

Finance commission stalls Owen-Gage building

The state Municipal Finance Commission voted to withhold formal approval for sale of Owen-Gage School District bonds to construct a new high school building in Owendale.

The 3-0 vote "returned" the bond issue to the district "pending litigation and pending property transfers", according to Anton Presacin, MFC consultant.

Presacin said the commission took its action "due to the uncertainty presently in the district" regarding property transfers. He said commission members preferred to take no further action on the issue until the transfers are decided.

The action was not a formal rejection of the bond issue, Presacin explained. By returning the issue to the district, Owen-Gage has a chance to resubmit it at a future date.

He said it is not known exactly how long the Dec. 20, 1975, vote will be recognized.

"Possibly after litigation is completed, the bond issue could be resubmitted," Presacin said. "But until that time, the commission chose to return the issue."

The action has the effect of virtually stalling all hope of starting construction on the $1.675 million building in the near future. Without commission approval, no work can begin on the new facility.

The commission vote comes less than two weeks after the State Board of Education okayed over $1.4 million in property transfers to the Cass City School District.

At that time, the state board upheld an earlier action it took urging State Supt. of Public Instruction Dr. John Porter to vote against the bond sale.

Tuesday's vote, in which Attorney General Frank Kelly and State Treasurer Allison Green also cast no votes, came as somewhat of a surprise to observers.

It takes a unanimous vote of commission members to approve any municipal bond issue.

Owen-Gage Supt. Ronald Erickson appeared before the commission to once again plead the district's case for a new building.

Lack of a new high school building was listed as one reason the district failed to receive accreditation from the University of Michigan earlier this year.

It is unknown when a new attempt to seek bond issue approval may be made.

A total of eight transfers from Owen-Gage to Cass City, Lakers and Unionville-Sebe-waing are currently pending at some point. One large transfer filed under the auspices of Del Miller involving land near Gagetown, was scheduled to be heard before a combined Tuscola-Huron Intermediate Board of Education meeting in Bad Axe Wednesday night.

Presacin said the action has been taken by the MFC before, but that it does not occur frequently.

7 in sheriff's race

County, township races start taking shape

Crowded races for sheriff, treasurer and District One Commissioner took shape Tuesday following the 4:00 p.m. deadline for filing petitions for a spot on the Aug. 3 primary ballot.

Seven candidates will vie for Sheriff Hugh Marr's job. Along with the incumbent, Republicans in the race are Deputy Paul Berry, former deputy Carl Raymond, Reese Police Chief William Thompson and Cass City Police Chief Gene Wilson.

Two Democrats, Millington Police Chief Herbert Clancy and Cecil Pelton of Akron, will square off for their party's nomination.

Drawing slightly less interest is this year's race for the county treasurer's job being vacated by Arthur Willits, who will retire after 38 years.

Republicans seeking the nomination are former county commissioner Donald Graf of Unionville and Deputy Treasurer Eugene Keller of Caro.

Joann Scriber of Fairgrove is unopposed in seeking the Democratic nomination for treasurer.

Another new face will appear on the county scene with the retirement of Drain Commissioner Leslie Lounsbury of Cass City. Seeking his job are Republicans J. Edward Goodchild and Robert W. McKay.

No Democrats had filed for the job by Tuesday's 4:00 p.m. filing deadline.

In the Prosecuting Attorney's race, incumbent Patrick Joslyn will face fellow-Republican Leo Maki. Maki is a former prosecutor. Joslyn was appointed to the post last December following the resignation of former prosecutor George Holmes.

In the non-partisan race for Probate Judge, attorneys W. Wallace Kent Jr. and Frank J. Pernicano have both filed nominating petitions. Incumbent C. Bates Wills will retire at the end of this year.

No opposition materialized in races for three other county posts.

Clerk Elsie Hicks of Deford, and Register of Deeds John W. Marshall of Cass City, Republicans, face no challenges from within their own party nor from any announced Democrats.

COMMISSION RACE

A mad scramble has developed for the District One

County Commission seat being vacated by retiring Cmmr. Richard Dehmel, with four Republicans and one Democrat in the race.

Republicans include Louis A. King Jr., Wilbur W. Partlo, Donna Rayl and Edward Spangnel. Ralph E. Rasch is the lone Democrat in the contest.

The only incumbent facing any kind of challenge is in District Five, where Mrs. Margaret Wenta, Democrat, will go against Republican John B. Huhn. Neither faces opposition from within their own party.

In District Six, where Commission Chairman Charles Woodcock is retiring, Republican George W. Clark Jr. and former Vassar Mayor Jacob Gleeson will square off in November.

Commissioners running unopposed are Maynard McConkey, Cass City; J. Benson Collon, Caro, and Kenneth L. Kennedy, Millington. Kennedy is the lone Democrat.

TOWNSHIP RACES

In Elkland township, Supervisor Edwin Karr, Treasurer Art Randall, and trustee Allen Merchant are all seeking re-election. They are Republicans and are unopposed.

Clerk Ferris Ware will not seek another term. His wife, Carol, who has served as deputy clerk, is seeking the job in her own right.

Three candidates are seeking two constable posts. They are incumbent Fred Martin, Cass City Police officer Donald J. Miller and Jack McDaniel.

In Novesta township, three candidates are seeking the treasurer's post, following announcement that incumbent Ruth Spencer will not seek re-election.

Candidates in the race are Mary Doyen, Clara Jean Clarke and Arlene Paladi. All are Republicans.

Incumbent trustee Fred Kriebel will face a challenge from fellow-Republican Donald Englehart.

Facing no opposition are Supervisor Gail Parrott and Clerk Henry Rock. Both are Republicans.

In Elmwood township, all incumbent officeholders face no opposition. They include Supervisor Roy Messer, Treasurer Royce Russell, Clerk Mrs. Vincent Sattelberg and trustee Jim Turner.

Jury finds Snyder guilty

Frank Jefferson Snyder, 25, of rural Caro, will be sentenced June 28, following his conviction on a second-degree murder charge Thursday, May 27, in Tuscola County Circuit Court.

The jury's deliberations began Thursday, May 20, and were interrupted until the following Tuesday, due to the absence of presiding Judge Norman Baguley and a Circuit Court motion day Monday, May 24.

Jurors spent all day Wednesday, May 26, closeted with the case and asked for sizeable portions of the testi-

TUSCOLA COUNTY'S Sheriff's Department marching unit highlighted this year's Cass City Memorial Day parade Monday. The unit also marched in parades at Kingston and Caro.

JENNIFER McNAUGHTON, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave McNaughton of Cass City, wants to get a good view of this year's Memorial Day Parade as she rides in a township fire truck. That's her dad at the wheel. The parade was judged one of the best in recent memory by many who attended.

Warm, dry weather gives farmers boost

Thanks to moderating temperatures and a letup in rainfall, Cass City area crop planting swung into high gear last week as farmers strived to make up for lost time caused by a cold, wet May.

County Extension Director William Bortel said Tuesday nearly all the corn crop has been planted in the northern reaches of the county, with about 40 per cent left to be planted in southern Tuscola county.

Most farmers in the Cass City area should finish corn planting by the end of the week, he said.

Probably the most pressing need right now is harvesting alfalfa, he said. "This is something that has to be done immediately," he said. "If we wait too long, the quality drops drastically. And this year, we've also got the alfalfa weevil to contend with."

Bortel said the weevil chews the highly nutritious leaves, robbing the plant of its food value. While sprays are available, they are costly.

And with crop planting, alfalfa harvesting and in many cases, dairy operations all going on simultaneously, there just isn't time to worry about spraying, Bortel said.

"Many of our farmers are putting in 16-hour days right now," he said. "There's just too much to do and not enough time to get it done."

He said county farmers took advantage of last week's dry weather and that planting "progressed exceptionally well."

Bean planting got underway this week with ground conditions nearly perfect, Bortel said.

"On the west side of the county, we received about a half-inch of water which they needed, while the land in the Cass City area really didn't need it," he said. "Everything balanced out real well. By the end of this week, we should have a good start on bean planting."

While May brought cold, wet weather with a succession of evening frosts, surprisingly less than five per cent of the corn and sugar beet crops had to be replanted countywide.

"Replanting is something we really hate to see," Bortel said. "In fact, some folks who replanted now wish they hadn't. Maybe the crop might not look as good as it should, but at least you know what you have. When you replant, you don't. It makes the gamble bigger."

He said replanting costs include the price of the seed, working the field, machinery depreciation and about half the initial fertilizer cost.

The biggest unknown is market price for the crop. A replanted field reduces profit margins sharply, he said.

Besides, time generally won't allow for much replanting, especially among farmers with dairy cattle.

"There's enough to keep most of these folks going 24 hours a day if they could," he said.

Bortel said while the number of dairy cattle in the county continues to hold at around 10,000 head, the trend continues to show smaller herds dropping by the wayside.

"The big herds are getting bigger and the small herds are phasing out," he said.

300 area CETA layoffs seen without Title VI renewal

Unless Title VI of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act is renewed by Congress, upwards of 300 Thumb area workers could face layoffs from their public service jobs by the start of 1977.

According to Frank Lenard, Thumb Area Consortium Director, that's the area outlook unless the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate come up with a new CETA Title VI fund package.

Current Title VI funds will run out June 30, Lenard explained. At that time, if the act has not been renewed, workers will be transferred to Title II positions which would keep them on the job until next January.

At that time, if Congress has still failed to act, about 300 workers could face layoffs, with only about 78 Title VI positions still able to be funded with Title II dollars.

Lenard said the 300 jobs in question include policemen, teachers, road commission employees, secretaries—virtually every kind of public service employment there is.

He said they would be eligible to draw unemployment compensation.

The Thumb's Title II public service, employment allocation is currently $1,558,000.

Lenard said differences in a House and Senate version of the Title VI measure will necessitate a conference and a compromise version before it can go to President Ford's desk for signature.

He said it will probably be late June before any final word on the bill is forthcoming.

Title VI was originally designed to put people to work in needed public service jobs, Lenard said. So far, it's lived up to its goals.

"These three counties (Tuscola, Huron and Sanilac) don't have a strong industrial or retail base," he said. "Title VI has taken people and put them in important jobs that provide them with a livelihood."

He said so far it's too early to judge how well the training portion of CETA, Title I, has worked. Its goal is to provide a skill and prepare a person to enter the job market.

He admitted it takes large amounts of money to make CETA work.

"But at least you're getting some work done," he said. "Wouldn't you sooner have them working or would you rather have them drawing unemployment?"

A LARGE crowd was on hand Thursday night as 155 Cass City High School seniors participated in graduation exercises held in the high school gym. The Class of 1976 was the 90th to graduate from the school.

(And anyone else he can get to help)

What's all this nonsense about withering away after you retire?

One of the younger looking senior citizens I know is Warren Wood. Time slips by so fast that it's hard to be certain but it must be a decade or so ago that he sold his drug store to Tom Proctor.

I thought about this after bumping into Warren filling his car with gas prior to a trip to Grant, Mi.

The occasion: The graduation of his grandson from high school. To coin a cliché, it doesn't seem possible.

Installation of a phone at the new bowling alley, east of Cass City, was delayed because the street leading to the building had no name.

No name, no phone, co-owner Clare Comment was told. My suggestion to call it "Agony Alley" fell on deaf ears.

If you get the chance check NBC's Saturday sports show. You just might get to see a local boy make it on national TV.

He's Kelly W. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Smith of Cass City, serving with the Navy. On leave, he hitchhiked to Germany, met Muhammad Ali in a hotel and received a free ticket to his fight.

He was interviewed by an NBC reporter.

But it's a case of many are called (on tape) but few are chosen (for air time) and if Kelly doesn't make it, blame it on the nature of the boob tube programming, not on the information you read here.

Yes, Bill, there will be a story, but not this week. William Ruhl called to ask if a story explaining in full the question of the athletic field millage proposal June 14 was to be printed.

Ruhl, a former school board member, has always had a deep interest in the school and school sports. His son is a coach at Frankenmuth.

Almost overlooked in the interest concerning the athletic field is the race for two seats on the school board.

Editor Jim Ketchum will have a complete rundown about it next week, too, including whatever answers are forthcoming about some tough questions we asked the candidates. If some questions are left unanswered, we'll tell you about that, too.

Ah, progress! It used to be that a Monday holiday meant that at most one guy would take off. This week the news staff worked about three hours, Mary Damm put in a couple of hours setting type and that was all.

Incidentally, the requirements of the job mean that we're always on hand for the annual parade rather than doing whatever it is that most of you do on that holiday.

As a 25-year observer of the event, it's nice to be able to report that this year's parade was longer (and in one man's opinion, better) than in any of the previous observances in the last two and a half decades.

Job's Daughters set service

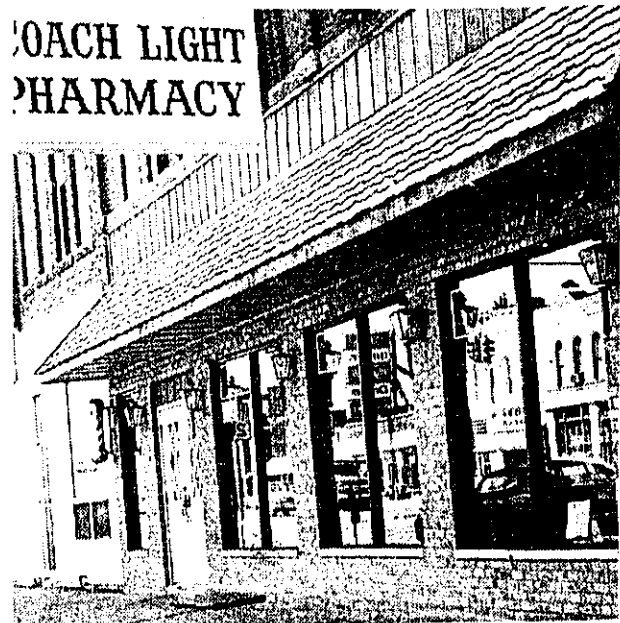

Installation of officers of Cass City Bethel No. 77, International Order of Job's Daughters will be held at the Caro Masonic Temple June 11, at 8 p.m. when Miss Shay Hessler of Caro will be installed as Honored Queen.

The Installing Officer will be Miss Wendy Brown of Caro, the retiring Honored Queen. The meeting will be open and the public is invited.

There will be a reception and dance for members at the home of the Honored Queen. Grand Bethel will be held in Grand Rapids June 15-20 with Mrs. Elaine Fuester, Guardian, being installed as Grand 2nd Messenger, Miss Wendy Brown, Jr. Past Honored Queen as Grand Chair and Miss June Warren, Jr. Princess as Grand Representative to Ontario, all members of Cass City Bethel 77.

Plans are also being formulated for the Masonic bicentennial at the Masonic Home in Alma where Cass City Bethel 77 has been invited to take part by the bicentennial committee for two performances.

Injury plays vital role in Mrs. Wallace's art career

A former Cass City resident with a lot of time on her hands has been working on a master's degree and adding to the beauty of Midland Hospital at the same time.

Mrs. James (Leontine) Wallace of Midland presented her private exhibition in the hospital lobby recently as part of her requirements for a master's degree from Central Michigan University.

Mrs. Wallace was injured in a car-train accident two months ago after her car slid back down a hill and into the path of a train near her home.

Her life was in jeopardy for a time and she nearly lost her left leg. There were also injuries to her left shoulder, wrist, foot and head.

Much later, she realized that the master's degree she had been working toward was also in jeopardy. She had started working on it seven years ago and this was the final year to complete it.

In art, a showing of her work that could be judged by a three-member CMU panel and seen by the public was required. Seven years were up last week. She passed.

Mrs. Wallace, who uses Leontine as her professional signature, is well-known in the Midland area as a teacher and at the Midland Center for the Arts as a painter. She is the mother of two sons, 23 and 11, and a daughter, 19.

She credits her friend Gale Thompson with coming up with the idea and suggesting the hospital lobby as a place for the show and the only place where Mrs. Wallace could attend.

The hospital agreed and the show went on without a hitch. It included 14 paintings, both portraits and landscapes, three photographs and two etchings.

Mrs. Wallace agreed it was a unique experience.

"I know it sounds flip, but this injury is bound to have an effect on my painting," she told one interviewer. "After all, vanGogh only lost an ear! I might well have lost my life. Those train wheels weren't much more than a foot away while I lay on the ground and watched them roll past. And I certainly almost lost a leg."

"Yet I came out of it with my skills intact. That's a God-given miracle. I'm sure of it. I'm convinced now that what I have to do is important. What I have to say will be listened to. I can think and use my hands and produce."

Mrs. Wallace's mother-in-law, Mrs. C.M. Wallace, resides in Cass City.

FROM THE Editor's Corner

I wish he were here now. The officer from the Department of Natural Resources that talked in favor of allowing drilling for oil in the Pigeon River Forest area in the northern lower peninsula when speaking to the Cass City Rotary Club six months or so ago.

He said that drilling for oil the way it's done today would have little, if any, impact on this beautiful wild unspoiled tract east of Gaylord and Wolverine.

He said that there were roads throughout the area now and that after the drilling was over the land would return to its previous natural beauty.

I didn't believe then (and don't now) that roads suitable for oil tankers would be the same as the dirt trails that interlace the land today.

But I couldn't argue with an expert about that.

I suspected that oil spills and oil smells would permeate the land for years during and after drilling.

But how much real damage would that cause? I couldn't prove it but, despite what I was told, I believed that allowing drilling would have taken from us that almost intangible beauty that the wilderness-like area offers.

I felt this, but one real hazard never occurred to me as I was thinking of the pitfalls that resulted from the campaign to open the area to exploitation.

Suppose that the explosion and uncontrollable fire now raging south of Gaylord had been in the Pigeon River Forest area?

How long would it take to overcome that damage to one of the few remaining areas that man and civilization has not yet overrun?

Temporarily at least, the concerned persons in Michigan have succeeded in stopping the drilling.

The short term outlook is better than it has been for the last year or so.

Is it cynicism to feel that over the long haul the conservationists really don't have a chance?

I don't believe so. The money is in drilling. The oil companies have the public relations experts. The oil companies have the money to spend to make it happen.

Remember the campaign by all the oil companies trying to make us believe that they were doing us a favor by doubling the price of gas and oil?

If we lose, we lose, but let's not go down without a fight.

When it gets down to the nitty-gritty and permission is granted maybe a strong campaign will force the companies to take extra stringent precautions to protect the area. Public opinion still carries some weight, you know.

Perhaps you are more optimistic than I and feel that we can stop the drilling, period. Maybe I've been in the news business too long. Become too cynical. Maybe you are right. I hope so.

I hope so, but I doubt it.

Terrible Jean's revenge

BY JIM FITZGERALD

Thank you, Abdullah Sheikh. Now I have a name for the only right thing I ever did to Terrible Jean. It was the Camel Clutch.

I read about the Sheikh on the sports page. He is a professional wrestler and he is helping train Muhammad Ali for his boxing-grappling match-bout with a Japanese wrestler next month.

Wrestling is the only thing dumber than boxing, and the Indianapolis 500 is dumber than both of them. But I still read the sports pages every day, trying to find out what ever happened to Boots Poffenberger. He pitched ball and nonsense for the Detroit Tigers many years ago, about the same time Terrible Jean's favorite sport was pounding me into the ground.

Terrible Jean is the oldest and most fearsome of my four formidable sisters. I grew up in her shadow. So did most of our neighborhood which, thanks to her, didn't need trees for shade. What I mean is she was a big girl, older, heavier and meaner than her only brother, a sweet boy who was so nonviolent he protested the Vietnam war in 1935.

I watched while the Blue Water Bridge to Canada was constructed within sight of our home in Port Huron and I daily cheered the workers as they brought two great nations closer together. Even at the age of 10 I realized the bridge would some day be a great thing for draft dodgers.

Thirty-five years later I still have psychological scars from growing up in constant fear of being maimed by a shade tree with her skirt tucked into her bloomers. A scar quivered the other day when I received a letter from Dolores Messing who lives in Southfield near Terrible Jean. Mrs. Messing asked why I had failed to report that Terrible Jean recently won a tennis tournament in Oscoda.

She accused me of being jealous of Terrible Jean's superior abilities. She further charged that I had always been resentful of Terrible Jean's incredible talents; even when we were small children.

It was easy to figure out what has prompted Mrs. Messing to write. Terrible Jean had dictated into her ear while sitting on her head.

Terrible Jean was a marvelous winner. To celebrate each victory she'd do something exciting such as throw me in the St. Clair River. I couldn't swim but the tennis ball stuck in my mouth kept me afloat.

In Oscoda there is probably a river awash with Terrible Jean's latest victims, bobbing.

But tennis isn't Terrible Jean's greatest sport. You should see her fist fight. She used to swing her huge meat-hooks down, as if pounding nails. It usually took her 30 seconds to make me disappear into the ground, whimpering.

My only chance was to trip her, before she started pounding, and then grab her in my famous neckhold. When she was flat on her stomach I would put my knee in her back and clutch her chin with both hands. Pulling back with all my strength. She would beg for mercy, and I would let her free only after she promised she would never hit me again.

I was reminded of this when I read that Abdullah Sheikh's most famous wrestling weapon is his Camel Clutch. He sits on his opponent's back and pulls on his chin until he gives up or splits into two parts. I am flattered by the imitation.

And I don't care if Muhammad Ali copies Terrible Jean's defense against the Camel Clutch. All he has to do is surrender and promise to never hit the Japanese wrestler again. Then he should get up and pound the Japanese to death.

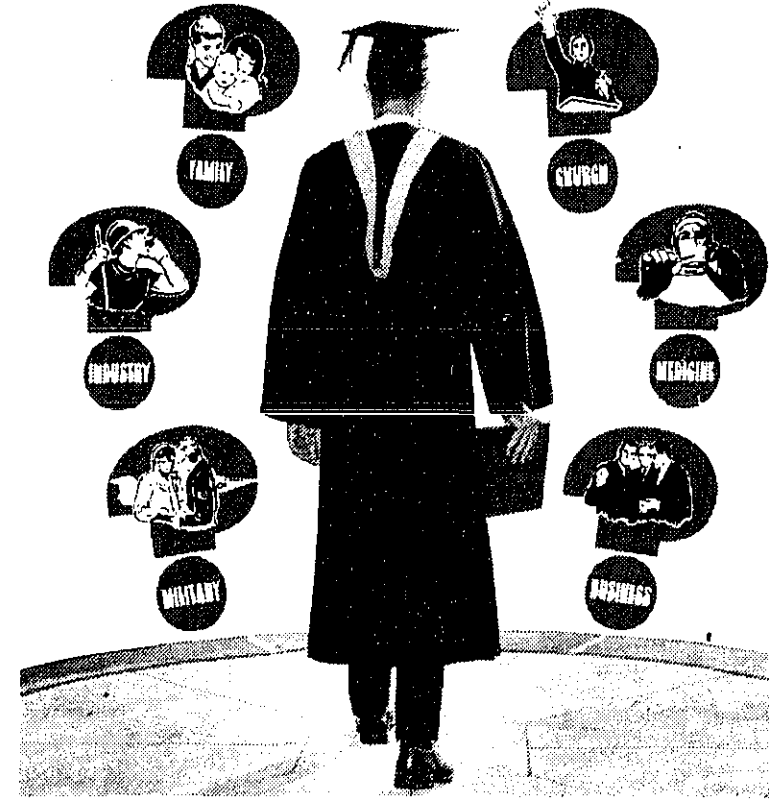

Terrible Jean used to do this while hollering what a dumb sucker I was to trust her. Ali could holler "Remember Pearl Harbor" which is more patriotic.

A political bloc is a clique whose members, collectively, can qualify to act as a head.

WHICH WAY TO TURN?

There he goes, walking into the future. But what direction will he take? Whatever his choice, he will have to face problems and obstacles before his chosen goals can be reached.

One thing is sure, the years ahead hold much promise. One day he may be landing a jet on a carrier at sea, building a bridge in a foreign country, closing a big sale, or perhaps covering a fast-breaking news story. But to successfully reach his goal he will have to find the strength and wisdom to rise above the knotty problems of life.

Fortunately, he need not make his decisions alone. With the help of the Church, he can determine a course for successfully living his life in the world of tomorrow.

By Don Kebler

I hope by the time this writing goes to press we will have had warmer weather and a gentle rain to pull our crops out of their growth slump.

This season is presenting problems involving herbicides and every time a crop producer has to rip up a spring planted crop and plant another he faces this problem if he used herbicides on the previous crop.

Different methods have been tried to reduce residue injury when replanting with a different crop variety, especially when the earlier crop was planted in a field where broadcast spray applications were made. Band spray applications are bad enough but at least there are some less-hazardous methods one can try.

Discing the field to spread or dilute the herbicide band has been tried and sometimes it works. Cultivating between the rows sometimes produces a loose enough seed bed for inter-row planting of a replacement crop. Re-fitting and planting across the rows isn't always successful either.

In general there is no sure way to prevent herbicide residue damage when replanting a second dissimilar crop when known herbicide damage is possible.

Last week I attended an agricultural waste handling training meeting relative to application of organic sludge and waste water to agriculture land. Had the information I received last week been known at the time it was proposed to apply waste water from the large metropolitan areas to Thumb lands, the proposal may never have gotten off the ground.

The correlation of prior existing and newly-derived knowledge has helped to move us down the road towards livable standards for safe waste water and sludge disposal on our land. The ground floor is laid so we can move off in a safe direction.

Two primary concerns must be satisfied before safe applications of sludge and liquid wastes can be obtained. The first concern is well-identified as to the problems related to how rapid surface water will soak into and through the ground. It is not too difficult to determine a soils percolation and infiltration rate relative to safe quantities of liquids to apply.

The second concern involves the soluble elements discharged into the soil from sludge and liquid wastes. Excessive quantities of these elements, if not leached out or fixed in the soil, can build up to plant growth toxicity levels. Physical and chemical soil tests are possible for determining safe levels to prevent chemical toxicity level buildup. Some of these elements taken up in the food we eat can accumulate in our bodies and affect our health.

There's a lot to be done yet but rest assured they'll tie the loose ends together for workable and satisfactory standards to facilitate disposal of these products on the land.

Newspapers

do a good job

How well do newspapers do their job? Is their coverage fair and accurate?

Mrs. Kathy Bauer of Cass City says generally papers do a fair job of reporting.

"I suppose it depends on where the paper is," Mrs. Bauer says. "But generally I'd say most papers do a pretty good job."

She says in most cases, the political bias of newspapers doesn't come out in news reporting. And that's as it should be, she says.

Where does she get most of her news?

"For local news, we depend on the weekly newspapers," she says. "For our national and world news, we use television or news magazines. If we want more specifics, then we read the newspaper."

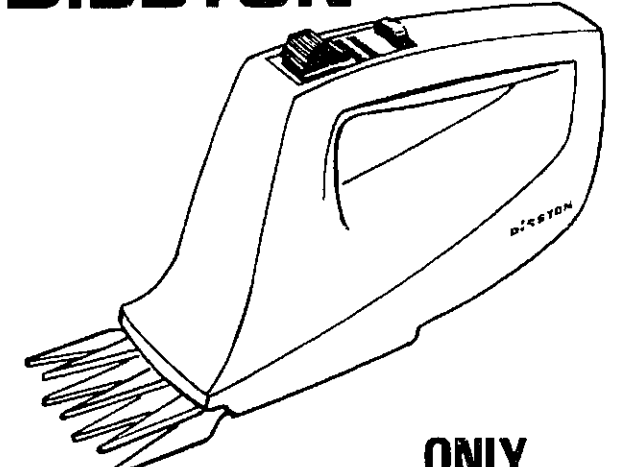

Mrs. Bauer says she reads at least three or four newspapers a week.

Mrs. Bauer is a third grade teacher at Campbell Elementary School. This is her first year in the area. Her husband, Wayne, is manager of the Thumb Co-op Elevator in Elkton.

They have a three-year-old daughter.

KETCHUM'S KNAPSACK

Norman Lear!

Norman Lear!

By Jim Ketchum

Norman Lear! Norman Lear! What have you done, Norman Lear, creator of "All in the Family," "The Jeffersons," and nearly everything else on the tube.

You've given us something called "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" and frankly, I wish you'd take it back. I took a half-hour away from my desk, away from the pulsebeat of this town, just to watch this latest phenomenon and quite frankly, the pulse needed me.

In case there's anybody in the western hemisphere who hasn't seen it, "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" is supposed to be a satire on soap operas. It's supposed to be funny as it pokes fun at the soaps and you should have a good time watching it.

I didn't. I guess I was expecting something else. A satire on soap operas is something Carol Burnett does with her "As the Stomach Turns". That's what I was expecting. I was primed for a half-hour of guffaws, tears streaming down the face and general apoplexy. It didn't happen. In fact, it was tough telling the satire from the serious.

To set the scene (with a little help from my wife) Mary and her husband Tom have been married 14 years. They live with her parents. They have an obnoxious daughter who asks too many personal questions. (Sounds pretty serious so far, doesn't it?)

Mary's sister's fiancé is trying to have an affair with Mary, but Mary is more worried about Dinah Shore's problems and her yellow waxy buildup. She also has another single male friend who drops by to discuss his brother's manic depression, but not why he never married.

Mary likes him, but isn't smart enough to figure out that he'd like a little piece of the action, too.

Meanwhile, husband Tom is just figuring out that his sister-in-law's fiancé is trying to make time with Mary. He goes over to the creep's apartment, prepared to punch him out like a bus ticket and gets a lecture on Mary and wounded birds.

Which kind of describes the whole show. The only thing it lacks so far is someone to put it out of its misery.

On paper it sounds funny. Actually, it's dumb. Not smart-dumb. Just dumb-dumb.

They tell me there are other characters on the show who escaped from an asylum. One I did see was Mary's mother. She's enough to curdle milk. She tells Tom he shouldn't worry about not being able to figure out his marriage.

After all, she's been married 35 years and hasn't figured out her marriage yet. But it works and she's happy and that's really all that matters, isn't it? My wife tells me that all this stupidity grows on you. So does moss if you don't take a bath often enough.

This show is supposed to be the greatest thing since Ted Mack's Original Amateur Hour. During some of the scenes, it sort of reminds you of the Amateur Hour. Especially the writing.

By the end of the show, you hope someone will slip a hook from behind the scenes and yank the pitiful performers out of camera range.

Heaven help us, Norman Lear, Norman Lear.

New Nazarene pastor 'returns' to Cass City

When Rev. Russell Stanley took over as pastor of Cass City Church of the Nazarene recently, he wasn't walking into something totally unknown.

Rev. Stanley, 49, a veteran of 24 years in the ministry, served as pastor of the Gagetown Church of the Nazarene from 1957-63. So it was with some satisfaction that he accepted his call.

"Things have really changed since we left the area," Rev. Stanley said as he and his wife, Audrey, relaxed in the newly redecorated living room of their home.

"When we left, Evans Products was just nicely getting started in Gagetown," he recalled. "Walbro and General Cable were just getting underway, too. So far, I'd say everything has progressed well while we were gone."

Rev. Stanley spent five years at Rochester and another nine years at Mt. Morris before taking the Cass City assignment. His Mt. Morris church had just completed a new building program and he said his ministry there had just about been completed.

"When we began looking around at the pastorates available and we saw Cass City was open, we decided it would be the best of any," he said. "There were other areas near Detroit, but we felt living in this area would be better."

Their move was a homecoming in more ways than one. Their son, Paul, was born in Cass City 19 years ago. Ironically, his father's first sermon back in Cass City was delivered Sunday, May 30, Paul's birthday.

The Stanleys also have a daughter, Joyce, who graduated this year as a dental hygienist from Mott Community College in Flint.

Paul has completed one year of college in Kankakee,

Ill. They also have two married children.

Rev. Stanley sees one of his goals as building interest in the church, especially among young people.

"I'm a community-contact type of person," he says. "I want to help people grow, especially young people. You need to have a definite plan for young people to meet their needs."

He says that's achieved partly by shaping programs that will attract them.

"Get just a few enthused about something you're doing and the word will spread,"

Rev. Stanley says. "They'll do all your advertising for you."

He believes the church in general is not in a decline and that interest is on the upswing. People need roots and a place to plant them and a church can do that, he says.

"I see the church and its people similar to a field that's lain fallow for a long time," Rev. Stanley says. "It needs to be worked so it will grow."

He says ministers must be people-oriented if they are to be successful.

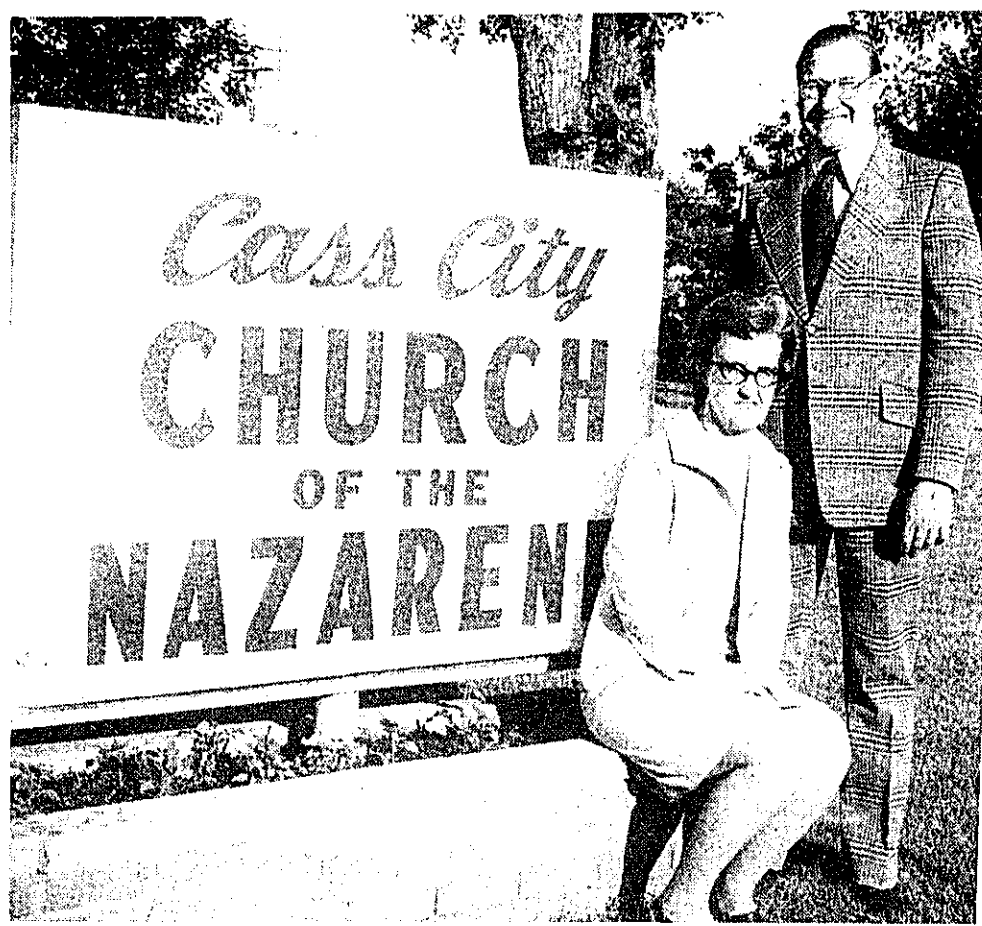

"Some ministers try to do all their work from behind their pulpit or from their desk," he says. "You have to get out and be with people and understand what they do and what their needs are."

Those needs haven't changed much in the 24 years of his ministry, he says.

So far, the Stanleys have spent a lot of time renewing old friendships. One letter they received this week came from a member of his Gagetown congregation who knew him as a child, welcoming him back to the area.

"Sort of makes you feel good," he said with a smile. "I'm sure we'll like it here."

REV. AND MRS. Russell Stanley viewed coming to Cass City as a homecoming. Stanley was pastor of the Gagetown Church of the Nazarene from 1957-63. He recently became pastor at the Cass City church.

Two hurt in separate pre-holiday crashes

Two persons were hospitalized with multiple injuries suffered in separate Kingston-area traffic accidents last week. The two injuries were the most serious reported in the period that included the potentially dangerous 78-hour Memorial Day holiday.

Ironically, both crashes took place before the holiday countdown began at 6:00 p.m. Friday.

Raymond Alger Root, 35, Caro, suffered multiple bruises and lacerations when the motorcycle he was riding spun out of control and landed in a ditch on Bevans Road, three miles north of Kingston, Thursday.

According to the Tuscola County Sheriff's report, Root was westbound when he lost control of the cycle as it crossed a set of railroad tracks. The bike reportedly spun around and landed in a ditch on the south side of the road.

He was treated at Caro Community Hospital. The accident took place at 8:15 p.m. A 55-year-old rural Kingston man suffered multiple cuts and bruises Friday in a two-car crash on M-46 near the west Kingston village limits.

Caro State Police reported cars driven by John Bering, of Legg Rd., and LoAnn Marie Dadacki, 18, of 4063 Shaw Rd., Kingston, were westbound when Ms. Dadacki attempted to pass the Bering auto as Bering attempted a left turn.

Police said both vehicles were traveling between 25 and 35 miles an hour when the crash took place. Bering was treated at Caro Community Hospital while Ms. Dadacki was uninjured. The accident took place at 4:30 p.m.

Two persons were injured when the car in which they were riding went out of control and struck a mailbox on Deckerville Road, three and a half miles east of Deford, Friday afternoon.

Caro State Police said a car driven by Suzanne Marie Nicol, 21, of Deford, was eastbound when the right front tire apparently blew out, forcing the car to swerve into a mailbox and ultimately into a ditch on the south side of the road.

The vehicle then swung back onto the road and ended up in the ditch on the north side.

Neither the driver nor a passenger, Beth Nicol, 15, Deford, was injured. The accident took place at 3:15 p.m.

Kenneth Lee Hall, 20, Deford, was uninjured when he lost control of his vehicle and struck a bridge abutment on Deckerville Road, two miles northeast of Caro.

Sheriff's deputies reported Hall was eastbound when his car crossed the centerline, hit the bridge and then ran into a ditch on the north side.

The accident took place at 2:45 a.m.

CAR-DEER ACCIDENTS

Three car-deer accidents were reported in the past week. A car driven by Judith Belle Carney, 32, of 6764 Main St., Cass City, struck a deer while traveling east on M-81, three and a half miles west of Cass City, Saturday.

Sheriff's deputies said the deer ran south into the path of the Carney vehicle. She was not injured. The accident took place at 10:25 a.m.

Wayne Gary Becker, 28, Unionville, struck a deer while headed west on Cass City Road five and a half miles west of Cass City, Wednesday, May 26.

The animal reportedly ran south into the path of Becker's vehicle. The driver was not injured. Sheriff's deputies said. The accident took place at 10:00 p.m.

A car driven by Daniel John

Winchester, 22, of 7915 Huron Line Rd., Gagetown, struck a deer on Walsh Road, less than a mile south of Gagetown, Saturday.

Sheriff's deputies said Winchester was southbound when a westbound deer crossed the vehicle's path. The driver and his passenger, Patrick John Zuraw, 26, of 6455 Fifth St., Gagetown, were uninjured.

The accident took place at 1:10 p.m.

Dean's list

Two area students were among 24 Tuscola county residents who were named to the Dean's List for the winter semester at Saginaw Valley State College. The two are Albert Curtis of Cass City and Joanne Rinke of Gageton.

Funeral services were scheduled Wednesday at Little's Funeral Home with Rev. Harold Prong, pastor of the Novesta Church of Christ, officiating. Burial was in Elkland cemetery.

Down Memory Lane

FROM THE FILES OF THE CHRONICLE

FIVE YEARS AGO

Mrs. George Roch ended a long, successful career with General Cable Corporation Friday, six months after her husband retired from the same firm after 25 years.

Gov. William G. Milliken's five-year State Airport Plan recommends construction of a new turf airport at Cass City and a new turf airport in the Vassar area. It is part of a program with an estimated cost of $229 million.

Elkland township voters will be asked to approve a five-year extension of a one-mill tax in a special election set June 12. The money will be used to build a new township fire hall and office on Church Street near Ale, on property already purchased by the township.

Scott Guernsey was awarded the Paul Smarks trophy for athletic excellence at the Cass City High School all-sports banquet held Wednesday night at the high school gym.

Thomas Ward has been named Central Office Supervisor for General Telephone's Cass City District office.

TEN YEARS AGO

Parking meters for Cass City will cost the village an estimated $8,000, President Lambert Althaver told village trustees Tuesday night at the Municipal building.

A new Teen Center will be opened soon, probably this week end, at the empty building that housed a grocery store on east Main Street in Cass City. The project, fostered by Good Shepherd Lutheran church, will be opened on a trial basis for a month, Pastor Richard Eyer said.

For the first time in history, pickets walked a street in Cass City. They were in front of the Detroit Edison Co. building on Main Street.

Headed by the Cass City Gavel Club, a determined effort is underway to secure some 25 acres owned by Mort Orr as an addition to the Cass City Recreational Park. Estimated cost of the property is around $25,000.

The village council has voted again to petition the State Highway department for curb and gutter and drainage on Main Street in Cass City.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Cass City High School has the lowest tax rate of any of the 11 schools in Tuscola county, according to figures released by members of the tax allocation board. The school's rate has been set at five mills for operations for the 1951-52 school year.

A contract to repair the village swimming pool was awarded to the Hilton Concrete Company of Pentwater for $2,400.

Rev. and Mrs. Melvin Vender of the Cass City Presbyterian church, will return home this week end after spending more than a week as delegates from this area to the 163d general assembly of the church in Cincinnati.

Miss Shirley Anne Lenzner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.F. Lenzner of Cass City, will graduate from North Central College at Naperville, Ill., June 9.

Miss Hamilton

"Secretary of Year"

Tammy Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton of Unionville, has been selected as "Secretary of the Year" by fellow students of the Vocational Office Block of Cass City High School.

TAMMY HAMILTON

Miss Hamilton, a senior who moved to the Cass City area last year from Bay City, is a co-op student employed by Walbro Corp. She plans to continue her secretarial studies at Baker Junior College in Flint.

Other winners include Mary Ellen Hennessey (Peterson) in 1973, Dianna Fisher in 1974, and Carolyn Sorenson (Smith) in 1975.

The award is made based on leadership and personality on the job, knowledge of the job, neatness of work and self, skills, tactfulness with other workers, efficiency and accuracy of work.

Girl Scouts

set July

day camp

The annual Girl Scout Day Camp will be held during the week of July 19-23, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day at the Riverdale Camp near Owendale.

All Brownies, Juniors, Cadettes and non-scouts are eligible to attend for a week of camping and outdoor activities with one overnight stay for Juniors and Cadettes.

The camp will have a full-time director and camp nurse as well as a business manager, unit leaders and assistants which include senior scouts. No health exam or TB test is required by the campers but the staff must have the TB test.

Any scout or non-scout not having a camp folder and in need of information should contact any local leader or the director, Mrs. Matt Kling of Owendale. Registration will close June 26 so units can be filled and enough staff selected.

Training for staff will be June 8 at 9 a.m., at the camp and any leader not already contacted or any mother wishing to help at camp for full or part-time is urged to attend the training session.

Mrs. Esch named AIB president

Mrs. Grace Esch, manager of the Owendale office of Farmers and Merchants State Bank of Sebawaing, has been named the first woman president of the Northeastern Michigan Chapter of the American Institute of Banking.

MRS. GRACE ESCH

She assumed the AIB presidency at the annual banquet held at Bay City recently.

Mrs. Esch was born in Chandler township of Huron county. She became the first manager of the Owendale branch of Farmers and Merchants in 1963. Her husband, Clemence, operates a farm in Sebawaing township. The couple have four children.

Mrs. Esch was scheduled to return Thursday from a national AIB convention in St. Louis, Mo.

BETTER HEALTH

Doctoring - Science and Art

BY DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

A primary assumption underlying much expert controversy over the "dire state" of the public's health is that disease will finally come under control. Well-being will flourish throughout the land when the practice of medicine is divested of its last traces of "art" and the rules for the care of the sick become as scientifically precise as a protocol for a moon-walk.

It is an understandable hope. The manifest miracles of modern medicine and surgery are undeniably applications of hard-won data, ground out in the laboratories of those who live in a world of rigorously controlled scientific experiment. Why, then, put up with anything less precise?

All aspects of getting well or staying sick must be rigorously tested and quantified at whatever cost, with a view to providing a series of scientifically sound schedules for the management of all ailments. A series of 1-2-3 protocols will outline what to do and when to do it.

Doctors who are practicing medicine are in general keenly aware that there is considerably more than just "pure science" in the practice of medicine. Many of them suspect that when all physicians have been ditched and their places taken by carefully programmed technicians, the resultant order may be that of a well-run machine shop rather than the hoped for public health utopia.

The fact is that most of the major disasters that lay us low have little to do with the doctor-patient encounter. The real villains are poverty, malnutrition, alcoholism, drug abuse, cigarette smoke, smog and highway slaughter to name a few.

When it does take place, the doctor-patient encounter depends for its true fruition on a great deal more than its scientific base. If there is any question about this, try to recall that as the capacity of doctors to intervene precisely in disease has increased, dissatisfaction with the doctor-patient relationship has proportionately accelerated.

What do you think is missing?

Certainly not science. We have never before had so much. Moreover, the pure scientists of medicine these days assert that statistical data alone is valid and what we need more of. Only simpletons, they say, will rely on experience that has not been fed into a computer on the basis of multitudes of data collected by multitudes of multi-centered, double-blinded investigators.

Statistics gathered in this way are as valuable as statistics can ever be in general, but they are not necessarily applicable to any one of us here and now. This is not to say that such material is not useful in the right place for the right reason.

The conviction that statistical data is superior to personal experience leads to all kinds of foolish excess. One group of responsible scientists spent $39,000,000 in 1975 alone in order to see whether the so-called "risk factors" that are said to bring on heart disease are really all that risky; how best to treat high blood pressure that is not very high; whether elevated blood fats are as bad for the heart as some say; how good is surgery of the coronary arteries and whether a daily aspirin tablet will stall off a second heart attack.

The chances are very great that none of these questions are going to turn out to have unequivocal answers, and if they do there will be those who believe and those who find fault. Yet before they are through, they estimate they will spend at least another $185,000,000 more.

The sad thing is that many doctors would hardly feel the need to spend $20,000,000 to learn that over-smoking cigarettes and overeating on top of having diabetes would set most anybody up for trouble with his blood vessels. They might also wonder that if blood fats are all that important in the causation of heart attacks in general, there must be a better explanation to account for a great many people with too much blood cholesterol who are up and around and the equally great many who are down sick in spite of their low cholesterol level.

All the statistical data in the world is not going to help very much even if we are very sure that the presumed correlations are as on target as the very expensive ones must appear to be to somebody.

Sanilac

clinic set

The regular immunization clinics of the Sanilac County Health Dept. will be held in the health department office at 115 N. Elk Street in Sandusky, June 9 and June 16.

The hours for both days are: 9:30-11:30 and 1:30-4:00.

If possible, parents whose last name begins with A-M should attend on the first day, and parents whose last name begins with N-Z should attend on the second day.

Protection against measles, rubella, whooping cough, diphtheria, tetanus and polio will be offered. Tuberculin tests will also be offered.

Children three months of age and over are invited to attend.

A parent or guardian must accompany the child. Parents are urged to bring a record of previous immunization.

L. McLean, Argyle, dies May 29

Funeral services were held Tuesday for Leonard Duncan McLean, 67, a lifelong Argyle township resident, who died Saturday, May 29, at Hills and Dales General Hospital after a long illness.

He was born Aug. 1, 1908, son of the late Archie and Laura McDougal McLean.

He married Miss Ethel Reinelt in Marlette, Sept. 15, 1941. She died Feb. 23, 1963.

He was a member of the First Presbyterian church of Cass City, serving on the Board of Elders for many years. He was also a member of the Ambassadors Chapter of United Presbyterian Men and a member of the Farm Bureau.

Survivors include several cousins, including Melvin McLean of Snover.

Rev. Harry Capps, pastor of First Presbyterian church of Cass City, officiated at the funeral held at Little's Funeral Home.

Burial was in Elkland cemetery.

COLOR BLIND

It's easy for most people to be broad-minded when it's their neighbor who is confronted with a grave problem.

200 hours to complete Fine china cabinet a snap for craftsman Crawford

Over 30 years ago, Norman Crawford of rural Deford spied a china cabinet sitting in the window of a Cass City furniture store. The design appealed to him, but the price didn't.

He took the cabinet's measurements and this year finally built it.

Crawford, a carpenter who works full-time at the Caro Regional Center, created a masterpiece in solid walnut in his spare time at his home workshop.

Crawford, 55, estimates the project took at least 200 hours to complete. The cabinet measures six feet long, by seven feet high and 20 inches deep. Crawford is justifiably proud of his accomplishment.

"I wouldn't take $3,000 for it," he grinned. "I have seen cabinets like this one in Williamsburg, Va., that sold for $8,300."

He said he discovered the measurements for the cabinet after they lay tucked away for over three decades.

"Actually, my wife bought a double set of dishes and we needed some place to store them," he said with a smile. "That's part of the reason I built it."

Fine finish carpentry is nothing new for Crawford. He's been turning out fine furniture since he was a high school student. Since then, the love of creating tables, cabinets, spinning wheels and dozens of other projects has kept on growing.

Crawford comes from a long line of carpenters. A grandfather and great-grandfather were carpenters and although his father rebuilt thrashing machines for a living, his woodworking ability came naturally.

He's done major renovations in the home where he was born and where he and his wife, Virginia, a teacher at Deford Elementary School, reside today.

The recently-completed china cabinet includes an eagle, carved from solid walnut, at the top.

"It wasn't really all that hard to make," he said, looking at the eagle. "My theory is that it's in that block of wood some place and all I have to do is find it."

It's the same theory he applied to a fully-workable spinning wheel he built a few years ago that sits in the family living room. He said most of the work involved using a power lathe, including the finish. He prefers oil finishes, but has used polyurethane.

Crawford says he prefers working in walnut to almost any other wood you can buy. "I have used mahogany, but it's so hard to get," he says. "Walnut is the best."

The problem, though, is availability and cost. Thirty years ago, he constructed a solid walnut table and paid 20 cents a board foot for the wood. The lumber used in his china cabinet cost $1.35 a foot. And the prices continue to rise.

"Part of the problem is that these furniture companies have tied up the lumber mills," he says. "I went to one yard looking for walnut and the man there just shook his head. He said he didn't dare sell me any because his supply was committed to furniture companies."

About the only way to find walnut is to buy a standing tree. That's what Crawford hopes to do in the near future. He needs the wood for his next big project—a grandfather's clock.

He plans to buy the inner workings and construct the rest. He already knows how he wants it to look. That's his secret.

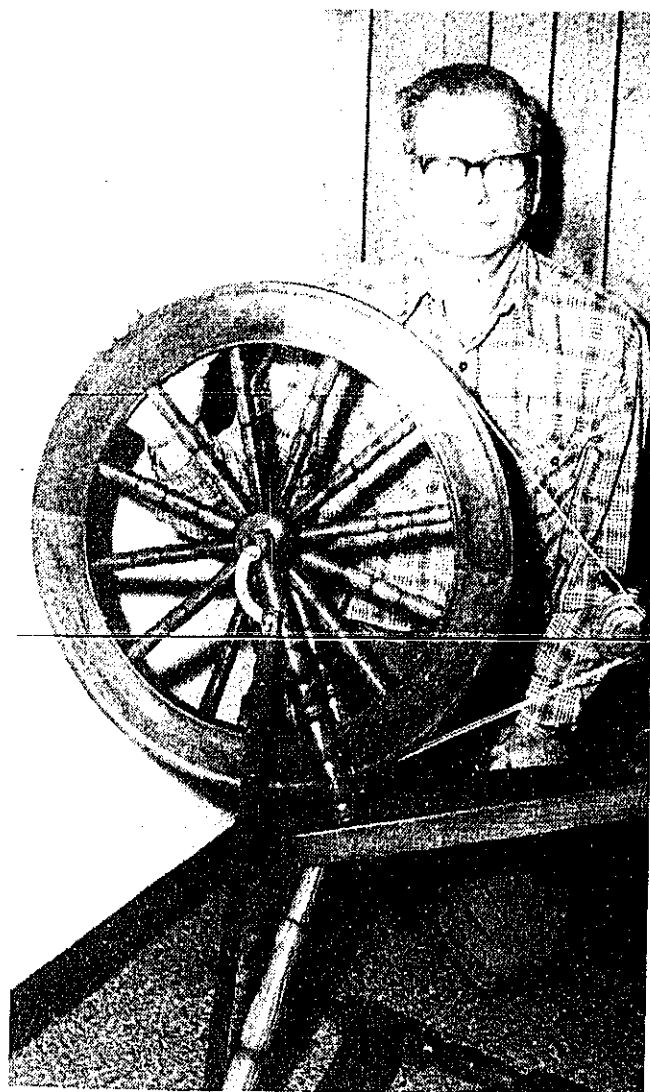

"You have to keep a picture of what you want in mind as you go along," he says. "It's there; you just have to find it."

Although he considers himself a cabinetmaker, most of what he does is for his own enjoyment.

"I'd like to be able to do this for a living," he says, but you need more time and you have to produce more in order to do it.

Crawford says modern tools are nice, but he prefers the older, hand tools. "I'd rather work with older hand tools than the ones they have today because you get a better feel for what you're doing."

He hopes to start his clock project next winter.

A SPINNING WHEEL is just one of the many projects Norman Crawford has built over the years. The wheel is completely workable.

NORMAN CRAWFORD poses with his pride and joy—a huge china cabinet he built last winter. Crawford completely hand-crafted the cabinet of walnut.

Acheson seeks House nomination

A Clio man announced last week he is seeking the Democratic nomination for 84th District Representative in the Aug. 3 primary.

Donald R. Acheson, 41, an employee of AC Spark Plug Division, is the second Democrat to enter the race. Earlier this year, Tuscola County Veterans Affairs Counselor James McCann announced he would seek the post currently held by Loren S. Armbruster of Caro.

Donald R. Acheson

Acheson said he is seeking the nomination to focus on the problems of agriculture and taxes.

"We depend too much on the automobile as Michigan's number one product," he said. "We need a good secondary product to fall back on. In many areas of agriculture, Michigan is number one. We must direct more attention toward agriculture."

He said a better system of priorities is needed in spending tax dollars.

Acheson is a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Third Order of St. Dominic. He served two years in the U.S. Army and was discharged honorably in 1956.

The 84th district includes Tuscola county, Frankenmuth city and township in Saginaw county, the city of Clio, all of Montrose, Thetford and Forest townships and most of Vienna township in Genesee county.

Let's heal wounds in Owen-Gage district

7749 Huron Line Rd
Gagetown, Mi. 48735
June 1, 1976

Dear Mr. Haire,

I started writing a letter to your paper earlier today to express my opinions on the Owen-Gage school issue. It turned out to be five pages packed full of angry frustration, similar I'm sure to many letters you've already received. The more I thought about that letter the more I came to the conclusion that as a Christian I had no right to add more fuel to a fire that's already doing pretty good on its own.

I think it's time to stop and do some serious thinking and honest praying about this. We shouldn't be praying only for what we want for the district because that will take care of itself, but rather we should be praying for the mending of broken friendships.

We sit back in our easy chairs and criticize nations and national leaders but here in our own small area we have the same kind of explosive situation, unless it is taken in hand and soon. I wish we could all just step back and take a close look at ourselves and then try to understand how other people feel.

Perhaps, each side has a reason for the stand they've taken. The Owen-Gage supporters might take a look at the fact that legally the Citizens for Common Sense have every right to send their children where they choose. I'm sure also that if the Citizens for Common Sense were to look at the Owen-Gage loyalists' side, perhaps they could see how hard it must be for many of them to see their district going through such a rough time.

We have to remember that many of their families have lived and gone to school in this district as far back as many of them can remember. I do feel that it is unfortunate that the two districts ever became consolidated, but that is something that no one can do anything about. I know one thing for sure, that if any of our children were caught acting like many of us have acted, they would or should be disciplined with no questions asked.

To you, the taxpayers of Cass City, I would just like to remind you of the past. In the past, most students who came to your school from Gagetown proved to be a real credit to the school and I'm sure that if you let them, they will continue to be a credit in the future.

Isn't it time for all of us to reach out to our neighbor in friendship and in the kind of love that Jesus taught? I challenge all of you, both pro and con to take a look at the Book of John in the Bible. There's a lot about love in there that could benefit all concerned.

I will close now, adding only that I am a taxpayer in Gagetown and have lived in the area all my life. I am privileged to say that I spent four of the best years of my life at Cass City High School. Thank you, Cass City, for those four years. Most of all, I especially want to thank Gagetown Public School for nine years of the finest education any student could have had.

Thank you for allowing me to share these thoughts with you. If we really are the Christians we claim to be, let's all be praying that God's Will be done and not ours.

Do we need new athletic field?

May 31, 1976

To the Cass City Chronicle,

The vote on June 14 by the people of the Cass City School District (1.2 mills for two years for a new athletic complex behind the High School) raises broader questions of educational priorities.

No one enjoys athletics any more than I do. And I feel that my children have had many fine experiences playing on CCHS teams. The question we have to ask is "Have we gone as far with athletics as we should until we improve our school curriculum and faculty?"

For instance: According to the report from the athletic awards program, there are 23 coaches but only one musical instrument instructor for the beginning program, the Junior High Band and the Senior High Band.

We would like to keep up with the three schools in our league with all-weather tracks, but we have only one vocal instructor for the Junior and Senior High School.

We are looking to put in a "start from scratch" athletic complex, but we offer foreign languages only in the high school and have only two art teachers for the entire school. Then there is the whole area for vocational and career education that probably is in need of expansion.

Our students do generally get a darned good education at Cass City, but I don't think we could be accused of going overboard for academics. It's easier to get up general interest in adding a coach for a new sport than upgrade the vocal music by adding a choral director for an a cappella choir to compete in state programs like the band does.

Maybe we can improve the athletic facilities and improve the academic faculty too.

Why not:

1. Vote down the millage on June 14.
2. Go ahead with the new lights at the present site as planned.
3. Skip the all-weather track idea, improve the present track with new cinders and whatever.
4. Leave the present stands for visitors and put up some new bleachers (like Vassar and Frankenthuth) for the home crowd.
5. Invest the money we would have spent on the all new athletic complex in more faculty and academic programs.

There would even be an inexpensive fringe benefit: The present field in back of the school could continue to be used for gym classes, marching band practice and a practice football field.

For athletics and academics, Onward and Upward!

Kids didn't get fair shake

To whom it may concern:

My children, age 3 and 4, were in the Memorial Day Parade Monday. One of them walked all the way there and the other rode his bike and they were tired and thirsty. When it came time to pass out the pop to all the participants I couldn't believe my eyes. It was like a bunch of wild animals.

The bigger children were in front and the line seemed never to move and if a smaller kid got up to the door and got a can of pop they were literally thrown right out and usually fell on the ground because they didn't know what was happening to them. When they said the pop was all gone the only ones that never received any were kids from 3 to 7 because they were not tall or strong enough to push someone out of their way.

Then as you saw these little kids crying because they never received any pop, you saw the bigger kids bragging "I got 5 cans, how many did you get?" I think there should be a new system where the kids should line in single file and have a ticket to give the man who is passing out the pop and after everyone has had a can of pop, let them fight for the rest. But at least the kids who try the hardest won't be left out and wouldn't have to be pushed and stepped on for the drink they well deserved.

Thanks for listening.

Cass City district gets 'non-builders'

May 27, 1976

Dear Editor,

Much has been written about me, often very complimentary, and I have not responded as I felt that the majority vote would prevail and though I still feel this to be true, some facts should be explained.

As you have read in the papers, a very large area of the Owen-Gage district has been transferred to the Cass City district by the State Board of Education while over-ruling the Huron and Tuscola Intermediate Boards of Education which in effect exemplified that local control and local interest can be compromised.

It appears that our dissidents have won a victory. They have convinced many people that the minority should prevail over the majority. They are what Dr. Reithmiller, vice-president of the State Board of Education called, "non-builders". He also said that we would be better off without them. These people form a strong block who can and will apply pressure if they are dissatisfied. Your superintendent reportedly stated that they put pressure on him to run the busses into our districts even though our district is taking the transfer issue into the courts.

They have made demands on your district already and you have accommodated them. The next demand may be unreasonable but unless you bow to them they could cripple your schools the same way that they have crippled ours, with misinformation, distortions and untruths.

But they could have not done this unless they had assistance and encouragement. If you check with your local superintendent, ask him how much tuition these students were paying. Also ask him how many conversations he has had with the dissidents in our district. I sincerely question the motives of any administrator who would allow any child of any school the heartache that our fine students are going through.

He has presumably stated that school is just a "numbers game". I do not agree with this type of philosophy. Our students feel that their fine school is being torn and dismembered by a faction who's sole aim is to destroy. We have had students, some of whom were forced to go to your school by their parents, ask why we are not allowed to keep our district the way it was. They also ask why we are not allowed to build even though we had voted for it. Dr. Reithmiller answered their questions best when he stated that there seems to be a concentrated effort by the larger districts to grab land from the smaller districts. The Cass City district has accepted and seemingly encouraged these transfers from our district.

Let us now look at one of the practical aspects. The Owen-Gage schools have plenty of room for all of its students who want to participate in extra-curricular activities. We seldom, if ever, cut any student from their interest area. There is no need to because our enrollment is not that great. Your school must turn away students.

Now with our former students taking some of the positions of the Cass City students what will your students do? The die has been cast in many ways. Local control has been overruled, a vote of the majority has been compromised and a fine school system has been crippled.

Our loss is not your gain. If these "non-builders" decide that they are not being given enough of your services then they will make it decidedly rough on your district as they have with ours.

You have also gotten some very bitter people who did not want to transfer out of the Owen-Gage district but have been dragged along by the dissidents who want to destroy our school. Only 53 percent of the land valuation wanted to transfer out while 47 percent did not.

These people will be bitter for many years and it will reflect in your vote for millages in years to come. We probably got the better part of the deal when it comes to getting rid of the adult dissidents but the loss of the land, students, and valuation will certainly hurt us. You had an excellent district without any part of our district but now you have acquired a tainted portion that could eventually damage you to the same extent that we have been damaged.

If in the future the State Board of Education feels that it would be in the community and state interest for you to accept some bus loads of students from other districts, please do not complain. You have already set the precedent of accepting bus loads of students from another district for practically no tuition charge and you have allowed the State Board of Education to change boundary lines against the will of the people in the resident district.

Our fight today could be your fight tomorrow but your fight will be a lonely one as you have already chosen the course you will follow in the future.

of '76

Dear Editor,

In our bicentennial year pride to different people is many things. What puts a lump in your throat could be the playing of the Star Spangled Banner, The Pledge of Allegiance, a marching band, or Kate Smith singing "God Bless America."

To me the pride of "76" is being a parent of one of the class of "76", a class that stood in honor for a classmate a little less fortunate.

Graduate Ostrander sets sail for unique summer job

Most high school graduates who have their sights set on college generally wind up with pretty non-descript jobs they take to help finance their education.

Calvin Ostrander, 17, of rural Cass City didn't settle for a run-of-the-mill job. He plans to work on a Great Lakes freighter from the beginning of June through December.

He says he isn't nervous about it. In fact, he can't wait to get started.

Sailing the waters of lakes Michigan, Huron, Superior, Erie and Ontario won't be entirely new for Ostrander. His grandfather, father, three brothers and various uncles have all taken turns on lake freighters.

"Now it's my turn," Ostrander said with a smile as he relaxed in the living room of his farm home just east of Cass City.

"My brother works for Huron Cement Company in Alpena and he talked to a guy who gets crews together and asked him if I could have a job," the Cass City High School senior explained.

"They said they could use me and I guess that's about it," he said.

When he signs on at the end of this month, chances are good he'll be assigned either as a wiper or a deckhand. A wiper works in the engine room and is responsible for maintenance of the large diesel power plants that keep commerce moving on the Great Lakes.

A deckhand is a jack-of-all trades, Ostrander said. When something needs to be done, a deckhand does it.

"I sort of grew up with sailing," Ostrander said. "My grandfather Ostrander sailed during the early 1950's and my uncle, Captain Richard Ostrander, has sailed for about 30 years out of Port Huron."

With so many sailors in the family, it's no wonder Calvin Ostrander decided to set sail for himself.

He admits he's had second thoughts about it. When the ore carrier Edmund Fitzgerald went to the bottom of Lake Superior in a storm last November, Ostrander said he thought about giving it up.

"I was going to back out, but then I decided to stick with it," he said. "If I'd quit, I'd have been called chicken or something and I didn't want that."

He says the Fitzgerald sinking really shouldn't bother him. Major ship disasters are actually rare when you compare them to the number of miles of shipping done on the Great Lakes each year.

"I figured my chances of getting hurt weren't really that great," he says. "No one in our family has ever been hurt yet."

Besides, the pay is a lot better than a prospective college student could make at almost any summer job you can name. Starting pay is $4.55 an hour with increases for longevity.

"It figures out to about $200 a week," he said. "Since I can't spend it anywhere when I'm on board ship, I should have enough for school by the time summer's over."

Ostrander plans to attend Alpena Community College and complete a two-year course in business management.

He plans to work beyond the end of summer through the end of the shipping season "if I like it".

He'll be on board one of seven Huron Cement Co. freighters which haul dry cement and measure from 400-500 feet in length. It takes a crew of 30 to keep one of these ships under motion.

Ostrander figures he'll work an eight-hour shift. When he's not on watch, he admits there won't be much to do besides play chess, write letters and read.

"We'll come into port every two weeks or so and stay maybe a couple of days before we leave," he said.

Home port is Alpena. Ostrander says his ship will make calls in virtually every other port on the Great Lakes from Duluth, Minn., to the eastern side of Lake Ontario. Why did Ostrander decide on sailing for a short-term career?

"I like the outdoors," he says. "Being on the water is nice. I enjoy waking up to a breeze and the lake."

He says he's toured large ships before but never sailed the Great Lakes. The closest he's come was a small boat that rode out some four-foot waves a few years back.

The reaction of most of his friends has been admiration mixed with envy. "Most of them think it's great," he says. "Some of them would like to be going, too."

Ostrander admits sailing is no career for a family man and says it suits him because he has little to tie him down right now.

"I'm going to sail into the winter because I want to take a break from school," he says. "I've been going to school for 12 years and I'd sort of like to take a break."

It will be one of the most unusual breaks any high school senior ever took.

Sanilac solons sizzle over alleged CETA 'shortchanging'

Sanilac county turned on the heat last Thursday in an effort to get a larger slice of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) pie, but came away with little satisfaction.

Sanilac Commissioners Lloyd Severance, Decker, and Sam Work, Croswell, told members of the Thumb Area Consortium, meeting in Cass City, that their county is not getting its fair share of CETA dollars. They blamed inaccurate record keeping by state authorities for the problem and sought relief from Huron county.

Consortium Director Frank Lenard admitted Sanilac county has probably been getting the short end of the CETA stick ever since the Consortium was formed, but held out little hope for any quick changes.

Lenard explained that a survey of unemployment records in the three counties showed that while 23 percent of the unemployment claims came from Huron county, it received credit for 36 percent.

Similarly, Tuscola county registered 28 percent of the claims but received credit for 43 percent. Yet Sanilac county registered nearly 49 percent of the unemployment claims but received credit for only 21 percent.

Lenard said a complicated formula is used by the State Bureau of Labor Statistics to compute unemployment rates on which CETA payments are based. He admitted the formulas probably didn't mean much and shouldn't be used.

But until a complete survey of record keeping in the state is made, Sanilac county will continue to come up short, he said. The latest CETA Title II supplemental allocations angered Work and Severance. Tuscola county's share is $641,660, while Huron county will receive $517,499. Sanilac's county is set to receive just $361,126.

Severance said Sanilac commissioners are considering filing a lawsuit against the state demanding fairer record keeping. He urged Tuscola and Huron counties to join in the effort.

Work suggested that Huron county should share some of its CETA funds with Sanilac county. He implied that a number of Sanilac claimants were registered in Huron county, inflating those statistics.

Huron Commissioner Calvin Reibling, Elkton, balked at the suggestion. "I think you (Sanilac) are losing to the counties south of you and not to us," Reibling said. "If you wanted to divide all the CETA money three ways, then I'd support you. But if you take it just from us, then we're both hurting."

Tuscola funds cannot be tampered with since the county is over a 50,000 population limit.

Lenard suggested one answer would be for the Consortium to apply for "program agent" status. This would mean federal CETA funds could be distributed by the Consortium board itself without having to use state statistics and state distribution formulas.

The board ordered Lenard to seek the status.

The move did little to smooth ruffled Sanilac feathers. "I've sat here and watched this go on for 15 months and I can't stand for it any longer," Work said. "Something has to be done."

He later said Sanilac county has no plans of withdrawing from the Consortium but if changes weren't made, he and Severance would ask to be replaced.

Fund distribution has been a sore spot since the Consortium was formed. From the beginning, Sanilac county has complained that its share has been less than equal, based on population and the actual number of unemployed persons.

Until recently, persons applying for unemployment had no place on their forms to indicate in which county they live. State authorities are now requiring the designation and plan to review all statistics.

That could take as long as a year.

Work suggested that perhaps the Consortium should hold up all funding of job programs until the conflict is resolved, even if it meant laying off CETA-funded workers to do it.

Current unemployment rates place Sanilac county at 11.8 percent, with Tuscola county at 13.5 percent and Huron county at 19.5 percent. Work disputed these figures, saying the actual rates are probably nearly the same.

The percentages are figured on population and a special formula, along with the number of persons actually laid off.

In a move to help appease Sanilac county, the board voted to transfer $11,000 in administrative Title VI funds to Sanilac's Title VI programs which are running short of money.

OTHER BUSINESS

In other business, the board voted to hire former director Roy Allen to coordinate this summer's Title III Summer Program for Economically Disadvantaged Youth (SPEDY).

Allen will be employed June through September and will be paid at a rate of $5 per hour.

SHIPS AND SAILING are a part of Calvin Ostrander's life. He plans to work on a Great Lakes freighter for the next six months. The 17-year-old Cass City area resident looks over some of the many photos he's taken of lake shipping over the years.

Firemen answer 2 calls

There was lots of noise but little action for Elkland township firemen this week as firefighters were called out twice to battle blazes that never developed.

Tuesday, firemen responded to a report at the Regional Educational Media Center at 6410 Main St. It was later discovered that a fluorescent light fixture had malfunctioned, sending a small amount of smoke and odor throughout the office.

No damage was reported. Sunday night, firemen never got out of the fire hall. The whistle apparently went off without being set. No cause for the sounding was discovered.

Glass recycling seen as one step toward a cleaner environment

Ever wish you didn't have to throw away those glass bottles and jars when you finished using them? Ever wish they could be reused?

Well, they can, courtesy of Cas and Henry Bartnik. The Greenleaf township salvage yard operators have been collecting glass for recycling the last five years. Lately, business has been booming.

"It wasn't until a couple years ago that we finally collected enough to make a trip," Cas Bartnik explained. "But lately, we've been getting in a lot more. In fact, we're about ready to make another trip."

The Bartniks haul salvaged glass to an Owens-Illinois Glass plant in Charlotte, southwest of Lansing. Each load they take in totals about 13,500 pounds. They receive around $20 a ton for clean, sorted glass, depending on the market.

"They can use the sorted glass for making new bottles," Bartnik said. "The glass that isn't sorted by color generally goes into cinder block or asphalt."

Bartnik accepts nearly every kind of reusable glass product there is, with the exception of windshields or plate glass, which is a different grade of glass containing different chemicals than glass used in bottles and jars.

Anyone can bring their clean glass in and we'll accept it, Bartnik said. "All we ask is that it's clean. The people don't have to worry about taking off the paper or aluminum rings. Just make sure it's clean."

He said the melting process, which uses temperatures upwards of 2,600 degrees Fahrenheit, burns the paper away.

Bartnik removes the aluminum rings and breaks the individual bottles in color-sorted barrels. The barrels are then loaded on his truck and taken to Charlotte where the glass is processed.

Bartnik said he and his brother got involved in glass recycling because there was a need for it. That need, as he sees it, has increased.

"In order to keep this glass from going to township dumps or county dumps, the people will have to learn to recycle," he said. "It's a matter of educating them."

"It isn't government or the politicians who are going to do it. If you leave it up to them, we'll all pay more in taxes."

In five years, he's collected enough to make three trips to the glass plant. The Bartniks figure it won't take nearly as long to collect enough if present trends mean anything.

"More people are beginning to realize that they can do something with their glass besides throwing it away," Bartnik says.

If the glass recycling business continues to grow, Bartnik says he's working on a machine to handle the added work. It's a mechanized crusher that will grind up a sack full of bottles in a fraction of the time it takes to break each one by hand.

Bartnik says he isn't in the glass recycling business for the money; that it's more of a sideline. He believes as the demand for more recycling stations grows, more entrepreneurs will jump in.

"That really doesn't matter," he says. "The important thing is being able to reuse the glass. It takes less potash and acids to make bottles out of reused glass than out of new glass."

It also helps take pressure off landfills and the roadsides, he says. Once people realize this, Bartnik believes, everybody will be more conscious of reusing what they have instead of throwing it away.

IT MAY look like junk to you, but it's really the start of a glass recycling process that helps conserve natural resources. Cas Bartnik, Cass City, is shown breaking pop bottles which will be returned to a glass plant near Charlotte where new bottles will be made. Bartnik says the demand for recycling glass is growing in the Cass City area.

College week luncheon planned

Are you planning to attend College Week at Michigan State University, June 21-24? If so, a Dutch treat luncheon has been planned for June 9 at the Indianfields Golf and Country Club at 12:30.

This will give you an opportunity to meet persons who plan to attend College Week, coordinate rides, and answer personal concerns about this activity.

Reservations need to be made by June 7 by writing Aliene Mills, Extension Home Economist, Cooperative Extension Service, Civil Defense Center, Caro, or telephone (517) 673-3161.

Foster care picnic set

Plans for the annual Tuscola County Adult Foster Care Picnic have been completed, according to Ray Speigl, Volunteer Coordinator at Social Services.

The picnic will be Saturday, June 5, at the Caro Fairgrounds. Caro area businessmen have contributed many prizes and refreshments for the foster care residents.

Volunteers will be supervising the games, such as bingo and softball, and the Dennis Cox band will provide music. All foster home providers and foster care residents are invited to attend.

Coming Auction

Saturday, June 5 - Mrs. Russell Cook will sell household goods, antiques and farm machinery at auction at the place located four miles south, two miles east, and a half of a mile south of Cass City. Harold Copeland, auctioneer.

REGULAR MEETING OF CASS CITY VILLAGE COUNCIL

The regular meeting of the Cass City Village Council was held May 25, 1976, at the Municipal Building. All Trustees were present.

Bids were opened on a 140 John Deere lawn mower as advertised. A motion was made by Trustee Tuttle and supported by Trustee Bliss to accept a bid of $861.50 submitted by Keith Mitchell. Motion carried.

The minutes of the regular April meeting were read and approved.

The financial statement for April was reviewed.

It was reported by the Streets and Parking Committee that the blacktopping was completed on the streets that were curbed and guttered last summer.

It was reported by the Park and Recreation Committee that there will be a delay in the opening of the new pool. They are aiming for a June 7, 1976 goal. Recommendations for the pool rates were submitted as follows:

Monday-Saturday
2:00-4:00	$.25
4:00-6:00	.35
7:00-9:00	.50
Sunday
2:00-4:00	.50

There will be a free swim period on Tuesdays and Thursdays between 2:00-4:00, 1976 season passes will be $15.00 per person. The swimming lesson rates will be $10.00 for the first session, $7.00 for the second session and $5.00 for the third session.

A motion was made by Trustee Hampshire and supported by Trustee Bliss that a rototiller for the back of the new Case tractor be purchased. Motion carried 5 years 1 nay.

It was reported by the Public Safety committee that crossing guard program for elementary children is being studied by Council's Public Safety Committee and a committee from the school board. The hearing on the alleged unfair labor practice was held on May 12, 1976. No decision has been made as of yet.

Mrs. Konrad Konwalski was present to discuss rezoning of their property on 6307 Church Street from RA2 to RC zoning. A motion was made by Trustee Bliss and supported by Trustee Hampshire that a Public Hearing on the question of rezoning the Konwalski property be held at the next regular Council meeting, June 29, 1976, at 7:00 p.m. Motion carried.

The revised Park Lease agreement with the school was reviewed.

The Superintendent's report was reviewed.

A letter was received from Hubbell, Roth and Clark stating that the Step 1 Plan for the Wastewater Treatment Plant expansion was submitted to the Department of Natural Resources for approval.

Donations for the pool from various groups and organizations were acknowledged.

A motion was made by Trustee Bliss and supported by Trustee Jones that we adopt the resolution on the Municipal Maintenance Contract and appoint Lou LaPensee as Maintenance Superintendent. Motion carried 6 years, 0 days.

A motion was made by Trustee Bliss and supported by Trustee Hampshire that the drive to the pool be named the Scotty McCullough Drive as requested by the Gavel Club. Motion carried.

A motion was made by Trustee Rawson and supported by Trustee Bliss that the bills as examined be approved for payment. Motion carried.

There being no further business a motion was made by Trustee Rawson and supported by Bliss that the meeting be adjourned. Motion carried.

10-team church loop season opens tonight

The 10-team Church League is poised to open the softball season Thursday, June 3, at Cass City Recreational Park when the Cass City Lutherans are carded against the Cass City Baptists. The late game pits Shabbona-Decker against Cass City Methodists.

The early line on the teams places the Lutherans and Shabbona in the favorites' role but if history means anything it's likely that the favorites will not win.

Seldom in recent years has one team won both the play-offs and the regular season togas, and upsets are the rule rather than the exception any time a game is started at the park.

The schedule calls for games on Thursday, Friday and Monday each week.

After Thursday's opener, Colwood will tangle with Novesta Church of Christ Friday while Lamotte will face Deford in the late game.

Monday's action features games between Cass City Missionary and the Catholics at 7 p.m. and Deford against Colwood at 9 p.m.

Last year Missionary edged the Lutherans for the championship and Shabbona came from nowhere to cop the play-off title.

DON MILLER, Cass City Village Patrolman, poses with a 200-pound bear he shot last week near St. Charles, Ont. Miller participated in the annual Ontario spring bear hunt.

Contests at Frankenmuth

Cass City Merchants split first 2 games

The Cass City Merchants fast pitch softball team split its first two league games of the season with a win over Sebawaing Old Heidelberg Wednesday, May 26, and a loss to Frankenmuth Thursday, May 20. Both games were played at Frankenmuth.

Cass City opened with two runs against Frankenmuth in the first inning. Hits by Jerry Toner and Ken Lowe and a circuit clout by Wally Hempton paced the rally.

Frankenmuth came back to take the lead on a pair of hits and an error for three runs. They added another on a boot and a hit and the final counter in the sixth on a hit and three errors.

Cass City scored its final run in the third after Elwyn Helwig tripled. Hempton led the attack with a homer and triple in three tries. Elwyn Helwig also picked up two hits.

SEBEWAING GAME

It looked as if Cass City were going to blow another lead in the second game of the year. The team scored twice in the second on a single by Don Galbraith, a walk to Mike Murphy, a single by Craig Helwig, and a couple of Sebawaing errors.

But Old Heidelberg came roaring back with a pair of runs in the fourth on a hit batter and a home run and then took the lead on three hits good for two more runs in the sixth.

Trailing 4-2 going into the final frame, Cass City won it. Henry Cooklin singled. Jerry Toner tripled to deep left-center and Galbraith hammered a home run to put the Merchants ahead.

Cooklin, with three hits and Toner and Galbraith with two each, led the attack.

Line scores:
CC	201	0000	3-7-6
F	031	002x	6-6-1
CC	020	0003	5-10-1
S	000	2020	4-8-4

Sroka cans ace at Rolling Hills

Gerhard A. Sroka of Bad Axe shot this year's first hole-in-one at Rolling Hills Golf Course, Cass City, Thursday, May 27.

Sroka used an eight-iron for his ace, which came on the fifth hole.

Witnesses were Leonard Russell and Gordon Ewuining, both of Bad Axe.

Agnes Lapak dies Monday

Mrs. Agnes Lapak, 87, of Gagetown died Monday, May 31, at the Tuscola County Medical Care Facility, Caro, following a long illness.

She was born in Austria-Hungary, Jan. 8, 1889, and has been a resident of Gagetown since 1918.

Agnes Raca and Joseph Lapak were married in Kansas City in 1907.

Surviving are five sons, John, Richard and Bernard, all of Saginaw, Joseph of Detroit and Andrew of Birch Run; four daughters, Mrs. Pauline Brandt of Saginaw, Mrs. Mary Kuehne of Caro, Mrs. Agnes Turner of Waukegan, Ill., and Mrs. Frances Golis of Flint; 30 grandchildren; 29 great-grandchildren, and one sister, Mrs. Mary Kasick, of Kansas City.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 11 a.m. at St. Agatha Catholic church, Gagetown. Burial will be in the church cemetery. Rev. Fr. Norman Van Poppelen will officiate. A rosary will be held Wednesday evening at 7 p.m. at the Hunter Funeral Home.

VOLUNTEERS RAISED $3,200 to erect a lighted scoreboard for the Owen-Gage athletic field. The scoreboard went up this week. Shown are (from the left) Arnie Besonen, football coach, Walt Swiastyn, Mrs. Jack Brinkman and Mrs. Robert Brinkman. The drive began last fall. Shown positioning the sign in the background is Chuck Dorsch.

The 227-mile-long Muskegon River is one of the state's finest canoeing streams. Its calm waters make it ideal for novice canoeists while its length is an ideal challenge for experienced paddlers. This once mighty logging river of the 1800s begins at Houghton Lake as wild and scenic and goes into Muskegon Lake, where civilization is everywhere. Best canoeing is from Houghton Lake to Big Rapids as waters are free flowing except for portage points near its beginning. Canoeing is tougher from Big Rapids to Croton Dam since there are mostly backwaters and four major portage points. Trips of just a few hours or up to 14 days to canoe the entire stretch are possible. Anglers will find excellent fall salmon runs in the lower portion. Points of interest this Bicentennial year include Muskegon's Heritage Village and Hackley House; Fremont's Windmill Village and Oldtown; the Paris fish ponds, and a DNR deer farm and the Dead Stream swamp, both near Houghton Lake.

RUBBER STAMPS

Use rubber stamps to clearly mark papers, documents, packages and many items. Stamped impressions have an official look, get attention and save time. You can buy made-to-order rubber stamps in any size with any wording or any special marks or trademarks. Rubber stamps pay for themselves many times over.
