

Delayed marijuana sentences seen alternative to jail

By Jim Ketchum

Your first mistake involving marijuana may not be held against you in Tuscola County District Court, under a new set of sentencing guidelines recently instituted by Judge Richard Kern.

Under discretionary powers given judges by the state's Controlled Substances Act of 1971, first-time marijuana law violators may have their sentences delayed for up to a year and their convictions wiped from the records.

But, according to Judge Kern, the new policy isn't for everyone. And a second offender is destined for fines and jail.

Since last spring, Kern has been dealing more leniently with first-time pot violators. With the new system, Kern refuses to accept a plea of the defendant. Instead, he's placed on probation for one year and charged what's known as a $75 "oversight" fee to cover court costs.

If in the following year, the defendant stays away from pot, the incident will be removed from the books.

Previously, first-time offenders were given fines and costs totaling $150.

Why did Kern institute the new approach?

"At first, I declined to exercise the discretion given me by the act, although I didn't normally sentence a first-time offender to jail," Kern explained.

"Then I began looking at how other judges handled the same type of case in the state and found a majority of them were using probation and the oversight fee."

Kern said he re-thought his position regarding first-time pot users and decided he had to change the sentencing procedure.

"It's my duty as a judge to make my sentencing practices as equal as I can in relation to the sentences handed down by other judges," he said.

One of the reasons Kern had to wait until recently to give the new sentencing system a try was a lack of manpower. Until the last two years, Tuscola District Court had no probation officer.

"If I'd done this before, I'd have been the probation officer," Kern said, "and I just don't have time for that. The workload here is tremendous."

Now with the assistance he needs, Kern feels justified in opting for the lighter sentences.

CONDITIONS

Kern has imposed three sets of conditions before considering implementing the lighter first-time pot sentences.

"First, it must be a young person," he said. "Probably the maximum age would be 25 or so. The reason I'm using it with young persons is that generally they aren't mature enough yet to be totally responsible for their actions."

"Second, it must be a first-time offense. It has to be the first drug-related offense ever."

"Third they have to tell me that they won't sell, possess or use any controlled substance again."

Kern said this third condition is serious.

"I won't accept an idle promise," he said. "In fact, I make sure the defendant has a chance to talk it over with his attorney before he agrees to it."

Kern said one defendant declined to make the promise, saying he couldn't guarantee what he might do in the coming year. He was subsequently assessed the normal fines and costs.

"Actually, I have a lot of respect for that young man because he was totally honest with me," Kern said. "He didn't want to promise something he couldn't guarantee."

Kern does not accept a plea in first-time marijuana cases, if the defendant meets the three conditions. He is placed on probation and assessed the oversight fee.

In a year, if all has gone well, the proceedings are cancelled from the record.

WHY?

Judge Kern said he hopes to accomplish a couple of things by using the delayed sentence approach in marijuana cases.

"First of all, for a young person, a conviction would seriously deter job opportunities," he said. "And, my goodness, it's hard enough these days to find a job without having a criminal record."

"Secondly, it turns the proceedings into an educational experience. I explain that the maximum penalty is a $1,000 fine and a year in jail. They get a lecture on what's involved if they choose to use marijuana a second time and are caught."

He said so far, between five and 10 persons have had delayed sentences passed in District Court.

Kern admits no reliable statistic exists to say whether or not the delayed sentences in fact work as a deterrent to marijuana usage.

"But common sense tells you that it must act as some kind of deterrent," Kern said. "The defendant knows if he's caught again, he'll be shown no mercy. And he knows if he stays away from it, there'll be no conviction on his record. So it must have some deterrent effect."

Kern said most persons given delayed sentences range between 17 and 21 years of age.

"Conscience dictates that you have to do something with a young person other than throw him in jail," Kern said. "Chances are good he'll learn more that's wrong in jail than he'll learn on probation."

Kern sees the highest priority as giving first-time young offenders a chance to change. He believes the delayed sentence procedure can help accomplish this goal.

DRUG USE DECLINE?

Kern believes the drug culture among young persons has peaked and that usage may be on the decline. He says marijuana possession complaints in District Court are not increasing in proportion to other crimes, including alcohol-related offenses, which he views as the more serious threat.

Decriminalization of marijuana would lighten District Court's burden tremendously, Kern said. Often, defendants contest that an illegal search was conducted when pot is confiscated and this requires additional court proceedings over and above a trial.

"While marijuana use is illegal, it's probably no more harmful than alcohol, according to medical reports," Kern said.

Kern sees alcohol abuse as a far more demanding problem than marijuana because the alcoholic is a sick person who cannot generally quit just by saying he will.

"An alcoholic is as sick as any man can get," Kern said. "He needs both therapy and discipline. A marijuana user can quit if he decides to quit without therapy."

It's too soon to tell just how successfully the delayed sentencing will work. But Kern and other judges in the state using the system are hoping to keep more young persons out of jail and help them maintain clean records. Kern believes it's worth a try.

Tuscola unemployment level still crowds 20 per cent mark

In spite of cautious optimism expressed by officials at the Michigan Employment Security Commission, unemployment in Tuscola county continues to crowd the 20 per cent mark with only slight drops expected for the next few months.

According to figures released last week by John Hicks, MESCC Labor Market Analyst, the county unemployment rate for July stood at 18.4 per cent, an eight per cent rise from a year ago.

In June, unemployment stood at 19.2 per cent of the work force, up a whopping 10 per cent from June, 1974.

Translated, this means that in July, 4,525 workers in Tuscola county were without jobs and that 20,100 persons were employed.

Both figures are up from a year ago when only 2,250 persons were without work and 19,950 had jobs.

According to Hicks, part of the reason for the high unemployment in June was the influx of high school and college students into the area labor market.

He said by July, a few may have found jobs, but it's more likely that many simply quit looking for work and removed themselves from the labor market.

He indicated that while auto plants in the Saginaw and Bay City area are calling back some workers placed on indefinite layoff, total employment figures are still down by nearly 10,000 compared with a year ago.

With over half of the county's work force employed outside the county and much of it in the automotive industry, this segment of the economy is crucial to whether or not Tuscola unemployment figures rise or fall in the next few months.

"We've seen a slight improvement over the previous month," Hicks said. "We're hopeful it will continue until October. The first 10-day selling period for the auto industry will tell a lot about its employment picture for the coming year."

A good initial sales period means higher production and a larger work force.

"These manufacturers know they can't operate their plants at maximum efficiency if they aren't going full tilt," Hicks said. "It's my view that they'll do everything they can to sell every last car that's possible to sell. Hopefully, this will mean more workers on the job."

"A liberal arts major graduating today is in big trouble when it comes to finding a job . . . You simply can't walk in with a sheepskin and say here I am, hire me."

HARD-CORE UNEMPLOYED

The hard-core unemployment rate in Tuscola county is still the big stumbling block, Hicks said. Once laid-off auto workers do go back to work, unemployment figures for the county will still probably crowd the double-digit mark, he said.

Hicks said long layoffs among some workers has eaten away at seniority to a point where some persons have lost all that they gained in terms of work time.

"One thing is certain," Hicks said. "The small boom we experienced following the 1970 strike, which took a year-and-a-half to reach, won't be repeated for some time. Let's say we're cautiously optimistic."

Recent high school and college graduates without marketable skills face an uncertain future, he said.

"A liberal arts major graduating today is in big trouble when it comes to finding a job," Hicks said. "If he's a CPA or has some kind of skill, there are jobs. But employers are being ultra-selective. You simply can't walk in with a sheepskin and say here I am, hire me."

"A student graduating in the bottom third of his class is going to find rough weather in the job-hunting field."

WHAT IT COSTS

Locally, unemployment compensation payments made through the Caro MESCC office in July totaled $1,177,782. Through Wednesday, Aug. 27, payments were running $1,077,891, according to Branch Manager Michael Boelman.

He said in July, payments were averaging about $50,000 per day.

The largest single week for payments was the second full week of August, when the branch paid out a whopping $11,900 in unemployment claims.

Much of the reason for the large payments in late July and early August came due to model changeover in the auto industry.

The greatest number of claimants flooded the Caro branch office the first week in August, when 5,061 persons filed for payments.

The average for July was about 3,500 claimants, Boelman said, with about 2,800 reported the last week of August.

Boelman said part of the reason for fluctuating statistics is due to the fact that persons filing for benefits report every two weeks at the office. He said once model changeover layoffs are eliminated, the claimant figure should stabilize at around 2,700.

So far, Boelman indicated, Concluded on page 16.

MARIJUANA is nothing new in Cass City. Here, Police Chief Gene Wilson examines pot seized as evidence. Wilson thinks Judge Richard Kern's delayed sentence idea has merit and is worth a try.

Seek pot warrant against Cass Cityan

Cass City Police were seeking a warrant Tuesday against an 18-year-old village resident, charging him with marijuana possession.

Police withheld the subject's name pending issuance of the warrant.

The suspect was allegedly apprehended by Officer Robert Smith during a routine traffic stop on Seeger Street at the south village limits Monday. During Smith's investigation, he discovered a plastic pouch of suspected pot in the suspect's shirt pocket.

A field check determined that the substance was marijuana.

Two other passengers in the vehicle were reportedly not being charged.

The car was apprehended after it was allegedly clocked at 53 miles an hour in a 35 mph zone.

The investigation is continuing.

reported hunting bows and arrows, along with a quantity of ammunition were taken. Total value was set at $200.

The couple told deputies the cottage was not locked at the time of the theft.

A radiator and battery were reported stolen from a car belonging to Tim Tracy of 6048 DeLong Rd., Deford, and parked at a construction site in Juniata township.

Caro State Police said the theft occurred sometime during the previous week. Total loss was set at $40. Police have no suspects.

OTHER INCIDENTS

A tire and rim were reported stolen from the Pro Service Station on Main Street last Wednesday, Aug. 27. The tire reportedly belonged to Donald DeLong, Cass City, and was sitting outside the station at the time of the theft.

Police have no suspects. Julius Wilding of 6418 Seventh St. reported an attempted breaking and entering at the residence he shares with his mother Monday.

He told County Sheriff's deputies he discovered the screen on the front door of the residence pushed in. The incident took place sometime between Aug. 28 and 31, he told officers.

Damage was estimated at $5.

Irl Colston of West Sanilac Rd., Kingston, reported two of his sheep were attacked by stray dogs Sunday. He told Caro State Police the animals may have to be destroyed as a result of their injuries.

Owners of the dogs were not located.

Malicious destruction at the St. Agatha School in Gagetown was reported Wednesday, Aug. 27.

Gagetown Village Officer Jack McCampbell said vandals entered by knocking out a wooden panel at the rear of the school.

Take a Bunker bath, Tony

It would perhaps be a fine thing if Tony would go take a long bath with Gloria Stivee, nee Bunker, the Meathead's wife.

And you will notice, as the new TV season begins, that Gloria will not appear in several shows. When Archie asks where's Gloria, Edith will simply answer: "She's in the bathtub."

This explanation will be meekly accepted and the Bunker plots will roll on without Gloria. The Meathead will express no concern that maybe his wife has been flushed into the Hudson River via the Bunker's noisy plumbing. Archie will not blame the Jewish bankers because he hasn't been able to use his own bathroom for 4 weeks.

Not even nervous Edith will be worried about Gloria's prolonged absence. Because the whole family knows Gloria isn't stuck in the bathtub drain, she's on strike.

Gloria didn't think she was getting enough money for shrieking and bouncing her chest around the Bunker house every Saturday night. She refused to show up until the producer agreed to her terms. This took 4 weeks.

There was no thought of replacing Gloria with another high-pitched chest. There was no chance of dropping 4 shows, replacing them with public-service programs aimed at stamping out forest fires with astrology. Gloria simply took a long bath.

Isn't that marvelous? Ah, for the magic world of TV. Real life is a lot different. Which brings us back to Tony, who is always there.

He is married to my baby sister, Linda, who is bigger than my oldest sister, Terri-number 4. I left home and joined the army soon after her birth. World War 2 seemed safer.

Anyway, Tony is one of those husbands who "takes over". That's my wife's expression. When the baby cries, Tony gets him up and feeds him. When food is needed, Tony prepares it. When an ash tray is full, Tony empties it. When the house is too small, Tony builds a new one. When Linda burps, Tony excuses himself.

The other day my family watched as Tony loaded his family into a station wagon. One by one he carried out 4 small sons and their toys and inserted everything in its assigned place. Not until then did Queen Linda appear. She is pregnant and it looks like quintuplets. "If he carries her to the car I am going to scream and pound the ground," I told my wife.

But my wife was busy instructing our teenage daughter. "Marry a man like Tony and you'll be happy," she advised. "He doesn't mind helping out around the house. He doesn't even have to be asked. When something needs doing, he just does it. He pitches in with the kids. There are not many husbands like Tony (at this point she knocked me 2 yards with a stare). He is the type of man every woman wants to marry."

This is the type of abuse I suffer whenever Tony is performing near my wife. If it were only TV, he would surely strike for better pay. And perhaps disappear for a long, long bath.

I would give a rare do-it-yourself display by bricking up the bathroom door.

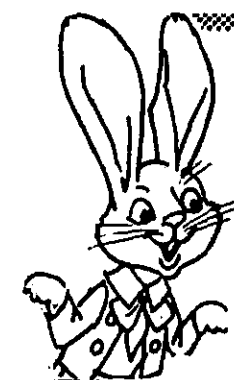

THIS HAS been a bountiful year for tomatoes as Mrs. James Batts of 3375 E. Cass City Rd., demonstrates. The two largest of this group weigh in at three pounds apiece. There's seven pounds worth of tomatoes shown in this photo.

(And anyone else he can get to help)

The good news about General Telephone, then the bad news. The good news is that every time repair work is needed you can count on Gen-Tel to be ready and able. We called one morning this week and the repair was completed that afternoon.

Now the bad news. If your bills look like mine you can't figure out what the charge is all about. They charge, then they issue a credit and really when you get all done you pay and wonder just what it was all about. There must be a more satisfactory way.

Elwyn Helwig has the best memory of any person around town that I know. The other day he recited my license plate number for me. . . something that I couldn't do myself.

This is just a sneaky way to put him (and you) to the test. Quick now, how many silos are on the Satchell farm at Ellington, west of Cass City. How many are blue?

This bit of trivia came out at the coffee table with Tom Herron, Bob Wischmeyer, Don Brinkman, Ken Martin and others I can't recall participating.

The estimates ranged from two blue, four total to four blue, seven total with other figures in between.

I checked and the right total is four blue silos among a total of eight.

How close were you?

It was bound to happen. Now the government is printing stamps without a price on them in anticipation of this fall's price increase. Think how simple that will make it for them.

When the price goes up the powers that be simply say the stamp is worth 13 cents or 15 cents.

When it goes up again, no need to rush to print new stamps. The stamp that was worth 13 cents could overnight be worth 20 cents, or 30 cents or 50 cents. . . and the way things have been going probably will.

At least two persons in the area know about Henry Dodge, the author of a wedding story we talked about last week.

They are Theo Hendrick, 83, and William Dodge. The information comes from Hendrick. Dodge farmed 160 acres at Elmwood and was known as a poet. Hendrick, whose memory goes back at least to 1900 says that he can't remember a "Basswood Tavern" at the corner, west of Cass City, but believes there was.

He can remember when Elmwood had a post office and a butter and egg store and was a stage coach stop between Cass City and Caro.

He adds that Dodge, in addition to being a poet, was a widely known hunter and sportsman.

There's nothing like a winner. . . or a loser. Jim Johnson offered four tickets to a group of 30 men for Wednesday night's baseball game pitting the Detroit Tigers against the New York Yankees. Free.

Sadly there were no takers.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

The kids went back to school this week.

It's the same routine they have been following in Cass City and the Thumb for decades, almost without interruption.

Most parents and taxpayers in the various school systems probably didn't think all that much about it. Come September you go back to school. Period.

It's like that with most of us. The really good things that we enjoy don't rate much more than a fleeting moment's attention in life's passing parade.

So what's so special about going back to school in the Thumb?

Well, in these days it's getting sort of special to go to school in the daylight and return home in the daylight. You do that when you go to school all day and not half days. For years now, many, if not most, suburban schools have been on half days and there appears to be no change ahead.

There are other advantages, too. In the Thumb, outside of Reese, I can't recall that a day has been lost because of teacher strikes.

Thumb taxpayers pay less than their urban cousins for maintaining school systems.

Right here, of course, you get into the grey area of the quality of education. Thumb schools probably don't have as wide a curriculum as many larger schools enjoy. The question is do we have a curriculum that places local students on an equal footing with other graduates from other areas?

I have no data on this, but I suspect that we do. A legitimate case might be presented for a lack of skills in reading and writing and arithmetic. . . but it's one that is not unique with schools in the Thumb or in the urban areas.

Sometimes what you don't have is as important as what you do. What we've missed is a controversy over the kinds of books that our schools are using to teach from.

In Cass City there was a spat over an optional reading book in the school library, but text books have never been a cause of serious dissension.

Maybe that's because we really are conservatives here. With a common viewpoint.

We don't go much for radicals on the right or the left. We don't want sheet-shrouded Ku Klux Klan members burning crosses. We don't want demagogues shouting the evils of "Communist" at every shadow.

We don't want four-letter words in our text books and we feel that parents have a right to teach their moral values to their children and that this right shouldn't be abridged by school teachers.

Like I said at the beginning we don't give all of this more than a cursory look if we think about it at all.

But given the tides that are sweeping the country perhaps we should.

Think about it and do whatever we can to protect it. Despite their shortcomings, Thumb schools come off looking pretty darn good when you consider the alternatives.

We've got a good thing going. Let's keep it.

BETTER HEALTH

Cancer of the male breast

BY DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

Cancer of the male breast, although not widely discussed, is just as serious when it occurs and exhibits the same clinical problem as does cancer of the female breast.

Moreover, cancer of the male breast has been considered even more serious in its implications than cancer of the female breast, but most specialists today believe that its reputation is undeserved.

It is generally accepted that this impression has come about because of delay in seeking treatment on the part of men who have not been alerted to the seriousness of a lump in the breast or a discharge from the nipple.

With the greater interval between the onset of the lesion in men and the institution of treatment, the disease has thus been more advanced. With early treatment of the disease, the outlook is greatly improved.

Cancer of the male breast occurs later in life than it does in women and represents less than 0.2 per cent of all cancers. Breast cancers occur about 100 times more frequently in women than in men.

Cancer of the breast is rare in black men, and according to the American Cancer Society, among white men it appears in almost twice as many Jewish males as in non-Jewish — 0.65 cases per 100,000 men, compared with 0.35 per 100,000.

It has also been reported that about 25 per cent of men with breast carcinoma have relatives with cancer and somewhat more than 10 per cent have relatives with breast cancer.

The microscopic characteristics of male breast cancer are indistinguishable from cancer in the female breast.

The swelling of the male breast (gynecomastia), which sometimes occurs with hormonal imbalance (as for example in certain chronic liver problems) bears no relation to cancer. Nor does the administration of female sex hormone (estrogen), used in the treatment of prostatic cancer, predispose to breast cancer in men.

Just as in women, a lump in the breast may first be noticed if the breast is accidentally bumped or bruised, but there is no relation between injury and the onset of cancer. It is simply an incident that calls attention to the presence of the lump.

But there is a relationship among men with a rare type of dysfunction of the testicles (Klinefelter's syndrome) in whom the frequency of breast cancer is considered to be the same as in women, and 70 times greater than in the general male population.

According to Dr. B.B. Welch and his associates in New York, breast cancer in men, as in women, is usually a painless, readily outlined, firm lump in the central portion of the breast. Sometimes there is a discharge from the nipple which may be bloody.

The surgical treatment of breast cancer in men is essentially the same as in women, and the outlook for continued survival and well being, when corrected for the fact that men are eight years older on the average, is much the same as that for women.

Cancer of the male breast is certainly not the widespread threat that exists among women, but men should know that a breast lump or an oozing nipple is potentially serious and not to be taken lightly or ignored.

Your neighbor says

It's football

Once again the professional football season is underway, grinding through its exhibition season prior to the opening gun later this month. Is the season too long?

Not in the opinion of Colleen Stafford of rural Cass City. "Strictly from a spectator's standpoint, I don't think it's too long," Mrs. Stafford says. "I've taken time to learn some of the rules because I decided I must be missing something. And once I did, I found out I really enjoy it."

She says, however, that the season is probably too long for players competing in mid-summer temperatures outfitted in heavy, hot football gear.

She says she and her husband both enjoy watching games on Sunday and she keeps track of how the teams are doing in each division of the National Football League.

Is she a Detroit Lions fan? "I wish the Lions would give me something to root for," Mrs. Stafford says.

Originally from Detroit, Mrs. Stafford and her husband, Dave, have lived in the Cass City area the past five years. He is a Michigan Education Association area representative.

The couple have three children, Jessica, 3, Jeremy, 2, and Jonathan, four months.

March of Dimes board meets

The Board of Directors of the Tuscola County March of Dimes met in May at the Caro Intermediate School Building for their annual reorganizational meeting. Dr. Larry Seale, D.D.S. is chairperson for the coming year. Some preliminary planning for a fall open house was begun.

The monies collected this past year totaled $2808.00, a portion of which goes to the National March of Dimes Foundation. The money remaining in Tuscola County is used to finance county wide services.

Presently educational materials are being supplied to new mother classes at Caro Community Hospital. Orthopedic braces have also been purchased for a young child in Tuscola County.

Other officers for the current year are Ms. Carolyn Benscoter, campaign director and temporary secretary, and Ms. Betty Sugden, treasurer.

The office of assistant chairperson is vacant. Any person interested in the work of the March of Dimes can contact Dr. Larry Seale, 429 N. State St., Caro.

Ubly pair injured in two-car crash Sunday

Two Ubly residents were injured Sunday afternoon when their car was struck by another vehicle on M-25 about two miles northeast of Caseville.

Huron County Sheriff's deputies identified the injured as Mrs. Angeline Deachin, 46, of Ubly, and her daughter, Bonnie, 13, passengers in a car driven by Leonard Deachin, 57.

Officers said the Deachin car was headed northeast on M-25 when it was struck by a car driven southwest by Jess A. Brown, 18, of Detroit. Deputies said the Brown car apparently spun out of control after it crossed the centerline, striking the Deachin vehicle. Brown and a passenger, Richard Nelson, 19, of Detroit, were not injured.

Three other passengers in the Deachin car escaped injury. They were identified as Helen Deachin, 92, Karen Deachin, 15 and Lynn Deachin, 11.

The injured were treated and released from Huron Memorial Hospital. The accident took place at 2:40 p.m.

An Owendale man suffered cuts and bruises Saturday when the northbound car he was driving went out of control on M-25 near the south Sebewaing village limits, struck a utility pole and five vehicles parked in a used car lot.

Huron Sheriff's deputies identified the driver as Gary Keith Bills, 21. A passenger, Paul A. Santhony, 26, of Caseville, also suffered cuts and bruises.

Bills told officers he lost control on a slight curve on M-25 as it enters Sebewaing. Both he and Santhony were treated at Huron Memorial Hospital. Both were reportedly pinned for a short time in the car.

The five parked vehicles, four cars and a pickup truck, are the property of Gettel Motor Sales.

The accident took place at 6:05 p.m.

Cass Cityan sued in building hassle

A Cass City man who successfully challenged the Elkland Township Board's refusal to grant him a building permit will be back in Tuscola County Circuit Court later this month to face charges that he is in violation of building codes.

A suit was filed last week charging that Robert Neiman of East Cass City Road has violated existing building codes in constructing a permanent building adjacent to his mobile home.

The suit, filed by the County Department of Public Works, charges Neiman has violated a written order to stop work issued by the department.

A show-cause hearing has been scheduled for Sept. 22 at 9:00 a.m. to hear arguments.

Neiman moved a mobile home onto 80 acres he owns last summer and in August, a complaint against him was filed by township authorities, claiming he was in violation of the township zoning ordinances because he had not obtained a proper building permit before installing the trailer.

A subsequent jury trial found Neiman not guilty. In April, Neiman applied for a permit to bring the dwelling up to standards, but was denied.

Township authorities claimed it was "economically unfeasible" and doubted the home could be brought into BOCA compliance.

In late June, Neiman won the right to the permit and construction continued.

Now, county authorities say Neiman's construction does not meet standards.

Housekeepers to confer Sept. 11

Housekeepers from health care institutions in Cass City and several cities throughout the state will gather at Bay Medical Center in Bay City Thursday, Sept. 11, for a one-day conference.

Bert Baker, Bay Medical Center Director of Finance, will address the Central Michigan Chapter of Executive Housekeepers as part of a week-long focus on their problems Sept. 7-13. A total of 24 institutions will be represented.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

It's pet peeve time

By Jim Ketchum

It's pet peeve time. Time for your hassled reporter to let his proverbial hair down and throw a mild temper tantrum over little things that keep bugging him.

Odds are that my ranting and raving won't do any good, other than to blow off a little steam. I just get tired of driving my fist through a wall and would rather drive my fingers through these typewriter keys instead.

Peeve number one: Why on earth can't we Cass Cityans call anybody outside our telephone exchange without paying a toll? There's no reason on God's green earth why Gageton, Kingston, Caro and Ubly should be considered "long distance".

Maybe the rates are low and maybe half the fun of calling is dialing all those stupid numbers. The phone company may want you to "pass it along", but I'm getting tired of passing along my money to Gen-Tel, et al, for the privilege of calling somebody seven or eight miles away.

Telephone company officials have told me the reason you can't call anywhere from here is because there isn't enough traffic to warrant toll-free calling.

I say prove it. The real answer is that the utility would be losing a lot of gravy if they liberated our fingers from all that walking and gave us a break today.

What's particularly annoying is when you're dialing a Snover number that takes three extra digits because they're in another area code. That's 11 numbers to dial. The hooker comes when you reach the 10th number and your finger slips.

That means hang up and start all over again. I never have to clip the nail on my dialing finger. The telephone keeps it worn down nicely, thank you.

Peeve number two: Susan

Ford. She's becoming more ubiquitous than Arthur Godfrey in his heyday. You can't pick up a magazine or newspaper anymore without happy Susan smiling her way into your heart.

Miss Ford is trying to become a newspaper reporter. Her first day on the job was cluttered with newspaper reporters trying to do stories on the new reporter in town. It's tough to report when you're the number one story.

I remember my first day on the job. I was shown my desk and told to have at it. The first time I used the phone, I got a wrong number. And the right margin on my typewriter kept slipping. I finally taped it in place with cellophane tape.

I don't recall anybody from the Free Press, Bay City Times or the Advertiser straining to interview me. Maybe it was my mouthwash.

Or the fact that my father wasn't President of the United States. Peeve number three: Jimmy Hoffa. The Chronicle is the only newspaper in the United States which has not yet conducted a full-scale investigation into the labor boss's disappearance. Frankly, I'm getting a little tired of it.

If something breaks, I can't wait to hear it. But until then, what say we cool it. I've thought of dragging the Cass River, but my net has a hole in it.

Peeve number four: Gas mileage commercials. The government admits its inflated auto gas mileage figures aren't accurate, so why do auto companies jump on them as fact? Because they need the best image they can get.

Meantime, we're flooded with stupendous gas mileage figures that really don't mean anything. Your mileage depends on how you drive.

Thanks, readers. I feel better. I really needed that.

HOME

What is home? A blend of memories and mortar... walls and roof and smells of breakfast cooking... a place of rest at the end of the day... a feeling of possession, of belonging... a place of hates, loves, anger... center of things living.

Home may be a mansion on a hill, a cramped apartment, a farmhouse, a hovel, a new suburban split-level, the house Father built... but only to you and your family is it home. No one else may call it that. For home is a part of you!

Centuries ago a shepherd-poet felt this. Lonely seasons on the grazing slopes had taught him to love... to long for... HOME.

But he realized that, through this life and beyond, the nearness of God is part of the sense of home. Goodness and mercy would follow him all the days of his life. And he would dwell in the house of the Lord forever!

WHEN THE ERLAS gathered Sunday to celebrate Dick Erla's 51st birthday, they decided to rib him as the "Godfather". Accordingly, they froze that bull's head you see here and added some cement boots as "presents" for the occasion. Undaunted Dick got into the spirit of things, dug out these 1945 vintage clothes and became a rather convincing "Godfather" himself. His "mob" associate is Larry Bauer, left.

To The Editor
Cass City Chronicle
Cass City, Michigan 48726

Gentlemen:

We wish to thank the Cass City Chronicle on behalf of both the Gagetown and Cass City Al-Anon groups for the article Mr. Ketchum did on the Al-Anon program in the area.

We appreciated the time Mr. Ketchum spent with us and his sensitive presentation of our program.

We would like to say that even though only women were present at the meeting we had with Mr. Ketchum that men are welcome and needed in the program also. As it states in the Al-Anon Tradition three, "The only requirement for membership is that there be a problem of alcoholism in a relative or friend."

Yours very truly,

Dear Mr. Haire:

The Tuscola Intermediate School District Board of Education gave an opportunity to the patrons of the district to vote for additional millage for special education buildings and programs. Appreciation is expressed to those who gave of their time and effort to vote in the election.

The district is mandated to provide special services to all handicapped persons 0-25 years of age. The need for an appropriate building still exists as we seek to provide the best in services for the students and residents of this intermediate school district.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:
The Chronicle saw fit awhile back to take note of the empty building with broken windows on our main corner here in Gagetown and I just wondered if they've noticed the improvement brought about by lots of volunteer labor, help from the village council, and a park bench donated by the Gagetown Women's Study Club. Thanks to all. While several lots still need attention, I'm proud of us.

Yours truly,
Gen Kehoe

Robinson farm draws contrasts for Sophia Domingo

's a long way from the urban sprawl of Manila, capital of the Philippine Islands, to the Clifford Robinson farm on Huron Line Road west of Ubyly.

But so far at least, Sophia Domingo has made the transition without any serious problems.

Miss Domingo, 16, is a foreign exchange student staying with the Robinsons for the upcoming school year. She'll be taking classes with the Robinsons' daughter, Becky, along with getting a first-hand taste of rural American life.

It's about the biggest contrast to her life in the Philippines you could find. Her father is a lawyer and businessman and her mother manages their large home and staff of servants.

Before coming to the United States Aug. 16, she'd never seen a farm-anywhere. In fact, one of her three sisters tried to talk her out of staying with the Robinsons. She urged Sophia to hold out for another family in a big city.

But her mother said no. Give the farm a try and see what happens, she urged.

Now, she's glad she took her mother's advice.

"The first week was really something for her," Mrs. Robinson said. "It was fair week and she got stuck right in the middle of the sheep and the cattle and the hogs. But she came through it pretty well."

The soft-spoken, dark-haired Filipino beauty smiles warmly at the prospect of spending the next nine months with the Robinsons. "I'm really happy to be here," she said. "I wanted to come to this country because I wanted to become more independent, to gain some experience and to meet other friends."

Miss Domingo, in spite of her Philippine origin, speaks no Spanish. English is the main language, she said. She also speaks a native dialect, Tagalog. The language consists of 20 letters in the alphabet.

"We decided each day we were going to try to learn one new word of it," Mrs. Robinson said.

PRIVATE SCHOOL

This will be Miss Domingo's first exposure to a public school. So far, she's been educated in a private school for girls. The school year runs about the same in the Philippines, she said, but the structure is different.

"We stay in one classroom and have the teachers come to us," she explained. "We only study each subject one day a week, but for about three or four hours at a time."

Last year, she studied 11 different subjects.

All her Philippine teachers were women but one. She said she's looking forward to attending Ubyly High School and has already registered for fall classes which begin this week.

Eventually, she said she'd like to go into business administration. That means a college degree, which she intends to pursue, either back home or in the United States.

This is not her first exposure to America. She and her parents vacationed here about four years ago. That visit whetted her appetite to learn more about the country and when the exchange possibility came along, she took it.

At the same time, Becky Robinson was investigating how to get a foreign student. She and her parents eventually worked through an organization called Youth for Understanding which has been active for many years placing foreign students in American homes.

The Robinsons didn't know definitely whether or not Miss Domingo would be coming until about mid-June.

The actual travel time from Manila to Detroit was 25 hours. Miss Domingo recalled, with the longest hop between Manila and Honolulu -10 hours.

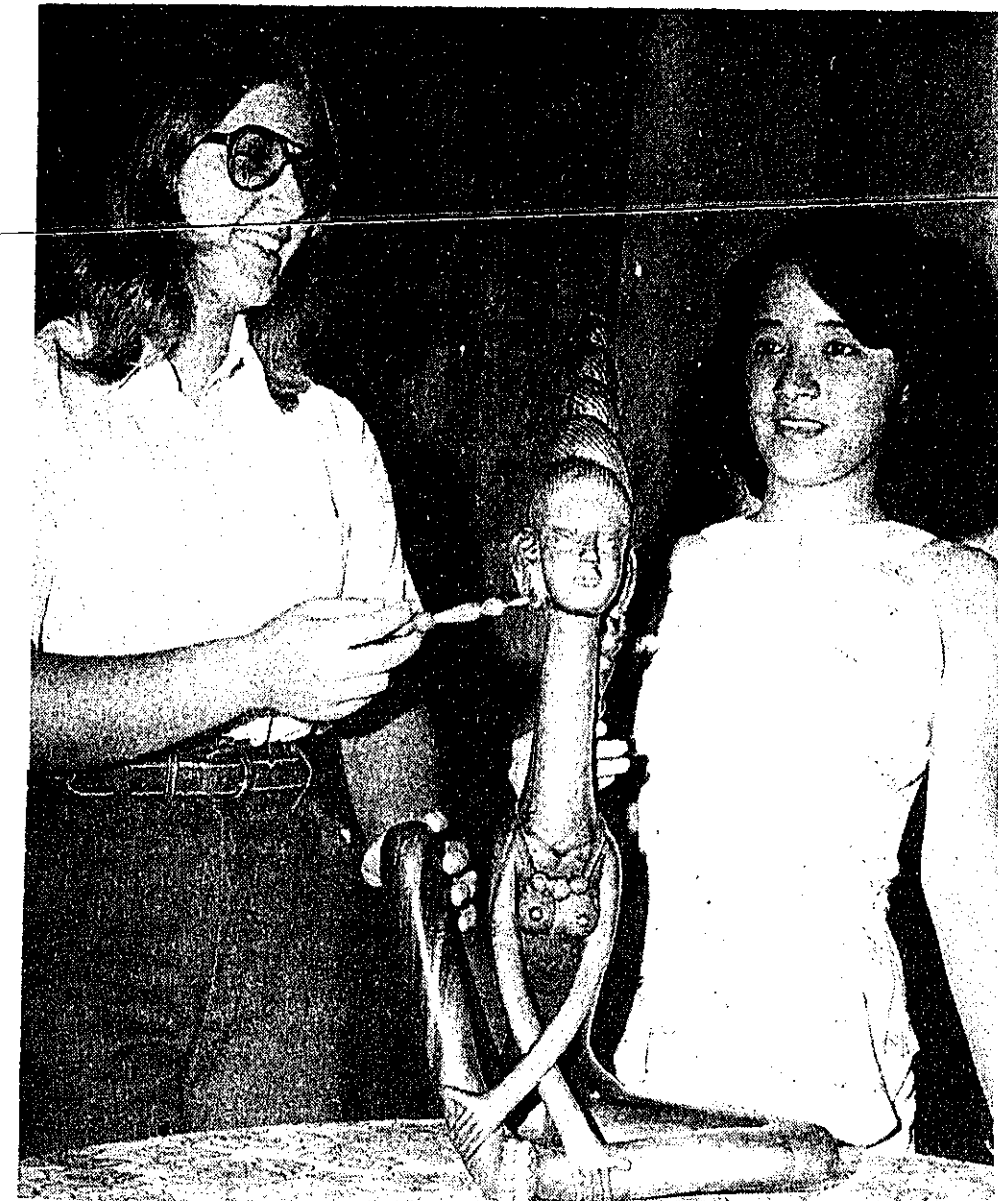

By the time she reached Detroit, she was exhausted and still faced another two-hour-plus car trip to the Robinson farm. It was too much for her and she fell asleep just out of Detroit.

Marcos has instituted travel restrictions and tight curfews.

Miss Domingo said most young people in the country don't like the curfew or having to carry identification papers when traveling.

Personally, she does not believe democracy is dead in the Philippines but that certain aspects of it have failed. She thinks one day democracy will again be the way of life in the island nation.

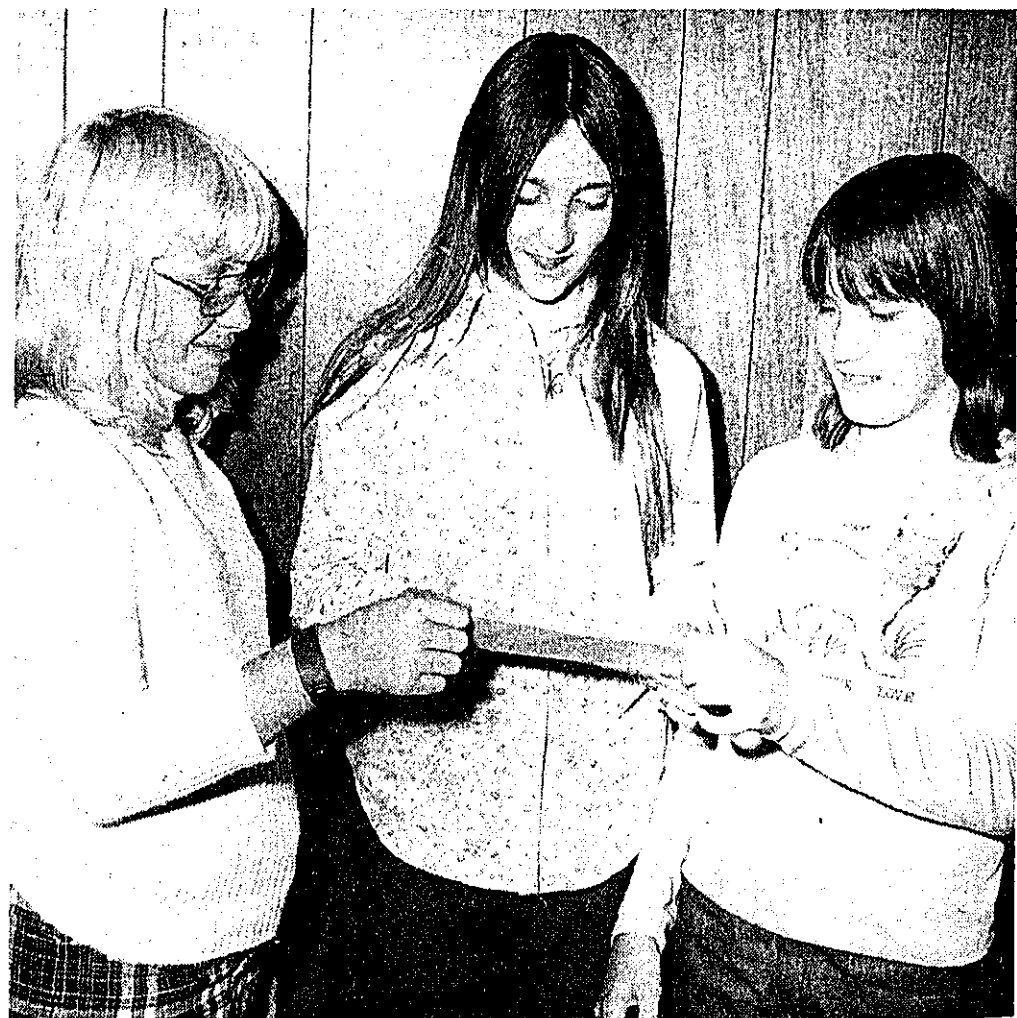

But that is not the most important part of her life now. For the next few months, she'll be learning about life on an American farm and maybe even how to cook something other than eggs.

BECKY ROBINSON (left) studies a piece of Philippine art brought to this country by Sophia Domingo, foreign exchange student at Ubyly High School who is staying at the Clifford Robinson farm on Huron Line Road. Miss Domingo arrived in mid-August.

KRISTY JO MOWRY, 17, Fairgrove, was crowned State Bean Queen Friday night at the annual bean festival in Fairgrove. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Mowry.

Ethiopia waiting in wings to take up Michigan bean production lag

Earlier this summer, the Michigan Bean Commission sent its own observer to Africa to view the bean situation in Ethiopia, which had been held up for several years as one of Michigan's chief competitors in bean production.

"We wanted to see for ourselves," said Donald Keinath of Caro, who represents Tuscola county on the Commission. "We had heard how many beans the Ethiopians grew and what a surplus they had."

They sent Walt J. Rummel of Sebawaing, assistant to the Commission's secretary-manager, Maynard D. Brownlee, and editor of the Commission News. The story he brought back differed sharply from what other segments of the bean industry and the U.S. government had been saying.

The high-price spiral of 1974 -- resulting from the short 1973 crop -- had its effect in Ethiopia, too, Rummel told Keinath, and as a result, the Ethiopians planted the biggest acreage ever in 1974. The result was a surplus of 1.2 to 1.4 million bags of pea beans and the traditional white beans, which they've been growing for many years. But that's far below the estimates of 2 to 2.2 million bags that had been ascribed to Ethiopia's 1974 production.

Possibly 25,000 to 35,000 tons of the 1974 beans were of the navy bean type -- 600,000 to 750,000 bags. Besides, Keinath was told, Ethiopian sales were low -- partly because of poor quality -- so that 18,000 to 20,000 metric tons, or 400,000 to 450,000 bags were still in storage in June. They're about half navy and half small-whites. Ethiopian beans aren't selling on the world market, even though their price has been as low as 4 1/2 to 5 cents per pound to the grower.

Furthermore, Commissioner Keinath was told by the observer, Ethiopian beans in storage deteriorate far more rapidly than here, and because of mice, rats and insects, whole warehouses full of grain have "disappeared."

Combining the heavy losses Ethiopian farmers took in producing the 1974 crop, and because of nationalization of farm lands by the Provisional Military Government, which took over after deposing Emperor Haile Selassie last year, bean production in 1975 is probably down to one-fourth or one-fifth of last year's.

There are a lot of factors working against production of high quality beans in Ethiopia, Rummel told the Commissioner.

Because of differing elevations of much of the bean-producing areas, there's a wide variety of climates, so many types and varieties of beans have developed. Changes in climate isolate areas from each other and greatly affect cultural practices.

Add to that a lack of technical skill, accentuated by the fact that only about 5 per cent of Ethiopian farmers can read, and it's obvious that there's a communication and information barrier. There are about 70 dialects in Ethiopia, some so different from each other that they're almost completely unintelligible to each other. Because of this lack of communication and since Ethiopian farms are small -- from 1 to 3 acres in size -- and widely scattered, farmers are not aware of the value of good seed, and they have no knowledge of fertilizer.

They know very little about bean diseases, and when a heavy infestation strikes, farmers have no way of letting anyone know about it, and they have no knowledge of how to combat it.

Much harvesting is by handpicking, and threshing is by flailing. When a crop is sold, almost all the beans and grains are taken off the farms on the backs of donkeys. Buyers travel farm-to-farm, hauling beans in bags or animal skins, without benefit of scales. The buyer "guesses" the weight of the sale, and the seller either concurs or holds out. In warehouses, beans are simply dumped into piles where they are "picked" by women. A bean pile may contain many kinds of beans, and women, carrying or caring for small children, pick out the desirable beans for export. When she has gathered a quintal (220 pounds) of exportable beans, she's paid between $1 and $1.50 (50 cents to 75 cents in U.S. money).

Despite the many problems facing Ethiopian farmers, some good beans are produced, and there are always some buyers who'll overlook top quality to buy a low-priced product. With the low per-capita income of Ethiopians, it's obvious that some agricultural income must be derived from exports.

For the present the new government is concentrating on "feeding our people", recognizing that eventually foreign dollars will be needed.

"We have not given up getting into the export market," Ethiopian leaders point out. "We may not do it with navy beans; it may be with an exotic or specialized type of bean, because many kinds are needed around the world."

They serve notice that they're watching -- and waiting -- sitting in the wings at the moment, anxious to grasp any opportunity and capitalize on any weakness that might occur, should Michigan's bean quality slip, or should Michigan production fail to meet the world's needs.

Unemployment still crowds 20 per cent

the MESO Caro branch has had no indication of how the employment picture at area plants such as Walbro Corp. and General Cable shape up for fall.

He said county-wide, there have been a few call-backs at some plants, but that the picture would improve slowly if at all for the coming few months.

BENEFIT PICTURE

Boelman explained a recent extension of benefits under the Supplemental Unemployment Assistance act passed by Congress last December extends benefits through March of 1977 for those persons who qualify for the highest benefit.

The bill was passed to cover persons not covered by other forms of unemployment compensation.

Complete information and registration forms are available from the County Extension Office, Civil Defense Center, Caro or telephone 673-3161. Registration must be returned to Mrs. Wesley Karpovich, 3732 Dixon Rd., Caro or Mrs. Harry Smith, Densmore Road, Caro. Task may take one to two days. Dry beans and coffee beans are sorted in this manner. (Michigan Bean Commission Photos).

DONALD KEINATH of Caro, left, newly-elected vice-chairman of the Michigan Bean Commission, looks over some information that Walt Rummel of Sebawaing, editor of the Commission News, brought back from Ethiopia. The Commission sent Rummel to obtain a first-hand report of bean production and cultural practices in Africa. Keinath represents Tuscola County bean producers on the Commission.

Boy Scouts set round-up drive

Like cowboys on the range, Scout Leaders in the 19 counties making up the Lake Huron Area Council - Boy Scouts of America will start the annual Fall Round-Up Sept. 1 to run through December.

The goal will be to round-up and enroll 3000 members, Cub and Boy Scouts, during the round-up drive under the direction of Round-Up Chairman Fred Bear, Grayling industrialist and internationally known archery expert.

One of the main round-up events will be the annual "School Night for Scouting" to be held Thursday night, Sept. 18, at most elementary schools throughout the 19-county Council area.

Cub and Scout-age boys are invited to bring their parents to their neighborhood school that night to hear the Scouting program outlined by local Scout leaders and to enroll in Cub packs or Scout troops for the 1975-76 year.

Police seek pot warrant, probe thefts the building. He said books in the library were found scattered in the building.

No estimate of damage was available. The J.P. Burroughs elevator in Gagetown was also the target for thieves early Sunday morning. McCampbell said unknown culprits broke out a window and entered the building.

Nothing was reported stolen. The entry was discovered around 9:00 a.m.

Marie Lock of Rossman Rd., Caro, reported someone threw paint remover at her car while it was parked in the General Cable parking lot Tuesday, Aug. 26.

Cass City Police said paint remover damaged the hood and front fenders and occurred between 3:00 and 11:00 p.m.

No suspects have been apprehended.

Trying to avoid trouble will keep anyone mighty busy.

Pakonen sees conference chasing Frankenmuth

16 lettermen key to Hawks' conference title quest

HOPES ARE HIGH for the 1975 Red Hawk football team. The squad took time out from pre-school practices last week for an official team photo.

Second row: Bill Ouvry, Rod Hutchinson, Wayne Brooks, Greg Trischler, Glen MacCallum, Mike Otulakowski, Dan Erla, Guy Howard and Ivan Stine.

Gen-Tel appeals rate hike

General Telephone has filed an appeal with the Circuit Court of Ingham county seeking the court's ruling on certain aspects of the general rate order issued by the Michigan Public Service Commission Aug. 4, according to Jack Reitze, president of General Telephone. The appeal was filed Friday, Aug. 29.

According to the appeal, the company feels the MPSC erred in determining the basic investment on which rates are based. The company is appealing the MPSC's computation of net income and its computation of operating revenue.

General Telephone is asking to recover an additional $1,700,000 of its original application for $12.8 million. The MPSC awarded the company $9.9 million, of which the company would retain $4.8 million after payment of federal and state taxes.

No person is tall enough to be above neighborly criticism.

TIP TO MOTORISTS

Don't gamble in traffic — your life is at stake, as well as those of many others.

Obeys the law

Cyclists: learn signals

Biking is a big pastime in Michigan these days. But many bicyclists don't seem to know how to signal.

That's the word from Secretary of State Richard Austin, who says many bike operators don't seem to realize that new hand signals applying to motorists also apply to them. A 1974 law set out the new hand signals, which conform to those signals used in other states.

Under the law, bicyclists—as well as drivers of all vehicles not equipped with mechanical or electrical signal devices—must extend the hand and arm:
—Upward to indicate a right turn.

—Straight out to indicate a left turn.

—Downward to indicate a stop or slowing down.

"Hand signals help call attention to the presence of the bicyclist among the traffic mix," Austin notes, "as well as warning motor vehicle drivers of the particular maneuver the bicycle is about to make."

CASS CITY'S offensive linemen work out on the sled for the Chronicle camera.

A football takes some funny bounces, but given a fair share of the breaks this fall Cass City High School promises to be a factor in the Thumb B Conference race.

Coach Roland Pakonen greeted 16 lettermen to opening football practices and among them are most of last year's offensive and defensive lines.

The first real hint of the team's strength will probably come in a scrimmage this week when Pakonen will be able to see his charges in game-like conditions.

While the lines will be experienced they will not be big.

There are no 200 pounders on the squad. But many of the boys that propelled the Hawks to a 4-3 conference record and third place in the league are back. And ready.

Any assessment of the Hawks for 1975 has got to start with outstanding linemen. A couple of Seniors, Guy Howard and Al Kuenzli, were stalwarts last season. Pakonen calls Howard, a line backer, the hardest hitter on the squad, while Kuenzli is the best offensive blocker at tackle on the squad. Both were 2nd team all-conference picks as Juniors.

Pakonen is looking for big things from Dan Erla, center. Erla was 2nd team all-conference as a Sophomore and should be even better this season.

The offensive line also lists Junior Ron O'Dell with Kuenzli at tackle and Senior Rod Hutchinson with Howard at guard.

Linebacking will be handled by Howard and Kirt Kendall with Junior Tom Dorland and Senior Steve Schneeberger challenging.

The offensive backfield has three returning veterans and if the first four escape injury should provide plenty of punch for the Hawks.

Start with the two Lowes. The biggest and fastest back is Senior Ken Lowe. He's slated at fullback. At one of the halfbacks will be Junior Mike Lowe and at the wing Mike Gruber appears to have the inside track.

Quarterback will be Tom Smentek, a Senior. Smentek shared the duties with Dave Zawilinski last season. Zawilinski is not out for football.

One of the areas in which Coach Pakonen is working is the defensive backfield. He has only Ken Lowe returning as a defensive starter. But there is a raft of players with experience waiting to fill the void. Picking the starters will be the task of the coaching staff in the practice days ahead.

While there is talent returning, there also was plenty of talent lost via graduation.

Start with Ed Stoutenburg, all-conference offensive halfback. Add Jerry Toner, defensive safety. Mix in Russ Schweikart, offensive fullback and defensive tackle; Greg Decker, offensive guard; Mark Phillips, tough noseman; Kim Copeland, defensive end; Bruce Tuckey, guard, and Jan Grenholm, kicker, and you have a pretty fair nucleus of a ball team lost via graduation. Another loss is Ron Sieradzki, line-backer, who is not playing this season.

Pakonen says that Frankenmuth will be the class of the league this fall. He lists Vassar next, followed by Cass City.

Following the Hawks are Sandusky, Bad Axe, Caro, Marlette and Lakers.

But, says the coach, after Frankenmuth, all of the six teams are fairly evenly matched.

SCHEDULE:

Sept. 12-Yale	Home
19-Marlette	Home
26-Vassar	Away
Oct. 3-Lakers	Home
10-Caro	Away
17-Bad Axe	Home
24-Frankenmuth	Home
31-Sandusky	Away

TWO BACKS upon which much of Cass City's success this fall will depend work out on the sled. They are, from left, Ken Lowe and Tom Smentek.

The Vanishing American

Today's dairy farmer milks cows on the edge of a chasm. Standing on one foot. In a high wind.

From his precarious vantage point, he sees increasing costs of such production necessities as seed, feed, fuel and fertilizers; and he sees a farm income declining by comparison.

About half of the U. S. dairy farmers in business five years ago no longer are. In Michigan, the nation's sixth-ranking dairy state, the number of dairy farmers has dropped from about 14,000 a decade ago to 7,700 last year. The number is expected to be 4,500 by 1980.

Today's dairy farmer knows he cannot stand alone. He knows he needs an ally. And for 5,400 of the state's 7,700 dairy farmers, that ally is MMPA, a milk marketing cooperative owned and controlled by those it serves.

MMPA, through a variety of service and marketing programs, pledges itself to work for the betterment of its dairy farmer members. MMPA works for a fair return on dairy farmers' investments and works to maintain stability in the complex arena of milk marketing.

Some of MMPA's programs also benefit consumers. The Association encourages high milk production which, combined with sound and positive marketing practices, assures ample milk for Michigan consumers. MMPA also promotes good dairy herd management practices among its members to assure that milk sent to market under the MMPA banner is of highest possible quality.

Dairy farming is the first-ranking segment of the state's No. 2 industry: Agriculture.

And we at MMPA are dedicated to the belief that the Vanishing American is important and to the belief that this great natural resource—the dairy farming industry—is worth preserving.

School's open: drive safely

School buses may be one of the safest means of travel, but the potential for serious injury accidents while transporting one million Michigan children 125 million miles each school year is mind-boggling, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Approximately 40 per cent of the state's 2.5 million students in grades kindergarten through 12 ride buses to class," said Arthur C. Gibson, Auto Club Safety and Traffic Engineering Department manager.

"Through our 'School's Open—Drive Carefully' campaign each fall, Auto Club emphasizes the importance of motorists being on the alert for these school children," Gibson continued.

In the 1974-75 school year, eight youngsters lost their lives in bus-related mishaps, the highest total in three years.

Another 101 school-age pedestrians (five to 14 years old) were killed last year—many of them while walking to and from school.

"A good number of the deaths occurred because students were unaware of the dangers of crossing streets to and from school. That means it's the responsibility of motorists, including school bus drivers, to be extra alert for the 180,000 students starting kindergarten in Michigan this September," Gibson said.

Gibson recalled one tragic incident in which a youngster was killed as he stood in front of a school bus to pick up a fallen book and was struck by the bus.

Auto Club suggests parents teach children these rules on riding the bus or walking to school:

• Walk only on the sidewalk. If there is none, walk facing traffic, on the shoulder of the road.

• Watch for turning cars and never cross between parked vehicles.

• Leave home in plenty of time to arrive at the bus stop and stay well off the roadway while waiting to be picked up.

• Remain seated while the bus is moving and keep hands and arms inside at all times.

• After leaving the bus, walk at least 10 steps ahead of it before crossing the road, waiting for the driver to signal it is safe. Never cross at the back of the bus.
