

Council to go slow on 'go-go' ordinance request

Cass City Village Council took a "go slow" attitude toward the possibility of adopting a topless dancing ordinance during its regular meeting held Tuesday night at the Municipal Building.

Trustees agreed they needed time to study both the legality and effectiveness of such an ordinance before putting it on the books.

Council responded to a letter by Rev. James Van Dellen of Good Shepherd Lutheran church, written on behalf of the Cass City Ministerial Association which has come out in favor of such an ordinance.

Van Dellen's letter stated that the association is opposed to topless dancing in the village and thinks the best way to keep it out is to pass an ordinance banning it before it arrives on the scene.

The association took its position in response to topless dancing in Gagetown. The Gagetown council adopted an ordinance last week prohibiting all forms of topless dancing in restaurants, bars and establishments where food is served.

Trustee Nat Tuttle leaned toward adopting an ordinance, saying that it would provide some legal basis for the village to fight the introduction of topless dancing. He requested a legal opinion on a topless ordinance.

Trustee Dr. D.E. Rawson cautioned council not to act too quickly.

"Just because one group is pressing for an ordinance doesn't necessarily mean we should spend money on something that might not hold up," he said.

Rawson suggested council send a letter to the Ministerial Association saying that in the past, trustees have turned down "entertainment permits" for local businesses similar to the permit that paved the way for the dancing in Gagetown.

Under state law, a bar owner seeking an entertainment permit must receive permission from the local governing body before it can begin. A local turnaround can be overruled on appeal to the Michigan Liquor Control Commission.

Rawson said too many questions concerning the legality of the ordinance haven't been answered yet and that council should bide its time.

A Supreme Court ruling is expected soon on the legality of anti-topless ordinances. Village President Lambert Althaver said. He agreed that a letter to the Ministerial Association should be drafted explaining council's thinking.

PARK LEASE

Now that village voters have approved terms of a proposed lease with Cass City Public Schools covering the athletic field, the next step involves working out details, Althaver said.

He said council and the school board should work toward a "gentleman's agreement" on the lease so that the school district can order new field lights.

Pending the outcome of the school district vote on the question, the lights could be installed either at the park site or at a new site at the high school, Althaver said. Whatever happens, a lease won't be signed before June, he said.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, Althaver reported that since the Chapel addition controversy, the village will now require a seven-day waiting period between the time a building permit is filed and before construction can begin.

He said this would help alleviate some of the confusion surrounding approval of the controversial marquee which was reconstructed because it did not meet building code requirements.

Council voted to hold its millage at 13 mills for 1976. At that rate, revenues to the village will increase by $18,129.80, and total $133,450. Personal property tax revenues will total $20,862.40, while state shared revenues will total $24,000.

Village Supt. Lou LaPonsie reported that clean-up from ice storm damage in Cass City totaled $1,200 for labor and equipment. He also reported that the village has gone $200 over its snow removal budget on major streets and $650 over budget on local streets.

He estimated that the village will overspend its entire snow removal budget by about $2,600.

It was reported that the swimming pool building should be completed by June 1 and that work on the pool itself should be completed by early May.

Council also learned that the village has two snow-removal ordinances on the books which say property owners must clean the sidewalks with one day's notice and that owners must remove "snow, ice, filth and nuisances."

Request for an ordinance came from the Cass City Chamber of Commerce.

$32,000 not enough

Judge blasts county over salary supplements

Judge Norman Baguley lost the latest round in a continuing battle with the Tuscola County Board of Commissioners for a pay raise during a commission session Tuesday afternoon in Caro.

Baguley contended that his $32,000 annual salary makes him one of the lowest-paid circuit judges in the state. He chided the board for refusing to increase its $2,000 annual supplement for each circuit judge and called the board's attitude "a very cheap approach toward circuit judges."

Presently, Baguley and Judge Martin Clements earn a base salary of $26,500 from the state, plus a $3,500 supplement from Lapeer county and $2,000 from Tuscola county.

Lapeer county recently raised its supplement by $1,500.

Baguley said only two other circuits in the state pay their judges less.

"Why does this board continue to push us down?" Baguley asked. "We are among the lowest paid judges in the state of Michigan yet our work load is the same as any other judge."

"What makes it almost ridiculous is that almost everything (in fringe benefits) has come from Lapeer county. They've agreed to pay our Blue Cross and they've approved sending our judges to colleges three times. The last time this board did anything for us was in 1962."

Baguley said Tuscola-Lapeer circuit judges must do most of their own paperwork and do not have the benefit of such assistance as assignment clerks.

"I don't think we've been very demanding," he said.

Baguley said he resented statements by some commissioners blaming judges for the skyrocketing costs of court-appointed attorneys in the county and said it was an unfair charge.

"We don't have any choice in the matter," he said. "The constitution mandates that everyone shall be represented by counsel. I resent the fact that we're being blamed for it."

The judge criticized a lack of communication between the board and circuit court and said he hoped both sides could stay in closer contact in the future.

Response from the board was cool. Cmmr. Kenneth Kennedy, Millington, asked whether or not Baguley considered wholesale renovation of the circuit courtroom and judges chambers as compensation.

Baguley said no. "It makes our working conditions a lot easier and we're appreciative," the judge said. "But you're not doing it for us. You're doing it for the people of the county. When you improved this (commissioners) room, you didn't consider it an increase in your compensation. It was done for the people of the county."

Kennedy said an increase in compensation for the judges was considered during last fall's budget hearings but ruled out. The commissioner said county income wouldn't allow it.

"We had an agreement that we regard you as a department head," Kennedy explained. "At the time, the union did not believe us when we said we wouldn't raise salaries of department heads. Since that time, we've turned down increases for the undersheriff and for several department heads."

Kennedy said the request could not be considered until the 1977 budget hearings in October.

"Tell me about 1975, 1974, 1973," Baguley replied.

"When we're at a point when we're considering closing our medical care facility on the one hand and then give judges a pay increase on the other, we have a constituency to answer to," Kennedy shot back.

Cmmr. Margaret Wenta questioned where most of the work load existed. She said she assumed the largest share (60 per cent) came from Lapeer county.

Baguley said there are more cases filed in Lapeer county but that the actual workload is about even in both counties.

Chairman Charles Woodcock told Baguley union negotiations have begun and that nothing could be done about increasing the county's share for circuit judge salaries until next fall.

Monday fire destroys home

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the Gary Somerville home on Lamton Road, 11 miles southeast of Cass City, late Monday night.

The fire was reportedly the fourth blaze to strike the residence in the past three years. According to Elkland Township Fire Chief Jim Jezewski, it was by far the worst.

Jezewski said the house was engulfed in heavy smoke and flame when the department arrived. Firemen needed the assistance of water tankers from Lamotte township, Kingston and Caro to contain the blaze.

Somerville and his three children, who were asleep when the fire broke out, escaped without injury. Somerville told firemen he was awakened by the smell of smoke and managed to rouse his children in time.

Loss was set at $22,000 on the house and $7,000 on its contents. Jezewski said Somerville's fire insurance had been cancelled last year after a fire did an estimated $10,000 damage.

This time, the fire started near the floor and went up the south wall of the structure, Jezewski said.

Firemen remained at the scene until 2:00 a.m. The fire was reported at 10:40 p.m.

Bicentennial set July 23-25

Cass City's bicentennial celebration has been scheduled tentatively for July 23-25, following festival sub-committee action Monday night at Cass City High School.

The group also considered a number of activities for the week-end celebration. While no final decisions were made, chances are good that a number of events will take place.

Likely activities include a community church service in the village park, an arts and crafts display, an ox roast, ice cream social, a parade, various games, an old-time fashion show and decorative store windows.

A special Sunday program was discussed, tying in activities of the three days. A fireworks display will also be included.

Vice-chairman Rev. Harry Capps said three things are needed—organization, a feasibility study and money.

He said service organizations in Cass City will be contacted for seed money. He added that clubs will also be asked to participate with specific parts of the celebration.

In addition, dedication of Cass City's new municipal swimming pool and the Lewis Cass plaque are also on the docket for the gala week end.

The bicentennial restoration committee was scheduled to visit the Dillman school, the railroad depot, the Cultural Center and the old opera house in the Kritzman building Wednesday.

A decision on which project to take is expected to be made soon.

High winds rip roof, mobile home

A suspected tornado did an estimated $30,000 damage to Sherwood Forest Country Club in Gagetown around 6:00 p.m. Saturday. A roof at the south end of the building was torn off by the high winds. Portions of the structure were flung 120 feet.

Other structural damage was reported to the locker room area.

Owner James Molnar said the twister struck during a heavy thunderstorm. His wife said it sounded "like a million nails being dragged across the roof."

No one was injured. Part of the roof was thrown against

"If It Fitz . . ."

Grandpa snaps his fingers

BY JIM FITZGERALD

It was a time, again, to be reminded of how sweet it was before the balloons began to burst.

They don't make balloons the way they used to. But little girls haven't changed, thank you, God.

3-year-old Melissa came visiting for a week. She calls me Papa, a dreadful name for a cool swinger who still snaps his fingers in Frank Sinatra style, come fly with me. But I tingle when she says it in a restaurant and I'm sure the people at the next table are whispering to each other, "That beautiful child looks like her father, doesn't she?"

But Melissa is my grandchild, and not the only one I have, either. There is also 6-year-old Michelle who couldn't come visiting because she's so big she has to go to school. And there's tiny John. I'm a grandfather 3 lousy times, for Lord's sake.

But come fly with me anyway. The kids' mother was outrageously young when she got married. I must have worn argyle socks and a beanie to the wedding.

Anyway, it had been an exhausting day at the office. The editing chores had been as usual but there were also 3 nose-to-nose visits from readers who objected obscenely to some participles I had dangled in their soup. So I was looking forward to home and a tinkly glass and Mike Douglas on TV, hopefully with a gorgeous guest, female, not Gabor.

But Melissa met me at the door with a deflated balloon, a long skinny one. She said Grandma didn't have enough wind, a deficiency I'd never noticed. So I had to blow it up, right now.

Sure thing. I used to be an expert at blowing up balloons. My Aunt Madeline sold insurance and she was always giving my kids balloons for me to blow up. Each one had a friendly message printed on it: "Your Premium is Due."

So I sucked in deeply, put rubber to mouth, and blewwww. My eyes fell on the floor and my cheeks got their first look inside my ears. But the balloon remained long and skinny.

Papa had failed. He was of no more use than Grandma. Melissa began to miss her father, a disgustingly muscular young man who lettered in 22 sports just the other day. He could probably blow up that balloon with his nose.

No way was I going to back up from the challenge. I took off my coat and took a running start at the lousy balloon. The wind came up wearing toenails. The balloon was half-inflated when I paused to check my vital signs. That was a mistake. The air rushed out of the balloon and back into me, whooooooh!

I got up off the floor and tried again. Gunga Din. This time I kept blowing until Grandma could read the balloon's message. "Give yourself a break today," she read.

And the balloon burst. Bits of rubber flew everywhere. What's that Kotter kid say on TV? Up your nose with a dirty hose? That's how I felt. But there was no time to parade my wounds.

Melissa's lower lip was beginning to quiver. Her wide eyes were getting wet. I had broken the balloon that clown at McDonald's gave her. I was on the verge of villainy. But I remembered my child psychology . . .

I laughed. I rolled on the floor, yucking all the time. I urged Grandma to laugh too. ("We've gotta convince the kid this is funny.") And it worked. Melissa laughed too. Dr. Spock couldn't have done it better, especially with a nose full of rubber.

Melissa even climbed into my lap and let me nuzzle her neck while she giggled. Grandma said something and that's when I concluded it would be a marvelous world if half the people in it were 3-year-old girls, chubby, and the other half were boyish grandfathers, finger-snapping. No Grandmas necessary.

What Grandma said was: "This is so much fun. I have another balloon, so let's do it again."

Congratulating Palmateer is Bob Hutchinson (right) Gavel Club President. The 39th annual event, sponsored by the American Legion, will be held June 16-23 at Michigan State University. The program is designed to give youth a first-hand look at how government operates.

Lions Club wants your (aluminum) can Get off your can and give it to the Lions.

Cass City Lions Club members will begin collecting aluminum beverage cans and any other form of clean aluminum Saturday. The drive is part of the Lions' bicentennial project for the village which they hope will not only ease the solid waste problem but also raise funds for club-sponsored village projects.

According to Al Witherspoon, project chairman, the club got the idea from a Chesaning group. Backed by Reynolds Aluminum, Lions teams will hold collections the last Saturday of each month.

Witherspoon said besides beverage containers, the club will accept clean frozen TV dinner trays, snack dip containers, aluminum foil and anything else containing aluminum.

Lions members will be on hand to test cans turned in with a magnet to make sure each is pure aluminum. He said the club should receive 15 cents a pound for the collected aluminum.

Funds raised will be returned to the community in the form of park improvements, Witherspoon said.

Ideally, each Lion will take a turn at manning the collection center during the year. He said Dave Dunn and Wayne Bauer will co-chair the project.

The collection point will be located behind Gambles in the municipal parking lot. Hours will be 8:00 a.m. to noon.

Aluminum cans differ from other types in that they have no side seam, have a rounded bottom and an indented end. They are lightweight and smooth and a magnet will not stick to them.

FROM THE

Editor's Corner

When you sell advertising space like national television does at a fortune a second, you can afford to diddle away a million bucks or so.

You must be able to. Otherwise why would NBC pay three-quarters of a million dollars to design and switch to its new logo "N" that boob tubers see at every station break?

That's the same logo that Nebraska Educational Television (NETV) designed for about $100. Well not the same . . . but enough like it so that NBC coughed up $55,000 for the logo rights plus $500,000 in new and used television equipment from NBC when the Nebraskans sued because they had it first.

You can see that at least one educational television network was living up to its name. NBC got an education.

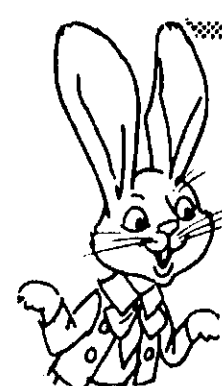

A little snafu like this doesn't phase the big boys any more than a couple of billion bucks down the drain has any impression on the nation's defense department.

After paying up for its infringement on the rights of NETV, the network came back big as brass and offered to give their poor cousins free advice in developing a new symbol. . . presumably using the same staff that pulled the boob tube that cost all those bucks to begin with.

That's like trying to put out a brush fire with a can of gas. The bigger and the wealthier they become the more time, effort and money is spent on brainstorms like the change in symbols. . . probably because a big honcho suddenly decided that the old NBC peacock had wilted feathers.

If you've peeked into big business or talked to persons who have had a glimpse at the inside of big corporate structures you can just imagine the countless hours spent at the conference table before this momentous decision was reached and it was decided that the peacock had to go.

Not once, I'll bet, did the vice-presidents in charge ask themselves, or each other, what the viewing public might think about the switch. What does it know anyway? And there was always the chance that they would have learned that nobody really Highlight of the golfing for eight Cass Cityans at Myrtle Beach, South Carolina, last week was a hole in one by Ken Eisinger.

It came on a 164-yard par three. For his shot, Eisinger received a free bottle of champagne, will get a trophy and other recognition.

True gentleman of the south, the course manager didn't even take it all back after he discovered that Ken shot a 55 for the nine.

March 31 it will no longer be necessary to sit idly by when there's not a car in sight as you drive down Seeger and wait for the light to change before turning right on Main.

That's the day that it's legal in Michigan to turn right on red after a stop when there are no pedestrians or traffic in the way.

The law makes sense if it doesn't result in more accidents at the corners.

Now that the snow is off the ground I can hardly wait until the official town-wide clean-up days arrive.

No, I haven't flipped my rocker. It's just that the ice storm placed a whole forest of dead limbs on my yard and I have no way of easy removal.

But the village does. I'm anticipating that the free pick-up feature of the official clean-up days will continue.

I have a truck load ready and waiting.

We don't know whether or not "If It Fitz" by Jim Fitzgerald will be in the Chronicle next week.

Fitzgerald will start writing for the Detroit Free Press in April and his first column for the metro daily will appear April 6 on the back page.

He will also be syndicated nationally (outside of Michigan) so it's likely that we'll be cut off with the rest of the State's daily papers.

Topless vote questioned

Gagetown Village Attorney Forrest Walpole refused comment this week on the legality of the council's vote last week approving an ordinance banning topless dancing in the village.

In voting on the ordinance, two councilmen of the four present abstained from voting while two voted for the ban. Village President Lawrence Cummings voted "yes", breaking a tie, implying that the abstentions were "no" votes.

Yet, if abstentions are considered no votes, the necessity of Cummings' vote comes into question.

Walpole said Tuesday the question had been researched but declined to discuss it. He said such a public discussion could provide opponents of the ordinance with possible ammunition to use against it if it were challenged in court. Abstentions are generally counted as no vote. If this is true, the vote would have been 2-0, lacking a majority of councilmen present. As such, the ordinance would not have been approved.

Correction

Rev. Gary Bugaski of Gagetown Nazarene church has not attended any of the topless dancing shows at Bennett's Bar in Gagetown. Last week's Gagetown Council meeting implied that he had Bugaski is one of several village residents who led a fight to put an anti-topless dancing ordinance on the books following its introduction last winter.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACKA new job for Nixon

By Jim Ketchum

If Richard Nixon really wants to get back into the swing of things, and wants a job where English and not Chinese is the official language, I'd suggest he try major league baseball.

After all, during his White House days, everything from the Russian Hot Line to the tape recorders stopped when a sporting event came on TV. Remember how he telephoned George Allen with a secret play sure to catapult the aging Washington Redskins into the Super Bowl?

Remember how he used to cheer for the hapless Senators when they were still in town? Well, why not take advantage of this expertise—put it to work and get some mileage out of it.

The present commissioner, Bowie Kuhn, tackles his job the same way those great presidents, Millard Filmore, Chester A. Arthur and Calvin Coolidge did—ignore it with hopes it will go away.

The commissioner, sensing the hour of opportunity had struck, acted for the first time since he took Denny McLain's pistol away from him six years ago and ordered the spring training camps opened.

It only took him three weeks to make up his mind.

Kuhn must have known that America, especially in its bicentennial year, wasn't going to sit still for a strike that could stop the national pastime. That would be as bad as declaring apple pie a communist conspiracy because the sugar could give all of us diabetes.

Grass would grow on pitchers' mounds, in the basepaths and the box offices if he didn't do something. Someone must have clued Kuhn in on the fact that it's the fan who pays his salary—the same fan who pays sky-high admission fees and who buys those $12 hot dogs at Tiger stadium.

Kuhn is following in the footsteps of his predecessor, the late William Ekert, whose motto was "think twice before saying and doing nothing."

That's why I'm for Richard Nixon being named the next baseball commissioner. You may not like his politics, but at least you'll get some first-rate strategy from the top.

Just think. If the Tigers put on another one of their drives for the American League East cellar, Nixon could recall Manager Ralph Houk, don a uniform and take over.

He'd probably hire John Erlichman and H.R. Halderman as coaches, with John Mitchell as bullpen coach and Maurice Stans handling the gate receipts.

As commissioner, Nixon could establish not only inter-league play but international contests. Russian and Chinese baseball teams could take on the Cincinnati Reds. With Reds against Reds, you'd really need a scorecard to tell the players apart.

As a sideline, Manager Nixon could test out new, even more sophisticated listening devices planted in the opposition's dugout, inside their bats and buried under the pitcher's mound. I always wondered what those guys talked about out there.

Manager Nixon could also see to it that David and Julie had jobs as sportswriters. He would reserve the right to censor anything they wrote.

A job at Detroit would be just right for Nixon. He could exercise his ailing leg by making all those walks to the mound to replace pitchers. Watch out, Bowie.

America 'generous'Move to U.S. meant chance at a career for Babiszewski

By Jim Ketchum

If Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Babiszewski of Uby hadn't immigrated to the United States from West Germany in 1959, chances are good their son, Jan, might never have become a doctor.

And a lifelong dream would have died.

Last week, Jan Babiszewski, M.D., succeeded. He received his doctorate in human medicine from Michigan State University. It's a dream he had since before he came to the U.S. as a 13-year-old youth.

And he's grateful. More grateful than he can say.

"This country has been generous to me—more generous than I could ever dream of," Babiszewski said as he packed his remaining belongings and prepared for his next step. He left Friday to begin a five-year medical residency in Cleveland, Ohio.

Life wasn't always as good as it is now for the family. His parents, natives of Poland, were forced from their land in 1944 by their Nazi conquerors and shipped to a labor camp in Germany.

They remained in West Germany as displaced persons, finally settling near Munich. In 1951, Jan's oldest brother, Michael, came to the United States and eventually settled in Uby.

Eight years later, the rest of the family joined him.

"When we arrived, I couldn't speak a word of English," Babiszewski recalled. "I could speak German and Polish, but no English."

Determined not to let the language barrier get in his way, he enrolled for the second semester in the eighth grade at Uby Community Schools. Thanks to patience on the part of his instructors and the special help of Mrs. Isabel Martin who tutored him, within six months, he was speaking English well enough to converse.

DREAM

Still, the dream of becoming a doctor remained. It began long before he and his family left Munich.

"My father was a cabinet maker," he said. "We didn't have any professional people in our immediate family. But I always had the dream that I wanted to become a doctor. I wanted to be able to help people."

He remembered those first days in the United States were a time of apprehension and being scared because he couldn't express himself to others.

Those fears were allayed by the reception he and his family received in Uby.

"We were greeted with openness and friendship," he said. "The people were most warm and receptive to us. We've always felt at home here and I consider the U.S. as my home even though I spent the first 13 years of my life in another country."

Following graduation from Uby High School in 1964, he entered Michigan State University where he graduated four years later with a bachelor of science degree in zoology and a minor in microbiology.

Then came two years of Army duty where he served in medical labs in the United States. His last nine months of active duty were spent at a Veterinary Corps lab in Da-Nang, South Vietnam, where he specialized in rabies diagnosis.

When his hitch was up, he returned to college, where he continued to work his way through medical school.

"I was fortunate enough to have a scholarship, but I still felt I had to work," he said. "You find you appreciate something more if you have to work for it instead of having it given to you."

With his medical degree in his hands, Babiszewski now begins five years' residency, two in general surgery and three more in his specialty—urology.

Ultimately, he said, he wants to work in the field of kidney disease which he described as the fourth major disease affecting mankind. Eventually, he would like to work in the area of kidney transplants.

It's a challenge, he says, because so little is really known about it. We know the techniques of transplantation, but we don't understand rejection completely. We still need to know how and why it takes place.

Once his residency is finished, he said, he'd like to locate in a hospital that could service persons in the Uby area.

OPPORTUNITIES ARE HERE

Looking back over his life, the tall, 29-year-old physician says it all happened because the opportunities were here waiting for him.

"The opportunities exist if you have the desire and want to pursue them," he said. "It makes me sad that more young people from small communities don't pursue careers in medicine. I'm sure they could find a place for themselves if they worked for it."

Babiszewski says unbridled criticism of the United States bothers him.

"We have so much to be thankful for in this country," he said. "I can't say enough about it that is good. There's no comparison."

Having lived in another country, he says his perspective is a little different than that of native Americans.

"A lot of people haven't lived in other countries and haven't seen oppression and the lack of freedoms that we take for granted here," he said. "We have it so good that sometimes we forget what it would be like not to have our freedoms."

Chances are good Jan Babiszewski won't forget about his freedoms or what life in the United States has meant for him.

DR. JAN BABISZEWSKI of Uby packs his briefcase before leaving to begin a five-year residency at a Cleveland clinic. Babiszewski came to the United States from Germany when he was 13, unable to speak a word of English. Today, the 29-year-old Babiszewski is a medical doctor.

Board hears bad newsCutback hits medical facility

The Tuscola County Medical Care Facility will be facing a cut in Medicaid revenues of nearly $100,000 in 1976, according to figures presented at Tuesday's meeting of the County Board of Commissioners in Caro.

Administrator Don Peterhans told the board that reimbursement for Medicaid patients has been returned to 1974 levels. He said basic care will be reimbursed at $24.10 per day, while skilled care will be reimbursed at $24.15 per day per patient.

He told the board present cost reimbursements run about $27.00 per day.

This will mean a loss of over $11,000 per month for operating the 123-bed, county-operated facility, Peterhans said.

According to Commissioner Maynard McConkey, Peterhans had no ideas on how the shortfall could be made up, but suggested one course might be to sue the state for depreciation on the facility.

He estimated this might amount to as much as $138,000. McConkey added, however, that legal fees incurred in such an action could make it unfeasible.

Presently, the facility operates on approximately a $1 million annual budget.

No solutions were offered at Tuesday's meeting.

Beside this latest cash crunch report, commissioners returned to another old, unsolved problem—solid waste. The board viewed a presentation by Purvis Brothers of Traverse City showing compactors in action.

The firm estimated cost of a similar unit in Tuscola county could run between $25,000 and $35,000.

The problem of where to put it still remains. And until a site is selected, it's unlikely the board will make any commitments on a compaction unit.

COOPERATIVE REIMBURSEMENT

Geraldine Wilson, Friend of the Court, submitted the final contract on a cooperative reimbursement program in which the state aids the county in tracking down delinquent child support payments.

No action to replace Smith is expected until after the fired officer's case is settled.

$17,443, with state authorities picking up $13,430 of the tab. The county would pick up the remainder of the bill as well as provide office and desk space.

A starting date for the program has not been decided.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, the board awarded gasoline bids to the Cargo Oil Company of Caro. The company will furnish unleaded gasoline to county vehicles at a cost of 36.45 cents per gallon.

It was noted that the next commission meeting will be the annual equalization meeting, slated for April 13 at 9:00 a.m. at the courthouse annex. Township supervisors are expected to attend.

Unionparley*cancelled

A scheduled hearing into whether or not to hold a union election for Cass City Police officers was cancelled Monday by Teamsters Union Local 214 of Detroit.

According to Village Supt. Lou LaPonsie, a representative from the state, the police department and the village were present, but that union Business Agent Paul Gully failed to show up.

LaPonsie said Gully later told him by phone that the union wants to wait until after a hearing before the Michigan Employment Relations Commission regarding the suspension of Officer Robert Smith. That hearing is scheduled May 12 in Caro.

The union is seeking designation as sole bargaining unit for the force.

Normally four men make up the force. Since Smith's firing, Police Chief Gene Wilson has been using Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies to fill in when necessary.

No action to replace Smith is expected until after the fired officer's case is settled.

600receive*"Upswing"

About 600 families in Tuscola county receive the monthly Family Living Education newsletter "Upswing". The purpose for this newsletter is to provide useable information and new research information in the area of foods and nutrition, clothing and interior design, decision making, consumer solution, family resource management and family life.

A sampling of information that appeared in the March, 1976 issue of "Upswing" was:

Would you like to have your name and complete address placed on the mailing list so you can receive the monthly "Upswing" newsletter? If so, telephone 517-673-3161 or write the Cooperative Extension Service, Family Living Education, Civil Defense Center, Caro.

BETTER HEALTHStress and heart attacks

BY DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

Family doctors and anesthesiologists suffer the highest rate of heart attacks of all doctors. Skin doctors (dermatologists), whose patients are practically never in emergency situations and "never die" of a skin disease, have the fewest heart attacks.

When other professions and occupational categories are studied for the occurrence of heart attacks, according to Dr. Henry I. Russek of New York Medical College, occupational stress is apparent as a major factor in association with coronary heart disease.

The general dentist and the attorney in general practice have the highest degree of stress associated with their work, and the highest incidence of heart attacks. Among dentists, the lowest incidence was found in periodontal specialists; whereas among lawyers, the least affected were patent attorneys.

The same correlation between stress and heart attacks showed up in young coronary patients, 91 per cent of whom worked at two or more jobs for at least 60 hours a week and reported frustration on the job. Control observations among comparable young people who did not have premature coronary heart trouble revealed that only 20 per cent of them were overdoing in stressful occupations.

Similar surveys reveal that people from other countries who become indoctrinated with American-style stress have a higher incidence of heart attacks than their peers who stayed at home. Westernized, young Japanese-Americans are two and a half times more likely to have a heart attack than their neighbors who maintain their ancestral cultural view.

Smoking cigarettes, over-eating and sedentary lives did not seem to distinguish young heart patients from those free from heart attacks as clearly as did the type of job and the amount of stress suffered.

A good way to have a premature heart attack, according to Dr. Russek, is to be born poor and step up to a higher socio-economic class as an adult. Similarly, the farmer who becomes a white-collar worker in the city increases risk of coronary disease threefold. And blue-collar workers suffer fewer heart attacks than white-collar managers.

These facts seem to add up to a recommendation against ambition and hard work. Either that or a warning that we Americans need a method of relaxation and the deliberate cultivation of inner attitudes to modify and reverse the effects of stress.

Scrapbookcontest*announced

Michigan Soil Conservation Districts Inc. and the Michigan State Grange are sponsoring a youth soil and water contest again this year.

John Findlay, Youth Chairman of the Tuscola Soil Conservation District, is urging all students in grades three through eight to enter the contest.

Students will be eligible as follows: Class I, third and fourth graders; Class II, fifth and sixth graders and Class III, seventh and eighth graders. Scrapbooks will be judged at the district level and two scrapbooks in each class will be submitted by each district for state-wide judging.

The scrapbooks must be turned in to the Tuscola Soil Conservation District Office, 852 S. Hooper Street in Caro by June 1. The scrapbook theme for 1976 will be "Wise Land Use". All pictures, drawings, charts and graphs must have appropriate explanation and/or captions.

Photos taken by participants will be encouraged. Participants' name, age, full mailing address and contest class either Class I, II, or Class III must appear plainly on the cover or cover page of the scrapbook.

The Tuscola Soil Conservation District is sponsoring the contest at the local level and will present awards to local winners, according to Findlay. A plaque will be awarded to the three best scrapbooks in each class at the state level.

For further information contact the TSCD office at 852 S. Hooper in Caro or call 673-3839.

AROUND THE FARMUse herbicides*wisely

By William Bortel

Planning your weed control program for next year will involve making several decisions which may make the difference between success and failure. There are a number of factors to keep in mind when making these decisions.

First of all, keep in mind that you are looking for the most economical method that will do an effective job. Don't forget to include fuel and labor costs when deciding on the control method. Cultivation may seem cheap until you consider the fuel and labor involved. If you decide to use herbicides, evaluate carefully your options and use the one which will do the job at the lowest cost.

Be sure to consider your weed problem. Are perennial weeds a serious problem in some fields? How about annuals? Which species of grasses and broadleaved weeds do you expect to be a problem? Can One herbicide adequately control all species?

If a particular weed is a severe problem in that field, you should keep this in mind when deciding what crop to plant in that field. It would be foolish to plant the field to a crop where there are no herbicides registered to control the weed.

For example, if nutsedge is a serious weed in a field, consider planting a crop such as soybeans where vernolate (VERNAM), alachlor (LASSO), and bentazon (BASAGRAN) which are all active on yellow nutsedge are labeled rather than a crop like sugar beets where adequate controls are not available.

Keep your soil type in mind also when deciding on an herbicide. If your soil is high in organic matter, use herbicides which are not tightly bound to the soil particles.

On sandy soils, herbicides with a low solubility in water may be advantageous to decrease leaching. Be aware also of soil differences from one field to another; you may want to change herbicides or rates on the same crop because of soil differences.

Keeping these factors in mind when deciding on your weed control program will increase the probability of a successful crop next year. Specific information on weeds controlled, effectiveness on various soil types, and other information can be obtained from the herbicide labels and Extension bulletins 433, 434, 791s, and your county extension agents.

An active mind in an active body is a great aid to longevity -- particularly for pedestrians.

Provincial House reports loss

Provincial House, Inc., has reported a loss of $22,298 or three cents a share, in its second quarter ended Jan. 31, 1976, compared with net earnings of $112,300 or 12 cents a share a year ago. The prior year's period included an investment tax credit of four cents per share.

The company blamed the downturn on the rapid increase in the cost of providing health care without a corresponding increase in reimbursement. The announcement said that while general costs of providing health care have risen, the situation has been further aggravated by a mandated increase in minimum wage to $2.20 an hour, putting additional upward pressure on costs. The State of Michigan meanwhile has been in a fiscal crisis which has resulted in decreased payments for Medicaid and auxiliary patient care services.

The second quarter setback reduced Provincial House's earnings to $116,335 or 12 cents per share for the first six months, compared with $188,713 or 20 cents per share in the first half a year ago. The latter included an investment tax credit of seven cents per share.

The company reported second quarter revenues of $4,760,789 down from $5,435,761. Six months revenues were $9,845,672, off from $11,229,097 a year ago.

Two major factors account for the reduction in growth revenues. The company has cut back its subsidiary construction activity on a planned basis, and its day care centers are now operated through a management contract.

Wealth is within the reach of all— but all do not reach it.

Deliberation is a good policy, but has broken few records.

J.C. WALKER USED CARS

J. C. Walker - Owner

For many years, automobile dealers considered the "used car" business a sideline to selling new models. The friendly guys down at Walkers Used Cars at 361 Green in Caro, phone 673-4186, totally reject this theory. They specialize in used cars exclusively, and, right now, they're dealing with a lower profit margin than anyone in an all-out effort to help their customers beat the current gas shortage by offering great deals on good, used cars. They feature older rust free cars.

The kind of business that this respected firm does is the main reason for their large "family" of repeat customers. People return again and again when they need an automobile because they know that integrity, quality and value are passwords at this fine used car dealer.

Buy the safe way! Stop in at Walkers Used Cars and look over the tremendous values in quality used automobiles. The authors of this 1976 Review recommend this fine firm for better cars AND better values!

degrees cooler, but will make the exterior more beautiful.

FIVE YEARS AGO

The Elkland Township Board wrestled with ways to finance the proposed new town hall-fire hall Tuesday night in a session held at the Cultural Center without coming up with any definite answers. Rent-a-plot popular

The "pick your own" passion moves one step further. Now it's "grow your own." Scores of Michigan farmers have discovered they can turn a profit and at the same time provide fun and fresh fruit and vegetables for folks who have no land of their own. What they're doing is renting garden plots.

Some offer only the space and soil, and amateur farmers take it from there. Others may rent pre-planted plots that give nonfarmers a chance to dig into the soil themselves.

Michigan's Department of Agriculture offers further information on the rent-a-plot idea. Just send a stamped, self-addressed business-sized envelope to "Garden Plots", Michigan Department of Agriculture, Lewis Cass Building, Lansing, MI 48913.

Major expenses included salaries which stood at $9,168.56, books at $4,634.05, shelving at $2,218.25 and utilities at $2,116.52.

It was reported that the library's building fund currently stands at $27,639.98. The largest contribution in the past year was a $15,020.31 donation from the estate of the late Julia Murray.

It was reported that $209.68 was received for the memorial book fund in the last fiscal year.

Cass City Police probe break-in at auto parts store

Cass City Police investigated the theft of an eight-track stereo tape player and an unknown amount of cash from Thumb Parts and Machine Co. of 6647 Main St., Saturday.

The theft was discovered by manager Richard Britt Saturday morning around 8:30. Police said the culprits entered by removing a pane of glass from a rear window.

Police believe the theft took place sometime late Friday night.

No suspects have been arrested.

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies arrested two area men early Sunday morning south of Deford, charging them with counts involving marijuana use and open alcoholic beverage container violations.

Officers arrested James Lee Doerr, 22, of Cass City on charges of using marijuana.

Kurt Edward Zemke, 17, of Deford, was charged with an open container violation.

Officers reportedly stopped their vehicle at the intersection of Mushroom and Kingston Roads, two miles south of Deford, around 1:00 a.m., for a loud exhaust system.

Further investigation allegedly produced a quantity of marijuana, a glass pipe and papers used in making cigarettes, along with open beer containers.

Both face appearances in District Court April 5.

THEFTS

Caro State Police investigated the theft of cash and clothing valued at about $600 from the Wayne Hose residence near Kingston this week.

Hose told police the theft took place sometime between March 6 and 8 but had not gotten around to reporting it until this week.

He reported $150 in small bills was taken, along with a pair of binoculars, and three men's suits.

Police said the culprits forced a door.

No suspects have been apprehended.

Daniel Winchester of 5917 Hurds Corner Rd., Gagetown, reported the theft of a citizen's band antenna from his car Wednesday, March 17, while it was parked in Gagetown.

Winchester told Caro State Police the three-foot steel antenna was taken from the roof of his car while it was parked on a Gagetown street. Value was set at $37.

Police have no suspects.

Youth dies in traffic accident

Tuscola county recorded its third traffic fatality of 1976 Wednesday, March 17, when a six-year-old Millington boy was killed as he ran in front of a car on Millington Road, 2 1/2 miles west of Millington.

Tuscola County Sheriff's deputies identified the victim as Lannie Lee Brown.

Officers said the boy was playing with two other children when he was struck by a car driven by Diana Lynn Montruel, 27, of Vassar.

Ms. Montruel said she was headed west at 5:10 p.m. when she saw three children playing along the north side of the road. She said the victim started to run across the road and that she swerved to the other lane, applied the brakes and blew the horn in an attempt to miss the youth.

She said she was traveling about 45 miles an hour when she first saw the boy.

Area police reported at least three other property damage accidents in the past week, none serious.

Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson was uninjured Friday afternoon in a two-car collision at the intersection of Church and Ale Streets.

According to the police report, Wilson was northbound on Ale, stopped for the intersection and began to move when he pulled in front of a westbound car driven by David Allen Langmaid, 18, of 4391 S. Seeger St.

Neither driver was injured and no ticket was issued. The accident took place at 4:55 p.m.

Two car-deer accidents were reported.

A car driven by Haily Gail Freeman, 16, of 1417 N. Kingston Rd., Deford, struck a deer on Stevens Road, five miles northwest of Kingston, Saturday.

The driver was uninjured in the accident that took place at 12:50 a.m.

Expect 20,000 at MSU Farmers Week

Well over 100 years ago this July, Manley Miles introduced the first haymower and students at Michigan Agricultural College cut 40 acres.

Five years later, A.J. Cook discovered that London purple was successful against the codling moth.

And in 1941—still at the East Lansing college—scientists patented the continuous injection of measured amounts of fruit and nuts into a stream of frozen ice cream.

Such are the accomplishments of "Spartan Science," as documented in a special Agricultural Experiment Station calendar for 1976—a fitting topic as the University prepared for its 52nd annual Farmers Week.

More than 20,000 visitors are expected on the MSU campus the week of March 22-26 for Farmers Week sessions that deal with such diverse subjects as dairy nutrition and recreational skiing.

"Spirit with a Purpose" is the theme, emphasizing the Cooperative Extension Service help to Michigan farmers over the past 61 years. The service now has 80 county offices serving residents of all 83 Michigan counties, especially through educational programs.

The aim: translate the fruits of agricultural research into terms the average person can understand and put to use.

Touted as the second largest source of income in Michigan, agriculture brought sales of $1.7 billion in 1974.

That year, the Agriculture Department reports, Michigan ranked first in the nation in production of six different crops: red tart cherries, dry edible beans, pickling cucumbers, fine Eastern soft white winter wheat, rhubarb and blueberries.

PREDICTING POWER NEEDS

Flicking on the lights today is a taken-for-granted action.

To keep it that way 10 years from now, experts need to know how much electric power they should plan to provide.

That, in a nutshell, outlines one task of the Governor's Advisory Commission on Electric Power Alternatives, chaired by former Lt. Gov. James H. Brickley, now president of Eastern Michigan University.

While projections of power needs have proved deficient in some ways in the past, the commission is convinced that it may have the answer in a new forecasting system that uses complicated computer calculations.

The new system projects that if Michigan's economy runs at average speed over the next 10 years, Detroit Edison's electric load would grow at 4.17 per cent a year, and Consumers Power's load would grow at 5.26 per cent a year.

Detroit Edison and Consumers Power together supply about 90 per cent of Michigan's electricity, and their sales grew consistently at over 7 per cent a year until 1974.

RACE WARMING UP

Help me—or one of my competitors for that matter. Just get involved and help.

That's the plea from Republican Congressman Marvin Esch of Ann Arbor, who's a candidate for the GOP nomination for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by Phil Hart.

Ford okays disaster plea

Governor William G. Milliken announced Friday that President Ford has signed a major disaster declaration for Michigan as a result of the severe ice storm that struck between March 2 and March 7. Tuscola county is one of 29 counties designated by Ford.

Estimated damages in the 29-county area computed by federal and state disaster emergency officers was reported to be $13.3 million in public damages, $20.9 million in private property damages and $18.6 million in agricultural damages.

In addition to reimbursement for local units of government for damage suffered and costs incurred, a Presidential disaster declaration triggers federal programs that provide several kinds of assistance.

These include temporary housing, disaster unemployment assistance, individual and family grants, food stamps, Small Business Administration loans and agriculture loans.

Assistance is also available for school districts.

Public officials from Tuscola, Sanilac, Bay and Saginaw counties will meet Thursday at the Vassar Public School library for a briefing on disaster relief programs.

In addition, a series of informational meetings and individual disaster assistance programs will be held.

In Tuscola county, an assistance center for persons living in Tuscola, Lapeer and Bay counties is scheduled March 24-27 from 9 a.m.-8 p.m. at the Millington township hall.

In Sanilac county, a center will be established at the Sandusky Civic Cent. for persons living in Sanilac and St. Clair counties. Hours are 9 a.m.-8 p.m., March 24-27.

'Total womanhood'—more than just a pretty face

Being a "Total Woman" means more than greeting your husband at the front door wearing nothing but a hat, apron, boots and a great big smile. Contrary to popular belief, it means being free to make your marriage work.

That's the opinion of four Cass City women who read the hot-selling work by Marabel Morgan that zoomed to national prominence following a segment of CBS's "60 Minutes" highlighting the book and its author.

The book isn't designed to turn women into sex goddesses or slaves, according to the group. It's designed as a tool to make a better life for each partner in a marriage.

"My strongest objection is the fact that everybody's picked up on the sex chapter and not discussed the rest of it," Mrs. Lawrence Sefton said. "That chapter may be important, but the rest of the book is equally important, if not more so."

Mrs. James Van Dellen agrees. She says the book actually stresses that the best marriages work because they are Christ-centered.

"The average woman probably wouldn't pick up the book if it weren't for the chapter on sex," she said. "She uses Christian witness, but she doesn't preach it at you. I could see where a non-Christian person would be turned off if they read the whole book because they couldn't understand it."

Mrs. Jean Bills says parts of "The Total Woman" are "kind of silly," but agrees that it points up many faults that most women choose to ignore.

"It's a book you have to keep re-reading," she said. "I think it should be read at least once a year just to remind you of what can happen."

The book stresses the importance of women being submissive to their husbands. The women in the group don't think being submissive means becoming a slave.

"Being submissive doesn't mean being dominated completely," Mrs. James Belk said. "Leadership in the family is with the husband as it states in the Bible it should be. But that doesn't mean that a husband shouldn't listen and consider different points of view before he makes a decision."

She compared the roles of husband and wife to the president and executive vice-president of a company. "The president is surely going to listen to the vice-president before he makes any decisions that affect the future of that company," she said. "It's the same way in marriage."

What if the final decision he makes is the wrong one? You still let him make it and then pray it works out, the group agreed.

ORGANIZATION

Mrs. Van Dellen said one of the important concepts she gleaned from the book was getting organized.

"The author says women should become better organized," she said. "Discipline is important. I find now that I can make lists and get a tremendous amount of work done where before I wouldn't know where to begin."

"Part of the discipline process includes accepting your husband as he is," she added.

"You find when you stop nagging him, things begin changing," she said. "You find you both develop a closer relationship."

Often, group members agreed, a wife can find much of the fault is with herself.

"You have to shed the flannel nightgown, hair roller image," Mrs. Van Dellen said. "The book suggests the 4:30 bath. You can't always do that, especially when you have five kids in the house. But I always try to have my hair combed and fresh make-up on when my husband gets home."

She said such small considerations can help make a husband a little happier, especially after a hard day.

SHORTCOMINGS

The group did find some shortcomings in "The Total Woman." They agreed it is impractical to greet your husband at the door in a "costume" each night, especially with children in the house.

"They also suggest such things as candlelight and wine and a fancy meal at night," Mrs. Sefton said. "Some income brackets just won't allow that. You have to improvise."

They said much of the book was written from the viewpoint of a professional person and that you have to adapt suggestions to individual cases.

Mrs. Van Dellen, who attended a Total Woman seminar in Saginaw recently, said getting together with other women and talking about the book helps bring out some of its points better than simply reading the book at home.

The seminars cost $15. They agreed it might be a good idea for a wife to read the book without her husband knowing it.

"Then as you implement changes, he won't think it's just a way to wrap him around your finger," Mrs. Sefton said.

They said that the whole message boils down to loving and admiring your husband for what he is.

"We aren't ever 'total' because we're always growing," Mrs. Belk said.

They recommended a follow-up book, "The Fulfilled Woman" by Lou Beardsley and Toni Spry, which puts more emphasis on Christianity in a marriage.

They also recommended husbands read the book "Do Yourself a Favor. Love Your Wife."

"If you're a total woman, he'll be a total man," Mrs. Van Dellen said.

A program entitled "This Land is Mine", a bicentennial production, was presented by Carolyn Benscoter, chairman of the program committee.

Plans for a bingo party to raise funds for the swimming pool were discussed. The party was set for April 6. A coffee hour is being planned for representatives from each club to help participate in the pool fund drive which Zonta is sponsoring.

Lorene Rienstra was nominated as a new board member for the coming year. Other nominations included Dorothy Ballard as president, Carolyn Benscoter as secretary, Shirley Buschen as vice-president and Marie Roch as treasurer. The nominating committee included Marie Roch, Agnes Milligan and Florence Karr.

The next dinner meeting will be held at the home of Dorothy Ballard with Donna Wernette as co-hostess.

Set DSS meeting at Cass City

The Tuscola County Department of Social Services will sponsor an open meeting on priorities for DSS programs Tuesday, March 30, at Wildwood Farms, Cass City, from 2:00-4:00 p.m.

The meeting is the first of several statewide briefings to be held in April in which interested citizens will participate in planning programs which will begin in October.

Mrs. Onalee A. Detwiler, Tuscola County DSS Director, said planners hope to hear from five key groups—current services recipients, service organizations, local government officials, public and private human service agencies and other interested persons.

Following the meetings, a proposed plan for social services in Michigan will be published July 1 and the final plan will be implemented Oct. 1.

FOOTSTEPS

Dad was a railroader, a dedicated one. The rails were his love as well as his life. To him the "Twentieth Century" wasn't a span of history — it was "his train" roaring through the night.

Dad often took me to the train yards. He taught me that a railroader never steps on the rails. A "trackwalker" always walks the ties! This was no superstition — just respect for the "road."

There are other lessons to be learned... that involve reverence, respect and the footsteps of life... lessons that help us express in our simplest actions the things we believe in.

Learning those vital lessons every Sunday at church is even more fruitful than a trip to the train yards with Dad.

Your neighbor says

No pardon
for deserters

The future of Vietnam draft resisters came into the news last week when Democratic Presidential Candidate Jimmy Carter said as president he would issue a blanket pardon to all deserters, with no alternate service involved.

Mrs. Judy Schlosberg, of 6820 Herron Dr., says she opposes any form of amnesty that doesn't include alternate service.

"I'm very much against a pardon," Mrs. Schlosberg says. "Too many people died in the Vietnam war to simply forget it."

She says she would favor reopening President Ford's amnesty plan for another 30 days. Under the plan, alternate service is included.

"I hate to see anyone spend time in prison, especially for something like that," she says. "I think they should do their alternate service and then have it forgotten. But they shouldn't be let off scot-free."

Mrs. Schlosberg is a native of Ft. Wayne, Ind. Her husband is Industrial Relations Manager at General Cable Corp. The couple have one child, Justin, age 2.

They have lived in Cass City since December.

Owen-Gage files complaint over USA bus run policy

The Owen-Gage School district has filed a complaint against the Unionville-Sebewaing district after it was learned that a USA school bus was transporting two students living in Owen-Gage to St. Paul's Lutheran School in Unionville.

The students, children of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Bietz of Bay City-Forestville Rd., Gagetown, were reportedly being transported by a USA bus for the past several years.

Owen-Gage Supt. Ronald Erickson said he filed his action with the State Department of Education after receiving complaints from area residents that a USA bus was picking up children in the district.

USA Supt. William Dodge said his district has stopped the practice, but defended it by saying it had earlier been agreed to by both districts.

"It started several years ago and at the time it was mutually accepted by both districts," Dodge said. "Our assumption was that it was still acceptable since the family owns 80 acres in our district and the taxes they pay more than offset the transportation costs involved."

Erickson said he has no record of the Owen-Gage board ever agreeing to the arrangement.

Dodge said since the complaint was filed, the USA bus has not crossed into the Owen-Gage district. He said the students must be taken by car about 1½ miles to the nearest USA bus pick-up point.

The controversy reportedly developed after the USA board passed a resolution stating it would accept any property which moved to transfer from Owen-Gage.

A recent request by property owners in a large portion of Brookfield township to transfer from Owen-Gage to USA was turned down by a combined Huron-Tuscola Intermediate board. That transfer is expected to be appealed to the State Board of Education.

According to Lloyd Van Raalte, Transportation Safety Specialist with the Department of Education, USA could transport the Bietz children to the parochial school as long as the costs were billed directly to the family.

Van Raalte said according to state law, the board of any school district may enter into a contract with another school district or private individuals to furnish transportation for non-resident students to attend either public or state-approved non-public schools.

He said the transportation charges may not be less than the actual cost.

"USA hasn't broken any law," Van Raalte said. "Technically, either Owen-Gage must pay or the parents must pay for the cost as long as USA is willing to do it."

Van Raalte said there is no conflict with the separation of church and state, since all children are required by law to be treated equally when it comes to transportation.

He cited a 1964 law stating that parochial children are entitled to receive transportation to the nearest non-public school as long as the transporting district has entered into a contract and is reimbursed for it.

He said the law has been tested and upheld as constitutional.

"It makes common sense that if USA is willing to do it, that a contract should be entered into for the service," Van Raalte said.

He said similar contracts in other districts have been either oral or written, but he recommended that the terms be put in writing.

"Ultimately, the solution lies with these two boards of education," he said. "I'm hopeful that whatever resolution comes of this, that it is in the best interest of the children."

He said USA stopped entering the Owen-Gage district to pick up the Bietz children last week.

A television antenna was also ripped from the building.

No other damage was reported in Gagetown from the storm which struck following two days of unseasonably warm temperatures that sent the mercury climbing into the low 70's Saturday.

Officially .31 inches of rain fell in Cass City Saturday, according to Wastewater Treatment Plant Supt. Nelson Willy.

High winds also destroyed the mobile home of Pearl Koehler of East Cass City Road around 6:00 p.m. Saturday. The winds also damaged a chimney on the nearby Wallace Kappen home.

According to Mrs. Kappen, who is Mrs. Koehler's daughter, the wind came up suddenly and did about $1,800 damage.

She said Mrs. Koehler was not in the trailer when the storm struck. No one was injured.

ID cards for aged available

Thumb residents 60 years of age or older are now being issued identification discount service cards by the Thumb Area Commission on Aging. The cards provide general identification and verify to merchants that the holder is qualified for senior citizens' discounts.

The Commission on Aging has been contacting merchants and businesses within Huron, Sanilac and Tuscola counties, seeking those who would be willing to participate in providing discounts to seniors. Senior citizens who hold identification discount cards can present their cards to participating merchants, who will be identified by signs in their windows stating "Senior-Citizen Participating Store."

For identification, the card will show not only the holder's age and address, but also the holder's doctor and phone number; person to notify in case of accident; blood type, and allergies to medications.

Because of the cost of printing cards and signs and of distribution, a card will cost 50 cents. Cards can be obtained at the office of the Thumb Area Commission on Aging, 102 Joy Street in Caro. The phone number is 673-7175. Also, Commission staff members will have identification-discount cards available when they visit senior citizens' club meetings. To obtain a card, a senior citizen must present proof of age and present address.

WARMER WEATHER made the spiral slide even more fun for John Bush, 9, (left) and brother Rusty, 4, both of Cass City.

Volleyballers bow out in semi-finals

The dream of a state volleyball championship for Cass City was shattered Saturday at Delta College as the squad lost in semi-final competition to Flint Holy Rosary.

The girls, who had fought back so many times before, did it again in quarterfinal play Saturday, downing Grand Rapids Forest Hills in three games.

Cass City scored an opening 16-14 win, but sagged in the second game, dropping a 15-6 decision. The Hawks revived for the final game, downing Forest Hills 15-7.

Beth Eria led the way both in serving and spiking, with Diana Smith and Mel Kelley shining on defense.

That set the stage for tough Flint Holy Rosary. The Hawks were never really in the contest, losing the first game 15-7 and suffering a humiliating 15-1 trouncing in the second game.

Holy Rosary went on to defeat Kalamazoo Christian to take the State Class C-D title.

"They were simply an excellent team," Hawk Coach Brenda Breidinger said of Holy Rosary after the game. "They played power volleyball and outclassed us."

Ms. Breidinger said she expected a tough match. After all, Holy Rosary has taken the state girls' basketball championship the last three years. She said she and her squad weren't aware of the type of volleyball the Flint squad played.

In spite of finishing third in the state, Ms. Breidinger said she was satisfied with the showing her squad made in its first year of tournament competition.

She said her squad will lose only four seniors through graduation this spring and expects another strong showing next year.

Burning permits required

Burning permits will be needed for any brush or grass burning, Elkland Township Fire Chief Jim Jezewski announced this week.

Permits may be obtained from Jezewski, Ken Copeland, Elwyn Helwig, Ed Bergman or Jerome Root Jr. There is no charge for the permit.

Jezewski said the permit holder is still responsible for the blaze if it gets out of control. He urged anyone doing any open burning to exercise extreme caution.

Grass fire reported Friday

Children playing with matches were blamed for a small grass fire Friday afternoon at the Dick deBeaubien residence on Koepfen Road, two miles southwest of Cass City.

Chief Jim Jezewski said an area about 50 feet square was burned over. The fire was out by the time the department arrived on the scene, he said.

Firemen responded to the alarm at 4:10 p.m.

Lowe repeat selection on all-conference team

Coaches in the Thumb B Conference this week announced the all conference basketball squad for 1975-76.

Ken Lowe of Cass City was one of two holdovers from last year's dream squad. The other was Greg Franko.

Although these veteran stars had banner seasons for their respective teams, Mike Weaver, a junior from Bad Axe, was the leading vote getter. He garnered 67 votes out of a possible 70. Rounding out the team were two other juniors, Mark Green of Caro and Kurt Belew of Bad Axe. Oddly enough the three were the only underclassmen on the first two squads.

In a slight change in the voting this season, the honorable mention list included any player receiving one vote. Last year the honorable mention list included players receiving three votes or more with the remaining players receiving votes listed in an "other" category.

Lowe earned his ranking with impressive statistics. He led Cass City in rebounding, steals and scoring and was second in assists.

Cass City failed to place a man on the second team but was honored with two honorable mention selections. They were Sophomore Clarke Haire and Senior Rick Tuckey.

Voting is by the league coaches who each pick 10 players ranking them from 10 (the best) to one. The players with the most votes are first team and the next five, second team selections.

Dissatisfied with MESC

Consortium to operate counseling programs

The Thumb Area Manpower Consortium burned some of its bridges with the Michigan Employment Security Commission last week when it voted to handle its own on-the-job training and classroom training counseling programs.

The decision came after months of reported friction between the Cass City-based Consortium and MESC.

Consortium executive director Frank Lenard called the MESC approach "non-professional" and urged the administrative board to hire its own counselors.

Presently, the Consortium uses two CETA counselors paid through MESC at a cost of $28,000 a year. Lenard said since they are paid through MESC, they aren't answerable to the Consortium.

Lenard said MESC has provided inaccurate records regarding placing unemployed persons in jobs, that errors were not corrected quickly in financial statements and that the counselors were doing work not related to CETA, even though they were being paid with CETA funds.

He said cooperation with MESC regarding the counselors based in Caro and Bad Axe was poor "because they (MESC) feel the consortium is political."

"We're paying $28,000 for two MESC counselors and I don't know what they're doing," Lenard told the board. "MESC has driven me up the wall."

He lauded Human Development Commission handling of the CETA-funded work experience program.

The board decided to take on counseling responsibilities when current program contracts expire June 30. Two replacement counselors will be hired and quartered at Consortium offices in Cass City.

Current Consortium contracts with MESC amount to about $320,000 in on-the-job and classroom training projects.

Lenard also criticized the state employment service for a lack of flexibility in not transferring persons to other programs when the need arises.

He was equally critical of MESC's bureaucracy. He said it was difficult to contact the same person twice when problems arose.

The Consortium will still use MESC's pay process that reimburses participating employers and will take MESC clients looking for jobs.

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION

The Consortium learned that by the end of the year, it will be responsible for unemployment compensation payments for workers terminated from CETA-backed jobs.

Lenard said the cost of unemployment compensation could add as much as one-third to the cost of Title I programs alone.

Under the system, employers hiring CETA workers will have to pay the compensation or the Consortium will have to absorb the cost. The board agreed CETA funds should be used to find jobs for people and not for paying unemployment costs.

"It's the story of he who provides the dollars calls the shots," Chairman Maynard McConkey said.

Lenard said he wants a meeting with state labor officials to see if a solution can be worked out.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

It was reported that through Feb. 29, a total of 522 persons were employed in various CETA-financed programs.

In Title I, the consortium has spent $594,342.25 through February, with $738,734.23 remaining. A total of 208 persons are employed under Title 1.

In Title II public service employment, $434,066.18 has been spent since July 1, with $255,208.30 left to spend / total of 75 persons were employed under Title II in the three-county area at the end of February.

In Title VI public service employment, $1,439,436.15 has been spent through Feb. 23 with $936,616.47 left to spend. A total of 289 persons have Title VI jobs at the end of February.

METRIC MEASUREMENT IN MICHIGAN is evident in this new sign being erected along eastbound I-94 Freeway near Albion. Its location 100 miles from Detroit makes it easy to calculate that one mile equals 1.61 kilometers. The Department of State Highways and Transportation is placing signs showing distances in miles and kilometers along several freeways to aid motorists in the nation's expected gradual transition to the metric system of measurement.
