

Cass City schools inch toward $150,000 athletic field

The Cass City School Board voted to have specifications for a proposed athletic complex at the high school grounds drawn by a Port Huron architect, inching the district another step towards abandonment of the traditional site at the Cass City Recreational Park. The total project could cost $150,000. Although moving closer to a high school site the board has not yet fully committed itself to it.

If the new site is selected it is virtually certain that the money for it will come from the general fund. Supt. Crouse estimated that the district could spend $40,000 per year from money now generated from operating taxes and still have money left for emergency purposes.

If the site is developed at the school it is sure that it would require $40,000 expenditures for several years to pay the bill.

Crouse said that football field lighting and seating for some 2,000 persons would cost between $80,000 and $90,000.

That cost would be the same at the park or the school. In addition, there are other costs. An eight-lane, all weather track would boost the ante to $130,000. Needed, too, would be a baseball field, fencing and the wiring to the new location. Architect's fees are around 6 per cent of the total job. Now the property is used for practice football and band practice and is graded. How much more money would be required for site improvement won't be known until the architect finishes his work.

Whatever the eventual cost, Crouse said that the school will have the money to complete it over the next three or four years without asking for more tax money.

If the state retains its present payment formula, the district will not come to the taxpayers for more money, the superintendent said.

Citizens for Improved Education. The group interviewed 118 persons. Fifty-two wanted the field at the schools, 26 at the park and 40 were undecided or had no opinion.

Nearly all wanted the money to come from the general fund and vetoed any increase in taxes for capital improvements.

sketchy because he was waiting for guidelines from the State before proceeding.

The board authorized the purchase of three school buses. The previous six buses purchased included automatic transmissions. However the cost of the extra is now $1,000 each and the board voted not to provide it on the three units.

Trustee J.D. Tuckey suggested that a careful maintenance cost for clutch repair on the units be checked as a guide for future purchases.

TAX RATE

While the operating tax rate will remain the same for 1976, local district residents will pay more in taxes. That's because .9 of a mill for debt will be levied. Total taxes will be 20.9 as compared to 20 mills this year.

Firemen, hospital push for burn program

Hills and Dales General Hospital should be on its financial way to instituting a new burn treatment program, if the Elkland Township Fire Department has its way.

The department has been pushing hard to get such a program rolling at the hospital ever since it raised $1,000 for a new burn unit constructed at Saginaw St. Mary's Hospital last year.

Practically since the receipts were counted from last year's successful country-western music show, former Fire Chief Dick Root has been ramrodding this year's drive.

Last week, hospital personnel voted unanimously to go along with such a burn program which could lead to better treatment for burn victims and perhaps save lives.

Hospital Administrator Randy D. Howard explained that a burn program involves education more than anything else. Combined with needed equipment to put the program together, he said the hospital is looking at at least a $2,000 expense.

"It won't take a major amount of equipment," Howard explained. "Probably 75 per cent of the cost will go for educating our staff, including doctors and nurses."

Most of the cost would involve fees for some needed classes, along with transportation to either Ann Arbor or Saginaw and perhaps lodging.

A major piece of equipment which would be needed would be an external automatic cardiac massage unit, which could be strapped to a burn patient suffering a resulting heart seizure.

"The whole thrust of the program is initial treatment," Howard said. "We want to be able to stabilize a burn victim and treat any other, medical, emergency that may arise as a result of the burn."

A burn program could also increase the number of patients who could remain at Hills and Dales instead of being transferred to Saginaw. Severe cases would still need treatment at either St. Mary's or Ann Arbor.

"Actually, by the time we're through, we'll have a little more than just a burn program," Howard said. "We'll be upgrading our intensive care section as well."

HIGHLY SPECIALIZED

Burn treatment has become a highly specialized branch of medicine in recent years, Howard explained, with techniques taught just a few years ago now obsolete.

"Things are vastly different now when it comes to treating a burn victim," Howard said. "It's not enough any more to use distilled water or saline. It's a whole new ball game."

The thrust of the education courses would be to teach these new techniques, particularly in the area of stabilization. Howard recalled an incident last year in which a highway department workman suffered a severe burn when hot asphalt accidentally scalded his back.

"We were in touch with St. Mary's regarding treatment and eventually the man was transferred," Howard said. "We needed the knowledge. A burn program here would help us treat him ourselves."

He stressed that a burn program at Hills and Dales won't end the need to transfer severe burn cases.

"We wouldn't attempt to treat a whole body burn here beyond stabilization," he said. "Often, you run into kidney failure with a severe burn and we don't have the dialysis equipment that would be needed immediately in order for him to survive.

"We also do not have the room to house the equipment we'd need for skin grafting. Our job would be to offer proper initial treatment for the burn victim and get him stabilized."

Howard said that once the burn program is in full operation, hospital personnel would be able to ride with the victim in an ambulance to either Saginaw or Ann Arbor and continue treatment along the way.

This has been a major concern of both hospital personnel and fire department members—long-distance transportation.

It was one of the reasons the department got behind the St. Mary's program last year—to help cut down on the long, sometimes deadly ride to the burn center in Ann Arbor.

Now the department wants to upgrade local, initial treatment. They plan on doing it with another country-western music show slated Oct. 4, at Cass City High School.

Rex Allen Jr. will be the featured performer. The show is being supplied through Gainey Enterprises which handled last year's show.

Firemen want to clear at least $1,000 this year, but are hoping for more.

The hospital has already spent between $300 and $400 training emergency room nurses in proper burn treatment. That still leaves at least four doctors and a large number of nurses to go.

But the fire department and hospital officials are optimistic that the program can be established.

Tickets for the show will cost $3.00 for adults and $1.00 for children under 12. Tickets will cost 50 cents more at the door.

Tickets are available from any Cass City fireman.

The Owen-Gage Board of Education gave the green light to a preliminary application for $1.6 million worth of bonds that would finance construction of a new high school in Owendale, during its regularly scheduled meeting Monday night in Owendale.

The 6-0 vote came on submitting a preliminary application to the State Board of Education for permission to bond. State approval is still necessary before an election date can be set.

Informed observers believe chances of placing the question before voters before the end of 1975 is doubtful.

The board okayed a package that includes actual building costs of $1,205,000, architect's fees of $90,000, demolition of the old high school at $25,000, equipment of $160,000 and capitalized interest of $85,000.

For the money, the district would get 37,660 square feet of space that would accommodate 350 students.

If the new building is constructed the district would have a total of nearly 60,000 square feet of building space and would accommodate 530 students.

Architect Les Tinknell explained that construction would include a new gymnasium, with the present gym converted into a cafeteria and all-purpose room.

When the proposal finally gets on the ballot, it will be the second time in just over two years that district voters have had to decide a building question.

In December, 1973, voters turned down a $2.66 million bond issue to construct a new high school between Owendale and Gageton.

Prior to that, voters turned down an effort to merge the district with Unionville-Sehwaing and later defeated a move to split the district between Cass City and Lakers.

The board adjourned to executive session prior to approving the bond request.

The high school building proposal drew considerably less fire than did a move to construct a 12 by 16-foot bedroom onto Supt. Ronald Erickson's house in Owendale.

The board approved spending $4,300 on the addition to the district-owned house, pending final determination on the cost of heating the room.

The board gave its okay by a 6-1 vote, with trustee Fred Cooley casting the lone negative vote.

"Before I vote to spend this kind of money on that house, I'd consider raising his (Erickson's) salary and letting him rent a house," Cooley said during debate on the proposal.

Cooley also questioned whether or not Erickson had said the house was too small for his family before he moved in.

"I understood that the house was adequate at the time you looked at it," Cooley told Erickson. "I don't recall anything about needing an extra bedroom."

Erickson said he did indicate from the beginning that more room would be needed for his five children.

Meeting set in time clock hassle

Representatives of the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners and Council 55, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees will meet Thursday in an attempt to iron out a grievance filed by the union regarding the use of time clocks.

Union officials say the clocks, which were installed in the courthouse lobby, the Sheriff's department and the Cooperative Extension Service office, are in violation of the contract.

Commissioners say the clocks were installed in order to keep closer track of hours worked by employees. They emphasize salaries will not be figured from hours shown on time cards.

Personnel Committee Chairman Maynard McConkey said Monday he was hopeful an agreement could be reached to end the impasse.

Pumpkin contest highlights fall sale

At a special meeting Tuesday morning the Retail Division of the Cass City Chamber of Commerce outlined plans for its annual fall sale, scheduled Oct. 16-17-18.

A feature of the event will be a fall produce sale and the largest pumpkin contest.

Chairman Mike Weaver said that local gardeners and farmers are urged to bring their produce to sell on the sidewalk in the business district.

Persons interested should contact him for details.

There will be a $25 savings bond awarded to the persons with the largest pumpkin. This event is slated Saturday, Oct. 18, at 2 p.m.

Cass City retailers have been planning for the fall event and many have arranged for special purchases for the town-wide sale event.

County Dial-A-Ride plan stalls out Tuesday

Dial-A-Ride in Tuscola county won't get rolling this year, following action Tuesday by the Board of Commissioners meeting in Caro.

The board decided it wasn't interested in the program since a formal application for state funding on the program had to be in Lansing by Wednesday.

While commissioners generally favored the idea of offering county residents the service, the funding and timing weren't right, according to Commissioner Maynard McConkey.

According to McConkey, the plan would have cost the county $1,000 the first year, with the state taking up to a 40 per cent share of the added costs in the second year.

He said by the time the program was fully established, the cost could be considerable. He said in Isabella county, for instance, the program costs $56,000.

It is not known how many buses would be needed to establish Dial-A-Ride in the county.

McConkey said the board may consider applying for the program next month for 1976. He also told his fellow commissioners the people should have more of a say regarding these types of public service programs.

"I suggested that these 'public goodies' should be approved by the people and supported with millage," he said.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, the board approved the hiring of a part-time county plumbing and building inspector. Public Works Director Paul Lester made the request, saying this would give the county local control in enforcing state-mandated building codes.

Commissioners heard a request from Circuit Judge Norman Baguley that the county increase its supplements to his salary. Presently, Tuscola and Lapeer counties, which make up the circuit, each contribute $2,000 toward his salary, along with $26,600 from the state.

Baguley said Tuscola and Lapeer counties' supplement is among the lowest in the state.

The request was referred to the finance and personnel committees.

MILLAGE

The board approved levying 4.2 mills to run county government another year. This figure has been unchanged for several years.

How a new law recently signed by Governor William Milliken will affect the figure remains to be seen. Under a new law, local units of governments, excluding school districts, must lower their millages as valuations rise, in order to keep the same amount of dollars flowing in.

Theoretically, the millage figure would have to drop in the future unless voters approve raising it or maintaining it at a constant level.

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

A year ago at this time the big question among persons interested in students and their activities was: how safe are the football helmets?

The question was posed when testing showed that many helmets were not affording players adequate protection. At the time Cass City vowed to have its helmets checked. They were. The result was that about 12 of 40 went into the trash heap. About 40 new ones have been purchased and all of these have the newly required seal indicating they have passed rigid safety standards.

Sports fans well know that in recent years Cass City has had its hands full competing against Class C schools.

We will be in "C" again this year but just barely. The rules call for about 703 students in the top four grades before a school is shoved into Class "B". Cass City has about 692. Whew!

In Class B Cass City would be paired with schools like Mt. Pleasant, Buena Vista, River Rouge, etc. During the 1976-77 school year we could well pass the barrier and move up. . . however in the past the number it takes to belong to a class has been constantly expanding and it may well be that when Cass City hits the 703 student mark the magic figure will have moved up to 750 or so. Let's hope so.

With all the night flying around Cass City recently I was bitten by curiosity (again) and wanted to find out who stuck around to turn on the lights at all hours of the night at Grant Hutchinson's air strip.

It's all automatic, grinned Stuart Merchant. It's done by a radio signal activated from a plane and about 10 minutes after the lights are switched on they automatically turn off again.

Must have cost a pretty penny, I observed. Not so bad, says Stuart. Eleven guys put up $30 each to get the night hawks airborne.

The Chronicle can bring people together. If you doubt it, ask the George Dillmans. They are natives of Cass City, long retired now and spend winters in Florida.

They were in town this week prior to leaving again and said that it was through the paper that they learned where another Cass City pioneer was living in Zephyrhills. What happened was that when their paper arrived another was enclosed. They examined the label and found it addressed to Merritt Hart, who lived just a short distance away.

Hart was a pioneer Cass City businessman and well known to the Dillmans.

The couple made a special delivery of the paper to Hart and renewed old acquaintances with a friend they had no idea was in the area.

Board boosts substitute pay

Substitute teachers' salaries, building costs, Evergreen school improvements and a teacher's contract were settled or discussed at the Monday night meeting of the Cass City School Board.

Pay for substitute teachers was sharply increased. From payment of $28 a day to start and $33 per day after 10 days on the job the rate was upped to $32 a day to start and $40 a day after 15 consecutive days on the job. In addition, if the teacher works the 15 straight days the payment of $40 is retroactive to the first day she started.

The arrangement makes payment for teachers who will be filling in for an extended period more compatible with a regular teacher's which is $50 a day or more.

Building costs were upped to pay for increased cost to employees. Custodian fees will now be $5.90. Cook fees went from $4.50 to $4.75 at Campbell, Deford and Evergreen schools and from $5.00 to $5.25 at the high school.

These are fees paid by non-school groups using the facilities.

The contract of Susan Hummel was approved to teach high school chemistry, physics and math. The salary of Marcel Vatter, missed when other salaries were adjusted, was raised from $2.50 per hour to $2.80.

Finally, Richard Mika appeared before the board to complain about playground equipment and the driveway at Evergreen school.

He was informed that beds for school slides had been on order for a year. The wrong size was sent once, Crouse said, and the replacements sent to the wrong district and used by that district. Replacement parts for the swings have also been ordered, but not yet delivered.

Mika also asked about the parking lot that is very muddy when wet and was told the situation will be looked into.

He was concerned about the sewage disposal problem at the school. Crouse explained that the board was waiting for plans and was "aiming" to have this work completed before the fall freeze.

KICKBACK

It's a good policy not to talk behind the back of a man whose stubborn as a mule.

Shirking responsibilities can make progress lose balance.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

When the first really serious post World War II economic slump arrived last year it was fashionable to recall the hardships of the 1933-38 depression.

It was a lulu, no doubt about it.

I've a publisher friend who can recall working for $3 a day in a print shop and in the worst days putting in one day a week. He moonlighted at the local theater at night where he got a buck for running the projector until midnight. He had it lucky, though. He had a job.

Enough of that ancient history. What I want to talk about is the people involved.

It's kind of fashionable for the guys with jobs to point with disdain to the unemployed. Not because they are unemployed, mind you, but because they spend like there was no tomorrow.

They flock to the north country and everyone has heard the stories of the laid off workers wintering in Florida. The report is that Florida had its busiest year ever.

There's no doubt that the stories have a sound basis in fact.

What's not true is that it's the irresponsible, unmoralistic times that we live in that makes the spenders act the way they do. In times gone by, many are pontificating, a guy laid off was thinking about making available money last. Not spending it on unessential good times.

I submit to you that human nature hasn't changed at all in 40 years.

My boyhood home was in Pinconning, then and now a stop on the trail to Northern Michigan. US-23 (now I3) was the avenue north and in the depression it was a two-lane and later a three-lane highway.

Every summer Sunday and every deer season you could count on a traffic jam as cars returned home. That was back in the days when an auto worker might work three months out of the year and then be laid off.

Then it was popular for the year-around workers to point

"If It Fitz . . ." The shrine of the jockstrap

BY JIM FITZGERALD

The recreation director in my favorite town recently accused some parents of forcing their children to play baseball when the kids would much rather do something else.

Most Big 10 football coaches are angry because they are no longer allowed to put uniforms on 100 brutes for a game requiring 11 players.

There's a connection. It's called muscle worship.

Why would a father force his son to swing a bat at a ball when the boy would rather read a book? Dumb question. Did Mickey Mantle read books?

Why would a young man want to strap himself into several pounds of leather pads simply to sit on a bench in uncomfortable obscurity with no chance of getting in the game, short of a holocaust wiping out 15 other quarterbacks? Another dumb question. Do you expect him to swagger into Joe's Bar & Grill Saturday night and brag about the concerto he heard that afternoon?

This is a nation queer for jocks. Almost everyone adores at the shrine of the torn ligament. Our numbered gods are so securely heroic they can wear pantyhose on TV without casting doubt upon their supreme masculinity. But a little kid doesn't dare say no thanks, it is dumb to get knocked down and trampled while running with a stupid ball. His buddies would call him a pansy and his embarrassed father would ship him off to a muscle camp named after a million-dollar fullback where off-season coaches guarantee to make a superstar out of Junior (lights out at 9 p.m. for fear some little egghead might try to read something harder to spell than X and O).

That's the way it is in this he-man civilization, from before puberty to beyond senility. We are raised believing there is something special about athletes. They get all the girls, make all the money and get invited to the White House. Every father wants his son to make the team. If he can't, then Junior at least better be a raving fan, ready to worship batting averages and dunk shots.

I am as stupid as the rest. Over 30 years ago, when all the good players had gone to war, I won a city tennis championship. I still brag about it today, and I still have the medal. When I earned a college degree I didn't even go to commencement exercises to pick up the diploma and this will be the first time I ever publicly admitted I graduated with honors.

It's ridiculous, but it's a fact. We are a nation of saps who cast more votes for all-star teams than we do for President.

Taxpayers spend millions to build sports palaces in cities where the libraries must close early in the winter because there's no money for fuel oil.

U of M football coach Bo Schembechler makes headlines by sobbing his grief at not being allowed to reward his scrubs by letting them masquerade as varsity on Saturdays. Thousands of young people want to become doctors and lawyers but there is no room for them in the universities, Saturday or any other day. Who is sobbing loudly for them?

The recreation director reported telling parents their sons weren't interested in playing baseball and it was risky to force them because the bored kids might get hit by passing balls while day-dreaming in the outfield. But the parents answered: "Oh, but he's got to play."

Why? So Junior will grow up knowing the quickest way to heaven is through the locker-room and the surest sign of success is the jockstrap.

Onward and Upward.

BETTER HEALTH

The role of stress

BY DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

In considering the current emphasis on stress -- American gung-ho stress -- as the primary reason that 350 of every 100,000 men in the United States die of coronary heart disease, it would be well to recall that in the 19th century, before the development of a specific test for syphilis, stress was seriously proposed as the real reason why a certain number of middle-aged men went mad with what we now know was syphilis of the brain.

It was not uncommon in the 19th century (somewhat less so now because the disease is more apt to have been specifically treated in its early stages) for men who had long since forgotten the chancre they acquired in a youthful sexual encounter to be struck down by syphilis, which had been smoldering quietly in their nervous systems for as long as 20 years.

Faced with sudden madness, their doctors, who were unable to make a certain diagnosis, missed the real cause. It was not in those years uncommon to attribute such breakdowns to the abnormal turbulence of the burgeoning marketplace with

I'll pay for more postage

It looks as if we'll be faced with another three-cent first-class postage rate increase sometime before the end of the year... U.S. Postal officials say the extra money is needed to meet mounting expenses and to help improve service.

Mrs. Harmond Nichols of Argyle Rd., Decker, says another three cents for first-class postage won't bother her that much.

"We really don't write that many letters so I guess it really doesn't matter," Mrs. Nichols says. "Everything else is going up so I guess this has to go up too."

Mrs. Nichols says she sends out about 100 Christmas cards each year and a postage increase will hit her family hardest at that time. Still, she says she isn't upset.

"One thing higher postage might do though," she says, "is to cut down on some of this junk mail. There's lots of it we get that goes straight into the wastebasket."

Mrs. Nichols has lived in the Decker area much of her life. She is employed at Walbro Corp.

St. Pancratius holds Bible School

St. Pancratius Catholic church recently completed a week of its first Vacation Bible School with 86 students participating.

The program was coordinated by Carole Hollis, with devotions by Sandy Bergman. Teachers for the program were Nancy Keller, Terri Groombridge, Janet Harrison, Barb Malone and Nina Davis. Aides were Elsie Hahn, Kathy Mika, Sally Wood, Lori Harrison and Larry and Rick Hollis. Paul Kerbyson was organist and Teresa Scollon was pianist for the week.

Refreshments were donated by parents through Women's Council President Celia House.

The Sunday following the Bible School, students presented a program for their parents depicting Biblical personalities studied during the week.

Daily student contributions were sent to aid poor-blacks and whites in South Carolina.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

Welcome back to Vietnam

By Jim Ketchum

The song may have ended for us in Vietnam, but Rev. Carl McIntire wants the melody to linger on somewhere near Cape Canaveral, Fla.

McIntire, in the style of Walt Disney, wants to re-create a Vietnamese village, complete with rice paddies, ducks, chickens and a Green Beret detachment camped nearby.

The village will be just "like our boys went into during the war," McIntire says, and even the war will be repressed.

McIntire's nostalgia for the good old days of napalm and genocide in Vietnam will cost more than the $14.5 million McIntire and his Reformation Freedom Center paid for the site a year ago.

He's giving it the novel title "New Vietnam".

When it's completed, tourists will get a chance to ride ferries down the Banana River and get a first-hand look at a sleepy little Vietnamese village just before the 101st Airborne strikes.

They'll even be able to see that, too.

"We'll have a speaker system outside the camp near the river," an assistant says. "After the tourists get inside the camp, we'll have a recording broadcast a fire fight, mortars exploding, bullets flying, Vietnamese screaming."

To add to the realism, Floridians dressed as G.I.'s will fire blanks at the "hidden" Viet Cong, and tourists who want to get into the act can hide behind bunkers as well.

Neat, huh? "Tourists are just going to love this," McIntire says. "And we're giving every penny back to the Vietnamese. The Bible says love your neighbor. We're taking them in our arms and giving them our love."

Loving them to death, eh Carl?

To add to the realism of the scheme, maybe McIntire should consider hiring a group of college-age kids to carry protest signs outside "New Vietnam". He could supply them with draft cards they could burn at regular intervals, just to remind everybody of the bad old days.

Maybe he could even coax a Buddhist monk or two into self-immolation each afternoon at two and four o'clock, in order to catch both tours.

A recording of "Hell no, we won't go" could also make the scene more lifelike, along with an "all-the-way-with-LBJ" campaign button.

And just think, if McIntire's hairbrained scheme actually pays off, it could be just the beginning of an empire that would make Disney turn over in his cartoon-lined coffin.

From there, the fundamentalist radio preacher could recreate Korea, World Wars I and II or maybe even the Civil War. Just think, for your vacation, you could decide which war you wanted the kids to see this year.

He could offer something for everybody, including our Jewish friends. A stretch of Death Valley could be turned into the setting for the Arab-Israeli war of 1967, complete with pyramids, camels and tanks.

Besides, says an aide, people will work anywhere for a paycheck. By substituting bullets for blanks, you certainly could solve the unemployment problem.

So here's to you, Carl McIntire. May your flack jacket have holes in it and may your helmet leak when you take a bath in it. It couldn't happen to a nicer guy.

Elkland township moves to sponsor ambulance service

The Elkland Township Board took its first concrete steps toward sponsoring an upgraded ambulance service in Cass City Monday night when it approved seeking eligibility for federal grant monies to finance the project.

If the township is made eligible, chances are excellent it will formally apply for the funding which could be as much as $10,500, or 70 per cent of the cost of a new ambulance.

Representatives from the East Central Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning and Development Commission who also attended Monday's meeting said they would assist the township in seeking the federal-state grant monies.

The commission also agreed to help establish an Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) course at Hills and Dales General Hospital. If an EMT program can be set up, chances are it would begin operating around the first of next year.

Reportedly, seven doctors and other medical personnel have offered to participate in the 81-hour course as instructors.

According to Dorothy Mantey, a member of the Comprehensive Health Commission, the courses go beyond standard emergency medical training received by most registered nurses.

"What this means," she said, "is that your chances of survival or of not receiving permanent injury are much greater if ambulance service is required by you or your family."

Delegations from the commission, Cass City Village Council, and personnel from Hills and Dales General Hospital attended Monday's meeting.

Both the grant and training school have tentative approval by the commission and all that is required now is that application be made for grant eligibility.

If an upgraded ambulance, which could cost as much as $16,500, is purchased, the township would lease it to an individual to operate and maintain—probably Roger Little, who operates Cass City's existing service.

Little is concerned that present service could be deemed inadequate under pending state legislation. He has also pushed for improved training of ambulance attendants.

Little previously told the township board and Village Council that he could not bear the cost of operating an ambulance under proposed state guidelines which are expected to become law sometime next year.

Township Supervisor Edwin Karr said Elkland township will be bidding for one of 11 ambulance grants that will be awarded between now and next July 1.

"We stand a chance," Karr said, "but I'm not sure just how good a chance it is. Our eligibility will probably be determined on our need. There'll be 11 grants for the 83 counties."

Karr said EMT courses would cost around $100, with each applicant paying between $15 and $20 and the commission picking up the rest.

Once a grant is received, however, and an ambulance purchased, the township would be on its own, Karr said. The grant is not renewable.

This means that once the original ambulance wore out, the township would have to replace it by itself.

Financing the service would still have to be decided. One suggestion would impose a head tax on all persons served by the ambulance.

JOHN P. PROPER ROOFING

Quality Service To The Thumb Area
For 36 Years

A good roof is an all important factor in the protection of your building investment and a firm well known for the installation and maintenance of all types of roofs is John P. Proper, located at 3778 N. Main in Akron, phone 691-5140.

Your roof represents only about 3 per cent of your building investment. Yet, its value is out of all proportion to its cost; for a roof acts as a guardian of your building and all its contents.

Just as you take inventory of any possessions periodically so you should check up on your roof. Let these professionals examine your roof. They may find that it is in good condition, ready for many years of service. They may find defects that can easily be remedied, but which if neglected, might soon dangerously weaken your roof. Or again they may discover that your roof is so badly worn that it needs a new covering to protect it and to prevent a costly leak.

We are pleased to recommend John P. Proper to our readers as one firm who does the job right at an honest price.

LAWRENCE INSURANCE AGENCY, INC.

John Lawrence - Owner

Is your farm property properly insured to protect you and your family from want in the event of fire or other loss? Many families face hardships daily because the farm property was not properly insured.

It costs nothing to investigate a farm-owners policy; and only by investigating one can you decide the right amount of insurance you need.

Since premiums are based on the present value of the property, it is wise to make sure your property is insured to its present market value.

The Lawrence Insurance Agency has well earned their reputation as one of the most reliable farm-owners insurance firms in this area. You are invited to call on the Lawrence Insurance Agency

Tattered notebook recalls holocaust of 1881 Great Fire

It's been 94 years since the disastrous Great Fire of 1881 raged through Michigan's Thumb, destroying everything in its path and killing scores of persons.

Accounts of the suffering and death clipped from newspapers of that day were recently uncovered in an old farmhouse being torn down four miles southeast of Cass City on Lamton Road.

The accounts were pasted into a ledger by George Bradshaw. His great-grandson, Max Wise, Cass City, said the collection has been a part of the family many years.

"We found it in the attic," Wise said as he thumbed through the tattered ledger. "It's quite complete and tells about the losses all around here."

According to the clippings, the fire spread as far west as Saginaw and engulfed most of the Thumb. Cass City did not escape the holocaust, according to reports dated Sept. 7 and 9, 1881.

A total of 19 deaths was reported in and near Cass City, with three more near Caro.

"A reporter who came in last night late, from Cass City, Tuscola county, reports the country east for eight miles swept by the fires, where but one building is standing," a Sept. 7 dispatch read.

"A special messenger also arrived from Cass City with a letter signed by the President of the village to Frank H. Thomas, President of Caro Village, stating that the fires are raging for 10 miles east of there and nearly every settler is homeless; asking for cooked provisions for distribution. A public meeting was held last evening and a load of provisions sent to Cass City," the dispatch continued.

The scene between Cass City and Caro was equally appalling.

"Nearly 100 families between Caro and Cass City are burned out," a Sept. 8, 1881, dispatch read.

Some of the more prominent Cass Cityans to lose property included J.L. Hitchcock, who lost a barn and contents; John Little, house and barn; Andrew Seeger, house and barn; H.C. Deming, house and barn; Solomon Strickland, house and barn; Orlando Strickland, house, and Gilbert Hartwick, house and barn.

"It was reported in Cass City that only one house escaped fire for eight miles of that place," the dispatch continued. "Families were coming in every few minutes with all they had left of their worldly possessions on their backs."

A Sept. 9 dispatch from Cass City reported not less than 200 families burned out of their homes and rendered destitute.

In addition to lives and property lost, crops were ravaged. About 4,000 acres of wheat and oats which had been harvested and stacked or stored in barns was swept away by the flames. The loss of life was staggering. Another press report described it.

"George Furgason of White Rock, who has been on the road since Monday, reports he has seen 116 burned. In one place he saw four wagons bearing eight coffins and one man walking behind alone. It was his entire family. Another man was following three coffins."

Survival became paramount. Persons did anything they could to live through the heat.

"Mrs. W. Burgess got separated from her husband and laid all night in a ditch. Another person laid down in a mud puddle and rolled over and over all night."

One farmer in Paris township, Huron county, saved his sick wife, his five children and three of his brother-in-law's children by literally carrying them to safety.

"He took his wife with the infant on one arm, the youngest of the children on the other and instructing the remaining seven to keep close to him, made a dash for life. "Burdened as he was and having his seven little followers to watch, he succeeded in reaching open space for which they originally started. The fire was so close that the entire party were temporarily blinded. It is estimated that the fire in Paris township travelled at from ten to 15 miles an hour."

In another instance, 18 persons jumped into an eight-foot square well and doused each other with water until the fire had passed.

Some were not so lucky. Entire families suffocated attempting to flee the flames. The heat was so intense that fish died in the Cass River.

In Elkland township, a cow attempting to reach the river became mired and was so thoroughly cooked that she fell to pieces when an attempt was made to pull her out.

"Death toll reports ranged from 150 to 300. "A description of the sights would make the reader's blood turn cold," a Sept. 8 dispatch read. "In many instances, men, women and children would be found lying on their faces in the road just where they had been overtaken by the fire."

"Children lying on logs were found where they had clambered for safety. There was no finding each other when once separated. Many took refuge in wells and root houses, thinking to escape, but in almost every instance they were suffocated."

RELIEF

Eventually the fire burned itself out. Final totals showed 1,521 homes and 1,480 barns destroyed. There were 3,231 families burned out and 14,438 individuals sought aid. Total property losses were estimated at nearly $2.5 million. Relief appeals went out across the nation and help came from as far away as Boston, which sent a check for $20,000. Other donations came in from Detroit, Pittsburgh and New York.

Other smaller Michigan cities pitched in, along with individuals.

Relief committees also helped replant crops for the next year as well as bringing in supplies and distributing them.

Historians now agree the fire probably started due to a combination of dry weather and careless burning of brush. That carelessness led to the greatest natural or man-made disaster ever to hit Michigan's Thumb.

MAX WISE, Cass City, holds a tattered page from a notebook containing clippings concerning the Great Fire of 1881 that swept through Michigan's Thumb. The notebook turned up in an attic and contains much historical information about the holocaust that killed between 150 and 300 persons.

County records sixth fatality

Tuscola county recorded its sixth traffic fatality of 1975 early Thursday evening when Michael Neil Martin, 19, of Caro, died when his car went out of control and rolled over on Blackmore Road, about two miles north of Mayville.

Two passengers in the car, Nelson Clark Martin, 28, brother of the victim, and Alan Francis Berlin, 20, both of Caro, were taken to Caro Community Hospital with their injuries.

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies said Martin was headed west on Blackmore Road at a high rate of speed when he crested a hill and lost control of the car.

The vehicle rolled over after running off the north shoulder of the road.

The accident took place at 6:55 p.m.

A Unionville man escaped serious injury late Saturday morning when the car he was driving went out of control, flipped and landed in a ditch on Hobart Road, about three miles southwest of Gageton. Caro State Police said a car driven by Ricky Lee Baker, 20, was headed west on Hobart Road when a dog apparently ran into the vehicle's path.

Baker told police he swerved to miss the animal, losing control of the car. Police said the vehicle skidded 528 feet before running off the north shoulder of the road, rolling over and landing in a ditch.

Baker sought his own medical treatment. He was ticketed for violating the basic Michigan speed law.

The accident took place at 11:45 a.m.

Two persons were uninjured when their cars collided on M-46 in Kingston early Saturday evening.

A car driven by Kenneth Lawson, 21, Clifford, pulled from a parking space and struck a westbound car driven by Albert A. Lorch, 49, of Sauli Ste. Marie, Ont. Neither driver was injured and no ticket was issued. The accident took place at 6:45 p.m.

AROUND THE FARM Running a small farm By William Bortel

There are more and more families engaged in small-scale or part-time farming. They usually want to raise some livestock for food or for added income.

Before you decide what livestock you are going to raise, get the facts on the initial cost of the various kinds of animals - how much it will cost to feed and house them, how much time and labor they will require, and what equipment and fencing will be needed. Consult your county agricultural agent and competent farmers in your neighborhood. This is particularly desirable if you and your family are inexperienced in handling livestock.

If you want livestock to provide income, you will need to find out what projects have proved profitable in your area and whether there is a market for your products at satisfactory prices.

Look over the buildings, fences, and equipment on your place and consider what kind of livestock is best suited to them. If you can use existing facilities, it will save additional investment.

Decide whether you are going to grow some of your livestock feed or buy all of it.

Find out if some can be bought from other farmers or if you will have to buy all of it from a feed store.

Growing your own hay or grain will cut feeding costs considerably, but bear in mind that unless you already own the necessary farm machinery you will have to buy it or hire someone to do the farm work. It may be possible to buy some good second-hand machinery. Sometimes the cost and use of machinery can be shared with neighbors.

If family members will do the chores, little or no hired help may be necessary. Remember, though, that livestock must be fed, watered, and cared for every day of the year. This restricts family activities to some extent and should be understood at the start.

The small-tract farmer often wants to keep a dairy cow to furnish milk, cream, or butter for the family.

Owning and keeping a cow on a limited acreage is practicable if -

- Ample pasture and hay are available.
- Breeding service is offered in the community.
- A comfortable, sanitary cow shelter can be provided.
- Someone in the family has the time and can be on hand every day to feed, water, and milk the cow.
- The family can make use of the milk produced.

A grade cow, well fed and well cared for, produces enough milk to more than pay for her feed, even if all feed is purchased. She will produce 3,000 to 6,000 quarts of milk per year - more than enough for a family of two adults and three children.

Any savings in family food bills, however, should be figured against the cost of buying and feeding a cow. Some large families may want a cow to provide an abundance of milk and milk products.

A cow will eat 20 to 25 pounds of hay a day, or three to four tons a year, if no pasture is available. In addition she will need one to two tons of a concentrate grain mix.

Hay cost varies greatly over the county, but usually runs from $30 to $60 a ton. The price of concentrates depends on the protein content and may range from $60 to $100 a ton. From 800 to 1,600 pounds of straw are needed for adequate bedding. The average cost of feeding and bedding a cow for a year would be $250 to $500.

If part or all of the feed can be grown on the farm, the cost of keeping a cow will be reduced proportionately. Generally, two acres of good land will provide most of the feed (mainly pasture) for six months of the year, and cut feed costs almost in half.

WINTER FEEDING

The family cow's winter feed consists of hay and a mixture of concentrates. Alfalfa or alfalfa-grass hay are satisfactory. A jersey or Guernsey cow will need 10-15 pounds of hay a day, and a pound of grain for each three pounds of milk she produces. A Holstein will need at least 15-20 pounds of hay a day and a pound of grain for each three pounds of milk she produces.

A mixture of ground corn and ground oats is a good concentrate to feed with hay. Some soybean oil meal or other supplement may be added to the diet of hay and grain for extra protein. Or you can buy a reliable ready-mixed feed made for milk cows.

Growing up

Look at your lanky, teen-age son! It's hard to believe that he once wore these shoes. It seems only yesterday that he was a baby, yet he himself is the best testimonial that the years have passed. Now he stands almost as tall as you. He is a fascinating maze of contradictions—an eager, lovable youngster one minute, a scowling, angry adolescent the next.

It takes patience to understand a teen-ager—patience, and a lot of love. Though he strives to be adult, he is still a boy. Though he clings to childhood, he is almost "grown-up." You may not always be aware of it, but he still looks to you for many things. And he sees in you an example that he will, almost unconsciously, follow in many ways.

Are you setting a good example? How about church, for instance? If you haven't been going lately, start again next Sunday for your son's sake, as well as your own. And don't forget to take him with you!

Our Elevator Managers knew more about beans before they knew beans about being Elevator Managers.

But isn't that the way it should be... They lived with the same problems the grower experiences day after day. They grew up on the farm and understand what weather, market conditions, equipment failures, etc., can mean to a successful growing season. They also understand the importance to the grower of being able to deal with an efficiently run elevator. That's why a Wickes Elevator Manager attends management seminars, new product sales meetings and the annual planning conference. This conference allows an exchange of ideas relating to elevator operations, understanding and solving grower problems, analyzing market trends, etc.

It's no wonder that a survey, conducted by the University of Illinois, concluded that the local elevator was the first and largest source of information to the grower.

THE 1975 GIRLS' basketball squad hopes to better its 6-2 second-place league finish this year. Taking time out from practice for this team photo are:

Middle row: Debbie Sturm, asst. coach, Kim Downing, Kathy Clarke, Melanie Kelley, Nora Langmaid, Cindy Urban, Coach Kally Maharg.

Added depth key to girls' campaign for cage title

Added depth, speed and experience should help put Cass City High School's Girls' Basketball team in the thick of this year's Thumb B district competition.

Coming off its best season ever, the squad hopes to improve on the 6-2 league record and 10-3 overall record that saw them finish second behind powerhouse Frankenmuth and vaulted them into tournament play against Uby.

One of the big improvements that makes Coach Kally Maharg optimistic is depth.

"Last year, I had trouble putting five players out there that could hold up under our running game," Coach Maharg said. "This year, I'm hoping to have 10 girls that can really play. I think this is going to make a big difference if we can take advantage of our depth."

This year's edition of the Hawks includes two returning starters—Lisa Zimba and Elaine Stoutenburg. Ms. Zimba, who played forward last year, may see more action at the pivot slot this season, while Ms. Stoutenburg will probably continue to hold down her guard position.

Three returning seniors that figure to see lots of action are Kathy Clarke and Kim Downing at forwards and Cindy Urban at pivot.

At forward, look for Beth Erla, Vicky Lapp and Robbie Leslie to see action as well, Coach Maharg said.

"At guard, I've got Stoutenburg and five others who could play," she said.

She said the team will probably continue to rely heavily on its fast break that helped turn things around last year, but will also look to improve defense with either man-to-man or zone.

Another asset Ms. Maharg sees for her team is height. With at least five players topping five-foot, eight-inches, she says she's coaching probably the tallest team in the league.

She said two important losses through graduation involved Marcy Miller at pivot and Cathy Kerbyson. Both were aggressive players who could take charge on the court.

"I really believe that this team can definitely make it to the play-offs again this year," she said, recalling the heart-breaking defeat that killed Hawk title hopes last year at Uby.

The Hawks led in that contest against Uby for three quarters, but failed to execute a stall in the fourth quarter and were eliminated, 51-47.

This year, Ms. Maharg sees archrival Frankenmuth as the team to beat, with Vassar and possibly Lakers making a push.

"There's no reason why we can't take the league championship," she said.

This is the fourth season of girls' basketball at Cass City and Ms. Maharg sees steady improvement. She lauded the cooperation from school officials in supporting the program and said interest among students is high.

"This year, I had 15 girls come out for varsity and 22 for the JV squad," she said.

"I'm convinced the interest is there. And it's the kind of interest that won't settle for anything less than success."

The squad plays Uby in a scrimmage set Saturday morning at 9:00 a.m. at home.

RETURNING LETTER winners are (from the left) Kim Downing, Kathy Clarke, Lisa Zimba, Elaine Stoutenburg and Cindy Urban.

Golfers win state cancer tourney title

Cass City's team entry captured first place at last week end's Walter Hagen American Cancer Society Golf Tournament held at Boyne Highlands.

The team of Bill Tuckey, Dave Wendling, Gene and Don McGill captured top honors with a nine-hole round of 30, downing their nearest rivals by one stroke.

They defeated a team including former Detroit Lion star Ron Cramer and former Detroit Tiger Ray Cullenbine.

The team moves on to national competition scheduled for Hilton Head Golf Course in South Carolina, Dec. 6-7.

Cass City's team defeated 16 other teams in handicap competition. A total of 183 golfers took part in men's play.

The Ladies' entry finished fifth. Team members included Nelle Koepfgen, Esther Reagh, Mary Ryan and Mary LaPeer.

How good is Cass City? First test here Friday

Cass City football fans will get their first look at the 1975 edition of the Cass City Red Hawks Friday when Yale comes to town for a non-conference encounter that should get the team off on the right foot.

Yale is not figured to be as strong as it was last year, Coach Roland Pakonen said this week.

Only one Yale regular will return from the squad that edged Cass City in last year's opener, 14-12.

However, Pakonen cautioned, the visitors will be able to select from an undefeated Junior Varsity team and could be much rougher than anticipated.

They have a tailback who is quicker than anything we have and it will be the job of the defense to stop him, he said.

In a pre-season scrimmage last week against North Branch and Memphis it appeared that there is plenty of work to be done on defense.

We felt that we would need plenty of work in our backfield and it was apparent in the workout that we still do.

A bright spot in the scrimmage was the work on offense. We were ahead of what we thought we might be at this time of the year, says Pakonen.

The offense and the defense received a serious blow when Dan Erla was injured. He was one of the team's strengths at center. It's not likely that he will see action in the opener.

He'll be replaced by Tom Brinkman.

Others on the offensive line will be Guy Howard and Rod Hutchinson at guards and Ron O'Dell and Ed Kloc at tackles. The ends will be Kirt Kendall and Tim Muz. Kendall looked strong in practice. Muz is an unknown quantity as he was not out for football last year.

The backfield will have Tom Smentek at quarter, Ken Lowe at fullback, Mike Lowe at halfback and Mike Gruber as the wingman.

On the defensive line Tom Brinkman and Ron O'Dell will be two-way men. Wayne Brooks and Ivan Stine will also be among the starting front four.

Pakonen said that there are nine other guys that will be spelling the starters in the line and the backfield as the game progresses.

Linebackers will be Kendall, Howard, and Tim Dorland. Eric Frederick and Mike Gruber will be the corner backs and Ken Lowe and Tom Smentek will be safeties.

Outside of Erla the squad has worked through pre-season scrimmages without serious injuries. Late arrivals to the squad are Dave Zawilinski and Ron Sieradzki. Both were regulars last season but both will not be available to the team until the last half of the season.

They should give the team added depth when ready to play.

Regardless of what's happened up to now, no one really can say just how good this year's team really is.

The answer will come when the boys start playing for keeps. The first test is Friday and the acid tests will come when the Hawks swing into Thumb B Conference play.

It's been four years now since Cass City swept through the league schedule undefeated and untied.

The team that did it in Coach Roland Pakonen's first year here was much the same as this one. Not the pre-season favorite but considered to be a good sound team by qualified league observers.

The coaches, the players and the fans would like nothing better than to have history repeat itself this fall.

Fine start!

Golfers sweep Marlette

Cass City's golf team opened its 1975 golf season Monday at Rolling Hills by sweeping all four points from Marlette High School.

Two points are won for taking the most holes (match play) and two points are awarded for lowest number of strokes among the four best of the five golf teams (medal play). In medal play Cass City won by the narrowest of margins, 165-166.

In match play the number of holes won by all five team members counts.

Coach Tom Woody said that it was team balance that won for Cass City. The top seeds of each team, Rod Wright and Jeff Prieskorn for Cass City, tied in strokes (39) and also divided the number of holes won with the top Marlette players.

The third place golfer, Mike Richards, lost a stroke in medal play, 44-43, but picked up one hole in match play.

Jim Molnar, 43, defeated his opponent by two strokes and two holes while Dave Romig shot a 46 and added two more net holes to the team victory.

Coach Woody says that the league this year is the strongest that it has been in recent years. Bad Axe and Lakers are especially potent while Marlette will have the advantage of having the Conference tournament played on its home course.

Board approves new fall sports program for intermediate students

A new intramural program for students in the Junior High School was authorized Monday night by the board of education.

It was coupled with the dropping of the girls' softball program at the school. Athletic Director Robert Stickle suggested that softball be dropped for girls at the suggestion of Mrs. Kally Maharg, girls' coach.

Replacing it will be a program for both boys and girls.

Although the sport to be played was not specified it is likely to be basketball, basketball, basketball.

An intramural basketball program at the Junior High level has long been a pet project of Supt. Donald Crouse who would like to see interscholastic programs dropped at that level.

His beef is that only a certain few talented youngsters get to play under the interscholastic program while everyone gets to play in an intramural program.

This theory meets stiff resistance from many board members. Trustee Dean Hoag maintains that there is nothing like competition with other schools to keep interest high and to develop winning varsity teams.

However, the present program will not conflict with the present Junior High basketball program because it will run in the fall only.

It could be that instead of basketball the grade youngsters will play soccer or flag football or another sport, depending on interest.

Crouse envisions a cage program with the participants divided into teams with standings the same as if it were in a regular conference.

The students would play after school and not all students would play every evening. Details of the program are yet to be worked out, the superintendent said Tuesday afternoon. One of the details will be to hire a teacher for the program.

consider finding a home that meets your needs." Erickson said he plans to stay in the district for the foreseeable future and said he does not want to uproot his family again soon.

VALUATION HASSLE

Supt. Erickson read a letter drafted by Huron county school superintendents saying that school aid should be based on whatever final State Equalized Valuation figure is applied to the county, rather than any lower figure.

The letter drew fire from some district residents at the meeting who felt it did not support county commissioners who are appealing the higher SEV in favor of their County Equalized Valuation (CEV).

By law, state aid must be figured on SEV, Erickson said, and the document only restates that fact. He added a paragraph to the letter saying the superintendents support the county's effort to gain lower valuations.

The board voted to borrow up to $70,000 in anticipation of state aid at five per cent interest from the Farmers and Merchant's State Bank of Gagetown.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, former board member Ken Voelker, Owendale, asked the board why there has been reported difficulty in transferring records of students now attending school in other districts. Erickson said any difficulties involve the privacy act, which requires a signed statement from the student's parents, saying the records may be released to another district.

Gagetown Elementary Principal William Britt gave the board a breakdown of classes at the school.

There are 39 kindergarten students split into two sections, he said, with 34 first-graders in two sections; one second-grade section of 28 students; one third-grade section of 29; a combined third and fourth-grade section of 26; a combined fourth and fifth-grade section of 25; one fifth-grade section of 27, and two sixth-grade sections totaling 47 students.

From that total, 10 students are in the special education section.

The board adjourned to a second executive session closed to press and public to discuss the resignation of basketball coach Claude

Stevens, who is leaving the district after 19 years at the end of the 1975-76 season. No reason for the closed session was given.

Enrollment up at Cass City

Cass City Public Schools gained fewer than 10 students according to unofficial figures tabulated this week by district officials.

Preliminary figures show an enrollment of 2,160 students, compared with 2,152 last year. Supt. Donald Crouse said while the preliminary total is 2,166, some students who have moved from the district have not yet been taken from the roll.

Removing these students should bring the final total to 2,160, he said.

The unofficial breakdown by grades for the district is: Kindergarten, 161; first, 148; second, 138; third, 150; fourth, 158; fifth, 169; sixth, 175; seventh, 197; eighth, 178; ninth, 180; tenth, 191; eleventh, 161; twelfth, 160. TOTAL: 2,166, up 14.

Owen-Gage and Uby Schools both reported large student declines, with Owen-Gage showing a loss of 77 students from last year's total of 602 to 525. A breakdown by grades shows:

Kindergarten, 40; first, 33; second, 29; third, 37; fourth, 33; fifth, 35; sixth, 47; seventh, 42; eighth, 58; ninth, 41; tenth, 36; eleventh, 48; twelfth, 46. TOTAL: 525, down 77.

Uby lost 33 students, dropping from 1,446 to 1,413. Their unofficial breakdown shows:

Kindergarten, 95; first, 73; second, 88; third, 57; fourth, 60; fifth, 92; sixth, 96; special education Type A, 13; special education Type B, 12; shared time, 180; seventh, 84; eighth, 94; ninth, 125; tenth, 124; eleventh, 111; twelfth, 109. TOTAL: 1,413, down 33.

Figures from the Kingston School District were unavailable at press time.

CROPS

County Extension director Bill Bortel told the board there is no justification in his opinion to declare Tuscola county a disaster area due to crop losses.

Such a designation would make farmers eligible for low-interest crop loans for the following year.

Final damage totals are not yet in, Bortel said, but as he sees it, the damage in Tuscola county is far less than in other parts of the state.

The board accepted a low bid of $3,500 for construction of new rest rooms at Vanderbilt Park near Quanticassee.

Low bidder was Tom McFarlane of Fairgrove.

The board also voted to pay the Intermediate School District $50,000 toward the purchase price of their present building near the court house.

Total cost is $146,000.

Cars derail at Gagetown

Two railroad cars were reported derailed Saturday near the Farmers Co-op Elevator in Gagetown.

Tuscola County Sheriff's officers who investigated said one car was loaded with wheat and the second was empty.

They said a broken rail probably caused the derailment. No one was injured.

The incident was reported shortly after 1:00 p.m. Saturday.

Village gets

okay on landfill

Cass City has received county-level approval to continue operating its landfill, following an on-site inspection made last week by an official from the Thumb District Health Department.

Supt. Lou LaPonsie said approval came following the inspection which turned up "only two minor items" that need improvement.

It was recommended that an improved sloping of the trenches be considered along with improvements in the covering operation.

Now that approval has been received at the county level, the request has been forwarded to state Department of Natural Resources officials in Lansing who will pass final judgement and hopefully issue the one-year, renewal license.

LaPonsie said indications are that state approval should come with little difficulty.

LaPonsie was critical of the inspection's timing. He said the application for license renewal was submitted last June but was held up pending a first-hand look by Health Department officials.

Auburn Die Cast records best sales year ever

Founded in 1954 by Henry P. Rosenbrock, then General Foreman of Dow Chemical Company's Die Cast Division and three other men, Auburn Diecast Corporation had its best year ever in 1974, with sales of magnesium and aluminum die castings up 47 per cent over the previous year.

"In January, 1975," says Auburn President Rosenbrock, "Mr. Walter E. Walpole, President, Walbro Corporation and I got together and effected a Walbro-Auburn Diecast merger."

THREE MAJOR MARKETS

According to Rosenbrock, one of the Dow-trained pioneers in the development of magnesium die castings, Auburn casts over 140 high quality magnesium and aluminum parts and products for a wide variety of companies all over the United States and Canada.

Its three major markets are the chain saw, recreation, and automotive industries.

Rosenbrock says the company expects to die cast housings and other related parts for another leading chain saw manufacturer in the near future.

Auburn also casts aluminum bodies and plates for Walbro Chain Saw and Snowmobile Carburetors.

In the recreation field, Auburn die casts eleven different magnesium handles for take-down bows for Bear Archery, Division of Victor cast Big League and Little League catchers' masks. It also die casts major league base pans and aluminum tennis yokes.

In the automotive market, Auburn Diecast has been making aluminum thermostat housings for Chevrolet for almost twenty years. It die casts magnesium turn signal switch housings for GM's Saginaw Steering Gear Division; magnesium oil seals for Chrysler marine engines.

The Auburn Diecast plant is equipped with eleven 200-600 ton die casting machines.

Walbro GmbH to move to Hamburg

With European sales of Walbro chain saw and snowmobile carburetors steadily expanding, Robert H. Walpole, vice-president international operations, Walbro Corporation, says that Walbro GmbH is to move its Hamburg sales and service center into larger quarters in Stuttgart, West Germany, sometime in September, 1975.

John W. Underwood

John W. Underwood was appointed managing director of Walbro GmbH earlier in the year. He says that Walbro was the first U.S. chain saw manufacturer to establish (1) a Europe-based sales and service center; (2) Europe-based production facilities; (3) a European subsidiary.

"Much of the success of Walbro GmbH is due," he states, "to the highly professional efforts of Wolfgang Maas. With 40 years of experience in the carburetor industry, Maas is undoubtedly one of Europe's leading carburetor engineers... and one of our company's most valuable assets."
