

Nearly $120,000

Revenue sharing needed to balance 1976 county budget

Tuscola county commissioners are bracing themselves for their first look at the proposed 1976 general fund budget next week that won't balance without a massive infusion of federal revenue sharing funds.

According to early figures, the tentative general fund balance is set at $2,193,693. While this only represents a $26,414 increase, the problem is that it will take nearly $120,000 to make it balance, according to Commissioner Richard Dehmel, Caro, member of the finance committee.

"If it weren't for revenue sharing, we'd have to do a lot of slashing somewhere," Dehmel told the Chronicle Tuesday.

Even at that, there's a chance the entire board won't go along with the proposals. Some members, including Dehmel, don't like the idea of making the county budget balance with outside monies such as revenue sharing.

The federal revenue sharing act is scheduled to end next year. Without it this year, Dehmel said, the county would have to drastically cut back services and possibly lay off employees.

The fear is that should revenue sharing not be renewed by Congress or if its scope is cut back, the county would face a serious cash crisis.

In the meantime, however, revenue sharing is providing the cushion for the county to fall-back-on-while-it-searches for a way out of its problem.

"There's a chance the whole board might not want us to go so heavily with revenue sharing and they might tell us just to go back and try again," Dehmel said.

Dehmel said the largest part of the budget is the Sheriff's Department. Sheriff Hugh Marr reportedly asked for $457,000 for 1976.

The finance committee tentatively approved $442,000. Dehmel said this represents about an $80,000 increase over the 1975 figure.

Increases in the sheriff's budget aren't localized, Dehmel said. They're spread throughout the department. Food, gasoline, cleaning, vehicle purchase and maintenance, along with extra personnel, have all made their effect felt.

Dehmel blamed new labor contracts with three county unions for part of the increases. "Those really delivered a blow to us," he said.

He cited specific department increases to emphasize his point.

"For instance, in 1974, Circuit Court expenses cost the county $51,000, he said. This year, those expenses are projected at $83,000 and the 1976 figure is projected at only $81,000.

District Court costs are also up, rising from $63,000 in 1974 to a projected $77,000 this year. The committee allowed the court $73,000 for 1976, Dehmel said.

Fringe benefits have taken a hefty toll also, he continued. Social security payments jumped from $45,000 in 1974 to $77,000 this year and are projected at $85,000 in 1976.

Retirement benefits jumped from $30,000 in 1974 to $56,000 this year, he said. Hospitalization costs have nearly doubled, Dehmel said, jumping from $27,000 in 1974 to a projected $47,000 in 1976.

"Child care is another area that's really hitting us hard," Dehmel said. "In 1974, we spent $27,000 on it. This year, we're hoping to come in at $81,000 and for 1976, we're hoping to keep it at $74,000."

The county also faces new expenditures mandated by law that it did not pay last year. Workmen's compensation, for instance, is estimated to cost $12,000 next year, Dehmel said.

Elections will also cost the county about $34,000, he said, jumping from only $2,000 this year, a non-election year.

INCOME

Dehmel said original department requests for funds totaled $2,336,491, which was $169,212 higher than last year's final approved figure. He said income for 1976 will have to remain steady because millage is frozen.

No increase would be possible without a vote of the people and this is seen as highly unlikely.

"There hasn't been talk about raising departmental fees yet," he said, "although this may be one of the routes we'll have to go. We'll also be watching our public works fees to see how they work out. We're hoping to keep those in line with other counties."

Dehmel said he definitely does not like balancing the budget with revenue sharing, but that if it weren't used, drastic cuts would have to be made in nearly every department.

Another potential problem could be bridge millage, although nothing has been established yet, Dehmel said.

In general, Dehmel blamed inflation and higher costs of running county government as reason for the increases.

The county board is scheduled to get its first look at the document next week with recommendations to follow. If past practice is any indication, chances are the final version will reflect still more cuts.

Last year, Tuscola county saw its first $2 million-plus budget in its history.

Police probe

Cass City Police are probing the slashing of 22 automobile tires in the main business district Wednesday night, Oct. 1.

The slashings were discovered following a disorderly person complaint from Jack's Bar around 8:00 p.m. The damage was discovered as patrons attempted to leave the scene.

Several cars reportedly had at least two tires destroyed, with one car owner reporting three slashings.

No suspects have been arrested. Police theorize an extremely sharp instrument was used.

Later the same evening, police arrested Robert Allen McIntosh, 26, Unionville, on charges of illegally possessing deer meat.

Police said they found a partially rendered deer in the trunk of McIntosh's car which was parked in the vicinity of Jack's Bar while investigating the tire slashing incident.

McIntosh paid $50 in fines and costs, along with $100 costs in liquidated damages when he appeared before Magistrate John Bowles this week.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS broke ground Wednesday morning for Cass City's new municipal swimming pool. Shown from the left are Village President Lambert Althaver, E.B. Schwaderer, construction superintendent for the bath house, Village Supt. Lou LaPonsie, Trustee Dr. D.E. Rawson and Robert H. Keating, administrator of the Helen Stevens estate which will finance the bulk of the pool's construction.

School to spend $54,450 for playground project

The Cass City School District will pay $54,450 to have approximately 15 acres of the 62-acre plot recently purchased from Dr. H.T. Donahue prepared as a playground for elementary and intermediate school students.

The Cass City School Board voted to accept the low bid of Doug Anglan of Novi, Mich., at a special meeting Monday evening at the school.

Anglan was low bidder among five concerns. The bids ranged from Anglan's $54,450 to a top of $78,000.

The work will include moving some 40,000 yards of dirt in the 15-acres to be prepared as playground.

Included in the project will be two ball diamonds and much of the dirt to be removed will be placed in the southeast corner of the field where water run off problems have been experienced.

A representative of the low bidder was at the meeting and said that he expects to have the project completed within 45 days if the weather remains favorable.

However, it will be much longer than this before the area is ready for students. There is a question about seeding the site. The contractor believes that it can best be done in spring while the architect feels that fall could be the best time.

Regardless of the final decision it will be a year before the grounds can be used. Next spring it will be necessary to give the new grass a chance to become established.

The land to be leveled for playground area starts in the south section of the land directly behind the elementary and intermediate buildings and extends north for about 520 feet. The addition will relieve the pressure on the present school grounds which is showing the results of too much pressure from the expanding grade school population.

SEPTIC TANK BID

The trustees also took a step towards solving another annoying problem when it accepted a low bid of $3,980 from Don Shagene for repair of the sewage disposal system at Evergreen school.

Shagene will repair the present septic tank and build a new seepage field that meets the specifications of the Michigan Department of Health. The work will be done this fall. Shagene's low bid was one of four ranging to a high of $7,800.

OTHER BUSINESS

Finally, in other business in the special meeting, the trustees set the annual meeting for Monday, Oct. 13. In conjunction with the meeting the budget for 1975-76 will be presented.

Fire does $5,000 damage Thursday

Fire originating beneath a fireplace did approximately $5,000 damage to the Willie Williams home, located at 6508 Deckerville Rd., early Thursday morning.

Fire Chief Jim Jezewski said the fire started when a crack developed in the floor of the fireplace and allowed hot ashes to fall into studding below it.

Jezewski said the fire did about $2,000 damage to the structure and another $3,000 smoke damage.

No one was injured. Firemen responded to the alarm at 3:28 a.m.

SHELLEY GALLAGHER (far right) is all smiles these days, now that the danger of infectious rabies is past. She was bitten by an infected pet cat early last month and underwent treatments that included a series of painful shots. Here, she is shown with her sister, Pam, and her mother, Mrs. Jack Gallagher.

Shelley Gallagher: a brush with rabies possibility has happy ending

It was just a bite from a sick farm cat. At least that's all the Jack Gallagher family thought it was. Or hoped it would be.

Instead, it was only the beginning of a frightening experience for their 16-year-old daughter, Shelley, because shortly afterward, the cat died.

It had rabies. Shelley is fine today. She underwent a two-week series of shots to counteract the disease. And while she never showed any of the signs of rabies, everyone involved agrees those shots, painful as they were, were worth it.

It all began at the Gallagher farm at 5284 N. Koepfgen Rd., two-and-a-half miles northwest of Cass City, Sept. 9.

"We knew the kitten had been sick, so we brought it in the night before and fed it," Shelley recalled, peering through her tinted glasses as she sat on a footstool in her living room.

"We let the cat out that morning but we couldn't find it before the school bus came, so when we came home, we looked for it. Finally, we found it lying in the grass."

The two-month-old kitten had gotten sick shortly before the bite. It had appeared healthy, but then started losing weight even though it still ate.

"At first, we thought either the dog got to playing with it a little too hard or that the mother had abandoned it," Mrs. Gallagher said. "We never gave a thought to rabies."

After Shelley found the kitten, she brought it in the house and tried to feed it again.

"That's when it happened. I was holding it in my hands when it bit me all of a sudden," Shelley recalled. "I dropped it right there on the floor. I never thought about rabies. In fact, I wasn't even going to tell anybody that I'd been bitten."

Her parents talked the situation over and decided their daughter needed a tetanus shot right away. In the meantime, the kitten revived and was taken to Dr. Edward Scollon for treatment. The kitten lived five days and appeared to be recovering before it died.

Since Shelley had been bitten, Scollon sent the animal's head in for testing. It came back positive.

SCARED

Shelley found out she could have rabies Wednesday, Sept. 17.

"It was a real shock," she said. "I remember I was painting outside when my mother came up to me and told me. I cried when I found out."

"I was just numb," Mrs. Gallagher said. "There's no other way to describe it. I was just numb."

An emergency order of rabies serum was rushed to Dr. H.T. Donahue who began the painful 14-day series of shots Friday, Sept. 19.

The shots are administered through the stomach. Each injection is placed just below the skin and is given in a pattern that moves from the left side to the right.

They were no picnic, she said. They hurt.

"I remember the first one," she said. "I was lying on the table in the doctor's office and I kept saying 'I'm not ready, I'm not ready.' I remember they tested it on my wrist and it burned. I thought that was the shot until they told me it was just a test."

In spite of a bad reaction to the tetanus shot, she exhibited no reaction to the rabies vaccine.

Each day for the next 14 days, Shelley Gallagher received an injection. With each one, she came a step farther from the possibility of rabies. They weren't easy steps, though.

"The kids in school kept scaring me," she said. "I kept hearing stories about how bad the shots were and they kept making jokes about frothing at the mouth."

Before the series was over, Shelley attended a Band Day performance with the Cass City High School marching band at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. She didn't get home until after 10 p.m. on a Saturday night, but the shot was still waiting.

A nurse from the doctor's office brought the vaccine out that night. Rules were rules, and no shot could be missed.

Finally, it was all over Friday, Oct. 3.

"I was really relieved that this was the last shot," she said.

Has the experience turned her away from animals? "I don't think so," she said. "I'd like to get a dog some day. We've always had lots of animals around here."

After the rabies scare, four cats and a dog at the farm had to be destroyed, just to be sure the infection couldn't be spread.

"I had a special dog and cat and I cried over it when they had to be destroyed," she said.

Hopefully, that's all over. Mrs. Gallagher said she prayed long and hard for her daughter.

"I just felt God was with Shelley," she said when it was all over.

"If It Fitz . . ." Shoot at President Skeet

BY JIM FITZGERALD

It is not necessary that everyone who owns a gun should use it to shoot at a President. The National Shooting Sports Foundation (NSSF) is distributing a 12-page booklet titled "How To Organize a News Media Shoot."

As a working member of the news media, I was shook when this booklet hit my desk. On the cover, along with the threatening title, is a cartoon of an editor. You can tell because he has a pencil behind his ear and wears an eyeshade over a "dumb" look. There are spent shells scattered around his feet.

Immediately I realized I should never have written that column about the grave danger of rampaging deer attacking innocent women in the A&P checkout line. I never should have suggested that only brave hunters could prevent the loss of our constitutional rights and a government take-over by pheasants.

I thought the booklet was urging gunmen to seek improved news coverage of blood sports by taking an editor to lunch and force-feeding him shotgun shells for dessert. But I was wrong. After reading a few pages, I realized the NSSF doesn't really want to shoot at me. Rather, it wants to put me on the trigger end and teach me the joys of sighting a target and whopping a bullet through it.

The booklet is meant for gun clubs. It urges them to invite editors to come out and shoot skeet. "Participation in a News Media Shoot will mark the first time that many editors have ever handled a sporting firearm. This introduction has proven to be a thoroughly enjoyable, even exciting experience for many editors, and some can hardly wait to try it again," the NSSF says.

There was a time, I'll admit, when I thought a skeet was an exotic bird shot freshly unsacked at only the snottiest hunting preserves. But I'm not that dumb anymore. A couple of years ago I went to a hunt club for lunch and mentioned I'd never tried skeet. What I had in mind was an open-faced sandwich but I ended up out on the range, surrounded by horse-laughing outdoorsmen, shooting a borrowed gun at clay targets that some invisible hireling threw out of a backhouse. The skeet won and my shoulder was sore for 3 months.

So the NSSF greatly underestimates this editor's experience with sporting firearms. But the booklet is more on target when it says: "For many editors, their only exposure to guns is what they read in wire stories and other accounts of guns used in crime. Understandably, they can develop a rather one-sided and unfavorable view of shooting."

True. Everytime I hear something about a gun, it's bad. President Ford had to duck again, or a grocer had his face shot off, or an Arab killed a Jew, or a wife made herself a widow with one loud bang. And I'm depressed to learn 11,573 hunters were waiting nearby when 356 pheasants were freed on the opening day of Michigan's put-and-take season. Each hunter took home a feather, strapped to a fender, and the skies were safe once more.

There is no denying my view of shooting has been unfavorable. But the NSSF booklet promises light at the end of the barrel. It encourages gun clubs to "put an editor in your shoes" by inviting him to shoot skeet with cocktail hour to follow. This is not one mention of shooting anything that breathes, just clay. Nor are there any foolish suggestions that a suitable substitute might be fruit punch.

This is what I call a highly civilized attitude. No one cares when a skeet is shot. What we must do to prevent national trauma is elect a clay President. This would not only avoid bloodshed, it would free hundreds of Secret Servicemen for more productive employment. Maybe they could throw the skeet out of those backhouses.

MRS. WILLIAM O'DELL was named Woman of the Year by the Cass City Business and Professional Women's Club Wednesday night, Oct. 1. Shown with a commemorative tray marking the occasion are (from the left) Betty Jo Agar, program co-chairman; Mrs. O'Dell; Martha Putnam, club president, and Verna Mae MacRae, program co-chairman.

Mrs. William O'Dell honored by BPW

Mrs. William C. O'Dell was named Woman of the Year by the Cass City Business and Professional Women's Club during their regular meeting held Wednesday night, Oct. 1.

Mrs. O'Dell has lived in the Cass City area the past 36 years and worked 15 years at Cass City High School. She presently works as a bookkeeper for her husband's construction company.

She is a member of Trinity United Methodist church, the Gideons, the Country Hicks

Farm Bureau and was a charter member of BPW. She served as secretary, treasurer and vice-president of the club, along with serving as newsletter editor for five years.

She and her husband have six children, 17 grandchildren and three step-grandchildren.

Gagetown man sued in accident

A Gagetown man has been sued for $50,000 damages in connection with a personal injury accident that took place last Feb. 27 northwest of Fairgrove.

Terry Sulpin of Caro has charged Clinton R.J. Smith, Gagetown, with reckless driving and failure to yield in the accident that took place at the intersection of Darbee and Kirk Roads.

The suit charges that Sulpin suffered permanent disability to his left eye, along with multiple bruises and abrasions.

The suit was filed Friday in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

BPW meets

Oct. 1

Twenty-six attended the monthly meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club held Oct. 1.

Highlight of the meeting was the naming of Mrs. Lorraine O'Dell as Cass City Woman of the Year. Members of Mrs. O'Dell's family and several friends were guests at the meeting. Other guests were Miss Beverly Hurley, Mrs. Marilyn Alexander, Mrs. Alice McComb and Mrs. Dorothy Stahlbaum.

The program for the evening was the showing of slides by Mr. and Mrs. John Graham, pictures taken in various European countries.

The club is selling tickets on a bicentennial afghan, made by Clara Gaffney.

Sunday, Oct. 5, nine club members attended the fall district meeting held at the Country Squire Inn at Flint.

NEWS FROM District Court

Steven Martin Sofka of Bad Axe in the village of Cass City was ticketed for excessive noise (tires). He paid fine and costs of $15.

Frederick William Maurer of Ubyly in the village of Gagetown was ticketed for speeding 49 mph in a 30 mph zone. He paid fine and costs of $30.

Albert Grant Ross of Kings-ton in Wells township was ticketed for speeding 77 mph in a 55 mph zone. He paid fine and costs of $50.

Slashing 22 tires is hard work. Modern tires are durable, hard to cut.

I'd bet that the guys that did it last week in Cass City would tell you to get someone else if you were to offer to hire them for a job like that. The work would be too hard.

It's a senseless act . . . on a par with destroying trees and breaking windows just for kicks.

I reported last week that there are lots of pheasants in "spots" of the Thumb. No one was telling where. Ken Butler of Cass City spotted one Thursday night and isn't afraid to tell you where the rooster was strutting his stuff.

It was in the alley in back of Fort's Store and was seen at about 6 p.m.

Man, my blisters are showing. I did something Saturday morning that I would never do at home. I planted shrubs and trees at the Good Shepherd Lutheran church. Well . . . they let me dig the holes anyway.

I was one of 40 . . . my wife says that you'll be able to tell the ones I planted easily because they will be dead next spring

Isn't this beautiful fall weather? As nice as it is, I can hardly hope that it will last like it did last fall.

Bill Kritzman reported that he mowed his lawn for the last time in 1974 on Dec. 2.

Jim McCoy, the transplanted (to Caro) Cass Cityan lost a bet this week. He bet (no money) with Chuck Auten that I wasn't the author of this column of trivia or of the Editor's Corner. McCoy should have known better. He's been around this business (newspapers, radio, TV) long enough to know that in papers of this size, the publisher writes, sells ads and, yes, Virginia, sweeps the floor now and then.

Jim's not immune either . . . I saw him one day when Cable TV was getting under motion all dressed up like a telephone repairman.

The names are withheld to protect the guilty. How would you check out if someone asked you quick like, what is the name of the lieutenant governor of Michigan?

Did you say right off, James J. Dammon? If you did you are in the minority. I suspect. That question was asked in a governmental quiz to Cass City Rotary by Gerald Prieskorn and eight of the first nine men he quizzed could not come up with the answer.

There's a guy who lives in Country View subdivision in southeast Cass City who keeps me posted on all the interesting news from his area.

His latest is that at least four housewives from Country View are up and at 'em and are taking belly dancing lessons.

For his protection I withhold his name. For our protection I withhold the ladies' names, too.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

Christmas-tree
the final

By Jim Ketchum

The more things change, the more they remain basically the same.

Take my old alma mater, Michigan State University. It seems there are two entrepreneurs at Moo-U who have found another way to make money off the new morality.

For $20 a month, they rent out a campus mailing address and phone number that students can give their parents as a ruse while they live with their sweethearts elsewhere.

The two provide a 24-hour a day answering service, complete with a list of phoney stories explaining to parents why their offspring is not at home when they call.

To solve the problem of visits, they have an extra room in which they allow clients to hold up temporarily when parents come to East Lansing.

Things have changed, yet it isn't much different from my days in school.

Ten years ago, it was term papers. For a nominal fee, you could farm out the writing of your term paper for any given class. Prices varied depending on how long you wanted the paper and the material involved.

Writing thick ones wasn't so hard for students who had an instructor who graded on the "weight" method. That means he'd throw all his term papers down a flight of stairs and the ones that made it all the way got 4.0 grades-tops.

Those that almost made it all the way got 3.5's, with those only going half-way getting 2.0's. This is where most of mine generally wound up.

Those that didn't make it past the first three or four steps flunked.

For more enterprising professors, however, it was a little tougher. The term paper factories had to go on double duty for awhile until they had a sufficient library built up from which to draw.

They couldn't be photocopies either, since they're easy to spot. Most of the work involved the typing.

From there, another enterprising youth turned his attention to final exams. Through a streak of petty larceny in his soul, this gent pilfered finals from nearly every department on campus and, with any luck, could furnish you with an advance copy of what you'd face.

This, again for a nominal fee, helped more than one student flee the banks of the Red Cedar with a diploma.

Another outfit would advise you on how to fill out multiple choice tests. Since they were all scored by a computer, your answer sheet consisted of a series of blank spaces which would be filled in to form a pattern.

One youth got advance warning that the answer sheet pattern looked like a Christmas tree. He dutifully "Christmas-treed" his final and got a 3.5. Chances are he'd have passed if he'd have remembered the star at the top.

While I never took part in any of this, I had to appreciate how much work others would spend trying to avoid the work involved in studying. College to them was something to be survived. Education was secondary.

Now all the MSU athletic department has to do when the NCAA investigation begins to sneak a peak at the questions, Christmas tree the final and give out a bogus telephone number.

By the way, what's Woody Hayes' area code?

Memorial services held for Larry MacPhail

Memorial services for Leiland (Larry) MacPhail, one of baseball's most colorful personalities, were held Friday at the First Presbyterian church in his native Cass City.

MacPhail, who was born above the Cass City State Bank 85 years ago, died Wednesday, Oct. 1, in a Miami, Fla., nursing home following a long illness.

The family has asked that contributions be made to Hills and Dales General Hospital.

The flamboyant MacPhail was born Feb. 3, 1890, son of Curtis and Katherine McMurtrie MacPhail.

He was one of baseball's greatest promoters and never ceased searching for a new twist to bring fans to the park.

His most historic move was the introduction of night baseball in Cincinnati in 1935. MacPhail's background involved business and law. He attended Staunton Military Academy, Beloit College and was a baseball and football player at the University of Michigan.

He earned a law degree from George Washington University and by the time he was 25, MacPhail had earned a partnership in a law firm, had taken over a tool company and was elected president of a department store.

He rose from private to captain during World War I, serving at the Argonne front where he was wounded. He was involved in an ill-fated attempt to kidnap Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany in the Netherlands.

He entered baseball in 1930, purchasing the Columbus,

Ohio, Senators of the American Association for $100,000. He rebuilt the team's park, installed electric lights and quickly turned the club into a champion.

By 1933, he had sold the Senators and took over the Cincinnati Reds, a last-place team near the brink of financial ruin.

He took the luckless Reds and moulded them into a pennant winner. Again, he installed electric lights at Crosley Field and in May, 1935, invited his friend, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, to throw the switch turning them on.

By the close of the decade, MacPhail built the Reds into a winner. They took the National League Pennant in 1939 and 1940, just after he retired from baseball for the first time.

He returned to baseball to rejuvenate the Brooklyn Dodgers, again installing lights and turning the club into an exciting contender that filled the stands.

The Dodgers won the National League flag in 1941 and finished second in 1942 before MacPhail left the game once more, this time to join the Army during World War II. In 1945, he took over the New York Yankees and assembled them into a dynasty club that ruled the American League for years. The old magic worked again and the Yankees slugged their way to a World Series title in 1947.

That was his last season. He sold the club later that year and retired, this time for keeps.

An innovator on a grand scale, he was the first club president to fly his team to all road games and who used the Caribbean for spring training. He was also one of the first owners to tap the large reserve of baseball talent of the West Indies.

In 1958, MacPhail proposed splitting the leagues into four divisions—much the way they are today—with Havana, Montreal, Seattle, Denver, Dallas, Houston, New Orleans, Atlanta, Toronto and Mexico City as major league cities.

In retirement, MacPhail established one of the largest and most successful thoroughbred breeding farms in Maryland.

He was honored by his native Cass City, Aug. 7, 1952, when the recently-constructed football scoreboard at the village park was dedicated.

MacPhail is survived by his widow, the former Jean Wanamaker, whom he married in 1945. Other survivors include two sons, Lee, American League President; William, a vice-president of CBS sports; two daughters, Mrs. Walsh (Marian) McDermott of New York City and Mrs. James (Jean) Duncan of Jarrettsville, Md.; three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Rev. Richard W. Shreffler, a long-time family friend and pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Bel Air, Md., officiated.

M. B. AUTEN poses with an autographed photo of his friend, Larry MacPhail. The two were friends for many years.

Strong-willed MacPhail recalled by M. B. Auten

Larry MacPhail was more than just a name out of baseball's past for Meredith Auten of Cass City. MacPhail was a friend.

Auten had known the colorful baseball executive for over 50 years and MacPhail never forgot him. The two remained in close contact until the time of MacPhail's death last week.

"You know, he was born right upstairs in this building," Auten said, seated at an oval table in his basement office at the Cass City State Bank.

"I knew his father for quite a few years before I knew Larry," he continued. Auten remembers MacPhail as a bombastic, strong-willed man who was always on the move, always searching for something new and exciting to do.

"Whatever he went into, he went whole hog," Auten said. "I remember one time he showed me the golf course he'd built at his farm (in Bel Air, Md.). He took me out there and showed me every hole and told me about the sand in every trap and the different types of grass on each green."

Auten holds fond memories of the former owner of the Cincinnati Reds, Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees.

"He was fantastic," he said. "He was one of the best speakers I ever heard. We had him speak here twice—once at the Rotary Club and once at the high school."

According to Auten, MacPhail never forgot about Cass City or his friends back in his old home town.

"When he was here one time, he asked me if I knew what ever became of Pat Graham," Auten recalled. "He said Graham had the greatest potential for a catcher he ever saw. Well, Graham played on the same team with MacPhail 40 years before. Yet he still remembered it."

Auten said that when they got together for a visit, MacPhail would regale his guests with stories about his world travels and his far-flung interests. He knew and loved much more than just baseball.

One of those stories involved an ill-fated attempt to kidnap German Kaiser Wilhelm II during the First World War. MacPhail and his outfit actually entered the Kaiser's quarters in Holland but fell short of their target.

On his way out, MacPhail grabbed a royal ash tray as a souvenir.

"He told me later on that when General Pershing heard about it, he scolded them and told them it was a foolhardy thing to do," Auten said, "but he also told them he'd have given a year's pay to have been with them."

Auten visited MacPhail at the baseball magnate's Bel Air farm several times. Each time it was the same—a big smile, warm greeting and hospitality that matched the kind reserved for visiting royalty.

"I remember once when we drove down to visit them, we no more than got in the driveway and he came out and greeted us and insisted we stay," Auten recalled.

"No, I told him, we were just passing through. Nonsense, he said and grabbed our bags."

He said he later learned that just the day before, the MacPhails had had Whitey Ford and Mickey Mantle as house guests.

But it didn't matter to MacPhail. Auten was from Cass City and that was what mattered.

Auten said MacPhail was always outspoken and never hid his opinions.

"They tell me one time someone started talking about this Watergate thing and MacPhail was a 'strong Republican,'" Auten said.

Lutheran ladies plan projects

The Ladies Aid of Good Shepherd Lutheran church held their monthly meeting Oct. 6. Eighteen members and two guests were present.

Chris Weippert began the meeting with prayer and devotions.

President Linda Voss led the business meeting. The main topics of discussion were the Father-Son Banquet scheduled Oct. 25 and the Annual Harvest Auction Nov. 3.

Mrs. June Perlaki was accepted as a new member. Dessert followed with Mrs. Ron Voss, Mrs. Elmer Voss, and Mrs. Ron Weippert, hostesses.

Your neighbor says

Summer is my favorite

Now that it's autumn, you'd half expect someone to say fall is their favorite season. Well, not always.

Take Mrs. Jane Lautner of Cass City for instance. Mrs. Lautner says summer is her favorite.

"I just don't like the cold weather," Mrs. Lautner says. "I enjoy gardening and being outside. Summer is really my favorite."

She says if she had the choice, she'd live in a perpetual summer-like climate year round.

"Oh, fall is pretty, especially on sunny days," she says. "But you really can't plan anything outside because you don't know how long it will last."

Mrs. Lautner and her husband, Hugh, have lived in Cass City the past four years, coming here from Milwaukee, Wisc. He is employed by Walbro Corp.

American Legion sets meeting

A meeting of veterans interested in reviving American Legion tri-county Post 507 will be held Tuesday, Oct. 14, at 8:00 p.m. at the home of Dorus Klinkman, at 3685 Cemetery Rd.

On hand will be Giles Reeve, Otter Lake, National Executive Committee man and director of the Youth Guidance Center.

Also attending will be Elwin Kline, Millington, Seventh District vice-commander.

All area veterans are invited to attend, according to Vern Henrichs, Caro, Seventh District Commander.

Don't judge a man's future by his past — experience may have taught him a lesson.

Gagetown News

Mrs. Harold Koch

665-2536

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Koch and sons of Caro visited with the Harold Kochs last Friday evening.

Mary Blondell, Elizabeth Bartholomy, Nettie Jaster of Caro, Alma Miklovich and Mabel Ondrajka of Gagetown attended the chicken dinner sponsored by the St. John Lutheran church of Kilmanagh, Sunday noon, and spent the rest of the afternoon visiting at the Mabel Ondrajka home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ondrajka Jr. and family of Marlette spent Sunday afternoon with his mother, Mrs. Mabel Ondrajka.

Amy Jo Ondrajka of Unionville spent Monday visiting her grandmother, Mabel Ondrajka, of Gagetown.

Harold, Roy and Janet Koch attended a wedding dinner and reception at Birch Run Saturday afternoon and evening.

OWEN-GAGE SENIOR CITIZENS

The Owendale - Gagetown Senior Citizens met for a regular business meeting Thursday, Oct. 2. After the meeting, penny bingo was played. The next meeting will be a potluck dinner at noon, Oct. 16.

The Marv Herzog Polka Band, in which Wally Lubaczewski of Gagetown is the percussionist, recently returned from a two-week tour of Bavaria, Germany. The band performed in many towns, playing almost every night while on tour. They also participated in the annual October Fest.

Mr. and Mrs. Hans Grundman of Sterling Heights called on Mr. and Mrs. Harold Koch and family Sunday afternoon.

4 highway improvement projects set projects set

Three highway improvement projects in Sanilac county and one in Tuscola county were announced last week by the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation.

In Sanilac county, 9.8 miles of M-90 from the west county line east to M-19, and a half-mile of M-46 in Sandusky are scheduled for resurfacing. In addition, a half-mile of M-25 south of M-46 is scheduled for resurfacing and three-foot shoulders.

In Tuscola county, 4.6 miles of three-foot shoulders are scheduled for M-46 from M-15 east to Vassar Road.

The projects are scheduled to be completed by June 30, 1976.

Sometimes a little experience upsets a lot of theory.

Sanilac

clinics set

The regular immunization clinics sponsored by the Sanilac County Health Department will be held at department offices in Sandusky Wednesday, Oct. 15, and Tuesday, Oct. 21.

Hours for both days are: 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4:30 p.m.

If possible, parents whose last name begins with A-M should attend the first day, and parents whose last name begins with N-Z should attend the second day.

Protection against measles, rubella, whooping cough, diphtheria, tetanus and polio will be offered. Tuberculin tests will also be offered.

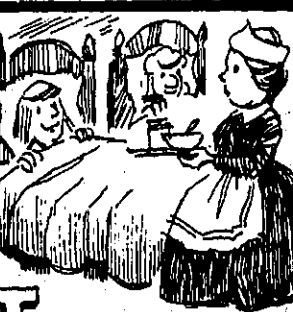

Children three months of age and over are invited to attend.

A parent or guardian must accompany the child. Parents are urged to bring a record of previous immunization.

DOWNGRADE

No community was ever put on the map by a group of citizens who just sat around and pointed out its defects.

Recruiter

gets award

Sergeant First Class James Allen, the Army recruiter for Tuscola county, recently received a number of Army awards for his recruiting excellence.

Allen was awarded a Meritorious Service Medal, an Army Commendation Medal and three Army Gold Stars.

He earned all the awards under the Army's new QIPS (Quality Incentive Procurement System) program. This program provides a series of awards for the quality of enlistees a recruiter brings to the Army.

For example, an enlistee with a college degree earns ten points for his recruiter, while an enlistee with a high school diploma gives the recruiter from four to six points. Enlistees with special skills also give points to the recruiter.

Allen, a recruiter since May 1972, has garnered more than 170 QIPS points in the past six months.

Allen, who first entered the Army in 1961, is a native of Caro and a 1961 graduate of Caro High School. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell M. Allen of Caro.

Allen and his wife, Catherine, have three children. The Allens currently reside in Caro.

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Carpenter of Cass City were honored as the outstanding farm couple in the county during the annual Farm Bureau banquet and meeting held at Cass City High School.

Army Private First Class James L. Ballard, son of Dr. and Mrs. James H. Ballard of Cass City, received the Silver Star Medal during ceremonies near Chu Lai, Vietnam, Sept. 6.

Gagetown has moved to govern its growth with a master plan devised by Villikan and Lehman and associates and with a newly-implemented zoning ordinance.

The Cass City village council has voted to allow the village to be the official custodian for money donated towards the erection of a new pool in the community. The fund's establishment was sparked by a $1,000 donation from the Elkland-Novesta Community Chest.

The Michigan Education Association has opened its northern Thumb Area Center in Caro.

TEN YEARS AGO

With smoke still curling from its rubble and the stench of its burned contents wafting through the village, Frutchey Bean Company continued to receive crops this week following a devastating fire Wednesday night, Sept. 29, that wiped out a third of its Cass City facilities.

The Tuscola County Board of Supervisors figured a way to raise the $84,000 needed to construct a new county jail and include the 4,000 extra feet of emergency Civil Defense area in a special session in Caro Monday.

Construction on the new Cass River bridge on Cemetery Road south of Cass City was reported "right on schedule" this week and should be open for traffic as promised Dec. 1.

William Bliss Jr., tri-county area representative for Delano Granite Works, has been awarded a graduation certificate following his completion recently from a week-long course at Dunn School of Memorialization in Minneapolis, Minn.

The $1.6 million bond issue for the proposed new Cass City High School will be sold to the bidder offering the best interest rates Thursday, Oct. 21, at Cass City School, it was announced this week.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Construction of a new engine room is under way at the Nestle Co., Inc., condensery, according to E.A. Hanna, plant superintendent.

Keith Little, Cass City, exhibited the grand championship gilt, a 215-pound Duroc Jersey, at last week's Fall 4-H and FFA Market Hog Sale held in Caro.

Rev. S.R. Wurtz, was elected vice-president of the Cass City Council of Churches to replace Rev. S.P. Kinn who has moved away, when that organization met Monday evening. Rev. Howard Watkins presided as chairman.

Cass City gridders rocked Pigeon Friday night 13-7. Touchdowns were scored by Bob Wallace and Lee Hartel.

Over 200 persons attended a reception welcoming seven new teachers to the Cass City School system last Thursday in the school gymnasium. James Gross acted as master of ceremonies.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Robert A. McNamee, who recently completed 51 years of service as a railroad man, 20 years of which were in the Grand Trunk Station in Cass City, was honored Thursday evening when Grand Trunk Railway officials, employees and their wives, entertained at a dinner in the dining room of the Presbyterian church.

Effectively utilizing the English Colonial style of architecture and harmoniously combining colorful field stone and reconditioned brick with asbestos weathered black shingles, the Dr. and Mrs. H.T. Donahue residence on North Seeger Street has struck a popular note.

The finishing touches are being applied on a modern oil service station and garage erected on the corner of Main and West Streets in Cass City by Don Herdell of Argyle.

Monday, Oct. 21, has been selected as the date for an elaborate program to celebrate the completion of the paving of the Earle Memorial Highway, known as M-53.

Cass City and Sandusky played to a 0-0 tie in a football game played Friday night.

507 from

tri-county

area at CMU

A total of 507 students from the tri-county area are currently enrolled at Central Michigan University as part of the largest student body in CMU history.

Tuscola county is represented by 184 students, with 197 from Huron county and 126 from Sanilac county.

CMU's record fall semester on-campus enrollment of 15,708 consists of nearly all Michigan students and represents all but one of Michigan's 83 counties—Keweenaw.

Immunize kids parents told

Have your children received all their vaccinations for childhood diseases? If not, or if you're not sure, the Center for Disease Control of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare urges you to check with your doctor or health department and have the child fully protected.

The problem, according to Dr. Bernhard Kats, Medical Director of the Thumb District Health Department, is now that such diseases can be prevented, people are no longer afraid of them, and are becoming lax about having their children vaccinated.

As a result, many children remain needlessly vulnerable to serious disease, Dr. Kats said, and deaths and serious disability still occur from these preventable diseases.

In fact, he said, there are so many unvaccinated children that we once again face the threat of local epidemics.

What diseases should children be vaccinated against? Dr. Kats lists seven—polio, measles, mumps, rubella, diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis (whooping cough).

Safe, effective vaccines are available for all these diseases.

When should they be vaccinated? "As a general rule," he said, "the sooner the better. Some of the vaccines, such as polio, should be started when the infant is only about two months old. Others, such as measles, should not be given during the first year of life, but should be given as soon after the child's first birthday as possible."

The reason for early vaccination, Dr. Kats explained, is that children are in many cases very susceptible to the diseases when they are young and become more severely ill if they get the disease. "If an epidemic strikes," he said, "it is likely to hit hardest and spread most quickly among young children. Parents who put off vaccination until the child is ready for school are making a serious mistake and gambling needlessly with their children's lives."

"We hope many parents will take the warning seriously," Dr. Kats said. "To remain unvaccinated is a serious risk that no child should have to face."

If your children's immunizations are not up-to-date, visit the health department's Immunization Clinics every Thursday, from 9:30-11:30 and 1:00-3:00, at 2266 West Caro Road, Caro.

County

tour held

Sixty persons participated in a "Know Your Neighboring County" tour Wednesday, Oct. 1, which was sponsored by Family Living of the Cooperative Extension Service in conjunction with the Extension Study Groups. The hostesses for the day were Mrs. Helena Smit and Mrs. Evelyn Karpovich of the Watrousville Extension Study Club.

Extension Home Economist Ailene Mills stated that the purposes of this educational tour were for participants to learn to appreciate history and to learn more about how a business operates to meet consumer demands.

First at the Watrousville Museum, the group observed articles of the past and learned more about how these people lived; then Dorra Wiltse explained interesting facts concerning the museum and museum items such as a chest used by the first white settler in Tuscola county and the Lincoln flagpole.

Next was a ride on Steaks Locomotive Steam Engine and a tour of the Museum Depot which was preceded by a brief description about the roles that these train collections have played in the United States. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Steaks of Reese were host and hostess for the group.

Lunch was followed by a guided tour of Bavarian Inn's kitchen, laundry, and bakery and a personal tour of Bronners.

This experience provided the group with a better understanding of the past society and present business procedures.

4-H ACTIVITIES
4-H'ers look to tomorrow

By Bernard Jardot

More than seven million 4-H'ers, their leaders and parents will take part in the annual salute to the Head, Heart, Hands and Health program.

Observances are expected to center on the 1975 4-H bicentennial theme, commemorating—the nation's 200th birthday and accenting the history, ideals and goals of the American youth movement now flourishing in over 80 countries.

As in past years, 4-H'ers are planning special recognition events, service projects and recruitment drives in their local communities, counties and states.

National 4-H Week is proclaimed annually by the Cooperative Extension Service, which conducts the 4-H program in all 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam and the Virgin Islands. Extension professionals recruit, train and assist the nearly 500,000 volunteers who provide local leadership in 4-H activities.

Of the 7.2 million boys and girls from nine to 19 involved in 4-H, more than 3.5 million belong to clubs and groups. Nearly 900,000 take part in special 4-H nutrition programs geared to lower-income youth and their families. Another 2.5 million are reached by instructional television series like "Mulligan Stew" and "Living in a Nuclear Age."

Although the majority of 4-H members still live on farms and in rural communities, 17 per cent now come from larger urban and suburban areas.

Since its beginnings around the turn of the century, 4-H has offered practical learning and citizenship experiences to millions of young people. Among the most popular projects today are those related to animals, food, clothing, bicycle care and safety, arts, crafts and music.

Private sector donors lend their endorsement and support to the Extension-supervised 4-H program through the National 4-H Service Committee and the National 4-H Foundation.

Set plans for all-alumni meeting

A general meeting to lay plans for an all-alumni reunion of Cass City High School students has been scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 30, at 7:30 p.m. in rooms 202-205 of the high school.

According to Jeannette Shadko of Beulah, an organizer of the reunion, the goal is to bring together as many Cass City graduates as possible in conjunction with the bicentennial celebration.

She said there are 89 years-worth of graduates. She estimates approximately 1,000 persons could attend. The meeting is open to anyone interested in making the project a success, she said.

BETTER HEALTH

New light on allergies

BY DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

It won't affect this year's hay fever season nor probably even next year's, but there is great promise of relief for allergy sufferers of all kinds in the work of Dr. Robert Hamburger of the University of California at San Diego.

He has apparently succeeded in synthesizing a protein-like substance, which when injected into an allergy victim prevents allergic attacks by barricading the cells that set off the reaction.

As a result of the work of many investigators it is now fairly well established that allergic symptoms — sneezing, tearing, red welts on the skin, itching and such threatening events as swelling of the membranes of the wind pipes — are set off when offending allergens, such as pollen, bee venom or, in some people, penicillin by-products, combine with a blood protein called "immunoglobulin E" (IgE).

These combinations of allergen and IgE attach themselves to special sites on the surface of so-called "mast" cells, found chiefly in the lining of the respiratory tract, the intestinal tract and in the skin.

The mast cells in turn are stimulated to elaborate histamine and other so called mediators, which are responsible for the allergic symptoms.

The interaction between an allergen, IgE complex and a mast cell is complicated and not entirely understood, but the connection which is established is apparently as precise as that of fitting a key into a lock.

And the resultant secretion of histamine and other chemical agents by the mast cells sets up a kind of sieve-like permeability of the capillary walls, with swelling and irritation of the susceptible areas of the body such as the eyes, the nasal membranes, the skin, the bronchial tubes and the intestinal tract.

Medications act either to suppress the release of histamine from the cell or, as with the so-called antihistamines, to block its activity at the capillary level.

Progressive desensitizing injections designed to reduce allergic symptoms to such allergens as ragweed probably work because they reduce the elaboration of IgE and raise the level of other blocking antibodies.

Dr. Hamburger's contribution to all this is the development of a substance which mimics IgE, attaches to the mast cell, prevents the IgE-antigen complex from finding space on the mast cell and thus prevents the release of histamine.

This is still a somewhat dim bird's eye view of a very complicated subject, but the 35 million allergy sufferers in America can be confident that very real progress is being made and the prospects of increasingly effective treatment are also very real.

Community

Chest drive

kick-off set

The kick-off dinner for the Elkind-Novesta Community Chest will be held at Wildwood Farms, Monday, Oct. 20, at 7:00 p.m.

Officers for the 1975-76 year were named at a meeting held Oct. 1. Officers include president, Toby Weaver; vice-president, Gloria Ouyry; secretary, Michele Zdrojewski and treasurer, Ray Nelson.

Directors for the 1975-76 year include Gary Christner, Roger Little, Harold Isard, Vi Patera, Nelle Maharg, Wanda Leboda and Marilyn Schriener.

The goal for this year is $12,000. No drive chairman was appointed this year.

Sentence two in Circuit Court Monday

Two sentencings were handed down Monday in Tuscola County Circuit Court by presiding Judge Norman Baguley.

Michael Panko, 34, Caro, was sentenced following a jury verdict to serve six to 10 years in Jackson Prison, with credit for 26 days already served.

Panko was found guilty on two counts including assault with intent to commit gross indecent and gross indecency. He was arrested Nov. 18 in Denmark township.

Ralph A. Prince, 21, Shinnston, W. Va., was sentenced to serve from three to 10 years in Jackson Prison after pleading guilty to a probation violation.

Prince was accused of failing to pay fines and costs incurred in an earlier conviction.

In his sentence order, Judge Baguley recommended Prince receive vocational training.

Another sentencing was deferred. Rodney Lee Archuleta, 18, Akron, received a delayed sentence following a guilty plea to larceny in a building. The incident allegedly took place last July 27 in Fairgrove township.

Judge Baguley delayed Archuleta's sentence on condition that he complete his high school education. He is scheduled to appear in court for final sentencing next June.

Karl Humpert, 18, Akron, entered a guilty plea to a probation violation charge when he appeared in court Monday. The plea was accepted and sentencing was set for Oct. 20.

Humpert remains in custody without bond.

Charles Mathew Ozbat, 18, Caro, was arraigned on charges of breaking and entering and larceny in a building. He entered a plea of guilty to the larceny charge, which was accepted by the court.

Sentencing was set for Nov. 3, and bond was reduced to Sheriff's Department promotes four

Four Tuscola County Sheriff's Department personnel received promotions Tuesday from Sheriff Hugh Marr.

The four include Sgt. Paul Megge, who was promoted to the newly-created lieutenant position, Sgt. Larry Walker, who was made a detective, and deputies Richard Hoffmeister and James Compo, who were each promoted to the rank of sergeant.

Commenting on the changes, Marr said the restructuring will provide a commanding officer on duty 24 hours a day. He said administrative duties could more easily be handled.

"We're hoping to have a sergeant on duty at all times," Marr commented. "We hope that we can better serve the public by going to this system."

The department has grown to 33 persons, Marr said, requiring a command officer on duty at all times. He said the three eight-hour shifts worked by the department will overlap to insure that a detective is on duty at all times.

The changes were approved earlier this year by the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Teachers should not strike

Cass City Chronicle
Cass City, Michigan

Dear Editor:

If all the School Teachers of the Thumb and their friends, who realize that the prestige of teachers has suffered, during the past few years because of strikes, would write Gov. Milliken that they agree with him that there must be a more intelligent way to settle disagreements between teachers and school boards than by strikes, they will help tremendously to get a law passed this session of the state legislature that will be fair and honest with both the teachers and the taxpayers.

The prevalent idea that teachers are made second class citizens if not allowed to strike is ridiculous. Teachers make themselves second class citizens when they disobey court injunctions and urge other teachers to do the same. No one can be a first class citizen, by any standard if he disobeys laws.

Teachers would be well advised if they worked for a law of mediation along with Gov. Milliken where fair play and honesty would decide disagreements instead of force.

Every reader who will cut this article out of the Chronicle and mail to the Governor, a legislator or a friend will show their interest in upholding the prestige of our teaching profession and their interest in good government.

Linkletter brings drug crusade to Teen Ranch

Radio and television personality, Art Linkletter brought his personal crusade against drugs to Kingston Teen Ranch during outdoor open house activities held under sunny skies Saturday. Linkletter stressed his opposition to marijuana legalization while at the same time stating that punishment without love can turn young persons who experiment with drugs into addicts.

The popular performer flashed his famous grin to over 2,500 persons on hand for the open house, held at the ranch located four miles south of Kingston, and praised institutions such as Teen Ranch for their work with youth.

In a news conference prior to opening ceremonies, Linkletter said the legalization of marijuana would be a "disaster" that would only add to the drug problem now existing in the United States.

"I don't see any lessening of the drug culture in the United States," Linkletter said. "I see it increasing as new drugs are being synthesized, and I think legalization of marijuana would only speed up that process."

Linkletter said he supports moves to reduce marijuana usage and possession from a felony to a misdemeanor because it would give authorities a chance to work with youthful offenders without their being burdened with a criminal record the rest of their lives.

"A young person hooked on drugs shouldn't be jailed because jail isn't the place for him," he said. "These kids need love, understanding and forgiveness and this is the type of thing exemplified here."

Linkletter became personally involved in the struggle against drug usage following the tragic death of his 19-year-old daughter, Diane, in the late 1960's. She reportedly leaped to her death following an alleged LSD trip.

The 63-year-old Linkletter recalled how it happened. "Here was a girl who had everything to live for," he said. "She had a good home, parents who loved her. She took her life after she began experimenting with LSD with a group of persons in Hollywood."

"Since then, I've wanted to make my daughter's life meaningful and this is the best way I've found."

He acknowledged that being a victim of drug usage doesn't make you an expert and that since this involvement with his anti-drug campaign, he's learned a lot. He said he is convinced jail is not the answer.

"Thrusting a young person into jail is not the solution," he said. "They need the love and understanding that can be found in such a place as Teen Ranch."

DRUG CULTURE

Linkletter said drug addiction cannot be blamed totally on the family environment—that much of the problem lies with society as a whole.

"The problem is that our nation accepts drugs as a solution to everything," he said. "If you're not happy, swallow something. Alcohol is our nation's biggest drug problem and it's one that is actively promoted. One drinker in every 10 winds up either an alcoholic or a problem drinker."

He said children growing up in this environment are looking for love, care and communication with their parents.

Commenting on New York State's tough drug laws, he said in some instances, they are too severe and miss the mark. They tend to make criminals out of first-time offenders because they lack compassion, he said.

But he has no sympathy for the drug pusher.

"I have very harsh and vengeful feelings toward drug pushers," he said. "Personally, I think they should be jailed and that the key should be thrown into the river. They should have no chance for parole."

Linkletter called pushers "cold-blooded, merciless traffickers in misery."

This last statement brought a round of applause from the crowd seated on the surrounding lawn.

He said he did not favor the British system for dealing with drug offenders which allows addicts a ration of heroin to control his habit. He said the United States has a drug problem 50 times larger than Britain's and that the drug problem there is still higher than in the United States.

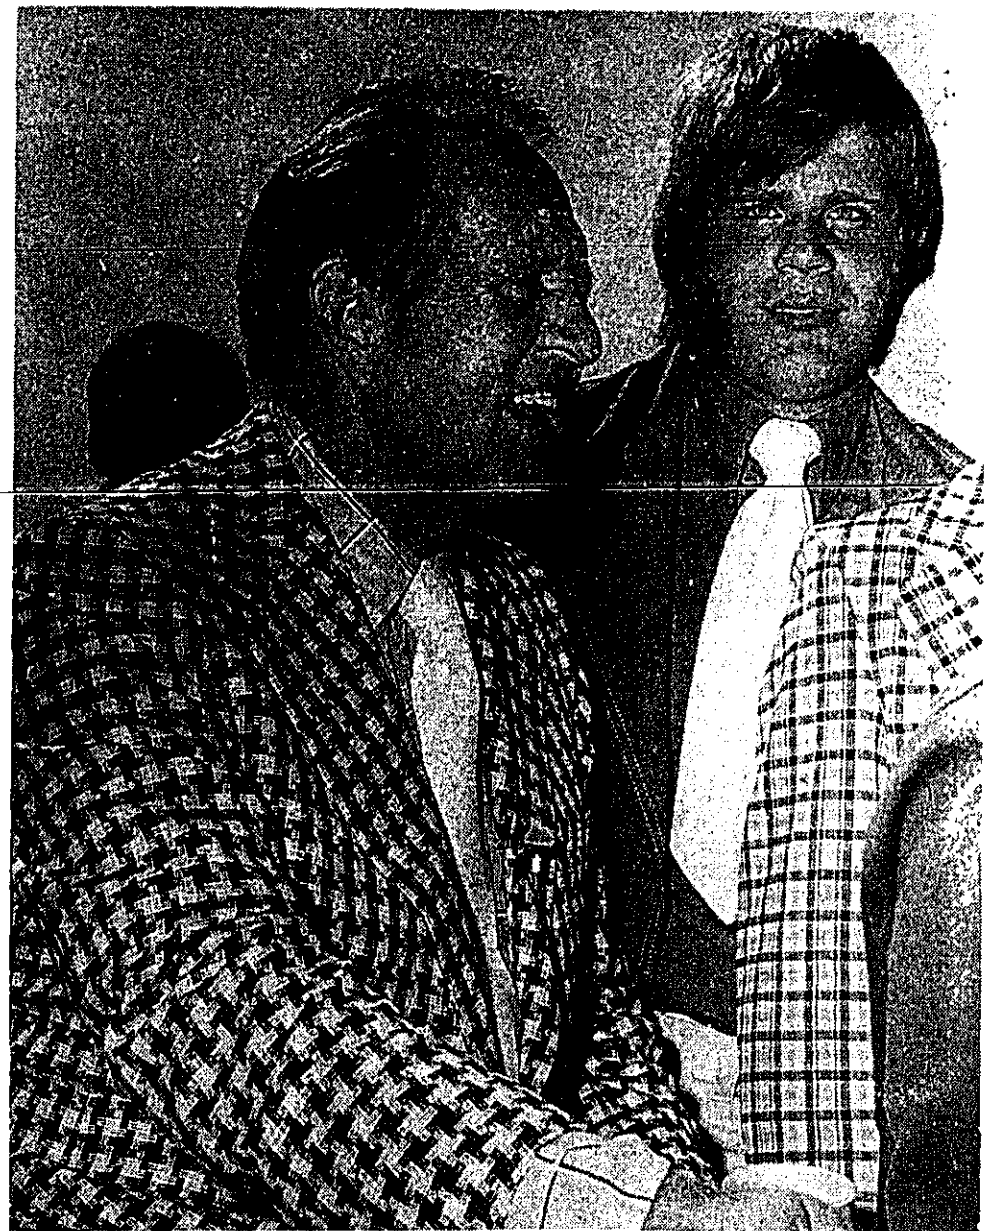

OTHER TOPICS

Responding to a question regarding his relationship with former President Richard Nixon, Linkletter said he'd been friends with Nixon for 30 years and that Watergate had not changed the feeling.

"I feel very sorry for my good friend, Richard Nixon," he said. "He has made some serious mistakes. I think he was captured by the Potomac power syndrome which could have happened to anyone."

"I think what happened was terrible and that he's paying for it dearly. But I also think he was a great president in many ways and that someday that greatness will be recognized."

Linkletter said his background as a preacher's son and work as a school teacher and with the YMCA helped furnish the interest in young people that he has today.

ART LINKLETTER, popular radio and television personality, chats with several young persons at the Teen Ranch open house Saturday south of Kingston. Linkletter praised ranch operations during his tour of the facility. He spoke to a crowd of approximately 2,500 persons.

Most fires are preventable, Fire Chief Jezewski says

What's the cause of most home fires in the Cass City area? Ask Elkhart Township Fire Chief Jim Jezewski and he'll tell you most blazes start with an electrical malfunction—and that most of these are preventable.

He said that this week, National Fire Prevention Week, is a good time to check those extension cords, heating appliances and house wiring before trouble starts.

He said during his 10-year career on the fire department, most house fires could have been avoided if an electrical hazard had been eliminated.

"We find most of the problem in extension cords, plug overloading, bad plugs or faulty house wiring," Jezewski said. "Of course there's always some that start due to careless smoking and others from children playing with matches."

He said in recent years, there's been one other cause that's been growing alarmingly—arson.

"This year so far we've had between six and eight fires in this area that we're sure were arsons," Jezewski said. "Last year we had maybe four."

He said the majority are set for insurance purposes.

"A guy figures he'll just torch it to get out from under the payments, the fire chief said. "And if the insurance pays, he's got a new home free and clear."

Jezewski believes the vast majority of fires are preventable but that homeowners don't think about a blaze until it happens. The attitude is "it'll never happen to me."

In just one month—last May—a total of three barns, two houses, a car and several acres of grass went up in smoke at a cost of $116,537 in property damage.

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

One solution is to keep at least one fire extinguisher handy, Jezewski said. The fire department sells and services extinguishers that vary in type and price.

The most common type is the ABC all-purpose extinguisher, so named because it extinguishes Type A, B, and C fires.

A type "A" fire involves paper or wood materials, Jezewski explained. Type "B" fires are electrical and type "C" fires involve flammable liquids.

He said the ABC extinguisher shoots a spray of dry powder under pressure. These dry chemicals quickly put out these three types of fires.

Jezewski said dry powder extinguishers vary in size from two-and-a-half to five pounds and that with a little training, even a child could handle one.

"We advise that a person keep one or two of these around the house," he said.

"It's a good practice to keep one in the kitchen area and maybe one in the furnace room or in the garage."

Maintaining a dry powder extinguisher is relatively simple, Jezewski explained. "As long as the gauge at the top of the extinguisher still reads in the 'good' zone, you're all right," he said.

"We advise that they be picked up once or twice a month and shaken to help keep the dry chemicals mixed and that they be tested once a year."

Another, more expensive extinguisher is the Co2 type. These are more bulky and are used mostly by industry, Jezewski said. He added that by law, these must be hydrostatically tested every five years at a cost of $10 per test.

Another method of preventing fires involves simply checking out your home or business, he said. Watch for overloaded circuits or faulty heating appliances.

"You can't believe how heart-rending it is to watch a family after they've lost their home and all their belongings," Jezewski said. "It may be covered by insurance, but you can't buy back the memories."

Aside from protecting the property itself, it's a good idea to plan at least two escape routes from your house if a fire does break out.

"Have a good idea where you're going when one of your exits is blocked," he said.

He said many homes are not constructed with the idea of escaping during a fire. In some cases, they can turn into death traps when bedrooms are separated from living rooms and kitchens where the only exits are generally found.

Mobile homes are another worry for fire departments, Jezewski said, because they burn so rapidly. Until recently, flame-retardant materials were not mandatory in constructing new mobile homes.

Advances in construction techniques have lessened the fire hazard in new mobile homes, he said, but older homes still carry a degree of risk.

"We recommend the installation of a fire detection system that activates either with smoke or heat," Jezewski said. "These generally sell for around $50."

Jezewski added that the department will inspect any home or business place at no charge and make fire prevention recommendations.

Grahams outstanding Farm Bureau couple

Cass City area farm persons received coveted awards last week at the annual meeting of the Tuscola County Farm Bureau in Caro.

Mr. and Mrs. John Graham of rural Caro were one of two couples named the outstanding Farm Bureau couple. Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Rupprecht of Vassar were also honored.

Graham has long been an active supporter of the Farm Bureau and is associated with many civic programs. He has hosted foreign exchange students and worked on Cass City projects as a member of the Cass City Rotary.

A world traveler since turning active management of his farm to his sons, he has brought new ideas in dairy farming home after seeing it in operation abroad.

This year's Farm Bureau county queen is Debbie Loomis of Cass City. She was crowned by Donna DeLong, also of Cass City, the 1974 queen.

Wilson warns businesses

Local businessmen should be wary of advertising solicitations by the Michigan Police Officers Association magazine, Police Chief Gene Wilson said Wednesday.

No area police officers belong to the organization or take the magazine, he said. In one local instance, a business was billed for advertising before it had given its approval for the ad.

Wilson emphasized that there is no indication of fraud to date, but that businessmen who might be thinking of advertising in the publication know that no members reside in the area.

Lutheran landscaping

A brief dedication service Sunday marked the completion of landscaping of the Good Shepherd Lutheran church grounds in Cass City.

The project included shrubs and trees around two sides of the building and trees in the spacious lawn fronting the church on Main Street.

Also receiving shrubs and trees was the lawn area between the drives into the church property.

Some 40 men came to the church Saturday morning to do the installation work. A lunch was served by church ladies who also worked to spruce up the interior of the church building.

Deford pair escape injury in separate traffic accidents

A Deford man escaped injury Friday afternoon in a two-car collision on M-24, two-and-a-half miles south of Bevins Road.

Sheriff's deputies identified the drivers as Louis Sabo, 58, of 7710 Bevins Rd., Deford, and Hans Melhoefer, 66, of Detroit. Officers said both vehicles were northbound when the Melhoefer vehicle attempted to pass the Sabo auto which had been parked on the shoulder. At that moment, Sabo pulled onto the roadway. Neither driver was injured.

and no ticket was issued. The accident took place at 5:00 p.m.

A Deford woman and her three-year-old son escaped serious injury Tuesday night when her car went out of control and struck a parked car in the Leach Street parking lot.

Cass City Police identified the driver as Marybelle Louise Martinez, 21, of Deford.

She reportedly struck a parked car owned by Dale Iseler of Schwegler Rd., Cass City.

Police said Mrs. Martinez was northbound on Leach Street when her son grabbed the wheel and pulled the car off the right side of the street and into the car. Neither she nor her son, Andrew, were injured seriously. The mishap took place at 7:08 p.m.

SHOPLIFTING

A 17-year-old Mayville youth was apprehended in an alleged shoplifting incident at Zorn's Market in Kingston Wednesday, Oct. 1.

Caro State Police who investigated said the youth, whom they did not identify, was apprehended by the market owner.

No charges were filed and the youth was remanded to his parents.

Lila DeBoer,

Veterans'

Counselor, dies

Mrs. Lila DeBoer, 71, who served 28 years as Tuscola County Veterans' Affairs counselor, died Monday at Saginaw General Hospital following a long illness.

She was also past-president of the Women's Republican Club of Michigan and hosted a radio show concerning veterans' programs for many years over station WKYO in Caro.

She was a charter member of the Michigan Association of Veterans' Counselors and a member of numerous civic and service organizations. She retired as Veterans' Counselor May 30, 1974.

She is survived by her husband, Gerald; one son, Harold of Lansing; one daughter, Mrs. Fred (Joan) Reed of East Lansing; four brothers, one sister, and seven grandchildren.

Funeral services are scheduled for 2 p.m. Thursday at the First Presbyterian church in Caro, with burial in Caro cemetery. Collon Funeral Home had charge of arrangements.

Memorials may be made to the scholarship fund of the Michigan Association of Veterans' Counselors.

Christopher Columbus had trouble recruiting sailors for his early voyages. Men were afraid, but the bravest enlisted and sailed off to the wonders of a new world.

Most of us are afraid of the unknown. We have our qualms and doubts about a new job, moving to a strange city, beginning a marriage, or simply facing the uncertainties of tomorrow. We do not know what lies ahead, and we worry about being able to cope with it. In this ever-changing world, we instinctively yearn for that which does not change.

Whatever tomorrow brings, we can have the peaceful conviction that the love of God for His children is trustworthy and everlasting.

Discover an abiding security. Worship this Sunday.

No time to savor victory—Hawks face Caro Friday

FAILING TO GO over on this play was Wayne Brooks. But Cass City's Ken Lowe scored a moment later. Number 61 is Guy Howard, a defensive stalwart all night. Number 75 is Ken Anderson of the Lakers.

Cass City scored its first touchdown and racked up its first win in Thumb B Conference competition last Friday much to the enjoyment of a homecoming throng at Cass City Recreational Park. The score was 12-6.

Coach Roland Pakonen's charges will have little time to bask in the glow of victory because Caro is next on the schedule and the Tigers promise to be tough.

The Hawks are all alone in second place in the Conference and if the Hawks are to spoil things for Caro they will have to be at the peak of their game.

On paper you must go with the Tigers. But over the years, the Hawks have given their in-county rivals lots and lots of trouble... especially when they entered the game as underdogs as has been the case much of the time in recent years.

The Hawks have spoiled perfect seasons for Caro twice in the past four years.

What Pakonen and the team are working on is the elimination of mistakes. Penalties and turnovers were less frequent against the Lakers than they were in previous games.

Against the Lakers, Wayne Brooks was installed at fullback and he responded with a fine game for Cass City.

The Hawks were opportunists against the Lakers Friday.

They scored in the first quarter after Tom Dorland recovered a Laker fumble on the Laker 24. A few moments later Ken Lowe took a pitch around left end and rambled in for the touchdown.

The Lakers came charging back to even the score on a sustained drive.

They hit through the center of the Hawk line for yardage in big chunks to pick up a first down on the Cass City 35. From there Jay Brown broke loose to score.

That was the last time that the visitors were to dent the Hawk goal although they continued to pick up yardage between the 20-yard lines all night.

Cass City scored the clincher in the second quarter. The marker came after the longest drive of the season for Cass City. Starting deep in their own territory the Hawks moved steadily down the field. With time running out before the half, Ken Lowe capped the drive by going over from the three.

Coach Pakonen said that the team must work on the defense against the run. The Lakers piled up 126 yards in 45 carries Friday night.

It was quite a night for Brooks. Besides playing well on offense, the statistics chart showed that he made 13 solo tackles to go with 4 assists. Reliable Guy Howard was next with 11 unassisted tackles and two assists.

Ken Lowe picked up 101 yards in 22 tries while Brooks was credited with 55 yards in seven tries.

JV gridders lose as Lakers make big play

The Laker Junior Varsity came up with the big plays when they were needed and the Cass City JV's didn't and as a result the young Hawks dropped their first game of the season, 24-0, last Thursday at Laker High School.

The Lakers scored once in the first half and twice in the second to salt away the victory. The first score came on a 50-yard end run when the hosts disdained a punt with fourth and 11 at midfield and ran around the bunched Cass City line.

The second came on a similar play when it was fourth and eight from their own 45 and again the end run resulted in a Laker six-pointer.

The final tally came when the Lakers blocked a punt and ran it in for a score. The winners converted all three extra point tries.

The handwriting was on the wall for Cass City when the team failed to convert a fourth and inches try on the Laker 28 in the first quarter.

All night long the Hawks managed to pick up yardage, except when it really counted. In a second half drive Cass City moved the ball to the Laker 11 only to be forced to give up the ball on downs.

Owen-Gage having lost its accreditation several years ago played a factor in the decision. He declined to elaborate.

"The whole situation is a very questionable thing to me," Erickson said. "The student isn't the one we're attacking. These so-called modifications to this rule reflects across the whole state and this is what we're questioning."

Erickson conceded that the specific case involving Miss Peters will probably be a mute point and that by the time MSHAA action is completed, the semester will be completed. He said the concern specifically involves the interpretation of the rule.

While MSHAA officials declined to comment on how the decision went, Erickson implied the ruling would probably go against Owen-Gage. He added that he would like to see the entire section of rules regarding transfer students in the association handbook clarified.

Mrs. Peters, a remedial reading teacher at Cass City, said she thinks the Owen-Gage district is being a little unfair in pursuing her daughter's case, but added that she can see the district's point, too.

"We didn't know they were going to challenge her eligibility until they did," she said. "But sports wasn't the main concern for her transferring to Cass City."

It seems to me that this won't help trying to get kids back in the (Owen-Gage) district," she added.

MHSAA okays eligibility for Cindy Peters

BULLETIN: Cass City Schools received a ruling from the Michigan High School Athletic Association that denied the protest of the Owen-Gage School Board. Basis for the ruling was that Owen-Gage was accredited when the student started to attend and later lost this accreditation. If Owen-Gage were still accredited the normal one-term waiting period for sports would have been in effect.

The Owen-Gage School administration has protested the eligibility of a transfer student to play on the Cass City High School Girls' basketball team.

The protest was presented by School Supt. Ronald Erickson to the executive committee of the Michigan High School Athletic Association in Lansing last week.

According to Erickson, the district is protesting certain modifications to MSHAA rules regarding eligibility of transfer students. He emphasized that the move was nothing personal and that the principle was being protested more than the individual.

The case involves Cindy Peters, a senior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Peters of rural Owendale. She transferred from Owen-Gage to Cass City this year and joined the basketball team.

When Cass City school authorities sent an eligibility request form to Owen-Gage for approval, the request was not signed.

Erickson said he interprets the rule to state that Miss Peters should be ineligible for one semester because when she changed schools, she did not change her residence.

He claims, however, that certain modifications to the rule seemingly have allowed her to play for Cass City.

Officials at MSHAA refused comment on the story until official notification is given both Cass City and Owen-Gage later this week. Those letters were expected by Thursday.

Al Bush, MSHAA executive director, did say the question involves more than a basic application of the transfer rule. He said the question of

KINGSTON ENDING SIDEWALK WORK

Kingston Village Council learned Monday night that sidewalk work along Main Street should be completed sometime this week.

Clerk Mrs. Mildred Parrott said new sidewalk construction included an area west of the elevator and from River Street to the Kingston Insurance Agency.

Total cost should run about $2,150. Mrs. Parrott said.

Girl cagers top Sandusky

Cass City's distaff Hawks bested Sandusky 48-30 in girls' basketball league play Monday night at Cass City. The squad ran its way to an early lead and were never in trouble throughout the contest.

Top scorers for the Hawks were Patti Goslin with 14 points and a 46 per cent shooting average. Other top scorers included Lisa Zimba with 10 points and a 39 per cent average, Beth Erla with 11 points and a 31 per cent average and Elaine Stoutenburg with eight points and a 44 per cent shooting average.

Beth Erla led the way in rebounds with 12. Lisa Zimba picked off another 19 rebounds.

Coach Kally Maharg said the team's free throw shooting average of 30 per cent was poor.

The squad led 27-15 at half time and played a zone defense the rest of the way, Coach Maharg said.

With a 2-1 league record, the team was set to take on undefeated Lakers Wednesday, Oct. 8, at home.

2 events scheduled

Art Council starts season

Two events have been scheduled for October by the Cass City Arts Council as it begins a new season.

A "Kaleidoscope of Art", featuring the works of local artists and craftsmen, will be held Oct. 17-26 at the Cultural Center.

Requirements for exhibiting in the show are that work be recent (within the past year) and original. Deadline for entries is Oct. 11. Persons interested in exhibiting their works are urged to contact Linda Albee, chairperson, at 872-4592.

Ann McDaniel is in charge of obtaining hosts and hostesses for the show. Larry Sefton is in charge of setting up the show. Persons interested in assisting are urged to call.

"America 1776", an in-service teacher workshop for the tri-county area, will be held at Cass City High School Monday evening, Oct. 27, from 7-10 p.m., under Arts Council sponsorship.

The workshop is designed to help teachers make effective use of a bicentennial packet of information on the Revolution, and what men and women did with their time and talents during the Revolutionary period.

The packet of materials was designed to provide aids in developing a series of lessons for the bicentennial. Slides, bulletin board mounts, art prints and tapes can also be utilized.

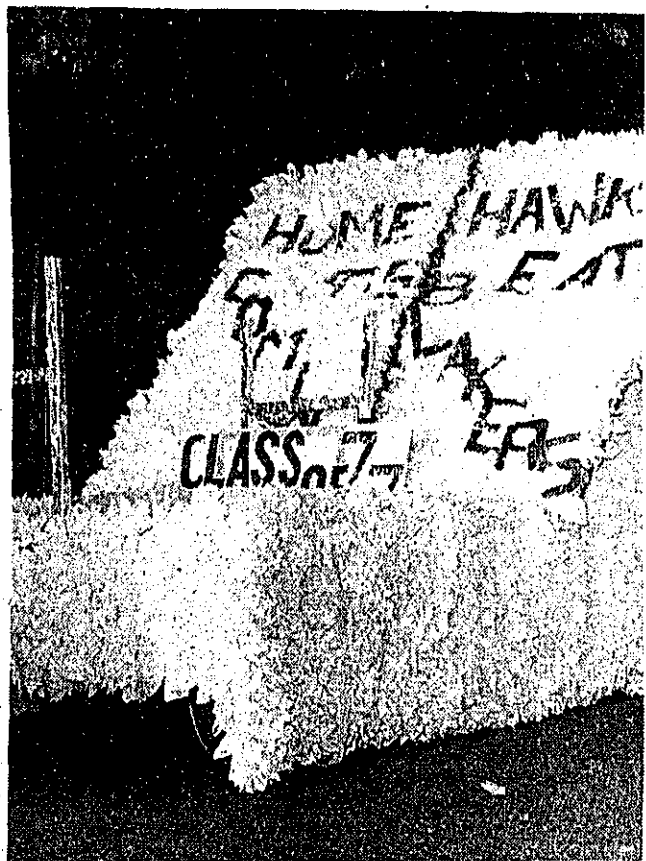

The program was coordinated by the Detroit Institute of Arts in cooperation with the Michigan Council for the Arts and will be presented in Cass City by Christine Schneider of the Detroit Institute of Arts.

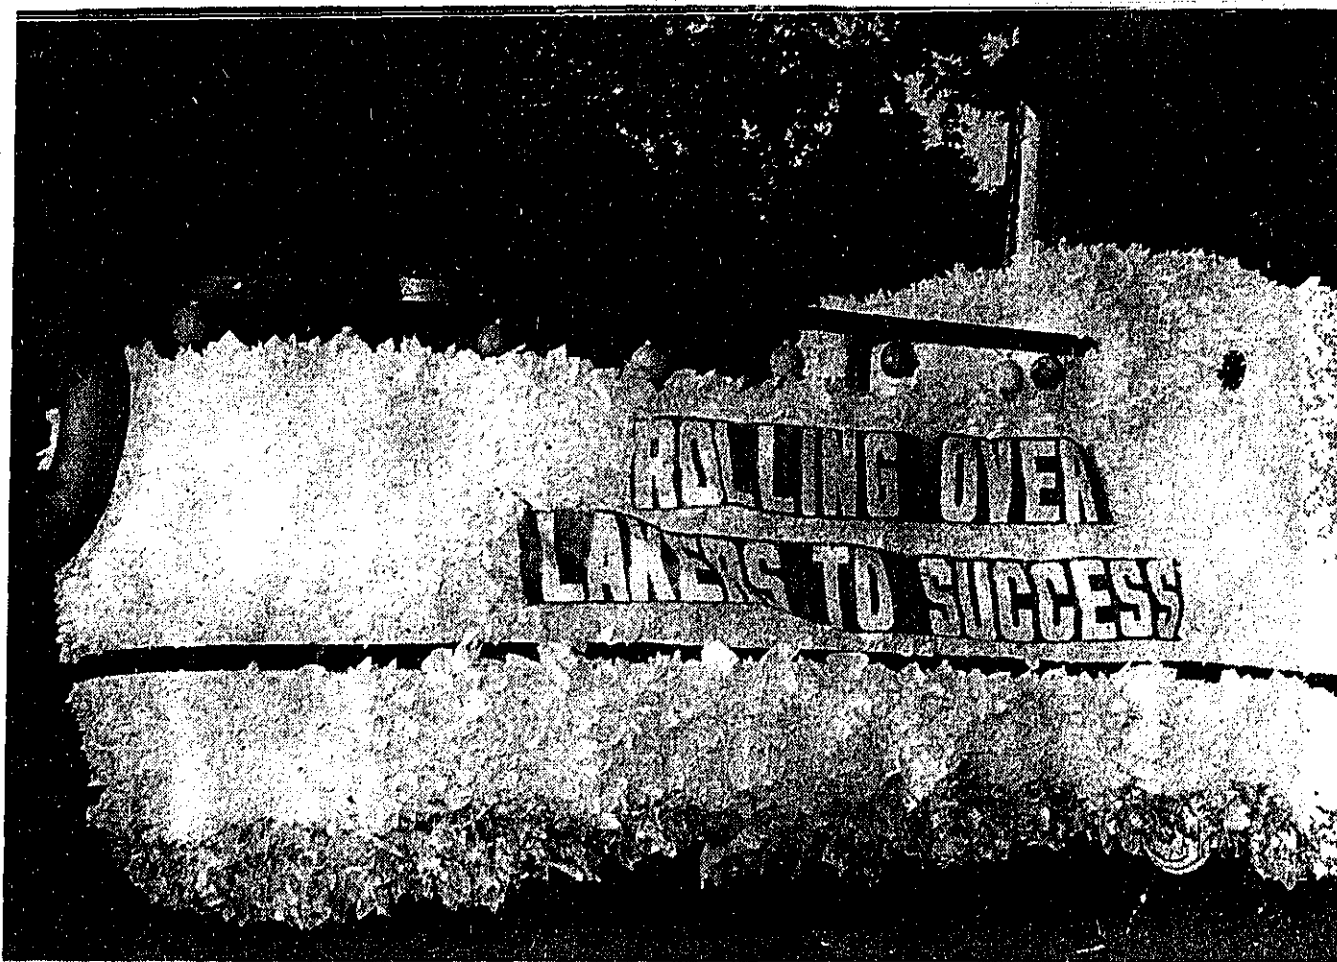

THE CASS CITY Freshman float.

THE CASS CITY Senior float.

THE CASS CITY Junior float.

THE SOPHOMORE CLASS float was judged the winner for 1975. Classes had just one week to work on floats and cash expenditures were limited to $50.
