WILL THIS pumpkin win top honors at Cass City's Harvest Festival this week? That's the hope of Perry Luv Graham, 2, as she surveys this monster grown by her grandfather, John R. Graham of rural Caro. Measuring 72 inches in circumference and weighing 107 pounds, it's one of many scheduled to be entered. The event is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce Retail Division.

Marathon session fails to break athletic field dilemma

It was a long, dragged out affair and when it ended at 12:45 a.m. Tuesday morning little was decided by the Cass City Board of Education and the interested visitors attending the annual and regular meetings of the board at Cass City High School.

However, the school board did stand up to be counted on the first phase of the controversial modernization of the outdoor athletic facilities.

After hours of discussion President Robert Hirn quizzed the members on whether or not they would be willing to spend $100,000 (or whatever the cost might be) at the Cass City Recreation Park if the village grants the district only a 25-year lease.

By a 5-2 margin, the board voted that it would not spend the money under these conditions.

Voicing no objections to the park site with a 25-year lease were Mrs. Geraldine Prieskorn and Art Severance. Voting to nix any expenditure at the park unless a longer term lease were forthcoming were Hirn, Dr. Ed Scollon, J.D. Tuckey, Lynn Albee and Dean Hoag.

The vote does not, repeat, does not mean that the members of the board would vote for park improvements as compared to a school site for the complex. It does indicate to the village council that a longer term lease is mandatory before the park site can be considered.

When and if the vote comes to decide the actual expenditure of funds, all of the board could vote for or against either site.

For instance, Dr. Scollon is adamantly against spending any money for improving the athletic facilities. Let them play in the afternoons, he said, during the discussion about lights.

It is unlikely that his views are shared by the majority of board members.

Supt. Don Crouse feels that there would be very little difference in the cost for modernization of existing facilities or for building new.

This view is challenged by Village President Lambert Althaver and other members of the council that attended the meeting. With Althaver were Nat Tuttle, James Ware, Gary Jones and Village Superintendent Lou LaPonsie.

Althaver told the council that he was appearing before the board to tell members that the council wanted the school to stay at the park.

He said that "informal talks" indicated that the school was going to stay at the park. However, no official representative of the council ever appeared before the school board in recent years to discuss the football field.

Regardless, the village representatives now appear ready to bend over backwards to try and meet the desires of the school so that the field will remain where it is.

The problem is that the village cannot sign a lease for over 25 years legally, Althaver explained. But as the evening wore on and the project was kicked around and around, Althaver said that he would approach the council to see if a vote could be taken in the village to allow a longer term lease to the school.

Trustee Severance said that he would like to see an advisory vote taken in the district about the proposed changes.

It may be that both of these votes will be upcoming. Nothing is sure at this writing except one thing.

More delay is inevitable.

THE COST

Nearly all of the trustees would like to see a cost comparison of the two sites. The problem is coming up with one.

The board was seriously considering "getting" specifications for both sites before the vote showed that the park site is out unless a longer lease is granted.

It is now likely that nothing more will be done on the estimated $150,000 project until the votes come rolling in or the village council says that they are not interested in a longer than 25-year lease.

TUITION CHARGES

State law requires a minimum or maximum amount that out-of-the-district students can be charged. Last year the minimum was nothing and that's what was paid. This year it will cost nothing for students in grades K-6 and $2.36 for students in grades 7-12, the current year minimum rates.

A month ago the board raised the amount paid for substitute teachers filling in for long periods. Crouse reported that one long-term substitute asked for more money on the basis of what the regular teacher receives. It was turned down and the present $40 a day retained.

ADULT EDUCATION

Thud! That noise you hear is Cass City's adult education program hitting the ground. After four years of trying Principal Russell Richards is throwing in the towel. The reason? Not enough interest by area residents, he says.

Still to be convinced are Lynn Albee and other members of the board that would like to see a program here. While the program is definitely dead for this semester and probably this year, something could rise from the embers in the years ahead if the board retains its interest.

Finally the board has under consideration a liability insurance for the board and the supervisory personnel for errors and omissions. That will give them protection for suits by disgruntled students or parents for most suits not now covered.

Tuscola county tax bill to jump by $730,000 for 1975

It was a familiar picture painted for Tuscola county property taxpayers again this year, as the County Board of Commissioners got its first look at the 1975 tax allocation report prepared by the Equalization Department Tuesday.

As the board began its week-long budget session annually held each October, the picture brought no surprises. Increased valuations and higher allocated taxes are in the wind.

The new year's county property tax bill totals $8,972,753, up by $730,231 from the 1974 total, over an eight per cent increase.

At the same time, total county valuation stands at $275,482,299, up by over $28 million from a year ago, or 11 per cent.

Commenting on the report, County Equalization Director Mac B. O'Dell said looking at the increases alone could be misleading. He said that of the 11 per cent increase, his department had recommended only an eight per cent jump, based on valuation increases, with the additional three per cent amounting to new construction.

The 11 per cent county increase does not mean everyone's property tax will jump by that figure. What it does mean is that more dollars will be flowing into county coffers.

Individual increases depend on the township, and the value of the property, O'Dell pointed out.

At the local level, Elkland township's share of the tax burden was set at $580,649.12, an increase of $33,433 or six per cent, one of the lowest area increases. Only Kingston township's per cent of increase was less—four per cent—or $223,723.96, compared with $214,896 a year ago.

Other area townships sustained higher percentage increases.

Ellington township was hardest hit. Its share of the tax burden jumped from $129,939 last year to $160,546.56, a 23 per cent hike.

Novesta township recorded a 20 per cent jump. Its tax bill was hiked to $173,665.20, a $29,184 boost.

Elmwood township's share climbed to $295,710.44, an increase of $43,799 or 17 per cent.

The increases were generally not as severe as last year, with the exception of Ellington township, which jumped 20 per cent last year. For instance, last year, Kingston township recorded a 23 per cent boost, compared with only four per cent this year. And Elkland township's six per cent is a little less than half the 13 per cent recorded in 1974.

VALUATIONS

Elkland township's 1975 valuation was set at $19,851,350, a $2,152,000 increase over last year, or 12 per cent. It was the lowest percentage increase of the five Tuscola county townships in the Cass City area.

Leading the way again was Ellington township, showing an increase of $893,950 in valuation to $4,928,200, or 22 per cent.

Novesta township came next with a 21 per cent hike, rising to $5,726,600 from last year's $4,696,700.

Kingston township followed with a 16 per cent rise, to $6,747,350 or an increase of $940,850.

Elmwood township's percentage increase ran just ahead of Elkland's—15 per cent. Its valuation was set at $8,789,500, compared with $7,582,900 a year ago.

Elkland township's share of tax money to help operate county government was set at $83,375. There is no bridge millage this year. The 1.0 levy expired with 1974 totals.

The township will receive $32,754.73 from regular fixed township allocations and $19,851.35 in special voted fire protection allocations. Road millage in effect last year has expired.

The Tuscola Intermediate School District will receive $19,041.65 from the township for special education, up $2,023.45 from last year, or 11 per cent.

Elkland's share of operating expenses for the district will also climb by 11 per cent, to $2,856.25.

The township's share of the county drain spread dropped drastically from a year ago. For 1975, the township's share of the spread was set at $1,997.80, with another $791.02 coming from the general fund.

This compares with a whopping $12,911.54 for drains last year and $6,628.65 from the general fund.

Local railroad outlook brightens

The future of rail service in Cass City looks considerably brighter this week, following an announcement from the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation that it has approved a $34.5 million state rail subsidy program.

According to Cliff Croft, President of the Thumb Rail Users Association, the Grand Trunk Western rail line serving Cass City is in line for a share of the subsidy.

The program now must be approved by the state legislature.

Croft said the subsidy, if approved, makes the task of preserving rail service to Cass City considerably easier. While the battle is not entirely over, the situation has markedly improved, Croft said.

Informed sources have indicated that Grand Trunk is now considering upgrading the 66 miles of track from Imlay City to Cassville which serve Cass City, Deford, Gagetown, Kingston and Owendale. Reportedly nearly all the rails would have to be replaced with a heavier gauge steel.

At least one bridge would have to be repaired as well. "Right now, I'd say we're in pretty good shape, although I hate to say for sure until everything is completed," Croft said. "But we've got word from our attorney and from the railroad attorney that the situation is better."

State plans call for continuation of freight service to more than 100 communities along nearly 1,000 miles of bankrupt railroad in the state, not expected to be included in the federal Conrail Final System Plan for Michigan, now before Congress.

Some of the rail lines being subsidized may be made profitable again in the short

Laker property owners seek return to Owen-Gage district

Several Laker School District property owners who recently transferred from Owen-Gage apparently want back in their old school district, it was learned at Monday night's Owen-Gage School Board meeting held in Gagetown.

The board approved a resolution urging that all owners of Laker property contiguous with Owen-Gage who want to return be allowed to do so. The resolution asked the Huron Intermediate Board of Education to approve the transfer requests and added the petitioning owners "expect a favorable ruling."

In commenting on the resolution, Supt. Ronald Erickson admitted the move is contrary to earlier board policy opposing all property transfers, but said in this case, the petitioners had the right to return if they wished.

Erickson said some of the owners felt they had been misinformed regarding the transfer move to Lakers, that some of their students still attend Owen-Gage and that some felt they had been "harassed" by pro-Laker supporters at the time of the original transfer.

"It also must be clearly understood that Owen-Gage is in no way trying to gerrymander property of the Laker School District," Erickson said.

The move did not set well with at least one district resident, Ken Voelker, Owendale. He charged that the move was gerrymandering and that considerable pressure had been put on the property owners to come back.

In order for the re-transfer to take place, the petitions must be approved by the Intermediate Board. Board sources said Tuesday that no transfer petitions have yet been filed.

Once they are filed, the board has 60 days to act.

Meanwhile, a large property transfer request to the Cass City School District is still pending before the State Board of Education. It is uncertain when a decision will be reached.

MEETING PLACE FIREWORKS

Fireworks began before the meeting had been officially called to order over where the meeting was to be held. Trustee Fred Cooley claimed he had not been informed that the meeting was to be held in Gagetown and arrived 10 minutes late.

He said according to a board resolution, all regular meetings are to be held in Owendale unless board members are otherwise notified, and was angered that he had not been told to come to Gagetown.

Erickson blamed the situation on a secretarial error, but added that the meeting place had been posted on the door both at Owendale and Gagetown schools.

Erickson said he had been under the impression that the meeting sites had been alternated between Owendale and Gagetown in the past.

The board also heard a request from the Cass City Chronicle that it be notified of special board meetings. The press had not been represented at two recent special meetings.

Board members said they would consider the request, but added it might mean having to call all other Thumb area newspapers as well as the Chronicle.

EXECUTIVE SESSIONS

Recent executive sessions by the board came under fire from Anton Peters, Owendale, who questioned the need and propriety of secret sessions.

Erickson said one recent executive session dealt with the pending school bond issue and another dealt with a personality question. This didn't satisfy Peters.

"When you people discuss spending tax money, it's my business," Peters said. "I think executive sessions are terrible. And at the next

It was common knowledge a few months ago that Keith McConkey was on the verge of selling his jewelry business. That he didn't is probably one of the best deals he ever made. When he almost sold out, Keith was totally preoccupied with helping his wife in a losing health struggle. After her death, his business was the therapeutic glue that held him together.

I don't know what I would have done if I had sold this business, Keith says today.

A statement by a Detroit radio disc jockey concerning President Ford's visit to the Motor City last week struck a responsive chord with me and would probably do the same with all of you who were in town for Richard Nixon's historic visit in 1974.

What the disc jockey said was that security for the visit was "unbelievable" and then went on to tell about it.

It was the same procedure that the Secret Service followed here with special badges, an army of men, etc.

Only I imagine it was (justifiably) even more strict in Detroit than it was here... and I felt at the time the government men were jousting at shadows in their elaborate precautions for the safety of the chief executive.

They did it to me again. Monday mornings I'm usually surprised by news, ads or both that arrive in the mail.

I confidently expected this Monday to be no different. Well I was surprised, all right. I got nothing. How was I to know it was Columbus day? And if I did, how can you expect anyone to remember that it's a holiday for the postal department?

The State has a winner in the instant lottery. There's a fascination about rubbing those cards so the numbers appear... much like watching the slot machines go round and round.

Besides this allure, there's also the removal of a psychological barrier. In previous bets, John Doe could sweat out a ticket or two all week. Now he is a winner, or more probably, a loser at once. Winners tend to spend the small prizes and losers tend to keep on trying.

Two local outlets say that the instant winner cards have doubled the business.

The trouble is many of the players are spending the bread money for the tickets... the poor guy looking for the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

Personally, I haven't (and won't) buy any of the tickets. I just can't help thinking that about 60 cents of every dollar goes to the State.

Painting recalls local history

A bit of local history is depicted in the 1975 Christmas cards now being sold by Teen Ranch of Kingston.

Painted by Lucile I. Bauer of Cass City, the card scene shows the Cass City railroad depot in the 1920's as Mrs. Bauer remembers it.

The artist traveled the line when a teacher at Rescue, nine miles north of Cass City. She travelled to Mayville for Christmas holidays. The trip consumed the better part of a day.

Rail service was established here in 1883 by the Pontiac, Oxford and Port Austin Railroad Company.

The company reorganized as the Pontiac, Oxford and Northern Railroad Company in 1889. The Cass City depot was built in 1907 and the line became a part of the Grand Trunk system in 1909.

The cards are furnished by Mrs. Bauer to Teen Ranch and profits go to help the boys staying at the ranch. They can be purchased from Mrs. Bauer or from Teen Ranch offices in Marlette.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

Saturday, Michigan State played Michigan a football game and if you believe what you read THE GAME is all that there is for the students of both of the venerable institutions.

It's a nice illusion. But really that's all it is... an illusion.

It's an illusion compounded by the mass media and by the alumni of both schools.

"If It Fitz . . ." Keep that piano man!

BY JIM FITZGERALD

President Ford has appointed Creighton Holden the Assistant Secretary of Commerce in charge of tourism. This could be OK, or it could be Ford's dumbest move since he pardoned Nixon. It all depends on whether Bob

MacPhail fund contributions

over $1,000

Memorial contributions from throughout the sports world have poured into Hills and Dales General Hospital following the death of Larry MacPhail, former owner of three major league baseball clubs, who died Oct. 1, at the age of 85.

Hospital administrator Randy D. Howard said this week contributions have totaled over $1,000 and have been received from professional baseball and football teams, the Baseball Hall of Fame and the owners of Madison Square Garden.

MacPhail was a native of Cass City. His family has requested that memorial contributions be made to the hospital.

Gibbs remains behind the piano at the St. Clair Inn. Let me explain (try to stop me).

Creighton Holden owned the St. Clair Inn for many years. It's one of Michigan's best-known pleasure spots, sitting on the St. Clair riverbank just a few miles north of Detroit and a short swim from Canada. I grew up in the neighborhood, always aware that if a party were really high-class, it would be held at the Inn and I wouldn't be invited.

As a teenager soldier, I did use my uniform and sharpshooter medals to sneak into some wedding receptions. It was at the Inn I learned it is not proper to pull a chair up to a buffet table and sit down and eat everything you can reach. I can still remember wondering why everyone else didn't also sit down instead of filing around me and then going off to eat out of their laps. I provided a severe test of patriotism that day.

In those days, the Inn's only barroom was the shape of a short hallway. If a person always stood facing the bar, and never sideways, the back wall was so close it was impossible to fall down. This was comforting to a lot of young servicemen who proceeded onward to make the world safe for Schlitz.

Currently there is a best-selling book in which several celebrities reveal how and where they received their baptism of sex. I have no intention of following suit in this family newspaper. But, strictly in the interest of nostalgia, it should be noted that if my old gang were inclined to similar bragging, there would be suitably engraved plaques and perhaps a few shrines scattered throughout the St. Clair Inn parking lot.

But forget the memories. We somehow won the war and the calendar pages flip-flopped with disgusting speed. The Inn prospered and expanded. About 10 years ago Creighton Holden added a barroom so large a guy can stumble 20 times while pawing for the security of a wall. It's so close to the river the freighters make waves in your drink. Truly it is a lovely room and the nicest thing about it is the Bob Gibbs trio with Joyce Chicone singing.

Gibbs and I go way back to childhood. Our paper routes rubbed and we were in college together. All these years he was playing the piano, which was marvelous, and getting all the girls, which was disgusting. Once, in an East Lansing tavern, I sat in for his drummer, brushing and grinning in Krupa style as the music poured from my soul. Surely, I thought, there will be percussion groups reaching for my body tonight. But no. As usual, the piano player went home with a homecoming queen candidate. I went home with a bus driver who missed my stop by 2 blocks. I never drummed again.

But there is nothing parochial about my admiration for the Gibbs style at the piano. I pledge no truth with childhood buddies and if they grow up to displease me, they get no phony praise out of my typewriter. I am a great admirer of pop and jazz pianists, fellows like Errol Garner and Oscar Peterson when he isn't too hammy. Gibbs makes me as happy as any of them. When he plays "I Only Have Eyes For You" he is better than anyone. And when he plays something soft behind the lovely Ms. Chicone, who can melt ice at 50 paces, the resulting sound is something to float upon, and dream about.

So you can see why I view President Ford's appointment with some trepidation. To take the tourism job, strictly in the interest of nostalgia, it should be noted that if my old gang were inclined to similar bragging, there would be suitably engraved plaques and perhaps a few shrines scattered throughout the St. Clair Inn parking lot.

But forget the memories. We somehow won the war and the calendar pages flip-flopped with disgusting speed. The Inn prospered and expanded. About 10 years ago Creighton Holden added a barroom so large a guy can stumble 20 times while pawing for the security of a wall. It's so close to the river the freighters make waves in your drink. Money rolls in as volunteers roll-on in church marathon

EARLY IN THE DAY the figures were small. Just 15 miles and $63.50, but they grew and grew as the roll-on continued. Keeping the scoreboard up to date are Lynn Babich and Lewis Tibbitts.

AL McKEE rolls on.

It's an eighth of a mile around the parking lot at Deford Community church and Mike Flowers rolled a tire around that lot 190 times within a 24-hour period Saturday.

Flowers was not trying to get his name in any record book and he wasn't alone. He had company, lots of company. About 40 teens and adults were there, too.

Mike made more laps than anyone, but all of the 40 pitched in. They did it for money. Money for missions, not for themselves.

For each mile that each of the two tires that were going round and round non-stop for 24-hours resulted in a pledge for missionaries of the Missionary Denominational church.

Called "Wheels for Missions" the drive was an unparalleled success. Lewis Tibbitts, one of the organizers, reported that $4,800 was collected and tires rolled on for 307 miles.

While much of the tire rolling was conducted by the younger church members, the older members were there, too.

The ladies cooked the meals and supervised the sleeping quarters where sleeping bags and blankets were the rule of the night.

Meanwhile, men had rigged lights on the lot for the night portion of the marathon and a loud speaking system was in operation to urge the participants on.

Pastor at Deford Community church is the Rev. Dale Sherry.

Commissioners set to tackle county budget

Tuscola County Commissioners dived into the work of approving a 1976 operating budget Tuesday, with their session expected to last through the week.

As reported in last week's Chronicle, the board is coming to grips with a tight budget that will take a massive jolt of federal revenue sharing money to balance.

According to the final version of the finance-committee's report, $192,920 is earmarked for public safety. According to the cover letter on the report, drafted by commissioners Kenneth Kennedy, Richard Dehmel and J. Benson Collon, the action was necessary to both avoid a deficit and balance the 1976 budget.

Total expenditures in the tentative budget were set at $2,193,693, a $135,391 increase over projected 1975 expenses, over a six per cent increase.

Total 1976 revenues, before the addition of revenue sharing funds, totals $2,018,693, compared with $1,766,958 that's projected for 1975.

What it means is that Tuscola county will be living within tight fiscal boundaries next year, if the budget is accepted in this form.

The Sheriff's department is budgeted at $441,926 in the proposed budget, compared with a projected figure of $378,401 for 1975 and a requested $457,191 by the department.

Generally, the tentative package is a "hold the line" budget, with many departments looking at minimal increases over projected 1975 totals, some far less than requested.

For instance, Prosecuting Attorney George Holmes requested $105,656 for 1976. The committee approved $58,114, up less than $1,000 from 1975.

Social welfare and Medical Care Facility expenditures are also down. Social welfare is budgeted at $49,000, less than a requested $56,500. The Medical Care Facility is budgeted at $42,000, down from 1975's $89,000 and a requested $67,627.

The Cooperative Extension Service stands to get a smaller share of the county pie as well. The committee approved spending $43,782, down from this year's $55,443 and a requested $57,973.

As committee member Richard Dehmel indicated last week, there isn't much room for expansion in the proposed budget. It's almost certain the board will look at the document closely and there are sure to be some changes before a final package is okayed.

The bulk of 1976 county income is projected through the Treasurer's office, with $1,749,986, followed by District Court at $103,000.

It's estimated the county will carry a fund balance of $175,000 into the new year.

SANDRA ESCHTRUTH drops a pillow on the bedding pile for later use in the all-night marathon.

Board gives tentative okay to building move

Aside from being presented with the tentative 1976 county budget, Tuscola County Commissioners worked their way through an otherwise light agenda during their meeting Tuesday in Caro.

The board reached a tentative agreement on taking over an unused building at the Caro Regional Center to house the Department of Social Services and Mental Health.

Final cost of the agreement is still to be determined, but essentially, the county has agreed to remodel the building in lieu of paying rent to the Regional Center.

Renovations include re-decorating offices and carpeting.

The board also heard a request from Road Commission Engineer Robert Wellington that county funding of $112,000 for bridges continue, and that $80,000 continue to be split among the townships for road improvements.

Wellington also requested the county pay up to $50,000 per mile to update specified roads to Class A. No action was taken.

Sheriff Hugh Marr reported that the Michigan State Police have agreed to pick up the cost of operating the Law Enforcement Information Network (LEIN) machine costs at the Sheriff's department for 1976. Previously, the cost, $250 per month, was paid by the state.

Commissioners learned that the county would be assessed costs of $5,125 for its audit. Previously, that cost had been borne by the state. Prosecutor George Holmes and social work officials appeared before the board to request county participation in a program to track down delinquent fathers of ADC children. According to Commissioner Maynard McConkey, the plan would call for hiring an investigator and staff.

No action was taken on the request.

It's in times of emergency that the true character of many people is brought to light.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

Doing it myself

By Jim Ketchum

I'm an ardent do-it-yourselfer. It's always been a tradition to do it yourself in my family because we could never afford to have it done either for us or to us.

That's why I'm an incurable nail pounder, wrench twister and wood butcher. And while the things I build may not always look quite square when I get done, I take a measure of pride in having done it myself.

In a way, it's sort of a carry-over from childhood. I was one of those kids who always got a kick out of showing off what he'd done—step by step. It isn't much different today.

I recently took a shot at building some cupboards in the basement. Well, not really building them from the ground up. I more or less finished the job another do-it-yourselfer started but either didn't have the guts or material to finish.

In the basement, we had a counter with no doors in front of it and right away my wife began wondering what was behind it. She's the type that lets her imagination run fast and loose at times and she instantly started wondering what was inside the counter.

Just after we moved in, I told her I'd get to the job the following week end. Two years later, she was still after me to tear into that counter.

You see, she thought perhaps a trove of old, moldering folding money might have been stashed inside. Or maybe some valuable artifacts sealed away so no one would ever find them.

I sort of thought a dead body might be inside. That's why I put off opening the thing.

Well, not long ago I finally broke into it. All we found were half-completed shelves, a few dead spiders and plastic shelf paper that had turned to jelly.

Now I was hooked. I had to finish those cupboards. Besides, my wife locked me in the basement and said: "I couldn't come up until I finished the job. We finally compromised when I told her I had to come up for lumber."

Once into the project, I was certain that carpentry was my real profession and that pounding typewriter keys was only a momentary sideline. Each time I drove a nail or fixed a board into place, I hailed my spouse to view this wonder of artistry. She would smile attentively and then sweetly ask what was different this time from the time before.

The fact that she was canning tomatoes, taking care of the baby and planning dinner all at the same time never entered my mind. What I was doing had far more importance than that stuff. Besides, I don't like canned tomatoes.

Anyhow, the pounding and sawing and an occasional blue oath continued most of the day and into the next before the project was at last done. The only problem was that one door wasn't as square as the other. So I chopped off both on what I thought was the same line.

I wound up with two shorter doors that still weren't square. Another whack with the saw only compounded the problem. I finally blamed it on the square and saw I was using. Or was it that souvenir "Detroit Tiger" pencil I was using to draw my lines?

Anyhow, the shelves may lean and dip and the doors may not line up, but it works. And for a do-it-yourselfer, that's about all you can expect.

Mrs. Warren pleads to embezzlement

A 42-year-old Caro woman entered a guilty plea to the first of 35 counts of embezzlement when she appeared for arraignment Tuesday in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

Shirley Warren entered the plea before Judge Martin Clements, who accepted it. Another 34 counts against Mrs. Warren were dropped.

Sentencing was set for Nov. 24, and bond was continued. Mrs. Warren pleaded guilty to embezzling $312.50. She had originally been charged with embezzling nearly $5,000 over a two year period.

In another arraignment Tuesday, Ronald Pelton, 17, Ionia, stood mute on a charge of uttering and publishing. Later, Judge Clements remanded the case to District Court after granting an amended information motion.

Heist $700 in property from M&M Block plant

Caro State Police are continuing their investigation of a breaking and entering at the M&M Block Plant located on Kelly Road, south of Cass City, that netted thieves around $700 in property last Thursday.

Co-owner Richard Mallory who reported the theft, said the break-in occurred sometime between 5:15 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 8, and 5:15 a.m. the next morning.

Police said entry was gained through a window on the north side of the building. Taken were a shotgun shell reloader, a checkmaker, 12 pounds of gunpowder, a calculator and several other items.

Police said no suspects have been arrested and the investigation is continued. Police are also probing the theft of a tool box from the rear of a pickup truck owned by Carl Lounsbury of 4984 E. Cass City Rd., Saturday night.

Lounsbury told officers he forgot to lock the tool box inside the cab when it was parked at the Club 24 tavern south of Caro and when he returned, the box was missing.

Value was set at $300. Police have no suspects.

warrant from Montmorency county Friday. At the time, Miller was allegedly driving a vehicle stolen from Judy Mellendorf, Cass City, earlier that day.

Cass City Police were seeking a UDAA (Unlawfully Driving Away an Automobile) warrant against Miller Tuesday.

Officers said Miller allegedly attempted to borrow Mrs. Mellendorf's car earlier in the day and was refused. Police said the car was not locked at the time it was stolen.

Miller was reportedly lodged in the Montmorency County Jail at Atlanta following his arrest.

ARREST TRIO

Three area men were arraigned in Tuscola County District Court this week on strong-arm robbery charges in connection with the theft of $248 from a Caro man Oct. 3.

Charged are Franklin Blake Holcomb and Gerald Curtis Hartman, both of Deford, and Allen Benjamin Peters, Uby.

All are scheduled to appear for pre-preliminary exams next Monday and for pre-exams Oct. 31. Bond for Holcomb was set at $2,500, with a $2,000 bond set for Peters and a $350 bond for Hartman.

The three are charged with robbing Warren Brookins, Caro, near his residence northeast of Caro.

ARREST DETROIT MEN

Three Detroit area men are being held in the Huron County Jail for investigation of an armed robbery after they were apprehended at the intersection of M-53 and M-81, four miles east of Cass City, Sunday night.

The three were identified as Patrick H. Johnson, 20, Oak Park, Mark Christie, 19, and Michael J. Venable, 18, both of Ferndale.

The three are accused of robbing the Oak Beach Grocery, located midway between Caseville and Port Austin on M-25, of $600 in bills and checks sometime around 8:40 p.m. Sunday.

The trio was apprehended around 9:30 p.m. by Sandusky State Police.

The investigation of the incident continues.

SHOPLIFTING

A 14-year-old Cass City girl was taken into custody Saturday in connection with shoplifting incidents in several village stores earlier in the day.

The youth, whose identity was not revealed due to her age, was accused of petty theft involving items taken from Coach Light Pharmacy, Old Wood Drug, Kritzman's and Ben Franklin.

Cass City Police said the youth was turned over to her parents and that no charges were filed.

TREE THEFT

Richard Peters, Kingston, reported the theft of three large maple trees from the edge of property he owns in the Kingston area, last week.

Peters told Tuscola County Sheriff's officers the trees were cut down sometime between Sept. 17 and Oct. 10.

No suspects have been apprehended.

Cass City school budget nears $2 million mark

The Cass City School Board accepted a budget for 1975-76 that falls just short of $2 million and is $150,000 greater than the amount spent in 1974-75.

While receipts will be up local operating taxes will not. It remains at 20 mills which Supt. Don Crouse points out is among the lowest in the area and the State.

Taxpayers will pay an additional .9 of a mill for debt service. The debt service was not levied last year as the reserve established was used to conform to State guidelines.

School board debates non-pupil school use

The use of school facilities by adults and the charges for their use, together with a schedule for the use of the high school gym, resulted in an hours-long hassle Monday evening with little decided except that the girls will get to use the gym in the prime hours after school until after their final regular season game Nov. 12.

Surprisingly enough the division of the gym hours caused little stir. After a brief discussion the board voted the gym policy.

After the girls' regular season ends the gym will be divided (there is a sliding wall) and the varsity will use half during the prime hours and the girls the remainder until after the girls are eliminated from the tournament.

But the use of the gyms, primarily Intermediate and Campbell Elementary, was not as easily decided. In fact, it is not settled yet.

The problem is setting the dates for groups with activities that need a long lead time... shows and similar events... and not have any individual come in and tie up the gym for a number of nights during the winter for use by a comparatively small group of persons. Supt. Donald Crouse said that he had one group that wanted the Intermediate gym a day a week for use by just 10 persons and was willing to pay the charge for the night to keep it for the chosen 10.

Then, too, there are several groups such as the Cub Scouts that use the gym in the winter on a regular basis and a board guideline should cover this, members feel.

Another phase of the problem popped up when a teacher asked for use of a school room to give private lessons on the clarinet. Profit will go to the teacher.

The school does allow tap dance lessons at the school where the teacher makes money... but dance instruction is not offered at the school while instrument instruction is.

It may be that this will be the last year that tap lessons are allowed, but nothing is definite. Nothing has been decided.

It will undoubtedly be a topic on the board's agenda in future months.

ATHLETIC SEASONS

Athletic Director Robert Stickle appeared before the board to get board approval of the athletic season. Head coach Ron Nurnberger had asked for basketball practice for non-football players to start Oct. 27. The board nixed this request and set Monday, Nov. 3, for the start of basketball practice. The final football game is slated Nov. 7.

19 attend class on club organization

Nineteen participants representing nine different organizations participated in a class, "How to Get Greater Member Participation in Organizations", Oct. 9, at the First Presbyterian Church in Vassar.

Extension Specialist in Community Resource Development, Dr. Manfred Thullen, taught this session and said different people participate in different ways, for different reasons and in different places. Different people have different likes and dislikes, different abilities and different ways of looking at things.

They will thus participate in different ways, especially if given the opportunity to do so. If the organization, however, doesn't provide enough different opportunities for participation, then participation will tend to become low, unless all the members have the same likes and dislikes.

This program was sponsored by the Family Living Education of the Cooperative Extension Service in conjunction with the First Presbyterian Church and the Grace Lutheran Church of Vassar. Committee members were Extension Home Economist Aliene Mills, Rev. and Mrs. John Becker and Mrs. Denny Daniels from respective churches.

Caro and Laker girls bow to Hawk cagers

CINDY PETERS goes in for a lay-up for Cass City as the girls hammered out an easy victory over the Lakers last week.

Cass City High School's distaff Hawks racked up two more wins this past week, knocking off Caro 55-45 at Caro Monday night and defeating Lakers 50-40 last Wednesday, Oct. 8.

In Monday's contest, the Hawks jumped out to a 21-10 lead at the end of the first quarter and never lost the lead in spite of being outscored 10-3 in the final quarter.

Top scorers for the Hawks were Elaine Stoutenburg with 15 points and Beth Erla with 14. Patti Goslin added eight points.

For Caro, it was a one-girl show, with Julie Hyde scoring 25 points, over half of the total team production. Jill White added another 16.

The Hawks hoped the momentum of the win would carry into Wednesday night's contest against unbeaten Frankemuth which sports a 10-0 record. At press time, Cass City and Vassar were tied for second in league play with identical 4-1 records. An ankle injury to Lisa Zimba will undoubtedly hurt us, Coach Kelly Maharg said.

She said the squad shot 32 per cent from the floor in the contest, still a little below par.

LAKER GAME

The Hawks got off to a roaring start against Lakers last Wednesday night, taking a 38-24 lead into the locker room at half-time.

The second half was another story, as the squad fell apart, able to score only 12 points. Lakers, however, were just as cold, notching only 16 points and allowing the Hawks to win 50-40.

Lisa Zimba topped Cass City scoring with 17 points, followed by Beth Erla with nine.

Elaine Stoutenburg and Vickie Lapp each added eight points.

The team shot 44 per cent from the floor during the first half.

The Face of Faith

Sometimes a face is striking. It isn't the sort of face you're accustomed to. It's a face you wouldn't have expected to see. But you have seen it! That's why you call it striking.

The Face of Faith is like that. The eyes seem lifted toward the hills, to a source of strength. The lips are firm with a courage that rests neither on prowess nor weapon. The countenance shines with a joyous light... a light that seems to reflect some mystic Sun though the world around is cast in shadow and gloom.

I see the Face of Faith each Sunday... the face of a child... perhaps your child!

I am her Sunday School teacher... and the joyous light of that striking face inspires me to seek more faithfully in the worship and work of my Church the help of God.

You are her parents. How that confident, expectant radiance must inspire you!

Hawks still looking for offensive punch

Caro wins tight defensive fray—it's Bad Axe next

CHUCK BLISS goes up in heavy traffic for this pass that netted a short gain as Caro defeated Cass City last week, 7-0.

Cass City came within 10 seconds of competing in the first tie-breaker football game in the school's history last Friday. But hopes for a tie went glimmering when Dan Putnam rammed over from six yards out for the only score in a tight defensive game at Caro High School.

It was, Coach Roland Pakonen said, a typical Cass City-Caro game. Hard hitting, physical football was the rule all night.

And Pakonen was proud of his team's defense. They knuckled down time after time when Caro started a march to hold the Tigers in check and keep the game in doubt until the final seconds.

If the defense can continue to perform like it did against the Tigers, Cass City should rack up its third win of the year this Friday.

Visiting Cass City Recreational Park will be the Hatchets from Bad Axe. The Huron City eleven has only one win this year, a narrow decision over the Lakers, and if form is followed the Hawks should rack up their third win of the year.

What Pakonen's charges must guard against is a letdown after the tough Tiger game last week.

A few lapses by the defense against the Hatchets could prove fatal for the Hawks.

For in games this year, the Cass City offense hasn't been all that great. In fact, it appears to be about as weak as any in recent years.

Against the Tigers, Cass City amassed a total of only 95 yards.

Pakonen also said that the specialty teams failed to play as well as they can against the Tigers.

It wasn't because the Hawks didn't have any chances that they bowed to Caro. The story of the game for the Hawks was one of blown opportunities.

In the first half, Cass City staged a march and kept rolling down field until it reached the Tiger 15, only to be stopped.

Later in the game another drive went deep into Tiger country before coming up short of paydirt.

Meanwhile, Cass City's kicking game kept Caro in poor field position for much of the game.

Caro became untracked midway through the final quarter and started pounding through the Hawk middle in a sustained drive.

But it looked as if the Tiger drive had fizzled, too. With less than 3½ minutes left to play, Caro moved to the 18 and fumbled.

It appeared as if the Hawks would have little trouble running three plays into the line and holding on until the final whistle.

But on the very first play Cass City fumbled and Caro recovered.

Given a second chance, the Tigers knew what to do with it. They charged down to the six from where Dan Putnam bulled over for the only touchdown of the game.

Putnam booted the extra point, but that was just icing on the cake. The last second TD had already decided the issue.

Cass City's most successful play was a quarterback keep on which Tom Smentek gained 31 yards in six tries.

Defensively, Ron Sieradzki, playing his first game of the year, made several key tackles for Cass City. Ken Lowe made up for a poor night offensively by leading the team in solo tackles with nine, to go with two assists. Reliable Guy Howard was credited with eight tackles and seven assists.

TUESDAY EVENING the Haags of rural Cass City were in the right place at the right time. The right place was Foot Dam on the Au Sable River near Oscoda. These Chinook salmon weighed in between 25 and 30 pounds each. From left: Bob Hunt, Ron Haag, Mrs. Ron Haag, Brian Haag.

JV's battle to 14-all deadlock

It was a hard hitting football game, the kind that fans are used to seeing when

Caro and Cass City get together on the varsity level and often on the Junior Varsity level. Last Thursday the Caro and Cass City JV's hammered each other up and down the field in a 14-14 tie at Cass City Recreational Park.

All the scoring took place in the first half. Caro scored first on a fake punt from midfield and missed the try for point.

Cass City got that one back in the next series as Rich Hollis picked up oceans of yardage through the center behind key blocks by Gary Warju, Ross Ridenour and the rest of the Hawk forward wall.

With a first and four, Clarke Haire ran around end for the score. Haire's point after touchdown try was missed.

Using its air arm to good advantage, the Tigers moved down the field to go ahead again and when the extra point play netted two more points, things looked bleak for Cass City.

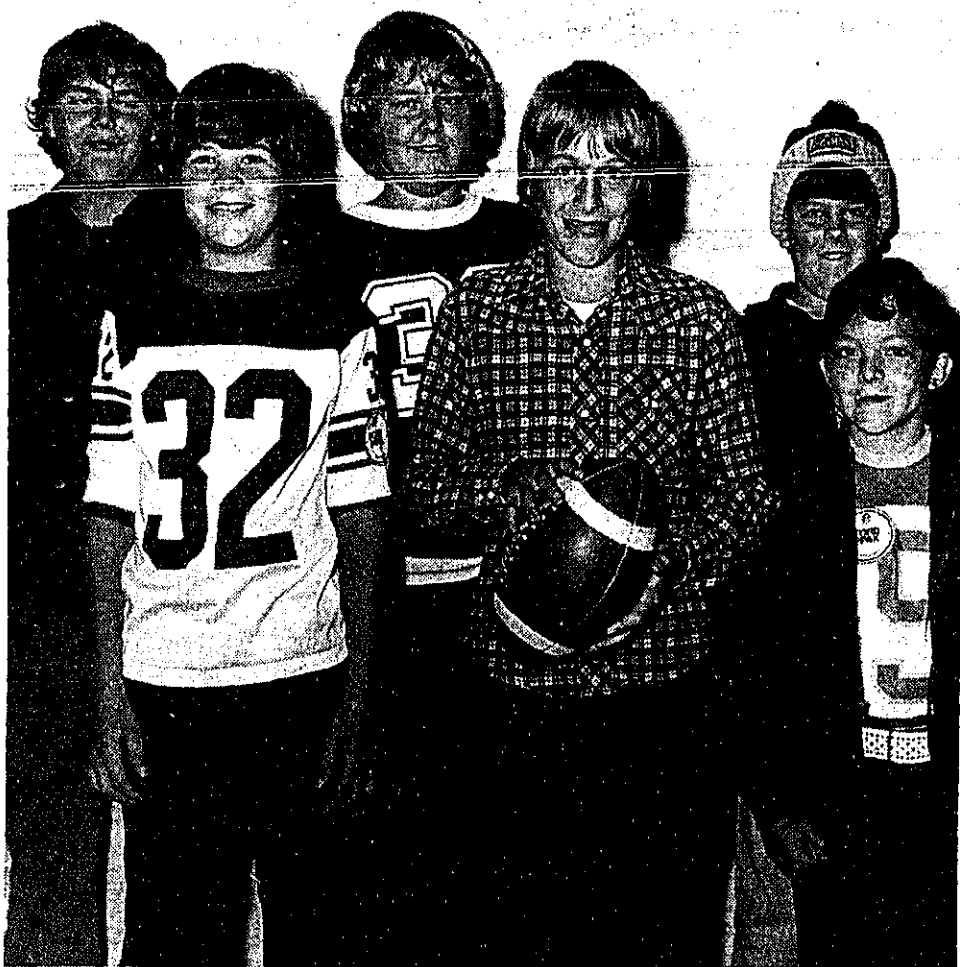

With eight seconds left in the first half, Haire hit Jeff Hartel with a pass from his halfback position and Hartel, a step behind the secondary, ran to pay dirt.

Haire went around end for the extra points to tie the game.

Cass City threatened once in the second half when the team moved to the 18 of Caro with a first down, but a fumble stopped the drive. Caro remains on top of the league with only the tie to mar its record. Cass City is now 2-1-1 for the season.

UP AND UP

In today's inflated times all our taxes are staggering, but they never go down.

ONE OF THE LOCAL punt, pass and kick competition winners qualified for the regionals Saturday in district competition at Caro. He was Bryan Beecher, with 132 points in the eight-year-old group.

The winners and their age group are: Mike Miracle, 13; John Meininger, 9; Randy Stine, 12; Barry Lapp, 11; Stewart Batts, 10, and Beecher, 8.

New Salem UM choir room living tribute to Mrs. Ricker

REV. KELLEY prepares to open the doors to the new choir room facility at Salem UM church.

Because the late Lillian Ricker loved music, Salem United Methodist Church of Cass City is 960 square feet larger today. And because of her generosity, the church's choir can practice in brand new surroundings.

Work is nearly complete on a 16 by 30-foot addition to the east end of the church that will serve as a combination choir room and additional Sunday school space. When the structure is formally dedicated, probably sometime next spring, it will mark the completion of the project begun nearly a year ago this month.

According to Rev. Eldred Kelley, pastor of the church, the addition answers a number of needs.

"First of all, we needed extra choir room because our existing room was too small," Mr. Kelley said. "Our Sunday School was also growing and we were just about running out of space. And we were also concerned about the steep steps at all the entrances to the church."

The new addition includes enclosed stairs and a large cloakroom area to help ease winter time problems.

About a year ago, he said, plans were drawn and construction began last May. Builder Fay McComb did the major construction work on the addition, with heating and wiring completed by Don Finkbeiner and Jim Baker, respectively.

The addition, when completed, is expected to cost approximately $21,000.

Mr. Kelley explained that when Mrs. Ricker died, she willed the church the entire amount needed to build the structure.

"She believed in music and in church choirs," he said. "She expressed her desire in her life to have a new choir room constructed here."

Now the job is nearly completed. Included in the choir room will be a piano, also purchased with funds from the bequest. It's expected the fully-carpeted choir room will easily accommodate the 22-member choir, presently under the direction of Sandy Walter.

The junior choir, under the direction of Mrs. Iris Tuckey, is also expected to take advantage of the new surroundings.

The interior is finished in dark, early-American paneling and includes two period chandeliers suspended in the carpeted stairwell.

Downstairs, where the Sunday School room is located, work has not yet been completed. Carpeting and finish work are still needed, but are expected to be done by next spring's dedication.

Exterior painting is also still needed, but must be done next spring to give the concrete time to cure.

The project was supervised by Eldon Stoutenburg, chairman of the building committee. Stoutenburg and Grant Ball also worked improving the parking area with new drains. More drains are expected next summer, along with completing landscaping.

Originally, costs for the addition were placed at about $16,000, but problems in the electrical system, along with parking lot improvements, forced a substantial increase in the final figure.

The new structure will ease the pressures of a growing choir and Sunday School program. It will also stand as a memorial to Lillian Ricker and her love for music.

At least, that's the way Rev. Eldred Kelley and the Salem congregation see it.

It's cider time

The lines at one southeast Michigan area mill stretched nearly a city block-two and three abreast-one recent week end.

It's cider time, and Michigan fans of the tangy drink are ready.

The Michigan Apple Committee, made up of many of the state's apple growers, predicts more than 17 million bushels of apples will be produced in the state this season.

meeting, if there's no reason why you're going into executive session, you'll have to carry me out."

Erickson replied that some discussions ought not to be made public, especially when they deal with personalities. He defended the board's right to meet in secret, adding that generally nothing is discussed that could not be discussed openly.

MILLAGE

The board, in a recent special session, fixed millage at 26.78 mills, with 15.75 voted operational, 9.25 allocated and 1.78 debt retirement.

Erickson said the new year's budget will probably come up for discussion at the November meeting. He also reported that teacher contract negotiations are "progressing satisfactorily."

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, the board agreed to pay $10,050 rent for the St. Agatha building this school year.

The rent will be paid in two installments of $5025 each. Also included in the agreement is payment of 50 per cent of future heating cost increases.

The rent figure represents a $1,100 increase from last year.

The board deferred action on the purchase of new typewriters for classroom work and approved paying utility bills without formal board approval to eliminate late charges. To date, the school has accumulated over $100 in late charges from Consumers Power Co. for gas.

Trustees okayed a request from Gagetown Principal William Britt to move some playground equipment from Owendale to Gagetown.

It also approved hiring Michael Drier as a custodian under the CETA program.

Erickson informed the board that tuition for secondary students was officially set at $70, with no charge for elementary tuition students.

He also told the board formal application for accreditation had been sent to the University of Michigan.

It was announced that a recognition dinner for former board member Eldon Dietzel will be held in the near future.

Appointment of a new baseball coach was tabled until the next meeting.

term, after track rebuilding restores operating efficiencies and shippers' confidence, a department spokesman said.

He said a $9,875,000 state contribution from a $30 million loan of State Trunkline funds will be used to secure additional federal matching monies for a planned $24,836,000 rail improvement program.

Grand Trunk officials and local groups pushing to continue rail service have met several times since last August, when State Highway officials first hinted that a subsidy program was in the wind.

Along with the subsidy, new grain elevator towers being erected in Cass City and Pigeon have put pressure on Grand Trunk to reconsider closing down the line, informed sources said.

In the first six months of the plan a total of $6,636,235 will be pumped into revitalizing the affected lines, department officials said.

Revenue sharing cutoff would cripple Cass City budget.

An end to federal revenue sharing funds would put a severe crimp in Cass City's general fund budget and could lead to higher local property taxes to maintain the present level of municipal services.

That's the assessment of village officials regarding revenue sharing which is scheduled to expire at the end of this fiscal year, next June 30.

According to Village President Lambert Althaver, current federal revenue sharing accounts for about 10 per cent of the total village budget. Without it, cutbacks would be mandatory.

Since the program began in January, 1972, Cass City has received $96,614 in federal revenue sharing monies, $41,750 in the last entitlement period alone.

Of that total, the last entitlement of $41,750 has gone entirely into the police department, and accounts for over half the annual budget of the department.

Funds have gone to purchase a new police car and more sophisticated radio equipment, along with helping the department meet its regular financial obligations.

Since 1972, another $35,431 has gone for new village equipment, including a grader, a truck, a new tractor and moving equipment.

Another $14,633 has been spent toward rebuilding village streets with curb, gutter and blacktop. Finally, $4,800 has been donated to Rawson Memorial Library.

What would happen if revenue sharing isn't renewed? According to Althaver, the effects would be profound.

"Since most of it has been used primarily for public safety and public transportation, a loss of the funds would have a serious effect," he said. "It would require us to cut services or seek replacement revenues from some other source."

"Some other source" would probably mean a hike in property taxes. Based on current State Equalized Valuation of the village, that could amount to better than four mills in property taxes. Currently the village levies 13 mills.

Althaver said that in spite of a projected increase in state shared revenues from gas and weight taxes and sales taxes, it wouldn't begin to offset a loss in federal funding.

"Frankly, with the state decline as it is, we're not planning on any increase in state shared revenues," he said.

He said he has personally contacted U.S. Rep. J. Bob Traxler (D-Bay City) and U.S. Senators Philip Hart and Robert Griffin, urging that they vote to extend the program at its present level.

"I think the program has proven to be a success," Althaver said. "I think it's good that this money has been returned to the local communities to use, because they have precious little to say where their dollars are spent when they get to Washington. "We definitely will have to come to grips with revenue sharing and the effect losing it would have on Cass City," he said.

If federal revenue sharing is lost, Althaver said the two programs that will probably feel the pinch the most are streets and park improvements.

"It would probably stop anything but maintaining our streets as they are," he said. "Things such as grading, drainage and blacktop would all have to be curtailed sharply."

He said reducing police expenditures, wastewater treatment or water system expenditures would be next to impossible.

Althaver pointed out that while property taxes are the biggest single source of revenue to the village, they account for less than half the final total of around $400,000. He said property tax collections amount to around $150,000 per year.

"My question is if federal revenue sharing is allowed to expire, what will the government do with the dollars they don't give back to the local communities anymore," Althaver said.

Cass City's experience with the program has generally been good, with the exception of a computer foul-up in Washington that short-changed village coffers by over $32,000 during late 1973 and early 1974.

Since that time, the amount held back has been repaid to the village, Althaver said.

ELKLAND TOWNSHIP

Elkland township has received a little over $42,000 in federal revenue sharing funds in the three years of the act, according to records of township Clerk Ferris Ware.

The bulk of the funding has gone into road maintenance, $27,000, funneled through the Tuscola County Road Commission.

Another $7,200 has gone to Rawson Memorial Library with another $6,300 going toward the Cass City landfill operations.

Officials said that without the funding, money for road maintenance might be able to come from the general fund for the first year, but beyond that, millage for road improvements would have to be levied if road construction were to continue.

Michigan Mirror

New strike plan told

School bells rang a while back throughout Michigan, but the legislative clash over teacher contract disputes threatens to continue.

Gov. William Milliken earlier this year vetoed a school strike bill legalizing teacher strikes of up to four weeks.

But there were indications his office was working on an alternative proposal to be submitted when lawmakers returned to Lansing after a summer break.

Now, House Republican Leader Dennis O. Cawthorne of Manistee—who says he'll be a candidate for the GOP nomination of a U.S. Senate seat if he can come up with enough cash to finance his campaign—is offering "a new plan for settling teacher contract disputes."

It's called "an 'elective' arbitration plan," and would provide school districts with an option of participating in an arbitration system.

If a school board did not vote to participate, teachers in the district would be given the legal right to strike.

A negotiations impasse in a school district belonging to the arbitration system would be followed by a mandatory six-month cooling-off period. During those six months, teachers would work under their old contract while negotiations continued—but any new contract negotiated during that time would be retroactive to the beginning of the school year.

No contract at the end of six months could result in an order for binding arbitration. "The root problem of teacher strikes will not go away," Cawthorne says. "Although we have had fewer teacher strikes this year than at any time since 1966, the legislature must not bury its head in the sand and assume that conditions will continue to remain stable."

So-called "vanity plates," license plates sporting the name or special message of the driver, soon will be appearing on thousands more cars in Michigan than ever before.

The state's new bicentennial license plates—red-white-and-blue ones, of course—go on sale Nov. 17.

Shortly after that, officials will begin sending out an estimated 15,500 personalized plates ordered earlier this year by motorists willing to spend a little more than normal for their license plates.

That total of personalized plates more than triples the number of personalized plates sold last year, according to Secretary of State Richard H. Austin.

Meals program faces crunch

Cass City's Meals on Wheels program has weathered the initial shock of a federal fund cut-off, but it's not out of the woods yet, backers said this week.

The program, which feeds 13 needy persons in Cass City every other day and two others every day, is in danger of coming to an end unless additional funding is found, according to officials at the Human Development Commission in Caro which originally sponsored the program.

Meals on Wheels got off the ground last February with a $10,000 grant from the Community Services Administration. Officials say the program has been a success but can't continue unless private funding is found.

HDC officials plan to contact Cass City businesses in order to solicit contributions to keep the program afloat. According to Karen Kopka, HDC outreach worker, it cost about $300 per month to operate the Cass City program. She said in addition, ministers of Cass City churches road wear they may cause.

The Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation warns snow and ice-wary motorists to steer clear of tires equipped with the conventional tungsten carbide studs. They're illegal for use in this state, as of last April 1.

"We are aware of only one type of stud that currently meets Michigan's restriction," says John P. Woodford, department director. "That one type is the so-called 'soft stud' which is made of tungsten carbide fragments in soft metal matrix."

If it's mounted in a radial-ply tire, that soft stud will meet Michigan's restriction, Woodford says. That's because radial-ply tires scrub the pavement less than bias-ply tires, and therefore cause less pavement wear.

The Michigan regulations allow studs only if they wear road pavements at no more than 25 per cent of the rate of a standard, conventional studded tire.

And even those studs meeting the restriction are permitted only from Nov. 15 to April 1 in much of the state.

They're permitted from Oct. 1 to May 1 north of the southern boundaries of counties extending from Manistee county on Lake Michigan east through Isosco county on Lake Huron, including the Upper Peninsula.

3 injured in 2-car crash Saturday near Ubly

Three persons were injured in a two-car crash that took place on M-19, two-and-a-half miles north of Ubly, early Saturday morning.

Huron County Sheriff's deputies identified the injured as Florian Joseph Particka, 55, driver of one of the autos, Virgil P. Briolat, 19, Ubly, driver of the second auto, and Marvin N. Pichla, 19, Bad Axe, a passenger in the Briolat auto.

Police said the Particka vehicle was headed south on M-19 when it was struck from the rear by the Briolat auto. Briolat told officers he was attempting to pass another vehicle and lost control of his car.

Briolat was ticketed for careless driving.

The three were treated for cuts and bruises at Huron Memorial Hospital. The accident took place at 1:20 a.m.

Several other property damage accidents were reported to area police this past week. The most serious took place Saturday morning when a car driven by Danny James Zyrowski, 20, of English Road, Kingston, went out of control and struck a ditch and driveway culvert on M-46, two and a half miles east of Kingston.

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies who investigated said Zyrowski was westbound on M-46 when he apparently fell asleep at the wheel, crossed the centerline and landed in a ditch on the south side of the road, striking a culvert.

He was treated for cuts, bruises and abrasions at Marlette Community Hospital. The accident took place at 4:00 a.m.

Two persons escaped serious injury when their cars collided at the intersection of Seeger and Pine Streets Thursday afternoon.

Police said a car driven by Debra Lisa Hendrick, 16, of 6431 Houghton St., was westbound on Pine and had stopped for the intersection. Officers said she then drove across Seeger Street into the path of a southbound car driven by Nancy Ann Greenwood, 19, of 5800 River Rd., Cass City.

The force of the collision spun the Hendrick auto around, police said.

No ticket was issued. The accident took place at 1:45 p.m.

Two persons were uninjured when a car collided with a tractor-bean puller on M-81 at Hurds Corner Road, six miles west of Cass City.

Caro State Police said a car driven by Dorothy Jean Seeley, 46, of Schwegler Road, Cass City, was eastbound when it struck the farm equipment headed east on the shoulder of the road and driven by Wayne Brinkman, 37, of Caro.

Neither driver was injured, but both were ticketed. Brinkman was cited for a violation of width restrictions, while Ms. Seeley was cited for driving with an expired operator's license.

Two drivers escaped injury in a Monday accident at the intersection of River and Kingsbury Streets in Kingston.

Sheriff's deputies identified the drivers as Mary Jane Briggs, 28, of Saginaw and Dawn Elaine Wiswell, 19, of Sandusky.

Police said Ms. Briggs was westbound on Kingsbury Street and had stopped at the intersection. She told officers she saw the Wiswell vehicle signal for a turn and pulled into the intersection when she was struck.

Ms. Wiswell told officers she had planned to turn but an infant in her car fell and as she reached to aid the child lost control of the car.

No ticket was issued. The accident took place at 4:00 p.m.

Work, interest in today help keep Mrs. Emma Decker young at 90

Even though Mrs. Steve (Emma) Decker of 6658 Houghton St. will mark her 90th birthday Sunday, don't look for her to slow down very much. "Work, lots of work, has been a large part of those 90 years and she isn't about to slow down."

"Sure, I could sit down and say I can't do this and I can't do that," Mrs. Decker said as she surveyed the scene through the dining room window of her spacious home, "but that's no good. If I did, I'd be dead."

Mrs. Decker is proud of the fact that she still does everything around her house.

She handles all her house-keeping chores including washing and ironing. She hasn't slowed down much in the kitchen either. Mrs. Decker still bakes bread regularly and entertains guests frequently for dinner.

"When my daughter comes, I let her do most of it," Mrs. Decker laughed.

She has three sons and two daughters who regularly check on her. They include Walter and Harold Nadiger, sons by her first marriage, Jerry Decker, Mrs. Charles Bond and Mrs. Thelma Jackson.

But there generally isn't much for them to do. Mrs. Decker proudly says she wants to take care of herself and does an excellent job of it.

Her two-story home is kept immaculate, and she climbs stairs to the second floor with little difficulty.

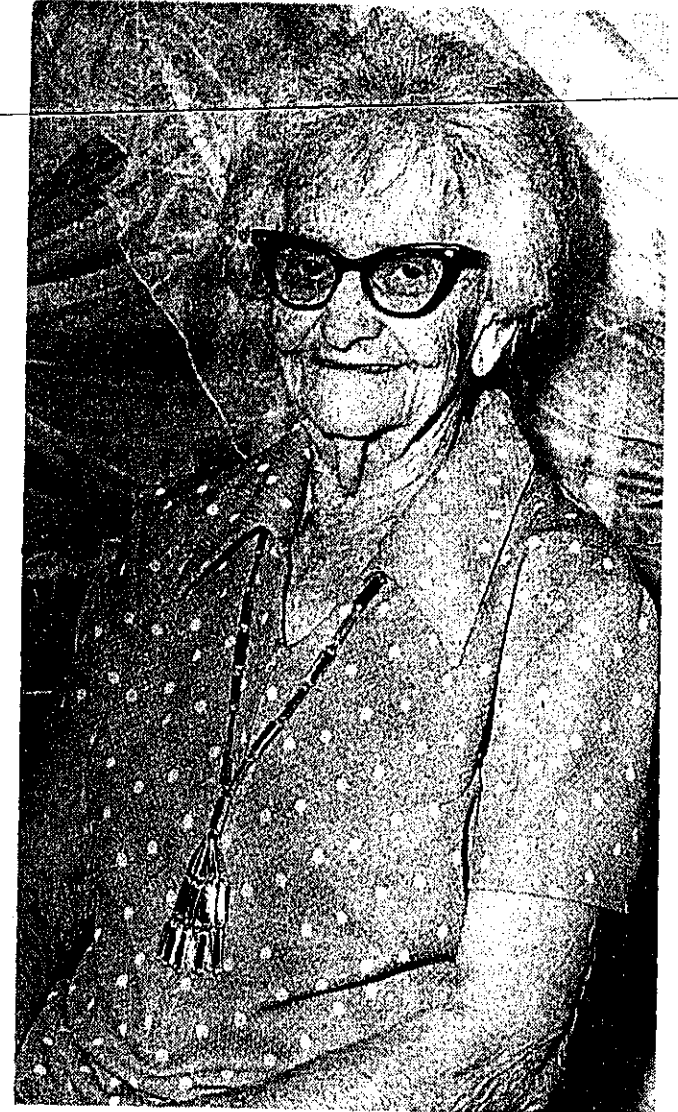

At 90, though, she isn't anxious to pine for those "good old days", because they weren't really all that good, she says. Today is better as far as she sees it. People are just as friendly and the work isn't as hard.

She was born Oct. 19, 1885, in Pigeon and has lived in the Cass City area most of her life. She was a farmer's wife and spent most of her life on a farm in Greenleaf township about seven miles northeast of Cass City.

Times have really changed, she said. "I can remember when my brother got his first car—a Ford," she recalled. "It was in Pigeon and I remember people saying he's crazy, getting that car. It was really something."

She also recalls that in those days, people had to work for their entertainment. "I remember some of those dances we went to. We'd walk three or four miles to get to one and then walk home. Those were some times."

Yet she refuses to dwell on the past. Today is much more interesting. Aside from a touch of arthritis, her health

Burning, landfill meet set

Local government officials hope to get some definite answers from Department of Natural Resources personnel regarding the future of the Cass City landfill and trash burning by businesses at a meeting set for Tuesday, Oct. 21, at 8:00 p.m. at the fire hall.

Village Supt. Lou LaPonsie said the meeting will include Cass City Village Council, representatives from Elkland, Novesta and Ellington townships who use the landfill, along with members of the County Planning Commission, the Board of Commissioners and other interested parties.

The meeting will be open to interested citizens, LaPonsie said.

The session comes on the heels of new pressures by the DNR to have all commercial and industrial burning banned in the village.

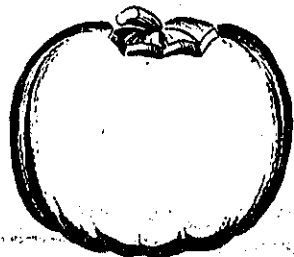

Local officials also want to question DNR representatives regarding regulations for operating the landfill and how soon Tuscola county will be forced to provide a county-wide site.

Unemployment keeps kids studying Economic problems, which meant a tight job market for Michigan this past year, may have put more people in the classroom.

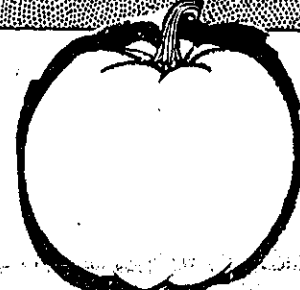

That is the conclusion drawn by Wayne State University, which posted a new all-time high in student credit hours for the 1975-76 academic year.

WSU officials say 1,262,334 credit hours were taught during the year—topping the previous record year (1971-72) by well over 5,000 hours.

AROUND THE FARM
Farm tax relief plan can work
By William Bortel

We have received several inquiries during the last few weeks regarding the Farm-land and Open Space Preservation Act 116. This is an opportunity for farmers to put their land into a farm land preservation program and also acts as a tax relief.

It has been calculated that if all farmers had put their farm land into the program during the last five years, they would have reserved over 50 per cent of their property tax in a tax rebate. You can remember one thing and that is you will never have to pay more than seven per cent of your household income in property taxes.

This would be especially a good program for a young farmer to hedge against risk. The farmer would know that he would never have to pay over seven per cent of his household income in property tax no matter how poor a farming year he has had.

Let's use an example. Say that Mr. Farmer farms 500 acres and nets $10,000. The taxes are $800. The farmer would receive a rebate of $100 since seven per cent of $10,000 is $700 and the difference is the $100. But suppose the farmer had a failure and only netted $2,000. The rebate would be $600 or the difference between seven per cent of $2,000 and the $800 tax.

There are one or two shortcomings of the program according to some folks. The first one is a state tax accessor will appraise your farm. However, if your farm is appraised higher, you will get the additional taxes returned in rebate if your taxes are over 7 per cent of your household income. Also, some folks do not like tying up their farm land for ten years. If you are going to farm this should make no difference. If you are in the speculative market of buying and selling, this is not the program for you. It is a farm land preservation program.

If you are interested in signing up for this new tax relief farm preservation program, pick up a form from your township clerk.

LWML rally at Kilmanagh

More than 100 women from 15 Thumb congregations of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod are expected to attend the fall rally of the Lutheran Women's Missionary League at St. John's Church, Kilmanagh, Tuesday, Oct. 21, beginning at 9:30 a.m.

The Rev. Robert Weller, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church in Midland, will address the group following the luncheon. Though handicapped by blindness, Pastor Weller carries on a full ministry in the Midland church.

The host pastor, the Rev. Henry Brinker, will conduct the opening service and the Rev. Dennis Glander, zone counselor, will have the closing devotions. A Bible study, business meeting and election of officers are included in the program.

Women's Council meets Oct. 6

St. Pancratius Women's Council was opened with a Rosary led by Caroline Garety Oct. 6 at 7:30 p.m.

The program for the month was on "Breast Cancer". Dr. Y. Kim and Mrs. Helen Lorentzen were guest speakers.

Refreshments were provided by chairperson Elsie Hahn, Loretta Seeley, Iris Kappen and Marge Bliss.

Legion Auxiliary meets Monday

Twenty-one were present Monday evening when the American Legion Auxiliary met at the Cultural Center. Several guests were included in the group.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Elgene Keller and Mrs. Loraine Donnelly.

During the business meeting, the president, Mrs. Keller, reported that the membership quota for the coming year is 45. Twenty-nine memberships have been renewed. Mrs. Keller also announced the Seventh District meeting to be held Sunday, Oct. 19, at Smiths Creek.

A "white elephant" sale at the close of the business meeting netted $50.70 for the treasury.

Door prize for the evening went to Mrs. Cass Bartnik.

Some folks return to religion after trying everything else.

Unemployment, inflation, energy top voter concerns—Traxler

Develop alternate energy resources... reduce unemployment... control inflation... control crime.

These are the top problems for residents of Michigan's Eighth District, according to the results of U.S. Rep. Bob Traxler's 1975 questionnaire.

In Tuscola county, 58 per cent cited energy, unemployment, crime and inflation as their top problems.

In other questions on energy problems, Eighth District residents feel very strongly that controls should be kept on the price of domestic oil and are strongly in favor of freezing the present automobile air pollution standards for a four-year period.

In Tuscola, 75 per cent are opposed to decontrol and 25 per cent favor it.

Seventy-eight per cent said they favor freezing the present auto air pollution standards for four years, while only 22 per cent favored new tougher standards.

In Tuscola, 79 per cent favor the freeze and 21 per cent are opposed.

In a question related to lifting the lid on domestic oil prices, 67 per cent said the U.S. should tax the excess profits of American oil companies, 12 per cent said no limits should be set on oil firms' profits so that they can develop new energy resources, another 12 per cent said the oil industry should be nationalized, (the government should own and operate the oil industry) and 9 per cent were undecided.

In Tuscola, 70 per cent favor taxing excess profits, and the remaining 30 per cent were equally divided between no limits, nationalization and the undecided categories.

Eighth District residents are highly opposed to any ban on the ownership of all handguns. Sixty-five per cent are opposed to a proposed federal law banning handguns, while 35 per cent favor outlawing all handguns.

In Tuscola, 73 per cent oppose a ban on handguns, while 27 per cent favor a ban.

In Tuscola, 52 per cent oppose national health insurance and 48 per cent favor it.

Respondents also gave a strong mandate to Congress to continue to take a greater role in foreign policy decisions and to reducing parts of the Defense budget and using the money for solving domestic economic problems.

Seventy-five per cent said Congress should play a greater role in making foreign policy decisions, while 25 per cent said no.

In Tuscola, 77 per cent want Congress to take a greater role, and 23 per cent are opposed.

Residents were almost equally divided on questions of using federal highway taxes for upgrading railroads and improving mass transit and partial public financing for Congressional and Senatorial election campaigns as a way to put stricter limits on private political contributions.

Fifty per cent favor using U.S. highway tax revenues to upgrade the nation's railroads, while 50 per cent were opposed.

In Tuscola, 55 per cent favor using highway revenues for railroads and 45 per cent are opposed.

And 51 per cent favored partial public financing of Congressional and Senatorial election campaigns, while 49 per cent were opposed.

In Tuscola, 54 per cent oppose the campaign financing plan and 46 per cent favor it.

The questionnaire results were compiled by Traxler's staff and several interns from Washington area universities.

SUPPOSE SPRING IS A LITTLE LATE NEXT YEAR?

Spring is too short a season as it is. So plan your fertilizer needs with Sohigro now, and apply your nitrogen, phosphate and potash this fall. It's a good time to include anhydrous ammonia, too.

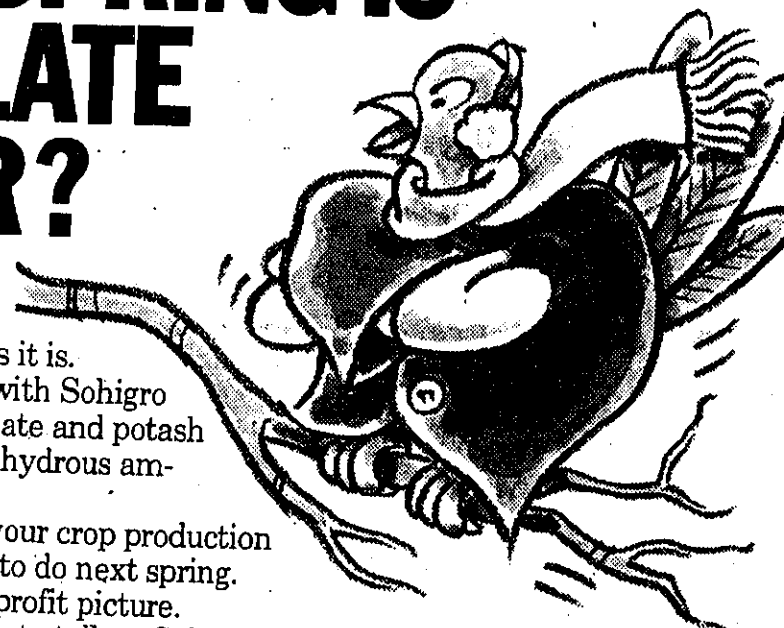

If you do the groundwork on your crop production plans now, you'll have that much less to do next spring. And chances are, you'll improve your profit picture.

Isn't this as good a time as any to talk to Sohigro? After all, you know what they say about the early bird.

Time change

set Oct. 26

Crack the rooster, the baby, the cows and your clocks back an hour Sunday, Oct. 26.
That's when daylight saving time ends.

The twice-a-year ritual has been greeted by golfers and cursed by dairymen since the state went on the schedule in 1973. "Fast" time officially ends at 2:00 a.m. Sunday.

While Michigan has observed the custom, it hasn't always been in step with the rest of the nation. Last spring, when the rest of the nation had already moved its clocks ahead Michigan lagged behind until the last week end in April.

This fall, the entire country will switch at the same time.

Safety of cosmetics studied

Ann Ross - Extension Agent

The first step has been taken toward assuring consumers that the cosmetic products they use are safe, according to Ann Ross, Thumb Extension Home Economist.

In a cooperative study, the Food and Drug Administration and the American Academy of Dermatology evaluated cosmetic-related injuries and reactions among 36,000 cosmetic users. There were 10,000 households involved in the study. All adverse reactions reported by participants were evaluated by dermatologists.

The 10 product groups with the highest rate of reported and verified adverse cosmetic reactions were depilatories (chemical hair removers), deodorants and antiperspirants, moisturizers and lotions, bubble baths and oils, hairsprays and lacquers, mascaras and eye creams, hair colorings and dye lighteners, facial skin creams and cleansers and nail polishes.

The study suggests that consumers thinking of using these products should be aware of possible adverse reactions. Read all labels carefully and use products sparingly at first to test possible reactions.

Assuming too much, too often, usually means many mistakes.

G. McClorey services held Monday

Funeral services were held Monday for Glenn R. McClorey, 71, a lifelong Cass City resident, who died Thursday, Oct. 9, at Hills and Dales General Hospital following a long illness.

He was born Feb. 28, 1904, in Greenleaf Township, son of the late Daniel and Josephine Shagena McClorey.

He married Miss Marion Crawford, Dec. 13, 1927, in Sheridan township. After their marriage, they made their home in the Cass City area.

He was a member of St. Pancratius Catholic Church and a past board member of the Parish Council. He was a member of the Caro Council No. 3224 of the Knights of Columbus and was a charter member of the board of directors of the American Association of Retired Persons, Cass City chapter.

He is survived by his widow; two daughters, Mrs. Dale (Mary) Damm and Mrs. George (Beverly) Frank, both of Cass City; three sons, Frederick of Vassar, Richard and Larry, both of Cass City; one sister, Mrs. Beatrice Cellner of Nankin, Tenn.; and 18 grandchildren. Two sisters preceded him in death.

A rosary was recited Sunday evening at Little's Funeral Home under the auspices of Caro Council No. 3224, Knights of Columbus.

A funeral mass was held Monday from St. Pancratius Catholic Church with Rev. Fr. Carl Mayes officiating. Burial was in Elkland cemetery.

BETTER HEALTH

Alcoholics Anonymous

BY DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

The manifest failures of conventional medical and psychiatric treatment of alcoholism stands in sharp contrast to the stunning effectiveness of such "amateur" programs as Alcoholics Anonymous.

If any conventional medical or psychiatric program confronting a problem comparable to alcoholism could claim the 75 per cent cure rate that is fairly standard with Alcoholics Anonymous, there would almost certainly be serious nominations for a Nobel prize for its promulgators.

Solemn designation by official medical spokesmen of alcoholism as a "disease" rather than a personal behavior aberration as it had heretofore been generally held to be, has stirred perhaps the conscience of physicians who are often reluctant to deal with what used to be called "drunks." But the new designation has not supplied an effective means of treating the "disease."

Which is not to say that there are not thousands of alcoholics seeing their doctors. They are, however, in most cases, not being treated for alcoholism. They are much more likely to be blandly labeled as gastritis (inflammation of the stomach), chronic bloody diarrhea, cirrhosis of the liver, yellow jaundice, peripheral neuritis, or any of a number of other physical disorders that are caused by the abuse of alcohol, but are more "respectable" ailments when the causal agent is left unremarked.

Sometimes the ravages of alcohol on vital organs of the body are so devastating and so deadly that an occasional alcoholic survivor of a few weeks in an intensive care unit is converted to sobriety by the acute recognition that he has had a brush with death.

Such fortunate rehabilitations come about more or less on the old principle that "the devil sick, the devil a saint would be." But memories are short and the duration of such reformations often is all too brief.

This is in contrast with the firm handclasp of the typical AA devotee who may have been "dry" for years yet briskly announces, when the occasion demands -- "I am an alcoholic -- I haven't had a drink in 13 years, but I am an alcoholic."

Their methods are described by the pseudo-sophisticated as simplistic. Their frank acknowledgment of standing in need of help is sometimes difficult for the proud and frightened to accept. Their uncomplicated spiritual reverence and willingness to be their brother's keeper is frequently dismissed as naive and childish by swaggering but helpless bar room and living room tipplers.

But the program works -- when it is given a chance, which is more than can be said of those that emerge from most doctors' offices and most public clinics.

Acknowledgement of the effectiveness of Alcoholics Anonymous is long overdue. And it should not be overlooked that they seek no federal funding and get on without the costly trappings of an overstuffed bureaucracy.

SLOW BUT SURE

Put your life on a clockwork basis -- it takes time, but the clock gets there, hand over hand.

EASY WAY OUT

Most men know the difference between right and wrong, but some just hate to make decisions.

Your neighbor says

Late people

aggravate me

What aggravates you most about other people? We all have traits that bother those around us but as far as Mrs. Ruth Kelley of rural Cass City is concerned, it's tardiness.

"I think people who aren't on time aggravate me the most," she says. "I'm generally on time and most of the people we know are usually prompt. But I do think I'm most irritated by people who are always late."

She says she makes it a practice of being on time, especially for appointments.

Other than that, Mrs. Kelley says, there aren't too many things in life that aggravate her.

Mrs. Kelley is a native of the Cass City area. Her husband, Warren, owns Cass City Floral. She and her husband have three children and five grandchildren.
