slow cooker are covered and the length of the warranty. Can the cooker be serviced locally or must you send it to the factory or service center for repairs.

Your neighbor says

TV soap ad

really smells

We've all got a television commercial we hate with a passion. Whatever it is, the ad probably turns us away from the product more than it influences us to buy.

For Wayne Dillon, counselor at Cass City High School, his is a soap commercial.

"It's the one where the guy comes home and sings 'I smell clean' to his wife," Dillon says. "That's probably my most un-favorite commercial."

Dillon says he is not heavily influenced to buy through television advertising and believes printed advertising has more influence with him.

"I tend to read ads and shop locally," he says. "I'm not about to drive a long distance to buy something and then not have it work and have to take it back."

Dillon is a native of the Unionville area.

Letter to the Editor

Banker views economic woes

February 28, 1975

Dear Editor:

Views of a small town country banker:

We have experienced inflation in the price of almost everything, but no inflation compares with that which we have had in interest.

Under President Harry Truman in 1945, the interest on Federal Land Bank mortgages was 3 1/2 per cent; now, the interest rate is 8 1/2 per cent. The interest charged on Production Credit loans to farmers was 5 per cent. Now the farmers pay 1 1/2 per cent a month on fertilizer notes, and accounts with the large retail stores - 18 per cent.

Under Truman, government bonds bore 2 1/2 per cent. When the Federal Reserve Bank started to raise the rate, Truman said, "Back up. I am not going to make the public pay twice for the war". The Fed did back up, for a time.

Country banks used to loan money on farms and houses as low as four per cent and most of the time at five and six per cent. Over seven per cent was usurious.

Martin Mayer points out in his book "The Bankers", that a rise from seven per cent to nine per cent in the interest on a $30,000 mortgage loan makes a difference of $11,700 over the life of the mortgage. This is what the mortgagor would have been able to spend to keep the economy rolling.

What good will it do those in debt to refund their taxes if you take it away in interest? William McChesney Martin, President of the Federal Reserve Bank, started the raising of interest rates in 1965. The banks were paying 3 per cent on savings accounts. The country banks had 75 per cent of their deposits in savings. The large city banks had 13 per cent in savings. Hence, a 1 per cent raise in savings rates didn't affect the big banks much.

The interest rates paid by banks has kept increasing with the blessing of the Fed until now. Savings and Loans are paying 7 1/2 per cent.

Arthur Burns, succeeding Martin, has the same philosophy as Martin and I believe one can make it a good case that the financial mess the country is now in is due to the policy of the Federal Reserve Bank.

The national debt is over $500 billion and going up. The interest on the National Debt is $35 billion a year. The Fed needs better guidance than it is getting.

As a matter of fact, the Fed, with its interest charges, is in great part responsible both for the inflation and the depression.

Gagetown family hurt in 2-car crash

A Gagetown family of five and a Fairgrove man were injured Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 26, when their cars collided at the intersection of Kirk and Darbee Roads in Fairgrove township.

Injured were Clinton Smith, 27, of 5186 Jacob Rd., Gagetown; his wife, Carolyn, 27, and their children, Tammy, 6, Candy, 5, and Laurie, 4, all of Gagetown, and Terry Sutphin, 27, of Fairgrove.

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies who investigated the two-car crash reported the Smith vehicle was headed west on Darbee Road and stopped at the intersection. He failed to see the Sutphin vehicle, headed north on Kirk road, and pulled into the path of the oncoming auto. Smith was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way. Smith and his children were treated and released from Caro Community Hospital. Mrs. Smith was reported in good condition Tuesday at the hospital. Sutphin was treated at St. Luke's Hospital, Saginaw. The mishap took place at 4:25 p.m.

FIVE INJURED

Five persons were treated for injuries at Marlette Community Hospital after their car went out of control and struck a tree on Marton Road five miles east of Kingston Friday.

Injured were Virgil Pearl Greenfield, 39, of 6935 W. Sanilac Rd., Kingston; Saloma Greenfield, 6, Virgil Greenfield, 5, Mark Jenkins, 13, and Michael Jenkins, 8, all of the Kingston address.

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies who investigated said the Greenfield vehicle was southbound on Marton Road, drove left of center, went out of control and struck a tree on the east side of the road.

No ticket was issued. The mishap took place at 7:15 p.m.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Two rural Cass City women sought their own medical treatment after they were injured in a one-car accident on Cedar Run Road at Hoppe Road in Elmwood township early Saturday morning.

Caro State Police said the car, driven by Cynthia Susan Doerr, 18, of Huron Line Road, Cass City, was southbound on Cedar Run Road at a high rate of speed when it went out of control, crossed the west shoulder, ran through a ditch and came to rest in a cornfield.

Ms. Doerr sustained a bruised leg and minor head injuries. A passenger in the vehicle, Karen E. Hann, 19, of 6755 Elmwood Road, Cass City, received a cut on the chin.

Both sought their own medical treatment. Ms. Doerr was ticketed for speed too fast for conditions. The accident took place at 3:00 a.m.

A Deford man was treated for injuries Sunday after his car went out of control and landed in a ditch on Decker-ville Road, two and one-half miles west of Deford.

Carl Martin Werner, 28, of 6508 Decker-ville Rd., Deford, told Caro State Police he was not driving and stated another subject was driving and ran off following the accident. Werner told officers he could not identify the driver.

Police said the vehicle was extensively damaged. The mishap took place at 2 a.m.

Two Cass City drivers escaped serious injury Friday when their vehicles collided at the intersection of Cedar Run Road and M-81.

Cars driven by Carol Jean Thane, 23, of 3877 E. Cass City Rd., and Larry Wayne Hawkins, 21, of Cass City, collided after the Thane auto, northbound on Cedar Run Road, stopped for the intersection and then started to move again.

Sheriff's deputies who investigated reported Ms. Thane said Hawkins did not have the lights operating on his car. Hawkins claimed the lights were on when the accident took place.

Ms. Thane was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way. The accident took place at 6:25 p.m.

No one was injured in a minor accident at the intersection of Main and Seeger Streets Wednesday, Feb. 26.

A car driven by Vera Ellen Bouck, 26, of 5719 Bay City-Forestville Rd., Cass City, struck a parked car owned by Lucille Stafford of 6433 Garfield St., shortly before 5 p.m.

Ms. Bouck told Cass City Police she cut too sharply while attempting to enter the parking place and struck the Stafford car. She was not injured and no ticket was issued.

Find Bay City

innocent

A Bay City man was found innocent of armed robbery Friday by a Tuscola county jury. The nine-woman, three-man jury returned the verdict for Norman Stevens, 17, after two and one-half days of testimony and one day of deliberation.

Stevens had been charged in connection with the robbery and shooting of a Bay City man, Thomas Bissonette, near Quanicasssee last June.

Another task force set to study drug law reforms

A victimless crime task force is going to work, to study—among other things—the question of decriminalizing use of marijuana, heroin and amphetamines.

Sound familiar? Only a couple of years ago, the former Office of Drug Abuse and Alcoholism set up just such a task force and came out with a lengthy report on that very topic.

Now the Office of Criminal Justice Programs announces formation of a victimless crime task force of its own to deal with the question.

To be sure, this task force will consider other victimless crimes, not just alcoholism and drug use. They'll study homosexuality, prostitution, gambling and obscenity and pornography.

But what about duplication?

There may just be some overlap, says a spokesperson for the commission. It's pointed out, however, that not too much was done with the recommendations from that earlier group.

The Legislature voted last year to decriminalize public drunkenness, which was recommended by the ODAA task force. But little has been done in the area of drug use and abuse.

The new task force is expected to use the report of its predecessor in its deliberations, so all that earlier work won't be lost or duplicated.

And one more point to consider: Even though the study was made before, the problem still exists.

The upcoming work of the task force will at least serve to keep the question before the public, one member points out.

READ THIS ITEM

"Bicentennial" bores the begoodness out of some folks—and well it might, with ponderous pronouncements from this planning commission and that.

But don't stop reading yet. Think of the fun things a 200th anniversary celebration can mean: fire hydrants painted red-white-and-blue in Columbia, Mo.; a Chili Championship in San Marcos, TX; and a national shuffleboard contest in New Mexico.

In Michigan, historical markers, advocated by State Historical Commission Chairman Jerry Roe of Lansing, are cropping up on the landscape.

Not too long ago, Roe and Lansing area history buffs engineered a special ceremony at the Eagle cemetery, honoring one of Michigan's fighters in the Revolutionary War.

There were costumed British soldiers—no American troops immediately available—and a round of rifle fire to scare babies and delight young boys and adults as well.

Events like that, and there will doubtless be more, can be fun for those who attend, and they help focus attention on the real purpose of the anniversary celebration: America's heritage.

Frank Kelley to call for some changes in the law.

WHOSE SON IS THAT?

When his auto insurance was cancelled because of a bad credit report which said his son was "a long-haired hippie suspected of drug use," the gentleman fought back. His son had no police record and was described by his high school principal as a model student.

The man won back his insurance on the basis of the facts, but failed in efforts to have the credit reporting company revise its records.

Situations such as this, as well as recent reports of CIA and FBI files on the private lives of congressmen, prompt Michigan Attorney General

"Government should be barred from collecting any data concerning political activity, association or expression that is protected by the First Amendment," the attorney general says.

In addition, he's calling for a federal code of fair information practices, to regulate the collection, storage, dissemination and use of personal information.

That code, Kelley says, should provide a person with access to files held by private concerns that contain personal information about him. And there should be some procedure for challenging and disproving false information.

ing their services, in effect striking, Gradowski remained non-committal.

"It's too difficult to speculate right now," he said. "We are striving for a successful conclusion to the negotiations at the earliest possible date."

The union, which represents 37 courthouse employees, began negotiations with the county board in November, Gradowski said.

Mrs. Marilyn Griffiths of the local negotiating committee, said some members are becoming restless but added no general membership meeting has been held recently.

Gradowski said he was notified last Wednesday that a mediator had been requested by the board. This came following what he characterized as an "unproductive" meeting.

"We are not dragging our feet," Gradowski said. "We are seeking equity for our people."

Neither Board Chairman Charles Woodcock, Vassar, nor Personnel Committee Chairman Maynard McConkey, Cass City, could be reached for comment.

Cass State Police investigated larceny and vandalism to several Kingston school buses Saturday.

Police said about $200 worth of equipment was stolen from the buses, including several first aid kits, fire extinguishers, flares and an undetermined amount of gasoline.

Officers also reported vandalism to a gasoline pump at the school.

The thefts were discovered early Saturday morning. Police have no suspects.

Cass City Police investigated the theft of three cases of beer from a truck at Eria's Food Center Monday morning.

State Police and Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies returned Roger Stevens, Vassar and formerly of Kingston, to custody Saturday from Dothan, Alabama, to face charges of writing a series of bad checks.

Ken Lowe of Cass City was one of two Juniors to be named to the Thumb B All-Conference basketball team for 1974-75. The 6'1" Hawk forward-center received 56 of a possible 70 votes in balloting by conference coaches.

There were no unanimous choices this season. Tom Matteson of Lakers led the dream team with a total of 64 votes. Two other Cass City players were recognized. Jerry Toner and Clark Hillaker received honorable mention.

Two players from Frankenmuth, conference champions, were named: Bill Parlborg, the diminutive 5'9" guard, and Jeff Reinbold, burly 6'4" center, received the accolades of the coaches.

Reinbold just squeezed in with 41 votes which may be a surprise to many Cass City fans. Reinbold had an especially good game against the Hawks in the second meeting between the schools.

Frosh complete successful year

Good things should be in store for Cass City's basketball fans, judging by the results posted by the Freshman squad in the current cage season.

Coach Jim Mastie's charges won 11 and lost five games. The five losses were by a total of just 11 points.

Biggest margin foes posted over the Freshmen was by Frankenmuth which topped Cass City by four points on its home court. The Eagles were one of two teams to defeat the Hawks twice.

The team lost to Sandusky by two points at the Sandusky gym. The Lakers defeated Cass City twice.

The team shot 41 per cent from the field and 48 per cent from the foul line.

Mike Richards was the leading scorer, followed closely by Jeff Hartel, Jesse Groth, Steve Ballard and John Tuckey. Tuckey helped with the rebounding.

Mastie pointed to the team's hustle, defense and shooting ability as keys to its success. A stingy zone press caused numerous turnovers during the year and an aggressive man-to-man defense helped the Hawks compete against taller opponents.

Mastie said that the biggest factor in the success enjoyed by the Freshmen was the winning attitude of the boys.

Bowling classic set at Cass City Lanes

Plans are being completed for the second annual Cass City Bowling Classic, set to begin Friday at Cass City Lanes and run three successive week ends.

Singles and doubles tournament play will begin this week, following the awarding of trophies and prize money to the three- and five-bowler squads for the tourney last week.

The championship five-bowler team consisted of Byron, Bob and Catherine Davidson, Don Kruse and Marge Schwartz.

Kruse posted the top average on the squad with a 679, followed by Catherine Davidson's 629, Marge Schwartz's 610, and 569 and 536 totals by Bob and Byron Davidson respectively. All scores reflect handicaps.

The squad finished 10 pins ahead of its nearest competition.

This year's three-bowler team boasted two sets of averages over 600. Gary Deering and Archie McLachlan each posted 651 and 611 averages respectively, including handicaps. Following closely with a 570 average was Frank Schott.

The five-bowler squad bested 32 other teams participating, while the three-bowler squad polished off 22 other competing teams.

Singles and doubles play begins this week end, and applications are available at Cass City Lanes.

Participation in this year's classic has been near 100 per cent of local bowlers, according to Aime Ouvry, one of the organizers, although he added there is still a need for more women in the tournament.

He explained that men's handicaps for the tourney are based on 75 per cent of 200, while women's are based on 80 per cent of 200.

The local Merchant's League is again sponsoring this year's tournament.

Others on the organizing committee besides Ouvry include Elmer Schulz, Frank Schott, Jim Belk, Archie McLachlan and Elwyn Helwig.

Gymnasts post win

Cass City High School gymnasts squeaked through to a narrow victory in a three-way contest against Vassar and Millington in competition Saturday at the high school gym.

Hawk gymnasts scored 61.45 points, just 1.45 points ahead of second-place Vassar. Millington totaled 49.575, a distant third.

Cass City girls all but swept vaulting competition and piled up points on the uneven parallel bars to notch the victory.
