Goal: make reading easier

Reading program helps Cass City kids get ahead

By Jim Ketchum

When Johnny can't read at his grade level, something is being done to help him at Cass City Public Schools.

Known officially as a Reading Support Services program, the idea simply takes small groups of students with sub-par reading skills and places them in an environment that turns reading from a chore into something more enjoyable.

The main problem is getting these students interested in reading, according to Mrs. Nannette Bauer, reading instructor at Cass City Intermediate School.

"With most of these students, reading has always been a problem," she says, "and often we aren't sure why. Maybe a child missed an important part of learning to read. Maybe what he's reading simply doesn't mean anything. There could also be emotional problems or physical problems, such as poor vision."

Eventually, the problem is detected in a series of tests called Gates-MacGinitie reading tests, given to all fourth, fifth and sixth graders in the school system.

The test is comprehensive, Mrs. Bauer explained, and measures reading skills, comprehension, vocabulary, speed and accuracy. The results indicate at what grade level the students read.

Those who fall two years or more below their grade are directed into special reading classes, taught by Mrs. Bauer and Mrs. Anton Peters. Mrs. Peters works with students at Campbell and Evergreen schools, while Mrs. Bauer works with Intermediate and Deford Elementary students. Mrs. Bauer said the tests show that about 25 per cent of the 500 students tested could not read within two years of their grade level.

She works with approximately 70 students four days a week at Cass City Intermediate, in a program financed with state and federal funds.

Total salaries for both remedial reading teachers total $27,917.50, according to figures supplied by the district. Of that total, Mrs. Peters' entire salary is paid through the Title I aid program, with a portion of Mrs. Bauer's salary funded through state and local aid.

Total state aid in the reading support program through June, 1975, totaled $3,573.24, according to figures supplied by the Tuscola Intermediate School District.

She expressed concern that the program may suffer under proposed state budget cuts in education. Presently, however, nothing is certain. Whether funds are slashed for the program or not, the problem still remains, she said.

"In one classroom of sixth graders, we found 11 students reading at the third grade level," Mrs. Bauer said.

TECHNIQUES

Getting a student to improve his reading skills takes a combination of techniques, along with patience and an understanding of the individual student.

"These kids aren't dumb," Mrs. Bauer said. "If it weren't for their reading problems, they would be top-flight students. But if you can't read then you're lost at everything else."

One of the methods used to improve reading skills is a basic workbook. In it, students learn to sound out words as well as read simple sentences in what are hopefully interesting stories. "That's part of the trick," Mrs. Bauer said, "we have to give the kids something interesting to read that will hold their attention."

Another tool is a bi-monthly magazine which provides students with stories as well as puzzles and word games to advance reading skills.

Comprehension is also stressed. Mrs. Bauer says that just since classes began this fall, most of her students have improved their ability to retain what they've read.

Periodic tests involve giving the student three or four sentences to read, followed by a quiz on what they read and what it meant.

She says she also encourages her students to read newspapers and magazines, with an eye toward eventually tackling whole books.

"Another goal we have is to eventually get these kids involved in writing," she explained. "We've got some students here who read slow but who can write beautifully and who have an imagination."

She says one test involves having the students read part of a story and then having her students write an ending for it. The exercise is especially popular with more advanced students.

Could begin in 1977

Tri-county Dial-A-Ride plans studied by commissioners

Tri-county commissioners began studying the possibility of establishing a Dial-A-Ride service during an informal meeting with state authorities Thursday at Wildwood Farms.

Commissioners seemed interested in the project, but weren't ready to come out in complete support of the project without backing from their respective boards.

Thursday's planning could lead to a three-county, state sponsored mini-bus service beginning by July, 1977. How much such a system would cost or how many vehicles would be needed are still unknown. A study of the area's transportation needs still must be completed.

Mike Eberlein, assistant manager of the bus development section of the State Highway Department, made the pitch for the system, explaining that if the three counties go in on the plan together, the total investment the first year would be $1,000.

Buses would be furnished by the state and operated during the initial year of the program.

After the first year, local voters would have the opportunity of approving operating millage for the program. Eberlein estimated that approximately one-third of Dial-A-Ride's costs would be picked up by the state in subsequent years, with another third coming through customer fares and the final third from the local sponsoring governmental unit.

In the tri-county case, it's not certain which unit would take the lead or how a transportation authority would be set up.

For example, if Dial-A-Ride is set up in the three counties and after one year a millage vote is held in which Tuscola and Huron counties approve the levy but Sanilac does not, the authority would have to be structured to allow Sanilac to drop out.

The push for a tri-county transportation system came through the Thumb Area Regional Interagency Coordinating Council. Ted Hull, Caro Area Services for the Handicapped director, said the 25 agencies in the three counties spend close to $100,000 a year on transportation alone and that Dial-A-Ride could be the answer.

Dial-A-Ride has been sponsored through the one-half cent per gallon gasoline tax earmarked for mass transit projects, amounting to some $22 million annually, Eberlein said.

Most of these monies went to metropolitan areas, he said, while Dial-A-Ride systems have been aimed at areas with populations of from 9,000 to 35,000.

So far, Eberlein said, every Dial-A-Ride system in the state has at least broken even. Currently, the system operates in 17 communities.

He said if the three counties go for the idea, it will be the first time more than one county has agreed to give Dial-A-Ride a try.

It's unknown how many mini-buses would be needed in each county, but Hull estimated that Tuscola county alone would need at least four. Each bus would hold from 15 to 20 passengers.

So far, Dial-A-Ride's track record has been good, Eberlein explained. In each community where local millage votes have been held on the system, the system has met with approval. Two weeks ago, Dial-A-Ride millages were approved in Alpena, Cadillac, Dowagiac, Hillsdale and Mt. Pleasant. Each was for one mill, with the exception of Alpena, which okayed a half-mill for Dial-A-Ride operation.

After the first year, Eberlein said, the buses are still furnished by the state, but operation and maintenance is taken over by the local sponsoring unit of government.

Huron County Commission Chairman Calvin Reibling, Elkton, said he could see merit in the idea, but that each county board should have a chance to study the proposal thoroughly.

Tuscola Commissioner Maynard McConkey, Cass City, remained skeptical. "It's hard to conceive a system that could be feasible on such a wide basis," McConkey said.

He was also wary of beginning another program initially sponsored wholly by the state and then phased into the county's already strained budget. People get used to having these services and they don't want to give them up, he said.

Eberlein replied that the people would have an option on keeping it through millage votes.

What's needed now, he added, is a letter of intent, either from the three counties as a group or from one county, stating that the other two are interested in exploring the possibilities of a system.

Eberlein said once that's done, the Highway Department can assist in developing a cost analysis and help determine how many buses would be needed. He emphasized that the state would not be telling the counties what kind of Dial-A-Ride program to operate but only what it would take to offer a given level of service.

He said the bus service would be available to all persons once it's established, but that a large percentage of riders would probably be elderly or handicapped persons who could not drive.

Fares could be expected to average about 50 cents, according to a recent Highway Department news release detailing election results on Dial-A-Ride referendums around the state.

Route could either be established or the system could operate strictly on a request basis. A third option would be a combination of the two. This seemed to find most favor among commissioners who pointed out the size of the service area and its scattered population.

Earlier this year, the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners turned down participation in Dial-A-Ride, largely due to the suddenness of the proposal. Commissioners felt they needed more time to study the proposal, but were told a decision was required that day.

The county is on a stand-by list, Eberlein explained, and if another county should drop out of the program, its state allocation would be available.

It's expected each county board will discuss the idea and detail their thoughts at subsequent meetings on Dial-A-Ride.

Valuation fight with state looming?

Don't look for passive acceptance of next year's State Equalized Valuation figures by the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners. The board is set to pass a resolution at its next meeting demanding a larger voice in determining the figures.

The action came at last Wednesday's meeting of commissioners in Caro.

According to Commissioner Maynard McConkey, 23 counties in the state are before the State Tax Commission, protesting valuations they consider too high. Huron county is presently locked in a battle with the tribunal over valuations.

McConkey said the board's mood on the issue boils down to not accepting the figures just for the sake of accepting them.

In the past, Tuscola county has always kept pace with SEV figures. Huron and Sanilac counties, however, have made moves to protest them.

This year, Huron county taxes will be levied on County Equalized Valuation instead of the higher SEV figure.

McConkey said the county wants a chance to determine its own figures.

It's questionable how successful the move will be, however, since SEV figures have always been used in the past. When counties have failed to use them, a factor, applied by the State Tax Commission, has been imposed on the next year's tax bills.

The board is scheduled to meet next Tuesday to further discuss the resolution.

In other board action last week, builder Tom McFarlan of Akron asked to be relieved of his contract to construct new toilet facilities at Vanderbilt Park on Saginaw Bay. He cited health problems as his reason for withdrawing. The contract will be relet next spring.

The board made final payment on the Intermediate School District building of $72,500. In turn, the district will rent the building at $2,000 per month until its new building is completed, probably by Jan. 1.

The county plans to move some of its offices into the structure, located across the street from the courthouse in Caro.

The board agreed to join a tri-county Commission on Aging, at a cost of $3,216.72. The move had already been approved by Huron and Sanilac counties, conditional on Tuscola's approval.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce LeValley

St. Pancratius Catholic church was the setting for the Oct. 25 wedding ceremony of Yvonne Louise Erla and Bruce Louis LeValley. Rev. Fr. Arnold Messing of Sacred Heart Seminary, Detroit, performed the nuptial mass at 4:00 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Erla of Cass City. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Vern Ricker Jr. of Owendale, and the late Eugene LeValley.

The bride wore a princess-styled gown in ivory sateau and cluny lace trim, featuring a high neck, bishop sleeves, matching lace, Empire waist, and sweep train with double hemline flounce of cluny lace trim. To complete her attire, she wore a matching lace bridal picture hat with an ivory veil. She carried a colonial bouquet of fall shades of mums, large roses, star-flowers and baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Cindy McClorey, friend of the bride, of Cass City, attired in an apricot gown. Bridesmaids were Linda Colling of Colwood, Pat Erla, Beth Erla, Mary Jane Van Vliet, all of Cass City, and Hazel Coleman of Ft. Wayne, Ind.

The attendants wore floor length gowns in deep rust color with hooded jackets, trimmed with matching maribou. They carried bouquets done in colonial style of rust mums and yellow snowdrifts, star flower and baby's breath, with streamers to match the dresses.

Best man was John Asher, friend of the groom. Groomsman were Rick VanVliet and Clark Erla of Cass City, Rick Erla of Albion, Randy Colling of Colwood and Russ Coleman of Ft. Wayne, Ind. All wore brown tuxedos with boutonnieres of rust mums.

Ushers were Paul and Marty LeValley of Cass City and Dick and Allen LeValley of Owendale, brothers of the groom.

Flower girl was Jennifer Coleman of Ft. Wayne, Ind., age 3½. She carried a fireside basket of flowers to match the bridesmaids'.

The bride's mother wore an apricot floor-length gown with a V-neck design and gold jewelry. She carried a bouquet of Sonji roses to match the gown. The bride's father wore an ivory tuxedo jacket with brown slacks and a boutonniere of apricot Sonji rose.

The bridegroom's mother wore a peach floor-length gown with Sonji roses to match the gown.

Organist was Paul Kerbyson, playing a medley of songs. Soloist was Tom Guinther who sang "Sunrise, Sunset", "Wedding Song" and "Annie's Song".

The church was decorated with fall shades of mums and glads. The bride placed a small hand bouquet made up in blues, at the Blessed Mother Statue.

A wedding buffet dinner and reception followed at the Colony House, which 1,100 guests attended, coming from Florida, Indiana, New York, Ohio, Texas and Washington, D.C.

Michigan guests attended from Almont, Bay City, Brown City, Bad Axe, Albion, Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills, Caro, Colwood, Decker, Detroit, Deford, Frankenmuth, Kinde, Gagetown, Grosse Pointe Woods, Hart, Harper Woods, Imlay City, Kingston, Mt. ## Kingston man nets jail term Monday

A Kingston area man was sentenced to serve from four to seven years in Jackson Prison when he appeared Monday in Tuscola County Circuit Court before presiding Judge Norman Baguley.

Harold H. Wood II, 22, was sentenced following a jury conviction on a charge of delivering the drug PCP (phenylcyclidine). In his sentence order, Judge Baguley made no recommendation for early parole.

His sentence is to run concurrently with another sentence for an earlier conviction.

Wood was arrested Feb. 16 in Caro.

A bench warrant was issued for a Deford man when he failed to appear for a scheduled court date Monday. Franklin Blake Holcomb, 22, is charged with assault with a dangerous weapon in connection with the robbery of a Caro man Oct. 4.

Randy Ray Mis, 25, Caro, was arraigned on charges of uttering and publishing (bad check). He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered in his behalf.

Pre-trial examination was set for Dec. 15, and bond of $1,000 was continued.

The incident took place Jan. 8, in Caro.

A motion to reduce the bond of Frank Jefferson Snyder, 24, Caro, charged with the murder of Ronald Shorts, Sept. 22, was denied.

A motion to commit Snyder to the state forensic center for examination was granted and his pre-trial examination was continued indefinitely.

William Schwartz, 23, Bad Axe, was arraigned on charges of unlawfully driving away an automobile. Schwartz entered a plea of nolo contendere to a count of "joy riding."

Judge Baguley continued the case for two weeks. Schwartz is accused of taking a vehicle belonging to Charles Nemeth of Cass City, Oct. 10.

Schwartz also faces a similar charge in Almer township.

Cass City man hurt in chain saw mishap

A Cass City man is reported recovering from serious injuries sustained when a chain saw he was using slipped, cutting his left leg.

Gordon Peters, Woodland St., was injured as he was cutting small trees with the saw Tuesday, Nov. 11, near Allegan, where he was working with his brother.

According to his wife, the saw became entangled in brush and then slipped toward him, cutting his left leg at the knee. Mrs. Peters said it took 175 stitches to close the wound.

He was treated at Allegan General Hospital where he was held through last Friday. He returned to Allegan for continued observation after spending last week end at home.

Mrs. Peters said her husband is currently walking on crutches and is staying with his brother near Allegan.

She said tendon damage was reported to the knee.

Interfaith banquet set Nov. 29

An Interfaith Fellowship Banquet will be held Saturday, Nov. 29, at 7:00 p.m. at the Colony House. The event is sponsored by the Women's Christian Prayer Breakfast group, which meets the third Wednesday of each month at the Cass City Hotel.

Featured speaker at the event will be Dr. Forest Stevenson, a Christian psychologist from Detroit, who will be speaking on the family relationship and to those who live alone.

The evening will open with a welcome by Judy Willet, the invocation by Rev. Walton Veurink and group singing led by Dale Wertz. Adding to the evening will be special selections by the Dorman Sisters from Shabbona and the Schwarz Sisters from Flint.

The banquet will be open to the public and those interested may make reservations through any of the following committee members before Nov. 22: Carol Belk, Cass City; Judy Willet, Bad Axe; Barbara Kube, Bad Axe, or Floris Wertz, Bay Port.

Mr. James E. Ketchum
Cass City Chronicle
Cass City, MI. 48726

Dear Jim:

I would like to thank you for your article on welfare cuts which appeared in the Chronicle on November 6, 1975. I felt you did a good job of searching out resources and presenting facts.

It's refreshing to read a piece which shows that objective thought has gone into it. Thanks again.

Very truly yours,

Police probe area larcenies, vandalism

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies are continuing to investigate the larceny of two citizen's band radios and vandalism to a farm tractor that took place east of Cass City either late Friday or early Saturday.

Roger Forster, 6929 Schwegler Rd., told police he discovered the radios, which had been mounted on the tractor, missing Saturday morning as he went to finish plowing a field.

He said he started the machines and when he returned in about a half-hour, he discovered one of the tractors had stopped. He told police he found a large hole in the side of the engine block and discovered traces of sugar around the breather cap.

Value of the radios was placed at over $500, while damage to the tractor could run as high as $1,400.

Police have no suspects. Sheriff's deputies also investigated the theft of two calves and four pigs from a Decker area farm which were found south of Cass City on Kelly Road.

No arrests have been made. Officers said the animals belonged to Harley and Francis Nichols of Argyle Road, Decker, and Lee Dockey of 5611 Leslie Rd., Decker.

The animals were reported missing shortly after Halloween, officers reported.

THEFTS

A digital clock radio valued at $34 and a camera valued at $25 were reported stolen from Coach Light Pharmacy this week. Cass City Police said the radio was discovered missing Monday while the camera was reported missing Tuesday.

Police have no suspects, but theorize the thefts could be shoplifting escapades.

A cue ball, valued at $10, was reported stolen from the Quaker Maid game room last week. Police have no suspects.

VANDALISM

A total of 24 windows in a small outbuilding were reported broken at the residence of Mrs. Herman Stine of 4441 Ale St., this week.

Police said the windows were broken with thrown tomatoes. Officers suspect juveniles.

A window was also reported broken on the south side of Salem United Methodist church. The damage was discovered Friday.

A street light was reported broken at the intersection of Vulcan and Seventh Streets this week. The damage was discovered by Gary Diebel, manager of Klein's Fertilizers, Inc.

William Phillips, of 6050 Denhoff Rd., Kingston, reported vandals drove across his lawn last Thursday. Sheriff's officers said deep ruts were cut in the yard. No suspects were apprehended.

Overdose isn't just a teen-age problem, experts say

By Jim Ketchum

Overdose. Sounds ominous. Like something you'd hear on "Emergency" or "Medical Center" or some other television show.

Sadly, it isn't always a TV show. It's real and it happens all too often at the emergency room of Hills and Dales General Hospital.

In the 12 months ending last July, 21 persons were rushed in for treatment of intentional drug overdose, according to hospital records. Of that number, 10 were admitted for extended treatment.

Exact figures for preceding years weren't available since earlier record keeping didn't always separate drug overdose cases from other emergency room cases. But authorities agree the number is increasing.

Both hospital and local police agree the problem isn't confined to teen-agers, although much of the publicity centers on school students who wash down pills with alcohol. Many of the drug overdose cases involve persons past the age of 21.

According to Mrs. Janet Hubbard, R.N., emergency room nurse at Hills and Dales, patient ages range from 16-65, with many in their 20's, 30's and 40's. Many are people who took something they purchased with a bona fide prescription . . . something they later misused.

"Most of the time, these are people who are crying out for help and they don't know any other way," Mrs. Hubbard observed during a break in her hectic emergency room schedule. "The majority of overdose cases we get are deliberate. To me, this is a person who needs help and this is the only way they know how."

Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson agrees.

"I'd say that two out of every four or five drug overdose cases we get involve adults over 20," Wilson says.

"And generally you can trace it to a psychological problem. They don't really want to commit suicide because they make it easy for you by calling the ambulance or somebody who will call it."

"With kids, it's more likely to be an accidental overdose."

ALCOHOL NUMBER ONE PROBLEM

Both Mrs. Hubbard and Wilson agree alcohol is the number one drug overdose problem. Wilson says alcohol is hard to deal with due to its availability.

Other overdose cases involve narcotics, sleeping pills, tranquilizers and aspirin. Most are available with a prescription.

"Who's to say what misuse is?" Mrs. Hubbard said. "If you're prescribed to take three of something a day and you take four, is that misuse? Maybe even three is misuse. Who's going to define it?"

Wilson said at least one person a year has been arrested by Cass City Police on charges of attempting to pass a forged prescription at local drug stores.

The larger problem among students is that often they pick up prescription drugs through a friend. The drugs themselves are perfectly legal. But they are being misused.

Both agree the overdose victim is someone who can't cope with their world. "Sometimes you'll get a husband and wife who have a fight. He leaves, she swallows a handful of pills. We rush her to the hospital, he comes running back, they go home happy and that's the extent of it," Wilson said.

"What do you do? There's nobody you can arrest," he said.

Mrs. Hubbard says part of the treatment problem at the emergency room comes when a patient won't admit he's overdosed. Many times, she says, an overdose victim will try to pass off the problem as the flu or an upset stomach.

"You have to use your intuition," Mrs. Hubbard says. "You have to go with the symptoms you've got and try to make them fit the medical history."

Sometimes, a patient is too sick to tell attending physicians what he took. Whatever the circumstances, there's no single overdose treatment.

"The treatment depends on our findings, including the age, weight and physical condition of the patient, along with what he's ingested and how much," she said.

Treatment can vary from injections of drugs to stop the initial drug action to the traditional stomach pump. Whatever the treatment, it's never pleasant, physically or psychologically.

With teen-agers, prosecution is difficult because in most cases, the drugs are legal. About all you can do is attempt to pin someone with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, Wilson says, especially when alcohol is involved.

"It's a moral question," the police chief says. "As long as the drugs are available, somebody is going to abuse them. By the time we usually get involved, it's already too late."

Mrs. Hubbard agrees the whole problem involves morality.

"You know, what really bugs me is how uptight people get over kids taking drugs when lots of adults get bombed out of their minds on alcohol every night of the week and twice on Sunday," she said.

Alcohol is our biggest drug problem and we're not doing much about it, she added.

"We aren't answering why they overdose," she said.

Most young persons who overdose generally attempt to wash down a barbiturate or narcotic with alcohol, according to Wilson. Last year, a youth collapsed in an alley south of Main Street with a mixture of drugs and alcohol that authorities were unable to analyze due to its complexity.

Recently, a 13-year-old student took an amphetamine with beer that sent her to the hospital.

So far, Wilson said, only one arrest for cocaine has been made in Cass City in recent years, with no heroin arrests to date.

Mrs. Hubbard is the mother of four children. Does she have any fear that any of them could one day be wheeled into the emergency room?

"Not really," she replied. "I think by talking to them as we have and by listening to them, they won't be in that position. I think they're smarter than that. I don't think they're that impressed with drugs."

Wilson admits it's an area the police aren't equipped to handle.

"You're dealing with people doing things in the privacy of their homes," he said. "It's not something you can legislate. It's a moral problem."

It's a problem that won't go away.

TREATMENT

Once the overdose victim has recovered, chances are good he may seek help through the Thumb Treatment Assistance Center (TAC). If the overdose is determined to be a suicidal gesture, then they are admitted, according to Dr. Imogene Fairchild, TAC director.

She said persons can be referred to the center by physicians, their family members or they can seek help themselves.

Treatment can include medication along with therapy, she said.

Dr. Fairchild says she views the drug overdose victim as someone crying for help . . . someone who for any number of reasons is unable to cope with his surroundings.

Once treatment is completed at the center, patients are referred to community mental health centers which can provide continuing therapy and help the overdose victim ease his way back into society.

TIEA files for fact finding

Joyce Henry, president of the Tuscola Intermediate Education Association (TIEA), announced this week that the TIEA has filed an application for fact finding with the Michigan Employment Relations Commission.

"We sent our application last Monday, requesting that the Employment Relations Commission appoint a neutral, expert fact-finder in an effort to resolve our bargaining dispute with the Tuscola Intermediate School District," Henry said.

"The TIEA believes that an expert fact-finder will be able to delve into the unresolved issues as well as the school district's ability to pay, and offer a series of recommendations for a fair and equitable settlement," she added.

"The TIEA is currently demanding a salary increase of 6.89 per cent on each step of the salary schedule, along with continuation of the existing method of paying mileage," said Henry. "The Board has two alternate proposals on the table. One of these offers 6.66 per cent salary increase at each step but is tied to taking away the equivalent of 2.5 per cent of the total salary from the amount paid for mileage. The second alternate is to continue the existing mileage payment but offer 2.22 per cent salary increase at each step."

According to Dave Stafford, TIEA's Executive Director, "Management has been grossly inflating the amount of its offer and the TIEA offer by trying to claim the normal seniority increase that is built into the salary schedule is a raise. Numerous state fact-finders have considered that argument and ruled that such seniority increases are payment for value added by the employee's additional experience and are not a raise or an offset against inflation. Even the old Pay Board under the Nixon Wage-Price Control program ruled that such seniority payments are not a raise."

Stafford added, "In the Tuscola Intermediate District, management's argument on seniority steps is particularly deceptive since less than one-third of the employees are eligible for such a step. The rest," he concluded, "are on either the bottom or the top of the schedule and do not get a seniority step."

Rotary holds ladies' night Tuesday

The Cass City Rotary Club held a special ladies' night Tuesday, Nov. 11, highlighted by an appearance of the Don Borgs and recognition of the families participating in the international youth exchange program.

Norm Richter, a Rotarian from Frankenmuth, brought a Frankenmuth exchange student, to tell of his experiences at Rhodesia.

Master of Ceremonies Tom Proctor told the group of the exchange program and Cass City's role in it.

The Borgs were introduced by M.B. Auten who recalled their years in Cass City when Don Borg was the vocal and instrumental music instructor at Cass City High School.

The couple sang several selections. Proctor also introduced Norm Richter who is now in charge of the exchange program for the district and he outlined the benefits of the program for the students, for the host families and the communities involved.

Brad Goslin: on the mend after auto crash, 139-day hospital stint

By Jim Ketchum

Brad Goslin is lucky to be alive. And mighty, mighty glad.

Goslin, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Goslin of 3489 E. Bay City-Forestville Rd., Gagetown, is home and getting around on crutches these days, still recovering from injuries sustained in a grinding single car crash last June 21.

"It was less than a mile from home," Goslin said with a smile as he settled back in an easy chair of the family living room, his crutches at his side.

"I'd come nine miles but I didn't make the last one," he recalled. Goslin had been in Cass City with a group of friends and had just dropped them off a few minutes before the accident.

"I must have fallen asleep," he said, "because the first thing I remembered was when I hit Clare's (Comment) mailbox. Then something threw me to the left and that's when I hit the tree."

The crash, which occurred at 2:30 a.m. and demolished his nearly new car, awoke Comment, who notified authorities and rode with him to the hospital. As a result, his injuries included a badly broken left leg and a dislocated right leg and hip.

It took initial surgery to relocate the right leg, followed later by surgery on his left leg that included the insertion of an 18-inch stainless steel pin running from his knee to his hip.

Both legs went into traction. He left for 118 days and his right for six weeks.

Surprisingly, Goslin sustained no other major injuries.

PARENTS AWAY

Meanwhile, his parents were attending a wedding in Kalamazoo.

"We'd just gotten back to our hotel room and gone to bed when the phone rang," Brad's father said. "It was Clare. He told us Brad had been in an accident and that he at least had one broken leg. But he said he'd live."

The Goslins, who were accompanied by the Wayne Dillons, immediately left for Bay City. Mrs. Goslin recalled her first reaction on seeing her son in the hospital.

"I'd been worried about a head injury," she said. "When I saw him, I said, 'Gee you look good to me, Brad.' I was surprised that he wasn't all cut up."

Fortunately, there were no internal injuries. But the long, long ordeal had just begun.

"I thought he might be in the hospital two or three days and then he could come home," Mrs. Goslin said. "I had no idea he would be gone so long."

From then on, it was just a matter of waiting, resting and more waiting.

"I spent about a month just reading," Goslin said. "Then I spent another month doing nothing but watching television every day until I got sick of that. Then I went back to more reading."

One thing he did have going for him was lots of company. Nearly every day at least one friend from either Cass City or Owen-Gage High School would drop by. Those visits helped shorten the time and kept his spirits up, he said.

He says he's grateful to all his friends who came by.

During most of the time he was either flat on his back or sitting up in bed. He had strict orders not to move his left leg for nearly four months and when he was finally given the go-ahead, he said he couldn't lift it.

He celebrated his 18th birthday in the hospital Nov. 5, three days before he finally came home. The nurses, who by then had gotten to know him pretty well, brought in a large birthday cake to cheer him up.

Finally, the big day, Nov. 8, arrived and Goslin went home after spending 139 days in the hospital. When he first arrived on the scene, his baby sister, Leslie, age 1, wasn't quite sure who he was.

"We'd taken her in to see him at the hospital," his father said, "and she'd say his name when she looked at his picture. But when he finally got home, she wasn't too sure about him for awhile."

These days, Brad Goslin is getting around on crutches. He'll need them another month or two and will probably walk with a decided limp until next spring.

In the meantime, it means more sitting and waiting. He said since he's just been sitting around, he's put on weight and most of it has gone to his stomach.

Since he graduated last June, he won't be missing any school, but he will be missing out on the normal work he'd otherwise be doing on his father's farm west of Gagetown.

What about getting behind the wheel again? Goslin says he isn't really afraid of the idea of driving again.

BRAD GOSLIN of rural Gagetown is on the mend after spending 139 days in a Bay City hospital with injuries sustained in a grinding single-car crash last June. His one-year-old sister, Leslie, seems more intent on her brother's crutches, which he'll need another month or so, than with the fact that he's finally home.

"I did notice that the road seems an awful lot narrower than it used to," he commented. "But I don't think I'll really be afraid to drive."

He added that he hadn't worn a seat belt at the time of the crash, but that if he had, it might have saved his leg from being broken since the impact threw him forward into the dashboard and steering wheel.

But driving is still a long way off. For now he'll have to concentrate on getting well. That really isn't hard to do though. He's had 139 days' practice.

Car-deer collisions up

Police probe area accidents

Area police reported a series of property damage traffic accidents, including four car-deer mishaps, last week.

Two Deford men escaped serious injury in a Saturday afternoon accident on Kingston Road near Chapin Road.

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies said cars driven by Ernest August Partaka, 53, of Kingston Rd., Deford, and James Don Nicol, 43, of 1767 Hawkins, Deford, were northbound on Kingston Road when Partaka attempted to pull out to pass another vehicle.

He told officers he did not see the approaching Nicol vehicle, which was attempting to pass him.

Nicol told police he headed his car for a ditch to avoid a crash. Neither driver was injured and no ticket was issued. The accident took place at 12:20 p.m.

Two rural Cass City drivers escaped injury when their cars collided on Murry Road, six miles west of Deford, Thursday.

Sheriff's officers identified the drivers as George Mark Ellisen, 31, of Murray Road, Cass City, and Roger Dee McPhail, 37, of 4805 Hoppe Rd., Cass City.

Police said the Ellisen vehicle was headed out of a private driveway onto Murray Road and collided with the northbound McPhail auto. Ellisen told officers he didn't see the oncoming car.

Officers noted his vision was blocked due to a dense

Neither driver was injured and no ticket was issued. The accident took place at 2:50 p.m.

CAR-DEER ACCIDENTS

The opening of the firearms deer season scattered the herd through wooded areas and onto county roads.

A car driven by Larry Albert Frericks, 25, of 184 Brief Rd., Kingston, struck a deer on Leg Road, just east of Cemetery Road, early Monday morning.

Caro State Police said Frericks was westbound on Leg Road when the deer crossed the roadway into the path of his car. He was not injured.

Two car-deer mishaps were reported Saturday. A car driven by Norine Jessie Kelley, 32, of 5997 McComb, Deford, struck a deer as she travelled east on M-46, four miles west of Kingston.

Ms. Kelley was not injured. The accident took place at 2:30 p.m.

Later that day, a car driven by Henry Allen Langenburg, 19, of Melvin, struck a deer as he drove east on M-81 about a mile east of Cass City.

He was not injured. Thursday, a car driven by George Samuel Cole, 64, of 6606 Church St., struck a deer as he travelled west on Cass City Road, six miles west of Cass City.

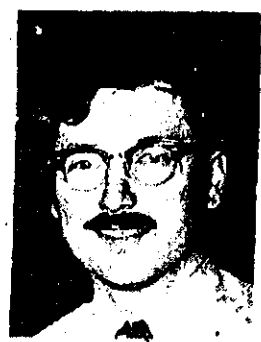

Cole told officers he was unable to avoid the collision. The accident took place at 6:50 a.m.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

Fork lift

memories

By Jim Ketchum

A tour of the new Thumb Web Offset plant in Caro last week reminded me that my fork lift truck driving license was revoked nearly 10 years ago. If you don't believe me, just take a look at the first place I ever worked.

It was my first summer out of high school. I'd landed my first real full-time job as a flunkie in a plastic bottle making plant in Williamston.

The job didn't require a lot of brains as much as it required a strong back. It was the kind of job that made you think about things like getting out of there and on to school, where you'd learn the answers to all the world's problems.

I remember after my first 10 or 11 hour day, I was sure I'd put on cement shoes. I walked with the grace of a wounded gorilla and since the temperature inside the plant always hovered around 90 or 95, I probably smelled like one.

One of my many jobs involved unloading pallets of folded boxes from a second-floor storage area to the main work room. At first, I settled for simply guiding my fellow-worker at the controls of the fork lift so he'd be sure to get a good grip on the pallet.

He missed once and we spent a half-day picking up folded boxes.

Anyhow, I got brave and decided that I should be advanced to fork lift truck driving. I mean, how complicated could it get? I could drive a car. Driving a fork lift should be no problem.

I studied each move carefully until one day my moment arrived.

"Unload a pallet for me," the straw-boss said. Since I was the only one around, it was my responsibility.

It came off without a hitch. Beautiful, I thought. Now I had a little status. The fork lift and I were inseparable.

Then I advanced to loading and unloading trucks laden with pallets of boxes. How simple could this get? I felt ashamed to take the $1.60 an hour they were paying me for something this much fun.

It was fun right to that fateful day on the loading dock. A truck had just come in and I was unloading it with all the finesse of a Swiss watchmaker at his best.

The building we were in was brand new and so was the aluminum siding and borders around the doors. There were also a set of bars that extended about four feet above the top of the fork lift when the forks were all the way up.

Somehow, I forgot to lower the forks as I backed in from the loading dock and the next thing I knew there was a crash, followed by two beautiful two-inch dimples in the side of the building.

Then the boss was there, turning the air blue. "Get to +++++ off that +++++ truck and don't ever let me see you on it again!" he screamed.

My career was shattered. I was the laughing stock of the workers.

To this day, the site of a fork lift brings a tear to my eye. Maybe someday I'll take another shot at one, if I can ever get my license renewed.

Could I have it back, pretty please?

A man who is successful is not necessarily a man of means.

3 tots die in Caro fire Friday

A child playing with matches has been officially listed as the cause of a disastrous fire that took the lives of three children in Caro early Friday morning.

The blaze, which did $9,500 damage to the Charles Vennevy home at 605 Court St., took the lives of daughters Barbara, 2, Julia, 1, and Christine, 4½ months.

A son, John, 4, escaped the burning home.

Caro Fire Chief Don Berry said the fire started in or near a chair in the living room of the home where the three children were sleeping. Their mother, Mary Jane Vennevy, 23, was treated for burns of the hands and face at the Saginaw St. Mary's Burn Unit.

A State Fire Marshall's investigation determined that the four-year-old had been playing with matches in the room just prior to the fire, according to Berry.

The blaze reportedly broke out at 9:10 a.m.

Firemen at the scene were thwarted in efforts to enter the burning home due to the intense heat inside.

Official cause of death was listed as suffocation.

Berry said Mrs. Vennevy was asleep in the living room when the fire broke out. Her husband was at work at the time.

Rescue efforts by area residents and businessmen proved futile. Berry said the three children were the first fire-related fatalities in Caro since 1967.

Huron and Sanilac counties should receive more equal treatment in job applicant placements by the Michigan Employment Security Commission, it was revealed at Thursday's administrative board meeting of the Thumb Area Manpower Consortium.

MESC had come under some fire in recent months for making most of its job placements from applicants in Tuscola county. Since Consortium funding, which finances work experience, on the job training and classroom training in all three counties, is supposed to aid unemployed in all three counties, some board members felt Huron and Sanilac counties were being slighted. Figures released Thursday, however, show that MESC has broadened its base and has moved to pick up more applicants outside Tuscola county.

A total of 30 persons were reported involved in on the job training, classroom training and institutional training, with 29 from Sanilac county and 23 from Huron county. The grand total of all persons involved, including those still to complete on the job training includes 41 from Tuscola, 41 from Sanilac and 40 from Huron county. Consortium officials also learned that 10 or 11 more on the job training contracts are still available for qualified applicants.

In institutional training (less than classroom), about 30 more participants are still needed, it was revealed.

To date, on the job training programs have cost $56,906, with $33,762 still to be spent. Institutional training programs have cost $140,285, with $111,626 left to be spent.

TITLE I

The Consortium redistributed $80,316 in unobligated Title I Public Service Employment funds from the current fiscal year allocation. Under a formula devised by Consortium Director Frank Lenard, Tuscola county will receive an additional $34,536; while Sanilac is set to receive $20,079 with another $25,701 going to Huron county.

The formula includes the county average number of unemployed and the county population.

Sanilac county CETA coordinator Leonard Hool questioned the unemployment figures supplied by MESC, saying they have no way of checking who comes from which county. "They don't know what counties these people come from and you can't tell me anyone at MESC is smart enough to figure it out," Hool said.

Hool maintained that many Sanilac county unemployed persons actually file for benefits in Port Huron, for instance, and are counted among the St. Clair county jobless.

Latest official MESC figures show 2,975 persons out of work in Tuscola county, or 13.4 per cent of the labor force. A total of 2,425 jobless persons were reported in Huron county, or 15.3 per cent of the work force, while 1,575 persons were out of work in Sanilac county, or 9.9 per cent of the labor force.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, the Consortium accepted the resignation of Werner H. Muehl as chairman of the advisory planning council.

It also learned Port Hope has received $30,000 in Title IX monies for a park development project.

DEPENDENT

Depend on your own initiative — too many people expect to get up in the world on the shoulders of their associates.

Ubly area woman reports UFO sighting Friday

Something strange is flying through Thumb area skies and no one knows just what it is.

Mrs. Arthur Guigar of Freiburg Road, Ubly, reported spotting an unidentified flying object (UFO) as it flew over her home about six miles south of Ubly, Friday night.

"It looked like a big floodlight," she told the Chronicle Tuesday. "It was shaped kind of like a saucer."

Mrs. Guigar said she first noticed the object as she and her husband were driving home from visiting a relative about three miles from their home.

"We watched it as we came home and then we got the kids out so they could see it, too," Mrs. Guigar said.

The family reportedly watched the object hover in the northern sky for 15 or 20 minutes before it began to move. Mrs. Guigar said the UFO was very quiet except when it began to move and was directly over the house.

"It made a buzzing noise, sort of like an airplane but not quite," she said.

She telephoned the Huron County Sheriff's department who contacted the Port Austin Air Force Station. The station reported nothing unusual on its radar equipment at the time of the sighting.

Mrs. Guigar said Tuesday that a hunter called her Monday and said he saw the same object that night between 6:30 and 7:00 p.m. She said he described the UFO exactly as the one she had seen.

Mrs. Guigar sighted the object between 8:00 and 8:30 p.m. Friday night.

She said it maintained the altitude that a private airplane might, but it did not resemble a small plane because of its lights and the fact that it moved sideways.

"I really don't have any idea what it could have been," she said. "But I'd sort of like to find out."

American life agrees with Danish exchange student Jacob Mortensen

Even though it's his first extensive trip away from his native Denmark, don't count on Jacob Mortensen getting homesick. The 17-year-old Rotary exchange student is perfectly happy with the United States and with Cass City and plans to enjoy himself during his year's stay.

Mortensen, a tall, rangy youth who enjoys sports, is currently staying at the Robert Walpole home. He arrived in Cass City last Aug. 24, and says he hasn't been homesick since he got here. "This is my first trip outside Denmark, other than a trip to Sweden," Mortensen explained as he leaned back on a couch, his long legs dominating the scene.

"I think a person must learn his own country before he can begin to learn about other countries," he said in nearly flawless English.

Mortensen also speaks German, Swedish and a smattering of French, as well as English and his native tongue. English is an integral part of the curriculum in Danish schools, he explained. He's been speaking the language for five years.

"I think my English will really improve while I'm here because I have to speak it all the time," he said, flashing a wide grin.

Mortensen has had a taste of American high school life and so far at least, finds it a little more structured than in Denmark.

"In Denmark, we have 45 minute class periods with 10 minute breaks in between," he said. "We also don't take the same classes every day. I would think it could get a little boring having the same classes each day for an entire year."

While Danish students don't take the same classes each day, most of the classes a student takes are chosen for him by school administrators, with room for only one or two electives.

Following high school, students who choose to continue their education enroll in three years of pre-college courses, followed by four years of college. It's a long curriculum, but more students are taking advantage of it due to high unemployment in Denmark, Mortensen said.

LIKES AMERICA

Mortensen said so far he's found Americans to be friendly and much more open to meeting new people than he expected. He likes most of what he's seen in the United States, including prices which he says are lower (would you believe) than those in Denmark.

"For instance, gasoline costs four times as much in Denmark as it does here," he said. "Also clothing is much more expensive back home."

Mortensen comes from the town of Praesto, about 60 miles south of Copenhagen. His father owns a hardware shop while his mother owns a small gift shop. He has two brothers and four stepbrothers and sisters.

As with most visitors, Mortensen is impressed with the size of the country. He was also impressed (less than favorably) with New York City.

"It's the dirtiest place in the world," he says. "I couldn't believe it when I saw it."

Since he's been here, he's learned Denmark hasn't got the market cornered on pornography. Contrary to the popular notion, Mortensen says, Denmark is not one large den of sin and sex.

"You've probably got a lot more pornography here," he said. "Denmark is not really that big on it."

Sex is more freely discussed in Denmark, he says, with sex education a mandatory part of high school curriculum from age 14 onward.

SPORTS

Mortensen enjoys sports. He's a member of the football team and would like to join the basketball team. There's just one problem—his hair is too long.

"I've got to decide what I want to do about it," he said. Making the team will depend a lot on trimming some of his locks, he indicated. But he's not too worried about it.

"Americans seem to take more notice of long hair than we do in Denmark," he said.

Mortensen enjoys competing in nearly every sport. He says Americans tend to be more competitive when it comes to team sports than Danes. You practice harder and get more involved, he says.

When his year is completed in America, Mortensen says he'd like to go on to college and eventually become a teacher at the high school level. That will take a total of seven years, counting the three pre-college years still ahead of him.

He would also like to do more traveling, perhaps visiting the Soviet Union. "I'd like to compare the systems first-hand to see which one is better," he said.

He says that in general, America's image in Denmark has been improving since the end of the Vietnam War. Europeans are still concerned with the threat of Communism, he said, and still look to America for leadership.

Until then, however, he plans to enjoy himself in the United States.

According to Mrs. Walpole, two of his favorite things in America are television and potato chips.

And as long as both hold out, Jacob Mortensen will be happy.

JACOB MORTENSEN likes what he's seen of America so far and is looking forward to his stay in Cass City. Mortensen, 17, is from Denmark.

Huron board okays Owen-Gage transfers

The Huron Intermediate Board of Education approved transferring five parcels of land from the Laker School District to the Owen-Gage district in a hearing held Thursday night in Bad Axe.

The action, effective in 10 days, restores $149,300 in County Equalized Valuation to the Owen-Gage district which had been lost as part of a larger transfer earlier this year.

Trustees approved the re-transfer by a 2-1 vote, with two members absent.

The action may be appealed within 10 days.

A total of four students were involved in the transfer and had been attending Owen-Gage schools prior to Thursday's action, Intermediate officials said.

The parcels in question lie in sections two, three, six and 11 of Brookfield township.

Still pending, however, is a larger transfer request involving land at the southern boundary of the district petitioning to be placed in the Cass City School District.

A formal hearing on the request was held before the State Board of Education in East Lansing, Monday.

A decision is not expected in the near future.

The hearing marked the second time in three years that many of the petitioners had appeared before the state board requesting transfer to the Cass City district. An earlier request was turned down in 1974.

By John Haire

(And anyone else he can

We thought we had Noko pinpointed once and for all in this column of trivia last week. Not so, says an 82-year-old lady who won't tell us her name but does say that she lived there until 16 years old.

The real Noko was a half mile down the road from the former Methodist church, a mile east of Shabbona, where Keith Shaw now lives, says our informed correspondent. The post office was there until a mail route from Shabbona was started and then Noko gently faded into oblivion . . . just as further discussion about it will do from now on.

We plan no more about Noko.

The opening of deer hunting here is starting to remind the area veterans of the way it was at the start of pheasant hunting.

The crowds are lining up early for the deer season and tales of disregard for property rights abound.

Other signs of the growing importance of deer season: Dick Albee reported selling 425 licenses on Friday alone and there was a banner rush for "no hunting" signs at the Chronicle not seen since the early '50s for the pheasant season.

*****

My vote for the loser of the week has to be the basketball coach at Hudson High School. Hudson, the school gaining state-wide and national publicity for its eight-year winning football streak, will be playing football for another week as it seeks state class C championship and probably will be reliving the season until basketball tournament time next spring.

*****

What I really want to know is did the Farmer's Almanac predict the kind of weather we are having?
I'll bet it didn't. How could it? This weather is not great . . . it's unbelievable.

*****

Supt. Donald Crouse popped in the other day to bring us up to date on another attempt to push a law through the legislature that would place all school districts into an established community college district.

Cass City would be placed with Delta. If that happened, taxpayers here would be saddled with whatever tax the district wanted to establish to run the district.

That's the reason Crouse is continuing to push for a community college district for the Thumb.

Once we are organized we can't be forced to join with far-away schools like Delta and we don't have to raise any millage for our district unless we decide we want a school.

That's the story in a nutshell, but it's one man's opinion that this concept won't find ready acceptance until we start paying taxes levied for Delta . . . and then it will be too late.

Incidentally, if you want to see for yourself what is proposed ask your State Senator for a copy of Senate bill number 1080.

TAKING ADVANTAGE OF Tuesday's beautiful weather are Bradley Byerlich, 2½ (left) and his brother Mike, 4½, both of Caro. Their mother, Mrs. Donald Byerlich, said the boys especially enjoy the Cass City park because there's so much to do.

Caro man faces assault charge

A 29-year-old Caro man was bound over to Sanilac County Circuit Court Monday on felonious assault charges involving an alleged attack on the owner of Wildwood Farms restaurant Nov. 1.

Thomas Lee Blasius, a member of the "Hard Times Limited" promotional group, appeared in District Court before Judge Eugene E. Deegan in Sandusky.

Blasius stands accused of threatening owner Robin Kim Anthony after Anthony allegedly attempted to collect a rental bill for use of a room and liquor at the restaurant.

Blasius allegedly pointed a shotgun at Anthony during an altercation in the parking lot of the restaurant.

Blasius is currently free on $2,500 bond pending his arraignment in Circuit Court.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

The first thought is to let them rot in jail or stamp them out the same way you destroy any vermin.

The electric chair, the gas chamber, the hangman's rope for all of those caught and convicted of kidnapping.

Certainly they deserve it. And if it would serve as a deterrent to execute the perpetrators of this most heinous of crimes my vote is yes.

The most recent case when a 13-year-old was locked in the back of a trunk without even a chance to get to go to the bathroom is callous. Callous beyond the bounds of any decency at all.

Your heart goes out to the victim.

The rage stems almost unchecked when you read about these crimes that are increasing at an alarming rate. Is anybody safe walking down the street anymore, you ask yourself.

You'll agree, I'm sure, that the problem is greater today than ever before in our history . . . or at the very least that we are more aware of the problem today than ever before because of mass communication excellence.

We know the problem and the first thought is that we should increase the punishment to curb the crime.

The only trouble with this is that it's never been shown that increasing the penalty has any relation to decreasing the crime.

The United States, with the highest crime rate in the world, has the harshest laws and the longest sentences, according to the National Council on Crime and Delinquency, a member of the United Way of Michigan.

There's nothing in that statistic that would indicate that killing a kidnapper would stop or even slow down future attempts.

The truth is that we are a violent people and have little respect for authority.

Our cooperation with the police is given begrudgingly, if at all.

According to surveys, as a people we've lost respect for our courts, for our police departments, our elected representatives.

We're suspicious of our newspapers, radio and television.

Most of the time we refuse to become involved. Unless it involves us personally. We don't care who has guns. We refuse to speak up for stiffer gun control laws even if we believe that this is really in the best interests of the nation.

Then we howl, howl, howl when these conditions strike home and a son, a daughter, a mother, a father is killed by a drunk driver, kidnapped by a group of hoods or raped in the parking lot of a shopping mall.

You could make a mandatory death penalty for any of these crimes of violence and we'd not be much better off than we are today.

What we need is more persons dedicated to making the laws we have work, not more laws.

What we have is a callous indifference towards anyone other than ourselves.

The next time you say to yourself, "They ought to do something", change it mentally to "we ought to do something".

And do it if you can.

"If It Fitz . . ."

Sins of spring return

BY JIM FITZGERALD

Saturday was the dreaded day when the sins of the spring were visited upon the jerk of the autumn. Thus giving the jerk's wife the unchallenged opportunity to say she told me so.

I am talking about combination screens and storm windows. What else?

It wasn't an easy decision, but after much thought and cursing I've decided those were good old days when screens and storm windows went their separate ways.

I grew up in a big house with dozens of huge windows. One of my jobs was to take down the screens and put up the storms in the autumn, and vice versa in the spring. Most of the windows were on the 2nd floor but the screens and storms spent their off seasons in the basement. This meant 2 flights of stairs had to be traveled per window.

For some reason never explained to me, all of our windows were a slightly different size. This made it advisable to carefully print on each screen and storm exactly where it was supposed to go. Then, in the off seasons, I would paint the screen and storm frames, making sure I painted over the printed directions. This way I could carry the screens and storms into every room in search of the window they fit. I felt like Cinderella's prince, except my back was broken and I was sobbing.

Which reminds me of our family's most lasting claim to class. For a short period during the Great Depression we had a live-in maid. She was paid $5 a week and table scraps. She had her own bedroom so, upon her screens and storms it was written "Maid's Room." She quit in 1935 and there was never another maid but the name of the room was never changed.

I slept there for 10 years but I was never allowed to put my name on the screens and storms. There was always the feeling that some day we would again have a maid and I would go back to sleeping in the furnace room. As I grew older I didn't mind having my friends hear my family say "Jimmie is sleeping in the maid's room." It sounded as if maybe I had something going for myself, an impressive impression which I took no pains to correct, at least not while my voice was changing.

Anyway, the old-fashioned separate screens and storms caused me a lot of labor and grief. But the modern combinations are worse. The theory is that you simply pull 2 screws and the winter storm slides down into place. Or you pull the screws and lift the window, thus opening the screen to summer breezes. Much easier than lugging screens and storms up and down 2 flights of stairs? No.

I can't grasp those screws without making my knuckles bleed. Always there are screws that won't budge. So, after several minutes of straining and swearing, I get a hammer and bang the lousy screw. The storm falls into place but the screw disappears forever and my wife says I'll never be able to get that storm back up in the spring. Or substitute screen for storm and vice versa the seasons, it's all the same miserable story.

My wife sits by the window waiting while the seasons change. Days like last Saturday come and I find I can't slide the storm in because the little screws are gone. She says I told me so.

I should have stayed in the maid's room.

Vassar pair

file $2 million

lawsuit

Two Vassar area residents have filed a joint lawsuit demanding over $2 million in damages stemming from an auto accident in November, 1972.

Richard Beaujean and Rhoda Kucmierz allege Chester Simpson of Mayville was responsible for the accident which occurred near the intersection of Saginaw and Sheridan Roads in Vassar township.

They charge Simpson with driving recklessly and with forcing their car off the road into a ditch and eventually into a telephone pole.

Both allege permanent injuries. In count one of the lawsuit, Beaujean demands $25,000 damages, while in count two, Ms. Kucmierz demands $2 million.

The suit was filed Wednesday, Nov. 12, in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

FIRST BUCK reported was a 10-point beauty. He was shot by Wayne Wood of Cass City, west of town. It was his first deer in three years of hunting.

Set rail meeting in Lansing Tuesday

Representatives of railroad users in more than 100 Michigan communities where service is imperiled are expected to attend a one-day conference on state rail reorganization plans Tuesday, Nov. 25, at the Lansing Hilton Inn.

Purpose of the conference will be to clarify Michigan railroad services to freight and passenger customers under the new ConRail system and state subsidy plan for branch lines which goes into effect Feb. 27, 1976.

Sponsored by the Michigan Citizens to Save Rail Services, the meeting will seek to minimize confusion during transition to the new rail system authorized by the Federal Railroad Reorganization Act resulting from bankruptcy of the Penn Central and Ann Arbor lines. William R. Ralls, Lansing, and J.B. Townley, Saginaw, cochairmen of the citizens group, announced Governor Milliken has been invited to speak on state rail policy at a luncheon opening the conference.

Afternoon forum sessions are scheduled with representatives of the Congress, Michigan legislature, Federal Railroad Administration, U.S. Railway Association, ConRail, solvent carriers, and Department of State Highways and Transportation participating.

A delegation representing Cass City is also expected to attend the conference.

Buck Luck

Wayne Wood, 16, Cass City, shot a 10-point buck at 7:10 a.m., Saturday while hunting six miles west of Cass City. His was the first kill reported and it's the first deer he's bagged.

Joe Dietlin, Romeo, shot a seven-point, 180-pound buck while hunting east of Wickware at 7:45 a.m. Saturday. He has hunted the last couple of years in the area.

Don Erla, 18, Cass City, bagged an eight-point buck at 7:15 a.m. Saturday while hunting on Deckerville Road in the Deford area. He shot one in the same area last year.

George Lynch, Cass City, shot a five-point buck while hunting east of Cass City along the Cass River. The deer, which he brought down at 8:00 a.m., weighed in at about 150 pounds and was the first for Lynch in this area. He's previously bagged two in Northern Michigan.

Karl Weippert Jr., Cass City, shot a seven-point buck Saturday morning while hunting in Deford area. The deer weighed in at about 175 pounds.

Michael Otulakowski, 18, Cass City, shot a four-point buck at 9:30 a.m. Saturday while hunting southeast of Cass City. The deer had only half a rack and weighed in at 225 pounds. It was his third deer.

Dave Otulakowski, 15, St. Clair Shores, shot a six-point buck at 8:00 a.m., while hunting southeast of Cass City. It was his first buck.

Ted Lauria, Cass City, shot an 11-point buck while hunting seven miles east of Cass City, Saturday at 10:30 a.m. The deer weighed in at 220 pounds.

Richard LeValley, 16, Owendale, shot a four-point buck while hunting at Lupton, Saturday at 8:30 a.m. The deer weighed in at 175 pounds and was his first buck.

George Galloway, Cass City, shot a six-point buck while hunting near Maple Valley, Saturday at 7:30 a.m. The deer weighed in at 160 pounds.

Bill Fleming, Decker, bagged a seven-point buck Saturday morning while hunting in Evergreen township.

Wayne Fleming, Decker, shot a five-point buck Saturday morning while hunting in Evergreen township. Jim Rogers, Decker, shot a five-point buck while hunting Saturday afternoon in Evergreen township.

Leonard Ziemba, Decker, shot an eight-point buck while hunting in Greenleaf township Saturday morning.

Larry Wood, Deford, bagged a 10-point buck while hunting Sunday morning in the Deford area.

Allan Pratt, 16, Cass City, shot a six-point buck Sunday afternoon while hunting on Crawford Road near Severance Road. It was his first time hunting and his first buck.

Stanley Derengowski and Bill Sattelberg, both of Cass City, shot four and eight-point bucks respectively at 7:15 a.m. Monday while hunting south of Cass City.

Paul Becker Jr., 19, Decker, shot an eight-point buck while hunting near his home at 8:48 a.m. Saturday. It was his first buck.

William Robert Fleming, Ann Arbor, shot a six-point, 200-pound buck while hunting in Evergreen township last week end.

Rick Tuckey, Cass City, shot a six-point buck Saturday at 3:00 p.m. while hunting in the Cass City area. The deer weighed in at 175 pounds and is his first buck.

Bernie Babich of Deford shot a three-point buck Saturday at 9:00 a.m. while hunting in the Deford area. The deer weighed in at 180 pounds.

John Taylor of Deford shot an eight-point buck while hunting in the Deford area Monday. The deer weighed 160 pounds.

Organizational meeting set

An informational meeting on the possibility of establishing a Health Maintenance Organization in Tuscola county will be held Monday, Nov. 24, from 7:30-9:30 p.m. at the Bay Valley Inn, Bay City.

The meeting, sponsored by the Group Health Service of Michigan, Inc., is designed to acquaint the general public with a new kind of community health plan which is consumer-oriented and provides a wide range of coverage with cost containment features built in.

Honors heaped on Owen-Gage gridders as team basks in glow of championship

Two weeks after the Owen-Gage Bulldogs football team finished its season the players most responsible for bringing the first conference championship to the school were still basking in the glory of it all.

Anytime a school wins a conference championship it brings a glow of achievement, but when it comes when the school is picked to finish third or worse, the victory is all the sweeter.

And that's what happened to the Bulldogs, Coach Arnie Besonen said last week when talking about the season.

It was the first league title in Besonen's six years at Owen-Gage and it brought not only the title trophy to the school, but also a host of honors to the coach and the team.

Besonen was named coach of the year and no less than 10 (count 'em, ten) spots on the 22-man All-Conference football team went to the Bulldogs.

What happened to turn the league's also-rans into league champions? Besonen said it was the team's pride and determination. Look at 'em, he said, gesturing to his all-conference players, they were this way all year. It was 10 days after the season ended and the players were chanting "we're number one", as if the title had just been won.

Every season has a turning point and for Owen-Gage it came in a crucial game against Kingston. We were behind 8-0 at the half and came back to win, 15-8, said Besonen, and after that there was no stopping us. When the season ended, Owen-Gage was first with an unblemished league record and Kingston suffered only the loss to the Bulldogs in the conference.

PLAYERS HONORED

Sometime during this school year, probably before Christmas, there will be other honors heaped upon the players at a banquet.

That's when Lawrence Rapson, 265-pound tackle, will be honored as the team's most valuable player. John Thybault will be named the best offensive player and Pat Powell will be honored as the outstanding defensive player. Roger Ziehm will be cited as the team's most improved player.

While there's no doubt that losing all-conference football players will hurt the Bulldogs in 1976, Besonen is confident that his team will be contenders again next season. After all the team does have four all-league players back as a nucleus for next season and that's not all bad. Some teams never have that many premier players at one time.

The all-league players that will be back include guard Jeff Warack, an unanimous pick for all-league this season. The 160-pound guard should help make the Bulldogs' running game go next season. Other all-conference picks returning are End Bert Brinkman, who was named on both offense and defense, and Brian Gaeth, linebacker.

Owen-Gage scoreboard fund begun

A drive is underway for a new scoreboard for Owen-Gage High School's football field, and contributions are being collected.

Goal of $3,500.00 has been set.

Persons wishing to make a contribution, may make out check to the Owen-Gage Scoreboard Fund. Contributions may be sent or handed to Mrs. Robert E. Brinkman, Mrs. Jack Brinkman, RFD No. 2, Cass City, Mrs. Fred Fahrner, Owendale, or the Owendale High School.

ALMOST BURIED in a sea of Marlette players is Chris Krueger (facing camera), plucky Cass City guard. This shot missed but enough others found the mark to spark the Hawks to an easy victory.

Girls top Marlette; eye tourney clash Saturday

Cass City High School's girls' basketball team ended the season on a high note Wednesday, Nov. 12, defeating Marlette 50-31, nailing down second place in league standings.

The contest, staged before a home crowd, saw Lisa Zimba lead the way with 13 points and 12 rebounds. Elaine Stoutenburg added 11 points, while Beth Erla hauled down 11 rebounds.

The Hawks led most of the way and were never in any serious trouble.

With the regular season schedule complete, the squad is looking to tournament action, scheduled to begin Thursday at Ubyly.

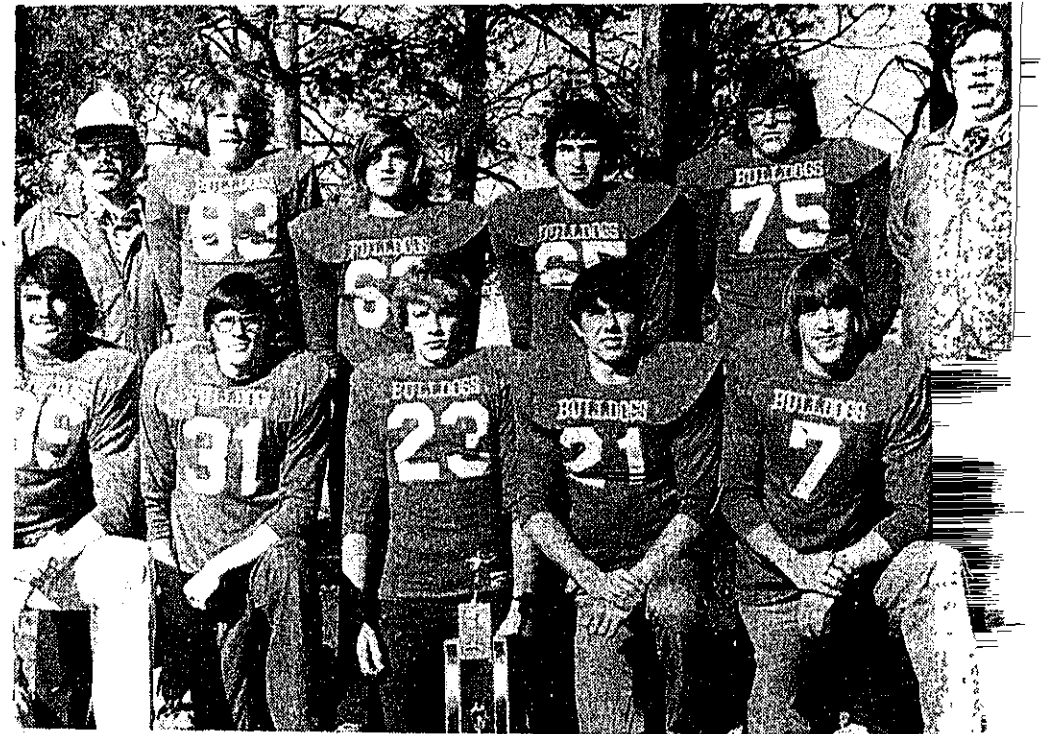

Cass City, however, won't see any action until Saturday night when the Hawks take on the winner of the Bad Axe-Ubyly contest at 8:30 p.m. The Hawks drew a bye in the first round that will also see Lakers take on U.S.A. at 6:30 p.m. Bad Axe and Ubyly meet at 8:30 p.m.

In addition to the Hawks' contest Saturday, Harbor Beach will play the winner of the Laker-USA clash at 6:30 p.m.

The finals are set for Tuesday, Nov. 25.

Regional competition opens at Cass City Dec. 4, and runs through Dec. 6.

EIGHT OF THESE nine Owen-Gage players landed spots on the all-conference football team. The all-stars, together with the coaches and the most improved player are, from left: Senior Brian Hedley, end; Junior Linebacker Brian Gaeth; Senior Linebacker Pat Powell; Senior Halfback John Thybault, and Senior Quarterback Dan Amstutz.

Back row: Coach of the year Arnie Besonen, Junior End Bert Brinkman, Junior Guard Jeff Warack, Most Improved Player Roger Ziehm, Senior Tackle Lawrence Rapson and Assistant Coach Phil Gray.

Pat Powell, best defensive player.

Roger Ziehm, most improved player.

Lawrence Rapson, most valuable player.

John Thybault, best offensive player.

Road fund receipts drop again

Receipts in Michigan's Motor Vehicle Highway Fund are continuing to decline, the State Highway Commission reported this week. However, gas tax revenues registered a slight increase in the July-September quarter compared to the same period of 1974, the Commission said.

Cass City's share of the fund dropped to $7,766, down by $153 from the same period last year.

Other area communities also recorded drops in their share as well. Gagetown received $2,614, compared with $2,667 for the third quarter of 1974.

Kingston received $1,879, compared with $1,916 a year ago.

Uby received $3,330, down from $3,395 for the third quarter of 1974.

Tri-county road commissions also recorded drops in income from the fund. Tuscola county received $327,479, a drop of $6,847 from third quarter receipts in 1974.

Sanilac county received $311,695, down from $318,937 received last year for the same period.

Huron county received $288,551, down from $293,482 received as its share of the fund in the third quarter of 1974.

All state motor fuel taxes and license plate fees go to the Motor Vehicle Highway Fund. Gross receipts for the third quarter totaled $113,254,345, a decline of $393,329 from the third quarter of 1974, and a drop of $3,319,876 from the third quarter of 1973.

It was the fifth consecutive quarter of reduced income in comparison to the same three month period of the previous year.

Department officials attributed the general leveling off in tax receipts to increased sales of smaller cars, improved fuel economy and continuing high unemployment.

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Major, basic changes took place this week in the structure of Tuscola county's law enforcement with the death of County Prosecutor James J. Epskamp... the appointment of Assistant Attorney General Leo E. Maki to take his place... and the announcement of Cass City Attorney and Assistant Prosecutor Clinton House that he will return to private practice, dropping the assistant's position in about a week.

Paul Smarks, one of the noted retired high school coaches in Michigan, will be guest at a football fete Monday at the Cass City Hotel.

The Cass City Lions Club is looking for 1,000 signatures from the area petitioning the United Nations to seek the names of North Vietnam prisoners of war, Al Witherpoon, project chairman, announced this week.

It was an average opening day for the 1970 deer season, according to reports of hunters who crowded into Tuscola county in record numbers.

At the annual Farm Bureau meeting in Grand Rapids were two leaders from the Cass City area, Dave Loomis, president of the Tuscola County Farm Bureau, and Jack Laurie, who was elected to the state board of directors.

TEN YEARS AGO

Several heavily populated counties in Michigan have initiated a "stamp plan" for distribution of dried surplus foods, but the plan is not slated in Tuscola county. Welfare Director Don Peterhans said the stamps are not contemplated for two reasons—economy and convenience.

Final returns of the area's corn crop indicate that the yields will be down about a third, George Fisher, manager of Frutchey Bean Co. of Cass City reported this week. Cass City's Red Hawk debate squad took three out of four places Monday night in a local debate schedule session in Caro.

In an effort to bring back some of the Christmas pagantry that Cass City was once famous for, Cass City Chamber of Commerce board members have decided to hold a residential Christmas display contest, complete with cash prizes.

A report to be issued at a Dec. 14 meeting will detail the feasibility of establishing a tri-county community college district in the Thumb.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Governor G. Mennen Williams was reported as having a lead of 1,152 votes over Republican candidate Harry F. Kelly, in radio and newspaper election news Thursday morning.

H. Walter Cooper, probate judge of Tuscola county from 1933 to 1940, died Sunday at his home in Caro after an illness of several months.

Herbert Maharg and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bayley conducted the installation rites at the meeting of the Cass City Grange Thursday evening when the newly elected officers were given their stations.

Fifty-six half-pints of milk are consumed daily by morning and afternoon kindergarten classes, according to Miss Jean Hutchinson, kindergarten teacher.

A fifth grade exhibit on "pioneer travel" is on display at the Cass City school this week. Contributors were Gary Knuckles, Edwin McConkey, Roger Spencer, David Loomis, James Jezewski, Clayton Neiman, Tom Hulien, Don Lorentzen and Sherryll Seeley.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

The first Cass City hunter to get his deer Friday, the opening day of the season, was John Muniz, who shot a buck near St. Helen at 8:10 a.m., not long after daybreak. It was an eight-pointer.

Smoke bothers me

A move is underway to segregate smokers and non-smokers in public places. Legislation currently in a Michigan Senate committee would regulate smoking in hospitals, restaurants, and retail food stores.

Mrs. Clyde Wells of 6632 M Street, says cigarette smoke bothers her and she hopes a law on the subject would help.

"I particularly mind it in stores, especially with ashes falling on the floor," she says. "I think it would be nice if people would ask if smoking bothers other people. It's too bad because even where signs are posted, they still smoke."

She is hopeful that a law would help keep smokers separate from non-smokers, but she isn't sure how effective it would be.

"I'd rather think that people would have enough common sense to quit by themselves," she added.

Mrs. Wells was born and raised in Cass City. She is employed at Kritzman's, Inc. Her husband is employed at Walbro. They have four children.

Corn-Sugar Beet Day set

Special exhibits, a timely program, coffee and rolls and door prizes will all be a part of the Thumb Corn and Sugar Beet Day to be held Thursday, Dec. 18. The Colony House (located four miles east and four miles north of Cass City) is the location between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 4:00 p.m.

Over 40 agri-businesses will be participating with an educational display and/or exhibit. The exhibits will be viewed during the early morning, noon and late afternoon.

Clothing class set Thursday

The Cooperative Extension Service will be sponsoring a clothing class at the Caro Civil Defense Center Comm. Room Thursday, Nov. 20. The class is scheduled for 10:00-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-3:00 p.m. Each session will be in three parts: a slide presentation on news in fashion and fabric, a poster - fabric swatch presentation on pattern fabric coordination and focus on stripes and ways of handling stripes.

Nancy Turschak, Family Living Program Assistant, will be teaching the class.

The special program will feature two meetings held at opposite ends of the building at 11:00 a.m. and 2:15 p.m. The morning meeting on corn will be looking at "Corn Rootworm Problems and Control" and the afternoon meeting will focus on the "Use of Dow Premix (DNBP) on Corn". The morning meeting on sugar beets will be looking at "Post-emergence Weed Control" and the afternoon meeting will focus on a growers panel of "What's Worked for Me".

The program is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service of Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties along with the various agri-businesses, states William Bortel, County Extension Director.

BETTER HEALTH

New knuckles for arthritic hands

BY DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

Among the most discouraging effects of arthritis is a hand so crippled that it cannot open because of deformed knuckles. The inability of such hands to "grip" and "pinch," as well as to open widely enough to grasp large objects, moved an enterprising New York surgeon to devise implantable knuckles, which could transform the arthritic hand to functional effectiveness.

During the past two and a half years, Dr. Robert J. Schultz, director of Orthopedic Surgery at the hospital of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, has implanted 150 sets of new knuckles into disabled, arthritic hands, without adverse reactions to the materials used in making the prosthetic joints and with remarkable restoration of function. "Not perfect, but close," is how Dr. Schultz is reported to have summed up the effectiveness of his new prosthesis. And it is, in fact, close.

Ingeniously crafted, the new knuckle is made up of two parts. One is a special plastic shaft that is slipped into each of the long bones of the back of the hand. The other section is a slender pin made of stainless steel, which is inserted into the near finger bones that join each knuckle.

The finger-bone section carries a small, ball-shaped tip that snaps into a slot on the end of the plastic component in the long bone of the back of the hand. The slot allows the tiny ball a wide range of motion. The new "joint" is snuggled under the end of the patient's own knuckle bone.

Putting the new knuckles into place requires about two hours of operating time, if all four knuckles require implantation. On the fourth post-operative day, according to a report in a recent issue of the "Journal of the American Medical Association," the patients begin to move their new knuckles. Full use of the hand is achieved in about six weeks.

The implantation of metallic and plastic joints to replace those that are deformed by disease or otherwise irretrievably damaged has developed in recent years to include almost all joints of the body.

The most widely applied and best known is the total hip replacement, pioneered by Dr. John Charnley of England, whose work has been widely applied by surgeons in this country and has won universal acclaim.

Since this ground-breaking work with the complicated procedure of the total hip replacement, there has been rapid development in devices and techniques to implant artificial knee joints, ankle joints, elbow and shoulder joints.

The work of Dr. Schultz in replacing knuckles is encouraging since only one of his first 150 implanted knuckle joints became infected and required removal of the implant to stop the infection.

This is a remarkable record because whenever joints of the body are opened, there is always the threat of infection no matter how strict the precautions to prevent bacterial invasion from occurring.

For properly selected patients, it seems clear that Dr. Schultz has developed a promising technique for restoring the knuckles and thus the function of the deformed hands of many who suffer with disabling arthritis.

For the booklet, "Pulmonary Emphysema," send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. William J. Welch, Box 4994, Dept. CCC, Des Moines, Iowa 50306.

LaFond set for technical training

Airman Daniel R. LaFond, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. LaFond of 3653 Ross St., Kingston, has been selected for technical training in the U.S. Air Force munitions and weapons maintenance field at Lowry AFB, Colo.

DANIEL R. LAFOND

The airman recently completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex., where he studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

Mrs. Harold Koch
665-2536

Peter Burrows, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. William Burrows, was their house guest for a week recently. He returned to his home in Keego Harbor Thursday evening.

Mrs. Harold Koch and Janet visited her grandmother, Mrs. C. Marie Shell, in Tuscola, Sunday afternoon. Later they called on her mother, Mrs. Nora Meyer of Birch Run and returned home Monday.

The Senior Citizens of Owen-Gage will meet Thursday, Nov. 20, at noon for a potluck dinner meeting.

Seventeen members of the Owen-Gage Senior Citizens attended "Holiday on Ice" show in Flint, Thursday evening.

Lester Koch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Koch of Unionville, came home for an early Thanksgiving vacation from Amarillo, Texas. His grandmother, Mrs. Mabel Ondraja of Gagetown, entertained with an early Thanksgiving dinner for her family Sunday evening. Guests were from Marlette, Unionville and Gagetown.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Koch are on a hunting trip near Omer.

Week-end guests of Mrs. Aura Beaudon were her niece, Sister Joan Bral of Pontiac and Sister Lariece Derycki, also of Pontiac.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Koch and Jim left Friday for deer hunting in northern Michigan.

Marilyn Balzer, Beatrice Langlois, Viola Murchison, and Aura Beaudon were in Flint Sunday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Larry Langlois, who recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Harold Koch and Raymond are hunting near Glennie this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rendzio and Nancy from Livonia called on Mr. and Mrs. William Goodell last Sunday afternoon and also visited with Miss Rose Stapleton.

Mrs. Richard Ziehm and Lori and Mrs. Harold Koch and Janet attended the Voorheis Circus in Cass City, Tuesday evening, Nov. 11.

St. Agatha's Women's Society met Tuesday, Nov. 11, at St. Agatha church. The program was on cancer detection in women with Mrs. Don Lorentzen from Cass City in charge. About 40 women were present.

A potluck dinner was held Sunday, Nov. 9, at the home of Theodore Ashmore of Gagetown. Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Andy Kozan, Bob, Cheryl and Frances of Cass City, Gary Plesko, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ashmore of Cass City, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Ashmore and Shirley of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Randy Kozan of Cass City, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Czekai, Ronnie Terry, Brian, Keith, Julie and Tommy of Saginaw, Mr. and Mrs. John Sopock and Heidi of Saginaw, Mr. and Mrs. Sam McKnight of Bad Axe, Mrs. Elda Britt of Bad Axe and Mrs. Prudence Quinn of Gagetown.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Arnold had with them from Tuesday until Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hines of Lincoln Park, Mr. and Mrs. Justus Ashmore of East Tawas were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Arnold. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hennessey were Sunday morning visitors.

Sampson

conservationist

Lynn Sampson, a Greenville native, has been named as the new District Conservationist for the Tuscola Soil Conservation District replacing Cyril Jacot who retired recently after working with the people of the Tuscola District for nearly 30 years.

Sampson started his job as DC Nov. 10. He was born and raised on a farm near Greenville. Sampson attended the University of Michigan where he obtained his Bachelor of Science Degree in the field of wildlife management.

He started working for the Soil Conservation Service as a part-time employee in Ionia county. Then he transferred to the Huron Soil Conservation District where he worked as a soil conservationist.

Michigan Mirror

Why do Michigan students score so high on S.A.T.?

Looks great on paper. Michigan students scoring better than the national average on Scholastic Aptitude Tests. But what does it all mean?

That's the question state education officials are pondering in light of those reports that scores—Michigan's college-bound students who took the SAT haven't zipped downward as far as others did on the national level.

"We frankly don't know why it happened that way," says one spokesman. "But we are going to look deeply into the subject." The Department of Education has asked for all the SAT data in hopes of coming up with some sort of answer.

*****

The numbers—which some caution against emphasizing too strongly—show that the average math score of Michigan high school graduates who took the SAT this year were only one point lower than the scores of Michigan students who took the tests five years ago. Nationally, the average math scores plummeted 16 points.

Average verbal score of Michigan students this year was down 12 points from the 1970 average. On the national level, average verbal scores zoomed 21 points downward during the same period.

*****

"We should avoid jumping to broad, sweeping conclusions," says Dr. John Porter, state superintendent of public instruction.

He says there are many factors which could have influenced the scores, including: a significant decline in the number of students taking the college boards in Michigan; a growth in the community college system, where college boards are not required; and an attempt by many colleges to recruit students from disadvantaged social-economic backgrounds. Those young people may not do as well as others on the college boards, it's noted.

FLU MAY BE MILD

No solid predictions yet, but there are indications that the flu bug won't be biting awfully hard this winter in Michigan.

Public Health Director Maurice Reizen says that in the southern hemisphere, where winter already is over, there's been a generally mild influenza, with no signs of any new virus strains.

Most cases, he says, were of a type for which there is plenty of vaccine. "This is encouraging," Reizen reports, "because about 30-40 per cent of the general population have already developed immunity to this disease" (Type A, Port Chalmers influenza).

*****

Those in so-called "high risk groups," however, had best start thinking now about getting the vaccine. Such groups include children and the elderly with respiratory or cardio-vascular problems such as asthma, emphysema and heart disease.

Reizen says that despite adequate supplies of vaccine, only about 15 per cent of those in the high risk group received vaccine last year.

"If we can increase the percentage, and with the fairly high general population immunity, there seems a good chance that this winter will be unusually good as far as influenza is concerned," Reizen said.

LICENSE GUN OWNERS?

Assassination attempts... Family shootings... Increased crime...

All have brought the issue of private ownership of handguns into the forefront in recent weeks.

And Rep. Stephen Monsma, D-Grand Rapids, thinks he's found a way to at least reduce accidental gun deaths and killings done in a "fit of temper" between relatives or friends. (Monsma admits that people who want to commit a crime would "probably still be able to get guns," even if his proposal became law.)

He wants to require handgun owners to pass a State Police exam and investigation, and allow no more than one gun in a home. Other guns could be stored elsewhere.

*****

A complete ban on private ownership of handguns also has been proposed in Lansing, along with a measure calling for extra jail sentences for criminals who use handguns. All three measures are waiting action in the legislature.

PRIMARY PAY

Picking a presidential candidate at primary time costs money—dollars that Sen. Patrick McCollough, D-Deerborn, and 25 colleagues think should be paid by the state.

McCollough recently introduced legislation calling for the state to pick up the estimated $2.5 million tab for the 1976 presidential primary. "Local units of government have felt the effects of an inflationary economy even more than the state," McCollough says. "They simply can't afford (to pay for the primary) and they should not be expected to pay for what is really a state obligation."

Michigan reimbursed local units of government nearly $2 million for the cost of the state's first presidential primary in 1972.

Regular Village Council Meeting

The regular meeting of the Cass City Village Council was held on October 28, 1975, at the Municipal Building. All Trustees were present.

The minutes of the regular September meeting were read and approved.

The treasurer's report was accepted showing a tax collection of over 98 per cent. The financial statement for September was also reviewed.

A motion was made by Trustee Tuttle and supported by Trustee Jones to authorize the signing of a lease with Hills and Dales Hospital leasing radio equipment to the hospital, to authorize payment to the hospital of $10,151.00 for the purchase of radio equipment and to acknowledge the receipt of $10,151.00 from the hospital reimbursing the Village for the radio equipment. Motion carried.

No discussion was held on the amended budget for 1975 but all members were requested to advise the Village Superintendent on 1976 needs.

A motion was made by Trustee Tuttle and supported by Trustee Jones to request an advisory vote of the citizens in March at the regular election to lease to the Cass City Schools the football field and stadium for a period of time to be negotiated. Motion carried.

A motion was made by Trustee Rawson and supported by Trustee Hampshire that the bills as examined be approved for payment. Motion carried.

There being no further business a motion was made by Trustee Ware and supported by Trustee Tuttle that the meeting be adjourned. Motion carried.

Tuscron calls for bus safety probe

Bob Letts, President of the TUSCRON (Tuscola-Huron) District of the MEA, announced that his organization is calling on its State and Federal Legislators to investigate the safety standards which apply to school busses.

"The teachers of Tuscola and Huron counties are appalled by the unfortunate school bus accident Nov. 6 that claimed one life and left two children hospitalized," Letts said.

"We are chagrined that a school bus, which apparently met State Safety Standards, could suffer such massive damage in a low speed accident under foggy conditions."

He added, "Reports we have received indicate that every seat in the bus was dislodged from its moorings and flew to the front of the bus. Perhaps application of safety standards that apply to personal automobiles would have minimized the tragedy in this unfortunate accident."

"Consequently," he said, "we are contacting Congressman Traxler, Representative Armbruster and Senator DeGrow to request their aid in securing improvements in the safety standards that apply to school busses. Specifically, we are calling for an investigation of the minimum standards that apply to the construction of school busses. We are also demanding that legislation be adopted to correct any deficiencies such as an investigation reveals."

"School busses are probably the most widely used public conveyance in the country," Letts said, "involving nearly every family in one way or another. The manufacture and marketing of these vehicles is big business that involves hundreds of millions of our tax dollars. It is time we ensure that our children have the best protection possible while riding to and from school."

Dagmar Brown receives promotion

Dagmar Brown has been notified by the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, Washington, D.C., of her promotion to Dental Technician Chief in the U.S. Naval Reserve, effective Oct. 16.

The promotion came as a result of the examination written last January.

Ms. Brown has been with the Reserves for 32 years having first enlisted in the WAVES in 1943. She was on active duty during World War II. At present she is a member of Rec Tra No. 509 Division in Saginaw.

Her division attended the Great Lakes Maritime Academy at Traverse City last week end and participated in all classes and exercises.

Test soil before using nutrients

By Don Kebler

Are you sure you need zinc or manganese for best production of beans, corn, sugar beets and small grains? I ask this question because some of the soil tests for these two micro-nutrients show abundant supplies in the soil.

Few crop producers are taking advantage of these two micro-nutrient tests when having their soils tested for pH, phosphorus and potash. These two micro-nutrients can be tested along with the regular MSU soil test for $1.50 each. This is most inexpensive and at least one of your fields could be tested each year for these micro-nutrients.

Though we referred to micro-nutrients in the past as minor elements, we've changed this name because they are not minor in importance when needed. However, if your soil test shows a sufficient supply the soil test will cost far less than buying these micro-nutrients.

In the winter of 1973-74, I did some correlation studies on bean yields as related to the trends of per cent of tillable acres in various crops over a 20 year period. I noticed that the per cent of tillable acres in sugar beets and beans increased while corn and soy crops decreased. At the same time the yields of beans increased for about six or seven years to a high around 1963. Then the yields began to drop as the per cent of sugar beets and beans acreage continued to rise. About 1970, corn began its rise to a place of being one of our major crops and the acreage percentages increased too. This meant less percentage of our crop land in sugar beets and beans.

At the time I made this study I saw what might be a change in the yield trend on dry beans. I predicted the 1974 dry bean yields would be higher than the previous year rather than to see a further decrease in that year. Yields did increase in 1974 and we had the best looking bean fields, before the dry weather, we've seen in many years.

With this, I feel we are not entirely over the lower yield trend and into the higher yields we saw in the late 50's and early 60's. But, if we continue to produce at least the same percentage of our acres in corn, as we have in the last two or three years, we'll see our bean yields moving back into what they were in the late 50's and early 60's.

November time for garden work

November is something of an in-between time for lawn and garden activities. The growing season is over and winter chores are still over the horizon. Anthony Rapes, Huron County Extension Director, notes that there are a few timely activities, however.

Remove dead, broken, or diseased branches from trees and shrubs.

Transplant dormant deciduous trees.

Propagate evergreens such as holly, yew, boxwood and juniper after they have been exposed to several hard freezes.

After the ground is frozen, you can mulch roses, perennials, bulbs, and strawberry plants to protect them against injury from rodents and winter thawing and freezing.

Actively growing houseplants should be fertilized once a month. Flush soil with water once every three months to rid soil of excess soluble salts.

Gardens, flower beds, windowboxes and outdoor planters should be cleaned and all fallen leaves harboring disease or insects should be removed and burned or hauled away.

Add organic matter to the soil to improve it for next year.

Spade or plow the garden and leave it roughed up for winter. Freezing and thawing will break up the clumps of earth so the garden will be ready for a final working over next spring.

Rake leaves as they accumulate and add them to your compost pile. Hint: chopping them up will help them to decompose more quickly.

Handpick bagworms from evergreens and destroy them. They contain the eggs for next year's crop of pests.

Stake and tie newly planted trees to keep them from being whipped and injured by winter winds.

Protect plants near roads that will be salted during the winter by tacking tar-backed burlap to stakes driven between the plants and the street.

Pick the spot to plant a living Christmas tree and mulch it before the soil freezes so you can plant the tree soon after Christmas. If you don't mulch now, the ground may be too hard to dig later.

Finish planting spring-flowering bulbs.

Tender summer-flowering bulbs like dahlias and cannas should be dug and stored.

Pot spring-flowering bulbs for forcing in March and April.

Wrap the trunks of young, thin-barked trees with tree wrap to prevent winter sun-scald injury.

Spindly shrubs should be wrapped with strong cord to support them against a burden of heavy snow. Large boxwood hedges should also be supported to prevent snow damage.

Wrap the trunks of fruit trees with foil or hardware cloth to keep rabbits and other rodents from nibbling the bark off. Be sure the barrier will reach above the level of deep snows.

Pull up annuals and cut perennials off near ground level after they are killed by frost.

Nightingale of the playroom

Less than a century and a quarter have passed since that terrible winter when Florence Nightingale ministered to suffering British soldiers. Until then there had been no place for women nurses in military hospitals, and not many women nurses anywhere.

Ever notice how often it is the occupations or professions of SERVICE TO OTHERS that excite the imagination of our children? We should learn something from that!

Boys and girls see themselves as amateur adults. Through their imagination they often show us the world they would like to live in.

Their hopes can become a reality if we support our churches with our faith and our families. After all, it was the Founder of Christianity who insisted that He came not to be ministered unto, but to minister.
