

Road Commission won't plow snow over 44 hours a week

The Tuscola County Road Commission has continued to work its normal 44-hour weekly schedule in spite of unseasonably heavy snow and has no plans to institute overtime for plowing county roads.

Road Commission Clerk Jim Miklovic said this week the only week end snowplowing scheduled is on state highways where the commission is reimbursed by the Department of State Highways.

Road crews normally work 7:00 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 7:00 a.m.-3:30 p.m. Fridays, Miklovic said. No Saturday or Sunday plowing is scheduled. "The only time we worked overtime on county roads was Jan. 10," Miklovic said. "That day, we had four or five units from each garage. We only had a partial crew that day."

Miklovic said three heavy snowstorms that week forced Saturday plowing.

"Some people had been snowed in two or three days and if we hadn't gone out, they'd have been stranded four or five days and we'd have had a lot more emergency calls," he said. "As it was, we only punched a hole down some of the roads—just enough to get through."

He acknowledged complaints about blocked roads have been flooding into Road Commission headquarters south of Caro this year. In normal years, he said, we get a few complaints and once the roads are opened, we're forgotten about.

"I'd say we've gotten as much flack as we've ever received since I've been here," he said.

Miklovic said a suggestion to work county crews overtime and then give them compensatory time off the following week wouldn't work.

"It isn't practical because who's going to guarantee we can lay them off next week and that it won't snow?" he said. "There's really no guarantee of that until June and after that, there's road construction."

The Road Commission has been using a number of CETA employees to man the snow plows, Miklovic said, but these funds are also limited.

"CETA pays the salaries and fringe benefits for these people up to $10,000," he explained, "but right now, we're bordering that $10,000 figure. Anything more comes out of our pockets and we don't have it."

The Road Commission employs an average of 20 persons under CETA.

Miklovic blamed an abnormally bad winter and continuing drop in weight and gas tax revenues for the situation.

He said state revenues to Tuscola county's Road Commission decreased by nearly $13,000 in 1975, compared with 1974. That's the first time in memory funds have ever decreased from one year to the next, Miklovic said.

"You have to remember we aren't just looking at a decrease of $13,000, you're also looking at inflation that's skyrocketed the cost of gasoline, oil, grader blades and all the other supplies we use," he said. "The fact is that we just don't have the money to plow roads the way we'd like to."

"Ten years ago we'd plow Saturdays, Sundays and any time we'd get a couple of inches of snow. We can't do it anymore."

Miklovic said the outlook for 1976 doesn't look much brighter either. He said he expects more than a $13,000 decrease in funding this year.

He said one part of the funding crunch involves $262,000 in road construction payments due the Road Commission from the townships. These are expected to be received after Feb. 15, when the bulk of township tax collections will have been received.

One problem the Road Commission isn't facing is a salt shortage which has plagued some downstate communities. Miklovic explained that Tuscola county crews use liquid brine on most county roads much of the time, with salt used mostly at intersections.

FLAMES DESTROYED a repair shop-garage owned by William Eberts on Cemetery Road, two and a half miles south of Cass City, Friday afternoon. Loss was set at $22,000. Gasoline fumes reportedly touched off the blaze.

AN OVERHEATED wood stove was blamed for a fire that destroyed a garage owned by George Hosner located a mile south of Deford, Sunday afternoon. A pickup truck and a quantity of tools were destroyed. Loss was set at $16,000.

2 garages, barn lost in rash of area fires

Loss was set at $22,000 when fire destroyed a repair garage owned by William Eberts and located 2½ miles south of Cass City, Friday afternoon.

Elkland Township Fire Chief Jim Jezewski said the blaze broke out shortly after 2 p.m. when a hot ember from an acetylene torch ignited gasoline. Jezewski said the fuel came from a gas tank Eberts had just removed from a tractor he was repairing.

Eberts reportedly sustained burns of the hands and face attempting to put the fire out. He was not hospitalized.

The garage was a mass of smoke and flame when firemen arrived at the scene. A nearby house, directly in the path of windblown smoke, was not damaged.

Loss on the contents of the garage was set at $17,000 and included a quantity of tools. The loss was partially insured, Jezewski said.

Firemen answered the alarm at 2:10 p.m. and remained at the scene about 1½ hours, Jezewski said.

A second garage located a mile south of Deford on Kingston Road was destroyed by fire late Sunday afternoon. Cause of the blaze was listed as an overheated wood stove.

Jezewski said the structure, owned by George Hosner of Deford, contained a pickup truck, a battery charger, a quantity of rebuilt engines and numerous tools. Total loss was set at $16,000, with an $11,000 loss set on the building's contents.

Elkland township firemen were assisted by the Caro Fire Department which supplied a water tanker.

Jezewski said the loss was insured. Firemen answered the alarm at 5:00 p.m. and remained at the scene two hours. No one was injured.

BARN FIRE

Three juveniles, ages eight, nine and 11, have been implicated in a fire that destroyed a 40 by 60-foot barn near Wilmot, Thursday afternoon.

A Caro State Police investigation revealed that the three children, whose names were withheld due to their ages, had been playing in the barn owned by Chet Karpowski of Deford, just before the fire broke out.

Police said the three had constructed "forts" out of hay and straw in the barn and that they became cold. One of the children allegedly lit a small fire on a clay tile in the barn.

The flames caught nearby loose hay and straw on fire and rapidly spread throughout the structure. The children escaped unhurt.

One of the youths ran to a store in Wilmot to summon help. The Kingston Fire Department was called, but by the time they arrived at the scene, the barn was engulfed in flames.

Loss was set at $17,000, with $15,000 damage to the barn itself. Lost in the fire were 140 bales of straw, 110 bales of hay, a grain drill, assorted farm tools and several antiques.

The children were remanded to the custody of their parents pending a complete investigation.

The blaze broke out shortly before 2:30 p.m.

TRAILER FIRE

Watch the birdie. Or maybe just the bird cage. It could start a fire.

That's what Elkland Township Firemen believe caused a fire that did $800 damage to a mobile home owned by Janet Curtis and located at 6570 Elizabeth St., Thursday morning.

Fire Chief Jim Jezewski said the fire probably started as the sun shone through two panes of window glass and bounced off a mirror hanging inside a bird cage. Jezewski said the mirror concentrated the reflected rays on a thin kitchen towel which caught fire and in turn burned nearby curtains.

He said the fire was concentrated in the ceiling just above the kitchen sink. Damage was set at $800. Firemen responded at 9:45 a.m.

As firemen fought the blaze, the unconcerned occupant of the cage was seen admiring himself in the mirror.

CASS CITY CHRONICLE

Village swimming pool funds fall $18,700 short of goal

Cass City needs an additional $18,700 to complete its municipal swimming pool project, it was learned at Tuesday night's Village Council meeting held at the Municipal Building.

Village President Lambert Althaver explained that the final project costs, including the pool itself and the bathhouse, should hit $217,700. Total contributions from the estate of the late Helen Stevens are expected to reach $193,000, which includes $68,000 still to be received from the estate.

Althaver said cost of the pool itself should total $105,000, with the balance taken up by the building, lockers, fencing, landscaping and architect's fees.

The news came as no real shock to trustees, who maintained the estate would pay for the bulk of the project but probably not all of it. Althaver and Trustee Dr. D.E. Rawson suggested local service clubs might be interested in helping the village raise the remaining funds.

Althaver said the village is committed to spend all but $7,000 of the remaining $18,700.

Dr. Rawson told trustees a plaque for the pool is being designed by the architect. The pool is expected to be named in honor of the Stevens.

It was reported that construction of the building itself is practically complete, with installation of lockers and interior painting still unfinished.

LIQUOR LICENSE

Raymond Schweikart, owner of Cass City Lanes, told council he intends to apply for a license to sell liquor by the glass at his bowling alley located on Weaver Street.

Schweikart said part of his reason was that at least one group plans to apply for a liquor license outside the village in Elkland township.

"I would like to keep the business in the village," Schweikart said. "I wanted my intentions out in the open and not try to hide anything behind anyone's back."

He said if the request is approved by state authorities, he plans to expand the bowling alley to handle the business.

Zoning in the area of the bowling alley would allow for a licensed drinking establishment. Althaver added, however, that the request may not be approved at the state level since two licensed establishments already exist.

He said the number of licenses per village is based on population and said he was unsure whether or not Cass City was large enough to qualify for another.

Under state law, the request is first made to the State Liquor Control Commission which takes action and then sends it to local authorities for their approval. An unfavorable local ruling could be overturned on appeal to state officials.

Arraign mom in Fairgrove tot's death

A sobbing Susan Marie Schlicht emerged Monday from Tuscola County District Court after facing arraignment on a felony murder warrant in connection with the death of her 16-month-old son New Year's Day.

Mrs. Schlicht was charged with murder in the perpetration or attempted perpetration of an arson. Her son, Bryon, died in the flames that destroyed the family's mobile home near Fairgrove.

The 19-year-old Mrs. Schlicht was arraigned before District Judge Richard Kern. A pre-preliminary exam was set for Feb. 2, with pre-exam set for Feb. 13.

Authorities said Mrs. Schlicht turned herself in at the Tuscola County Sheriff's Department late Friday night. A warrant for her arrest was sworn out Saturday.

Judge Kern remanded her to the county jail without bond pending further examination. If convicted, she could receive a maximum sentence of life in prison.

Authorities were releasing little information regarding Mrs. Schlicht or her arrest.

Cass City attorney Clinton House was appointed to represent Mrs. Schlicht.

OTHER BUSINESS

Other business was routine. No decision has been made on whether or not to raise water and sewer rates, it was learned. A recommendation is expected at the next council meeting.

Trustees approved the proposed 1976 budget which calls for general fund revenues and expenditures of $284,000. The overall operating budget is expected to total $439,000. In addition $101,000 is expected to be spent on the pool project.

A public hearing on the budget is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Feb. 24, the next council meeting.

Trustees voted to spend $15,500 for a new village truck that includes a scraper blade and a dump box. The expenditure had already been budgeted.

Approval was also given to spend $630 on an IBM typewriter for village office use.

A SOBBING Mrs. Susan Marie Schlicht is led from Tuscola County District Court Monday after facing arraignment on a felony murder warrant. Mrs. Schlicht is charged in connection with the death of her 16-month-old son, Bryon, who died when the family's mobile home burned New Year's Day.

Gagetown man shot in St. Clair police chase

A 28-year-old Gagetown man was reported in satisfactory condition Monday at Huron Memorial Hospital after allegedly being shot by police south of Imlay City early Friday morning.

Gerald Batie reportedly sustained leg and arm wounds during the shooting which took place shortly before 6:00 a.m.

According to Lt. Russell Beamish of the Romeo State Police post, the alleged shooting occurred as members of a police surveillance crew including officers from Livonia, Garden City, Farmington and Detroit were closing in on two suspects wanted in connection with a series of heavy equipment thefts in the Detroit area.

Beamish said Steven Adams, 21, Garden City, and his brother, Larry, 19, had been picked up by Batie at a truck stop near Imlay City, Friday morning. Batie was headed for Utica driving a truck owned by Erla's, Inc., of Cass City. Beamish said the surveillance crew was following the trio and attempted to stop the vehicle about four miles south of Imlay City on M-53.

The officer said Batie "apparently panicked" and did not heed an order to stop. Police reportedly continued the chase until the truck stopped. Beamish indicated Batie attempted to back the truck up and then drive forward after being stopped.

ENGAGED

MARILYN JANE SWEENEY

Mr. and Mrs. Dolan Sweeney, Uby, announce the engagement of their daughter, Marilyn Jane, to Roderick Dean Walsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Walsh, also of Uby. The bride-elect is a 1973 graduate of Ubyly High School, and is currently a senior at Central Michigan University. The prospective bridegroom, who also graduated from Ubyly High School in 1973, operates a dairy farm with his father.
An Aug. 14 wedding is being planned.

Mr. and Mrs. John Schwartz

St. Pancratius Catholic church was the setting for the Dec. 13 wedding ceremony of Joyce Ann Karr and John Schwartz. Rev. Fr. Joseph Morales officiated at the 3:00 p.m. ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Karr of Cass City. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Schwartz of Cass City.

The bride wore a shimmering white silk organza gown fashioned with multiple rows of Venice lace shaping a bib effect on the Empire bodice and tapering the long sleeves gathered at the wrists. A band of cluny lace formed a wedding ring collar and lace encircled the ruffled flounce at the hemline of the A-line skirt. A matching lace camelot cap secured her cathedral length lace-bordered bridal illusion veil and blusher.

Maid of honor was Patti Karr, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Dorothy and Peggy Schwartz, sisters of the groom. The maid of honor wore an emerald green velvet gown with a ruffled bib front, collar and cuffs of creamy satin. The bridesmaids wore identical gowns in a ruby velvet with creamy satin. Matching hats completed their attire.

Best man was Don Letterman of Cass City. Groomsman were Dan Gettel of Bay City and Curt Marr of Cass City.

Ushers were Ed Schwartz and Rich Lautner. Miniature bride was Theresa Schwartz, cousin of the groom. Miniature groom was Scott Karr, brother of the bride.

Organist was Paul Kerbyson. Flowers for the ceremony included daisies and baby's breath.

A reception for 350 persons was held at the AIW Hall in Elktion following the ceremony.

The bride is employed at Walbro Corporation. The bridegroom is employed as a tool and die maker at Active Industries of Elktion.

Following a wedding trip through the South, the couple will reside in Cass City

This weather has fouled up everything. Just ask Scott Kelley, a Cass City transplant from New Hampshire.

Scott was going to use his connections back east to do the White Creek Club a favor. What Kelley proposed was having lobsters flown in for a dinner that would enhance the club's coffers and give members a seldom enjoyed treat.

But the weather kept the fishermen from the sea and when banquet time arrived last week there were no fresh lobsters. Frozen lobsters were substituted at the last minute and Kelley demonstrated in the kitchen that he knows how to cook them.

The customers were well satisfied with the substitution. Only the club coffers suffered. The lobster tails cost twice the price of live lobsters.

Police probe break-ins at Kingston schools

Caro State Police investigated two break-ins at the Kingston Elementary and High School last week end in which the culprits came away with little to show for their efforts.

The high school break-in took place sometime late Saturday night or early Sunday morning, police said. The culprits allegedly broke glass in a rear kitchen window, reached in, unlocked the window and entered.

Once inside, they broke locks on four offices by prying the door knobs with a pipe wrench. Police discovered a tape player lying on the main office floor but no other property stolen.

The thieves did take $47 from the library office and $11 from the main office.

Police believe the same culprits also entered the elementary school the same day. They entered through a large window on the west side of the building.

This time, only a salad bowl valued at $3 was reported missing.

Police believe juveniles are involved.

Sheriff's officers said the thieves entered by breaking a window on a rear porch.

Among the items reported missing were a .12 gauge shotgun, pots and pans, chairs, linens and an assortment of hand tools.

No suspects have been apprehended.

Fired teacher won't protest

A former Gagetown Elementary school teacher who was fired for allegedly teaching without proper certification apparently will not seek legal action against the Owen-Gage School District.

Dave Stafford, area Michigan Education Association (MEA) representative, said last week Mrs. Carolyn MacAlpine had decided not to take action against the school board.

Mrs. MacAlpine was fired during a Jan. 12 meeting of the school board held in Gagetown. The board alleged she taught for over a year without proper certification.

Mrs. MacAlpine taught a combined third-fourth grade class at the time of her dismissal.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

The last time that Hubert Humphrey ran for president I voted for him. If lightning should strike and he gets the Democratic nod for president in 1976, I'll vote against him.

That's kind of early to be making up your mind about any candidate... but after all we've had a decade to look at Humphrey.

Humphrey's answer to our economic problems is to put more persons on the public payrolls... he says that will cure inflation because there will be more persons paying taxes to reduce our deficits.

I like President Ford's alternative better... reduce the size of government to keep inflation under control.

Not that I feel Ford is all that great as a president, you understand. His incentives for big business to stimulate the economy leave me cold. I don't feel that the big oil companies need any help... or the big unions, either, for that matter.

It's the gut feeling here that neither big business or big labor gives a tinker's damn about the general welfare of the nation or the problems of anyone other than themselves.

I can't picture any Democrat using the muscle of the presidential office to keep wage demands within non-inflationary guidelines.

I can't picture the Republicans putting the pressure on United States Steel to roll back prices, either.

I get the feeling that the ordinary wage earner, the small businessman, the retiree are merely pawns in the game of power politics.

Perhaps it's Watergate. But I see no real hope for change regardless of which party holds the reins for the next four years.

That's sad to say, isn't it? Sad because I suspect that millions feel the same way...

"If It Fitz..." Humphrey is a phony

BY JIM FITZGERALD

My newest hero is Paul Covey Jr., a 21-year-old resident of South Euclid, Ohio. I admire him more than I do many more famous people, such as Hubert Humphrey, the fourflusher.

Covey was recently arrested for reckless driving and hauled into the police station. The cops said he could make 1 phone call.

Covey phoned the Vatican and asked for the Pope.

Now that's class. When seeking help, why not go right to the top? A lesser man might have phoned his parish priest.

The cops began to wonder why Covey was on the phone so long — over 5 minutes. They picked up an extension and heard him pleading his case to one of the Pope's emissaries. If he couldn't talk directly to the Pope, he said, he wanted to be connected with the Cardinal in charge of praying off traffic tickets.

At this point the conversation was terminated by law and Covey was informed he would have to pay the toll charge. Which he did. Which brings us to Hubert Humphrey, who didn't.

You must have heard the rather amazing news that Humphrey is generally favored to win the Democratic nomination for President this year. Which is certainly a telling measurement of the quality of the candidates and the depth of the Chappaquiddick.

Most people thought Humphrey was finally done with White House yearnings after he failed to win the nomination in 1972. Humphrey obviously thought so himself because he didn't bother paying his 1972 campaign debts.

It is common for losing politicians to weasel on debts. Hotel bills, advertising bills, airline bills, loans from supporters and so on. Why pay them if they didn't purchase victory?

But didn't Mother always say that was stealing? Would Happy Hubert steal? Do we really need another crook in the Oval Room?

It was just last month that Humphrey decided to do something about those 4-year-old bills. He still owed a whopping $900,000, a dirty fact which might be used against him in the 1976 campaign. So he paid off — 4 cents on the dollar. His creditors were gyped out of over $800,000. They had to agree to the settlement because Humphrey insisted there was no way he could pay up in full.

Besides, Hubert might get elected this time and it doesn't hurt to be able to say to the President: "Hey Humphrey, remember that time I wrote off that $150,000 you owed me? Well, here's what I'd like you to do..."

Sorry, but phooey. Mother was right. When a man doesn't pay his debts, he's a thief, just as surely as a bank robber. And when a U.S. Senator does it, without a blink, you know the status of the white-collar criminal has reached a height on par with sainthood. Raggedy muggers are crooks. Well-dressed welschers are modern princes to be admired for their lofty goals, rather than condemned for their cruddy morals.

It all saddens me because I used to be a Humphrey fan. He was my kind of liberal, even if he did talk like a water fountain run amok. I figured he was for the little guy and certainly he wouldn't condone the type of lopsided justice which pardons a Richard Nixon and sends the 2-bit burglar to prison. Now I learn he not only condones it, he uses it to grease his way around cut corners.

Paul Covey has class. He went for the Pope and failed, but he paid the freight. Humphrey pooped out for President and ran out on the bills. The big phony has no class at all.

He'll probably be nominated and elected.

Courage is the ability to hang on just one minute longer.

WHERE SOMEONE TRUDGED BEFORE

How deep is the snow? How rough is the terrain that lies beneath it? You can never be sure until there are footprints to follow. It is easier to make one's way through the snow where someone has trudded before.

At the heart of the Christian religion is the belief that God gave his own Son, to be our Savior... and also to be our example. The study of his life is, therefore, an important part of Christian education. Though we cannot aspire to be like Him — we can learn to meet life's challenges and crises with the same resolute courage and commitment.

Why plunge aimlessly on? Someone has shown the Way!

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK Button, button, who's got my button

By Jim Ketchum

If a button pops off your shirt at my house, do me a favor and don't ask my wife to sew it back on. You may wind up with a needle shoved right through your thumb.

I speak from experience. Lately, I've been popping more buttons than the proud father of quintuplets. It isn't because my waistline is expanding as much as it is an occupational hazard.

Newspaper people are naturally high-strung. Maybe without realizing it, I chew shirt cuff buttons to relieve the tension. I'm not sure. But I know I don't chew collar buttons. Maybe they pop off as my blood pressure goes up.

A flying button is the signal I've gone beyond my limit and that my arteries are crying for a little relief.

Anyhow, the situation approached crisis proportions not long ago when the last button flew off my comfortable old winter coat and left me flapping in the breeze like a flag in a hurricane. I showed the coat to my dear spouse and asked her to work her magic to make buttons reappear where only holes and bits of thread now stood.

That same week, two buttons fell off my favorite shirts. This left me not only coatless but shirtless as well. If things got much more serious, I could have joined the chorus line at the Gage-town Bar.

When another shirt gave way, that was too much. My wife rebelled. I didn't see any smoking bras nearby, but I knew I was about to be "woman's libbed."

"Why don't you learn how to sew buttons on yourself?" she queried. "It really isn't that complicated. You know you could do it if you wanted to."

That was the problem. Not only did I not know how, I wasn't anxious to learn. Crucify me if you will; I believe there are certain jobs men have no business attempting and sewing buttons is one of them.

There is no way these type-writer-beaten fingers could manipulate needle and thread through those silly little holes on those buttons.

I tried it once. I ran the thread between a couple of holes for awhile then I shifted to the other two holes. Just to make sure the thing was anchored properly, I made a few diagonal passes. I think I used a half spool of thread in the process.

Then I tried tying a knot, imitating the motions I'd seen my mother perform. There's no way on earth you can make two knots come together without using staples and glue.

Anyhow, by the time I finished, the stupid button fell off. I did manage to rewind the thread before the disaster saw the glaring white light of public inspection, but it soured me on sewing buttons forever.

"What would you do if I weren't home and a button came off your shirt?" she asked. I told her I'd probably wear another shirt until she came home. If that didn't work, Dorothy Haire at the Chronicle could sew a button on for me.

"You'd have to come home sometime anyway," I said, "so I'm not really worried." That was the wrong move. When the smoke cleared, we struck a compromise. I'd try sewing buttons on again if she'd take up snow shoveling, trash burning and lawn mowing.

My thumb isn't being overworked yet.

Cass City treatment center : hope for the mentally ill

By Jim Ketchum

The real world can be an overwhelming place, especially if you tackle it straight out of a mental institution. Sometimes, the adjustment can be as traumatic as the illness.

That's part of what the Adult Day Treatment Center in Cass City is trying to avoid. The center, which began operations last July, is a pilot project funded by the state Department of Mental Health in conjunction with Tuscola and Huron counties.

According to Dennis Johnson, Director of Tuscola County Community Mental Health Services, the center was established for a two-fold purpose.

"We wanted to see if through daily systematic programming, we could effectively prevent or reduce the number of persons needing state hospitalization,"

Johnson said. "We also wanted to use the center to eventually help the clients toward independence through socialization."

The "systematic programming", Johnson explained, refers to a set of goals established for each of the 25 participants as they join the program. The goals, set in conjunction with a professional therapist or psychologist, provide a yardstick to measure progress.

The State Department of Mental Health picks up 75 per cent of the $12,000 annual bill for such items as rent on the basement of the Professional Building, utilities and supplies.

The remaining 25 per cent comes from Tuscola and Huron counties.

Another $18,000 in Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds (CETA) under Title VI, pays staff wages and fringe benefits. Currently, three full-time staff members handle the program.

Johnson maintains day treatment is less costly in the long run than hospitalization.

"It costs an average of $70 per day to institutionalize one person," Johnson said. "That's $25,000 a year for only one patient."

He says it makes sense to place as many persons as possible in day treatment programs instead of letting them take up costly space in a mental hospital.

"This isn't the first program of its type," Johnson said. "The concept of day treatment has been around since the 1930's. It is the first time it's been tried in the Thumb."

HOW IT WORKS

Once a person is recommended for a spot at the Day Treatment Center, participation is strictly voluntary.

GOING OVER plans at the Adult Day Treatment Center in Cass City are (from the left) Randy Atwell, social worker; Donna Fassett, activity therapist, and Dennis Johnson, Tuscola County Community Mental Health Services director. The center presently has 25 clients who attend sessions four days a week.

MS. DONNA FASSETT, activity therapist at the Cass City Adult Day Treatment Center, displays some of the art work turned out by clients as part of their therapy. The center's ultimate goal is to treat mentally ill persons outside an institutional setting at less cost.

BETTER HEALTH

Narcolepsy

BY DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

Falling asleep at inappropriate times, during meals or while driving a car, and abruptly collapsing under emotional stress should constitute a set of symptoms so obvious as to make narcolepsy readily recognizable and easily diagnosed.

But such is not the case. Apparently, although its manifestations are not concealed, they are more often than not wrongly interpreted. Specialists in sleep disorders believe that as many as a quarter of a million Americans may suffer from undiagnosed narcolepsy.

According to William P. Baird, director of the American Narcolepsy Association, victims of the disorder are more often than not misdiagnosed, or their symptoms are dismissed as those of laziness or psychological ornerness.

Symptoms of narcolepsy usually develop during puberty and up to the age of 40. It is about four times as common in men as in women.

The chief manifestations are overwhelming attacks of sleep and of muscular weakness.

Narcoleptic sleep appears to differ from normal sleep only in its frequency and its inappropriate timing. Sleep attacks may occur from a few to many times a day and each attack may last from a few minutes to several hours.

Electro-encephalographic studies of daytime naps and all-night sleep show that the 24-hour sleep-wake cycle of narcolepsy is very different from that in normal people, and the so-called rapid eye movement (REM) sleep occurs at abnormal, inappropriate times.

The attacks of muscular weakness consist in abrupt paralysis of the body's musculature brought on by emotional reactions such as joy, anger, fear or laughter.

In order for the emotional situation to provoke the sudden weakness, an element of surprise is important. Sudden hearty laughter may cause a fall to the floor, or the same might happen in a sudden fit of anger.

Sometimes, transient paralysis of all muscles occurs just before falling asleep. At the sleep-disorders clinic of Stanford University in California, there is a colony of seven dogs all with canine narcolepsy: one Doberman, one dachshund and several poodles.

So far, the dog is the only animal other than man that is known for certain to have the illness. It is hoped that a research program can begun with these animal disease models.

Stimulants such as amphetamine or dextro-amphetamine are effective in preventing daytime sleep attacks, without interfering with sleep at night, if the last drug dosage of the day is not given too late in the day.

In many patients, tolerance to the drugs develops, and there is always the problem of side effects, some of which can be serious.

Productive research in this distressing sleep disorder is very much needed, as well as a high index of suspicion in those trying to diagnose compulsive daytime nappers.

Your neighbor says

It's winter

It's winter (as if you needed to be told). With snow and cold settled in for at least three more months, what will you be doing with your spare time?

Mrs. Margie Alexander of 6328 Main St., Cass City, likes a mixture of things.

"I like to go snowmobiling if we have time," Mrs. Alexander says. "I wouldn't mind building a snowman once in a while. But mostly, I like to be inside. I enjoy sewing or catching up on reading."

Mrs. Alexander says she likes to read mystery novels when it's too cold to be outside.

"To be really honest, I'm not that crazy about winter," she confessed. "I'd really like to spend it somewhere warm."

Maybe Arizona or Florida." Mrs. Alexander is a native of the Cass City area. Her husband, Rob, is a professional baseball player.

Meals on wheels gets funding

The Thumb area Meals on Wheels program received a boost last week when the Office of Services to the Aging pledged $4,400 in OSA funds.

The money will be divided equally between Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac and Lapeer counties.

The program will continue through 1976, thanks to a state grant of $18,332. To receive full benefit of the grant, the state stipulates that an additional $6,400 in local cash must be contributed by the four counties it will affect.

Last week, Sanilac county commissioners voted to endorse Meals on Wheels and pledged support if needed to expand or retain the program in Sanilac county.

Local donations total approximately $1,300, officials said, and combined with the OSA funds which are considered local monies, it is believed little county revenue will be needed.

Currently, the program serves persons in Cass City, Sandusky, Deckerville and Harbor Beach. A total of 52 persons are being served. Of those, three are blind, 11 require walkers, two are in wheelchairs, two are bedridden, 21 are crippled and one is a paraplegic.

Other persons in the program are incapacitated or require special dietary needs. Area hospitals supply meals for the program.

Don't try to collect social security on the wages of sin.

Progressive dinner draws 30 teens

The teen department of First Baptist church participated in a progressive dinner Saturday, Jan. 23. Around 30 young people were accompanied by their sponsors and Sunday School teachers, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rayl, Rev. and Mrs. Lee Taylor and Bill Ewald.

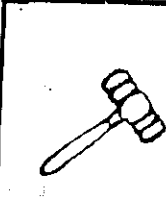

The 5:30 dinner began with soups served at the Bill Ewald and Alvin Hutchinson homes, followed by salads at the Jim Ware and Jim Perry homes. The main course, which featured chicken and ham, was served in the church social rooms by Mrs. Hugh Mitchell, Mrs. George Fisher Jr. and Mrs. John Zmierski.

The group went to the Harold Rayl home for dessert, followed by games and devotions presented by Mr. Taylor.

Wendy Ware, vice-president of the group, was chairman for the affair.

Check stored grain
 By William Bortel

Stored grain is like money in the bank and it's worth a little time to make sure you are not losing quality. Are you checking your grain bins to make sure the quality is being maintained?

Last fall a few grain producers stored grain with potential problems. The moisture content was higher than it should have been. Pockets of grain having a higher moisture content than is safe for long-time storage are likely to occur in some farm-stored grain. This may be the first load or two combined or other areas of high moisture pockets which are in your grain bin.

During harvest, just checking the moisture on one load of grain does not give a truly accurate picture. Moisture content can vary from morning to noon to evening. If you are not really sure of the moisture content of your stored grain, it is really critical that you observe it very closely and especially in areas where you might think there are problems.

To be safe for long time storage, the moisture content for stored wheat, barley, oats and corn must not exceed 13 per cent. There is little need to worry about these cereals when stored at a moisture content of 13 per cent or below. It's too low for the mold or fungi to develop and insects cannot survive at such low moisture levels.

In the event you did bin grain at 14 or 15 per cent moisture, you could be safe for a short period if the temperature of the grain was within 40-50 degrees F. Most grain has tendencies to warm up with 70-80 degree daytime temperatures of last fall and this grain needs frequent checking to determine its internal condition.

Spot checking of your grain can be done by attaching a thermometer to a metal rod and inserting it into the grain. If the grain temperature is between 80 and 90 degrees there are problems developing. It is best that the grain be moved to a new bin to break up the hot spots.

There is more grain being stored on farms in Tuscola county each year. Problems can develop and we suggest you keep a close look at your grain bins and make sure your grain is safe in the bank.

Australia: it was the trip of a lifetime for Cass City student Laura Bauer Who's that girl with the deep tan and slightly British accent in Cass City these days? Surprise. It's Laura Bauer, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Bauer of Cass City, who returned recently from an 11-month stay as a Rotary Exchange student in Australia.

The trip was a "once-in-a-lifetime opportunity", Miss Bauer says. "You can't let something like that pass you by."

was a city engineer, another was a carpenter and another was a businessman. I felt as though I got a pretty good look at how the people live."

As for her accent, Miss Bauer says that came naturally. The first month or two you're in Australia, she says, it's pretty hard understanding teachers, fellow classmates and just about everybody else.

"After awhile, though, you pick it up," she said in her own accent.

kept Miss Bauer from becoming homesick, although she admitted she did miss her family and Cass City the first month or two she was away.

"We spent a lot of time traveling," she said. "One trip I really enjoyed was a train trip we took to the center of Australia. I'd never ridden on a train before and it was a two-day trip. The people we were with made it a lot of fun."

out from Vietnam. She said during the Watergate hearings, Australians saw much of the same television coverage that Americans saw.

A recent innovation on the Australian scene is color television, Miss Bauer said. "It's still very expensive and most Australians don't want to give up their black-and-white sets."

She was still able to see American TV programs, but most were months late. "I remember one soap opera we watched that I had already seen here before I left," she said. "I was telling them what was coming next on every episode."

She said the drug problem didn't appear as serious as it does in the United States, probably due to tougher laws. The drinking age is 18, but the driving age varies from state to state.

"In Victoria, the state I was in, the driving age was 18," she said. "My families were amazed that at 16, I already had my license."

What did she gain from her trip? The experience itself was the most important thing, she said.

"I'd say to anyone planning to go that if you decide on it, don't change your mind," she said. "You'll never regret it."

Even travelling through eight time zones is worth the experience she said with a smile. "It really is."

The petite Cass City High School junior spent much of her time in a suburban community about 12 miles south of Melbourne. She lived with our different families with a wide variety of occupations.

"In one family I lived with, both the mother and father worked," Miss Bauer recalled as she relaxed in the living room of her home for the first time in nearly a year. "The father worked as a crane operator and the mother worked for the Phillip Morris Cigarette Company. In another family, the father

Much of her time was spent in school. She took as many as 10 different subjects, but not all scheduled the same day. Generally, she said Australian schools provide a tougher curriculum than comparable American schools.

"They put me in a level a year behind what I should have been," she said. "I didn't find it too difficult. But if I'd been where I was supposed to be, it would have been hard."

The work, combined with dozens of family activities,

Miss Bauer says the Australian life style is not much different from that of America's. She found the people friendly and anxious to show her Australia's sites.

"They still think a lot of Americans," she said. "I don't think there was a day that went by when there wasn't at least one story in the papers or on the news about the United States. I think they still look up to us."

She said that Watergate was still a hot topic of conversation when she was there, along with the American pull-

LIFE STYLE

Walbro develops new fuel pump application

"About a year ago," said Victor M. Guernsey, VP-Sales, Automotive Products Division, Walbro Corporation, "our Research and Development engineers took a long, hard look at the electric fuel pumps used on 26 import cars made in Europe, Latin America, Japan, and Australia.

some of these import car electric fuel pumps are extremely high-priced, retailing as high as $92.00 and, undoubtedly, more on exotic models for performance imports."

With the idea of bridging this availability gap and performing an essential service for both the aftermarket trade and import car owners, Walbro research engineers started development work, Guernsey said, on special brackets and fittings that would enable mechanics to back-fit the Walbro Autopulse Electric Fuel Pump to as many import cars as possible.

In late 1975, they completed this development work, and turned over to the Company's Automotive Products Division a prototype of the new Autopulse Import Car Electric Fuel Pump.

Guernsey said the new Walbro Import Car Fuel Pump is to be marketed in United States and Canada through the Walbro Automotive Products Division's nationwide network of warehouse distributors, now totalling more than 200.

An export agency, Dreyco, Inc., working closely with Walbro USA and Walbro GmbH, the Company's wholly owned European subsidiary, is to develop distribution overseas for this new fuel pump.

"They quickly found out that there are so many different brands and models of these fuel pumps that automotive distributors and jobbers, import car dealers, garage and service station owners have serious and continuous problems with availability."

"They also found out that

Automotive Products Division has almost tripled its sales of electric fuel pumps in the last five years . . . to become one of the world's leading producers in this product field.

"1975 was our best year ever," he said. "And with the addition of this new Import Car Pump to what is already one of the finest and most complete electric fuel pump lines on the market, we're really 'shooting for the moon' this year and the years ahead."

According to Guernsey, Walbro has almost tripled its sales of electric fuel pumps in the last five years . . . to become one of the world's leading producers in this product field.

"1975 was our best year ever," he said. "And with the addition of this new Import Car Pump to what is already one of the finest and most complete electric fuel pump lines on the market, we're really 'shooting for the moon' this year and the years ahead."

LAURA BAUER displays some of the souvenirs she brought home following a year's stay in Australia as an exchange student. Miss Bauer lived with four different families near Melbourne.

Consortium resolves job opening snafu

Tuscola county will go ahead with plans to hire its own CETA Public Service Employment Coordinator even though the job had already been advertised as part of the Thumb Area Manpower Consortium staff.

The issue was resolved at a Thursday meeting of the Consortium's Administrative Board held in Cass City.

Problems arose after the job had been advertised in area newspapers as a Consortium position, when in fact, it was a Tuscola county job slot to fill.

Sanilac County Commissioner Sam Work, Crosswell, an administrative board member, objected to the procedure, saying the Consortium had no business hiring the coordinator.

He said the task belonged to the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners.

The rest of the board agreed. Director Frank Leonard will still be involved in screening applicants, but will not do the actual hiring.

In other business, the board reviewed the total amount of CETA funds obligated and expended in the tri-county area since the program began in late 1974.

Under Title I, a total of $1,331,802 has been obligated, with $633,496.97 expended through Dec. 31. A total of 243 persons have participated in Title I programs since late 1974.

Since Title I began, $95,177 has been obligated for Public Service Employment (PSE) in Tuscola county, with $65,266 in Sanilac county and $72,346 in Huron county.

Sanilac county and $471,621 in Huron county.

Title III SPEDY (Summer Program to Employ Disadvantaged Youth) obligated funds totaled $307,435, with $254,760 spent.

Title VI has funneled the most CETA funding into the area. Total obligations are $3,054,071, with $1,770,185 already spent. A total of 251 persons have participated.

Title VI concentrates exclusively on Public Service Employment. A breakdown shows obligations to Tuscola county at $1,237,612, with $682,128 for Sanilac county and $1,086,906 for Huron county.

The Consortium is also set to receive $29,700 in Title X funds for a park and recreation development at Port Hope.

Total of all federal CETA funds obligated to the Consortium is $6,326,785.74, with $3,900,392.23 expended to date. Since CETA began 551 persons have participated.

Mrs. Wise, 71, dies Jan. 21

Funeral services were held Saturday for Mrs. Mae Wise, 71, Cass City, who died Wednesday, Jan. 21, at the Tuscola County Medical Care Facility after a long illness. She was born May 16, 1904, in Elkland township, daughter of the late Bervie and Emma Lang Bradshaw.

She married Jacob M. Wise in Caro, April 2, 1920. Following their marriage, they made their home in Cass City, with the exception of several years in Port Wayne. He died April 7, 1967.

Mrs. Wise was a charter member of the Tri-County Post No. 507, American Legion Auxiliary of Cass City. She was also a member of Echo Chapter OES No. 337 of Cass City.

She is survived by three sons, Harry of Auburn Heights, Max of Cass City and Andrew of Port Huron; three daughters, Mrs. Clyde (Junita) Lindsay of Auburn Heights, Mrs. Bob (Cora) Wilson of Port Huron and Mrs. Ross (Marian) Hurley of Carsonville; 17 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. One brother and one sister predeceased her.

An OES memorial service was held Friday evening from Little's Funeral Home, sponsored by Echo Chapter No. 337.

Long-awaited detox center opens Monday

A long-sought Thumb-based alcoholic detoxification and treatment center will open its doors next Monday at Huron Memorial Hospital in Bad Axe.

The Substance Abuse Center Alcoholism Inpatient Unit will offer comprehensive care to the alcoholic and his family and will serve as an education and preventative center. It is designed to treat patients living in Tuscola, Huron, Sanilac and Lapeer counties.

Completion of the unit marks the culmination of a nine-year struggle to establish a detoxification center in the Thumb. Earlier attempts at locating centers in Cass City, Caro and Harbor Beach never got beyond the planning stages, according to Duane S. Harder, program director.

Harder estimated it will cost about $200,000 to get the program going.

The unit is located on the newly constructed third floor of the hospital. Presently there are 10 beds available and rooms will accommodate one or two persons.

Medical director of the program will be Dr. Kenneth S. Kube of Bad Axe.

Harder said an additional 18 staff members, including registered nurses, licensed practical nurses and aides, had to be hired. Other persons involved in the program will include AA members, vocational rehabilitation counselors and administrators for alcoholism half-way house programs.

In addition, a volunteer program will be established in which ministers, educators, recovering alcoholics and interested persons may participate.

Referrals to the center may come by telephone or walk-in, and from other sources such as AA, jails, courts, industry or by private physicians. Harder said he doesn't expect full use of the center for the first three months or so.

He said residents of the four-county area will be given priority for admission. If room is available, however, other persons may also be admitted.

"Before we had this center, we had to send our people either to St. Luke's in Saginaw or Hurley Hospital in Flint," he said. "Sometimes we sent them as far as Brighton."

As the name implies, detoxification will be the first step, Harder said. The first two or three days will be spent clearing the patient's system of alcohol. Once that's done, the patient then begins a program involving therapy sessions.

A first-time patient will stay anywhere from nine to 14 days with a 10-day average stay. An important part of treatment will be to provide an environment that interrupts the drinking pattern. It's one of the first steps toward establishing a life without alcohol, Harder said. The center will be open 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The program also plans to involve family members in the treatment process through a series of lectures and films.

"It's hard to believe this is finally happening," Harder said this week. "We've worked so long for something like this that it's hard to imagine we've finally made it."

He said part of the reason for establishing a detoxification center to serve the Thumb is a new law scheduled to take effect Jan. 1, 1977, which says public drunkenness is no longer a criminal offense.

Since the drunk in the street can no longer be arrested after that date, he has to be taken someplace. Hopefully, the center will be the place.

He said the program is a part of the hospital operation and that fees for the service will be charged. He added that most insurance companies now recognize alcoholism as a disease and will pay benefits for treatment. Clark "Spike" Johnson, head of Tuscola county's Alcoholism Program, says he welcomes the Bad Axe center but still believes eventually a similar program will take shape in Cass City at Hills and Dales General Hospital.

"Once we see how this one (in Bad Axe) comes along and what the frequency of use is, you may see a center in Cass City," Johnson said.

He said if pending legislation requiring insurance companies to pick up the cost of outpatient alcoholism treatment becomes law, chances of a Cass City center could increase.

Johnson predicted that in a year's time, there may be a detox center at Hills and Dales which could serve both Tuscola and Sanilac counties.

"It all boils down to dollars," he said.

Johnson and his staff currently work with about 300 alcoholics in Tuscola county. "Times are changing," Johnson said. "As little as three years ago, you didn't hear anybody talking about alcoholism. Now you hear it talked about in restaurants, stores—everyplace. And the more people who realize alcoholism is what they've got, the more need we'll have for these centers."

Help Line to train volunteers

Tuscola county's Help Line will hold three training and refresher courses for persons interested in becoming volunteer workers. The sessions will be scheduled Feb. 3, 10 and 17, from 7-10 p.m. in the committee room of the basement at the Tuscola County Jail.

The sessions will be supervised by Dr. Marjorie Clos, psychologist... and Dennis Johnson, director of the Tuscola County Community Mental Health services. Assisting will be Dr. Jean Fairchild, psychologist, Randy Atwell, social worker, and Clark "Spike" Johnson from the Alcohol Information Center.

These free training sessions are open to persons 16 years old and over.

Help Line has been aiding persons with problems since it began in September, 1971. The service provides someone to listen to problems ranging from how to wash tennis shoes to dealing with a teen-age pregnancy.

Last year, the majority of Help Line's calls came from Vassar with 183. Millington followed with 113, Reese with 85, Akron with 73 and Mayville with 66.

Since September, Vassar has supplied the most calls, 30, followed by Reese with 19 and Kingston with 11.

Last year, 91 calls concerned dating and peer relationships, 52 concerned problem pregnancies, and 42 dealt with drugs and alcohol.

Snyder ruled competent to face murder charges

Tuscola County Circuit Court Judge Norman Baguley has ruled that Frank Jefferson Snyder, 24, Caro, is competent to stand trial for the slaying of Ronald Shorts which took place last September near Caro.

Snyder appeared in court for the competency hearing Monday.

Judge Baguley also approved a motion to allow the defense to hire an expert witness to testify with respect to alcohol influence, providing it make a proper showing of the cost.

The judge denied a motion for pre-trial discovery with some exceptions. He ruled that the defense may have names and last known addresses of the state's witnesses, that it be provided a list of certain evidence and that Snyder's prior arrest record be available to the defense.

Snyder was arrested Sept. 22.

In other Circuit Court action Monday, Terry Lee Young, 19, Cass City, was arraigned on charges of breaking and entering and larceny in a building. He entered a guilty plea to larceny which was accepted by the court.

A motion to dismiss the breaking and entering charge and a count of breaking and entering of a motor vehicle were taken under advisement. Bond was reduced to $500.

Young was charged in connection with the theft of tools from a garage owned by Robert Vargo near Cass City Dec. 18. He will be sentenced Feb. 23.

Henry Vern Maus, 33, Akron, was arraigned on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. He entered a plea of guilty to a lesser offense of attempting to obtain money under false pretenses. The plea was accepted by the court and sentencing was set for Feb. 23. Bond was continued at $3,000.

The incident took place July 22, and involved the Akron State Bank.

Frank W. Mitchell, 31, Millington, was arraigned on a charge of illegal sexual conduct. He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered in his behalf. Pre-trial examination was set for Feb. 23, and bond was continued at $2,500.

Mitchell was arrested Nov. 16 in Watertown township.

Randy Lewis Webster, 21, Vassar, was arraigned for possession of phenylcyclidine (PCP). He entered a plea of guilty to attempted possession of the drug, which was accepted by the court.

Sentence was set for March 8, and bond was continued at $500.

Webster was arrested Dec. 13, in Juniata township.

Douglas Abram Hill, 36, Fairgrove, was arraigned on a charge of resisting arrest. He stood mute and a plea of innocent was entered in his behalf.

Pre-trial examination was set for Feb. 23, and bond of $300 was continued. Hill was arrested Dec. 12, in Wisner township.

Two sentences were handed down by Judge Baguley. David Gene Hempton, 17, Vassar, was sentenced to three years' probation and $400 in fines and costs after pleading guilty to larceny in a building.

In addition, Hempton was ordered to pay $50 in restitution and to spend 60 days in the county jail.

Hempton pleaded guilty in connection with a larceny at the Juniata Baptist church last Nov. 4.

Martin John Stockmeyer, 18, Munger, was sentenced on a larceny charge to two years' probation and fines and costs of $200, along with $170 in attorney fees.

In addition, he was sentenced to serve 60 days in the Tuscola County Jail with credit for one day served.

Mark Allen Young, 20, Birch Run, entered a plea of guilty to a probation violation when he appeared before Judge Baguley. The plea was accepted and sentencing was set for Feb. 9.

Young was charged with failure to make reports to his probation officer, failure to seek and find a job and failure to pay restitution.

Mrs. Gingrich dies Monday

Mrs. Luella Gingrich, 79, Cass City, died Monday at the Tuscola County Medical Care Facility in Caro after a long illness.

She was born Dec. 21, 1896, in Elkton, daughter of the late Frank and Catherine Neiber Pether.

She married Isaac Gingrich, Dec. 15, 1922, in Caro. Following their marriage, they made their home in Cass City. They later moved to Detroit and returned to Cass City in 1932.

Survivors include one daughter, Mrs. Victor (Pauline) Rhodes of Caro; two sons, Veron of Cass City and Orlin of Kawkawlin; 14 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. Four sisters and one brother preceded her in death.

Funeral services were scheduled Thursday at 1 p.m. from Little's Funeral Home with Rev. Ernest Gibson and Rev. Lloyd Streeter, pastor of the First Baptist church of Cass City, officiating.

Burial will be in Elkland cemetery.

Roe likes 'people' history

Picture a sunlit cemetery on a crisp morning, squirrels hopping about, birds flitting here and there.

Old-style guns—one with a bayonet contraption that won't quite stay in position—fire a salute, and an ever-slightly ragged bunch of fellows in 18th Century British uniforms go through their drill.

Then the historical marker is unveiled, honoring one of Michigan's sons who fought in the American Revolution.

Jerry Roe is at work, bringing Michigan's history to the people in a way that's anything but dull.

Roe, a member of Michigan's Historical Commission, isn't content with ponderous pronouncements about heritage and that sort of thing.

He's into people history, the kind that gets into the personal background of Michigan's famous and not-so-famous folks, the kind that most people can relate to and enjoy doing so.

The executive secretary of Michigan's Republican Party, Roe currently is trying to save the skating scarf worn by former GOP Gov. Albert Sleeper.

"It's a little bit of history," Roe declares, tongue only part way in cheek. "Sleeper was a chief executive of this state, and if there's something of a governor's worth saving, we'll save it."

Especially big on lesser known politicians, Roe and fellow "political packrats" have come up with honors for the likes of Alpheus Felch, Kingsley Bingham and Josias Simmons.

Branching out to the national scene, he's also proud of providing mementos of President Chester A. Arthur for the Smithsonian Institute in the nation's capital.

"He was the only president they didn't have anything from," Roe says. So the estimated 100 members of the Michigan Friends of Chester Arthur went to work. Thanks to them, the Smithsonian now has Arthur's lap robe and a fishing reel.

Men, like steel, are of little use if they lose their temper.

Set bicentennial show Feb. 4

The Detroit Youththeatre Show on the Road program of the Detroit Institute of Arts will present the multi-media bicentennial revue, "Celebration USA", at Cass City Intermediate School, Wednesday, Feb. 4.

Shows will be staged at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

The live musical revue spans 200 years of American history and uses a blend of music, fantasy and history. The show features 50 specially designed puppets.

Music for the show is distinctly American and ranges from Stephen Foster to modern composers.

This program from the Detroit Youththeatre Show on the Road of the Detroit Institute of Arts is made possible in part by a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts, a state agency.

Also participating in the program are Cass City Council for the Arts, AAUW and Cass City Public Schools. Local coordinator for the event is Mrs. Lambert Alt-haver.

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Two Cass City persons were injured and a busload of students from Cass City High School stranded in a wreck as winter's worst blizzard struck the area Tuesday, bringing activity to a grinding halt.

Authorities at the new Rawson Memorial Library are asking the aid of area residents in an effort to stop the vandalism that has occurred at the new facility in Cass City.

It is not likely that local anglers will be fishing for Coho or Chinook Salmon in the Cass River near Cass City, according to authorities of the Department of Natural Resources in Caro.

James Bauer, Cass City, has been named president of the Michigan Tobacco and Candy Distributors and Vendors Association, it was announced this week by Michael R. Spaniolio, executive secretary of the group.

Donald Koepgen, Cass City, reported the most improved dairy herd in Tuscola county, according to Bill Bivens, DHIA fieldman.

TEN YEARS AGO

"Be sure to tell them that the people have used me just fine," Stanley Wills, Greenleaf township supervisor, said this week as he announced that he was retiring from the board after 25 years of service to the people of the Sanilac county township.

The State Health Department has finally pinpointed the mystery odor plaguing home owners in the vicinity of West Main Street but, like a shimmering mirage, its cause and cure continues to hover just out of reach. The odor is gasoline, the department says.

A new owner will enter the Cass City business scene March 1 when Ferris Ware, 33, takes over the Western Auto Store in the village.

Total calls received by the Cass City Police Department jumped from 1,344 in 1964 to 1,678 in 1965, Police Chief Carl Palmateer reported this week.

New officers of Hills and Dales Hospital Auxiliary are Mrs. Neil Hurry, president; Mrs. Frank Meiser, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Sherwood Rice Jr., recording secretary; and Mrs. Lewis Bishop, treasurer.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Thursday, Feb. 1, will mark the first day in which Dr. P.A. Schenck will be "without a job" in nearly 50 years, for after practically half a century he will retire from active duty as a dentist in Cass City.

Dr. Delbert E. Rawson, who has been associated with Dr. Schenck for the past five years, has purchased the interest of Dr. Schenck in the prosperous dental practice enjoyed by the two men.

The senior class of Cass City High School will present the play, "Blithe Spirit," Jan. 31 and Feb. 1. Cast members include Joan Downing, Roger Little, Jessie Fry, Irene Ludlow, Arlene Lane, Marilyn Wagg and Pete Bogner.

New Good Shepherd Lutheran church officers include president, Glenn Ulrey; Alvin Avery, secretary; Louis Bartz, treasurer, and Peter Zell, trustee.

Cass City Fire Department officers for the coming year are Clarence Burt, Chief; Grant Patterson, assistant chief; Morton Orr, secretary, and Fritz Neitzel, treasurer.

John Gingas, who was employed at the Chronicle a year ago, has purchased a controlling interest in the weekly Shiawassee News at Corunna.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

After being in business in Cass City for 41 years, Harry Young sold his interest in the Cass City Meat Market this week to James R. Gross, who becomes a partner with Fred Maier at this food center.

Miss Janetta Jackson of Cass City has resigned as instructor in the Keilitz School in Ellington township because of ill health.

The 160-acre farm of Milford Robinson in Austin township, Sanilac county, was sold to Lawrence Ripley, Detroit.

A new home being constructed by Guy Cleland in Greenleaf township is nearly completed.

"Gone With the Wind" is scheduled to open at the Cass Theatre next week.

Holstein breeders honor Sweeney

Registered Holstein breeders from Huron, Tuscola, Sanilac, Lapeer, St. Clair and Macomb counties (District I) held their annual meeting in Frankenthuth. Two Huron county residents were honored, according to George W. Atkeson, Extension Agriculture Agent.

Dolan Sweeney of Uby was presented an engraved gavel for his six years of service on the board of directors. Sweeney was elected as District I's first president when the group was formed. Mrs. Sweeney was presented a bouquet of flowers. Sweeney remains active in Holstein activities, said Atkeson, and will be show chairman for the District I Black and White Show to be held in Bad Axe, July 8.

Also honored was Karen Jarrett, of Bay Port. Karen was the 1976 outstanding Holstein girl from Huron county. She is the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jarrett.

Despite the weather, Atkeson estimated over 100 dairymen and wives and families participated in the annual meeting.

Huron county registered Holstein breeders attending the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Buchholz, Pigeon; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Buchholz, Pigeon; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Young, Elkton; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Tough, Uby; Mr. and Mrs. Dolan Sweeney, Uby; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gremel Jr. and Son, Sebawaing; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ziel Jr., Port Austin; Gary Protzman, Caseville, and William Buchholz, Pigeon.

HOLIDAY BLUES

This is the time of the year when some individuals will get a sudden shock when they find all their accounts are overcharged.

Presbyterians choose officers

Adoption of the budget for the year and election of church officers took place at the annual meeting held Sunday at First Presbyterian church.

The combining of two church boards resulted in a board of elders which now numbers seventeen. Newly elected for the coming year were Clark Boylan, James Gross, Kermit Hartwick, Norman Crawford, Mrs. Vera Hoadley, Arnold Fischer, Mrs. Jeanne Auten and Jack Perry. Re-elected members include Gaylord Lapeer, Alfred Goodall and Orion Cardew. Others whose terms have not yet expired and are serving on the board are Richard Wallace, James A. Milligan, Miss Agnes Milligan, Clarence Merchant, Mrs. Evelyn MacRae and George Cole.

Newly-elected to the board of deacons were Edward Golding Jr., Harold Perry and as a junior deacon, Lori Opanasenko.

The committee for the memorial fund are Mrs. C.M. Wallace, Mrs. Kenneth Maharg, Mrs. Grant Strickland and Mrs. Grant Brown.

Organist is Mrs. Verma MacRae and choir director is Mrs. Colleen Stafford.

Bruce Holcomb is the newly acquired custodian.

Named to the nominating committee for the coming year were Mrs. Tom Craig, Dave Milligan, Mrs. Jeanette LaPeer, Bob Fischer, Mrs. M.B. Auten, Mrs. Evelyn MacRae, George Cole and Mrs. Edward Golding Sr.

You can't go very far forward by leaning over backward.

Area man injured in police shooting

It was at this point that shots were allegedly fired. Beamish acknowledged that no shots came from the truck. Officers reportedly fired three times at the vehicle.

He said Batie sustained injuries to a finger, a wrist and a leg. Larry Adams was wounded in the back, Beamish said. Both were treated at Almont Community Hospital. Batie was later transferred to Huron Memorial Hospital in Bad Axe.

Beamish said warrants were being sought at press time, but refused to detail the charges.

Richard Erla, Cass City, an owner of the truck, said the incident had been turned over to company attorney Clinton House. Erla maintained Batie was an innocent bystander.

House said Monday police apologized for the alleged shooting but have taken no other action.

At press time, it was unclear whether or not Erla would seek legal action.

Slippery roads blamed in area traffic accidents

Icy, snow-covered roads contributed to a rash of traffic accidents this past week that saw drivers and passengers escape without serious injuries.

A nine-year-old snowmobile operator was unhurt when his machine collided with a car on Cemetery Road about two miles south of Cass City last Thursday afternoon.

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies reported the snowmobile, driven by Brent Allen Szarapski of 5485 Kelly Rd., was headed west across a yard when it struck a southbound car driven by Gene Kenneth Schrader, 29, of 6840 Severance Rd., Cass City.

Deputies said Schrader and his passenger, Nancy Schutz, 23, of 6846 Severance Rd., were not injured.

A passenger on the snowmobile, Tracey Joe Lapp, 9, of 3700 Cemetery Rd., was not injured. No ticket was issued. The accident took place at 2:20 p.m.

A Kingston man was shaken up last week when the car he was driving collided with a second vehicle at the intersection of Washington and Noble Streets in Kingston.

Caro State Police said a car driven by Cynthia Sue Langmaid, 18, of 4595 Oak St., Cass City, was eastbound on Noble Street when she attempted to turn left onto Washington Street and did not see the approaching southbound auto driven by Robert Lee Sapien, 21, of 6007 Buren St., Kingston.

Officers noted a large pile of snow blocked Ms. Langmaid's vision. Sapien suffered minor injuries.

Ms. Langmaid was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way and for having no operator's license in her possession. The accident took place at 6:45 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 20.

No one was injured when cars driven by Daniel Richard Sherman, 17, of 6991 Severance Rd., Cass City, and Mary Ellen Schaper, 19, of Kilmannagh Rd., Pigeon, collided on Cemetery Road, about a mile south of Cass City, Friday.

Sheriff's deputies said both vehicles were headed south when Ms. Schaper attempted a right turn and was struck from behind by the Sherman vehicle.

Officers blamed slippery pavement for the crash. Neither driver was ticketed. The accident took place at 1:57 p.m.

In another Friday accident, cars driven by Bonnie Jean Periso, 21, of Phillips Rd., Deford, and Daniel Lee Melendorf, 19, of Severance Rd., Cass City, collided on M-81, two miles northeast of Caro.

Sheriff's deputies said both vehicles were northbound on M-81 when the Periso vehicle attempted a right turn onto Romain Road and was struck from the rear by the Melendorf vehicle. Slippery pavement was blamed.

No ticket was issued. The accident took place at 7:40 p.m.

A County Road Commission snowplow driven by Albert Darwin Curtis, 62, of 1525 N. Kingston Rd., Deford, struck a parked vehicle owned by Gary Lindahl of 5876 Main St., Deford, Monday afternoon.

Sheriff's deputies said Curtis was clearing snow from Main Street in Deford and attempted to back his truck around the parked vehicle. As he did, he caught the V-blade on a portion of the car.

No ticket was issued. The accident took place at 4:15 p.m.

A parked pickup truck owned by Dennis Alan Luetke of 6204 N. Cemetery Rd., Cass City, was damaged Saturday night while it was parked in an alley just east of West Street.

Cass City Police said the vehicle was probably struck by another truck. The time of the accident is unknown.

Board goofs

Commissioners award car bids to Rabideau

Red-faced Tuscola County Commissioners discovered this week that they goofed when they awarded Burton-Moore Ford of Caro bids on three full-size police cars for the Sheriff's Department.

They learned the actual low bid had been submitted by Rabideau Motors of Cass City. The board awarded the purchase to Rabideau at its Tuesday meeting.

The mistake came when it was assumed the Rabideau bid was on two intermediate-size vehicles instead of the large cars. The intermediate bid went to Bell-Greig Motors of Caro.

Rabideau's price of $4,849 was well under the Burton-Moore bid of $5,072 per car. Rabideau stipulated that each car's price would rise by $50 when rustproofing was applied.

The re-awarding of the bid did not sit well with Commission Chairman Charles Woodcock of Vassar or Cmmr. Kenneth Kennedy of Millington, both of whom urged the board to resubmit the large car bids. A motion by Kennedy to that effect died for lack of support.

Cmmr. Maynard McConkey, Cass City, moved instead that the Rabideau bid be accepted and that a letter of explanation be sent to all the dealers who participated in the bidding.

Kennedy disagreed. "This whole thing makes us look like seven jackasses that don't know what they're doing," Kennedy told his fellow commissioners. "It's my belief that we should admit we're wrong and resubmit the bids."

Kennedy even favored throwing out the intermediate car bids and resubmitting the entire package. Cmmr. Paul Nagy disagreed, saying the intermediates are probably already on order and that it wouldn't be fair to Bell-Greig to rescind the award.

Kennedy then modified his stance to urge rebidding the large cars. Cmmr. J. Benson Collon wondered how resubmitting the bids would look.

"How many times are you going to resubmit these bids?" Collon asked. "You just can't keep resubmitting all the time."

It's expected the snafu will hold up the ordering of large cars by at least a week.

COOPERATIVE REIMBURSEMENT

The board heard details of a state-backed cooperative reimbursement program designed to recover delinquent child support payments from responsible parties.

The plan, strongly backed by Prosecutor Patrick Joslyn and Department of Social Service personnel, could recover as much as $200,000 in delinquent payments. Supporters of the plan said of that total, $36,000 could eventually find its way into Tuscola county coffers.

The plan would call for the county to contract with state officials who would supply an assistant full-time prosecutor, investigator and clerk-typist who would work solely on such child support cases.

Cmmr. McConkey said over 800 such delinquent child support cases exist in the county.

$100,000 suit

filed in

Circuit Court

An auto negligence suit has been filed in Tuscola County Circuit Court that seeks $100,000 in damages from a Millington man in connection with an accident that took place three years ago.

In the suit William Seddon, no address given, charges Gary Stochwitz with negligence in the accident that occurred nine miles southwest of Millington on Bray Road.

Seddon charges Stochwitz with driving under the influence of liquor, with impaired driving and with operating a motor vehicle unsafely.

Seddon claims personal injuries, scars and continuing pain as a result of the accident.

The suit was filed last week.

Murray estate executors tell gifts

Executors of the estate of the late Mrs. George Murray revealed last week that she left over $41,000 to three Cass City institutions.

The largest single bequest went to Rawson Memorial Library, $15,020.31.

Two other bequests included Hills and Dales General Hospital with $14,020.31 and St. Pancratius Catholic church with $12,020.32.

In addition, Mrs. Murray left $13,020.32 to the Jesuit Seminary and Mission Bureau and $11,520.32 to the Michigan Arthritis Foundation.

Mrs. Murray also left a number of personal bequests, the executors said.

The five largest bequests included 120 shares of AT&T stock and each gift was unrestricted. Mrs. Murray was a resident of Cass City over 10 years prior to her death Nov. 11, 1974. She was active in a number of local civic organizations.

Fire department chooses new officers

New Elkland Township Fire Department officers were chosen at an organizational meeting held Monday night at the fire hall.

Continuing as chief is Jim Jezewski. Other officers include Jack Hartwick, assistant chief; Jerome Root Jr., captain; Bill Bliss Jr., lieutenant; Dave McNaughton, secretary, and Dick Root, treasurer.

In other business, the board okayed an agreement for renovations in lieu of rent on a cottage at the Caro Regional Center to house parts of the Department of Social Services and the Mental Health department.

Cost was set at $10,033.30. Frank Lenard, Thumb Area Manpower Consortium director, appeared before the board to discuss the progress of the CETA program. He reported a surplus of $17,000 in the Title VI portion of the program. Much of this will probably be transferred to Title I to keep those employees through next June 30.

Traxler to appear at Sanilac dance

Hawks for real? Bad Axe test Friday will help tell tale

Cass City tuned up for Friday's game with the Bad Axe Hatchets at Cass City by rolling to its highest point total in recent years as the Hawks thumped the visiting Ubyly Bearcats Tuesday night, 108-53.

Although Cass City was favored to win, the score surprised the most ardent fan and most observers predicted a close game.

And it was a close game for one quarter. At the end of the first period the Hawks actually trailed, but after the first eight minutes Ubyly was never in the game.

The Hawks pressed and shot their way to a nine-point lead with a 31-point second quarter spurge. That was the ball game.

Midway through the second period Cass City's lead hit the 20-point mark and Coach Ron Nurnberger used all the troops in an attempt to hold the score down.

But it wasn't to be. Every man on the nine-player roster scored and four were in double figures. Leading the team for the Hawks was Ken Lowe who hit 30 points and led the team in rebounds with 16.

It was a foul marred game and the two teams spent much of the night marching to the foul stripe.

It was a particularly gratifying win for Cass City which had lost its three previous games after a 5-1 start. Although the game doesn't count in the Thumb B Conference record, the resounding win should help the team in the conference games ahead.

Ubyly lost by a point in one game to Bad Axe early in the season and by about 10 the next time around.

The Hatchets are the league's most improved team and if the Hawks could come up with a victory Friday they would be a team to be reckoned with the rest of the way.

The Hawks also won the battle of the boards. Ubyly gave away a height advantage to Cass City and Paul Battel and Rick Tuckey made the most of it with 13 boards each to go with Lowe's 16. The Hawks outrebounded the Bearcats, 53-40.

Players in double figures for the Hawks besides Lowe were Clarke Haire, 20; Dave Romig, 14, and Tuckey, 16.

Car insurance increases tied to drunk driving

Expensive business-drinking and driving.

There's the risk of car accidents, fatal and otherwise, and the prospect of loss of driving privileges. Most people are familiar with those potential results of maneuvering drink glass and vehicle.

But a less-frequently discussed problem-increased cost for car insurance-is brought to our attention by the Michigan Council on Alcohol Problems, the Michigan Office of Highway Safety Planning and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

status from "preferred" or "acceptable" risk to "questionable" or "unacceptable."

It also could result in loss of certain benefits or cancellation of an insurance policy altogether. If that happens, the driver might have a tough time finding, and pay much higher premiums for, another policy.

says the number of live births in Michigan has gone down almost steadily from 208,488 in the peak year of 1967, to 137,285 in 1974. And that '74 total is the lowest birth rate since 1945, the booklet says.

Exceptions to the lower enrollment predictions could be school districts right next to metropolitan areas, the board publication says.

They will continue to grow for a time because of the "urban exodus," a trend that began in the 1960s.

Top match! wrestlers whip unbeaten Cardinals

Tuesday, Jan. 20, the Cass City wrestling team defeated the previously undefeated Millington Cardinals, 36-28. After losing the first two matches, Cass City came back to win the next five weight classes.

Coach Biefer said he felt it was a well-wrestled match, probably the best he has seen in his three years coaching here.

Results were: 98 pounds - Rick Reinert, M, pinned Craig O'Harris, CC. 105 pounds - Dan Chapin, M, pinned Paul Windy, CC.

112 pounds - Rick Doerr, CC, decision 4-0 over Fred Clark, M.

119 pounds - Walt Laming, CC, pinned Dave Schwals, M. 126 pounds - Dave Langmaid, CC, injury forfeit Lane Schmitzer, M.

Arts Council announces events

In addition to co-sponsoring the program "Celebration USA", Cass City Arts Council has announced a series of events for the coming months.

The group plans to have Roz Berlin present a day-long weaving workshop at the Cultural Center. The tentative date is March 27.

The council also plans to send two representatives to a workshop on Volunteerism, scheduled April 26 and 27 at Kellogg Center. The workshop is designed to give ideas on how to get volunteers, how to motivate, organize and train them.

Council member Colleen Stafford is organizing a chorale of trained voices to present a bicentennial cantata this spring. Volunteers are still needed.

The council, with the support of the Michigan Council for the Arts, will present Craig Carver as its artist in residence Feb. 16-27. Carver will spend time both in the schools and with the general public. Samples of his work will be on display during his stay.

KNOW ABOUT SNOW

Want to know if there's snow at your favorite ski or snowmobile spot? Just dial the Michigan Department of Commerce Travel Bureau-free.

Toll free telephone "snow lines" will be in operation through March 27, from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays.

The service offers callers information about the latest ski and snowmobile conditions, recreational activities taking place around the state, general weather and winter fishing data.

Michigan residents outside the Lansing area can reach the snow info center by calling 800-292-2520.

A word for snowmobile fans: The Department of Natural Resources reports there are some 1,800 miles of backwoods snowmobile trails in Michigan's northern state forests.

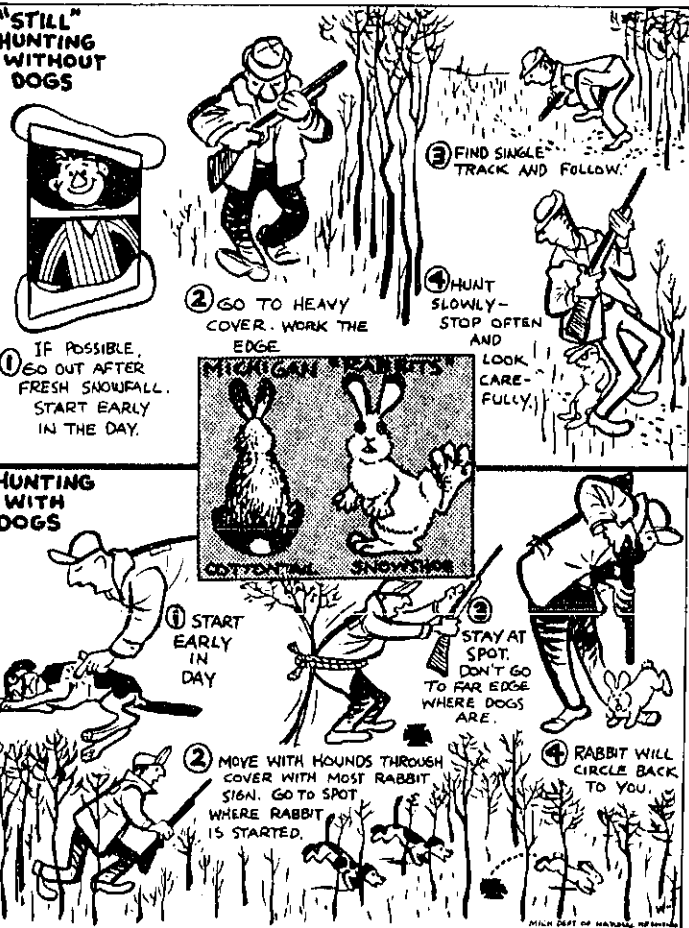

In addition, more than 100,000 acres as state parks and recreation areas are open to family-style snowmobiling.

PUPIL DECLINE SEEN

The baby boom has gone bust.

Michigan's education experts report that state schools face steadily declining enrollments for years to come because of a drop in the birth rate since the late 1950's.

A booklet published by the State Board of Education, "Population and You: A Primer for Superintendents,"

For rabbit hunters in Michigan, all roads lead to thickets, swales, cedar swamps, pine plantations, and other such likely spots at this time of the year. Here are a few basic pointers which should get them on the right track for action this winter, whether they'll be going after cottontails and snowshoes with or without dogs. In general, it's a good idea to start hunting early in the day when the tracks are fresh or right after a snowfall. Of course, whenever you get the chance, it's the right time for rabbit hunting, provided the weather isn't downright miserable. In 1976, the rabbit season ends on March 1 in the Lower Peninsula and on March 31 in the Upper Peninsula.
