

FLAMES FANNED by 50 mile-an-hour winds destroyed a 48 by 60-foot barn at the Roland Limberger farm on Shabbona Road, five miles south of Cass City, Monday afternoon. A total of 5,000 bales of hay and 1,500 bales of straw, along with four calves, were destroyed. A revised damage estimate Tuesday placed the loss at around $40,000.

High winds hamper firemen as flames destroy area barn

A disastrous fire fanned by 50 mile-an-hour wind gusts, destroyed a 48x60-foot barn at the Roland Limberger farm on Shabbona Road, five miles south of Cass City, late Monday afternoon.

Elkland Township Fire Chief Jim Jezewski said the cause of the fire, which did upwards of $40,000 damage, is unknown. He said the blaze started in an area of the barn that had no electric power in which hay and straw were stored.

A total of 5,000 bales of hay and 1,500 bales of straw were reported destroyed by the fire.

Limberger was working in a nearby tool shed and told firemen he was unaware the blaze had started until a passing motorist who saw smoke coming from the structure, told him.

High winds made containing the fire difficult. Fortunately, the west-southwest winds blew sparks away from the nearby house and out-buildings.

Jezewski said four calves were destroyed in the fire. A total of 36 head of cattle escaped the inferno.

While no cause was officially listed, Jezewski speculated that a nearby electric fence could have ignited a blowing piece of debris which might have floated into the barn.

Water tankers from Caro and Lamotte township assisted in containing the fire. Firemen received the alarm at 4:10 p.m. and were on the scene until about 8:00 p.m. Jezewski estimated a total of 10,000 gallons of water was dumped on the raging fire.

The structure was reportedly insured.

This was the second blaze Elkland firemen fought Monday.

HOUSE FIRE

A barking family dog was credited for saving a mother and her 13-year-old daughter from being overcome by smoke when fire heavily damaged their home eight and one-quarter miles north-east of Cass City, early Monday morning.

Elkland Township Fire Chief Jim Jezewski said the dog awakened Ms. Susan Stafford and her daughter after the fire broke out in a basement fuse box and burned its way through the floor, filling the house with smoke.

Once through the floor, Jezewski said the flames burned into a wall and bookcase. He said furnishings and clothing in the home suffered heavy smoke damage. Loss was set at $10,000.

The fire broke out at 3:20 a.m. Firemen remained at the scene until shortly after 5:00 a.m. No one was injured. The home is located on Gilbert Road.

MONDAY'S HIGH winds caused scattered damage in the Cass City area, including this large tree limb that came crashing down in front of a house owned by Victor Remarenko of Caseville located at 6285 Main St. Scattered power failures were reported in Sanilac and Tuscola counties, with trees reported blown down in Huron county.

Tuscola nimrods set for deer season opener

Tuscola county nimrods can look forward to what's described as a "good" deer hunting season, according to forecasts from the Department of Natural Resources. Carlton "Bud" Jarvis, DNR wildlife biologist, said last week large numbers of deer have been spotted by conservation officers on duty in the county and that the herd is in generally good health.

The annual charge by firearms hunters begins Saturday morning at 10:00 a.m. Again this year, antlerless deer hunting will be allowed the first week of the season, ending Nov. 21.

Jarvis said these dates apply only to southern Michigan and are designed to prevent large hunter drives the latter part of the season.

"We've had quite a few hunters who would hunt up north the first part of the season and then put on a drive on the local herd the latter part of November," Jarvis explained. "This is hard on the herd and also causes a lot of complaints of trespassing.

"This way, the hunter will have to decide from the beginning where he wants to hunt."

Jarvis said a good fawn crop last spring, combined with adequate forage should make it a successful season in Tuscola county. He said a total of 125 antlerless deer permits have been issued for area 75, which includes all of Tuscola county south of Bay City-Forestville Road, half of Lapeer county, a quarter of Genesee county, Sanilac county west of M-53 and a small chunk of Saginaw county.

This is an increase of 25 over last year, Jarvis said. Last year, a total of 60 antlerless deer were reported killed in region 75, an increase of 20 from the 1973 kill.

"We know the deer are there," Jarvis said. "We're killing an average of eight to ten a week on the highways. This has been a problem for a long time and seems to be increasing. It could be a combination of higher speeds and more deer."

CHECK STATIONS

Once again this year, the DNR will operate voluntary check stations for hunters who wish to report their kills.

The Caro office will be open the first week end of the season, and hunters who bring in their deer will receive a successful hunter patch.

Jarvis explained the purpose of the check station is to gather information on the herd—where concentrations of deer are, their age and physical condition.

"We'll be checking the age of the animal, the antler size including the diameter of the beam and the number of points, and where the deer was killed," Jarvis said.

Last year, 130 deer were checked through the Caro station, about 20 per cent of the total number of deer killed, Jarvis estimates. Jarvis reminded hunters to

School athletic future still uncertain

A brief report by Village President Lambert Althaver highlighted a brief regular meeting of the Cass City Board of Education Monday night at the high school.

Althaver had little new to add to the plans for an improved athletic field. He told the board that the village council was thinking about asking approval of the voters for a lease of 40 to 50 years for the school at the park. He said that the vote would be in the regular March election unless a primary election is necessary. If a primary is held in the village the issue would be presented then.

The board took the information under advisement.

The board also appointed Jerry Cleland as coordinator for Title IX Federal program that prohibits discrimination. The school has up to three years to make classes such as physical education and health co-educational. Traditionally these are among the courses offered on a segregated basis.

The annual Michigan assessment test results for the seventh and fourth grades were explained to the board by Cleland.

The school is above average in math and reading in both grades and the scores are higher this year than they were last year in the school. Cleland cautioned against reading too much into the results. He said that there is no comparison with other 1975 tests available. Compared to 1974, he said, the fourth grade was above State average and the seventh grade slightly below average.

INCREASE RATE

The board authorized an increase of 25 cents per hour to $5.50 for the supervisor of ticket takers at athletic events.

Robert Stickle said that a comparison with other schools indicates that Cass City's workers are among the highest paid. For this reason the board left the pay for helpers at $3.55. The supervisor arranges for the help at the games, counts the money and sees that change is available. In Cass City as many as 11 persons are hired for football games.

Action was taken on two other programs. Principal Russell Richards presented a curriculum required for graduation by special education students. The law requires that it be presented to the Intermediate School District. Campbell Elementary Principal Jackie Freiburger told of the Federal funded right to read campaign and agreed that another teacher for the program should be found to assist Ms. Marilyn Peters, who is currently in the program.

OTHER BUSINESS

Two other minor items were handled by the board. At the request of the Intermediate District a second representative on the special education parents advisory committee was named. She is Mrs. Helen Kibbey, who joins Mrs. Ellen Toner.

The board asked the superintendent to gather more information about legal liability insurance prior to deciding whether to seek bids for this coverage.

Pay 'cut' questioned

Owen-Gage board okays $668,055 budget

It will cost $668,055 to operate Owen-Gage schools for the 1975-76 school year, according to budget figures approved by the board of education Monday night in Gagetown.

The figure represents over a five per cent increase over last year's final figure of $635,256.

A breakdown shows the largest source of revenue, local property taxes, totals $448,688, based on 25 mills for operation with a State Equalized Valuation of $17,947,557. Other local sources brings the total of $451,788.

State revenue totals $147,409, with another $44,500 coming from federal Title I and Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds.

A carryover of $24,078 from last year was also noted. Debt retirement totals 1.78 mills.

Whether or not these projected income figures hold depends largely on the outcome of a fight by the Huron County Board of Commissioners, who are appealing SEV figures for the county. They maintain lower County Equalized Valuation (CEV) should be used.

Owen-Gage's CEV totals $16,594,866.

Instruction will continue to take the biggest bite from the budget, although smaller than last year. A total of $378,375 is budgeted for instruction, compared with $405,588 last year.

Supt. Ronald Erickson explained the decrease came as a result of not rehiring three teachers at the elementary level and combining classes. At the elementary level, salaries for teachers is budgeted at $145,004, compared with $173,433 last year.

Operation costs take the next largest share of the budget at $65,500, with transportation at $63,669.

Total elementary education costs were pegged at $172,004, while secondary education costs were set at $206,371.

Fixed charges jumped from $29,489 to $50,460, reflecting teacher retirement costs not paid in past years. Remodeling of the Owendale building will send capital outlay costs to $32,601, compared with only $3,121 last year.

During discussions on the budget, Ken Voelker, Owendale, suggested that district teachers did not take a pay cut as was earlier stated. He contended that retirement costs plus an added step actually gave teachers a pay increase.

Erickson maintained that actual salary figures were cut and contended that no attempt was made to hide added fringes.

"I still believe it was a tremendous effort on their

Set trash removal study

Cass City businessmen appear to favor disposing of their trash through a pickup service.

That was the consensus following a meeting Monday night of several local businessmen, village and township officials at the regular Elkland Township Board meeting held at the fire hall.

As a result of the meeting, village officials will check into any trash haulers in the area who may be interested in contracting to remove solid waste from the business district and refer them to the Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber apparently will assume an active role in informing businesses regarding costs and procedures.

According to William Krizman, Chamber Retail Division President, the Chamber will send a letter to member businesses once information has been gathered and call a general meeting with a hauler who would explain charges, types of containers needed and what can be hauled.

Once this is done, a hauler could then contract with individual businesses.

This plan of attack should satisfy Department of Natural Resources officials who have been putting pressure on local businessmen to cease open burning of trash which is a violation of state law.

At the meeting, Ben White, an engineer with the air pollution control division of the DNR in Saginaw, said as long as local businesses could demonstrate they were working on a solution to the problem, no fines would be issued.

He said that the lack of a deadline does not mean open burning can continue indefinitely, however. For example, if no progress were made in a year, the act could start falling, since the law has been on the books since the late 1960's.

The consensus of the 12-14 persons attending the meeting was that gas-fired incinerators were out of the question as an answer. Individual units that would accommodate the trash of one business start at about $3,000, White told the group.

While it's still unknown just how much such a trash hauling service would cost, it's expected that the expense would be far less than operating an incinerator.

The meeting seemed to answer more questions than an earlier meeting with county health department officials, according to Village Supt. Lou LaPonsie.

He emphasized that village government does not intend to get involved in hauling trash and prefers local businessmen and the Chamber of Commerce take action.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis D. Marr

Deford Community church was the setting for the Sept. 6 wedding of Miss Robin Rae Lapp and Curtis Dale Marr. Rev. Dale Sherry performed the 6:00 p.m. ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lapp of Cass City. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Marr of Mayville.

The bride wore a white tulle polyester organza gown with a high neck and an Empire waist. The gown also featured long puff sleeves with an A-line skirt, and detachable train (chapel length) with chantilly trim. A matching Juliet headpiece with lace-bordered chapel length mantilla of bridal illusion completed the ensemble.

She carried a bouquet of white roses, baby's breath and white carnations.

Maid of honor was Diane Leslie, friend of the bride; Decker. Bridesmaids were Vicky Lapp, Cass City, sister of the bride; Cathy Skaggs, Cass City, friend of the bride, and Cindy Slawter, Mayville, niece of the groom.

The maid of honor wore a gold printed polyester organza jacket dress with Empire waist, tapered sleeves and caplet.

Bridesmaids wore blue printed gowns similar to the maid of honor. They also wore floppy brimmed hats to match their dresses. They carried bouquets to match their dresses.

Best man was Sid Werner, Mayville, nephew of the groom. Groomsmen were Don Erla, Cass City, friend of the groom; Rick Beebe, Lapeer, nephew of the groom, and Randy Werner, Mayville, nephew of the groom.

Church decorations included a centerpiece for the bridal table and wedding bells hanging from the ceiling.

A reception for approximately 400 persons was held following the wedding at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Caro. A dinner was held for the wedding party following the rehearsal, Friday, Sept. 5.

Following a wedding trip to Florida, the couple is residing in Cass City.

It's time your family stopped being just "Smith Harold" in the telephone directory.

The new edition of your telephone directory is going to press soon. If you have only a single listing, a lot of people are going to have trouble looking up other members of your family. Certainly, your wife deserves her own listing. And giving a teen-ager a place in the directory is a nice way of saying "You're growing up." To add or change a listing just call our business office. They can tell you how little extra an additional listing will cost. It's as easy as picking up the phone.

(And anyone else he can get to help)

I'm just not tuned in, I guess. The other day the phone rang and the voice said, is Lynn there? No, she's in East Lansing, I replied. No, I haven't her phone number here, it's at the office. Are you in town?, I queried. I can call you back with the number.

It was only then I learned that the caller was in Cologne, Germany.

Like they say in the commercial, calling long distance these days is no big deal.

It's the generation gap I suspect, but I still can't shake the feeling that calling long distance should be reserved for moments of grave importance... illness, death and calling home when broke.

Unidentified flying objects are still with us. Mary Sherrod and Donna Souchereau of 6530 Main St. came in Friday to tell us so.

The UFO was spotted as they looked north from their apartment Thursday around 8:15 p.m. The object moved slowly from east to west, hovered in mid-air and then moved on and disappeared. A Warren man is reported to have seen a UFO the same night, the girls say.

For obvious reasons I won't be revealing the names but the incident is true.

A salesman for a local firm selling big ticket items walked into the company office and carelessly tossed four envelopes on the desk.

As I watched he emptied them and poured heaps of $100 and $20 bills on his desk... $8,800 worth. It was payment for the product and the salesman said that the "old man" told the kid to go to the tool shed and get the money. He came back with the money tucked away in the four envelopes.

To the owner I suppose that the cash on hand gives him a sense of security which proves that all of us are not alike.

Just thinking about letting money like that lie around loose gives me the cold shakes.

Okay it's that time again. Deer season opens Saturday. We want to know how you did. Call us for listing in our "Buck Luck" column. We want the picture of the first to report success and the pictures of any hunter that bags a buck with an extra big rack.

Readers to the rescue department. I now know about Noko. Mrs. Avon Boag called and said that Noko was a community, not a town and located three miles south and one mile east of Shabbona.

There was only one building, a Free Methodist church, at the site.

Mrs. Boag is sure of the facts. She should be. She lived three miles from Noko as a girl.

Youth suffers hand injury in corn chopper mishap

Ron Sieradzki has got to hope that 1976 will be better because 1975 couldn't get much worse—or more painful. Sieradzki, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Sieradzki of 350 N. Crawford Rd., Deford, started the year with a 30-foot fall inside a silo on his father's farm south of Cass City.

In the fall, he broke his right leg. The long recovery ordeal took about six months. Friday, the recovered youth played his final game as a member of the football team. Saturday, disaster struck again.

"My father and I were chopping corn and we were feeding corn into the head of the chopper when I lost my balance and fell," Sieradzki told the Chronicle Tuesday.

As a result, he lost half of his right thumb.

The accident took place around 1:00 p.m. He was rushed to Hills and Dales General Hospital for treatment. He was not hospitalized.

Sieradzki said the injury was pretty painful, especially the first two nights. Since then, the pain has subsided somewhat, but his hand is still swollen.

He said he planned to return to classes at Cass City High School Wednesday morning, depending on how he felt.

Since the youth is right-handed, the injury will force some adjustments, he said, but he isn't sure yet whether or not he'll have to learn to write with his left hand or if he'll have to change how he does most things.

But Ron Sieradzki will probably agree it's been a rough year.

This is a story about the disappearing pay cut. A financial paradox.

The Chronicle reported two weeks ago that teachers in the Owen-Gage system accepted a five per cent pay cut to help out the financially pressed district. Other area papers picked up the story the following week.

While the teachers did accept a reduction in base pay rates, what the district actually did was take the money out of one pocket and put it in another... and add a few dollars more as it was doing it.

The pay cut made the headlines. The true story was buried in the body of the story.

That one-year contract will actually cost the Owen-Gage district more per teacher than the previous year's contract did.

It will because the district agreed to pay retirement costs which becomes mandatory under State law. The retirement costs the district five per cent of wages, the identical amount that the base scale was reduced. In addition the school pays $261.04 in increased health insurance costs.

Add to this a 3.2 per cent cost for increment (length of service) and it takes no genius to figure out that the teachers are getting more this year than they did in 1974-75.

To make it equal for all, the increment was extended one step so that every teacher in the system would get the raise for length of service.

Without the special added step the teachers in the system 11 years or longer would have been taking a cut that none of the other teachers would have suffered.

Calling it a five per cent pay cut is good public relations. Good for the district and good for the Owen-Gage Teachers' Association.

It's not a new stratagem. It's comparable to the big auto firms announcing a reduction in the price of a car, then making previously standard equipment an option at extra cost to make up for the lower advertised price.

It makes nice reading but you still pay the inflated price to buy the car.

You'll agree, I think, after looking at the complete picture, that the teachers at Owen-Gage didn't accept a pay cut for 1975-76.

While there was no pay cut, the teachers did bite the bullet a little. That's because they settled for less than teachers in most Thumb school systems received. Their total pay is less than other teachers in the area receive.

The teachers acted with restraint and showed that they have more than a nodding acquaintance with the economic facts of life.

The hard truth is that there aren't that many openings for teachers and if hard line demands succeeded in closing the school many of the teachers would be hard pressed to relocate.

While I won't buy that five per cent cut story I commend the board and the teachers for hammering out what appears to be the best one-year solution to a very knotty problem.

If and when the rest of the district's problems are ironed out, it's the opinion here that there will be long hard bargaining to bring the Owen-Gage salary scale up to what neighboring schools pay.

"If It Fitz..."

Another lawsuit for CBS

BY JIM FITZGERALD

I figure we'll sue the TV networks for $100 million worth of humiliation and embarrassment, at least.

I got the idea from the Michigan United Conservatory Clubs which is suing CBS TV for $300 million on behalf of the state's 1 million hunters. They're furious about the CBS show "The Guns of Autumn" which made hunters look as brave and adventurous as your Aunt Minnie with a fly swatter.

There's no denying what the CBS films showed. Some hunters should wear a butcher's apron. They do sneak up on bears feeding at garbage dumps and shoot them dead, a dangerous task requiring the same skill and bravery displayed by the man who turns on the gas at the dog pound.

And some hunters do hire gamekeepers to push animals in front of their telescopic sights. I know a preserve operator who is training pheasants to fly into a hunter's pocket and commit suicide.

But this type of "hunter" is rare, not common. That's what's bugging the real hunters. They say CBS showed the world a distorted picture, portraying all the worst things hunters do, and none of the marvelous things. They claim they have been humiliated and embarrassed and so they are suing for a bundle.

I hope the hunters win the court battle. I'm angry at CBS anyway. I suspect it was some stupid CBS executive who convinced Mary Tyler

Moore she should slim down this season, thus greatly diminishing her chest measurement and my viewing pleasure.

But I didn't mean to get frivolous. For many years I have harbored a serious beef against CBS and all the other TV networks. I've kept relatively quiet about it because there didn't appear to be any remedy available — until the hunters' lawsuit gave me hope.

If a court awards damages to hunters for being injured by an anti-hunting show, why shouldn't damages be awarded to anti-hunters who have been injured by those thousands of TV shows which glorify the hunter?

I'm thinking of such shows as the American Sportsman, for instance. Robert Stack invades Africa in a tank and stalks wild animals barehanded, except for various nuclear weapons and a cast of thousands to carry his collapsible condominium. This is done while a full orchestra plays scary music in the bushes and a voice in the background, usually Curt Gowdy, describes how hero Stack has risked his life to keep the world safe from the dreaded spotted antelope.

Or there are the more localized shows starring such Great White Hunters as Mort Neff. For umpteen years he's been pointing his TV camera at the gun, bang! and then at the animal falling, plo! Then he holds up the carcass and solemnly bestows sainthood upon the brave hunter who killed it at great risk of chapped wrists.

I find these TV shows humiliating and embarrassing. I insist they are distorted and not typical of the entire human race. I do not want my grandchildren seeing such bloody nonsense and thinking killing animals is great because Curt Gowdy says so and everyone on TV does it.

Onward and Upward. $100 million worth.

Few bad habits put one on the skids quicker than insincerity.

PUPPET SHOW

*Someone else is pulling the strings. Someone else is speaking behind the scenes. Someone else is making the audience laugh, or even cry a little.

By any chance, does that remind you of yourself? Do you sometimes feel that you are a puppet, not a person? That someone else is putting words in your mouth, calling your plays?

Well, the Church won't stand you on your own two feet and cut the strings. But it will help you find the right kind of scissors... to get a new perspective, to reassess life, and yourself... to be your own person.

Who, after all, wants to be the star of a Punch and Judy show?

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

Standing
in line

By Jim Ketchum

If I had a dollar for every hour I've waited in line during these one score and seven years, I could probably retire to a flat overlooking Miami's gold coast, downing mint juleps and maybe even dining on roast beef again.

I have an uncanny knack for choosing the line in the supermarket, the bank or the ball park that never moves. At the bank, I always wind up trailing some 90-year-old woman withdrawing her life savings in quarters.

Or I wind up behind somebody trying to renegotiate a loan to buy the Hope Diamond or maybe Rockefeller Center. Watching the person ahead of me in line hand the nice teller one of those zippered, cloth pouches always means I should have brought my lunch.

The tellers don't help much either. The one I choose always has to disappear behind the cage and into a back room, hunting through file cabinets and worn ledgers for any transaction that precedes mine.

What I can't understand is how I get shuttled through so fast. By the time I get my ballpoint pen popped out to sign my name, everything's done and that friendly "Can I help you?" is directed at the person behind me.

The part that really bugs me involves the other lines. As all the rest breeze their way through their business, I stand there collecting cobwebs. But the instant I move to another line, the one I've been in goes into high gear and my new home away from home grinds to a halt.

It's the same way at the supermarket. My line always includes three women with 15 children each who buy groceries only once a month, whether they need anything or not.

Half the things they buy don't have any prices stamped on them. This makes the register girl call those infamous words "price check" into a microphone.

This brings a mop-topped youth wrapped in a white apron ambulating to the register.

He generally takes a quick look, whispers something to the girl and disappears again. No one really knows what he does, other than check prices.

These lines also lack bag boys. This means the register girl must ring up the order and then bag it, not to mention carrying it to the car.

In the meantime, my ice cream (the only thing I needed) starts dripping through my hands and up my arms. I've got the only set of chocolate pecan arm pits in the world.

And in my line, invariably the people ahead of me have to pay by check. Seems nobody ever heard of cash. A check often means another call into the microphone, again bringing the mop-topped youth, this time with a sheet of paper listing all the no-goodniks who write rubber checks.

None of the people ahead of me have ever been refused check cashing service. I could tell the register girl they're honest. But that doesn't do any good. Rules are rules, my dripping chocolate pecan notwithstanding.

By the time my turn comes, my ice cream is little more than a sticky gooey memory. That doesn't matter. I still have to pay for it. It makes you want to bring back all those no deposit, no return bottles and dump them wherever that mop-topped youth hangs out.

I'm a veteran line-stander. Michigan State University trained me to stand in line with the best of them. It's like a big monopoly game. Sometimes, getting sent to jail is fun, depending on who's in there with you.

I thank MSU for giving me a bachelor's degree in line-stander. Without it, I just might be forced into something drastic, like cutting in front of a mother with 15 hungry kids smearing peanut butter all over the windows of the car while mama is buying groceries.

I'm performing a public service. Be grateful, world.

Eighth county fatality

Cass Cityan dies in school bus accident

A rural Cass City woman died early Friday from injuries suffered when the school bus she was driving ran into a drainage ditch at the intersection of Unionville and Fairgrove Roads, injuring 11 passengers.

Doris Jean Trisch, 37, of East Dutcher Road, died at 6:30 a.m. at Saginaw-St. Mary's Hospital.

The accident took place at 8:55 a.m. Thursday. According to Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies, the bus was headed east on Fairgrove Road and failed to stop for the intersection. Deputies blamed a heavy fog for contributing to the accident.

The bus ran off the highway into an 18-foot drainage ditch. Officers said they found 62-foot skid marks at the scene.

The bus was picking up special education students for classes in Caro. Three passengers were transferred from Caro Community Hospital to Saginaw and Flint hospitals where they were treated for multiple injuries.

Officers identified the three as Jeffrey Louis Payne, 11, Fairgrove, Chad Crosby, 8, Fairgrove, and Brenda Knoodle, 22, Akron.

Eight other students were shaken up in the accident. They were treated at Caro Community Hospital and released.

Mrs. Trisch aided in rescue efforts at the scene of the accident before she was initially treated at the Caro hospital. Early Friday morning, however, she reportedly went into shock and died a short time later at St. Mary's Hospital in Saginaw.

She is the eighth traffic fatality in Tuscola county for 1975.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Area police investigated a series of property damage accidents including a two-car crash involving a Cass City man at the intersection of Colwood and Akron Roads Wednesday, Nov. 5.

According to Sheriff's deputies, a westbound car driven by Steven Earl Parrish, 65, of 6395 Fourth St., was struck by a southbound vehicle driven by Waldo Carl Leipprandt, 69, of Caseville.

Parrish was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way. Neither driver was seriously injured.

Four persons escaped serious injury in a two-car crash on Colwood Road near LaJoie Road in Ellington township Sunday night.

According to sheriff's officers, a car driven by Gregory James Lenda, 18, of Owendale Road, Owendale, was headed north on Colwood Road when it struck the rear of a parked car.

Lenda told officers he saw tail lights on the parked vehicle but when he realized the car was not moving, it was too late to stop.

Officers found Gerald Roger Bresky, 28, of 6645 Third St., Cass City, seated on the passenger's side of the parked car. He was not seriously injured.

Bresky was ticketed for being drunk in a public place. Lenda was not injured. The accident took place at 9:10 p.m.

A rural Cass City man escaped serious injury when the car he was driving went out of control and slid into a ditch at the intersection of Kelly and Cemetery Roads Friday night.

Sheriff's deputies identified the driver as Scott Allen Reed, 18, of 6256 River Rd.

Officers said Reed was headed south on Cemetery Road and attempted a right turn onto Kelly Road when he lost control of the car and it rolled down the edge of the road on the north side.

The accident took place at 7:45 p.m.

A car driven by Ronald Mark Hass, 21, of Marlette, struck and killed a deer while headed east on Little Road, seven miles southeast of Cass City in Ellington township, Saturday morning.

Caro State Police said the deer ran into the side of the vehicle and was killed. Hass was not injured. The accident took place at 5:25 a.m.

CASS CITY ACCIDENTS

Two village traffic accidents were reported last week.

Two drivers escaped injury when their cars collided at the intersection of Main Street and Doerr Road, Friday afternoon.

Cass City Police identified the pair as Sandra Kay Hawley, 20, of Hurds Corner Road, Cass City, and David William Miller, 21, of 4239 Doerr Rd.

According to the police report, the Hawley vehicle was headed east on Main Street as the Miller vehicle attempted to make a right turn from Doerr Road onto Main.

Miller told officers a third vehicle turning from Main Street to Doerr Road obscured the oncoming Hawley auto. The accident took place at 2:40 p.m.

Two parked autos owned by Roger Deering of 6457 Houghton St., were damaged when they were struck by a car driven by Kathryn Mary McCullough, 25, of 6445 Houghton St., early Saturday morning.

Cass City Police reported the McCullough vehicle was headed south on Leach Street when it went off the east side of the street and struck both of Deering's autos. She was not injured, but was ticketed for careless driving.

The accident took place at 2:55 a.m.

A 15-year-old Gagetown girl escaped serious injury Tuesday, Nov. 4, when she was struck from behind by a car while walking along Main Street in Owendale.

Karen Jean McPhail of 4805 E. Hoppe Rd., Gagetown, was struck by an auto being driven by Sherry Lynn Karg, 17, of Gagetown Rd., Gagetown.

Huron County Sheriff's officers said Miss McPhail was walking along the road and stepped onto the highway to avoid a water hole when she was hit by the car.

Miss McPhail was not hospitalized and no ticket was issued. The mishap took place at 12:10 p.m.

Caro man faces felonious assault charge in Sanilac

A 29-year-old Caro man faces felonious assault charges next Monday in Sanilac County District Court after allegedly threatening the owner of Wildwood Farms restaurant with a .16 gauge shotgun Nov. 1. Thomas Lee Blasius is scheduled to appear at a preliminary examination on the charge before Judge Eugene E. Deegan next Monday in Sandusky.

The alleged assault occurred around 1:45 a.m. in the parking lot of the restaurant located four miles east and a half mile south of Cass City.

Bad Axe State Police told the Chronicle that Blasius, a member of the promotional group "Hard Times Limited", had rented the party room at the restaurant and that the bill, including liquor, totaled $700.

Owner Robin Kim Anthony, 29, told police it appeared as though Blasius and a companion were about to leave without paying. When Anthony approached the van in which the pair were seated, he said Blasius pulled a shotgun from between the seats and pointed it at his head.

Anthony said he pushed the gun away and pulled Blasius from the van, but was then confronted by the companion, who came around from the passenger side. Anthony told police a crowd gathered and he elected not to press the matter at that time. He said he returned to the restaurant and telephoned police. Blasius was apprehended by Tuscola County Sheriff's officers about a half hour later and the shotgun was confiscated. He was not taken into custody until Tuesday, Nov. 4, when Sanilac county authorities issued a warrant for his arrest.

Blasius is free on $2,500 bond.

Your neighbor says

New York
needs help

New York City continued to teeter on the brink of default this week as city, state and federal officials searched frantically for ways to stave off what appeared to be the inevitable.

Should the federal government bail New York City out of its financial mess? Mrs. George Poppe of rural Cass City says no to a complete, no strings attached bail out. But she does favor some help.

"I can't see just handing them the money and saying here you are," she says. "But I do think there could be some help given. I think they could offer the city a loan of some kind that could be paid back eventually."

She says while an outright gift is not the answer, the city shouldn't simply be forgotten. "There are lots of innocent people in New York who had nothing to do with this situation who will suffer," she says.

Mrs. Poppe added that the ripple effect of a New York default on the rest of the nation could be serious.

Mrs. Poppe is a native Cass Cityan. Her husband is a retired employee of an electrical contractor. They have four children and one grandchild.

Gilliam is Marine
graduate

Among the recent graduates from the Marine Corps Recruit Depot at San Diego, was Private James H. Gilliam, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Gilliam of 274 Froede Rd., Deford.

JAMES H. GILLIAM

During the Marines' initial training, the emphasis is on physical conditioning, discipline and team effort. Recruits attend classes on history and organization of the Marine Corps, uniform regulations, first aid and military customs, and receive extensive instruction in close order drill.

Miss Crain

from Sanilac

Cynthia D. Crain, Area 14 Home Economist and Family Living Agent working in Sanilac county, has been transferred to Oakland county as of Nov. 1, according to Sanilac County Extension Director, A. Rex Sieting. This transfer of Miss Crain was made by the Michigan State University Board of Trustees at their October meeting.

Miss Crain was a 1972 graduate of Central Michigan University where she received her bachelor of science degree in Home Economics and Family Living. She came to Sanilac county in 1974.

Miss Crain's duties while in Sanilac county were the responsibilities of Home Economist and Family Living programs and the supervision of the Expanded Nutrition Program of which Mrs. Elsie Widdows is the Expanded Nutrition Aide.

She worked closely with and developed new programs in the area of young homemakers. She was instrumental in organizing programs for the women dealing with value systems and goal achievements. She was also active in the program areas of gardening, canning and freezing.

Mrs. Aliene Mills of Tuscola county and Mrs. Ann Ross of Huron county, Extension Home Economists and Family Living Agents for Area 14, will be filling in for Sanilac County Home Economist programs until Sanilac county has a full time replacement for Miss Crain.

Children three months of age and over are invited to attend.

A parent or guardian must accompany the child. Parents are urged to bring a record of previous immunization.

7 Ubyl FFA

Kansas City

Seven members of the Ubyl FFA chapter are in Kansas City, Mo., this week to participate in two national FFA contests.

Four members will participate in the National FFA Horticulture Contest, while three others will take part in the FFA Meats Contest.

Horticulture contest participants include Laurie Walsh, Shari Auvil, Vincent Messing and Bob Main, with Rebecca Walsh traveling to Kansas City as a team alternate.

Meats contest team members are Rick Vogel, Dave Glaza and Dennis Taylor, with Judy Tyrrell as alternate.

The contests are among seven national agricultural contests conducted annually by the National FFA organization as part of the convention. This year, 36 teams will test their knowledge of horticulture, while 33 teams will select top quality cuts of meat and identify the various retail cuts of beef, pork and lamb.

Awards will be presented to the winning teams and high scoring individuals at the awards breakfast to be held this Friday morning. Contest winners will be introduced to the convention audience at the Friday morning business session.

Rev. Capps: working with people provides challenge

By Jim Ketchum

Rev. Harry Capps gets a charge out of people. He enjoys working with them and listening to them. Most of all, he enjoys being able to help them.

He hopes to make involvement with people a hallmark of his pastorate at First Presbyterian church. Pastor Capps will preach his first sermon at the church as its pastor Sunday and he's hoping it marks the beginning of a long and rewarding relationship.

"We're really happy to be in Cass City," Pastor Capps said as he took a break from the rigors of moving into a new home and settled into a chair in the living room overlooking Seeger Street.

"I'd kind of had it with the city," he said, locking his hands behind his head and leaning back thoughtfully. "We were looking for a less complicated environment—a freer place to be. And it looks like we found it here."

Pastor Capps, 33, moves from a city of about 16,000 persons to Cass City, population 2,000. So far, he's happy with it.

"I can go outside in the back yard with my son and toss a football back and forth with him," he said. "In Lansdown, we had to walk eight blocks to do it. This is just great."

Small-town life won't be entirely foreign for his wife, Rita. She comes from a small town in Illinois. They are also sure their two children, Jeremy, 5, and Stacey, 4, will like it too.

The church has been without a pastor for nearly a year and a half.

Pastor Capps is anxious to begin his ministry here and so far, he's found the people of the church just as anxious to have him.

"These people are really great," he said. "This church had the most impressive pulpit committee I met, and I candidated at several churches. They really sold themselves."

Pastor Capps is a graduate of Grove City College and holds a master of science in divinity from Princeton. He also served as Chaplain at the Presbyterian Hospital at the University of Pennsylvania medical center in Philadelphia.

He also studied at the Philadelphia Family Institute.

He spent the last 6½ years at Lansdown, Pa.

PEOPLE ARE IMPORTANT

Pastor Capps sees people as ultimately important. His special love is family counseling and he hopes to get involved in this aspect of ministry in Cass City.

He recalled some of the work he accomplished at his former pastorate.

"We developed a program with the police department involving disturbed families," he recalled. "This was strictly on a non-sectarian basis and mostly it simply involved my asking what could I do to help?"

He said that in too many instances, this approach didn't work. What did was getting other community service agencies involved that could offer the services each person needed.

Pastor Capps said this organized approach to families in trouble was more successful.

"We didn't let people fall through the cracks, though," he said. "We were there to back them up when they needed us."

From this type of experience, he says, you realize that people really count.

"It's ultimately important to let a person know that he is worth something," he said.

Another area of special concern is bridging the generation gap.

"All generations are worth something and each one has something to offer the other," he said. "That's one area I'd like to work in—getting interaction between the generations."

Pastor Capps also places great value in the pastoral call and plans to make it a point to visit every one of his parishioners. He maintains the personal ministry is still vital.

CHURCH CAN WORK

Responding to recent criticism that the church as a whole no longer meets the needs of people, Pastor Capps thinks part of the problem stems from a hierarchy not always in tune with what the pastors and parishioners are thinking.

"Often, the hierarchy doesn't always consider all the consequences of its actions at the local level," he says.

He sees a need to improve the lines of communication between national church bodies and local churches.

In spite of these problems, the church can still be made to work, Pastor Capps believes.

"The church is a place where people can still get support and that's as it should be," he says. "I look on the work as exciting and I'm enthusiastic about it."

When the Capps family isn't at work, they love to camp and fish. Chances are good they'll try to work in trips to the lake whenever the time permits.

Their son is a kindergarten student and their daughter will attend the Pre-school Nursery which meets in the church basement.

NEWEST NEWCOMERS to Cass City are Rev. Harry Capps, his wife, Rita, and daughter Stacey. Pastor Capps begins his duties Sunday at First Presbyterian church. Their son, Jeremy, was in school when this photo was taken.

Nab five teens in phoney bomb scare

Five teenagers were apprehended in connection with a fictitious bomb scare at Cass City High School last week after their call was traced to an apartment on Main Street.

Names of the five were not released due to their ages, but Cass City Police indicated they will seek Probate Court action against them.

The five were apprehended following a bomb threat Wednesday morning, Nov. 5. This followed an earlier bomb scare a week earlier.

Authorities used a telephone tap to trace Wednesday's call to the Main Street address.

Police said the youths had all skipped school that day. One reportedly hid in the bathroom of the apartment until his presence was revealed to police by a companion.

The youths were turned over to their parents following police interviews.

A 15-year-old Cass City High School student was apprehended by police last week after she allegedly attempted to obtain money under false pretenses.

Cass City Police said the girl, whose name was withheld due to her age, allegedly tried to turn in a mirror at Coach Light Pharmacy that was not purchased from the store.

Police indicated probate action would be sought in the case.

Lex Tetreau, Sherman St., reported a jack, two pipe wrenches and an assortment of tools stolen from a camper parked at his residence. No suspects have been apprehended.

Dale Damm of Damm Implement Co., reported 12 tires stolen from a shed behind the Main Street store last Saturday. Damm told Cass City Police the tires were all new 15-inch recaps.

Tuscola county Sheriff's deputies investigated a possible forced entry at a Texaco warehouse on Hooper Street in Caro, Sunday. Owner Amasa Anthes, Cass City, said he discovered damage to a safe when he attempted to open the combination lock Sunday.

Nothing else was reported missing in the warehouse.

Sheriff's deputies are also probing a report of a motorcycle being driven into the lobby of Kingston High School. No charges have been lodged, but a 17-year-old Marlette youth is under investigation.

The incident allegedly took place last Thursday.

Claude H. King, Gagetown, reported the theft of a six by eight-foot shed from his residence at 4792 State St., Friday.

Caro State Police said the shed was found later in a vacant lot at the main intersection of the village, a quarter-mile away.

The shed was not reported damaged.

McClain to

Nov. 20

Thomas A. McClain will present a free public lecture as the guest of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Caro, Thursday, Nov. 20.

He will be introduced by Terrence S. Kaiser and the title of the address is, "Why Spiritual Healing?"

A former newspaper executive, McClain is now in the full-time healing ministry of the Christian Science Church.

Letter to the Editor

It's Damman with an 'a', Mr. Haire

November 3, 1975

Mr. John Haire, Editor
Cass City Chronicle
6550 Main Street
Cass City, Michigan 48726

Dear Mr. Haire:

I'll have to give you an "A" for current events but a "C" for spelling.

While you were chiding the Cass City Rotary Club for its lack of governmental knowledge, you opened yourself up for a little chiding yourself.

In fairness to those you found guilty for not knowing the name of the Lieutenant Governor of Michigan, I think you should confess to your failure in spelling. The name of the Lieutenant Governor is James J. Damman.

So, as long as you are giving the Cass City Rotarians the answer to Gerald Priekorn's quiz, it seems only fair for you to give them an entirely correct answer.

Sincerely,

David T. Hayhow
Executive Assistant

GIRL SCOUTS

Gagetown Jr. Girl Scout Troop 711 held their Halloween party Oct. 29. Mrs. Patty Rayl and Ivernia Schwartz were in charge, with nine scouts and one guest present. Games were played, prizes awarded and refreshments served.

Troop 711 Jr. Girl Scouts attended the circus in Cass City, Tuesday, Nov. 11, courtesy of the Gagetown Farm Bureau Services.

GAGETOWN STUDY CLUB

The Gagetown Study Club met Monday, Nov. 3, at the home of Mrs. Gladys Weatherhead with 13 members present. Roll call was an interesting event in our nation's past. Mrs. Muriel Barr and Mrs. Nellie Sinclair gave a review of American History (1773-1875). Mrs. Sinclair and Mrs. Frankie Anker reported on the East Central District Convention at LaPeer recently. A lunch was served by the hostess. Next meeting will be Dec. 2, at the home of Mrs. Inez Beach.

Mrs. John Rockefeller drove the Owen-Gage Jr. Varsity cheerleaders to Bay City on a shopping trip. Those going were Dena Rockefeller, Lynnette Ziehm, Laurel Billy, Dawn Erickson, Mary Good, and Kim Richer.

Cindy Bencheck, married Nov. 8 to Thomas Mellen-dorf, was honored with a bridal shower Oct. 18 in the Methodist church basement. There were 60 in attendance from Detroit, Saginaw, Cass City, Owendale and Gagetown.

Mrs. Nelson Koch and Mrs. Harold Koch and Janet called on Miss Emma Koch in Sebawaing, Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Werde-man left for their winter home this past week.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Koch Sunday afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Weber Jr., Jim, Heidi and Holly of Frankenmuth, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Koch and sons from Caro, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Koch, Jim and Karen of Gagetown, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Grundman from Sterling Heights, Mrs. Anita Sheppard and Christy of Birch Run and Mrs. Harold Stein and sons from Reese.

BROWNIE NEWS

The Brownie Girl Scout Troop 641 had a Halloween party Oct. 29. They enjoyed games and painted homemade cookies made by Mrs. Pat Goslin.

Brownie Troop 641 met Nov. 4, for their weekly meeting. They opened with the pledge to the flag, and the Girl Scout Promise and Laws. They learned flag manners. They started making Christmas gifts for their mothers.

Farm Bureau elects officers

Elected as executive officers of the Tuscola County Farm Bureau at a recent meeting of the board of directors were LeRoy R. Schluckebier of Frankenmuth, president; Gerald L. Hicks of Deford, vice-president; Robert Petzold of Vassar, third member; Loretta P. Kirkpatrick, secretary-treasurer of the corporation.

Plans were completed for the delegation that will attend the annual meeting of the Michigan Farm Bureau scheduled in Grand Rapids, Dec. 9-12.

Tuscola county will have 19 voting delegates plus alternate delegates attend this meeting which will have an agenda covering reports, action on resolutions, and election of directors.

Evening programs will include recognition of County Farm Bureaus for outstanding successful programs, banquet for Roll Call Campaign managers, presidents and young farmers, presentation of awards for Distinguished Service to Agriculture and to the Agricultural Communicator of the Year, and the crowning of the Michigan Farm Bureau Queen.

Representing Tuscola county in the Queen's contest is Miss Debra Loomis of Cass City. John Young of Caro will represent District Six in the state Young Farmers Discussion Meet.

BETTER HEALTH

Pills for high blood pressure

BY DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

There is real tedium in taking pills every day for any reason. But it is particularly wearisome when you feel perfectly well, and the reason for taking the pills is to lower your blood pressure, which you probably did not know was high until that chance physical examination revealed it.

Moreover, you have been told that, although you may feel perfectly well now, the reason for taking the pills is so that you will not get into trouble with a stroke or a heart attack or kidney trouble at some, unspecified, future time.

And when you go to see your doctor periodically, it may very well turn out that he is not at all satisfied with the degree to which the pills are working, no matter how much he modifies or adds to your medication schedule.

So you find yourself in a kind of limbo, wondering whether the pills are worth taking and, sometimes, whether the side effects, which many pills provoke, are not worse than the threat you are told is hanging over you if your blood pressure goes untreated.

A few years ago, many doctors took a fatalistic view of non-symptomatic high blood pressure and believed that there was a long "benign" period in the life of patients with high blood pressure, during which they were not at risk and did not need any treatment.

Part of the reason for this view was that there was no effective medication that could be counted on to lower an elevated blood pressure.

With the advent some 20 years ago of medication that effectively lowers high blood pressure and with the proliferation since that time of a whole range of effective anti-hypertensive agents, the attitude of doctors began to change.

Many studies were undertaken to see just how "benign" untreated high blood pressure really is and how much sickness and death could be prevented if high blood pressure was effectively lowered.

As with so many medical problems, when large numbers of patients are studied with comparable untreated patients as "controls," it gradually becomes apparent that the state of affairs is not necessarily as it was assumed to be.

Many studies now make it clear that there is significant statistical evidence that patients with asymptomatic high blood pressure who are treated with anti-hypertensive drugs fare much better than do those who go without treatment. And the so-called "benign" period is a lot less certain and by no means as long as it was once thought to be.

When enough people are observed -- both treated and untreated -- significant differences in the occurrence of the complications of high blood pressure show up in a relatively short time. That is, within three to five years, and the benefits of treatment are obvious.

Now it appears in a recent Veterans Administration study that even when blood pressure is not lowered to normal levels, there can be considerable benefit from drugs. The incidence of complications in patients with treated, but only partially controlled, high blood pressure was found to be only half that in untreated patients.

It may seem dreary to go on taking pills for asymptomatic high blood pressure but there is very convincing evidence that taking pills is keeping many hypertensive people out of trouble.

Provincial House reports profit

Provincial House, Inc., regained profitability in fiscal 1975, increased the scope of its health care programs and strengthened its financial position. President Patrick J. Callihan announced this week.

Increases in the utilization of the company's health centers and hospital and a modest gain in computer service income offset the company's planned reduction of $6 million in construction contracts. As a result, Provincial House reported total revenues of $21,040,238, compared with $21,672,910 in fiscal 1974.

Callihan announced that net income, reflecting the benefit of tax credits from subsidiary operations, amounted to $295,569 or 31 cents a share. In 1974, a year affected by adverse construction activity, Provincial House suffered an after-tax loss of $890,363 or 95 cents a share.

Provincial House reported a buildup to 99 per cent by year end in the occupancy rate for its more than 1500-bed capacity in its 12 geriatric nursing homes, its hospital-surgical center and homes for the mentally retarded.

The company also reported that arrangements to purchase Medical Center West, a centrally located office building in Lansing, and other Lansing properties and assets of S.D. Solomon & Sons Construction Co. had increased the company's net assets by approximately $2 million and had raised its working capital ratio to 1.5 to 1 from 1974's .9 to 1.

ing in Lansing, and other Lansing properties and assets of S.D. Solomon & Sons Construction Co. had increased the company's net assets by approximately $2 million and had raised its working capital ratio to 1.5 to 1 from 1974's .9 to 1.

Lenzner home reveals wealth of family history

The dark, silent rooms of the old house shivered in the cold of a late October afternoon. The house, located at 6559 Pine St., belonged to the late Miss Gladys Lenzner and held a large portion of her family's history—some of it dating to pre-Civil War days. It all went on the auction block recently. A tour of the house prior to the sale revealed a wealth of memorabilia that spanned over three-quarters of a century and said much about its late owner.

"It was interesting to go through things as we did after her death," Miss Lenzner's sister-in-law, Mrs. Laura Lenzner of Bad Axe said. "We really felt as though we got to know her a lot better."

The collection was revealing. Many pieces of furniture in the house were hand-made by Miss Lenzner's grandfather, Oscar, including two dressers, a small stand with drawers and a table with a scalloped top.

The small stand dates to 1852, and bears Lenzner's name and his home at the time, Batavia, on the underside of one drawer.

According to Mrs. Lenzner, the family came to America from Germany in 1853, and moved to Michigan 10 years later. In 1873, Oscar built a furniture store on Main Street in Cass City, located just east of the present Chronicle building.

Gladys Lenzner was born Nov. 29, 1892, in Cass City, and lived in the old house from the age of 10, Mrs. Lenzner said. Her father, Frank, was a talented musician who operated a music store and also gave lessons.

The piano on which many Cass Cityans first learned to play was still in the home prior to the auction, as were nearly a half-dozen banjos and guitars—all handmade by Oscar Lenzner Jr.

Some featured intricate inlaid workmanship. Another was constructed from a wooden cigar box.

"The whole family was very talented," Mrs. Lenzner said.

Miss Lenzner lived in the house for the last 72 years of her life. She lived there with her father and aunt, following her mother's death.

Frank Lenzner died in 1940 and her aunt died five years later. For the next 30 years, she lived in the 11-room house alone, except for the memories.

A neighbor, Mrs. Myrtle McColl, who knew Miss Lenzner for 25 years, described her as a very private person.

"She had been friends of my husband and his family," she said. "I got to know her as a neighbor and when her health began to fail, I looked in on her to make sure she had the things she needed."

Mrs. McColl and Mrs. Lenzner uncovered a trove of items, including newspapers that dated before the turn of the century.

"We found so many things," Mrs. McColl said. "Well, for instance, hair pins. She had more hairpins than you'd ever use in your lifetime."

A walk-through the house was similar to touring a museum. A leather-covered "fainting couch" dominated the front room.

In one corner, a curved-top radio, still in working order, rested on a hand-made oak stand.

Each room featured chain and glass chandeliers, all in working order.

Mrs. McColl agreed it was fascinating to rummage through the old house.

RAN LINOTYPE

Mrs. McColl recalled that Miss Lenzner ran a linotype machine at the Chronicle for several years for her cousin, Herbert Lenzner, then owner of the paper.

"I understand she was really good at it," Mrs. Lenzner remembered. "After she quit working there, she had other newspaper opportunities. The Rochester Clarion wanted her to work for them, but she'd been in an accident and she was not in good health."

In spite of her largely reclusive life, Miss Lenzner had a sense of what was news, coupled with a sense of humor. She wrote a letter to the rotogravure editor of the Detroit News in 1926, regarding the slow pace of construction on M-53, east of Cass City.

She sent a picture of a state trunkline bridge, constructed over the north branch of the Cass River to accommodate the road that hadn't yet reached the spot six-and-a-half miles northeast of Cass City.

"On leaving the main road, drive into a farmer's barn yard, down the lane, through a pasture and along a winding, woody trail—and suddenly a fine looking concrete bridge appears—standing alone in swampy and undeveloped surroundings—where it has patiently waited for nearly three years for road connections."

"May I suggest the following as a title for my picture if used— Alone-Waiting for M-53."

The picture she sent was returned, apparently unused. In her later years, Miss Lenzner spent much of her time gardening and tending to her home.

She spent the last five months of her life in a nursing home before she died last July.

THE UNDERSIDE of this drawer reveals that the table was made by Oscar Lenzner in 1852.

MRS. MYRTLE McCOLL shows two hand-made banjos, constructed by Oscar Lenzner before the turn of the century. The instrument on the right was fashioned from a wooden cigar box.

Health agency rules told

Rules which will govern the organization of the new Health Systems Agencies (HSA), mandated by the National Health Planning and Resources Development Act of 1974, have been released by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to the Michigan Association for Regional Medical Programs which will be playing a support role in implementing the new system in Michigan.

According to the act, the new agencies will be responsible for providing effective health planning as well as promoting the development of health services, manpower, and facilities to meet specified needs. An HSA is to be either a private non-profit corporation, a public regional planning body or a single unit of general local government responsible for health planning and development. In Michigan HSAs will replace the current Comprehensive Health Planning (CHP)

The most likely HSA candidate for the health service area covering the counties of Saginaw, Bay, Midland, Gratiot, Tuscola, Isabella, Clare, Gladwin, Huron, Sanilac, Arenac, Roscommon, Ogemaw and Iosco is the East Central Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning Council with offices in Bay City.

The proposed regulations basically repeat the specifications for HSAs which were included in great detail in the original legislation. However, the regulations add significant requirements to ensure the public accountability of the new HSAs. Each applicant agency will be required to hold a public hearing for community review of its proposals. The law requires that an HSA applicant seek and use the recommendations of its community in the design of the HSA program.

Cancer society meets Oct. 27

The annual crusade round-up and meeting of the Tuscola County Unit American Cancer Society were held Monday evening, Oct. 27. A potluck supper preceded the meeting at the Gifford United Methodist church.

Gretchen Haines presided over the punch table during the social hour, while music was provided by Erhardt Rogner.

Mrs. Joe Young and members of the Gifford Home Extension Club were hostesses at the supper.

During the last year, 60 Tuscola county residents were helped by the Society in various ways. Presently the unit's three hospital beds are all in use by cancer patients. The unit also owns two wheelchairs, two walkers, bedpans and other equipment. Many patients are helped with the expense of drugs, dressings and transportation.

It was pointed out that all money from memorials goes directly into the crusade fund and at present there is $3,500 in the fund.

She reported that 220 women from Tuscola county are in the breast cancer detection program.

The Uterine Task Force program was explained by Mrs. Ivan Perry and Mrs. Erhardt Rogner. Mrs. Robert Blake of Millington and Mrs. Iva Profit of Cass City may be contacted in their areas. The Pap tests should be taken before Dec. 1. Mrs. Joe Young, Mrs. Charles Hirschman of Reese or Mrs. Beatrice Reinert of Richville also have "kits" available.

Mrs. Ruth Hoffman of the Lansing office showed a film and explained various aspects about the Society. She mentioned that the next emphasis will be on colon and rectal examination, as this seems to be one of the neglected areas, especially in men.

She commended the unit's achievement in reaching its goal.

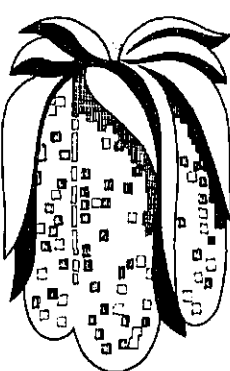

The highlight of the evening was the announcement of the 1976 Crusade chairman, Mrs. Robert Cassidy of Vassar.

Missionary Church raises the roof (steeple) Saturday

Cass City Missionary church literally raised the roof Saturday . . . or at least part of it.

Workmen installed a 29-foot steeple over the church sanctuary, completing the project that had been in the planning stage over two years. The steeple was anchored into place by volunteer church workmen using ropes to hoist the steeple into place.

According to Rev. Wilton Hull, pastor of the church, the project had been on trustees' minds for about two years, but had been put off due to a lack of funds.

The project was eventually made possible as a memorial donated by Mrs. Oran Leiter of Weidman, in memory of her parents, Glenn and Melissa Tuckey.

Final cost of the steeple is expected to total $850, Pastor Hull said.

The steeple was constructed by Rev. Glenn Marks of Ada, who built it and hauled it to Cass City Saturday. The steeple is made of plywood with a laminated aluminum covering.

It took 14 men to raise the steeple into place Saturday, battling a persistent wind and tricky cross-currents.

While the steeple was not part of the original design for the church, everyone on hand agreed it added the finishing touch to the structure.

A dedication service is tentatively scheduled for Sunday, Nov. 23, Pastor Hull said.

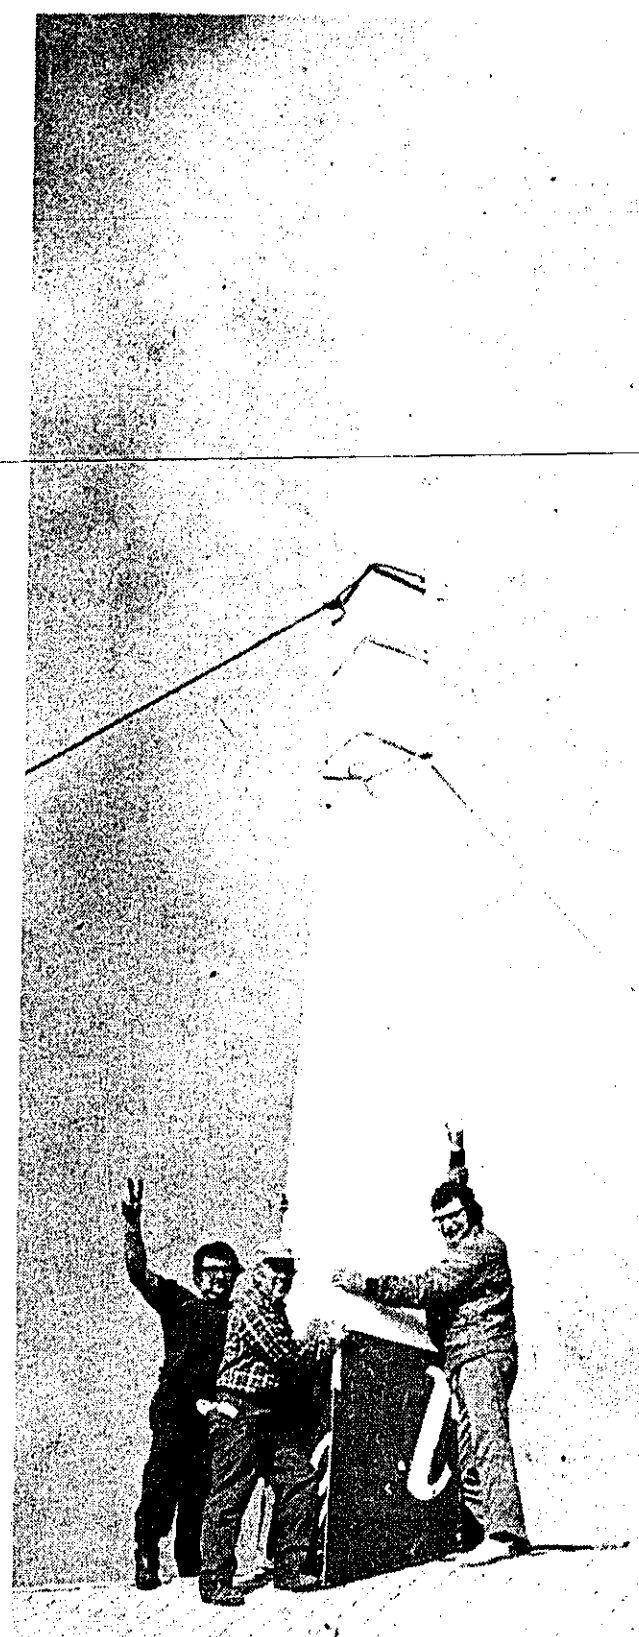

The steeple culminates the church building project which was begun when ground was broken in the summer of 1965.

Five area students receive CMU degrees

Five area students were among 799 to be awarded degrees at Central Michigan University at the end of the summer sessions in August.

Mrs. Carol Ann Crawford, Shabbona Road, Deford, received a bachelor of science in math, with minors in English and special education.

She is currently employed as a substitute teacher in the Tuscola Intermediate School District.

Lowell Thomas Smith, Jacob Road, Cass City, received a master of arts degree in school administration. He received a bachelor of arts in elementary education from Huntington College, Huntington, Ind., in 1969, and is a 1957 graduate of Caro High School.

degree in elementary education. She received a bachelor of arts degree in home economics in 1952.

SR. DONNA M. WENCEL

She is a sister of the order of St. Dominic of Adrian and is presently principal of St. John's School in Ubyly.

Dorland Ray Kuntz, 3355 E. Cass City Rd., Cass City, received a master of arts degree in guidance counseling. He received his bachelor's degree in elementary education in 1968 from Huntington College, Huntington, Ind., where he also minored in music.

DORLAND R. KUNTZ

He currently teaches in the vocal music program in the Cass City schools.

Also graduating were Richard P. Holdship of East McTaggart Road, Ubyly, who received a master's degree, and Kenneth R. Sweeney of 4474 Pike St., Ubyly, who also received a master's degree.

Commencement exercises are not held at CMU during the summer or fall, but August graduates may participate in mid-year commencement exercises scheduled for Dec. 13.

LOWELL T. SMITH

He is currently teaching sixth grade at Caro Community Schools.

Sr. Donna M. Wencel, 4440 Washington St., Ubyly, received a master of arts

Diebel new manager at Klein's

A Thumb area man is the new manager of the Klein Fertilizer Co. plant in Cass City, it was announced this week by company officials.

The appointment of Gary Diebel was effective Nov. 1. Diebel is a graduate of Laker High School. He was active in the Future Farmers of America for four years, receiving the State Farmer award in 1969.

He farmed with his father near Elkton before moving to his present home in Cass City.

He is a member of the Elkland Township Fire Department and is married to the former Kathy Turner of Cass City.

The couple has two boys, Troy and Todd.

Burn victim still critical

Mrs. Jeanette Mulrath, 22, of 6444 River Rd., Cass City, was still reported in critical condition with burns over 75 to 80 per cent of her body Tuesday afternoon at the Saginaw St. Mary's Hospital burn unit.

Mrs. Mulrath was injured Saturday, Nov. 1, as she was attempting to fill a cigarette lighter. Lighter fluid spilled over a housecoat she was wearing and was ignited by a cigarette.

The housecoat was destroyed and wrapped Mrs. Mulrath in flames. She has been in St. Mary's Hospital since the incident took place.

Coming Auctions

Friday, Nov. 21 - To settle the estate of Irene Hall, a complete household auction will be held at 3953 Cemetery Rd., one mile south of Cass City, beginning at 10:30 a.m. Ed Bitel, auctioneer.

Owen-Gage school board okays $688,055 budget

(the teachers') part in taking this cut," Erickson said.

ATHLETIC BUDGET

The board approved an athletic budget totaling $9,660, up by over $3,000 from last year's budget. Athletic Director James Barr said the increase comes through adding one girls' sport, softball, increasing the football schedule from seven to nine games and doubling the number of girls' basketball games played.

In addition, new football helmets and uniforms were also needed, Barr said.

Football continues to be the most expensive sport, costing $2,000 last year, followed by basketball at $1,900. The baseball program cost $1,050 last year, while track cost $500.

The most expensive girls' sports program was basketball, costing $1,125.

OTHER BUSINESS

In contrast to recent meetings, Monday's board session was quiet. The board learned that the Owen-Gage Education Association has decided to aid the board in its fight to prevent pending land transfer requests to Cass City.

Erickson recommended that the offer be accepted. He also reported a hearing is set for Thursday night with the Huron Intermediate Board of Education regarding several Laker School District property owners who want to transfer back to Owen-Gage.

The land in question lies in sections two, three, six and 11 of Brookfield township. At an earlier meeting, the board passed a resolution favoring the transfer.

The discussion brought an allegation from Voelker that two blank petitions from the transfer area had been turned in signed but without any information at the top.

The board took no action on Voelker's charge.

In other business, the board passed a resolution allowing Erickson to borrow up to $40,000 in anticipation of state aid. Erickson told the board that if taxes and state aid come in on time, the loan won't be necessary.

Interest on such a loan was estimated at five per cent.

The board approved hiring Phil Gray as varsity baseball coach and accepted the resignation of Stella Erer as a cook, effective Jan. 1.

The board accepted a bid of $350 on a 1965 school bus from Homer Kretschmer.

Trustees approved the purchase of four IBM typewriters at a cost of $1,720. They turned down a lower bid of $1,048 by Olympic due to a maintenance agreement that will reportedly repair the machines even if they fall on the floor.

Cost of the maintenance contract is $33.50 per typewriter per year. The okay is subject to confirmation of maintenance contract terms.

request permission from landowners before they hunt on their property.

"This is one of our biggest trouble spots during the hunting season," Jarvis said. "And it's one reason we scheduled the antlerless season during the first week—to cut down on the rush."

One factor that could increase the county deer kill this year is the corn harvest. Much of the corn crop will be in the bins before next Friday, reducing hiding places for deer and sending them into more heavily wooded areas.

He said during the summer, a few more complaints of deer damaging soy bean crops were reported, but little damage was reported to standing corn.

Jarvis said the herd came through last winter in exceptional condition and that last April's 17-inch snowfall did not hurt the herd.

Deford man nets jail term in Circuit Court

A Deford man was sentenced to a term in Jackson Prison when he appeared before Judge Martin Clements in Tuscola County Circuit Court Monday.

Michael Lasiewicki, 25, Deford, was sentenced to serve from one-and-a-half to 15 years in prison after pleading guilty to a breaking and entering charge.

As a part of his sentence, Judge Clements recommended Lasiewicki receive drug abuse therapy. He was given credit for seven days already served.

Alvin L. Vollmar, 18, Akron, was sentenced to serve from one-and-a-half to four years in Jackson Prison after pleading guilty to breaking and entering and larceny in a building.

Vollmar was accused in incidents involving the Briggs Furniture Store and a tavern in Akron earlier this year.

He was given credit for two days served.

Ronald G. Pelton, 17, no address given, was given a 54-day suspended sentence after pleading guilty to a 90-day misdemeanor, fraud under $50, when he appeared before Judge Clements.

Evelyn Scott, no address given, was sentenced for a plea of guilty to conspiracy to obtain money under false pretenses to five days in the Tuscola County Jail with credit for one day served.

Charges against Ronald Clause and Leo Weiss, Frankemuth, were dropped on motions by Prosecutor George Holmes.

A hearing in a case involving Leo Waterman, 47, on a probation violation was continued to Dec. 8. Bond in the case was reduced to $300.

Three Flint men were arraigned in connection with a breaking and entering and larceny in Akron.

Ronald Roy Tondy, Albert M. Umphrey and Michael Greer, all 18, stood mute and pleas of innocent were entered in their behalf. Pre-trial examinations for the trio were set for Dec. 8, and bonds are continued on each.

A fourth man, William D. Selleck, no age or address given, was also arraigned in connection with the incident. He entered a plea of guilty to a breaking and entering count which was accepted by the court.

Sentencing was set for Dec. 22.

Allan J. Stafford, 28, Reese, was arraigned on a charge of negligent homicide. He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered in his behalf.

Pre-trial examination was set for Dec. 8, and bond was continued.

Stafford is charged in connection with a traffic accident that took the life of Harry Fought, 77, last Sept. 24.

Richard E. Shaw, 32, Caro, was arraigned on two counts of uttering and publishing (writing bad checks). He stood mute on both counts and pleas of innocent were entered in his behalf.

Pre-trial examinations were set for Dec. 22 and a $1,000 personal recognizance bond was continued.

Tracy Don Kelly, 18, Ohio, entered a plea of guilty to a probation violation when he appeared before Judge Clements Monday. The plea was accepted and sentencing was set for Nov. 24.

Thumb Dairy agent's job ended

Elimination of the Extension dairy agent position for Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties stems from human resource and budgetary considerations.

William M. Bivens, who currently holds the post, will become dairy agent for Jackson county, Dec. 1, pending Michigan State University Board of Trustees approval.

The personnel shifts, however, should ensure all agricultural programs within the tri-county area will remain adequately served by Extension.

Livestock specialist Lee Warschewsky will spend two days each week in the Sanilac Extension office and two in the Huron Extension office. The fifth day will be used between the two counties as necessary.

Sanilac Agricultural Agent Joe Shaltry will be primarily responsible for dairy in Sanilac county as will agent George W. Atkeson in Huron and County Extension Director Bill Bortel in Tuscola.

Crop specialist Sam Woods will work with bean production in Sanilac, Huron, Tuscola and Saginaw counties. Other program areas will be handled with existing Extension personnel within each county.

Plan Family Day program

Have you ever gotten up in the morning, gone out to mow the lawn or rotolift the garden and find that mechanical wonder won't work?

How about nurturing and pampering those fruit trees just to end up with wormy or scabby fruit and not know why?

Did some of your shrubs kick up their toes and get that woe-begotten look and you wonder why the loss of vigor?

Would you like to have more vigorous house plants this winter?

If your answer is "yes" to any one of these questions, you should attend the Dec. 6 Family Day Program at the Caro High School, according to Don Keblor.

You can learn simple maintenance on your yard, lawn and garden machinery, proper fruit tree spraying, control of insect disease and other problems in your trees and shrubs, and having peppy house plants.

If these aren't of interest to you, maybe an estate plan is foremost in your mind or any of the other 20 selected educational sessions scheduled for youth and adult interest.

This Family Day event will begin at 9:00 a.m. and close at 12:30 p.m. You'll be able to attend a total of two one-hour sessions of your choosing.

A schedule of this free Family Day event can be yours by contacting the Tuscola County Extension office.

Lisa Zimba's dedication shows on and off the basketball floor

When you get down to the nitty gritty of it all there is a lot about girls' basketball that is identical to that played by the boys.

Sure, the girls play with the same rules as the boys, but it's more than that.

It's easy to spot if you are looking for it. Easy to spot, but hard to put on paper. It's the special thrill that comes to every athlete if they are really dead serious about competition.

Lisa Zimba's got it. It shows when she says that she gets all psyched up when Cass City plays well and the plays are working to perfection.

It shows when she tells of long summers practicing at the basket erected in the barnyard of the family farm.

It shows when she tells of training her deaf sister so she can make the team of the school she attends in Flint.

It shows when she tells how it was hard to get to sleep in the finals of the tournament at Ubyly last year.

It shows, too, when her Coach Kally Maharg says that Lisa is one of the hardest working girls on the team. A floor leader in basketball, and a diamond leader in softball where the talented Miss Zimba performs in center field.

Lisa started basketball in the eighth grade, liked it, and last year won the right to play on the varsity.

The blonde attractive Cass City junior doesn't talk much about her court achievements.

She's averaging 12 points and 17 big rebounds a game, but her aims are team centered, rather than individual centered.

Her big drive right now is to go "a long ways" in the tournament that starts in the middle of the month.

Maybe if we can win a regional more folks will pay attention to us, she says. The accent here is on the boys, she added.

Watching her perform on the court it's apparent that she is, as described by Ms. Maharg, one of the outstanding athletes in the school.

It's a good combination. She stands tall for a girl, over 5 feet, nine inches, and she works to improve. Whenever she has a bad game, her coach says, she is discouraged and wants to know what she can do to improve.

Not only does Lisa work to improve, she makes a sacrifice to play at all. She has chores around the barn and just because she plays, doesn't mean that she gets out of the work.

She does the farm work before she comes to school and after she gets home around supper time.

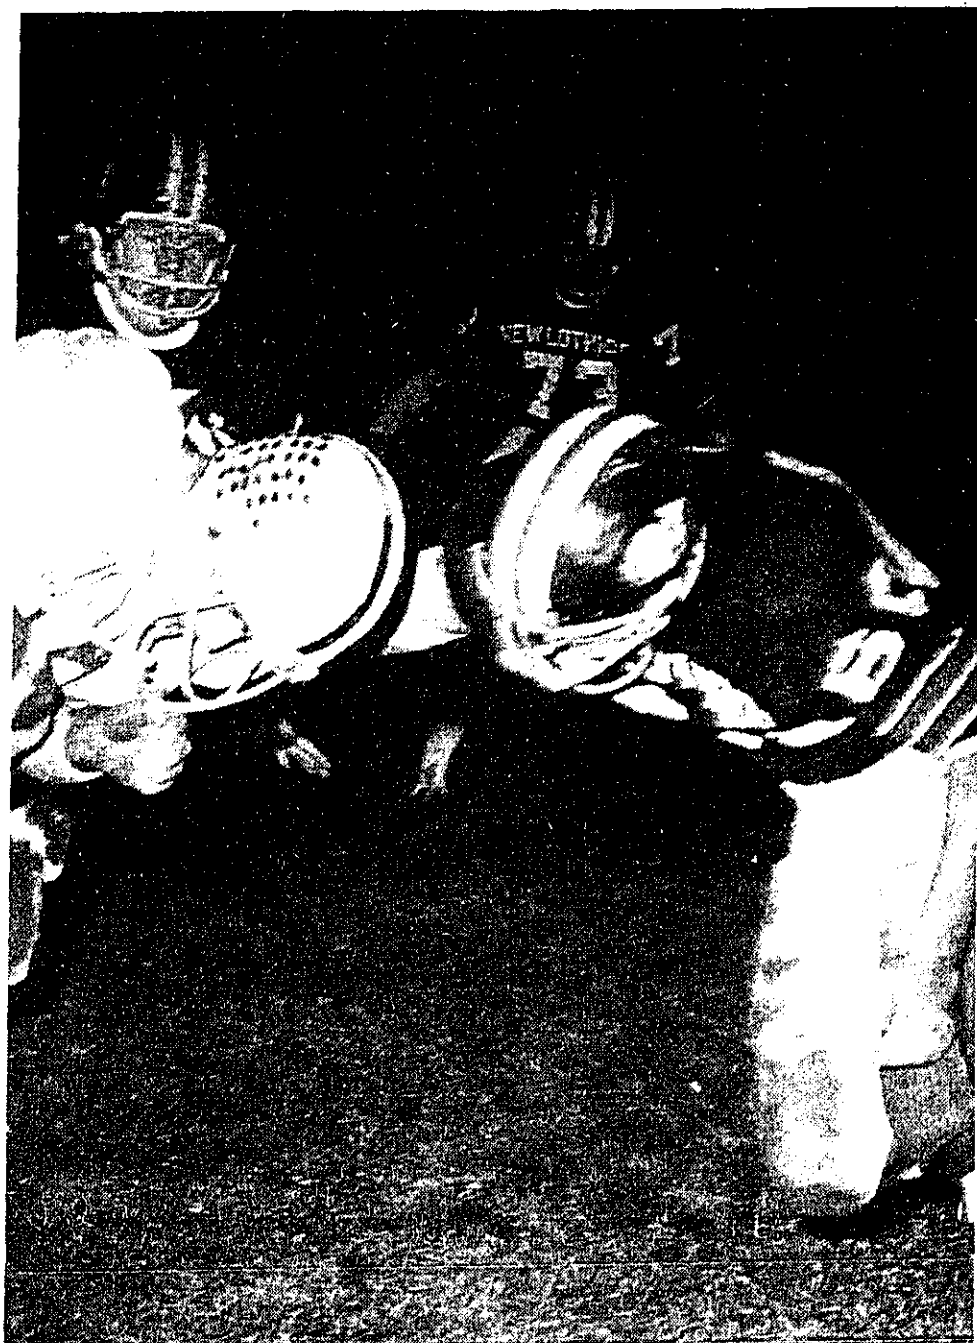

Evidently, the life agrees with her. In Cass City she's taking shop and farm related courses and has no plans for formal education after high school.

It would be nice if she could look back at a Regional or State championship as a highlight of her high school days.

The odds are against it, much against it. But if it never happens it won't be because Cass City's girls' basketball center didn't give it her best shot.

LISA ZIMBA practices and sacrifices to play basketball for Cass City High School and the results show when the tall, talented junior takes the floor.

KEN LOWE and the Cass City Red Hawks found yardage hard to come by in the final game Friday against New Lothrop. But it was not for the lack of effort. Lowe plowed for a couple of yards extra after being hit on this play.

Outstanding players named

New Lothrop easy winners over Hawks

New Lothrop ended its brief two-year stay on the Cass City Red Hawks football schedule and judging by the results of the two games played it's probably well that the brief relationship has ended.

For the Hornets stung Cass City badly in the two games. Last Friday the score was 39-0 and last season the score was 42-7.

Although the host Hornets failed to score in the first period it was evident that they were the dominant team Friday.

With Matt Cornell and Kevin Wendling picking up yardage in big chunks through the center of the line New Lothrop set the stage for the first touchdown early in the second period.

Wendling bounced over from inside the one. The next time the Hornets got the ball they moved to score again. This time the play covered 40 yards as Cornell hit Dave Roach in the right flat.

The Hawks tried desperately to get back into the game the next time they got the ball, but the attempt backfired.

Deep in their own territory Tom Smenstek tried a deep pass and it backfired when the Hornets intercepted. Cornell quickly ran for 10 yards to score busting three tackles on the way.

The hosts scored again in the third quarter on Jon Wepley's three-yard burst and in the final period as Mike Ammon plowed over from a yard out.

As the game ended the winners were pounding on the door for another marker.

It was the final game for a host of Hawk seniors.

Heading the list is Ken Lowe, tailback, who Monday night at a team banquet was named most valuable player.

Also gone is Guy Howard, named the best lineman and the team captain.

Another senior honored Monday was Kirt Kendall, Whelpley's three-yard burst improved player.

Coach Roland Pakonen also said good-bye to 17 other members of the team.

The statistics on Howard and Lowe show why they were honored Monday. Howard was credited with 88 tackles, 55 assists and 2 fumble recoveries.

Lowe carried the ball 192 times and gained 681 yards. He caught five passes for 35 yards. On defense he intercepted six passes, recovered two fumbles, made 14 tackles and assisted on 40 more.

Both players might have been even more impressive except they were slowed by injuries. Lowe sat out most of the final half of the final game and Howard played below par.

Owen-Gage edged by Memphis, 14-6

A four-yard run by Dan Amstutz that gave Owen-Gage an early lead wasn't enough to hold off a determined Memphis team and the Bulldogs suffered only their second loss of the year 14-6 at Owendale, Friday night.

In fact, Memphis controlled all but the first quarter of the game, picking up their third win against six losses. Owen-Gage finished with a 7-2 record.

Owen-Gage scored first on a fumble recovery at the Memphis 30 yard line and marched in with Amstutz scoring the only Bulldog touchdown of the night. The point after was wide and with five minutes left in the first quarter, Owen-Gage led 6-0.

Memphis scored its first touchdown in the second quarter on a seven-yard pass play from quarterback Mark Marion to Ken McCarthy. Ron Wilson's run made it 8-6.

Things stayed that way until the final quarter when the Bulldogs put on a last ditch effort to pull the contest out of the fire. They took over in Memphis territory after a punt return but were penalized 15 yards on first down for holding.

Still, they made up all but four yards on a third-down pass. That brought up fourth and four at the 23-yard line, but Lawrence Rapson's kick was wide to the left and Memphis took over at the 20.

From there, Memphis ran down the clock to 1:24, when Marion connected to McCarthy on a 50-yard pass play, making the score 14-6. The point after was unsuccessful.

A last second rally was thwarted on a Memphis interception of a pass.

Memphis gained 144 yards in 50 carries, while Owen-Gage picked up 44 yards rushing in 24 carries.

Memphis connected on 6-12 passes for 102 yards, two touchdowns and had one intercepted.

Owen-Gage hit on 4-12 for 51 yards and also threw one interception.

Eagles clip Hawk girls

The Frankenmuth Eagles clipped the wings of the Cass City Red Hawk girls' basketball team Monday night, downing the squad 66-36 in a tilt at Frankenmuth.

The Hawks kept within striking distance of the Eagles throughout the first half, trailing by only seven at half-time, 29-22. But the third quarter was the ball game, as Frankenmuth blew the Hawks off the floor, outscoring them 19-3.

For the Hawks, Lisa Zimba scored 18 points, playing what Coach Kally Maharg called "a really good game." But an overall 24 per cent shooting average from the floor killed all hope of a win.

For the Eagles, Ruth List notched 20 points, with Sherry Oliver and Rhonda Herzog each adding 10.

Frankenmuth continues to hold a jinx over the Hawks. In eight contests, the Hawks have dropped seven.

CARO GAME

The loss came following a win over Caro, 54-39, last Wednesday, Nov. 5. The Hawks led most of the way, with Caro outscoring them only in the fourth quarter.

Beth Erla led the way with 16 points, followed by Elaine Stoutenburg with 13 and Chris Krueger with nine.

In the rebound department, Beth Erla pulled down 12, followed by Lisa Zimba with six.

Julie Hyde topped all scorers for the Tigers, notching 27 of their 39 points.

The Hawks were scheduled to take on Marlette in the season finale at home Wednesday night.

Through Monday, the Hawks sported a 10-3 season record, good for second place behind Frankenmuth's 13-0.

Coach Maharg said drawings for tournament action was scheduled to take place this week.
