

Answer few questions at pollution control meeting

They were all there but they learned little. It was billed as a meeting to get answers to perplexing questions concerning air pollution control and solid waste disposal and members of the county planning commission, county commissioners, township boards, village council and just plain citizens attended. Everyone was there except someone from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the State Department of Health that could supply the answers that everyone wants. The State Health Department representative cancelled out the morning of the meeting.

The meeting was called by the Cass City Village Council Tuesday night at the Elkland Township Fire Hall and 35 persons attended.

Handling the program for the evening was Village President Lambert Althaver. He outlined the problems again.

The problems are:

- Getting a license for the sanitary landfill operated by the village.
- Learning just what is needed for a State-approved landfill.
- Supplying answers to Cass City businesses to detail how to meet current regulations concerning burning in open containers.
- Learning what the increased cost to business could be under the new "No burn" regulations.

The only person present that the group could turn to was Ed Kimbrue, Thumb District Health Department representative, and he admitted at the outset that he really did not have the answers.

What Kimbrue did was read the laws concerning landfills and the open burning of waste.

I've been instructed not to get "too deep" into this, he said, because of possible local pressure.

Kimbrue did say that businesses considering installing an incinerator must have one designed by an engineer to meet State approval.

That's the only concrete fact that emerged from the meeting. Business persons receiving the request for "no burn" say it came from the Department of Natural Resources. Kimbrue was under the impression that regulation was under the auspices of the health department. But maybe, I'm mistaken, he confessed.

While not able to supply any answers, Kimbrue did agree to contact the persons in charge of the air pollution regulations to see if a meeting can be arranged to delay implementation of proposed regulations here until the sanitary landfill question is settled.

Nat Tuttle, village councilman, expressed some of the frustration of many present when he asked: "What do we do, how long have we got, how much is the cost?"

Kimbrue said that the department had been willing to go along with municipalities that had shown "sincere efforts" to solve the waste disposal problem.

After Kimbrue talked, Paul Schubert, a waste disposal manager from Bay City, told the group of possible solutions.

He explained a transfer system where waste is taken to pick-up points and then transferred to a central approved facility.

In the metro Bay City area this system works well, he said, but said that the lack of Class A roads in the Thumb makes it more difficult.

In the spring our 40-ton trucks would be forced to carry half loads, doubling the cost.

After the meeting, Commissioners Paul Nagy and Maynard McConkey met with the Bay City representatives and agreed to ask the county board of Commissioners to authorize an engineering study for a county-wide disposal unit that would take the village out of the waste disposal business.

What about costs? Schubert said—that he hasn't really studied the local situation enough to give an estimate.

That answer, with variations, was the one heard all evening.

And the one that local residents really didn't come to hear.

LAMBERT ALTHAVER outlined the problems for local residents at Tuesday's meeting.

School district's rosy finances pose problem of how best to spend money

It's a rosy picture. No doubt about it, Cass City School's financial picture is better than good.

In essence, that's the question that Lambert Althaver, an interested taxpayer who also doubles as village president, kicked around briefly with Supt. Donald Crouse at a recent board meeting.

News Analysis

The system that are a notch below top caliber... every system has them. The trouble is that money won't cure the ailment. Can you imagine what might happen if the school board other teacher get paid the same amount. There is another avenue open to the district. Spend money by hiring more teachers and expanding the curriculum.

budget battle while charging taxpayers twice what we are paying. Or attending school in half day sessions.

Snyder stands mute when charged with murder Monday

Six criminal cases, highlighted by the arraignment of Frank J. Snyder, Caro, on a charge of murder, were heard Monday in Tuscola County Circuit Court in Caro before Judge Norman A. Baguley.

Richard Lee Haley's, of Caro, motion for a speedy trial was granted. His trial will be held Nov. 4. A motion for reduction of bond was denied.

burn property - a house where James Don Nicol of Wilmot lives. A motion to dismiss a charge of burning a dwelling was taken under advisement.

Alvin L. Manning faced some unpleasant music for stealing a 4-string guitar from Robert Molina of Vassar. He was placed on probation for 36 months for larceny from a building. In addition he must pay $200 costs, $200 fine and make restitution to Molina of $100.

Shorts was reportedly shot through the head in a bedroom of a home on Wells Road, 3 1/2 miles south of Caro, on Sept. 22.

Three persons were sentenced Monday. Karl Humpert of Akron was sentenced to 18 months to six years at Jackson Prison for parole violation. He was on parole for breaking and entering in March. His violation was receiving and concealing stolen property.

Jerry Emery, Vassar, found guilty of driving under the influence of liquor, second offense, was placed on probation for two years. In addition he was ordered to pay a fine of $200 and costs of $200.

Everything is even more rosy than before. The trouble is, like going over Niagara Falls in a barrel, starting is much easier than stopping.

Car fire is out, but owner still sizzles

The casual disregard for a motorist in trouble caused Mrs. Reva Palazzola of Snover more concern than the fire.

THE WINNING PUMPKIN in the Chamber of Commerce Retail contest last week was grown by John R. Graham of rural Caro. Measuring the giant are chamber members Mrs. Dorothy Stahlbaum and Ron Geiger.

It happened Monday on M-61, about 1 1/2 miles east of Cass City. A brake lining overheated and ignited a tire. While on the side of the road, Mrs. Palazzola said that five cars passed by without offering to help put out the blaze.

When the Elkland Township Fire Department was notified, it made short work of the minor blaze.

A few minutes after they arrived the fire was out but Mrs. Palazzola was still sizzling. Be sure to mention those five cars in the story, she said.

Damage was estimated at $50.

It was a week for car fires. Tuesday night the fire fighters were summoned to Inter-State Scrap at the south-village limits.

In the junk yard a car was burning. It was quickly snuffed with minimal damage.

Freak accident fatal for youth

A freak accident claimed the life of a 16-year-old Mayville youth Saturday.

BORN LUCKY—Amasa Ondrajka, 33, of Unionville poses with a Centennial ticket, the kind that won him $15,000 which he expects to collect in about three weeks. What do you do when you win that much money? Pay bills, period, says Ondrajka, who went on working at the Gagetown gas station without missing a beat. Ondrajka says that he is a steady gambler with the lottery, but not a plunger. I bought just two of the $5 tickets and spend $1 a week for the green tickets. Moderate, but lucky, describes him. In the past two years, in addition to the big win, he has also had two $25 winners. The ticket was purchased at Bill's Grocery in Gagetown.

Jeffrey L. Colosky was discovered about noon by his step-mother buried from the waist up in sand. The youth was dug out by other family members and was estimated to have been buried for about 15 minutes. Evidently an 18-foot hill where Jeffrey was digging caved in around him. He was digging for items buried in the hill. The accident occurred on the family property in Fremont township.

Corn crop better than expected—prices down

The Tuscola County and Upper Thumb corn crop is good, but probably not as good as the rosy predictions that the Michigan State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office announced this week.

Chest drive underway

The annual kick-off dinner for volunteer solicitors for the Elkland-Novesta Township Community Chest was held Monday evening at Wildwood Restaurant.

The solution that Supt. Don Crouse and the school board has adopted is run a tight ship and use the money not needed for day-to-day operation for improving the facilities. Under this program, the intermediate school has undergone a face lifting costing nearly $150,000. New windows, a new driveway, a new home economics room, new lockers, a new gym floor, new playground and other improvements have been completed or contracted for in recent years. Completed without fanfare and without visible opposition of the taxpayers. That's all changed as the board considers revamping the present outdoor athletic facilities. The trouble is that there are those that swear at and others who swear by the park location. There are those that want to do nothing at all. One board member said succinctly after a marathon session a couple of weeks ago that regardless of the way the football field question is finally settled about half the voters will be mad. As you can see there are lots of unsolved problems ahead at school. Problems that defy easy answers. Problems that turn the rosy hue to a dull pink. We've an excess of "riches" now and that's the problem. But take heart, we could be in a much worse dilemma, and be like many other schools fighting a losing interest by foreign buyers, the corn price should hold fairly steady. He hedged his analysis somewhat by saying there were so many factors affecting the corn market, such as number of cattle and hogs on feed, increased transportation costs, and quality discounts. Each farmer will have to make his own market analysis to determine whether it is best to sell at harvest time or store for a possible better price later on. Diehl pointed out that the county loan rates range from $1.08 to $1.15 per bushel and that commodity loans will be available on the basis of where the corn is stored. This is intended to encourage the flow of corn into principal consumption areas. Individual county loan rates, Diehl said, are the same as they were for the 1974 crop and information can be obtained from the local county ASCS office. He added that market prices tend to decline during the harvest season, particularly when there are bumper crops. Producers with storage space available under approved warehouses or on the farm may be interested in holding their 1975-crop corn for market later in the season. He pointed out that many producers who used the loan program in recent years have netted considerably more by marketing their crop later in the season. More and more producers, he said, are taking advantage of the price support loan program in their marketing plans. Many producers, Diehl noted, have a general tendency to market their grain on the spur-of-the-moment basis which often results in accepting a lower price for their crop.

"If It Fitz . . ." Autumn poet is screened

BY JIM FITZGERALD

The poet in me is awakened annually as the summer changes into autumn clothes, the morning frost paints sparkling pictures on the lawn, and my wife tells me to take down the screen porch.

The screen porch is really a carport. But long ago my wife decided our car didn't need summer shelter as badly as she needed a place to pile wicker. She hired an old man to enclose the space in 4 huge screens, 2 of which he removed every October to let the Plymouth in. Then he would return in June to put the 2 huge screens back up, and so on, year after year, inevitable as a hiccup.

Behind his back I called him "Mr. Harbinger". I never met him face to face. He probably thought my wife was a widow, a contrived misconception shared by all repairmen who visit our home. Whenever they show up, I hide behind a locked door and whimper into a pillow. I'm ashamed I'm so mechanically inept. I once tried to turn down a thermostat by shouting NO! at it. I whimper because I know I'll never be able to do as much for my own children as I've done for the plumber's children.

Anyway, after many years there came an autumn when the hiccup didn't hic. Mr. Harbinger, as old men are wont to do, died. After a suitable period of mourning, my wife announced that if an 88-year-old retiree could put a spring porch up and take it down, so could a healthy, 35-year-old newspaperman, even if he was me. At which point the period of mourning was extended interminably.

The job has been mine for about 15 years now. I have never liked it, but I have learned how to live with it. Proper preparation is of paramount importance. Last Saturday was a typical take-down . . .

Before louching a screen, I had to haul the TV to the porch window and position it precariously on a pile of books so I could see the baseball play-offs from every rung of my ladder.

I had to park the car properly so I could hear the Michigan State-Notre Dame football game on the car radio while unscrewing screws.

I had to find my winter gloves. Even in warm weather, I must wear the gloves so I won't scrape my knuckles on the huge screens while unscrewing and/or screwing. Before I hit upon the glove idea, my knuckles were permanently scabby. I could always tell when autumn or spring was approaching, because my knuckles would just be starting to heal. Once I half-jokingly called my most prominent knuckle "Mr. Harbinger" which greatly intensified that portion of my interminable period of mourning, sending me to my whimper pillow.

But the most important part of my preparation is mental. Just before taking screwdriver in hand, I had to squat quietly in a corner with my head between my knees and practice transcendental meditation. My mantra, repeated for 10 minutes, always goes like this: "I promise, promise, promise not to lose my temper and swear when I find I cannot get the screwdriver into a screw because my bleep-bleep wife has painted over the bleeping screwhead. Also I promise, promise, promise never to turn my back on a completely unscrewed screen."

An hour later I forgot. One of the huge screens couldn't be freed because 2 screws had disappeared completely under my wife's incessant paintbrush. I turned to yell this delightful news to my wife who was in the kitchen painting the silverware. A sudden wind caught the other huge screen, which was completely unscrewed, and forced it to fall snugly on my shoulders, leaving my scraped head sticking through the hole it had just made.

At that point my daughter stuck her smart face in front of the baseball play-offs and said, "Smile, you're on Candid Camera."

I returned to my squat corner and hollered for my whimper pillow.

Open house slated at Rawson library Sunday

FROM THE
Editor's Corner

How can baseball be an old man's game when I like it so? That's the current rap they put on the national pastime you know, it's an old man's game.

The inference is that the young swingers want to watch football with its violent action and its inevitable bloody aftermath, broken arms, broken legs, and broken heads.

I almost believed it for awhile. Maybe I'm fast becoming an anachronism, I told myself.

I don't anymore. There're more folks ready to watch a good baseball game than there are a football game. My proof is that the cold eyed financial wizards that count the dollars for television tacitly admitted it.

The networks just wouldn't pit a football game against the World Series last week end.

Michigan-Michigan State took a back seat to Cincinnati-Boston and so did the National Football League.

Critics of baseball say there is not enough action.

That's poppycock. There's action galore in a good baseball game.

There's excitement, too. Especially if you have a little imagination.

When Luis Tiant stood on the pitcher's box with the tying and winning runs on base in Wednesday's game there was excitement. Boy was there excitement.

For that's what baseball is all about.

The anticipation of what's ahead . . . and the time to think about it.

The individual duels between players set against the background of the team effort, the winning and the losing.

Joe Morgan dancing off first and Tiant bringing his hand fluttering down to his waist to try and keep him from doing his thing . . . stealing a base.

That's excitement. It's more exciting, really, than when Morgan finally takes off in his mad dash for the bag about 60 feet away.

It's that anticipation again. And there's no hiding in baseball. You don't need to wait until the coach looks at the films to tell who has been doing the job for his team.

You can be judge and jury. A home run is a home run, is a home run, and a great catch is a great catch. Anybody can tell it.

I'll bet right now that any of you that watched any of the really fine games in the current series has become an "instant" supporter of one of the two teams.

No way can you watch a world series and remain neutral.

And that's the way it should be. Pulling for one of the teams adds to what already is great entertainment.

The way to go, Boston!

Rabbit tracks

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

I meandered up to the high school gym recently to watch the girls in action on the basketball court.

You know what? There were flashes of pretty good play during the game. Not the shooting or the ball handling but the passing. Elaine Stoutenburg and a couple of other outcourt players hit the man, (whoops!, I mean the girl!) in the center with passes that crackled with authority and generally showed the effects of four years of competition.

Editor Jim Ketchum left on vacation Friday still wondering if Meredith Auten was damning him with faint praise.

Our Jim wrote a story about Meredith and the late Larry MacPhail a couple of weeks ago and M.B. saluted Jim with, "Say, that was quite a story you wrote about Larry last week . . . I sure was surprised."

Take heart, Jim, in almost 25 years here I have yet to write a story that "surprised" Meredith . . . but I can recall several that dismayed him.

It was an interesting question. Bob Gengler, yearbook editor, explained the yearbook operation to the school board last week and said that all seniors were required to have their pictures taken by the photographer designated "official" by the school administration.

The studio was selected on the basis of competitive bids and the reason for requiring a photo taken by the studio was to improve the quality of the pictures. The photo company also takes many "news" pictures for the annual free.

As a commercial printer, I can see the merit of black and white uniform pictures to improve the quality. It obviously will.

But it rubs the wrong way when any student is required to pay for a service without choice to participate in a school sanctioned function. Seems almost unAmerican . . . especially when the lower grades can have a lower quality smaller picture printed without charge.

The board approved the "closed shop" for the annual but not without reservations.

I've a hunch if a practical solution other than the one suggested would turn up both the board and Mr. Gengler would be happy to give it a whirl.

Do we have a left wing group here in Cass City that I know nothing about? I think not, but my curiosity was aroused recently by a story in a Detroit paper telling about a Monopoly winner who is against capitalism.

That's not so unusual, I guess. What made me sit up and take notice was a line in the story that says the champ, Gary Zirulnik, 22, is the "moving force in the Cass City Collective."

Now Cass City is not all that usual a name and it's the first time I've ever heard it mentioned by others than those with an interest in the community.

I probably won't get to work any earlier than usual next week but it's a lead pipe cinch that I will be up earlier for the first three or four days.

That's how long it takes me to adjust to the change in time. We gain an hour Sunday as Michigan goes back to Eastern Standard Time. I'm all for it with one reservation.

It seems to me that the switch back to Daylight Savings Time comes too soon.

But I'm willing to put up with the inconvenience in early spring to be able to enjoy the long summer after supper daylight hours.

Before I could get all fouled up again by these obscure holidays and their dates Postmaster Grant Glaspie alerted me in advance this week to Veterans' Day.

It now comes Monday, Oct. 27, and is a national holiday (for governmental workers) and no mail delivery will be made. Post office box holders can pick up mail from 6:30 to 10:30 a.m. that day.

And remember will you that Nov. 11, Armistice Day, is no longer a holiday by official decree.

No one came in the office with a limit kill but hunters tell me that there are more birds out there this year . . . if you can catch them.

Russ Schneeberger saw 12 roosters but came home with nary a bird after a tough day in the field. That was typical of the reports.

Art show kicks off with flourish as artists meet, greet patrons

They drifted in and out most of Sunday afternoon. The artists and art followers from Caro, Cass City, Uby and the Thumb.

They were at the Cass City Cultural Center to see for themselves what local persons have created in arts and crafts.

The Cass City Arts Council, sponsors of the show, named the display, "Kaleidoscope of Arts", probably because art in many of its forms was on display.

There were needlework, whittled objects, and paintings, paintings, paintings. The work ranged from small landscapes to interpretative art on a giant canvas.

Sunday was a special day reserved for honoring the artists at a reception. Members of the Council served refreshments and artists discussed their work with interested visitors. Sunday was the opening day, but the exhibit at the Cultural Center is a week-long affair that ends Sunday.

For maximum exposure, the exhibit is open at various hours during the week. Thursday hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday doors open at 3 p.m. and remain open to 8 p.m. The hours for Saturday are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and the final day, Sunday, the exhibit can be seen from 12 noon to 3 p.m.

The exhibit under the direction of Mrs. Linda Albee and Larry Sefton is the first of the fall season for the Council. There will be others. Monday, from 7 to 10 p.m. an in-service teacher training workshop will be held at Cass City High School.

It's designed for teachers in the tri-county area and is designed to help teachers use a bicentennial information packet.

Presented by Christine Schneider of the Detroit

Institute of Arts the packet includes lessons with the use of slides, bulletin board mounts, art prints and tapes.

This outreach program was coordinated by the Detroit Institute of Arts in cooperation with the Cass City Arts Council.

The meeting is open to the public.

ALWAYS INTERESTED in art, Marilyn Rutkowski of Uby finally did something about it. These are acrylic paintings. Ms. Rutkowski reported that ideas came from pictures she has seen, but the finished work is her interpretation of the scene, not a copy of the picture.

WHITTLIN' AWAY at his leisure Frank Demaray of Cass City fashioned these works of art. Each one took about a half day. They depict the area's early logging days.

EVERYTHING ABOUT these decorations was created by Mrs. Elsie Hahn, Cass City. She picked the flowers. The straw that makes the center of one of the rings, she gathered from an area farm. After the materials were gathered, it took a couple of more days to finish the work, says Mrs. Hahn.

PLAYING A DUAL ROLE in the art show at the Cultural Center is Miss Kit McMillion, right. She and Mrs. Linda Albee, left, spent many hours working for the show. Mrs. Albee was the chairperson and Miss McMillion was in charge of publicity. The craft work the ladies are showing was created by Miss McMillion.

Beutler gets every last kernel of corn crop using 30-year-old machine for harvest

Everyone is talking conservation now but not many are really doing anything about it.

Practically no one these days goes as far as Alfred Beutler, rural Cass City, to see that nothing goes to waste.

Waste not, want not, says the 70-year-old Beutler, who certainly practices what he preaches.

The slim, straight-standing grizzled farmer is probably the only grower in the Thumb that shocked and husked corn this fall.

For the last several years now, he has harvested part of his corn the old-fashioned way using an old husker that's been a part of the farm on Cedar Run Road for 30 years now.

Economically, it would be hard to justify the time and effort it takes to process the corn using the husker.

After all what he husks is the first couple of rows in the field where the stalks get knocked down using a picker and some of the corn is left in the field.

This year, maybe an acre of corn was shocked and fed into the husker, producing an estimated 50 bushels. That's a total of less than $125 at last week's market prices.

To harvest the acre, Beutler estimated there was over 3 days' work.

Besides this it takes about a half day to get the husker out of its shed on the far edge of the farm and into position in back of the barn for the actual husking.

It takes another half day to get it back in storage for another 12 months again. When I'm not using it, it's always under cover, Beutler says.

The tender loving care the machine receives shows as it looked to be in remarkably good condition as it chugged away without a moment's hesitation.

But even with optimum operation it's a far cry from a modern corn picker. In the time it took him to harvest that acre, Beutler says, he finished the remainder of a seven-acre field.

Not content with just saving the corn, Beutler saves the stalks, too. He borrows a trailer from a neighbor and puts all of the corn stubble in his barn. Nothing's wasted.

Right now Beutler lives in the neat white frame house and works 40 acres. For most of his years on the farm there were 160 acres but a few years ago he sold off 120 acres.

It must have been hard for him to part with the land. After all, he was born in the same bedroom where he now sleeps and all his life he has been on the family farm. He never married.

He has little trouble keeping busy. After all with just 40 acres, it's necessary to make every one produce to the maximum.

That takes a little more time, a little more work, but it's a task that doesn't bother Alfred Beutler at all.

CORN ON THE STALK goes from shocks to the wagon and then to the harvester. It's time consuming, but nothing is wasted and that's why Alfred Beutler continues to do it.

S-Sgt. Mileski at Yuma

Marine Staff Sergeant Anthony L. Mileski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony M. Mileski of Rossman Road, Kingston, has reported for duty at the Marine Corps Air Station, Yuma, Ariz.

A 1965 graduate of Kingston High School, he joined the Marine Corps in March of 1965.

THE RIPE EARS fall into the wagon and kernels that fall off in processing fall into a tub at the other end of the husker. In this old-time method nothing is wasted.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

Keeping the trains rolling

By Jim Ketchum

It was just one year ago this week that Grand Trunk Western Railroad officially filed to abandon its rail line serving Cass City and the Thumb area. The move came as no surprise, since the line had originally been designated as one to be eliminated under the federal Rail Reorganization Act.

When a later revision left the line out, Grand Trunk took matters into its own hands and filed for abandonment.

Today, the situation looks a little better. The initial rhetoric from both the railroad and rightfully concerned rail users has died down, replaced by behind-the-scenes action to keep the trains rolling.

At this writing, a bill to provide over $34 million in subsidies to rail operators awaits approval in the Michigan Legislature. If it passes, Grand Trunk will probably get a cut. And the trains will probably keep rolling.

The question that remains is did we win or lose? We won if the trains keep rolling. We lose if we spend the money and the trains don't.

There is always something about giving a large corporation tax money to keep a part of its operation afloat.

Maybe it's because most large corporations want government to stay out of their business completely. Or at least stay out until they need tax dollars to clean up their financial house.

Then corporations such as Grand Trunk, Lockheed, Boeing and others are among the first to run to Washington, pleading for federal aid. They state flatly that if they don't get help, government and taxpayers will still pay the bill in the form of unemployment insurance and welfare benefits.

With welfare about as popular as Bert Campanaris at Tiger Stadium, government would rather accede to these demands than find itself voted out by constituents who don't like welfare.

In the Grand Trunk case, there's the vital need to keep the trains moving. It's been stated until it's liturgy that if the railroad closes down, economic disaster would almost certainly follow.

Roads would take a merciless beating from heavy trucks and most importantly, practically everything we buy would cost more, simply due to shipping charges.

The pending abandonment petition has stymied growth of Cass City's recently-annexed industrial park development at the south village limits, simply because prospective investors don't like the cloud hanging over the rail service they would need to make a go of it.

With this kind of pressure, no legislator in his right mind would vote against a money bill that would practically insure continued rail service and industrial growth in the Thumb.

Still, there's something dis-comforting about it. When the local rail users association attempted to gather data from the railroad, they received a continuing lack of cooperation from Grand Trunk officials.

Their new-found spirit of cooperation comes, it seems, on the heels of that magic word "subsidy". I'm not knocking efforts made by local people to keep the railroad here. It just makes me uneasy to shell out tax dollars to this private company when I really don't have anything to say about it.

Some limits will eventually need to be set. In the meantime, let's hope my fears are unfounded and that Grand Trunk will carry out its end of the bargain.

Local rail users and the state's taxpayers are carrying out theirs.

THIS SCENE was commonplace 30 years and more ago, but it's a rare one today. Shocking corn is too time consuming for most farmers today but not for Alfred Beutler, who does it every year.

BETTER HEALTH

Pills and pregnancy

BY DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

In the first three months of pregnancy, during the so-called first trimester, the developing fetus undergoes a bewildering number of rapidly successive changes in cellular structure as specialized organs of the body emerge from undifferentiated cells into highly complex body systems.

The brain—with its spinal column, peripheral nerves, the heart and blood vessels, the digestive tract from mouth to anus, including the liver and pancreas, the lungs, the kidneys and urinary bladder are all engaged more or less simultaneously in a meticulous sequence of evolutionary development.

Growth and development continue, of course, throughout all three trimesters, but the special vulnerability of rapidly evolving cell types in the first three months of pregnancy with their code changes and meeting places, all within the critical timing necessary for interdependent reactions, makes the early months of pregnancy a time of special precariousness.

The wonder is not that something goes wrong sometimes; the wonder is that so often everything goes right.

But it is particularly in this period of rapid evolution that the taking of unprescribed pills carries with it the greatest danger of causing upsets in the developmental process.

The "thalidomide" disaster in Europe focused special attention on the whole question of pills during pregnancy. It was not a new problem even then, but the magnitude of its hitherto unsuspected possibilities had not been widely publicized.

It is difficult to be sure of the harmlessness of almost any medication taken during pregnancy for the very good reason that accurate testing in human beings is impossible for obvious reasons, and the results of testing in experimental animals is not necessarily transferrable to man.

But more than that, problems keep cropping up with medications that no one had suspected might cause trouble.

The latest culprit to come under suspicion is aspirin—not because it causes developmental problems but because its daily use during pregnancy is associated with increased complications at the time of delivery, a greater tendency to anemia in the mother; a greater risk of hemorrhage before and after delivery, prolonged labor and higher than normal risk of delivering a stillborn child.

These observations were made by Dr. Edith Collins and Dr. Gillian Turner of the Royal Alexandra Hospital for Children in Sidney, Australia, and reported recently in the English medical journal, "Lancet."

Apparently in Australia where the pill habit is at least as prevalent as it is in the United States, Drs. Turner and Collins were able to follow the pregnancies of 63 women who were daily users of aspirin (salicylate).

The course and result of their pregnancies were compared with a comparable group of 81 pregnant women whose intake of such pills was limited to occasional use.

Women among the 63 daily users of aspirin were twice as likely to be anemic as were women among the controls. There were four times as many hemorrhages before birth and six times as many after delivery as there were among the controls. Their pregnancies were longer, but this may have been influenced by the fact that many among them were heavy smokers.

Since the members of the control group used aspirin at least once a week, it is clear that aspirin was a problem in this study only if it was taken every day.

But the important reality is that unprescribed aspirin is apt to be taken by many as though it were not a drug, which it definitely is. Indeed, it is one of the most effective pain relievers we have.

But it should only be taken when it is prescribed and is not to be taken carelessly, and certainly not every day by a pregnant woman.

The Pioneer meeting will be held Thursday, Oct. 23, at the Decker Masonic Hall. The dinner is at 12:30. Those attending are to bring a dish to pass.

Sunday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Don Bullock, Mr. and Mrs. David Bullock and Mr. and Mrs. Dale Bullock entertained at the Mizpah Fellowship Hall in honor of their sister, Diane's, birthday. The birthday cake was made by Mrs. David Bullock. Friends, neighbors, relatives and all former classmates of Evergreen school were invited. She received many gifts.

CASS CITY

It's the sneezin' season- still no cure for colds

IT'S THE sneezin' season.

(Editor's note: The common cold has been too common around the Chronicle office lately. When news editor Jim Ketchum caught the bug, he decided to find out what he was up against. Here, from behind his tissue box and nasal spray, is his report.)

Every person in the United States contracts an average of 1.6 "colds" per year that account for lost time either from school or work.

This is part of what makes the common cold so common. The viruses which cause the symptoms are common because they are found nearly everywhere.

But from there, it starts getting uncommon. In fact, medical science has yet to solve the riddle of how to stop it dead in its tracks.

The word "cold" really isn't medical terminology for what nearly all of us catch at least once a year, according to Dr. Jae Lee, M.D., internal medicine specialist, of Cass City.

"The word cold may include a number of illnesses including tonsillitis, sinusitis, bronchitis and several other diseases," Dr. Lee said. "The term cold is really an undefined illness."

Whether or not it's defined, nearly everyone knows the symptoms—runny or clogged nose, watery eyes, sore throat and general discomfort. According to Dr. Lee, about all medical science can do is treat the symptoms.

He said often a severe cold is mistaken for influenza. Generally, only about 10 percent of the persons who think they have the flu really do, he said.

"The differences are pretty easy to tell," he said. "With influenza, there is generally a sudden attack that develops over one or two days. In most cases, several family members or neighbors or a large part of a town is infected at once."

With a cold, the symptoms build gradually and aren't as severe as with the flu he said. And while colds are contagious, they don't generally spread through whole communities with the force of influenza.

NO CURE

While medical science has isolated viruses that cause common cold symptoms, it hasn't yet developed the chemotherapy to attack them.

With flu, Dr. Lee said, modern medicine has one agent that is partially successful. The catch is that it works on only one strain of the disease.

Generally, one shot is enough, but protects against only one type of flu. In addition, older patients have to be careful taking the injections, since the vaccine does create a mild case of the illness designed to produce antibodies.

These antibodies then ward off the disease itself.

"We have to be more careful with older people or the chronically ill," he said.

Still, there is no cure for the cold. And the chances of producing one in the foreseeable future aren't bright, Dr. Lee indicated. For now, all modern medicine can do is treat the symptoms.

Half the battle in fighting a cold is making the patient believe he really isn't as sick as he may feel, Dr. James Ballard said.

"You may get a patient who insists on having antibiotics for his cold," he said. "He may tell you he had pneumonia five years ago and that he doesn't want it again. Well, if you give him antibiotics and he still contracts pneumonia, then it's a strain that's immune to the antibiotic."

He said over the last 30 years, there hasn't been much change in the treatment of colds. The standard treatment of extra rest and forcing fluids is still the most recommended.

"About all you really can do is treat the symptoms," Dr. Ballard said.

VITAMIN C

For the last four or five years, Vitamin C has been touted as a preventative or cure for the common cold. According to Dr. Lee, however, a large number of studies on Vitamin C have produced no good evidence that it can prevent or cure a cold.

"From the studies, we find that it does seem to help a little in keeping down the severity of the cold and in some cases may even shorten the duration," he said.

As for treatment, there really isn't much beyond getting lots of rest, forcing fluids and taking aspirin if you can, he said.

"We try to treat some of the symptoms such as congestion with antihistamines," he said. "But rest is probably the most important treatment."

He said some patients are anxious to begin taking antibiotics at the first sign of a cold. Dr. Lee says this isn't always wise, especially if a secondary infection sets in after the cold is gone.

"By that time, the body can build up a resistance to the antibiotic and make treatment of the infection harder," he said.

"I'm sure some patients don't always understand why we don't use antibiotics in the very beginning. This is usually why."

He warned that a completely untreated cold in older patients can lead to more serious diseases such as bronchitis or pneumonia. If symptoms such as fever last more than a week, it could mean something more severe, he said.

LITTLE TREATMENT CHANGE

There hasn't really been significant progress toward finding a vaccine to kill the cold virus itself in the last 35 years or so, according to Dr. H.T. Donahue.

"We have the advantage of antibiotics to take care of more symptoms today," he said, "but we still don't have the means of killing the germ."

He said progress in flu shots has been made to help raise the protection level and that the shots have become popular with village employers who want to keep their workers on the job.

"At our office, we feel we're more protected if we take the shots," he said. "Some businesses in town will send their employees in as well for the shots. The hospital people go in for the shots, too."

In spite of the shots, the incidents of colds this fall has risen, partly due to the change in weather.

"In fact, we've had two or three pneumonia cases in the hospital just recently," Dr. Donahue said.

Much of the problem, he said, is that people don't take proper care of themselves. When they don't their susceptibility rises, leading to colds. Untreated, these can develop into more serious diseases.

Dr. K.I. MacRae, a veteran Cass City physician, said part of the reason incidents of colds rise in the fall is that furnaces, which have been silent all summer, are switched on and begin drying out the atmosphere in homes and businesses.

"This tends to dry your membranes and I think it makes you more susceptible to colds," he said.

Actually, Dr. MacRae said, there is no treatment for the cold itself—only the symptoms.

"I do recommend an increase in vitamins when a person is particularly susceptible to colds," he said. "They help raise resistance." He said medical science still must deal with the symptoms alone and cannot treat the virus. It's unlikely any breakthrough will be forthcoming in the near future, he said.

When the cold season hits, he said, nobody is immune. "Even doctors catch them," he said.

A special invitation is extended to the ladies who are involved in the breast cancer detection program and also all volunteers. It took many persons' efforts working together to achieve the goal of $27,300.

The Uterine Task Force program is under way in Tuscola county. More volunteers will be needed in areas outside of Denmark, Vassar and Tuscola townships. Mrs. Iva Profit is to be contacted in Cass City area.

A limited number of pap kits are available, on which the ACS is able to pay the lab fee. Each woman is urged to have a pap test for the biennial. Each must pay her own doctor's fee.

Studded tires really not practical now

Purchasing studded tires for use this winter could be an impractical investment for many motorists, according to Automobile Club of Michigan. Delegates to the recent 73rd AAA Annual National Meeting in Philadelphia adopted a policy which opposes the use of studded tires since federal and state studies have found that the safety hazards and physical damage to the roadways surface outweigh the benefits of studded tires.

Only newly developed "soft studs" mounted in radial-ply tires are allowed on Michigan roads, which means studded tires that were legal last winter are not legal in the state now.

Varying time restrictions for using studded tires within Michigan and other states plus their total ban in some states and Ontario, Canada, also should discourage their purchase by Michiganders.

Only studs approved by the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation will be permitted statewide from Nov. 15 through March 31. However, approved studs have been permitted since Oct. 1 and may be used through April 30 above the southern boundaries of Michigan counties extending east from Manistee County on Lake Michigan through Isosco county on Lake Huron.

The only studs currently approved for Michigan use are known commercially as Perma-T Grippers. These studs, which contain tungsten carbide fragments in a soft matrix, are legal only if mounted in radial-ply tires.

Legal studded tires for use in Michigan will cost from $40 to $70 per tire. Motorists are advised not to use radial-ply tires with bias-ply tires. The gripping quality differs between the two types of tires, and mixing them could cause a car to go out of control.

It almost takes a computer to guarantee that a motorist on a long trip with studded tires legal in Michigan will not be illegal elsewhere, Auto Club warns.

Motorists traveling in Michigan this winter with illegal studs or "soft studs" outside the allowed time periods are subject to a fine of up to $100 and/or a jail sentence of up to 90 days.

Auto Club notes that 30 states allow studs with varying time restrictions, five states prohibit studs anytime and 14 states plus the District of Columbia have no restrictions. Florida law, which does not specifically prohibit studs, makes it illegal to drive with tires that will damage hard surfaced roads other than ordinary wear and tear.

States prohibiting studs anytime are:

Hawaii, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi and Wisconsin. (Minnesota and Wisconsin permit out-of-state motorists with studded tires to drive on roads for 30 days.) States with no restrictions on studded tires are: Alabama, Colorado, Georgia, Kentucky, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont and Wyoming.

In Canada, the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan, plus the Northwest and Yukon territories, have no studded tire restrictions. British Columbia and Manitoba allow studs from Oct. 1 - April 30; New Brunswick, Oct. 15 - April 15; Nova Scotia, Oct. 15 - April 15; Newfoundland, Nov. 1 - April 30, and Prince Edward Island, Oct. 1 - May 31.

The province of Quebec allows studded tires on vehicles weighing under 5,000 pounds from Oct. 15 - April 15. They are banned on vehicles weighing more than 5,000 pounds, including buses and trucks.

Area law enforcement officials investigated several minor break-ins and thefts during the week.

At Fairgrove a nighttime bandit appears in a rut. Sometime Thursday night or early Friday morning, the northwest window of the Consortium can spend $6.83 million in area

There is money available for training persons in the three-county area under the auspices of the Manpower Consortium serving Sanilac, Huron and Tuscola counties. It was revealed at the regular meeting of the Consortium Friday that there is a total of almost three-quarters of a million dollars available from a total of $1.1 million for the Title I program that is budgeted for the July 1-June 30 fiscal year, authorities said.

These funds can be used for work experience, on-the-job training, classroom work by persons unemployed for 30 days, economically underprivileged and underemployed persons. Right now, authorities say, there is money available for these programs. We could help 15 more persons if approved jobs or programs can be found for them.

At the Friday meeting it was revealed that $55,034 from a total of $252,401.44 available for the summer program was returned to the State unused. This money will be available next summer.

The consortium is a major economic force in the three-county area. Total funds available for this fiscal year are $6.83 million, of which about $3 million has been spent.

Fairgrove Elementary School was broken to gain entrance to the school.

Taken from the school office were a camera, a flashlight, a calculator and $18.50 in cash.

The same window was used to gain entrance to the school about a month previously. The Tuscola County Sheriff's Department deputies who investigated say there are no suspects.

At Colwood three men and a girl stopped in a car at the Dillon gas station and ordered $8 worth of gas from Delphine Dillon. Michigan State Police from the Caro post reported.

The only trouble was that when the gas was received the car drove off and the occupants failed to pay. Police say that they have a good idea who the thief is but it's doubtful if that will help the Dillons get their money.

For the prime suspect is now locked up in Indiana for investigation in a hold-up and not available here.

CASS CITY THEFTS

There were several minor cases reported to the Cass City Police Department during the week.

Henry "Chip" Ciesielski, 6008 River Road, Cass City, reported that someone broke into his property and stole two motorcycle patches and two motorcycle vests. There are no suspects.

George Neely, 4202 West, said that someone broke into his upstairs apartment Thursday and stole $38 in half dollar coins he was saving.

Police are questioning two suspects.

Mrs. Ruth Esau reported to Tuscola County Sheriff's department that a car driving on Milligan Road, near her home, threw out a large bag of litter.

There have been no arrests and the case is now closed. Frederick Powell of Greenleaf Township reported to State Police of Bad Axe that 50 gallons of gas was stolen from an unlocked tank at his home.

The theft occurred Monday evening. The tank is about 175 feet from the Powell house.

A break-in was reported Tuesday morning at the office of Dr. E.C. Holdship of Ubyly.

An estimated 1,000 pain pills with a value of about $60 were taken. The pills are said to be dangerous if taken without supervision as they contain codeine, an opium derivative.

There were no signs of a break-in and the pills were evidently taken in the period between Friday and Monday night.

Secrecy prevails! Fire tests best when they begin as total surprise—Jezewski Elkland Township firemen conducted the first of a series of unannounced fire drills Thursday at Cass City High School to test fire safety procedures in the building. Similar tests will also be held at all other buildings in the system, Fire Chief Jim Jezewski said. The drills are totally unannounced, Jezewski said. Even administrators don't know when a test is coming. This helps keep both students and teachers more alert and also avoids the so called "expected drill." "We've found in the past that the word would leak out among the students that a fire drill was coming, so it wasn't any surprise," Jezewski said. "This way, we just walk in, punch the alarm and see what happens." "The effort is designed to make students more fire conscious and to help avoid a disaster should a real fire break out.

FIRE DRILLS have a serious purpose but they also provide a mini-vacation for students. The educational drills sponsored by the Elkland Township Fire Department quickly evacuated the students who had a fine time waiting for classes to resume.

Gas Company wins safe driving award

Southeastern Michigan Gas Company has attained a first place in the 1974 National Fleet Safety Contest for Gas Industries. Southeastern competed in the gas utility group for large-sized companies having between two and five million miles of annual driving. The award was earned by the many employees who drove 2,126,744 miles last year in the company's fleet of 149 vehicles. During this period, they were involved in only five reportable vehicle accidents.

Vender feted on 85th birthday

The Rev. Melvin R. Vender was feted at a surprise 85th birthday party Wednesday, Oct. 15, at the bi-monthly dinner of the Fraser Presbyterian Church. Twelve guests, came from Bad Axe, friends with whom Mr. Vender attended school 75 years ago. Others were friends and former parishioners of Mr. Vender, who was pastor at First Presbyterian Church in Cass City, 1944-58. Mrs. Velma Snoddon, a cousin of Mrs. Vender, from Bad Axe baked a large cake cut by Mr. Vender at the dinner. The Venders have been regular attendants at the dinner since he filled the pulpit in 1967 and 1968 during periods when the church had no regular pastor of its own.

School librarians at conference

Over 1000 media educators from all over the state assembled at Boyne Mountain at Boyne Falls for the second annual conference of Michigan Association of Media Educators (MAME). The conference started at noon Sunday, Oct. 12, and ended Tuesday, Oct. 14. The media educators, representing all levels from elementary school media centers to advanced university programs, participated in a series of workshops, symposia and seminars to update themselves on new developments in the media field. The keynote speaker, Dr. Jack R. Frymier, professor at Ohio State University, college of education, gave a thought provoking speech and media presentation on the need for developing independence in education.

Those attending from the Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac area (REMC 10) were Don Richards, REMC 10 Director; Jacquelin Opperman, Librarian-Kingston; Linda Tonkin, Librarian-Akron-Fairgrove; Frances Ramsey, El. Librarian-Marlette; Beatrice Ross Librarian, Middle School-Marlette; Linda Schramm, H.S. Librarian-Marlette; Joyce Cornett, Library aide-Marlette; Diane Lentz, Librarian-Sandusky; Beth Clemensen, El. Librarian-Sandusky.

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Tuscola County's Road Commission is mulling a million dollar move toward construction of 19 new bridges in the county.

Grover Laurie, Gagetown, has been named to a six-year term on the County Road Commission, and Lambert Althaver, Cass City Village President, was named to a three-year term on the county planning commission by the County Board of Commissioners this week.

Cindy Strickland was named homecoming queen Friday night during half-time ceremonies at the Cass City-Lakers game.

Several members of Tyler Lodge No. 317, F&AM, were honored for long-time membership Saturday night at a meeting in the Masonic Temple. Honored were Stanley Muntz, Rev. Melvin R. Vender, Herbert Ludlow, Robert M. Hunter Jr., John West, Frank Havens, Durward Heron, Pearl Fleming, M.D. Hartt, Frank Reid, Charles Mudge, George Copeland, William Little, Arthur Walker and Arthur Little.

Gerald and Don Stilson have purchased the Quaker Maid Dairy Store in Cass City.

TEN YEARS AGO

Elkland township's tax bill for 1965 jumped $50,599 over the 1964 figure. Tuscola County Supervisors learned late last week as they wound up their week-long session in Caro. Chief reason for Elkland's increase, going from $236,882.44 to $287,482.31, is the new high school approved last June by township voters.

George Elliott, Cass City High School guidance director, has been named president of the Thumb Economic Opportunity Commission.

James Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ross of Cass City, has started his Peace Corps work in Bolivia. He is 22.

The Cass City School District's $1.6 million bond issue has been awarded an "A" rating, the best available. Supt. Donald Crouse reported this week. The rating could mean savings in interest of $40,000 over the 30 years for which the bonds will be issued.

Cass City Public Schools received $57,150 in State Aid monies this week in the first payment of the school year. Kingston, the only other area county school to receive a portion of the funds, received $35,930.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Sally Colbert, Cass City High School senior, was elected Monday to preside as queen of the homecoming game festivities Friday. Marilyn Agar and Arlene Lane will make up her court.

A gold 4-H emblem, inset with emerald, was given to Willis Campbell Tuesday night in recognition of 25 years' service in 4-H work.

Six Cass City High School students were among the 500 who attended the fourth annual High School Debate Assembly at the University of Michigan last Saturday. Cass City debaters attending were Melva McConnell, Robert Fritz, Judy Dickinson, Faith Parrott, Delores Simmons and Jessie Fry.

Mrs. Vernon Harrison has a right to her pride in her skill with the bow-and-arrow—She brought home a fine 80-pound yearling buck from near Mio Monday evening.

Alex Arnott, general and eighth grade mathematics teacher at Cass City, has received orders to report for induction into the Armed Forces Monday, Oct. 23.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

About 250 persons attended a banquet and program in Bad Axe Monday evening to celebrate the completion of the paving on M-53, the Earle Memorial Highway.

Joseph Benkelman was re-elected master of the Cass City Grange when that organization met Friday evening at the Bird Schoolhouse.

Mrs. Chester L. Graham of Cass City was elected second vice-president of the East Central District of the State Federation of Women's Club at its annual convention at Imlay City last week.

Thirty-seven Evangelical ministers of the Thumb district, their wives and a few guests, enjoyed a pheasant dinner Monday noon at the home of Dr. and Mrs. R.N. Holsapple.

Mrs. Genie Martin of Deford was re-elected president of the Seventh District Women's Christian Temperance Union at the annual convention in Marlette Wednesday.

AROUND THE FARM Corn root worm will cut yields

By Don Kebler

One down, three to go, is our count on harvesting of the county corn variety plots. Sam Woods and I completed the plots at Barry Hedley's Tuesday.

The adjusted yield-moisture-test weight data has not been made at this writing but I can give you this information. The moisture content ranged from 17.3 to 31.5 per cent for an average of 26.3 per cent. The test weights ranged from 50 to 58 pounds per bushel for an average of 53.3 pounds.

Besides the differences in growth characteristics of the thirty-five varieties, it was noted generally that certain varieties were more goose-necked than others. This goose-necking is due to root worm larvae damage. Why this happens is not explainable because there is no consistency in root worm resistance or susceptibility by varieties.

One thing for sure. When our county increased its corn production acreage, since about 5 years ago, it became inevitable that the diseases and insect problems are bound to increase. By this same thought, I believe the navy bean producers in Minnesota are living on borrowed time until the bean diseases begin to spiral to give them the same problems as we have. But don't hold your breath. It's not likely to happen in serious retrospect for some years to come. Anyway, in 1976, some corn fields could realistically suffer a five to ten-bushel-per-acre yield reduction from corn root worm damage.

On the old precept, "to know is to control", we can reduce the 1976 root worm population to a great measure just by not planting corn after corn. This is because the eggs are deposited in the fall around the roots of corn. These eggs hatch rather late in the spring with the larvae working through the soil to the growing corn roots. Corn is the predominant food of this insect but they will feed, to a slight extent, on some native grasses and oat roots. However, most of them will die if corn is not planted in fields where the eggs are laid.

A field of corn that had no or few root worm damage is not a security against not having a heavy infestation in '76 as the beetles from other fields can fly in and lay eggs near the roots of these plants. So, if your '75 corn field has heavy root worm damage, plant it to something else in '76 or use one of several recommended insecticides at planting time. If no root worms occurred in your corn and your neighbor had damage in his corn near your corn field, use an insecticide at planting time.

MAKING PLANS

Do you like to build things... a bird house or a skyscraper? If you are such a person, you know that plans are involved, often difficult ones. Usually we use the drawing board before we start building.

Making plans may be called foresight or looking ahead—and we all know that this is necessary whether building an object or building your life.

As you make plans for the future, don't overlook one of the most effective and time-honored aids in building a strong character—your church! Like millions before you, you may find just what you need to make your plans succeed.

Achieve success? This is what we all want and what we plan for. Start your planning now by going to church next Sunday.

Your neighbor says

It's everybody's world

We hear a lot these days about discrimination against women and how men run things in this world. But is it really a man's world?

Mrs. Norma Wallace of 4693 N. Seeger St., doesn't think so—at least not entirely. "It's everybody's world," Mrs. Wallace says. "I think there are job opportunities out there for both men and women."

She says she has never felt any discrimination because she is a woman.

On the other hand, Mrs. Wallace says she feels men probably have more leadership roles in life. And that isn't all bad either.

"I feel more comfortable when a man is in charge," she says, "especially in government or in the ministry, for instance. I'm sure there are many women as qualified—maybe some even more qualified—than some men. But I just feel more comfortable with a man in a leadership position."

Mrs. Wallace is a native of Owendale. She and her husband, Richard, an employee of Walbro, have two children.

Worry may be a confession of weakness, but that's little consolation when trouble strikes.
