

Council seeks vote on park lease terms with school

Cass City village residents will get a chance to voice their opinions in the long-running hassle over leasing park athletic facilities to the school district in an advisory referendum next March.

Village council moved to place the question before voters during their regularly scheduled meeting Tuesday night at the Municipal Building.

Council okayed submitting the idea of leasing the park facilities for a long-term period, to be determined before the vote is held. In addition, major terms of such a lease would also be spelled out on the ballot.

The knotty part of the problem is still the length of the lease. A majority of school board trustees have said they would favor improving the present facility if they were offered a lease of more than 25 years.

Until now, council has been unwilling to opt for a longer term.

That thinking was reinforced by Village Attorney Clinton House, who told council he would treat any lease of over 25 years as a sale. He added that he has no legal precedent on which to base his opinion, however.

"I have a problem with alienating it (the property) so long," House told council. "I think 25 years is a long time. Fifty years bothers me tremendously."

House cautioned council to be careful on granting a long-term lease, but added that an advisory vote by the people carries no legal authorization either.

House also said a 25-year lease with a built-in option for 25 more years would also be tantamount to selling the property, since the village would surrender control over it for 50 years.

Village President Lambert Althaver said the property is already separated through school control.

"It's already been alienated for a great number of years through use," Althaver said. "Practically it's been used for its present purpose for nearly 50 years."

Althaver agreed that council needed to get citizen opinion on the idea of a long-term lease before taking any action. He added that school authorities have indicated they may seek a district-wide vote on the question of building new facilities or upgrading the existing field.

That vote could come at the annual school election next June.

With no legal precedent on how long "too long" is, with respect to a lease, the decision on what to offer the school remains in council's hands.

Trustee Dr. D.E. Rawson suggested seeing whether or not a 20-year lease with a 20-year renewal option would find favor with school board trustees. The board has indicated it wants a longer term, but has not spelled out just how much longer.

Althaver said the school is interested in the football field, track and stadium only. He added that baseball and softball facilities will probably be constructed behind the school in the foreseeable future.

HOSPITAL RADIO SYSTEM LEASE

Council took care of a legal hang-up in its agreement to sponsor Hills and Dales General Hospital for a $10,151 radio system at its Tuesday meeting.

The law requires the village to buy the equipment and then sell it to the hospital. It then must lease the equipment for five years, after which the equipment becomes sole property of the hospital.

Council formally exchanged checks with hospital administrator Randy Howard and agreed to lease the equipment for $1 for five years.

HALLOWEEN

Police Chief Gene Wilson told council four regular police officers and six auxiliary officers will be patrolling village streets Halloween night. He said the officers will be on duty most of the night and that some will be on foot patrol.

The move is designed to meet increasing reports of vandalism over the past few years. No official hours for trick-or-treating were set.

Wilson was also quizzed regarding the increasing crime rate in the village. According to figures for the first nine months of 1975, larcenies, burglaries, vandalism, assault and battery and drug complaints have all shown marked increases.

Wilson said most of Cass City's crime problem comes from young persons who are non-professional and who are often just passing through.

He said most larcenies are petty and offenders are hard to catch. He added that most appearance tickets involve drinking drivers.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, Village Treasurer Celia House reported that combined real and personal property tax collections for 1975 totaled $156,811.85, or 98.5 per cent total taxes due.

Real property tax collections totaled $113,285.90, while personal property taxes collected totaled $43,525.95.

Council also heard a report on the water system from Hubbell. Roth and Clark recommending that improvements in water mains be made along Doerr Road north of Garfield Street and along Main Street east of Woodland.

The firm said in both locations, substandard water pressure and flow were found.

On $1.6 million project

Set Owen-Gage building issue vote Dec. 20

Owen-Gage School District voters will go to the polls Saturday, Dec. 20, to decide the fate of a proposed $1.675 million bond issue to construct a new high school building.

The election date was approved at a special school board meeting held in Owendale, Monday night.

The move came after Supt. Ronald Erickson announced that the district has received preliminary qualification for bonds from State Supt. of Public Instruction Dr. John Porter.

The board opted for the unusual Saturday election date in an apparent effort to encourage a "large voter" turnout. Erickson pointed out that college students will be home from school at that time and that Saturday is generally an off-day for most workers.

While the board has approved holding the election, it's still unclear exactly how much the bond issue would cost district taxpayers. Board President Ronald Good estimated total district expenses could run between 32 and 33 mills if the issue is approved.

Part of the problem stems from the still unsettled question of district valuation. Huron county commissioners are pushing to use county equalized valuation totals instead of the higher state equalized totals.

Until this question is settled, board members say, it's impossible to determine how many mills will be needed. Historically, SEV figures have always been used.

The board also passed a resolution urging voters to approve the building proposal. The resolution stresses the need for local control of education, that the school must operate independently, that it is small enough to maintain communication with district residents and that it provides the curriculum to meet the needs of its students.

Trustee Fred Cooley, who abstained on both the support resolution and the election decision, said he thinks the issue is too big for the district.

"I think we're overbuilding," he said. "I think we're voting a bigger bond issue than we can support at this time."

Cooley said constructing a new building on the Owendale site would overcrowd the facility and not provide for adequate parking or playground areas.

Cooley was quizzed by trustee Lee LaFave regarding his opinion of the $2.66 million building issue defeated in 1973.

"I thought it was the best package we ever had," he said. "But I can't agree this is a good set-up. With the other one, we would have had a complete system."

This touched off a volley of verbal shots between the board and district resident Kenneth Wissner, Owendale, who tried to poll individual board members as to why they support the issue.

Trustee Ronald Reinhart defended the present package, calling it the best possible for the district. "There's no question in my mind about it whatsoever," Reinhart said.

Tempers flared as Erickson told Wissner he was attending the wrong school board meeting. Wissner's children attend the Laker School.

"I can't see you being concerned about students in this district," Erickson said. "You don't participate in it."

Wissner shot back that as a taxpayer, he was concerned. This led to a shouting match that forced a call for order by the board president.

The vote will be held at the Brookfield Township Hall.

STATEMENTS

James Belk, Cass City, appeared before the board and charged that board members had made individual statements regarding transfer students attending Cass City Schools who were unhappy and wished to return to Owen-Gage.

Belk claimed to have proof and said if such statements weren't stopped, the board "possibly could be enjoined" from making further statements.

Trustee Jack Laurie responded with surprise.

"I feel as though I'm being accused of doing something of which I have no knowledge," Laurie said. "I don't ever recall this board meeting as a group and saying anything about any individual students wanting to return."

The board noted Belk's statement and took no action on it.

The board also heard a request from Erickson that the school trade in a 36-passenger school bus for a 66 passenger bus by the end of the school year.

Under the arrangement, the school would keep the small bus until the school year ended, turning it in that time on the larger bus which it would already be using.

No official action was taken.

At Owen-Gage

Teachers take pay cut

In an historic move, Owen-Gage teachers have agreed to take a five per cent cut in the base salary schedule for the 1975-76 school year, according to terms of a tentative master contract presented to the Board of Education at its Monday night meeting in Owendale.

Under terms of the agreement, the starting bachelor's degree holder will earn $8,273.00, down from $8,686.96 last year. Maximum bachelor's degree salaries dropped to $11,851 from $12,443.63 last year.

Master's degree holders also took a five per cent pay cut. Starting salaries dropped from $9,274.03 to $8,832. Maximum salaries stand at $12,969.00, compared with $13,617.55 last year.

"This is a unique situation," Supt. Ronald Erickson said. He explained that the teachers agreed to the pay cut due to the school's "financial difficulties based upon the loss of approximately 9.2 per cent of the Owen-Gage district via property transfers and the loss of student population," Erickson said.

Under terms of the agreement, teacher's retirement will be paid by the board of education and health insurance will be increased from $50.50 per month to $68.92 per month.

The number of salary increments was increased from 10 to 11 steps.

Erickson emphasized that the agreement is for one year only. He lauded the teachers for taking the pay cut, saying it would help insure continuation of the district.

"This contract displays our shared concerns toward supporting the conscientious efforts of the community to maintain local interest and control for the education of their children and all of the Owen-Gage students," a printed board statement said.

Commissioners hear plea for higher court salaries

The Tuscola County Board of Commissioners put the final seal of approval on its $2,193,000 budget during its regularly scheduled session Tuesday in Caro, but not without hearing from an attorney who maintains county court employees and judges are still underpaid.

During a public hearing on the budget prior to ratification, attorney Wallace Kent asked board members to take a hard look at salary schedules next year for court workers and employees of the prosecutor's office.

"I'm concerned that salaries in this county are beginning to drag behind other counties," Kent said, "and I'm concerned that they are failing to keep pace with the cost of living."

He said these professional employees do not have the bargaining power enjoyed by unionized courthouse employees and that they find it difficult to approach the board with salary increase requests.

"We've definitely lost one of our two assistant prosecutors," Kent said, "and money was the reason."

Kent maintained that any of these county professional employees could make far more in the private sector rather than in government service.

"You can only ask so much of these persons," Kent said. Kent said he was also concerned about the new "fixed millage" law which could pose a problem raising extra funds for county operations. Under the law, no additional dollars can be taken in by the county when land valuations increase without a vote of the people.

County officials agree that the new millage law could pose headaches next year.

CETA

Robert Wellington of the County Road Commission, gave commissioners an update on CETA funding to date. He reported that $22,760 out of $60,641 allocated to the county have been spent to date.

The funds are being used by six agencies and provide jobs for 13 persons.

Under Title II, a total of $76,604 has been spent out of a total allocation of $209,859. Wellington said nine agencies have used the funds to hire 16 persons.

In Title VI, a total of $203,285 has been spent from a total allocation of $946,962.

He said Cass City has spent $7,673 out of a total allocation of $35,064, while Gageton has spent $286 of its $4,500 slice of the pie.

Kingston has spent $1,894 of its $9,180, while the Kingston School District has spent only $1,846 of its $17,100 allocation.

Owen-Gage Schools has spent $825 of its $6,156 allocation, Wellington reported.

The Road Commission has received the largest portion of Title VI, $39,093 out of an allocation of $185,464.

All allocations run through Dec. 31.

2 hurt as van flips

Two persons were treated for injuries at Hills and Dales General Hospital when the van in which they were riding slid out of control and rolled over four times on Englehart Road, five-and-a-half miles south of Cass City, Wednesday, Oct. 22.

Caro State Police identified the injured as Eugene Wesley Vincent, 15, of 6128 Decker-ville Rd., Deford, driver of the van, and Steven Raymond Kenward, 15, of Dodge Rd., Deford.

Police said the vehicle was northbound on Englehart Road when it apparently struck two large rocks and flipped, landing on its side.

Police ticketed Vincent for careless driving and for driving with no operator's license. The accident took

Prosecutor vs Ali

BY JIM FITZGERALD

A Detroit sportswriter says Muhammad Ali may stage one of his $10 million prize-fights in the Detroit area, perhaps in the new Pommet Stadium. Go get him, Brooks Patterson!

Patterson is county prosecutor and candidate for field marshal in the Pommet neighborhood. He first gained public notice several years ago by throwing his body in front of school buses. The voters applauded and Patterson has been performing encores ever since.

Patterson goes with the wind, using his tongue for a sail. I think he feels the public pulse by attending lynchings and book burnings. He is death on welfare cheats and marauding gypsies. He finds out what makes the average man mad and then appears on TV, shovel in hand, to say he's madder than anyone and something has got to be done, by God!

For information regarding newspaper advertising and commercial and job printing, telephone 872-2010.

The shovel is because there's a rumor Jimmie Hoffa's body might be buried in Patterson's county. More than anything else, Patterson appreciates the value of publicity. When and if the Hoffa mystery is solved, it will be worldwide news, Walter Cronkite and everything. If the body is discovered at the bottom of the Atlantic, Patterson will trade his shovel for a net and lead an international crusade against forced fishing.

Patterson's current crusade is against dirty movies that don't star Marion Brando. Brooks says all that bare flesh and overt sex is obscene and he doesn't want it in his county. The voters agree, applauding wildly. The average man never wants dirty movies in his neighborhood—but he doesn't mind driving across town to see one. Of course, the average man on the other side of town feels the same way. That's human nature, which may also be obscene. So midtown collisions are inevitable and smart lawyers such as Patterson know the value of being at the scene of the accident.

Patterson has milked tons of ink and TV time out of one lousy movie called "Naked Came the Stranger." He has closed the theatre so many times he should be awarded a flashlight and usher's epaulets. The courts keep reopening it. The problem is Patterson can't prove his definition of obscenity is constitutionally acceptable in every bedroom.

I suspect the battle replays are not displeasing to Patterson.

A man who makes a clown of himself 10 times gets more publicity than the man who does it only once. But there's a limit to public interest. Patterson could attain a saturation point where the public would decide he really is a clown, fulltime, and he would then cease to be news.

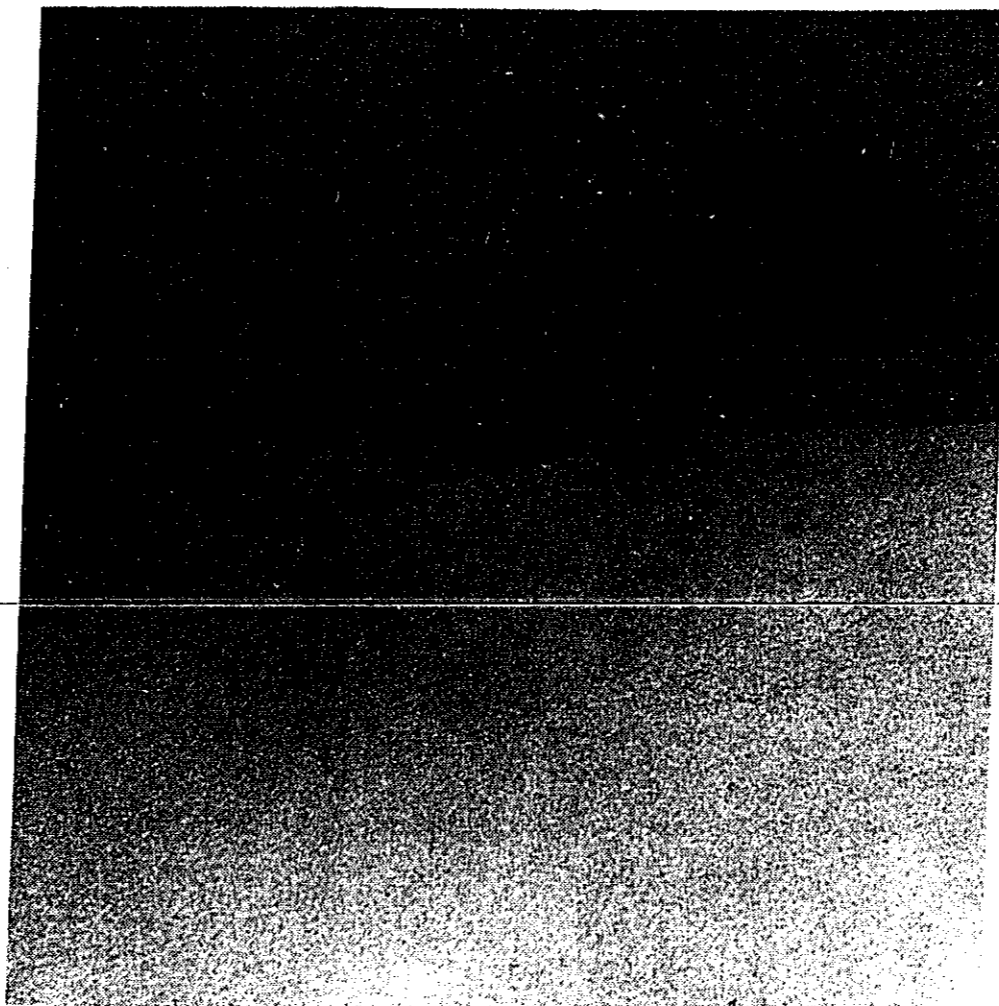

So it would probably be wise of Patterson to be on the alert for a new source of obscenity. That's why I am here, ever helpful, talking about Muhammad Ali.

The business of professional boxers is to pound on each other. Most ideally, the loser is the fighter who is first knocked unconscious. Or, barring such a clear-cut outcome, the loser is the fighter who suffers the most; who bleeds the most or has the most bones broken. The winner is the boxer who is the best hurtler. If he is a really great hurtler, causing much unconsciousness and bloodshed, he may be paid millions of dollars for doing it on closed-circuit TV.

The dictionary says something is obscene if it is "offensive . . . indecent . . . repulsive to the senses; loathsome." I submit that prizefighting is more obscene than "Naked Came the Stranger" or any other movie ever made.

What could possibly be more obscene than hitting people and getting paid for it? Dropping bombs on them.

It's a natural. If he would close down the proposed Ali fight, Patterson would not only win God's love, he would get an hour alone with Walter Cronkite.

TONS OF CORN await storage in silos still under construction at the Wickes Agriculture elevator in Cass City. The corn is being piled at a site on Vulcan street near the elevator.

Wilson warns against Halloween vandalism

Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson has urged parents to make sure their children refrain from vandalizing public and private property this Halloween. In a statement issued Tuesday, Wilson reminded parents that children under the age of 16 are to be off the streets by 10:00 p.m. by village ordinance, in the company of their parents.

"Parents will be held responsible for damage caused by their children," Wilson said.

Wilson added that vandalism ordinances will be enforced.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

It's too bad that I'm hooked on reading.

I used to think that reading was the ideal way to relax besides being the best way to keep up with the world.

Not any more. I think that it's the way to keep informed, but not the way to relax.

Just the opposite. Reading the news these days immediately starts adrenaline flowing and the hackles on the back of my neck to rise.

I get mad, that's what I do. I get mad when I read about the new business activities tax. What kind of logic can there be in a levy that taxes powerful, profitable General Motors less and financially troubled Chrysler Corporation more? What's the merit in any tax that isn't based on the ability to pay?

My blood pressure doesn't lower a bit when I read that there are over 1,000 companies, including 32 of the nation's largest 50, engaged in selling firearms abroad.

It goes up another notch when I read that designs for a ship, where half the development costs were paid by the taxpayers, are given to Russia . . . while the same designs are denied our Navy.

I'm frustrated when I see that the big oil cartels appear to be winning the battle for decontrol and unlimited profits at my (and your) expense.

One of the last bastions of light, carefree reading for entertainment used to be the sports page.

But it's depressing to read where the leader of the players' union of the National Football League says what is needed is one giant union encompassing all sports. Or when statements by management ring with the rhetoric that most of us hear too much of almost daily in the business-industrial community.

Strangely enough, the financial pages aren't all that bad. These days you expect the worst and are not disappointed.

There's little left. Just the women's pages and the comics.

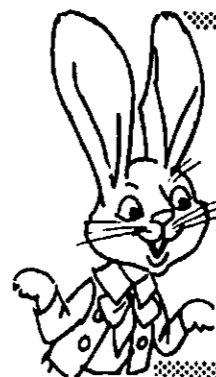

I wish I still liked to read the comics. But I left Dick Tracy along with my youth and outside of a cartoon or two I can't lull myself to contentment with them anymore.

I do get a chuckle or two from the women's pages. I love to read these women's lib stories and the change role stories where the guy does the dishes and the gal swaps stories at the office water cooler.

I read those medical columns, too. I read them to find out all I didn't know when I should have. It's a little late for any practical value.

I used to get a real charge out of reading Ann Landers. But oh, woe, she went and got a divorce.

Now when she offers advice in her succinct style her personal troubles get in the

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can get to help)

Elsewhere you'll find a story about the earth moving at Cass City Intermediate School.

The three men on the machine are all free, white and over 21 and asking where the "action" is.

I named the well known watering holes of the Thumb and later learned the names of the trio.

One is Karl Brocklehurst. Man, I said, with a name like that I'd head straight for Frankenth.

Stan Asher, retired Cass City businessman, thought he had seen just about everything in about a half century on Cass City's Main stem. How wrong he was.

His late wife was a saver . . . one who hated to throw anything away. As a result, the Ashers accumulated a basement full of junk that Stan decided to get rid of once and for all.

But before calling the junk man, Asher heeded the advice of friends and told a few acquaintances that he had some items at real bargain prices if they could be used.

The result? Sales totalling $2,000 and with still stuff left to go, says Stan, still agog with amazement over the garage sale hysteria now in vogue.

Everyone loves a winner. But a loser? That's something else. At most football games the photographers and media writers gather like locusts along the sidelines waiting to pounce on any possible picture that presents itself.

But we had a lonely feeling when Bad Axe played here a couple of weeks ago. We were all alone out there.

It's happened before in the bad years. All we can say is that when things get better we'll still be around to say hello to all our fair weather friends.

What's in a name? Nothing, sometimes. The workers on those elevator silos in Cass City scale the heights up to 1,400 feet as part of their job.

So what union do they belong to? The United Mine Workers, what else?

Incidentally, speaking of that crew, no one ever said that Joe Hillaker, Cass City, was a high flyer, but he's well on his way to becoming one.

Joe hired on with the crew here and according to the bossman may go with the workers when they move to the next job.

Good worker, said the foreman when talking of his latest recruit, whom local basketball fans will remember as the first of three brothers to represent Cass City on the hardwood.

What's wrong with that instant lottery? It's too effective. Here's a true story related to me by a local businessman.

One local resident got paid, cashed his check and sat down at a local store and promptly purchased some $65 worth of the tickets.

When that exhausted the supply he went immediately to another store and bought about $30 or so more. In one afternoon he punched away his whole paycheck.

That's what is wrong with the instant lottery.

way of the print. I get the same feeling that I do when I read that the oil companies are doing us a favor when they raise prices. Maybe I should stick to reading the personal notes in the classifieds. There's a laugh or two and a genuine tear or two there.

Mary Sweet, 94, dies Oct. 22

Mary D. Sweet, 94, a former resident of Novesta township, died Wednesday, Oct. 22, in Clearwater, Fla., following a long illness. She was born Feb. 26, 1881, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henderson Sr. She married Henry Sweet in 1905. Following their marriage, they lived in Novesta township, moving to Pontiac in 1941. He died in 1951.

Mrs. Sweet is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Omar (Cora) MacNutt and Mrs. Quillan (Hazel) Mahan, both of Clearwater, Fla., and Mrs. Gary (Bernice) Barnhart of Pontiac; three sons, Edmond of Holly, Joseph of Traverse City and Charlie of Eastport, Mich.

Funeral services were held Saturday at the Sparks-Griffin Chapel in Pontiac, with Rev. Theodore R. Allebach officiating.

Graveside services were held Saturday at Novesta cemetery with Rev. Harold Prong, pastor of the Novesta Church of Christ, officiating.

With the formal approval of a building permit, the first apartment complex in Cass City built especially for rental purposes was given the green light Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the village council.

Sherlock "Joe" Frederick has turned $2.75 into a new roof for the family home on Church Street and when it's all done should have money left. He won $1,000 in the Irish Sweepstakes.

At the present time, members of the Cass City Village Council feel that around-the-clock police coverage is too expensive for the village. This was the decision reached after Police Chief Gene Wilson asked council to add a fulltime man to his force to replace the officer now working about half-time.

The new Rawson Memorial Library is the result of cooperation among many persons in the community, Audley Rawson, Cass City, told an estimated 200 persons at the open house for the facility Sunday afternoon.

A lackluster campaign in an off-presidential year election has invoked little interest in the Thumb area and a light vote is forecast here in the general election Tuesday.

A walk in the woods

By Jim Ketchum

Call it cornball, but I loved it. I took my wife and little girl and went for a walk in the woods at the village park. It was a beautiful, sunny October Sunday afternoon. Church was out of the way and so was dinner. Katie was up from her nap and it was just too nice to sit in front of the tube, watching professional athletes making more money than they were worth.

So off to the park we went. Nothing spectacular about it. Nothing high pressure or maddening about it. Just a simple walk among the newly fallen leaves that made up a golden carpet on the forest floor.

We stopped, sat on a fallen log and drank in the scene as the sun filtered through the remaining leaves still fluttering in the breeze atop the maples and oaks. In a world that gets more than hectic, even in Cass City, this island of peace and solitude was bliss.

The nice thing about it was that we didn't have to pay admission to get in. Nobody had a popcorn stand or a souvenir shop or hamburger stand set up to suck in a few bucks.

There weren't any loud-speakers playing rock or classical or country-western or anything else. What trails there were didn't have those obnoxious little arrows directing you someplace you really aren't interested in going.

There were no security officers, watching to make sure you didn't steal something, because there wasn't really anything to steal, unless it was a red-splashed maple leaf or the look on Katie's face as she held it in her tiny hand for the first time.

It was just a walk in the woods. I could almost feel the muscles and nerve ends unwind in my neck as we sat there, rustling dried leaves with our feet.

Back in the woods, nothing, including where the new athletic facility eventually goes or whether or not Owen-Gage approves a new building or whether or not Gerald Ford eventually learns how to chew gum and govern at the same time—nothing mattered.

Nothing except being there to savor the moment.

See, I told you it was cornball. Just as cornball as stopping for a moment in this crazy existence we call life to get a little better idea of who we are.

I'll admit Katie probably hasn't completely decided who she is yet, but I'll bet she really doesn't care. I know it doesn't keep her awake at night.

But for those of us who profess to be grown-ups, you have to do that once in a while. Too often, it's not being able to figure out who we are that sends too many of us into hysterics.

There was only one bad part about the whole experience. This was the first time in nearly three years that we'd been in the woods. That's too long for anybody.

So the next time you call to complain about something or to ask me to explain my editorial policy, and I'm not here, have patience.

I'll probably be up in some secluded part of the woods, getting my head back on straight. If you'd like to get your head back where it should be, chances are I can find you a place in the woods, too.

County inches toward solid waste disposal plan

The Tuscola County Board of Commissioners inched closer to developing a county-wide solid waste disposal system Tuesday—but not much closer. Commissioner Maynard

McConkey presented a letter from the Hartley Pollution Control Co., of Kawkawlin, who indicated they could outline several plans for solid waste disposal in the county. The company, however, wants 30 days and $950 to develop a plan.

The board balked at passing a resolution giving Hartley the go-ahead. Instead, it wants to hear a representative of the firm explain what it proposes to do in person.

McConkey explained the board felt much of the information the firm needed was already available and wanted a personal contact with the firm before agreeing to finance a study of the problem.

The county is working to comply with state regulations mandating county-wide disposal systems. McConkey said there is no firm deadline for such a system and as long as the county can show it's working on the problem, it's safe.

Whatever happens at the county level will eventually be felt in Cass City, which operates its own landfill. To date, village officials are still waiting to hear from state authorities regarding the landfill license.

The facility earlier received approval to operate from the Thumb District Health Department.

It's still not clear whether or not Tuscola county will opt for a one-site system or multiple sites. If it does use more than one landfill, the Cass City facility could play a major role.

NLRB okays Provincial union

Cass City Provincial House employees will be represented by the Utility Workers of America, AFL-CIO, following a decision last week by the National Labor Relations Board.

The board turned down objections by Provincial House management who sought to have the election, held last March 7, nullified. Management officials had charged irregularities in the voting procedure and that alcoholic beverages were consumed at the election site.

Union representative Thomas Wojtala told the Chronicle Monday the decision clears the way for the election of officers and the start of collective bargaining with management.

He indicated officers would probably be chosen within the next two weeks. Currently, 70 employees are represented by the union.

Provincial House officials claimed a new election should be held because balloting was held at the same time and place that an NLRB agent was conducting an investigation of unfair labor practice charges filed by the union.

Betty Southard Murphy, NLRB chairperson who cast a negative vote in the 2-1 board ruling upholding the March 7 election, said the NLRB's neutrality in the case was jeopardized by the action.

Ms. Murphy also said free alcoholic drinks were offered by Wojtala to employees as they arrived and that some accepted.

Wojtala replied that he had offered off-duty employees either coffee or a drink, saying he would pick up the tab.

He said the action had no bearing on the outcome of the election, calling the objection "grabbing at straws" by Provincial House.

Provincial House officials in Lansing had no comment on the NLRB decision.

The action paves the way for collective bargaining at the 117-bed facility which has operated since October, 1973, without a labor contract.

Wojtala said the union remained "cautiously optimistic" that a settlement could be reached.

The Tuscola Soil Conservation District sponsored a land

Land judging contest held judging contest on the John Findlay farm near Caro recently with Millington, Cass City, Reese, Caro and Unionville-Sebewaing Schools participating, according to Leon Keinath, District Chairman.

Reese High School FFA placed first with Greg Ross, David Houghtaling and Elroy Roedel placing first, second and third respectively in their school. Second place went to Caro High School FFA with John Ezakovich, first; Greg Fessler, second; and James Murdoch and Jim Goodchild tied for third place in their school. Millington High School FFA was third with Terry Keinath, Bruce Hemingway and Dennis Rodamer placing first, second and third respectively in their school.

Terry Keinath of Millington was the high individual scorer for the county with Greg Ross of Reese placing second and David Houghtaling of Reese placing third.

Another potential fiscal trouble spot is the recently-passed state millage law which in effect "freezes" the number of dollars a municipal government may take in and eliminates automatic increases due to higher property valuations.

An increase in dollars can come only when millage is raised through a vote of the people, according to the law. Millages will actually be reduced as property values rise in order to keep the same number of dollars available to municipal governments.

Village looks for tight 1976 budget

While Cass City's budget problems are nowhere near as bad as New York City's, village council may be looking at a much tighter financial year in 1976. President Lambert Althaver told trustees Tuesday night.

No solid figures are yet available, Althaver said, but indications are good that revenue from two sources—state shared revenues and federal revenue sharing funds—may be substantially less.

Althaver cited part of the problem as the state's new single business tax which could all but eliminate personal property taxes. Ideally, these lost funds should be picked up in state shared revenues, Althaver said, but given the state's tight financial picture, the outlook isn't good.

The Federal Revenue Sharing act is due to expire next year and there is a chance the

A telephone bomb threat emptied Cass City High School around 9:00 a.m. Monday morning.

A search of the building by school authorities and Cass City Police failed to uncover a bomb, however.

High School Principal Russell Richards said the threat was received by a secretary in the office. Local police and Tuscola County Sheriff's officers were then notified, Richards said.

This is the second bomb threat received by the school in about five years, Richards added.

Want to buy a car?

Want to buy a car? Cass City village council has one to sell. They got the car thanks to the police department which picked it up as an abandoned vehicle last summer. Police Chief Gene Wilson explained the occupants of the car were apprehended last summer on a fugitive warrant. The driver had been holding the car in lieu of payment of a debt by the vehicle's owner, Wilson said.

Wilson said the owner's last known address is Mt. Clemens.

He told council the vehicle has been officially declared abandoned by the Secretary of State's office in Lansing, since the owner has not claimed the 1973 Mercury. State authorities have told village officials the car can legally be sold to the highest bidder.

The owner has until the day of the sale to claim the car, Wilson added.

BETTER HEALTH

By the sweat of their arms?

BY DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

Sweat used to be called "honest" and, although it is only the "sweat of the face" which has direct Biblical endorsement as the requirement to eat bread, the mark of a man has long been associated with his capacity to exert himself in honorable causes and, consequently, to sweat, or, as we now put it more genteelly, to perspire.

And not so long ago, the aromatic evidence of this physiological process, so long as it was not of too many days' duration, was not a cause for exclusion from polite society.

Ladies, of course, have always taken scrupulous care to "glow" only at the most, under stress. It is their sensibilities particularly that men these days are ordinarily urged not to offend. But their men, peers and colleagues have become equally sensitive, if the Madison Avenue types are to be believed.

As is well known to readers of the ads in magazines and newspapers, and to viewers of the television sequences in which the virility of an antiperspirant or cologne is extolled by a grunting, clearly not effeminate football quarterback, the national concern for keeping the underarm desert-dry is a vast and expensive business. It is a far cry from the days when a Saturday-night bath was considered an adequate concession to the social niceties.

Perhaps because of a lingering suspicion that all this palaver is somehow faintly precious, the ointments, sprays, roll-ons, liquids, powders and specially compounded soaps bear names that link them with manly and vigorous images.

But experts among doctors who specialize in skin problems (dermatologists) state categorically that the topical treatment of excessive sweating under the arms is "nine times out of ten, ineffective."

For the benefit of those who are troubled by underarm perspiration and would like to have a means of controlling it, Dr. W.B. Shelley and Dr. Harry J. Hurley of Philadelphia report that they have developed a method that is effective, apparently quite safe, easily applied and only requires to be done once each week.

Your doctor will find the details on page 1,257 of Vol. 233, No. 12, of the "Journal of the American Medical Association," Sept. 22, 1975.

He may already be quite familiar with the method of Drs. Shelley and Hurley, which is a nicely applied technique involving the use of well-established ingredients, without the encumbrances of football stars or the testimonials of professional models.

AROUND THE FARM

Food and energy

By William Bortel

Food is energy. Energy for us. Without food we could do nothing. In fact, we would not even be alive; most of us have not seen starvation although many people have starved or are starving now.

If we look back over history of man, archaeology tells us that for 99 per cent of the time man used tools, he did not have agriculture. He was a food gatherer, a successful predator, with a diet consisting mostly of meat.

About 10,000 B.C. the first plants were domesticated. Man shifted from meat to a predominately grain diet. This change immobilized large numbers of people. It tied them to the land they farmed. Agriculture had begun. It was the gestation of modern civilization and agriculture has continued to form the base of civilization every since.

Today, agriculture is food. We cannot all be Euell Gibbons and go out in the morning and forage for our breakfast. We must get our food directly or indirectly from the supermarket or other distribution centers, and this food is put there by agriculture.

We complain a bit about the high cost of food, but because earnings have gone up faster than food prices, food costs have gone down. We in the United States are better off than most people. The average American spends approximately 17 per cent of his income on food; in Western Europe it is 27 per cent; in Russia 45 per cent; and in some parts of Asia 75 per cent. These people have less than we do to spend on other things.

Agriculture is an energy trapping system. It collects energy from the sun and fixes it in the form of plant and animal products useful to man. In North America this fixation amounts to some 3-one-third thousand trillion calories a year.

The world's population boom shows no sign of slowing and food demands increase faster than population. For each person born into poor countries, there is an added demand of 400 pounds of grain per year. Because affluent people demand more and especially more meat, for each person born into developed countries, there is an added demand of about 1,800 pounds of grain or grain equivalent per year.

Today, American agriculture is a vital industry in a complex society. It is not the farms of our fathers and grandfathers that most of us visualize. While we have seen more changes in agriculture in the past 50 years than in the previous 25,000, the changes are now occurring at a very rapid rate.

American agriculture has been called upon to play a new role in history. Food is one of a very few products that we still have available for export, therefore American agriculture is going to be looked upon more than ever to provide food for other countries so that we can have a favorable balance of trade and therefore receive petroleum products.

Our country would be very limited without these petroleum products and we must be willing to sacrifice food for them.

As is well known to readers of the ads in magazines and newspapers, and to viewers of the television sequences in which the virility of an antiperspirant or cologne is extolled by a grunting, clearly not effeminate football quarterback, the national concern for keeping the underarm desert-dry is a vast and expensive business. It is a far cry from the days when a Saturday-night bath was considered an adequate concession to the social niceties.

Your neighbor says

Here's my quiet evening

After a hard day of earning a living or putting up with the kids, what's your idea of a quiet evening?

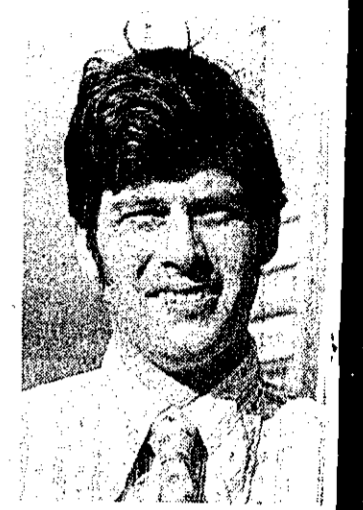

For Jim Belk of rural Cass City, a quiet evening is just that—quiet.

"For me, it means building a fire in the fireplace, popping some popcorn and just relaxing."

Belk says he and his wife also enjoy reading or just talking to each other after their five children are in bed for the evening.

"After you've been away all day, it's nice to just sit back and relax and catch up on everything with your wife," Belk says.

Sometimes, such an evening could include reading a bedtime story to one or more of their children.

The Belks have lived in the Cass City area since 1971, moving here from the Detroit area. He is employed as a systems analyst at Walbro Corp.

Miss Gallagher dies Saturday

Miss Adelina Gallagher, 85, Cass City, died Saturday after a short illness.

She was born March 19, 1890, in Elkland township, daughter of the late John and Louisa Krapf Gallagher.

She was an eighth-grade teacher in Cass City, and also taught in Marion and Highland Park, retiring in 1950 after 35 years of teaching.

She was a member of Trinity United Methodist church of Cass City for 73 years and a life member of the United Methodist Women. Miss Gallagher was also a member of the Retired Teachers Association.

She is survived by one brother, Albert Gallagher of Cass City; two sisters, Mrs. Ethyl Knight of Sterling and Mrs. Lena Johnson of Romeo, and six nieces and nephews. Two brothers and one sister preceded her in death.

Funeral services were held Tuesday from Little's Funeral Home with Rev. E.D.K. Isaacs, pastor of Trinity United Methodist church, officiating.

Burial was in Elkland cemetery.

SUPERINTENDENT'S STATEMENT

The financial condition of the school remained sound at the close of the 1974-1975 school year. Revenues and expenditures balanced within $704.

The debt retirement accounts have sufficient balances and all bonds and interest have been paid on schedule. There is a total of $50,275 in the Building and Site account to apply toward the purchase of the site between the High School and Intermediate School (former Donahue property).

No requests for additional millage are anticipated this year. A millage renewal election will be necessary in the spring to renew the 7½ mills that are expiring.

If anyone has questions regarding the audit or operation of the school, please do not hesitate to contact the Superintendent's office.

4-H ACTIVITIES

4-H looks

to the future

By Bernard Jardot

America's bicentennial period, which begins this year and extends into the 1980's, is an appropriate point in time to pause and reflect on our history, assess where we stand today, and look ahead to new horizons.

More than seven million young people across the country are doing just that during the coming year. In special observances keyed to the theme "4-H-'76... Spirit of Tomorrow," they'll be taking a close look at 4-H past, present and future.

4-H'ers have a proud heritage. The movement that became 4-H began around the turn of the century and grew out of a need to make education more practical and interesting to farm youth. The first 4-H projects - corn clubs for boys and canning clubs for girls - offered enriching, real-life learning experiences not provided by rural schools of the era.

Projects have changed through the years as the faces of 4-H'ers have changed. But the basic "learn by doing" concept still holds and has wide appeal. Today's 4-H members take part in activities that range from animal care to environmental improvement to photography and bicycle care and safety. Although 4-H continues to serve the needs of rural youth, it has also proved viable in the cities: 17 per cent of 4-H members live in large urban and suburban areas. And 4-H'ers come from all racial, ethnic and socioeconomic backgrounds.

In challenging young people to make the best better, the head-heart-hands-health program prepares them to assume the responsibilities of adulthood in a changing society.

Thybault

named to

DAR award

John Thybault, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thybault of 584 Walsh Rd., Gageton, has been selected to receive the DAR Good Citizenship Award for the 1975-76 school year. Owen-Gage School officials announced this week.

JOHN THYBAULT

The award is presented annually by the Ezra Parker Chapter of the DAR.

Thybault participates in football, basketball and track, is a member of the varsity club and was president of his Sophomore and Junior class.

He is president of the student council and last summer was sponsored to Wolverine Boys' State by the American Legion of Sebewaing, Owendale Lions Club and the Gageton Athletic Club.

The award is based on qualities of dependability, service, leadership and patriotism.

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies are continuing to investigate a breaking and entering at a cabin on Gilford Road, a half-mile west of Kingston Road in Novesta township, Sunday.

Deputies said the cabin is owned by Leszek Sulanowski of Detroit.

Taken were two cots with mattresses and a wheelbarrow. The property was valued at $55.

Deputies said entry was gained by kicking in a door on the front of the cabin.

Sulanowski told officers he had been at the cabin about four weeks ago and found everything in order. Police have no suspects.

Ublj Police investigated the theft of an auto owned by Dennis Janowiak, which was discovered resting against a tree on M-19 in Ublj, Saturday.

Police said the front end of the vehicle apparently struck a tree when thieves attempted to steal it. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $300.

Police have no suspects.

Vandals reportedly damaged 11 mailboxes along a stretch of Unionville Road near Unionville, Sunday.

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies said flags and doors on the boxes were twisted off and destroyed.

Police have no suspects.

Governor sends 'must do' list to legislature

Capitol corridors brim once again with legislators and lobbyists. Press release machines grind ever busily. Aides pursue this or that for their bosses.

The legislature is back in Lansing.

After a two-month recess, lawmakers returned to finish the business of Michigan for another year.

In a special message greeting lawmakers recently, Gov. William Milliken listed many "must do" items.

Included were a construction bonding program, a housing bonding program, a transportation program, creation of a job development authority, ironing out problems with workmen's compensation and implementation of recommendations submitted by the Michigan Economic Action Council, a top-level group which proposed numerous short-term ideas for boosting the state's economy.

Action on those items alone would fill a very busy schedule, especially one that must be interrupted along about Thanksgiving for a hunting season break.

Thus, only time will tell if the House and Senate will move on a recommendation of the Advisory Commission to the Office of Substance Abuse Services to revise the penalties for marijuana possession.

Current law provides for a maximum of $100 fine and 90 days in jail for marijuana use, and a maximum of $1,000 fine and one year in jail for possession and distribution without remuneration.

The commission suggested a maximum $100 fine—and no jail sentence—for possession of 30 grams (about one ounce) or less of marijuana.

The proposal has the support of the Michigan Council on Alcohol Problems, which notes that Oregon, California, Maine, Colorado, Alaska and Ohio already have made similar moves.

"Michigan ought to be added to the list before lawmakers adjourn their 1975 session," the council says.

Books and more books

Nearly 33 million books and other materials—that's four for every Michigan resident who's school-age or over—were borrowed from the state's local and regional public libraries last year!

How many were not returned?

That's unknown, at least at the state level.

Dale Pretzer, deputy state librarian, says there are no overall statistics on the loss rate for the 364 libraries. Each keeps its own records and those records vary in degree of specificity.

Library statistics, reported through the State Board of Education, show the four-book-per-person average was a slight drop from the nearly 36 million books, periodicals, newspapers and audio-visual materials circulated in 1973.

But there were more items to borrow.

Public libraries had well over 18 million volumes available for their patrons in early 1974, up nearly two million from the previous year. There also were 477,666 other items, including records and tapes.

ATTENTION HUNTERS

Ask before you traipse across private property in search of prey.

That's the word from B. Dale Ball, Michigan's agriculture director. Ball says that most hunting in the state is on privately owned farm or forest land — "a privilege to be enjoyed only with permission from the landowners."

"Hunters who neglect to take time to ask permission are the ones responsible for increasing posting of land against hunting," he says.

Many farm owners do allow hunting on request, but they may also lay down restrictions about hunting near their crops and livestock.

Ball also warns that "inconsiderate use" such as cars, dune buggies, motorbikes and snowmobiles, can be especially harmful to crops, trees and may contribute to damaging soil erosion.

MORE OUTDOOR NEWS

More chicks in Dansville mean more pheasants in put-take areas this pheasant season.

The Department of Natural Resources reports a higher-than-expected production of chicks at its pheasant facilities near Dansville. So 8,000 more birds than expected are to be released in southern Michigan's 17 put-take areas.

So some 68,000 birds are available during the put-take season, which runs through Nov. 14 and Dec. 1 - Jan. 4.

NEWS FROM District Court

Three counts of uttering and publishing bad checks were dismissed this week in Tuscola County District Court against John Mogan, Cass City.

In dismissing the charges, Judge Richard Kern noted that restitution had been made in each case.

Flowers moves to Imlay City

Robert Flowers of Cass City, a Construction Supervisor for General Telephone at Cass City, has been transferred to Imlay City as Supply Supervisor, according to C.R. Kowalski, Division Manager for the company.

Kowalski said the move was associated with the company's recent reorganization of its engineering and construction functions. His new responsibilities include supervision of the central warehouses in Imlay City and Davison.

Hired as a lineman at Imlay City in 1969, Flowers was promoted to field engineer in 1971. He was transferred to Davison in 1973 and to Cass City as Construction Supervisor in January 1975.

Lost opportunities seldom find their way back to home base.

Public sanction and approval are indispensable factors in any lasting victory.

Her brother realizes that. And so do my wife and I... most of the time. But sometimes Sunday mornings mean a ride in the country... sleeping late... receiving guests. Something, every Sunday.

Then one day, watching her trying to read, I realized that filling her mind and heart and soul is a continuous process. It can't be restricted to days of the week.

So Sundays in church have become part of our life style. We all are finding new insights, strengthening our faith, discovering ourselves and God.

Our little girl needs help. To this Christian family that's the understatement of the year!

'Alice didn't' go on strike in Cass City Wednesday

By Jim Ketchum
The key slogan for Wednesday's nationwide Strike Day for women, sponsored by the National Organization for Women (NOW), was "Alice doesn't!"

But judging from a random survey taken by the Chronicle prior to the event, odds are good that "Alice did"—at least in Cass City anyway. The overwhelming majority of women contacted disapproved of the strike and most felt the issue really didn't exist.

The thrust of the strike was to have all women simply stop everything they normally did, be it parenting, housekeeping or a job.

The idea was to focus attention on problems of discrimination and inequality women's organizations claim is suffered each year in the United States.

The idea just about fell flat in Cass City, however.

"I think the whole thing is stupid," Mrs. Enid Craig, secretary in the Cass City School Superintendent's office said. "It's dumb. I think it's a lot of nonsense."

Mrs. Craig said she doesn't think women are discriminated against and added that she thinks her life is probably better because she is a woman.

"I enjoy having doors opened for me," she commented. "I like being a woman. If these women who are protesting think they've got it bad, they should go to other countries and see just how good they really have it here."

Mrs. Marilyn Schrinel who works in the administrator's office at Hills and Dales General Hospital, says she doesn't believe the strike will

"You don't need to make a spectacle of yourself to prove you're important. If you know inside that you're equal, you don't need to carry a banner."

accomplish anything. But she does believe discrimination among women exists.

"I'd rather see women using other methods rather than a nationwide strike," she said.

But she sees the battle of the feminists and anti-feminists as useful.

"You need two extremes to reach a medium point and I think this is what will eventually come about," Mrs. Schrinel said.

She believes that women can get ahead in society using the old-fashioned work ethic.

"If you work hard enough, you will succeed," she said. "In hospital work, there's less evidence of discrimination because most hospital employees are women."

Mrs. Harold Prong, a minister's wife, believes a woman's place is still in the home and doesn't approve of any kind of strikes, especially the women's strike. She thinks many instances of discrimination against women are brought on by women themselves.

"I feel my place is beside my husband," she said. "I've never been trampled on by him and I don't think I've ever tried to be lord over him."

She acknowledges that years ago, women were taken advantage of, especially in low-paying jobs. She recalled working as a waitress for 30 cents an hour plus tips.

"I sometimes think that if I could have made back then what waitresses get now, I could have retired," she said. "But as far as the woman's role, I think her lot is a set one."

Mrs. Aime Ouvry, a part-time working mother in her husband's car dealership, says she is a woman's-libber as far as equal pay for equal work is concerned but opposes the strike.

"It (the strike) is not something I would participate in," she said. "I don't think a strike is necessary if there is good communication between men and women."

Mrs. Ouvry, mother of eight, says she's fortunate in having a husband who understands the problems of managing a large household and that he takes his share of the

"I'm sure there are a good number of male chauvinists around who wouldn't have anything to do with helping to raise the family or with helping women be treated as equals," she said. "But if there's communication, many of the problems can be overcome."

FAMILY MOST IMPORTANT

Family ties are the most important part of being a woman, according to Dorothy Stahlbaum, a working mother who owns and operates her own clothing store in Cass City.

"No matter what the job is, it can't come before the family," Mrs. Stahlbaum said. "If it ever came down to a choice of either keeping my shop and losing my family or keeping my family and losing the shop, there really wouldn't be any choice."

She says NOW is going overboard with the strike and calls it "foolishness."

"Sure, I'm for equal pay for equal work," she said, "but something like this is going way, way too far. You don't need to make a spectacle of yourself to prove you're important. If you know inside that you're equal, you don't need to carry a banner."

She says she doesn't feel impeded because she's a woman.

"Besides, what's wrong with feeling like a woman?" she said. "I think there's nothing wrong with feeling feminine."

Ms. Brenda Breidinger, teacher at Cass City High School, believes discrimination still exists against women, but isn't sure a national strike is the proper way to tackle the problem.

Ms. Breidinger, who has pushed for a wider women's sports program in the school district, says discrimination against women participating in sports is lessening.

"They aren't looked down upon anymore if they do participate," she said.

FASHION PLATE. Michigan motorists can buy this 1976 Bicentennial license plate (top) displayed by Automobile Club of Michigan secretary Gail Mullins beginning Nov. 17 at Department of State and 51 Auto Club offices in the state. The red, white and blue license plates, which also may be purchased by mail, will help Michigan observe the nation's Bicentennial. Gail, properly attired in a turn-of-the-century motoring outfit, sits behind the wheel of a 1909 Model T at Dearborn's Henry Ford Museum. This was the first year for the classic Ford car. The 1910 license plate held by Gail is the first porcelain plate produced in Michigan. To buy 1976 plates, motorists must have either the prepared renewal form being mailed to most vehicle owners by the Department of State, last year's registration or the certificate of vehicle title (proof of ownership). Proof of public liability and property damage insurance also is needed. The new license plate must be displayed on passenger cars by April 1.

Evans workers okay contract

Employees of Evans Products Co., Gagetown, ratified a new three-year contract in voting held Tuesday. The employees, represented by local 6368 of the United Steel Workers, will receive an increase of 96 cents in wages and fringe benefits over the life of the agreement. Company officials said the final vote showed 37 yes votes and six no votes. A total of 75 employees will be affected by the new contract, company officials said. The agreement takes effect Nov. 1. Negotiations had been under way approximately three weeks prior to Tuesday's ratification vote.

Art show was big hit

Oct. 23, 1975

Mr. John Haire, Publisher
Cass City Chronicle
Cass City, Mich. 48726

Dear Mr. Haire:

We want to thank you very much for granting us permission to reprint your Larry MacPhail story in Biography News.

We have included the customary credit line acknowledging the Chronicle origin of the article, and will be sending you our Sept.-Oct. 75 issue, in which it is printed, upon publication—in about 4 weeks.

Again, we certainly appreciate your cooperation in what we believe to be useful and worthwhile library reference tool.

Cordially,

Barbara Nykoruk
Associate Editor
Biography News

October 27, 1975

To The Editor;

Have just returned from a visit to the Cultural Center where the Art Council has on display many different forms of art. It was a thrill to view such a lovely and varied display. Much credit must be given to the committee that was in charge. The placing there of different art objects was done in excellent taste. It was great to see so many newcomers to Cass City contributing their talents and efforts to the Cultural benefit of this community. It should be an annual event so as to encourage more people to participate in the arts.

A big vote of thanks should be given to the Village for keeping the building in such fine condition. Credit should be given to Jim Ware for staying with the project so youth groups of the village have room for their activities in the upstairs.

I am sure the original Cultural Center board; Mr. W.E. Walpole, Horace Bolen, James Ware, Clinton House, Ed Golding, and myself are more than compensated for our struggle to restore one of Cass City's oldest landmarks. Thanks to all that have made this project a success.

Sincerely,

Lucile I. Bauer

Flint, Frankenmuth offer contrasts for state tourists

Flint and Frankenmuth are two communities with just about as much contrast as you'll find, yet each has its own distinctive appeal, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Since they're only 26 miles apart, the highlights of each can be seen in a day, but at least two days are recommended for best sightseeing," says Joseph Ratke, Auto Club touring manager.

Flint, third largest city in the state and birthplace of General Motors, includes an outstanding cultural center, plant tours and automotive landmarks among its attractions. Frankenmuth, 1.5 per cent the size of Flint, focuses its visitor appeal on attractions connected with its German heritage.

"The Flint Cultural Center, only five minutes from downtown, consists of three top attractions," Ratke points out.

The Flint Institute of Arts, housed in the Enos A. and Sarah DeWaters Art Center, has been catering to the art interests of the area since 1930. The Institute is known for its Renaissance decorative arts, Chinese paintings, bronzes, jades, 18th and 19th century European glass and 19th and 20th century French and American painting and sculpture. It offers an extensive educational program and special annual exhibition.

The Robert T. Longway Planetarium offers regularly changing sky shows throughout the year. The roof serves as an observation tower where telescopes are available to the public during the summer months.

The Alfred P. Sloan Jr. Museum, dedicated in 1966 after years of planning and research, traces Flint's automotive history through displays, artifacts and an outstanding exhibit of antique cars. A popular exhibit is "Moments in the American Past," which features three-dimensional scenes of Flint, state and national history.

Flint's automotive plants, like those in Detroit and other Michigan cities, are closed during model changeover. Some also have reduced visitor schedules in effect this summer due to curtailed production. Buick assembly plant, Fisher Body plant of GM, the Chevrolet plant and AC Spark Plug usually offer tours but it's advisable to check first to determine which are in operation and the tour hours.

If viewing automotive landmarks is to your liking, Flint has many surviving today. At 423 E. Kearsley St., once Flint's most fashionable avenue and near the downtown area, is the former home of Albert Champion, who began manufacturing spark plugs in 1908. Champion lived in the house from 1912-16, afterwards moving to his last home, Applewood, at 1400 E. Kearsley.

Perhaps the most interesting historic structure in Flint's industrial history is the Durant-Dort Carriage Co. office building on West Water Street. Built in the 1890s, it was headquarters of the carriage company which W.C. Durant boosted into the largest volume producer of carriages by the turn of the century.

The Sloan Museum can help visitors learn more about Flint automotive sites.

Flint's famous chicken dinners, German sausage, cheese and Christmas ornaments and displays from many parts of the world at Bronner's, an every-day-is-Christmas showplace, draw visitors the year-around. The Bavarian Inn features Glockenspiel Tower, with a 35-bell carillon. The inn is famous for its chicken dinners as is Zehnder's Hotel across the street.

Visitors should be sure to see Bronner's Tannenbaum Shop, with its year-around display of Christmas decorations, the world's largest. Prices range from a few cents to hundreds of dollars. If you're looking for a Christmas wonderland, this is it. There is no admission charge.

Flint's German heritage has become a town trademark. Even the local bank sports a high-sloped room with carved gables, and in most stores, clerks wear Black Forest garb.

Here is a partial list of other Frankenmuth specialty stores: the Schnitzelbank Shop, with its resident wood carver; Kern's and Rupprecht's, both featuring homemade sausages; the Glass Haus, where you can see glass blowers at work; the nostalgic Rau's Country Store; the Village Store, with its large selection of Black Forest cuckoo clocks, and the Cheese Haus.

REGULAR MEETING OF THE CASS CITY VILLAGE COUNCIL

The regular meeting of the Cass City Village Council was held on September 30, 1975, at the Municipal Building. All Trustees were present.

The minutes of the regular August meeting were read and approved.

A motion was made by Trustee Bliss and supported by Trustee Tuttle to extend the collection date of taxes to October 15, 1975. Motion carried.

It was noted that a petition was received from residents on Houghton Street between West and Brooker Streets for curb and gutter.

A motion was made by Trustee Rawson and supported by Trustee Hampshire that the recommendations of Prime, Toshach & Associates Inc., to alter pool specifications at a cost of $8,345.00 above bid subject to the review and final approval of Item B by the Park and Recreation Committee be approved. Motion carried.

A motion was made by Trustee Rawson and supported by Trustee Ware to authorize the appointment of E.B. Schwaderer as Contract Superintendent of the bath house. Motion carried.

After discussion with Gerald Prieskorn, representative of the Retail Division of the Chamber of Commerce, a motion was made by Trustee Tuttle and supported by Trustee Jones that the merchants be asked to answer the letter received from the Department of Natural Resources with the alternative, "I wish to discuss the matter in more detail, please contact," and to direct the Village Superintendent to set up a meeting with the State, County and local officials to discuss the question of landfill and solid waste disposal, inviting all other interested parties. Motion carried.

It was reported that we are proceeding with our Step I grant for Wastewater expansion.

A motion was made by Trustee Bliss and supported by Trustee Hampshire that the action of the previous meeting to disapprove acceptance of Outlots A & B, Countryview Haven Subdivision, be rescinded and they be accepted as is. Motion carried.

A motion was made by Trustee Bliss and supported by Trustee Rawson that the bills as examined be approved for payment. Motion carried.

A motion was made by Trustee Tuttle and supported by Trustee Jones that the recommendations of the Department of Natural Resources to make available parking spaces for the handicapped be complied with in order to complete final payment from the State of the facility building. Motion carried.

A motion was made by Trustee Jones and supported by Trustee Ware that Tom Herron be allowed to defer curb and gutter in Hillcrest Subdivision until the summer of 1976 even though some construction may begin in the fall of 1975. Motion carried.

A motion was made by Trustee Rawson and supported by Trustee Jones that the recommendation of the Planning Commission to approve the preliminary plat of Hills & Dales No. 4 be accepted. Motion carried.

A motion was made by Trustee Tuttle and supported by Trustee Ware that the budgeted donation of $2,400.00 to Rawson Memorial Library be approved for payment. Motion carried.

It was noted that the Wastewater Treatment Plant received an award of honor approved safety award for no lost time accidents in 1972, 1973 and 1974.

On behalf of the Village Council, President Althaver expressed appreciation to Dick Donahue for the use of his equipment in leveling the park area.

A motion was made by Trustee Hampshire and supported by Trustee Jones that 50 trees to be planted along the road to the new pool be purchased. Motion carried.

A motion was made by Trustee Ware and supported by Trustee Rawson to accept a simplified financial report showing only income and expenditures. Motion carried.

There being no further business a motion was made by Trustee Ware and supported by Trustee Jones that the meeting be adjourned. Motion carried.

Caro man pleads to larceny

A Caro man will be sentenced Dec. 8 after pleading guilty to larceny in a building at the start of his jury trial in Tuscola County Circuit Court Thursday.

Allen Popp, 27, was originally charged with breaking and entering, larceny in a building and carrying a concealed weapon. He was accused of entering the Ray Briggs residence in Caro, Oct. 13, 1974.

Judge Martin Clements accepted the plea.

Milliken sets special Arbela vote

Gov. William G. Milliken has issued a call for a special election to fill a vacancy caused by the death of the Arbela Township Clerk in Tuscola county.

Township Clerk Amos Hoard died Aug. 3 and the Township Board failed to appoint a successor within the required 45 days.

Under Milliken's call, nominating petitions must be filed by 4 p.m. Friday. The election is scheduled Dec. 16.

What building recession? Cass City booms with 3 major contracts

FROM THIS mixer the liquid cement goes into the hose, visible at bottom of picture, and then to the construction site 50 feet or more away.

There is a recession in the building industry but you would have a hard time finding it in Cass City.

There are three major jobs under way now in town and each has features that make it unique to all of us not up to the minute in the construction business.

One is at Wickes Corp. elevator at the west end of Main Street. The second is at the Cass City Intermediate School grounds and the third is the construction of the new pool.

If you want to provoke a hearty laugh ask Don Poe, of Upper Sandusky, Ohio, the construction boss for Ruttman Construction Co., about the recession.

I've had only five days off in four years, he says, and the same is true of the crews that have been working with me.

What he didn't say, but it doesn't take a genius to figure out is that you just do not go down to the corner employment agency and pick any man available for the kind of work his crew does.

The 130-foot silos that the men are working on here are merely child's play. After all when you compare 130 feet with 1,400-foot-high smokestacks routinely worked on they aren't all that high.

Unless you happen to get on top and start looking down. But the workers really don't have much time to be looking down. They are busy, busy. Busy pushing dollies at a trot on the 20-inch wide planking that serves as the working base on top.

Despite the nature of the work there are no bonuses for working aloft. The men receive the normal wages as specified in a United Mine Workers contract.

Poe's been on his job nine years, but his crew is relatively new. All are in their first year. Not because of the work but because a new crew was formed last year, with a new foreman named from among the workers, leaving Poe the task of breaking in a new group.

These are really good workers, he emphasized. All classified A or B (The union ranks workers as class A, B or C.

What about the hazards? Not so great, says Poe, quick to point out that in his nine years not one has been killed on the job. The worst injury was a broken arm when a man fell 12 feet, he said with a grin.

But there is danger, make no mistake about it. There have been "three or four" fatal accidents among the 17 crews on various jobs for Ruttman in Poe's nine years.

Poe estimates that the work in Cass City will last another four weeks. A lot depends on the weather. A strong wind or rain closes the job down immediately. Rain is bad, Poe said, because the scaffolds tend to get oily and rain makes them super slick. Wind is an obvious hazard and nearly closed down operations last Thursday, which was a beautiful day on the ground, you'll remember.

The weather is fine now.

But good or bad the work goes on. In winter chloride is added to the cement and heaters are started to keep going. A winter day is just another work day.

EARTH MOVERS

There's another construction crew in Cass City which is equally as impressive as Ruttman and company . . . as impressive but not nearly as dangerous.

It's Doug Anglin Co. of Novi, Mi.

It's a three-man operation and is making short work of moving some 50,000 yards of dirt to make a playground area. The men pulled in on Monday, Oct. 20, and the bulk of the dirt was moved by Saturday night.

The company did it with just three machines. Two turnapulls and a big bulldozer are used. The turnapulls are as big as any manufactured, says Anglin, and each can haul 44 yards of dirt at a crack.

The heavy clay at the site required the bulldozer which was used as an auxiliary power source, pushing the big earth movers as they sucked away giant portions of terrain.

The dirt is moved perhaps 150 yards. In one working day of 10 hours the men estimate that 8,000 yards are moved. That's enough to cover a football field with a layer of dirt five feet high.

The first step was removing the top soil into a giant pile north of the work area. When the ground was leveled to specifications the top soil mountain was restored.

Running these giants doesn't come cheap. The units burn diesel fuel and probably burn enough oil in a day to keep a small home supplied all winter. About 600 gallons pour through the three machines and Anglin has its own bulk tank on the site to keep them supplied.

After the work is completed the ground will be seeded.

SWIMMING POOL

Building the swimming pool at Cass City is a blast. Really, a blast. The cement is poured through a large hose attached directly to the cement mixer located 50 feet or more away.

Using this system the floor and the walls of the pool are already nearing completion. Also hard at work keeping pace with the pool builders is Herron Builders, Inc., who has been hired by the village to erect the bath house.

NO IT'S NOT A RADAR SCREEN. It's the top of the Wickes silo now under construction as it looks from the ground on the inside. It's a long way up (and down) but the workers don't seem to mind.

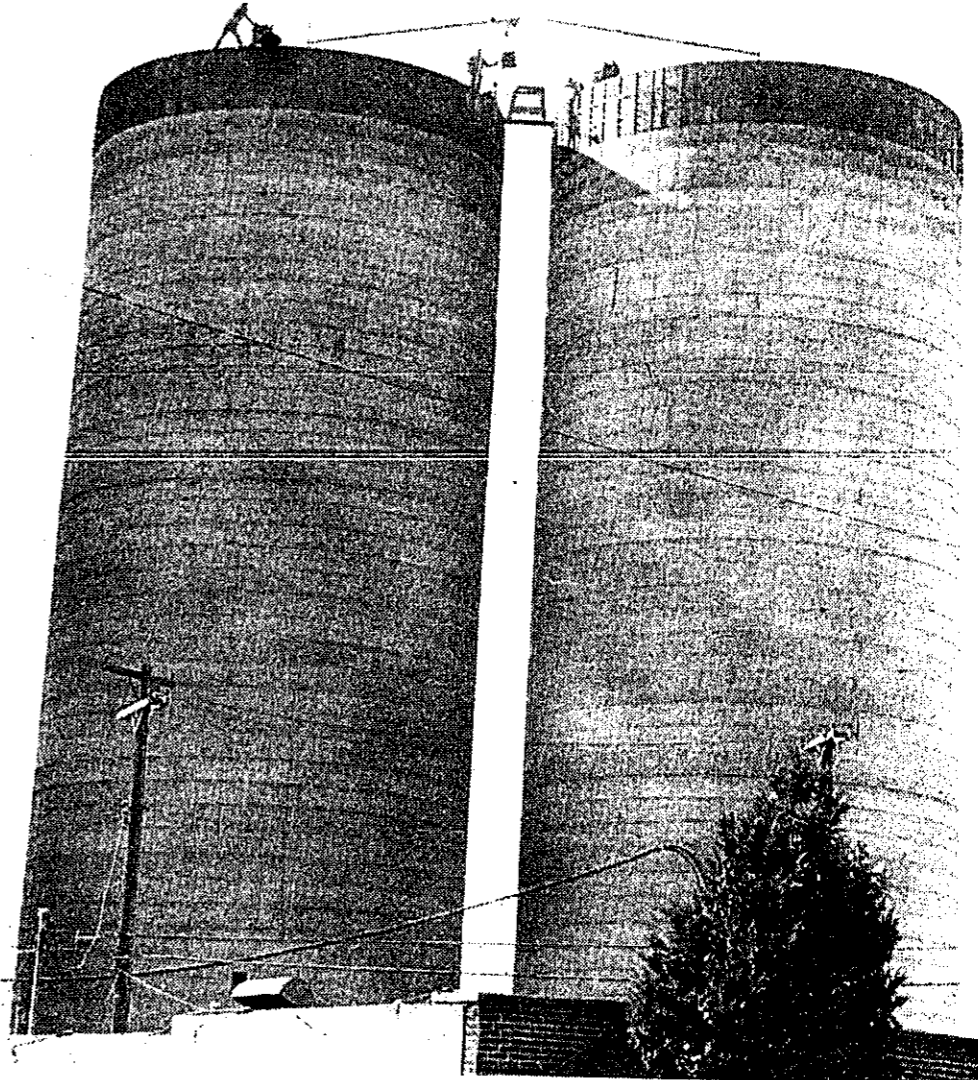

THIS IS THE WAY the cement for the new swimming pool is "poured". The system is quick. Eighty 94-pound bags of cement per hour go on the wall of the pool. The entire job will take an estimated 1,100 bags.

THE WORKER ON the right is smoothing the cement wall after the cement is shot on with the high pressure hose. Note the hose on the pool floor. It stretches to a mixer to the left not visible in the photo.

IT'S REALLY EASY, says Don Poe in his soft southern Ohio drawl when asked about working on skyscrapers. He's been at it nine years with never a fatal accident.

THAT WORKER you can just discern is pushing that dolly at a near trot. He's doing it on a 20-inch scaffolding, too.

DOUG ANGLIN says he didn't buy it new. But this earth mover cost $325,000 when it was manufactured. It's the largest of its kind and in that hopper is 44 yards of dirt.

place at 11:30 a.m. Several other property damage accidents, including two car-deer mishaps were reported.

A car driven by John Charles Zawilinski, 23, of 5283 Schwegler Rd., Cass City, struck and killed a deer on Deckerville Road near the Colwood Road intersection early Saturday morning. Caro State Police said Zawilinski could not swerve to miss the animal due to a bridge abutment nearby. Zawilinski was not injured. The accident took place at 3:15 a.m.

Oscar George Chantiny, 39, of 4074 Hurds Corner Rd., Kingston, escaped injury when the car he was driving struck a deer on M-46, six miles northwest of Vassar, Friday morning. Caro State Police said the deer ran from the south side of the road into the path of the vehicle. The accident took place at 7:10 a.m.

Guy J. Howard, 18, Cass City, escaped serious injury Sunday afternoon when the car he was driving went out of control and landed in a ditch on Elkton Road at Rescue Road.

Howard told Huron County Sheriff's deputies he was northbound and attempted to steer clear of another northbound auto which had stopped to make a left turn.

Howard was not hospitalized. The accident took place at 12:45 p.m. Two drivers escaped injury in a property damage accident that took place Monday on Cedar Drive near Doerr Road in Cass City. Tuscola County Sheriff's officers said a car driven by Laurelei Ann Wright, 19, of 6196 Cedar Dr., was backing from a driveway and collided with an eastbound auto driven by Suzanne Lorraine Custer, 25, of 6268 Cedar Dr.

Ms. Wright told officers she did not see the Custer vehicle approaching. No ticket was issued. The accident took place at 3:45 p.m. Cass City Police reported a minor hit-and-run accident Saturday in the south alley behind Main Street.

Linda Roberts of 6424 Main St., reported her vehicle was struck in the left rear fender sometime between 10:30 and 11:00 p.m.

Police said they have no suspects.

Hawks stun Frankenmuth with last half rally, 21-17

Despite their upset victory over Frankenmuth last Friday the Cass City Red Hawks will be underdogs when they play at Sandusky this Friday in the final Thumb B Conference game of the year.

But the picture is brighter now, following the 21-17 decision over the Eagles who were tied for the league lead before falling to a hard hitting Cass City attack. The Hawks won it in the dying moments of the game... the same way they lost the previous two games.

Cass City could make it a respectable season with another peak effort against the Redskins. It's too late, much too late, to do anything about challenging for the loop crown, but a win this Friday would at least keep the year from becoming a total disaster.

That's because the visitors started off with a rush and completely dominated the first period.

The first time the Eagles got the ball, Dave vonBehren riddled the Hawks' defense with passes in the flat and over the center. The touchdown came midway through the opening period on a seven-yard pass to Brad Keller. That was the first and last sustained drive for Frankenmuth.

It took a couple of errors for the visitors to put 3 more points on the scoreboard in the first period.

Hawk Quarterback Tom Smentek made an errant pitch to Ken Lowe and the loose ball was gobbled up by the Eagles. The league leaders pushed the ball down to the Hawk 25 before the drive stalled. VonBehren tried a field goal that was wide. But Cass City was offside and vonBehren split the uprights on his second try.

Things looked bleak for Cass City, trailing by 10 with only about two-thirds of the first period played.

There were plenty of long faces along the sidelines where the dads were seated in a special section.

But the Hawks refused to fold. Paced by some bruising running by Ken Lowe the Hawks moved the ball down the field on the next series and scored. Lowe bulled over from the two.

Now the score was 10-7 and Cass City was back in the game.

But it took the Eagles just about 30 seconds to get the score back.

VonBehren tossed a bomb that went about 35 yards in the air to end Gary Grank behind the Hawk secondary and he romped on in for a touchdown in a play that covered 69 yards.

The key play in the game came early.

The Eagles were moving down the field, mostly through the air and had a first down on the Cass City six when they fumbled and Kirt Kendall fell on the ball.

Cass City started to move. Lowe and Wayne Brooks picked up yardage in big chunks through big holes in the line. Brooks smashed over from the four.

Now the margin was back to three points again but time was fleeting.

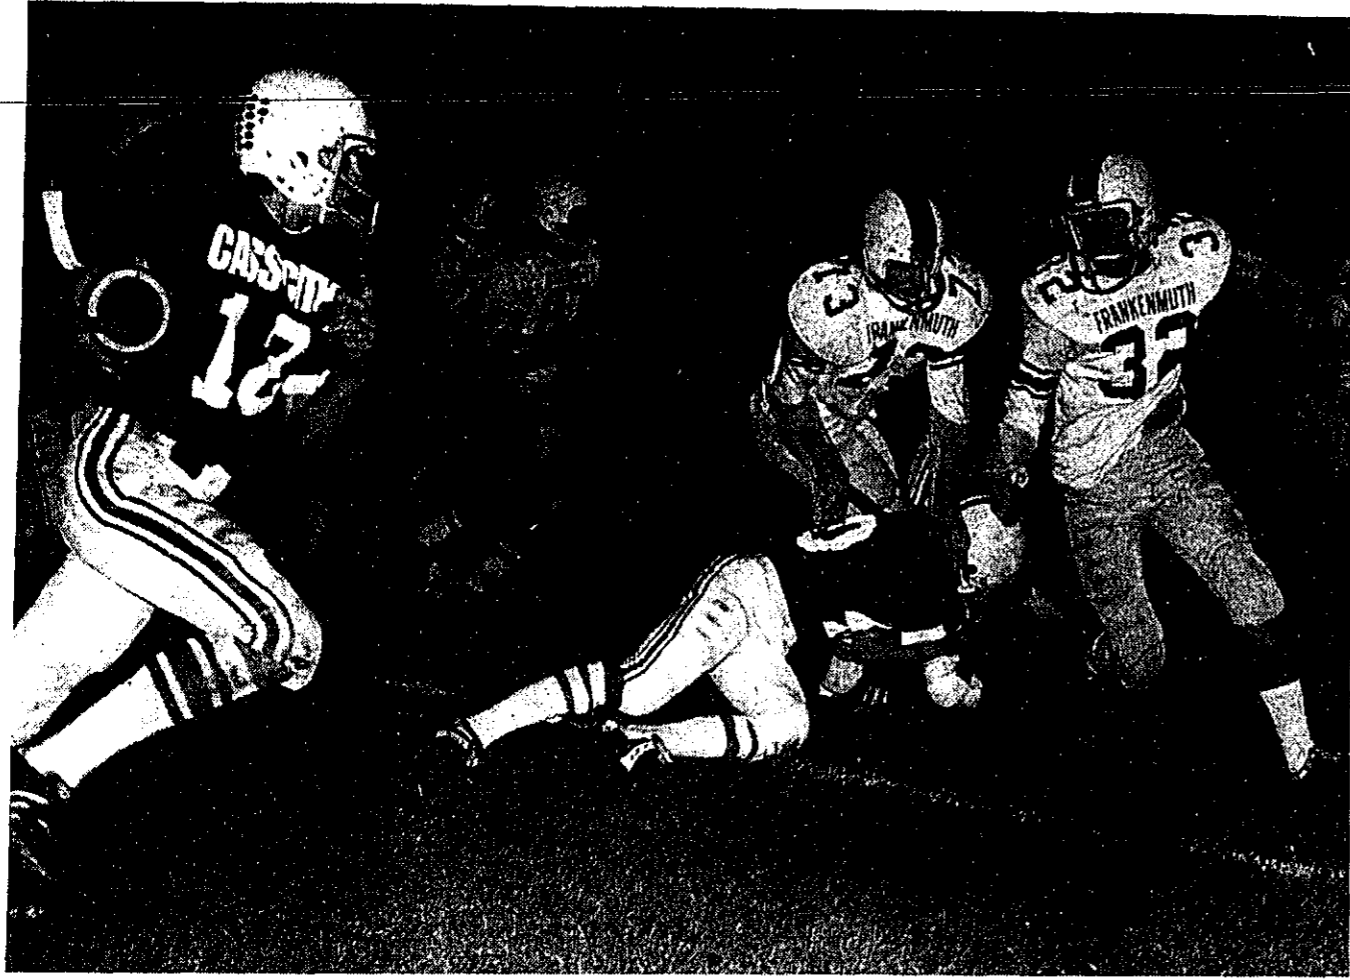

Neither team was about to mount a sustained drive. Frankenmuth had the ball deep in its own territory and decided to get out by passing. Ron Sieradzki was there to intercept and Cass City had the ball deep in Frankenmuth territory. It was an opportunity that the Hawks didn't waste. They drove steadily down the field for a first on the one-yard line. Two plays later Lowe dashed off tackle for the marker and the victory.

Guy Howard played his usual strong defensive game with seven solo tackles and eight assists. Ken Lowe picked up 153 yards in 35 carries.

Paul Harmer kicked four of five field goal tries.

The Freshmen have concluded their season and the JV's play their final game Thursday night at home against Sandusky.

TOM SMENTEK succeeded in turning the corner on this play and ran for a good gain in the Hawks' victory over the Eagles.

Frosh end perfect season

JV squad bombed by Frankenmuth passes

The Cass City Junior Varsity fell to a last half Frankenmuth grid attack last Thursday and lost its third game of the year, 30-6. The game was a reverse of the Freshman game the night before when Cass City's undefeated Frosh rallied from an 8-7 halftime deficit to win 34-8.

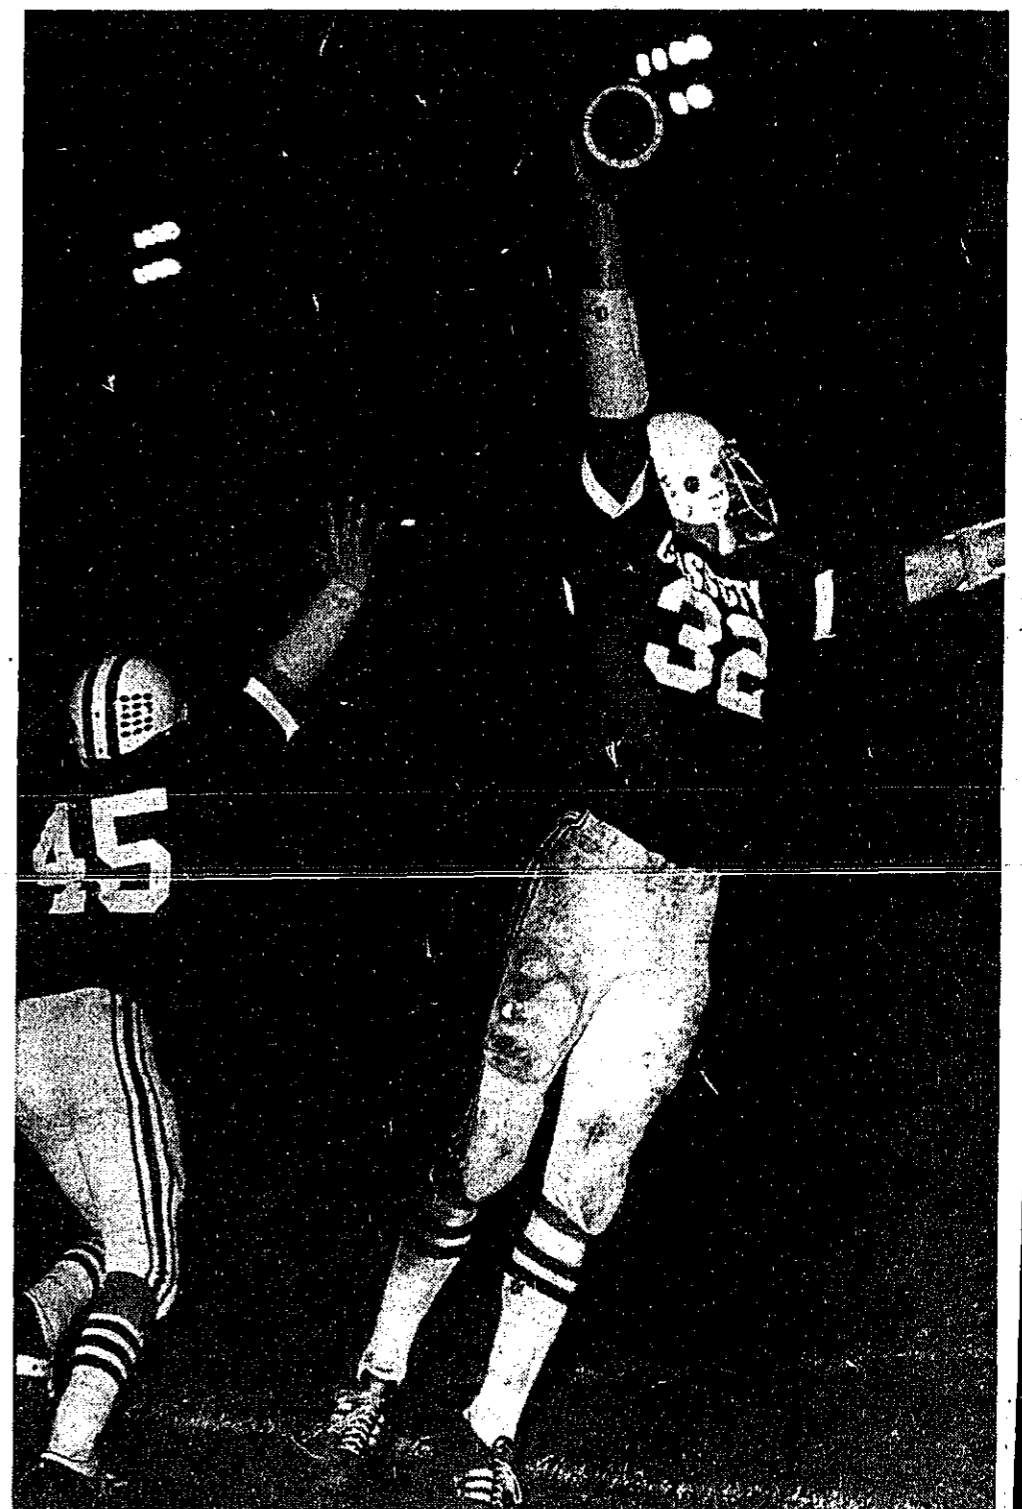

The Junior Varsity could not stop the air attack of the Eagle squad.

Passes accounted for all of the winners' score as they moved from a halftime lead of 14-6 to the final victory margin.

Cass City's only score came on a 60-yard gallop by Clarke Haire behind fine blocking. The Hawks moved to the one-yard line with a first down but were unable to push the ball across.

The Freshman scored first in the opening quarter as Robin Buschlen scored on a 25-yard run. The big Hawk back injured his knee early and saw no action for most of HOW SWEET IT IS! - Ken Lowe celebrates after dashing into the end zone with the winning touchdown in the Hawks' upset of Frankenmuth. Number 45 is Tom Dorland.

Eagle tilt crucial for Hawk girls

Cass City's Girls' basketball team racked up two more wins this past week in home contests and moved into sole possession of second place in league standings, defeating Bad Axe Monday night 61-55 and Vassar last Wednesday, Oct. 22, by a 53-33 score.

In Monday night's contest, the Hawks led all the way, shooting a respectable 41 per cent from the floor. Vicky Lapp led all Hawk scorers with 20 points, followed closely by Lisa Zimba with 18 points and Elaine Stoutenburg with 12. Ms. Zimba also hauled down 18 rebounds.

For Bad Axe, Carol Cornet led all scorers with 24 points. Cindy Otto added 10 in the losing effort.

The win moved the Hawks' record to a 7-2 league record. The Hawks trounced once-powerful Vassar in a laughter last Wednesday night, 53-33. Cass City led throughout the contest and was never in any trouble.

Elaine Stoutenburg topped Hawk scorers with 18 points. Beth Erla chipped in with another 13 points to help ice the win. The team shot 35 per cent for the contest.

Coach Kally Maharg said the season will probably boil down to beating Frankenmuth, something no other team in the league has done this season. She said part of the reason for the Hawks' good showing this year has been three players who average over 10 points a game—Elaine Stoutenburg, Lisa Zimba and Beth Erla, followed closely by Vicky Lapp with an average of eight points a game.

The team was scheduled to face Sandusky, Wednesday night at Sandusky.

MSU Studies Wind Power

The possibility of using wind power to generate electrical energy will be studied in Michigan by four Michigan State University researchers who have been awarded one of the first National Science Foundation grants for such a project.

The studies will be made at Hart, located between Muskegon and Ludington, which is in a high wind energy area near Lake Michigan.

Hart, a community of 2,000, has its own municipal power plant and is ideally located to take advantage of winds averaging more than 13 m.p.h.

The MSU researchers, headed by Dr. Jes Asmussen, professor of electrical engineering, will not build any windmills but will conduct detailed studies on the possible use of such energy in the community.

Possible savings of fossil fuel, citizen attitudes, and the environmental costs of using wind power to supplement the existing power plant will be studied.

1975-1976 PUT-TAKE PHEASANT HUNTING AREAS

- STATE GAME AREA
- ▲ STATE RECREATION AREA or PARK

Opportunities for Michigan pheasant hunters haven't been better, says the Department of Natural Resources. One good reason is the DNR's popular put-take pheasant program that adds 60,000 healthy birds to the abundant southern Michigan game crop. There are put-take areas, located near the state's major population areas. Shown on the map are the areas include 12 state game areas and five state recreation areas or parks. Hunt planning to take part in the 14-week put-take season this fall and winter (the season already underway, runs to November 14 and from December 1 through January 4, 1976) are reminded to obtain a special $10 permit in addition to their small game license. Applications are available at license dealers, but the completed application and check must be sent to the Put-Take Pheasant Program, Box 4013, Lansing, Michigan 48926, processing. There is no application deadline, allowing hunters to join the put-take any time during the season.
